In Debt on Bond against Baron and Feme, being made in her Widowhood, with Condition that she, her Heirs and Assigns, keep Contracts and Covenants made between her former Husband and his Lessee the Plaintiff; and there was an Agreement that the Plaintiff should enjoy a Warren of the Demise of her former Husband, and that he entered till put out by the Defendant: Issue on the Agreement, and found for the Plaintiff. It was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that there was no Estate alledged in her former Husband in jure Uxoris, whereby though the second Husband be Assignee in Law, yet he enters of his own Wrong, and not as claiming under her. But per Windam, It is not requisite that the Husband be Assignee of the Estate, but her Assignee of Covenant. Keb. 348, 512. Judgment pro Quer. If Lessor covenants with his Lessee for Years, that it shall be lawful for the Lessee, &c. peaceably to enjoy the Land, and after the Lessor enters tortiously upon the Lessee, and ousts him; this is a Breach of the Covenant, for the Intention of it was, that he should enjoy it without the Interruption of the Lessor: So it had been if the Word peaceably had not been in the Covenant. Hob. 49.

But if Covenant be in a Lease by Indenture, that B. shall enjoy the Land peaceably and quietly to his own Use, according to the Intent of the Indenture, without any lawful Impediment, Suit, Disturbance, Eject, Contradict, Molestand, Charge, Incumbrance or Denial of the said A. the Lessor, and after A. enters upon B. and disturbs him in taking the Profits without any lawful Title but as a Trespasser: This is not any Breach of the Covenant; for that is expressly limited, that he shall enjoy this without any lawful Disturbance, and so a Disturbance by Tort is out of the Covenant; but if the Lessor enters and ousts him, though it be tortiously, it is a Breach. Roll. Abr. 429.

If a Lessor covenants with the Lessee, that he shall have and enjoy the Lands quiete & pacifice sine evictione & interruptione alicujus Personæ, and after a Stranger enters per Tort; yet this is a Breach of the Condition, for that the Covenant is, that he shall not be interrupted in his Possession. Dyer 328. a. But in Hob. Rep. Sir William Tisdale and Essex's Case is, That if the Lessor covenants with his Lessee, Quod ipse h'eret, occuparet & gauderet the Land demised, and after a Stranger enters per Tort, and ejects him; this is not any Breach of the Covenant; for the Law will not construe the Covenant to extend to tortious Acts without exprefs Covenant. Cro. Jac. 425. pl. 10. and 144. pl. 21. Sem' cont' al' Dy.

If a Man covenants for Enjoyment against a particular Person or Persons, he covenants as well against their tortious Entries as legal. Hob. 34, 35. Vaugban 118. Cro. Eliz. 212, 213. Roll. Rep. 397. Moor 867.

If a Lessor covenants with his Lessee for Years, that it shall be lawful for the Lessee peaceably, &c. to enjoy the Land, and after the Lessor enters tortiously upon the Lessee, and ousts him; yet this is a Breach of the Covenant, for the Intent was, that he should enjoy it without the Interruption of the Lessor. Roll. Abr. 427.

A Covenant that the Indenture of a Lease at the Time of the Assignment is a good, true and indefeasible Lease, and that the Plaintiff shall enjoy, &c. without the Let or Interruption of the Defendant, or of any claiming by, from or under him: The Plaintiff shewed for Breach, that before he that made the Lease had any Thing, one J. S. was seised in Fee, and that he who made the Lease re-entered upon him and disseised, and leased prout, and that J. S. re-entered upon him; upon which Replication the Defendant demurs. Per Cur', The Words indefeasible Lease shall be construed as a distinct Sentence from the last Words, that he shall enjoy it without the Interruption of the Defendant. Sid. 328. Saund. 51. 2 Keb. 201.

Covenant in a Lease for Years of a Manor, that the Lessee shall not molest, vex or put out any Copyholder, &c. Plaintiff assigned for Breach, that the Defendant vi & armis entered upon a Copyhold, &c. in a Cow-house, Parcel of the Premises, & sic Molestavit, &c. This is not any Breach, for the Molestation is to be intended of such Sort that he may oust him out of his Copyhold, either by distraining, that he could not enjoy it quietly, or by some other Vexation, whereby he was forced to relinquish his Possession; and the Wrong is only here done to his Person, and not to his Copyhold Tenement; and so no Breach. Cro. Eliz. 421.

In an Action of Debt on Bond to perform Covenants; one of which was, that the Plaintiff should not be interrupted in his Possession of certain Lands by any Person that had lawful Title, and particularly that he should not be interrupted by one T. A. by virtue of any such Title. Defendant pleaded Performance. Plaintiff replied 1 Nov. 20 Car. The Defendant made the Lease to Plaintiff for Years, and 3d of Nov. he entered; and that 17 Aug. 20 Car. before, the Defendant made a Lease to A. for Years yet to come, who 20 Aug. 20 Car. entered. The Defendant pleaded the Lease to A. was on Condition for Re-entry for Non-payment of Rent, and that before the Lease made to the Plaintiff the Rent was behind, & legitime demandat' secundum formam Indenturæ; and he re-entered and made the Lease to the Plaintiff. Upon general Demurrer; per Cur', The Demand was not sufficiently alledged; for he ought to set forth when and where it was made, that the Court might know if it were legal. But for a Flaw in the Plaintiff's Replication, because he alledged his Entry after the Lease made to A. so that it appears not that he was interrupted by him, the Opinion of the Court was against the Plaintiff. Allen 19.

C. C. granted the next Avoidance, &c. to M. M. assigned it to L. to present to the same Church when it shall become void; and covenanted that the same Person who shall be so presented by him shall enjoy it without the Let or Disturbance of the said C. or M. or any of them, or any by their Procurement. L. presented J. S. and after J. M. presented another, claiming the first and next Avoidance by the Procurement of C. The Declaration was not good; for it ought to say, that C. granted to J. M. the next Avoidance, and procured him to disturb, and that by his Procurement he was disturbed. Winch 4.

A Lessor covenanted that the Lessee should peaceably and quietly enjoy the Land let during the Term; Plaintiff declared that a Stranger entered upon him, and ousted him within the Term. Per Roll: The Covenant in this Case is broken though he be a Stranger. Style 67.

A Lessor covenanted that the Plaintiff and his Wife should enjoy the Premises during the Term, without the Interruption of him or J. his Wife; and the Expulsion is laid of the Plaintiff only, yet it is good, because the Husband has the sole Profits and Possession; and although the Entry of the Lessor is not alledged to be by Title, so as he is merely a Tortfeasor, and though he might have an Action of Trespass against him. Cro. Jac. 383.

A Man covenants that the Covenantee shall hold the Land for twenty Years; this will amount unto a Lease of the Land for Years; but if it is that he shall enjoy the Land for twenty Years, this is only a Covenant. *Cro. Although

Although the Words in an Indenture are in Shew the Words of the Lessor only, yet the Lessee accepting thereof, and enjoying of it, it is as well as if it had been a Covenant de facto. Cro. Jac. 522. pl. 7.

If a Lessor covenants with the Lessee, that he hath not done any Act to prejudice the Lease, but that the Lessee shall enjoy it against all Persons: These Words, against all Persons, shall refer to the first, and be limited and restrained to any Acts done by him, and no Breach shall be allowed but on such an Act. 25 Co. 17, &c. 22 H. 6. 52. Dyer 257.

A Lessor covenanted with the Lessee, that he has not done any Act to prejudice the Lease, but that the Lessee shall enjoy it against all Persons; the Words, against all Persons, shall refer to the first, and be limited to any Acts done by him. Winch 4.

The Condition of an Obligation was, that if the Defendant shall warrant and defend an Owing of Land to the Plaintiff against J. S. and all others, that then, &c. Resolved that the Word defend shall be taken as a Defence against lawful Titles, and not against Trespasses. Moor, pl. 294.

If two Men lease for Years, and covenant that the Lessee shall enjoy, free from all Incumbrances made by them, and after the Lessee is disturbed by J. S. to whom one of the Lessors had made a precedent Lease: This is a Breach, for them shall be taken severally, and not jointly only. Lutw. 161.

In Covenant that whereas the Plaintiff was in Possession of such Lands, that neither J. S. nor J. D. nor J. G. should disturb him by any indirect Means, but by due Course of Law. Defendant pleads, that neither J. S. nor J. D. nor J. G. did disturb by any indirect Means, but by due Course of Law; it is not good, but a Negative pregnant: If he had pleaded he was not disturbed by any indirect Means, it had been good, if he had said, that he had not been disturbed contra formam conventionis præd. Godb. 60. 2 Leon 197.

One covenants that he shall enjoy against him and V. and all claiming under him; and assigns a Breach, that C. claims under V. and ejected him. Defendant pleads, that at the Time of the Covenant he was seised of an indefeasible Title, and that by an Act of Parliament made, after reciting that V. had settled this Estate in Lady M. P. and that certain Persons had unduly procured a Fine of her; it enacts, that the Fine shall be void, and that any Person might enter as if no Fine had been levied; and that by virtue of this Fine, &c. non aliter, the Defendant was seised, and sold and made the Covenant; and that after the Act, C. claiming by Title under the said Lady P. by V.'s Settlement, by virtue of the said Act of Parliament entered and ousted him. Plaintiff demurs, for that the Title being good at the Time of the Covenant being made, and the Title upon which the Ouster, it being by Act of Parliament, it is no Breach, as 9 Co. 106. This Act does not make a new Title, but removes an Obstruction from the old, and doubtless V. was named in the Covenant for this Purpose, in Case this Fine unduly obtained should be avoided. Twifden contra. 2 Lev. 26. Vent. 175. 2 Keb. 831.

Where a Covenant is to permit a Man to enjoy without Molestation, the Word Molestation shall not extend to personal Torts, as to beating or assaulting of him, but to an Entry upon him, and a Disturbance in his Possession. Cro. Eliz. 421. pl. 16.

By Covenant in Law upon the Word Demise, the Lessee is to enjoy his Lease against the lawful Entry, Eviction or Interruption of any Man, but not against tortious Entries, Evictions or Interruptions; because for such tortious Acts the Lessee hath his proper Remedy against the Wrong-doer. By the same Reason, if the Lessee be by express Covenant to enjoy his Term against all Men, or notwithstanding any Act done by the Lessor, or any claiming under him, the Lessee shall not have an Action of Covenant against the Lessor unless he is ousted; for if he is tortiously ousted by a Stranger, he hath his Remedy. But if the Lessor expressly covenants that the Lessee shall enjoy without the Entry or Interruption of any, then the Lessor shall be charged by an Action of Covenant for the tortious Entry of a Stranger, because no other Meaning can be given to this Covenant. Vaugh. 119. Lucas 384.

But where a Man covenants for quiet Enjoyment against a particular Person, there it seems the Covenant shall extend to his tortious Acts. Vaugh. 125 to 128. Hob. 35.

An Attorney covenants on the Behalf of another, that the Covenantee shall quietly enjoy such Land at such a Rent for a Year: Adjudged that this Covenant amounts to a Lease though made by a Stranger, for he acted on Behalf of the Owner of the Land, and it shall be taken that he had Authority to demise. 2 Vent. 62.

The Attorney must covenant in the Name of the Party for whom he acts, not in his own Name. 9 Co. 77.

Covenant to enjoy peaceably against M. Breach was assigned, that M. had entered and cut down five Elms; upon Evidence it was, A. Servant of M. by Commandment, and in the Presence of his Master, had entered and cut, and good. Leon. 157.

Where a Man covenants that his Lessee shall quietly enjoy during the Term, without any Interruption of the Lessor, and the Lessor enters upon him, the Lessee may bring Trespass if he will, or Covenant if he will. Cro. Jac. 383. pl. 11. Hob. 35.

The Defendant covenanted that the Plaintiff should enjoy a Close quietly for a Year; upon which the Plaintiff put in his Beasts, and K. who had Titulum virtute cujusdam dimissionis ei inde facti antea confectioni articuli predicti, entered upon the Plaintiff, and expelled him, and after brought an Action of Trespass against him for putting Beasts into the said Close, and that Talis Processus fuit that K. recovered against the Plaintiff 20*l.* Damages, and 17*l.* Costs, of which the Plaintiff had Notice; and so by the Non-quiet Enjoyment the Defendant had broke his Covenant. Issue upon this, and Verdict for the Plaintiff. Defendant moved in Arrest of Judgment, for that Plaintiff had not shewed what Title K. had, and it may be the Title which he had was under the Plaintiff himself; and there having been a Suit wherein the Title of K. appeared, the Plaintiff ought to have shewed it, for now it is in his own Conscience; Sed non alloc'; for the Title of K. cannot be supposed to be under the Plaintiff, the Covenant is broken, as in Procter and Newton's Case, Trin. 23 Car. 2. B. R. Rot. 856. Judgment pro Quer'. 3 Lev. 325.

Plaintiff declared on a Demise of a Messuage, simul cum one Garden, & Latrina [Angl. House of Office] ad ulteriorem finem inde; and Lessor covenanted, that the Lessee should enjoy dimissa premissa; and assigns a Breach, that the Defendant had erected on Part of the Garden a Mansion-House, whereby the Plaintiff Usum Gardini predicti secundum formam & effectum dimissus predicti habere non potuit. Defendant pleaded, that non obstante edificat predicti, the Plaintiff usum Gardini predicti habere potuit, secundum veram intentionem dimissus predicti, absque hoc quod edificatio predicti aliquo modo impediret le Plaintiff of the Use of the said Garden, secundum veram intentionem indentur predicti. Plaintiff demurred. Per Cur', The Use of the Garden is the Use of all the Garden, and not the Use only to pass to the House of Office, as was pretended by the Defendant; and the Traverse contains more than is alledged in the Breach, secundum veram intentionem indentur predicti, and the Court cannot know the true Intention of the Indenture but by the Words of the Indenture. 3 Lev. 167.

Debt on Bond to perform Covenants; the Covenant was for quiet Enjoyment, without Let, Trouble or Interruption, &c. The Plaintiff assigned his Breach, that he forbade his Tenant to pay his Rent. Per Cur', It is no Breach unless there were some other Act. Brownl. 81.

A Covenant was, that the Covenantee should peaceably enjoy an Acre of Copyhold Land according to the Custom of the Manor. The Defendant pleaded, that by Custom of the Manor the Covenantee ought to pay to the Lord a Rent, and for Non-payment the Lord to re-enter; and that the Covenantee did not pay it, and the Lord entered and demanded Judgment si actio: A good Plea. Bendl. 32.

In Covenant Plaintiff assigned for Breach the Non-payment of Rent; Defendant pleaded a Bargain and Sale for Money for 100 Years before that Time of the same Land made to A. and pleaded the Statute of Uses, and then shews the Attainder of A. for High Treason, and that by this Attainder it is vested in the King; and pleaded the Act of Attainder, and the Exceptions; and it was demurred to this Plea upon 4 Co. 53. and Dyer 256. because he had not pleaded that A. or any under him, had not entered upon the Lands, and without Entry and Expulsion of the Defendant he shall not be discharged of the Rent; but it was said, it being upon the Statute of Uses, no Entry was requisite: But the greatest Doubt was, the Title is in the King, and the King is in Possession without Entry, and the Party is in Possession, viz. the Defendant is accountable to him for the Profits. In Keble the Court agreed this to be a good Lease by way of Estoppel; and if the Rent be in Being, the Covenant remains, and econtra if not. And per Cur', This is a sufficient Eviction without Entry or Office alledged, nor need any Entry be laid by the first Lessee, he being said in Possession by Virtue of the Statute; and the King is in actual Possession as much as if the Party had entered actually, though a common Person should not be said to be in Possession without Entry by himself or the first Lessee: Now this cannot be good as a Lease in Reversion, being not so pleaded, but as a Grant of the present Estate; but all agreed that upon Assignment of the Lease there must be Attornment. The Plaintiff has declared on a Lease in Possession as at Common Law, which is avoided by Eviction. Judgment pro Defendant. Sid. 399. 2 Keb. 364, 444.

In an Action of Covenant a Breach was assigned by the Lessee, that he did not quietly enjoy, &c. Lessor pleads in Bar, that the Covenant was, that the Lessee performing the Covenants, and paying his Rents, should quietly enjoy, &c. Per Windham, These Words, paying the Rent, is no Covenant precedent, but rather concomitant, and is liable to Construction as the Subject-Matter is; but here it can be no Condition, being an usual Clause at the End of all Leases. Per Cur', And yielding and paying makes no Condition. 2 Keb. 9, 23. Sid. 280. Vide Keb. 895.

Covenant,

Covenant, for that the Testator sold to the Plaintiff twenty Ton of Copperas, and agreed with the Plaintiff, that if he failed of the Payment of such a Sum at such a Day, that he might quietly have and enjoy the said twenty Ton of Copperas; and alledged in fact, that the Money was not paid at the Day, Et quod non potuit habere Et gaudere the said twenty Ton of Copperas. An Action was brought, and Judgment was against the Defendant by Nil dicit, and a Writ of Inquiry of Damages awarded, and 260*l.* Damages returned. Per Cur', The Declaration is not good, in that he assigned not a sufficient Breach, Quod non potuit habere Et gaudere, &c. without shewing how and by whom he was disturbed, is not sufficient; for it ought to appear to the Court that it was a lawful Disturbance, otherwise there is not any Cause of Action; for the Goods being sold to him, if he were legally disturbed, he has a sufficient Remedy, and is not to maintain an Action of Covenant; and of this Opinion was all the Court: And though Judgment was given against the Defendant by Nil dicit, yet per Cur', he came Time enough to alledge this Matter; for until the last Judgment he may well inform the Court of the Insufficiency of the Declaration; and the Court seeing it insufficient, shall abate it. Cro. Eliz. 914.

Covenant, for that the Defendant 35 Eliz. let to him the Barton of B. for six Years, and covenanted that he should enjoy it during the Term quietly, and discharged from Tithes, &c. and further, that if the Tithes were demanded and recovered against him during the Term, that he should recoup in his Hands so much of the Rent as the Tithes amounted to: For Breach Plaintiff shewed, that in 42 Eliz. the Parson sued him for the Tithes of Corn growing there in the Years 38 & 39 of Eliz. whereupon it was demurred. Per Cur', This Suit after the Determination of the Term was a Breach of Covenant, for he did not enjoy it discharged, &c. which is not intended of a real Discharge, for it appears not to be the Intent of the Parties, because it is agreed that if he were sued he should recoup as much of the Rent in his Hands; but their Meaning was, he should be freed from Suit and Payment of it; and he is as greatly prejudiced by a Suit after the Term as if he had been sued before the Expiration of the Term: But because it was not alledged that the Suit was lawful, or that the Tithes were due, for he was not bound to discharge him from illegal Suits, the Breach was not well assigned. Cro. Eliz. 916, 917.

A Condition peaceably to enjoy from the 1 February until Michaelmas Day Tithes, paying Half-yearly during the Term, and on Default of Payment the Defendant (the Lessor) to be free from all Obligation to the Plaintiff. He replied and assigned a Breach in Non-payment of Rent at Michaelmas, which was after the Term ended; and Defendant demurred. Now the Substance of the Suit is quiet Enjoyment, and therefore ought not to be taken by Protestation. Sed per Cur', Enjoyment need not be answered where it is defeasanced by Payment of Rent; yet Judgment pro Defendant. 3 Keb. 550, 594.

A Condition to perform Covenants in a Lease; one of which was, that he should enjoy such Lands let him quietly without Interruption. And the Plaintiff in his Replication shewed in fact, that the Defendant 20 March 30 Eliz. had disturbed him, and in that assigned the Breach. The Defendant by Rejoinder shewed, that in the Indenture there was a Proviso, that if he paid 10*l.* the 31 March 30 Eliz. that the Indenture and all therein contained should be void, and alledged he paid 10*l.* at the Day (but this was after the Disturbance supposed). Plaintiff demurred. Judgment pro Quer'. For by the Covenant broken before the Condition performed, the Obligation was forfeited; and it is not material that the Covenant became void before the Action brought; but by Wray, If the Proviso had been, that upon the Payment of the 10*l.* that then as well the Obligation as the Indenture should be void, aliter; for then the Bond was void before the Action brought. Cro. Eliz. 244.

A. Tenant in Tail (Reversion to the Queen in Fee) let the Premises for twenty-one Years by Indenture, and covenanted that the Lessee should enjoy it against all Persons, without the Interruption of any besides the Queen, her Heirs and Successors; the Queen granted her Reversion to W. The Tenant in Tail died without Issue; W. entered, Lessee brought Covenant: It lies, for the Queen's Patentee is not excepted. Cro. Eliz. 517.

There was a Covenant in an Assignment of a Lease, that the Assignee should quietly enjoy &c. free and clear of and from all Arrears of Rent: An Action was brought upon this Covenant, and the Breach assigned was, that the Rent was in Arrear and not paid. The Defendant pleaded that he left so much Money in the Hands of the Plaintiff, ea intentione, to pay it to the Lessor in Discharge of what Rent was then in Arrear: And upon Demurrer the Plea was held good, notwithstanding the Objection that the Intention was put in Issue; for if it had been ad solvend', it had been good, and in this Case the Plaintiff might have replied non reliquit, &c. in manibus suis ad solvend'. 4 Mod. 249.

In a Lease for Years the Defendant covenanted that the Plaintiff should enjoy it during the Term. On Demurrer the Case was, Tenant for Life levied a Fine Come ceo, &c. to him in Reversion; the Uses were to the Conusee and his Heirs, on Condition to pay to the Tenant for for Life 4*l. per Ann.* during his Life, and upon Default, that it should be to the Use of the Conusor for her Life; the Conusee made a Feoffment to the Defendant, who leased to the Plaintiff; the 4*l.* was not paid nor demanded; the Tenant for Life entered upon the Plaintiff: This is a Breach of the Condition without any Demand of the Rent, for it is a Sum in Gross, and not issuing out of the Land. The Covenant is, that the Lessee shall absolutely enjoy it; and it was held that this Feoffment has not destroyed the future Use, which is to arise from Non-performance of the Condition. Cro. Eliz. 688.

Plaintiff declared that J. S. let to him, &c. and covenanted that the Plaintiff should quietly enjoy it during the Term, without the Let or Disturbance of him, his Heirs or Assigns, or of any other Person by or through his Means, Title or Procurement; and shewed for Breach, that L. P. by Fine granted the Land to J. S. and his Wife (the Defendant) and to the Heirs of J. S. and that this Fine was so levied by the Means of J. S. and that after he made the Lease to the Plaintiff, J. S. died; his Wife entered, who was Executrix. Per Cur. The Action lies; though she claims by Title derived from another, yet she claims by his Means. Cro. Jac. 657. 2 Roll. Rep. 286.

For though in Point of Estate the Wife was in by L. P. yet this was by Means of the Purchase and Procurement of her Husband; for this was procured to make her a Jointure. And if he makes a Lease, and the Lessee grants it over, and after he makes a second Lease with such Words; if this Lessee be ejected by the Assignee of the first Lessee, it is a Breach of the Covenant, because this is by Means of the Covenantor, although not his Act: And this Covenant provides as well against lawful Entries by his Means and Procurement, as against tortious; and the Word Title does not refer to Disturbance, but to Estate.

Tenant in Tail makes a Lease, and covenants that the Lessee shall enjoy against him and all claiming under him; if he dies, and the Issue ousts the Lessee, the Covenant is broken: For though he is in per formam doni, yet it is by Descent from the Father, and so by his Means, though not his Title; but if the Issue makes such a Lease and Covenant, and the Issue of the Issue enters, it is not broken, because he is not in by his Means, but by Descent, which is by Act in Law & per formam doni. Palm. 339, 340.

If a Man has good Title to Lands by Virtue of a Fine, and sells the same, and covenants with the Vendee, his Heirs and Assigns, that he shall enjoy against him and B. and all claiming under them; and after by an Act of Parliament, reciting that B. had settled this Estate upon C. and that certain Persons had unduly procured the said Fine from her; it is enacted, the Fine shall be void, and that every Person may enter as if no such Fine had been; and after one enters, claiming Title under C. This is a Breach of the Covenant, for the Act makes no new Title, but removes the Obstruction of the Old; and it was said, that doubtless B. was named in the Covenant for this Purpose, in Case this Fine unduly obtained should be avoided. 2 Lev. 26. 2 Keb. 831.

If a Lessee for Years assigns to J. S. and after assigns to J. D. and covenants with J. D. that he is possessed of the Term, and that J. D. shall enjoy it, and shall be saved harmless from all Incumbrances done by him; the first Assignment is not any Breach of the Covenant before Entry made by J. S. nor any Disturbance of the Possession. Roll. Abr. 430.

A Conusee of a Statute extended and assigned it to one, and after granted the Land to another, and covenanted that notwithstanding any Act by him, or any other by his Consent, that the Statute, Extent and Execution shall be in Force; and in Covenant brought by R. this Assignment was assigned for Breach; and upon Demurrer adjudged pro Quer. And on a Writ of Error this Judgment was reversed; for notwithstanding the Assignment, the Statute is in Force; but if the Plaintiff eo quod concessit to him, which implies a Covenant, the Action had been maintainable: But the Breach is assigned in the Covenant only, which is not broken by the Assignment, for the Statute is in Force after the Assignment, so that the Conusee may release, 17 Ed. 3. and the Assignment proves the Statute to be in Force; but if he had covenanted that the Grantee shall enjoy without Disturbance, the Assignment had been a Breach of the Covenant; and so is a Breach of Covenant in Law implied in the Word Grant, if the Action had been brought upon it. Palm. 388.

The Defendant leased to the Plaintiff an House, by the Words Demise and Grant (which Words import a Covenant in Law) and the Lessor covenanted that the Lessee shall enjoy the House during the Term, without Eviction by the Lessor, or any claiming under him (which express Covenant was narrower than the other); and gave a Bond to perform Covenants. The Plaintiff granted this Term over to a Stranger. The Plaintiff assigned for Breach, that one S. entered upon the Assignee, and in Ejectment recovered against the Assignee. Debt was brought. Per Cur. By this Covenant in Law the Assignee shall have a Writ of Covenant, and for the Breach of the Covenant in Law the Obligation was forfeited. But because the Plaintiff did not shew that S. had an Eigne Title, (for otherwise the Covenant Covenant in Law was not broken) therefore Judgment against the Plaintiff. 4 Co. 80. b. Cro. Eliz. 674.

And regularly no Covenant lies upon the Word Demise, unless in Case of Eviction of the Lessee, and actual Ouster or Expulsion by the Lessor or a Stranger.

An Assignee brings Covenant against the Assignor for being disturbed in Non-enjoyment quietly. Defendant pleads 40*l.* accepted of him in Discharge of the Wrong: After Assignee brings Covenant against the Executor of the Lessor, who pleads this Acceptance: It is no Plea: Had he pleaded the Acceptance of the 40*l.* in Satisfaction of the Covenant, it might have been good. Style 300.

Lessor, Tenant for Life, lets for twenty-one Years, and covenants that he had not done any Act to Prejudice the said Lease, but that he should enjoy it against all Persons. Tenant for Life dies, the Lessor in Reversion enters: Lessee sues the Executors. The Action lies not, for the last Words refer to the first Words, For any Thing done by him. Cro. Eliz. 615.

J. and V. Jointenants by Lease for Years; V. assigned all his Interest to another without J.'s Assent or Privity, and died; J. after recited this Indenture by Lease, and that all came to him by Survivorship, granted the Premises to P. and covenanted that he shall quietly enjoy it notwithstanding any Act done by him, and gave Bond for Performance of Covenants: In an Action of Debt on the Bond, J. pleaded that the Plaintiff had enjoyed it, notwithstanding any Act done by him. P. replied, that V. Jointenant with J. assigned his Estate to J. D. who entered and expelled him. The Defendant demurred: But it was adjudged against him; for the Grant was never good, for he had no Power to grant one Moiety, and yet he had expressly granted the Premises to P. and the Condition of the Obligation being to perform all Grants, the Grant being defective at the first as to a Moiety, which is the Substance of the Agreement of all the Parties, this is not qualified by the Covenant ensuing; and it is not like Noke's Case, 4 Co. for there the Grant was good for the Whole, and becomes ill by Eviction afterwards; and therefore in that Case the Covenant ensuing qualified the general Covenant. Yelv. 175. Lit. 206. Bulst. 3, 4. *Cro. In an Action of Covenant to perform Articles; which were, that the Plaintiff should hold and enjoy Lands free from all Titles and Incumbrances; and for Breach the Plaintiff shewed, that B. died seised, and that his Wife had Title to Dower. Plaintiff demurs. Cur. This Covenant goeth to the Land, and there can be no Difference between a Covenant to discharge the Land of all Titles, and that the Defendant shall hold the Land so discharged. Keb. 937.

Baron and Feme levied a Fine; J. S. covenanted that the Conusee shall enjoy it against all lawfully claiming from B. F. brought Dower after the Death of B. the Conusee did not plead the Fine, but suffered Judgment, and brought Covenant against J. S. and it was adjudged against him; for the Covenant shall not extend to a Right that is barred; and besides she did not claim lawfully.

Covenant to enjoy sine interruptione alicujus; it must be shewn that the Party interrupting had a Title. 2 Vent. 61, 62.

Action of Covenant, for that the Defendant, Non indempnem conservavit ipsum de & concernente occupationem quorundam clausorum, &c. secundum formam agreement; and sets forth no Title in the Disturber. But this being after a Verdict, and the Plaintiff setting forth in his Declaration, that the Disturber recovered per Judicium Curie, Judgment was given pro Quer. 2 Mod. 213.

Upon a Covenant for quiet Enjoyment, the Breach assigned was, that a Stranger entered and evicted him, but doth not say that he hath a Title; it is nought: Habens priorem & legalem Titulum at the Time of his Entry would have been good: But it is safe to say also, not having any Title from the Plaintiff. Mod. Rep. 293, 294. 2 Saund. 178.

Where a Man covenants that he hath not done any Act to disturb the Plaintiff in his Possession, but that he should hold it without Disturbances of the Defendant or any other Person: The Plaintiff assigns for Breach, that one A. recovered Power out of the Land; the Defendant says that the Recovery was before he sold to the Plaintiff. Curia: The Defendant is not bound to warrant peaceable Possession, but only for all Acts done or to be done by him. Dalison 59.

One covenants with J. S. that he shall enjoy the Land; and further, that A. a Farmer of the Tithes, shall pay 8*l.* per Ann. and is bound to Performance, in Debt on the Bond, it is good to plead Performance of the Covenants ex parte sua perimplend, for this implies the Farmer had paid the 8*l.* and express Mention of that needs not to be. Dyer 372, 373.

In Covenant the Breach assigned was, that B. Habens jus precedens to the Plaintiff's Conveyance, Virtute Tituli did enter, and good; though it had been plainer to have said Legale jus, (contra Yelv. 30.) Had the Covenant been against the lawful Title of J. S. the Breach must have been so. 3 Keb. 878.

In Covenant, the Plaintiff declared upon Articles of Agreement made between W. on the Behalf of T. M. of the one Part, and R. of the other Part: It was agreed between the Parties, that the said R. quiete & pacifice haberet & occuparet tenement', vocat' S. for one Year, excepta dimissione præd' cuidam E. K. nuper tenent' præmiss' unum parvum clausum parcellam præmissorum, and that R. should pay 20l. by Quarterly Payments for the said Year. Plaintiff set forth he entered and put in his Cattle, and before the Year was out K. sued R. in Trespass, and recovered Damage and Costs, which he was forced to pay, and so he did not hold the Premises quietly. Per Cur', The Declaration is not good, for it is not set forth that K. had any Right, for the Articles amounted to a Lease: But if it had been a collateral Covenant by a Stranger, it would be hard to extend it to a tortious Entry. Cro. Jac. 425. Where the Promise was to enjoy without the Interruption of any Person; and yet holds, that a Title ought to be set out. *Dyer 328. a. Roll. D. was bound to H. upon Condition that H. and his Heirs might enjoy certain Copyhold Lands surrendered to him; the Defendant pleaded the Surrender, and that the Plaintiff entered, and might have enjoyed the Lands. Plaintiff replied, that after his Entry one E. entered upon him and ousted him. Per Cur', The Replication is ill, because he did not shew he was evicted out of the Land by lawful Title; for else he had the Remedy against the Wrong-doer. Vaugh. 121, 122.

A Condition was, to enjoy such Lands without Eviction: The Breach was assigned in the Recovery by Verdict in Ejectment, upon a Lease made by one E. and shews not what Title E. had to make the Lease, but avers that E. had good Title, and it might be he had Title derived from the Plaintiff after the Obligation made; and therefore he ought to shew that he had good and eigne Title before the Lease made; and in the Exchequer-Chamber the Replication was held ill. Cro. Jac. 315. 2 Saund. 177, 178. Lev. 301. 2 Lev. 37. Moor 861. Hob. 34. Though this was after a Verdict.

Covenant was, that the Lessee and his Assignees should enjoy, without the Let or Interruption of F. E. and all others claiming under the said F. E. The Breach assigned was, because he was ousted by J. S. who claims under the Title of F. E. and does not shew how he claims under his Interest, nor by what Conveyance: It is ill, though he be a Stranger. Cro. Eliz. 823.

Where the Covenant is to enjoy without the Interruption of any Person, yet the Title of him who interrupts must be set forth. Vent. 62.

Bond with Condition that the Plaintiff should have, hold and enjoy Land acquitted from all Charges and Incumbrances; and for Breach the Plaintiff shewed, that there was a Rent-charge granted by the Predecessor, under whom the Defendant claimed, which is yet undischarged. Defendant demurred. Per Cur', If the Acquittal refers to the Land itself, or to the Person, the Defendant must shew how he has discharged him from the very Rent. Keb. 927.

A Man made a Lease for Years, and covenanted that neither he himself, nor his Heirs or Executors, should interrupt: In an Action of Covenant brought for the Entry of his Executors, the Plaintiff need not shew that the Executors entered upon any eigne or good Title; for it is all one, whether the Action is brought against the Covenantor or his Executors; aliter where a Stranger enters, for that the Plaintiff ought to shew that he entered upon eigne Title, and upon good Title. 2 Roll. Rep. 21. Brownl. 80.

Two Lessors covenant to discharge the Lessee of all Incumbrances done by them, or any other Person; one of the Lessors had made a Lease, and so a Breach: It is a good Breach; the Covenant goes to Incumbrances done severally as jointly. Poph. 200. Latch 161. Noy 86.

A. covenanted that the Land was discharged of all Acts and Incumbrances done by him; whereas in Truth a Post-Fine was not paid: The Covenant is broken, because the Land was, and all other of the Plaintiff's Lands were chargeable with the Post-Fine. Dalison 73.

If A. grants Lands to B. and his Heirs, rendring 10*l.* Rent, and B. sells the Land to C. and his Heirs, and covenants with C. that from such a Day he shall enjoy it discharged of all Incumbrances; and before that Day a common Recovery is had against C. in which A. is vouched; and this is to the Use of C. and his Heirs, supposing hereby that the Rent had been gone, which is not so in this Case, the Covenant is broken, for the Rent is an Incumbrance. Per Cur', Hil. 20 Jac. C.B. Greenway v. Tuckfald.

K. was seised and leased for Years to J. H. Husband of A. and J. H. being so possessed, by his Will devised that the said A. should have the Use and Occupation of the said Lands for all the Years of the said Term as she should remain Sole; and if she died or married, that then his Son should have the Residue of the said Term not expired. J. H. died, A. entered, to whom the said K. conveyed by Feoffment the said Lands in Fee, and covenanted that the said Lands from thenceforth should be clearly exonerated de omnibus prioribus bargainis, titulis, juribus, & omnibus aliis oneribus quibuscunque. A. married, and the Son entered: Per Cur', This Possibility which was in the Son at the Time of the Feoffment, though it was not actual, yet the Land was not discharged of all former Rights, Titles and Charges by the Marriage of the said A. It is become an actual Charge, and the Term is not extinct by the Acceptance of the Feoffment. Leon. 92.

S.* after grants Part of the Manor for three Lives by Copy of Court-Roll: This Grant by Copy made after the Bargain and Sale, is no former Incumbrance; and though it does not determine by the Death of J. S. according to the Intent of the Exception, yet an Exception in its Nature, being added to qualify the Covenant, it shall not be expounded so as to extend it further than the Words. Sav. 74.

One devised his Land to his Heir, paying a Rent-seck of so much per Ann. to his Sister after his Death without Issue. Devisor dies; Devisee sold the Lands, and covenanted that it was free from all Rents and Incumbrances, &c. She had no Remedy for this Rent-seck, because she had no Seisin, and then the Covenant is so remote and uncertain. Per Cur', It is expressly within the Word Rents, but had it been only Incumbrances, it might have been a Question. 2 Sid. 167.

M. leased certain Lands to R. for Years, and afterwards leased them to one T. for Years; T. covenanted with the Defendant, that if the said R. should sue the said M. by Reason of the latter Lease, that then he would discharge and keep harmless without Damage the said M. and also would pay to him all the Charges he should sustain by Reason of any Suit to be brought against R. in respect of the said former Lease: And M. by the said Indenture covenanted with T. that the said Land demised should continue to the said T. discharged of former Charges, Bargains and Incumbrances; and now upon the second Covenant T. brought an Action of Covenant, and shewed that the said R. had sued him in an Ejectione firmæ, upon the said first Lease, and had recovered against him; and M. pleaded in Bar the said second Covenant, intending that by that latter Covenant the Plaintiff had Notice of the said former Lease made to R. so as the first Lease shall be excepted out of the Covenants of former Grants, for otherwise there should be Circuity of Action. Per totam Cur' contra; for the Covenant of M. shall go to the Discharge of the Land, but the Covenant of T. only to the Possession. 3 Leon. 123.

Upon a special Verdict the Case was, That the Defendant made a Lease of the Parsonage of B. and that he covenanted to save the Plaintiff harmless and indemnified, and also the Premises and the Profits of it, against one P. B. the Parson of B. And upon this the Plaintiff brought Covenant against the Defendant, and assigned a Breach, that the said B. had entered and ejected the Plaintiff; and it was objected for the Defendant, that the Plaintiff does not shew that B. entered by Title, and then it shall be taken that he entered by Wrong, and so the Covenant is not broken; for to save harmless, is only of lawful Harms, as in Puttenham's Case, Dyer 306. Puttenham was condemned for Default in a Scire Facias in Chancery upon Recognizance there; they commanded the Warden of the Fleet where P. was in Ward for other Causes, and him to detain in Execution upon the Condemnation aforesaid; the Warden takes a Recognizance of P. to save him harmless against every one, and suffers him to escape, who imparls, and sues P. upon the Recognizance; Issue Non damnificatus. Per Cur', He is not damnified, because he was not by Law chargeable for the said Escape, for P. was never lawfully in Execution to the Plaintiff for the said Debt, because a Capias doth not lie for Execution on a Recognizance in Chancery; but the Counsel for the Plaintiff in the said Case of Foster al contra, for there is a Difference where the Covenant is general and where special; and here inasmuch as it is special to save harmless against P. B. he ought to defend against him, be his Entry by Title or by Tort; and he cited Catesby's Case, Dyer 328. Lessor covenants that the Lessee shall enjoy his Term, sine ejectione vel interruptione alicujus; Lessee brought Covenant, because a Stranger entered, and saith not that he hath Title; and Judgment pro Quer'. Gaudy: The Covenant is broken, for if B. disturbed him so that he could not take the Profits, it is a Breach, be it per Tort or Title. 2 Ed. 4. 15.

If the Covenant be to warrant the Land, that is only upon Title; but here if the Lessee be per Tort or Title ousted, for to save harmless is stronger than to warrant: And per Cur', The Covenant is broken; they agree that Catesby's Case is not like this. Fenner vouched 18 Ed. 4. 27. where H. is bound to save *J. A. covenants with B. before such a Feast to make a good, sure, sufficient and lawful Estate in Fee-simple, of and in the Manor of, &c. discharged of all former Sales, Bargains, Charges and Incumbrances whatsoever, (Leases or Grants of Life, Lives or Years, upon which the ancient and accustomable Rent, or more, are reserved and payable during such Estates only excepted.) If a Lease for Years, with the accustomable Rent reserved of the whole Manor, or any Part, made mean, between the Date of the Indenture of Covenant and Delivery of the Deed, be a Breach? Q. For three were against two. Dyer 139.

Conusee of a Statute extends and assigns it to one, and after grants the Land to another, and covenants, that notwithstanding any Act by him, or any other by his Consent, that the Statute, Extent and Execution shall be in Force; and in Covenant this Assignment was assigned for Breach; and upon Demurrer adjudged for the Plaintiff; and in a Writ of Error this Judgment was reversed, for notwithstanding the Assignment, the Statute is in Force; but if the Plaintiff eo quod concessit to him, which implies a Covenant, the Action had been maintainable; but the Breach is assigned in the Covenant only, which is not broken by the Assignment, for the Statute is in Force after the Assignment, so that the Conusee may release; but if he had covenanted that the Grantee shall hold without Disturbance, the Assignment had been a Breach of Covenant in the Law, implied in the Word Grant, if the Action had been brought upon it. Palm. 388.

The Defendant granted to the Plaintiff all his Right, Title and Interest which he then had of and in the Lands in B. lately granted by L. D. or R. F. for twenty Years by Indenture, and covenanted with the Plaintiff that he is lawful Owner of the Indenture, Demise, Term of Years and Premises; and that dicta præmissa then were and so shall continue discharged from all former Grants and Incumbrances made by the Defendant, or the said R. F. and Plaintiff alledged that R. F. before the Assignment to the Defendant had granted several Parts to several Persons for twenty Years, and so a Breach. The Defendant in his Plea said, that R. F. granted his Interest in the Lands (excepting the Lands so severally demised); and the Doubt was, Whether it shall be intended he was Owner of the Term only, or the Term to him assigned, and of the intire Land, during the Term, or not?

Per Cur', The Word Premises, which were to be discharged of all Incumbrances made by the Defendant, or R. F. tend as well to the Land as to the Term; and the Word Premises need not to have been put in, if it intended only to have the Term granted to the Defendant to be discharged. And. 236.

A Covenant was, that the Plaintiff should have, hold and enjoy the Lands acquitted from all Charges and Incumbrances. The Plaintiff for Breach shews, there was a Rent-charge granted by the Predecessor, under whom the Defendant claimed, which is yet undischarged. The Defendant demurred, because the Action goes to the having and holding the Land, and it is not shewed that the Plaintiff was ever in Possession, nor that he was charged or endamaged; to which Twisden and Kelyng agreed: But per Windham, The Defendant ought to shew how he had discharged and acquitted him from the very Rent, and not to let it perpeperpetually hang over him. But by all the Court, If the Acquittal refers to the Land itself, or to the Person, the Defendant must shew how. Keb. 927.

If a Condition be to discharge a Messuage of all Incumbrances, there one may plead generally, that he discharged it of all Incumbrances; but if it be to discharge it of such a Lease, he must shew how. Brownl. 63.

Sixthly, To make further Assurance.

There are many Cases relating to Covenants for making Assurances of Land, &c. but I shall here confine myself to such as relate to the making of further Assurances, and refer the Rest to the Division (BB) post. which see.

A Covenant for further Assurance, is not to give any Thing, but to assist, further and support, it being as a Wall or Muniment about the Estate. Hob. 215.

If a Covenant be to make further Assurance within one Month, upon Request of the Covenantor; if the Covenantor requests him within the Month, yet the Covenant is broken in as much as the Time of the Month is limited to the Request; aliter had it been within a Month after the Date of the Deed of Covenant. H. 37 Eliz. C. B. Perpoint and Thimblethorp.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that if the Obligor do at all Times hereafter, within the Space of one Month, when he shall be required, make such further Act and Acts, Assurance and Assurances, as the Obligee shall by his Counsel demand, &c. then the Bond to be void: In this Case if the Obligee does not demand any further Assurance within the Month after the making of the Obligation, yet the Obligor is bound to make further Assurance within a Month after Request made, after the Month passed after the making the Bond, for that the first Words, to wit, at all Times hereafter, are without Limitation, and the other Words, within one Month when he shall be required, refer to the Request, viz. he shall have a Month for doing it after Request, for the more favourable Construction shall be made to make the Agreement effectual; and it is not like a common Covenant, to make further Assurance within seven Years, for the Use in such Case has been to interpret it, that he shall not be troubled after seven Years. Hil. 1650. Wentworth and Wentworth.

If a Covenant be to make further Assurance; if he make Assurance on Condition, it is not a Performance. Roll. Abr. 425.

In Debt on Bond, the Plaintiff sets forth an Indenture, which purports a Grant of Land by two Men and their Wives, seised in Fee in Right of their Wives, Partners to the Plaintiff in Fee; and it was covenanted that the Plaintiffs and their Wives had good Right to assure the Land, and to make further Assurance, upon Request, at any Time within seven Years. Plaintiff assigns for Breach, that one of the Wives was within Age at the Time of the Assurance, and dies, and the Right of the Land descended to her Son an Infant. The Defendant pleads, the Wife was of full Age, and it was found that she was within Age: It was moved in Arrest of Judgment, here is not any Request shewed to make the Assurance according to the Covenant, and so no Breach assigned; and though he had Time for seven Years, and the Right descended to the Infant, and so impossible to make a good Assurance. Per Cur. The Death of the Wife in the Infancy of the Son was an Act of God, and it was the Fault of the Plaintiff, that he did not demand the Assurance in the Life of the Wife, and after her full Age; for it appears by the Verdict, that in 29 Car. 2. she was twenty, and that 32 Car. 2. she had Issue, and so the Breach is not well assigned. But another Breach was shewed, (viz.) that the Wife being within Age at the Time of the Covenant, as appears by the Verdict, she had not Power then to convey the Estate according to the Covenant; and this was a manifest Breach. T. Jones 195.

One covenants to make further Assurance to the Bargainee as his Counsel shall advise; in this Case the Bargainee himself, although he be learned in Law, may not devise this Assurance, but some Person of his Counsel ought to devise it; for if the Party himself may devise it, then it would be no Plea to say, Quod consilium non dedit advisamentum. 5 Co. 19. b. But in Easter Term 13 W. 3. in C. B. Walker v. Gower, this is denied for Law by all the Judges.

A. covenanted with B. make and to do all such Acts and Devises for the better Assurance which shall be devised by B. or his Counsel: B. devised a Release to be sealed by A. and C. his Son, and A. presently sealed it, but because C. could not read, he prayed B. to deliver it to him, that he might shew it to a Man learned in Law, to inform him if it were according to the Covenant, and if it were according to the Covenant or Condition, he would seal it; which to do B. refused, and C. refused to seal it: This is a Breach of the Covenant, for that he did not require the Writing to be read to him, and he was bound to take Conscience of the Law, whether it was according to the Covenant, and he shall not have a reasonable Time to shew it to his Counsel, and the Covenant was peremptory, to be performed at his Peril. Dyer 338. a. 2 Co. 3. So in Roll. Abr. 441, 442. If A. being Copyholder for Life, covenants with B. to surrender to B. in Reversion the said Copyhold Tenement, super rationalem requisitionem ei fiend' per B. and after B. tenders to A. a Writing, purporting a Letter of Attorney of Surrender of the said Tenement to B. and A. requests that before they seal it, that she by her Counsel circa scriptum illud infra rationabile tempus tunc proximum sequens advisaretur, which B. refuseth, and upon this A. refuseth to seal it: Admitting that A. was bound to seal the Letter of Attorney, and to surrender by such Letter of Attorney, then she had broken her Covenant, for she ought to take Conusance of the Law at her Peril, whether the Letter of Attorney be according to her Covenant, and shall not have any Time to be advised upon it; but the reasonable Time mentioned in the Covenant, intends reasonable Time in the doing it, viz. she shall have Time to read it before she seals it.

Where a bad Title was sold with a Covenant for further Assurance, and afterwards the Vendor purchases a good Title, he shall make the same over to the Vendee. Chan. Rep. 274.

Covenant for further Assurance does not oblige to release the Equity of Redemption. Ld. Raym. 36.

To levy a Fine.

One covenants for further Assurance to levy a Fine of all his Lands in D. which were four Houses, and tenders a Fine. Defendant pleads, that at the Time of the Covenant he was only seised of two Houses, and that the other two descended to him afterwards, and good; for he is not bound to levy a Fine of more than he had at the Time of the Covenant, for then more would pass, and is not like to the Case where more Acres are comprehended in the Fine, which will be to the Conusor: So a Covenant to levy a Fine of two Acres, and the Fine is four Acres by the Name of two Acres, comprehended in the Indenture, is not good. Roll. Rep. 103, 117. 2 Bulst. 317.

Covenant to make further Assurance, and to do any Act or Acts, &c. Plaintiff shews that he demanded of him and tendered a Note of a Fine, comprehending that he would levy a Fine of three Messuages, &c. and that he required him to acknowledge it before a Judge of Assise. The Defendant pleads, that in the Note there were more comprehended than he intended to assure: It is no Plea, for the Residue is to the Use of the Conusor, and the Plaintiff needs not shew that a Writ of Covenant was depending at the Time of the Request, though he must do that to make a good Fine. Cro. Jac. 251.

If one be bound to levy a Fine to another, he is not bound to sue forth the Writ of Covenant, but he who is to have Advantage of the Fine is to do it; and in the Case aforesaid, he ought to levy a Fine upon this Note notwithstanding there was no Writ of Covenant then hanging; and in the said Case, though the Note contained more Acres than the two Yard-Lands, it is good. Bulst. 90.

A Condition that such a Woman should make such further reasonable Assurance to J. D. as J. D. should devise: J. D. levied a Fine, and required her to come before the Judge of Assise to acknowledge; she came, and the Judge refused her as Non compos mentis. Per Cur', The Condition was not broken, because it is to make a reasonable Assurance; aliter if the Words had been special to acknowledge a Fine. Leon. 304.

At whose Cost.

Covenant that the Vendor shall make further Assurance at the Costs and Charges of the Purchaser; it was assigned for Breach, that a Note of a Fine was devised and ingrossed in Parchment, and delivered to the Vendor to acknowledge the Fine at the Assises, which he refused to do. The Plaintiff's Assignment of the Breach was demurred to, because he did not offer Costs to the Vendor; and per Cur', it is ill. Brownl. 70.

Where there is a Covenant for further Assurance, as the Counsel of B. shall devise, and it is not said at whose Charge, it must be at the Charge of him to whose Use the Fine is levied. Bulst. 90.

See concerning Covenants to make Estates and Assurances by Deed, Fine or Recovery, post. (BB).

Seventhly, To stand seised to Uses.

Although at the Common Law a Man cannot be Donor and Donee without parting with the whole Estate, yet it is otherwise upon a Covenant to stand seised to Uses; and if any other Construction should be made, many Settlements would be shaken; in the making whereof nothing is more usual now than for a Man to covenant to stand seised to the Use of himself and the Heirs of his Body. 2 Mod. 211.

A. covenanted to stand seised to the Use of the Heirs of his Body. Per Hale C. J. The Heir and Ancestor are Correlatives, and as one Thing in the Eye of the Law; and that is the Reason why a Man cannot make his right Heir a Purchaser without putting of the whole Fee-simple out of himself; and if the Father's Estate turns to an Estate for Life, there will will be no Question; and in Fenwick and Milford's Case there resulted an Estate for Life to knit the Limitation to the original Estate.

1. Here we are in the Case of an Estate-tail, and the Judges used to go far in making of such a Limitation good.

2. We are in the Case of an Use, which is construed as favourably as may be, to comply with the Intention of the Parties.

This Case is not as if he should have covenanted to stand seised to the Use of the Heirs of the Body of A. B. for there the Covenantor would have had a Fee-simple in the mean Time; but here it is all one as if the Limitation had been to himself and the Heirs of his own Body. Mod. 98.

A. covenanted that after his Death his Heir shall stand seised to the Use of his younger Son; this Covenant is void. Hob. 313.

If a Man, in Consideration of Money received, and Marriage to be had with his Son, covenants to stand seised; there no Use will arise to the Son and Woman without Marriage, although the Money be paid, because the Marriage is the principal Consideration in the Intention of the Parties, and the Money is but the Accessary which attends the Marriage; but it would have been good by Estate executed by Fine, Feoffment or Recovery. Moor, Case 247.

A Father cannot covenant that his Son shall stand seised of the Lands whereof the Father is seised; for a Man cannot stand seised of that which he is not seised of. 3 Lev. 306, 307. Vent. 140.

A Power to lease Lands raised by a Covenant to stand seised where an Estate was settled on the Covenantor for Life, Remainder to his eldest Son, with Power to himself to lease Part of the Lands, &c. not good at Law, was decreed good in Equity; it appearing that the Conveyance was intended to be by Livery, which the Father was advised would be as well as by Covenant, and on other Circumstances. Chan. Ca. 161.

For more concerning Uses, see Of Deeds to lead the Uses of Feoffments, &c. and of Deeds of Covenant to stand seised to Uses, in the next Chapter.

(AA) Covenants commonly annexed to Estates for Lives or Years, and not to Estates in Fee-simple.

First, Concerning the Payment of Rent and other Payments issuing out of Land.

IF a Parson by Indenture leases his Parsonage for Years, rendring Rent, and the Lessee covenants to pay his Rent, and before any Day of Payment the Parsonage is sequestred for Non-Payment of the first Fruits, yet the Lessee shall not be excused of the Payment of his Rent. Heil. 54.

C. C. made a Jointure to his Wife M. for her Life, and dies without Issue; T. C. his Brother and Heir, grants an Annuity or Rent-charge of 200*l.* per Ann. to the Plaintiffs in Trust for M. and this was to be in Discharge of the said Jointure, Habendum to them and their Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, in Trust for M. for Life, with a Clause of Distress and covenant to pay the 200*l.* per Ann. to the Trustees for the Use of M. The Breach assigned was, that the Defendant had not paid the Rent to them to the Use of M. Defendant demurs specially, because it appears here is a Grant of a Rent-charge for Life, which is executed by the Statute of Uses, and therefore there ought to have been a Distress for Non-payment. Per Cur. The Clause of the Distress is given by the express Words of the Statute to Cestuy que Use; but here is a double Remedy by Distress or Action; for if the Lessee assigns his Interest, and the Rent is accepted of the Assignee, yet Covenant lies against the Lessee for Non-payment upon the express Covenant to pay; so if a Rent be granted to S. and a Covenant is to pay to N. to his Use, it is a good Covenant. It was objected, that it is not said the Money is not paid to M. and if not paid to her, the Breach is not well assigned: But per Cur. It is good; and the Assignment of a Breach, according to the Words of the Covenant is good enough. And if the Defendant did pay the Money to the Plaintiff, or to M. he might plead it. 2 Mod. Rep. 138.

If A. leases to B. certain Lands for Years, rendring 40*l.* per Ann. and a Stranger covenants with A. that B. shall pay unto him the 40*l.* for the Farm and Occupation of the Lands, and before any Day of Payment A. ousts B. of his Farm, B. is excused of the Payment of the Rent; for the Covenant was, that B. should pay 40*l.* for the Farm and Occupation; so that it is as a conditional Covenant, and there ought to be quid pro quo; and here the Consideration upon which the Covenant is conceived, viz. the Farm, and the Occupation of it, is taken away by the Act of A. himself. 3 Leon. 159.

If Lessee covenants to pay his Rent to the Lessor, and he pays it before the Day, the same is not any Performance of the Covenant; otherwise of a Sum in Gross. Lev. 136.

When

When an exprefs Covenant is to pay the Rent at feveral Days, an Action of Covenant will lie before all the Days of Payment be paſt, and an Action of Debt will not lie till all the Days of Payment be paſt; and in ſuch Caſe Debt lies properly on Grant of Annuity for Life or Years. Brownl. 19, 20.

A Rent of 200*l. per Ann.* was granted to B. and H. for the Life of M. Habendum ad opus & uſum M. and there was a Covenant in the Indenture to pay the Rent, ad opus & uſum M. B. and H. brought Covenant, and good. This Remedy by the Statute of Uſes was not transferred to M. Mod. 223. By the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. Cestuy que Uſe of a Rent hath all ſuch Remedies as if the Rent had been actually granted to him; but that has Place only where one is ſeiſed of Lands in Truſt that another ſhall have Rent out of them, and not where a Rent is granted to one to the Uſe of another. Vide ibid. & 2 Mod. 138.

A Man granted a Rent to one for Life, and half a Year after, to be paid at the Feaſts of the Annunciation and Michaelmas by equal Portions, and covenants with the Grantee for the Payment of it accordingly. The Grantee died 2d February and the Executors of the Grantee brought an Action of Covenant for 20*l.* which was a Moiety of the Rent, and to be paid at the Annunciation after; it is well maintainable. And by Coke, If a Man grants Rent for another's Life, the Remainder to the Executors of the Grantee, and covenants to pay the Rent during the Term aforeſaid; this is good collective, and ſhall ſerve for both Eſtates. And it was agreed, when a Rent is granted, and by the Deed the Grantor covenants to pay it, the Grantee may have Annuity or Writ of Covenant at his Election. 2 Brownl. 283.

Two Tenants in common make a Leaſe, and reſerve a Rent and Covenant that neither ſhould releaſe, and one of them releaſeth his Part; this is a Breach, for that in Debt they ſhould both join, and now by their Releaſe the Action is gone. Brownl. 78.

Sir John Spencer made a Leaſe for Years to Sir John Points, rendring Rent, by Indenture; Leſſee covenants that if the Rent be behind at any Time of Payment, according to the Form of the Indenture, that the Leſſor ſhall have 200l. Nomine pœnæ for ſuch Default; the Rent is behind. Debt is brought for the Nomine pœnæ. Per Cur', Action of Debt did not lie without Demand of the Rent. Vide F. N. B. 120. ſeems contrary. Godb. 154. Roll. Abr. 459, 460.

An Aſſignee of the Reverſion ſhall have Covenant againſt the Leſſee where the Leaſe was made; for Covenant goes only in Privy of Contract, and although now by the Statute the Covenant paſſes to the Aſſignee, yet the Nature of it is not altered by the Statute, but it is assignable only as a Contract, and therefore ought to be brought where the Contract was made; otherwiſe in Debt for Rent. Lev. 259. Saund. 237. Sid. 401.

Where Rent is to be demanded.

If a Man lets Land by Indenture for Years, reſerving a Rent payable at certain Days at L. and the Leſſee in the ſame Indenture covenants to pay the ſame Rent at the Days and Place aforeſaid, he ought to pay it without any Demand of the Leſſor. Roll. Abr. 459, 460.

But if a Man lets by Indenture certain Coal-Mines, reſerving Rent, and the Leſſee is bound to obſerve, perform, pay and keep all Payments, Rents, Covenants, Grants and Agreements in the ſaid Indenture mentioned. In Debt on the Bond it is a good Aſſignment of the Breach of the Condition, that the Leſſee did not pay him the Rent at the Day of Payment by the Reſervation, without alledging he demanded, the Rent at the Day of Payment, for he is not bound to demand it, but the other ought to pay it without Demand; aliter if he covenant to pay the Rent, being lawfully demanded. Roll. Abr. 460.

If A. lets Land to B. per Indenture for Years, reſerving 20*l. per Ann.* Rent, payable at four Feaſts by equal Portions; and after B. is bound in an Obligation to A. upon Condition that if he pays to A. for the Rent of the ſaid Premiffes the yearly Sum of 20*l.* for the Term demifed, at four Quarterly Days, according to the Tenure and Effect of one Leaſe made, bearing Date with this Obligation, and made between the ſaid Parties, according to the Tenure and Effect of the ſaid Leaſe, by even and equal Portions, then the Bond to be void: The Leſſee is not bound to pay the Rent by this Condition, without any Demand of the Leſſor, for that this refers to the Indenture of Leaſe, and that this ſhall be paid as a Rent, according to the Indenture. Roll. Abr. 460. T. Jones 33.

A Leaſe for Years of Land by Deed, rendring Rent, being made, the Leſſee binds himſelf in a Bond of 10*l.* to perform all Covenants and Agreements contained in the Deed. The Rent afterwards being behind, the Leſſor brings an Action of Debt on the Bond for Non-payment. The Obligor pleads Performance of all Covenants and Agreements. The Leſſor ſaith, the Rent is behind. It is no Plea for the Obligor to ſay, the Rent was never demanded: But in this Bar he ought to have pleaded, that he had performed all Covenants and Agreements, except the Payment of the Rent, and as to that, that he was always ready to have paid it, if any Perſon had come to demand it. But as to the firſt Plea it was held not to be good. But if the Leſſee be particularly expreſſed by Covenant to pay the Rent, there he is bound to do it without any Demand. Godb. 95.

Condition

Condition to perform Covenants in an Indenture, whereby Land was leased, rendering 10*l.* per Ann. Rent at such a Feast, or within six Days after the Feast. Defendant pleads Performance. Plaintiff assigns a Breach, that such a Day, being the 6th Day after the Feast, before Sun-set, he demanded 5*l.* Rent then due, and that neither the Defendant nor any for him was ready to pay it. Per Cur', He needs not shew the certain Time when he came, nor how long he remained there. It was objected, that this Demand was not good, because he demanded as a Rent then due, for he ought to have demanded as a Rent due the last Feast: But per Cur', It is not due to be demanded till the sixth Day, though the Tenant, if he will, may pay it before. Cro. Jac. 499.

In Error in the Exchequer-Chamber of a Judgment in Debt in B. R. on Bond of 200*l.* conditioned, that if the Obligor should at all Times well and truly pay, perform and keep all and singular the Rents, Covenants, Grants, Articles, Payments and Agreements, which on his Part, &c. Defendant pleads generally Performance of all Covenants. Plaintiff replies, and shews a Breach for Non-payment of the Rent at such a Time, but doth not shew any Demand of that Rent; whereupon the Defendant demurred; and it was adjudged pro Quer'. Now the Defendant assigned for Error, that forasmuch as the Condition of the Bond is general, and not particularized for the Payment of the Rent, the Rent is not payable without Demand, and therefore the Breach was not well assigned. Cur' contra, and that the Judgment is well given; for he pleading Performance of the Payments, Covenants and Agreements, it shall be intended he had really performed them, and so had paid all the Rents; and when the Plaintiff replies, that he had not paid such a Rent, he need not to alledge a Demand, for the Defendant may not say it was demanded, for then it should be a Departure from the Plea; and yet the Obligation being general for Performance of Covenants, doth not alter the Nature of the Rent, but that it ought to be demanded. Cro. Car. 76.

In Debt for Rent, Quod cum per Indenturam testatum existit; on Demurrer in Shelbery's Declaration; Cafe, Judgment was for the Defendant; but in Covenant on Bond to perform Covenants, such Declaration is good. Per Cur'. 2 Keb. 383. Keb. 570. Debt is grounded on the Demise, which must be more positively alledged; contra in Covenant, which is collateral.

In Debt or Covenant by Heir or Executor for Rent, he must say the Testator was possessed; and so of Successors of Bishops, he must say he was seised, and conveyed the Reversion by Deed; for Bishop, Dean or Corporation, cannot be intended seised in other Capacity. 3 Keb. 69. 2 Lev. 68.

The Plaintiff declared that he demised to the Defendant certain Lands for thirteen Years, to pay to him 40*l.* Quarterly, and saith not annuatim: It was amended, and the Word annuatim inserted. By Kelyng and Windham, The Addition of annuatim is more than what the Law implied before. T. Raym. 160.

If the Lessee covenants to perform Articles in the Indenture, it is sufficient to say, the Rent was demanded; but if there be an express Covenant to pay the Rent, there needs no Demand. 3 Keb. 299.

In Covenant for Payment of Rent at divers Days, which amounts to such a Sum; in the Declaration the total Sum was miscast, yet it was good, for that all in this Action shall be recovered in Damages; aliter in Debt for Rent. Roll. Rep. 335. 3 Bulst. 155.

In Covenant to pay Rent, in the Declaration there needs not be any Demand alledged, because the Covenant was to pay such a Sum for Rent expressly, but as to a Condition of a Bond for Performance of Covenants expressed in such a Lease, one of which for Payment of Rent; in that Case the Bond will not be forfeited without a Demand. Vent. 259.

Bond with Condition to perform Covenants in a Lease: One Covenant was, that the Lessee should pay 40*s.* yearly at the Feast of the Annunciation, or within fourteen Days after; and the Breach assigned was for Non-payment at such a Feast in such a Year. Defendant said, he paid it at the Feast; on which they were at Issue; and on Evidence it appeared that the same was not paid at the Feast, but in eight Days after it was paid. Per Cur', By his Pleading that he paid it at such a Day certain, and tendering that for a special Issue, he hath made it Part of the Issue; but if he had pleaded that he had paid it within fourteen Days, viz. the eighth Day, that had not made the Day Parcel of the Issue; but then he might have given Evidence that he paid it at another Day within the fourteen Days. Qu. If the Breach be well assigned, in saying he had not paid it at the Feast, without saying, nor within the fourteen Days? Godb. 100.

In Covenant upon a Deed not indented, Plaintiff declared upon a Lease of certain Land Pleading to the Defendant, rendering Rent, who covenants to pay it; and assigned a Breach in Non-payment. Defendant protestando, and that he did not enter nor occupy the Land, as the Plaintiff had supposed, Pro placito dicit, That the Plaintiff Nil habuit in tenementis tempore dimissionis. Plaintiff replies, Quod habuit bonum titulum unde potuit dimittere. Defendant demurs.

demurs generally, and the Court held the Replication ill, not shewing what Title he had, according to Cro. Jac. 312. And this notwithstanding it was not by Indenture; and it is all one in Debt for Rent, for if there is not any Rent, there is not any Covenant to pay the Rent. 3 Lev. 193.

Covenant to pay the Defendant's Wife (on Separation) 50 l. per Ann. and for Non-payment, the Separation continuing, the Action is brought; but upon Oyer it was, Proviso that the Wife would live at such a Place as N. and W. appointed. Defendant pleads, she did not live at such a Place as N. and W. appointed. The Plaintiff replies, that she was always ready to live at any such Place, but that N. and W. appointed no Place. Defendant demurs, as being a Condition precedent. But per Cur', This is not a Condition precedent, but a Condition subsequent, and in Defeasance; the Covenant being in Pursuance of a former absolute Agreement to pay so much; and it is like the Assent of the Husband, which is intended till the contrary appears, and here must be an Appointment: Judgment pro Quer'. 3 Keb. 229, 363.

In Action of Covenant the Defendant cannot plead the Plaintiff Nihil habuit in tenementis, though such a Plea is good in Action of Debt for Rent. 2 Vent. 99.

If Rent be reserved out of a Thing incorporeal, and there is an express Covenant to pay it: Qu. If he may plead Eviction. Allen 79.

One reciting that he was seised of Land, granted a Rent out of it, and covenanted to pay the Rent, he could not plead to his Covenant, that he had nothing in the Land. 2 Vent. 69.

Covenant for not paying of Rent. Defendant pleads Entry and Suspension. Plaintiff replies, The Defendant did re-enter, and so was possessed of his former Estate: This is an ill Replication; for they ought to shew that he entered, and was possessed till the Rent grew due. To make Suspension of a Rent reserved on a Lease for Years, the Lessor must oust the Lessee of Part of the Thing let at least, and hold him out till after the Day on which the Rent is payable; and if the Lessee re-enters, the Rent is revived. Style 432.

Covenant on a special Covenant to pay Rent at certain Days. The Defendant pleads, that no Rent was behind: It is an ill Plea in Covenant, for by that Plea the Defendant confesseth the Covenant broken, and that Plea tends but in Mitigation of Damages. Brownl. 19.

But by 2 Brownl. 273. the Defendant levied by Distress. By this Plea the Defendant confesseth that it was not paid according to the Reservation, for the Plaintiff cannot distrain if it were not beind after the Day; but Payment at the Day had been a good Plea.

A. leased to B. Land for 40 l. per Ann. and a Stranger covenanted with A. that B. should pay him 40 l. for the Farm and Occupation of the said Lands. A. brought Covenant; Defendant pleaded, that before the Day of Payment the Plaintiff put the said B. out of his Farm. Per Cur', It is a good Plea, for the Defendant hath covenanted that the Lessee shall pay for the said Farm and Occupation 40 l. so it is as a conditional Covenant, and here is quid pro quo; and here the Consideration upon which the Covenant is conceived, viz. the Farm and Occupation of it, is taken away by the Act of the Plaintiff himself. 3 Leon. 159. 2 Leon. 115.

In Debt on Bond for Performance of Covenants, Articles, &c. contained in a Lease for a Year. Defendant pleads Performance of Covenants. The Plaintiff replied, that the Defendant did not pay the Rent reserved upon the Lease at such a Day, according to the Form and Effect of the Condition of the Obligation. Defendant rejoins, and alledgeth an Entry by the Plaintiff into the Land leased before the Rent, and that he kept Possession till the Rent-Day was passed. On Issue found pro Quer', the Defendant moved in Arrest of Judgment, for that the Plaintiff saith, that the Defendant paid not his Rent according to the Form, &c. of the Condition of the Obligation, whereas there is no Mention of any Payment of the Rent in the Condition of the Bond, but in the Lease only; sed non allocatur; because the Defendant by this Rejoinder has confessed that such Rent was in Arrear, and has waived taking Issue upon it, and taken Issue upon another Matter, and therefore this shall be well enough after a Verdict. And per Hale, It is all one in Substance to plead as the Plaintiff has done, and to have pleaded secundum formam & effectum Indenture; for the Condition of the Bond comprehends all that is comprehended in the Lease. Hard. 319. It might have been a Question had it been upon Demurrer.

In Debt on Bond to perform Covenants; one Covenant was, that the Defendant should pay 12 l. per Ann. for a Messuage to him demised, quarterly. The Defendant pleads Performance of Covenants. Plaintiff assigns for Breach, that he did not pay 3 l. one Quarter's Rent. Defendant rejoins, Before the said 3 l. was due the Plaintiff entered upon him and expelled him. Plaintiff demurs, for the Rejoinder is a Departure, and so ruled per tot' Cur'. There was cited a Difference out of Cro. Car. 76. where the Condition is to perform all Covenants contained, and where it is all Covenants and Payments, there the Defendant pleaded Performance of all. Plaintiff assigned a Breach in Non-payment of the Rent; the Defendant cannot rejoin, that it was not demanded, for it is a Departure. T. Raym. 22.

In

In Debt on Bond for Performance of Covenants; Defendant pleaded Performance generally; special Breach is for Non-payment of Rent. Defendant rejoined, that the Plaintiff entered before the Rent-Day. Per Cur', It is a Departure, (but in Baker and Spaines's Case, Hob. 7. it was alledged in the Rejoinder, that there was no Demand made) but all agreed, that in an Action of Covenant this Rejoinder had not been good. But by Windham, It is a Departure, and not like the Case of Demand, which is necessary to make the Rent due; whereas this is only an Excuse of what he confesses. Cro. Eliz. 76. Chapman's Case. By Twisden, It should have been pleaded that the Defendant had performed Covenants specially, paying his Rent till such a Day, and that the Lessor entered; and so agreed per Cur'; but this general Performance is intended of an actual Performance. And by Twisden, Upon general Performance pleaded, the Plaintiff replies, Rent Arrear. The Defendant cannot rejoin by want of a Demand, though he might have excused himself by pleading a Tender in Bar. Keb. 115, 178, 185, 283.

In Covenant Breach was assigned for Non-payment of Rent according to the Covenant in the Indenture. Defendant pleaded Nil debet; that is no Plea in this Case upon the Indenture; adjudged upon general Demurrer. 3 Lev. 170.

If the Lessee assigns his Term, and after the Lessor assigns his Reversion, and the Assignee of the Reversion accepts the Rent of the Assignee of the Term, yet he may have Action of Covenant against the first Lessee. But per Twisden, If after such Assignment of the Reversion Lessor brings Covenant, Lessee may not plead he had assigned over his Reversion. But which of them, whether the Lessee or Assignee, which first brings his Action, shall bar the other, viz. Lessee shall plead such Recovery in Bar to the former Action. Sid 402, and Lev. 259.

The Plaintiff declared upon a Lease for Years, wherein the Reservation was by the Word Reddendum, and an express Covenant for the Payment of the Rent; and that the Lessor assigned the Reversion to him and his Heirs, and that the Rent became due at such a Feast after the Assignment, and was not paid; Et sic infregit conventionem. The Defendant pleads, that before the Rent became in Arrear, the Lessor had released to him all Covenants and Demands. Plaintiff demurs. Per Cur', 1. Covenant lies upon the Word Reddendum, but doubted if this Word would maintain Covenant upon a Lease for Life. 2. The Release of the Lessor, after the Assignment of the Reversion, is no Bar to the Plaintiff; and this is by the Common Law, and also by Stat. 32 H. 8. for this Covenant runs with the Reversion. T. Jones 102. 2 Lev. 206.

An Action of Covenant was brought by the Assignees of a Reversion against the Defendants Lessees, upon a special Covenant in a Lease for Years, for Payment of the Rent according to the Reservation; and for Non-payment of the Rent incurred, after the Assignment, the Action is brought. One Defendant Nil dicit, the other Defendant pleads Allo non, and pleads a Release by him before the Assignment to the Plaintiff to the other Defendant by the Consent of the Lessor, and that the Lessor had accepted the other sole Tenant of the Messuage, &c. and he paid one Rent to the Lessor, who had accepted it as of his Tenant. Plaintiff demurs. Per Cur', On Bret and Cumberland's Case, Cro. Jac. 522. it is expressly resolved, that no Act of the Lessee can discharge him or his Executors of the special Covenant, of which also the Assignee of the Reversion shall have Advantage by the Stat. 32 H. 8. Judgment pro Quer'. 2 Bulst. 282. T. Jones 144.

In an Action of Covenant for Payment of Rent reserved in a Lease for Years; Defendant pleaded that the Plaintiff after the Lease made had separated, taken down, and taken away a Penthouse fixed to the said Premises demised, and detained them before the Rent became due, Et adhuc detinet. Plaintiff demurs, and Judgment was given for him; for this was not a Suspension of the Rent, but a Trespass, for which the Defendant may have his Action. T. Jones 148.

In Covenant Plaintiff declares, that she was possessed of certain Houses in St. Martin's Lane for a Term of Years, and that she demised the said Houses to R. G. for twenty-one Years, under a certain Rent, which he covenanted to pay; that before the Sealing of the Lease, it was indorsed for the Payment of twelve Bottles of Canary Wine every Year to C. T. the Lessor. Lessee entered and made his Will, and made S. G. sole Executrix; she entered, and assigned the Term to the Defendant, who entered, &c. and assigned the Breach in Non-payment of the twenty-four Bottles of Sack, which was due for two Years, and also for Arrears of Rent after the Assignment made to him by the said Executrix. Defendant pleads, that before the said Wine and Rent became due, he assigned his Interest to J. M. but did not plead Notice given to the Plaintiff, or that she had accepted the Rent. Judgment on Demurrer in C. B. was given pro Quer', and Writ of Error brought. Now in Keighly and Bulkley's Case, Sid. 338. Debt was brought for Rent by Assignee of a Reversion against the Assignee of a Term, who pleaded that he had assigned over his Interest, but not that he he had given Notice of the Assignment; he was adjudged still Tenant, because he had not given such Notice; but by Twisden he need not give Notice. Error was brought in that Case; and Hale C. J. and Bridgman were of Opinion, that Notice was not necessary; but in the principal Case, Judgment was given for the Defendant in the original Action, and the Judgment in the Common Pleas reversed. It was held, that the Assignee was chargeable by Reason of the Land, and when he had parted with his Interest, there could be no Reason given why he should be any longer liable, especially since the Executor of the Lessee is still bound to perform the Covenants in the Lease so long as she hath Assets; and that was the true Reason of Helier and Casbard's Case, Sid. 266. Vide 2 Ventr. 228. 3 Lev. 295. 4 Mod. 71. Sid. 338. Lev. 215.

In Action of Covenant, Plaintiff declared on a special Covenant in a Lease by Deed for twenty-one Years to pay the Rent. The Defendant pleads a former Lease made by Bargain and Sale to one Allen, by the Lessor for 1000 Years, but no Entry is alledged of the first Lessee; to which the Plaintiff demurred on 4 Co. 53. Dyer 256. because no express Eviction is made of the Estate, but only of the Possession, and especially because no Entry is alledged. Twisden agreed this a good Lease by way of Estoppel, and if the Rent be in Being, the Covenant remains; e converso if not; which the Court agreed: But it being said that Allen was attainted, by Reason whereof, and of the Stat. 13 Car. 2. it came to the Crown. This is a sufficient Eviction, without any Entry or Office alledged, and the King is in actual Possession as much as if the Party had actually entred; although a common Person should not be in actual Possession without Entry by himself or the first Lessee; Judgment pro Defendant: For this cannot be good as a Lease in Reversion, being not so pleaded, but as a Grant of a present Estate, and being a Lease extracted out of the Inheritance, there needs no Attornment be alledged, being by Bargain and Sale. But all agreed, that upon Assignment of Lease there must be Attornment, and in both special Notice must be given by the Assignee as to Penalties, though not as to the Rent; the Plaintiff hath declared of a Lease in Possession, as at Common Law, is avoided by Eviction. 2 Keb. 444. Vide Sid. 399.

In an Action on an express Covenant to pay Rent, the Lessee pleaded Assignment and Acceptance; to which the Plaintiff demurred, because he hath Election, notwithstanding his Acceptance of Rent of the Assignee, which the Court agreed on, Cro. Eliz. 503. although this continues as a Rent. Judgment pro Quer. 2 Keb. 640.

Pleadings.

In Scire Facias on Recognizance to keep Covenants specified in certain Indentures set forth; which was a Demise by S. to E. and a Re-demise by E. to S. rendering Rent at Lincolns-Inn Hall. Defendant pleaded Performance. Plaintiff shewed there is Rent due at Michaelmas last, and so a Breach. It was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that it is not sufficient; the Condition being to perform Payments in both Indentures, and the Breach is only assigned in ultimo mentionat, and either in Severalty shall not be intended. But per Cur.; Either of them are supplied by the Nature of the Covenants. The Issue in Chancery was on Payment at Lincolns-Inn Hall; the Venue must be from Holborn. Keb. 471.

Covenant was brought for Non-payment of Rent, upon a Demise of Allum Mines. Defendant pleaded the Plaintiff inclosed the Mines, so that the Defendant could not have Ingress to the Work; and this was tried at London, where the Covenant was alledged to be made. Moved that this was a Mis-trial; but this is aided by the Stat. 16 & 17 Car. 2. c. 8. To prevent Arrests of Judgment. T. Jones 82. Aynsworth and Chamberlain. Yet in the Case of Crofts and Winter, Hil. 20 & 21 Car. 2. B. R. it was held the contrary. See the Case of Gerrard and Holland, Cro. Jac. 43. But by later Opinions this is aided by the said Statute.

Annuity.

In Debt on Articles of Agreement to pay an Annuity during the Residue of the Term assigned to J. S. not shewing for what Years a Term, and Breach assigned in Non-payment during the Residue of the Term, without saying yet to come; and so when the Damages are laid, the Term might be expired. After Judgment by Nil dicit, the Court conceived it might be ill; contra if a Verdict were, for then a Term shall be intended. Keb. 435.

In Action of Covenant upon an Indenture made by the Wife of the Defendant whilst she was Sole, to the Wife of the Plaintiff, whereby (reciting that she was seised in Fee of certain Lands, in Consideration of a Marriage to be had between the Plaintiff and her Son) she did grant to the Plaintiff a Rent-charge out of these Lands, Habendum after the Death of her Son, and covenanted to pay it, &c. The Defendant pleaded, that she had not been long in the Land at the Time of the Grant, but that a Stranger was seised of it. Upon Demurrer it was adjudged pro Quer., both because the Defendant is estopped by the Deed, and that the Covenant extends to it as an Annuity. Allen 79.

Covenant to pay Taxes.

Plaintiff declares, that the Defendant's Predecessor, Bishop of Salisbury, being seised in Fee, let to the Plaintiff certain Lands for twenty-one Years, reserving the ancient Rent, and covenanted for him and his Successors to discharge all publick Taxes upon the Land, and that that the Defendant was since made Bishop, and a Tax was assessed by Parliament, and he refused to pay it. 2. Whether this is such a Covenant as shall bind the Successor as incident to a Lease, which the Bishop is impowered to make by the Statute of 32 H. 8. If it should now be taken that every Covenant should bind the Successor, the Stat. 1 Eliz. should be of none Effect. By Hale, Admitting this was an ancient Covenant (and so it should have been averred to have been used in former Leases) to discharge ordinary Payments, as Pensions or Tenths granted by the Clergy, then it might bind the Successor, by 32 H. 8. but it were very hard to extend it to new Charges: However this Covenant shall prove, it would not avoid the Lease, but the Declaration being insufficient, they did not resolve it fully; for he saith the Predecessor was seised, but saith not in jure Episcopatus, for he might be seised in his natural Capacity. Vent. 223. 2 Lev. 68.

A Lessee covenanted with the Lessor to pay all Charges, Dues and Duties to be paid, for or by Reason of the Land, and to discharge the Lessor of them; after this in 18 Car. 1. the Act of Parliament for the 400,000 l. is made; which saith, That the Lessors shall be charged for their Rent to the said Tax. If this Act of Parliament discharged the Covenant, was proposed to Mr. Hale and Serjeant Roll to have their Opinions under their Hands, which they did in this Manner: Mr. Hale wrote, No; 1. Because the Act did not intend to discharge this Covenant; for if it had intended so, then it would have said, That all Covenants shall be void, as in the Stat. 39 Eliz. c. 2. of converting Arable Land into Pasture; and Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11. of Leases, expresse Clauses to make all Covenants void; which shews that otherwise they shall not be taken away. 2. This Covenant is a collateral Thing. 3. It was a Fault in the Lessee to make such a Covenant; he might have made a Covenant to discharge all ordinary Charges. 4. Authorities upon the same Reason, Statute of Sewers, 23 H. 5. saith, that every one who may have Benefit or Loss shall contribute; yet it hath been adjudged, that if any particular Person be to repair a Bank by Prescription, he, and no other, shall repair it. 5 Co. 100. But Serjeant Roll and others wrote contra; 1. Because the Lessor is Party to the Act of Parliament, and hath dispensed with it, as in 6 Co. Morris's Case. 2. The Intent of the Act was to ease the Lessee of Part of the Burden, and put this Part on the Lessor. 3. Alias the Lessee, by the Force of the Covenant, shall be driven to pay all the Rent to the Lessor, and yet to bear all the Charge of the Tax, and the Lessor shall have all his Rent, and shall pay no Charge of the Tax, which will be against the Words and Intent of the Act: As to the Objection on the Statute of Sewers, the Book is not so, for the Commissioners may tax all, if they will, upon the Words of the Statute. Law of Covenants 251, 252.

Per Ch. Just. Roll and Just. Nichols, nullo contradicent, in Rawson's and Marten's Case, Trin. 1650. in super Banco, it was held, that if an Ordinance of Parliament is, that the Lessee shall deduct the Money monthly for the Parliament Army out of his Rent, and the Lessee covenants in his Lease to pay all the Taxes and Charges for or by Reason of the Land: If this Lease was made before the Ordinance, there the subsequent Order of Parliament shall take away this Covenant, because every one is privy to an Act of Parliament; and so the Lessor, by this subsequent Ordinance, hath taken away the Covenant, and then it is all one as if the Lessor had said, I will pay it, and you shall not pay it; alias if the Lease had been made after the Ordinance.

Secondly, Concerning Reparations. Vide Concerning Building (BB) post.

The Words in a Lease for Years, that the Lessee shall repair, make a Covenant. Roll. Abr. Words. 518. Cro. Jac. 399, 521. 3 Bulst. 163. Roll. Rep. 359. 2 Roll. Rep. 63.

The Lessee covenants to build three Houses upon the Premises, and keep them in good Repair, and deliver up the Premises, ac domos & ædificia superinde erecta well repaired: He builds four, and lets one fall to decay; the Covenant extends as well to the other House, as to the three which were agreed to be built. 2 Vent. 128. Vide 3 Lev. 264, 265.

Magdalen College Oxon was seised of a House and a Mill, demised it to L. for thirty-one Years: L. let the Mill to J. S. for five Years, and afterwards demised the House and Mill to F. by Indenture for thirty-one Years; F. covenanted to repair the Premises, durante Termino prædicto of twenty-one Years; J. S. refused to attorn; and whether F. were bound to repair the Mill was the Question; because it was alledged, that the Covenant was to repair during the Term, and nothing in the Mill passed during the five Years for want of Attornment. Per Cur, He is bound to repair, though the Lease did not commence in Point of Interest, yet it did in Point of Computation; and this Covenant was to repair during the Term of thirty-one Years. Ventr. 185. 2 Keb. 879.

Defendant covenanted that ab & post emendationem & reparationem dicti Messuagii, by the Plaintiff, he at his proper Costs and Charges, as Need shall require, should well and sufficiently repair repair and sustain the said Houses: The Defendant is not to repair it till the Plaintiff has first repaired it; though it were in good Reparations at the Beginning, if it afterwards happens to decay, the Plaintiff is first to repair it before the Defendant is bound thereunto; for this is not within the Reach of the Covenant if the Lessor does not first repair them. Cro. Jac. 645. 2 Roll. Rep. 248.

If a Lessor covenants to repair during the Term, and will not do it, the Lessee may do it, and pay himself by way of Retainer. Leon. 237.

If Lessee for Years of an House covenants to repair it, and to leave it in as good Plight as he found it; and after certain Sparks of Fire come out of the Chimney of the Lessor into a House not much remote, by which the House of the Lessee is burnt: This will excuse the Performance of the Covenant to the Lessee, so that he is not bound to rebuild, because this comes by the Act of the Lessor himself. Roll. Abr. 454.

If A. leases three Messuages to B. for forty-one Years, and B. covenants to pull them down, and erect three others in their Place, ac etiam de tempore in tempus to maintain the Messuages agreed to be erected in sufficient repair, ac etiam to repair the Pavements, &c. ac etiam dicta præmissa & domus superinde fore erect. at the End of the Term to leave in good Repair: And after B. pulls down the three Houses, and builds five; he must leave them all in good Repair at the End of the Term: For though by the first Covenant he is bound only to repair, &c. the Messuages agreat. fore erect, yet by the last Covenant he is obliged to leave in good Repair Domos superinde erect indefinitely, which extends to all Houses which shall be built upon the Premises during the Term. 3 Lev. 264.

If a Man takes a Lease of a House and Land, and covenants to leave the demised Premises in good Repair at the End of the Term, and he erects a Messuage upon Part of the Land, besides what was before, he must keep or leave this in good Repair also. 3 Lev. 265.

A Covenant is to erect three Messuages, & dimissa præd' reparare, and the Covenantor erects five Messuages; he is bound to keep all in Repair. 3 Lev. 264, 265. 2 Ventr. 126.

A Covenant to repair, except in principal Timber, and the Lessor covenants that if there were Need of Reparations he would give Notice, and that the Lessee should repair within three Months; and there was afterwards a Proviso, that if the Lessee did not perform all the Covenants, his Lease should be void: It was agreed that the second Covenant qualified the first, but that the Proviso afterwards separated them, for that the Lessee was bound to repair, without Warning, as often as there was Need. Lit. Rep. 205.

Where the Covenant is, that ab & post reparationes by the Plaintiff, the Defendant will repair and sustain, &c. This is conditional, and the Plaintiff ought first to repair. Cro. Jac. 645.

In Covenant the Words were, the Plaintiff putting the House in good Repair, the Defendant should keep it so; these are held to be mutual Covenants. T. Raym. 183. Style 140.

The Defendant covenants, that at three Months Warning during the Term he would repair, and leave it well repaired at the End of the Term: The Clause to leave it well repaired at the End of the Term is distinct by itself, and doth not depend upon the former Clauses; for he ought to leave it sufficiently repaired at his Peril at the End of the Term without Notice; the three Months Notice refers only to Reparations within the Term. Cro. Jac. 644. pl. 7.

Where there is a Covenant for the Lessee to repair upon a Penalty, and there is a Default of Repairs by Means of Thunder, Lightning, Inundation, or any such like Accident, the Lessee shall be excused of the Penalty: But yet because of his Covenant, he is bound to repair in convenient Time. Dyer 33. a. pl. 101, 324. a. pl. 341.

And if Lessee for Years covenants to repair during the Term, this shall bind all others as a Thing appurtenant, and which runs with the Land, whether they come in by Act in Law or of the Party. 5 Co. 17. b. *Roll. Where Notice to repair must be given.

Lessee covenants to repair a House to him demised during the Term within three Months after Notice given, and to leave it so repaired: It is in the Election of the Lessor either to give Notice, or if the Lessee does not repair during the Term, to bring Covenant, and that there were several Covenants; and that if the Lessee comes without Lease, after the Term ended, to repair the House, he is a Trespasser. The first Covenant was absolute, and the second conditional, and one shall not take away the Effect of the other. Roll. Rep. 250.

Where Covenant will lie, and what is a Breach.

A Copyholder in Fee made a Lease of a Messuage for twenty-one Years, warranted by the Custom, &c. the Lessee covenanted to repair during the Term; the Lessor granted the Reversion to his Son, who surrendered to the Plaintiff, who brought an Action of Covenant against the Lessee for not repairing. The Question was, Whether it will lie, because it is a Copyhold, and so not within the Statute 32 H. 8. c. 34. Per Cur', A Copyholder has an Inheritance, and his Estate is established by Custom, and it is Reason to construe him within the Equity of this Statute. 4 Mod. 80. 3 Lev. 326.

If

If one covenants to keep and leave a House in the same or as good Plight as it was at the Time of the making the Lease; in this Case the ordinary and natural Decay of it is no Breach of the Covenant; but the Covenantor is hereby bound to do his best to keep it in the same Plight, and therefore to keep it covered, &c. Fitz. Covenant 4.

The Assignee of a Reversion may maintain Covenants for Repairs, though not named in the Covenant in the Lease. Lev. 109. And likewise may maintain Covenant in the County where it is supposed to be made; aliter in Debt. Ibid.

If one covenants to leave a Wood in the same Plight he finds it, and he cuts down the Trees, the Covenant is broken presently, for now it is become impossible by his own Act to be performed; aliter in Case the Trees be blown down; for now it is become impossible to be done by the Act of God, and the Covenantor is not bound to supply it.

In a Covenant to sustain Houses, Sea-Banks, or Covenant to leave them in as good Case as one finds them, and the Houses be burnt or thrown down by Tempest, or the Banks overthrown by a sudden Flood; in this Case the Covenant is not broken by these Accidents only; but if the Covenantor do not repair and make up these Things in convenient Time, the Covenant will be broken. Fitz. Covenant 29. 5 Co. 15. Co. 98. Perk. §. 738. Plow. 229.

If Houses are let to me for Years, and I covenant to leave them in as good Plight as I find them, and I throw down the Houses; this is no Breach of the Covenant, for I may re-edify them, and so no Action will lie upon this Covenant till the End of the Term.

M. let a House for Years to A. by Indenture, by which A. covenanted with M. to repair the House, and that M. should enter to see in what Plight the Reparations stood, and if Default was found, and thereof Warning be given to A. his Executors, &c. then within four Months after such Warning the Default should be amended. The House in the Default of the Lessee became ruinous; M. granted the Reversion over in Fee to C. who upon View of the House gave Warning to A. of the Default, which is not repaired; upon which C. as Assignee of M. brought Covenant. It was moved, the Action did not lie, because the House became ruinous before his Interest in the Reversion. Sed per Cur. The Action is not conceived upon the ruinous Estate of the House, but for not repairing of it within the Time appointed by the Covenant after the Warning. Leon. 62.

If A. covenants to repair the Premises before Midsummer, it is not a Condition precedent, but only the Time divided and mutual between A. and B. viz. that A. shall repair it before Midsummer, B. after during the Term, for which each of them may have his Remedy by Action against the other.

Lessee covenanted that he would not cut down more Timber growing than sufficient for needful Reparations of the Building; the Plaintiff assigns a Breach, that he had cut down Timber to the Value of 10*l.* and converted it to his own Use. Verdict pro Quer. Per Cur. It is erroneous, it is not the same Covenant, and so no Breach if he had converted it to his own Use, except it be averred that he had cut down more than was necessary for Reparations. Style 5.

Covenant upon a Lease for Years made by the Plaintiff to the Defendant of a Park, &c. for five Years, if he should so long live; in which the Lessee covenants for her, her Executors and Assigns, to keep the Premises in good Reparation, and so to leave them at the Expiration of the Term, and also to deliver to the Plaintiff (upon Notice given) four Bucks and four Does in Season, during the Life of the Plaintiff, in every of the said Years; and after the Expiration of the aforesaid Term of five Years, the Plaintiff brought Covenant, and assigned the Breach, because that in the End of the Term he had committed Waste, and because that after the End of the Term the Defendant refused to deliver the Deer: Now the Delivery of the Deer are during the Life of the Plaintiff, yet they are also every of the aforesaid Years; and therefore it was resolved, that she not having them during her Life, though it be in fine Termini, and not ad finem Termini, yet it shall be intended a Breach of Covenant, and the Action well lies. Popb. 146. 2 Roll. Rep. 38.

A Surrendree or Assignee of a Reversion of a Copyhold Estate may bring an Action against the Lessee for not repairing of the Premises, and that he is within the Equity of the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 34. 4 Mod. 80.

Lease to B. and F. and they covenanted to do no Waste, or to repair Houses. B. dies, F. survives and holds in; if the Wife commits Waste, or does not repair the Houses, no Action lies against the Wife, for to such a Lease the Wife is tied to pay the Rent, or to perform a Condition made by the Part of the Lessor, but not to observe or perform the Covenants of the Lessee. Brownl. 31.

Covenant to repair a House; if Lessee comes after the Term without Licence to repair it, he is a Trespasser. 2 Roll. Rep. 250.

Lessee for Years covenants for himself and his Executors (sans the Word Assigns) to repair; he assigns, and an Action of Covenant for Repairs is brought against his Assignee, and held to be good; for though the Lessee hath not covenanted for his Assigns, yet such

Covenants

Covenants as extend to the Support of a Thing demised, are quodammodo appurtenant thereunto, and run with the Land; and in Respect that the Tenant hath taken upon him the Repairs, the annual Rent is the Lessor's, & qui sentit commodum sentire debet & onus. 5 Co. 24. b.

Declaration.

In the King's Letters Patent there is a Clause for the Patentee's repairing; though this is by Patent, wherein the Lessee takes only, yet that Clause shall be taken and interpreted as a Covenant on the Lessee's Part to bind him and his Assigns; for when he takes by the Patent, he consents to all Things therein; and the Words in that Clause, for the leaving and keeping the Houses and Fences in repair, are as spoken by him, and it is a Covenant which runs with the Land; and though the Bargainee be not named Assignee in the Declaration, it is good enough. Cro. Jac. 240.

One lets a Lease of Houses, Courts, Orchards and Gardens appertaining to them; Defendant covenants to repair the Houses, Edifices and Buildings, with necessary Reparations; and that he would maintain and keep demissa præmissa sufficiently maintained, repaired, pailed and fenced; and shews, that at the Time of the Lease the Houses were well repaired; and that afterwards, Diversa domus loca parcella & res eorundem tenementorum & præmissorum decasu dirupta & fracta fuer' & in decasu devener' & diversæ aliæ parcellæ & res eorundem tenementorum & præmissorum eisdem præmissis affixa ab inde avulsa & asportat' fuer' prout sequitur, &c. and instances in the Pavement of the Court, carrying away the Locks and Keys of a Cupboard, the breaking of the Glass in the Windows, carrying away of a Shelf, which was not shewed to be fixed: It was objected, that the Breach for not repairing the Pavement is out of the Covenant, for it is neither Building, Pailing nor Fencing. Sed per Cur', It is within the Intention of the Covenant, and it is quasi the Building, and within the Words, leave them sufficiently repaired; and the Shelf needs not be shewed to be fixed. Cro. Jac. 329. 2 Bulst. 112.

Covenant that the Defendant shall put in good Repair the Houses, Outhouses and Stables; the Breach was, that the Defendant permitted the Racks in the Stable to be in Decay. It was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that the Plaintiff did not set forth that the Racks were fixed in the Stable, and so Part of the Freehold. By Pollexfen, It ought to have been shewed that the Racks were set up and fixed; alii Justiciarii contra, It shall be intended they shall be fixed for the Use of the Stable. 2 Ventr. 214.

The Defendant, by Indenture upon a Lease made unto him of a House, covenanted that he would from Time to Time, during the Term, after three Months Warning, sufficiently Repair; and at the End of the Term Action was brought, and shews in what Part, &c. Defendant demurred, because he doth not alledge, that he for three Months before gave Notice unto him of the Defects. But per Cur', The Declaration is good notwithstanding that Exception; for the Clause, to leave it well repaired at the End of the Term, is distinct by itself, and does not depend upon the former Clauses; for he ought to leave it sufficiently repaired without Notice, at his Peril; and the Notice within three Months, refers only to the Reparations within the Term, whereto he is not tied without three Months Notice before. Cro. Jac. 644.

Covenant that the Lessee should repair the House, provided and it was agreed that the Lessee should have necessary Timber, to be allowed and delivered by the Lessor; the Lessor allowed so many Loads of Timber, and a general Request was laid: The Plaintiff should have alledged a special Request to the Defendant; it was laid in the Declaration that a Stranger brought the Timber, which was ill, for that amounted to an Entry on the Lessee's Possession. Brownl. 23.

Defendant covenanted that he, his Executors and Assigns, would repair a Mill; and alledged, that the Mill was defective in Reparations; and the Defendant, his Executors and Assigns, did not repair it: The Declaration was demurred to, because he did not alledge that he, nor his Executors or Assigns, did not repair it. Per Cur', It ought to be alledged in the Disjunctive, not in the Conjunctive. Cro. Eliz. 348.

A Lessee covenanted to repair the House well from Time to Time during the Term, and at the End of the Term to leave the same well repaired to the Lessor; Plaintiff assigns for Breach, that the Defendant did not leave it well repaired at the End of the Term; the Breach is good, though he doth not shew in what Point it is not repaired: But if the Defendant had pleaded, that at the End of the Term he had delivered it up well repaired, then if the Plaintiff will assign any Breach, he ought to shew in what Particular it was not repaired, so as the Defendant might give particular Answer to it. Cro. Jac. 170.

Lessee covenants to repair a Park, and in the End of the Term to leave it sufficiently repaired Breach quod non reparavit, but in the End of the Term fecit vastum, viz. in permittendo the Pale to decay; it is good, though the End of the Term is an Instant of Time in in which a Thing cannot be said properly to be done, yet it may be permitted. 2 Roll. Rep. 38.

In Covenant for not repairing, the Plaintiff shews for Breach, that the House was burnt Plea. down through the Negligence of the Defendant, &c. and that he did not repair it. Defendant traversed, that it was not burnt down, prout, &c. And it was adjudged an ill Traverse, because the Defendant's not repairing it is the substantial Part, and the other but Inducement. 24 Car. 1. Hardr. 70. But in Style (88) the Case is thus: Plaintiff declared, and shewed that one of the Houses was burnt down by Negligence. Defendant pleaded a special Plea, that the House which was burnt was not burnt by Negligence, nor with common Fire, as the Plaintiff hath declared; and as to the Rest pleads the general Issue, that they were in good Repairs at the End of the Term. This Plea contains a Negative pregnant, for there are two Matters offered in Issue: 1. That the House was not burnt by common Fire. 2. That it was not burned by the Negligence of the Party. It ought to have been demurred to; but there was a Verdict.

In Covenant to repair, Defendant pleads, that the House was burnt by Casualty; it is no Plea. Style 161.

The Breach assigned in hoc; whereas the Defendant being Lessee for Years covenanted at the End of the Term to leave and yield up the Tenements well repaired to the Plaintiff, and that he had not left, &c. Defendant pleaded, that one B. was seised in Fee until by the Plaintiff disseised, who let to the Defendant; and afterwards B. re-entered, who infeoffed J. S. who is yet seised, &c. Adjudged upon Demurrer a good Bar. Cro. Eliz. 656.

The Plaintiff assigned a Breach in not repairing; Defendant pleads, the Plaintiff had acquitted and discharged him of all Reparations. Plaintiff demurred. Per Cur', This is an Acquittance and Discharge of the Reparations for the Time past, as well as the Time to come, and amounts to as much as if he had released that Covenant; but the Covenant being broken, that Discharge shall not take away the Action on the Obligation, which was forfeited. 3 Leon. 69.

In Covenant Plaintiff declared upon a Lease made by the Queen to G. B. and brought the Reversion to himself by divers mean Conveyances, and brought the Term to the Defendant by a Que Estate he had by divers mean Conveyances in general, Concurrentibus iis quæ in jure requiruntur; and assigns divers Breaches in not repairing the Premises. Defendant pleads, Non infregit conventiones. Plaintiff demurs, and Judgment for him. The Pleading an Estate in Term in either Person, under whom he does not claim, but is a Stranger, is good; for he is not privy to the Estate and Conveyances to a Stranger, but to plead an Estate in himself in a Term, or in any other under whom he claims, is not good. The Plea is too general; 1. Several Breaches being alledged. 2. Two Negatives cannot make a good Issue, and the Breaches in non reparando, ideo non infregit, cannot be good. 3 Lev. 19.

In Covenant to repair within a Month after Warning. Defendant pleads, long Time before that Warning he assigned over to J. S. who had always after paid his Rent, and the Plaintiff accepted it, and avers Performance of all the Covenants till the Assignment: It is an ill Plea, for he may charge the Lessee or Assignee at his Election. Cro. Jac. 309.

In Covenant the Breach was, that the Defendant did not repair; he pleads generally, Quod reparavit; this was held a good Issue after a Verdict. 2 Mod. 176.

Where the Lessee covenants to repair; in an Action of Covenant brought by the Lessor against him for Defect of Reparations, he concludes, Et sic infregit conventionem. Non infregit conventionem is an ill Plea upon a Demurrer, but it is good after Verdict; and in that Case the Defendant ought to answer to every Breach, and conclude to the Country.

Lessee covenanted during the Term to keep in Repair the Messuage demised: The Defendant says he did, during the Term, keep all the Premises demised in good Repair, except only a ruinous Kitchen, which before he took the House was so ruinous that it could not be repaired; and he pulled it down and rebuilt it, and hath afterwards kept it in good Repair; held to be a good Plea in Waste, but not in Covenant. 2 Leon. 238.

In Covenant for not repairing a House, being in Decay, and not said wherein: The Demurrer. Plaintiff demurred, and shewed for Cause, that it was not particularly set forth wherein it was in Decay; which, per Cur', is as well as in Waste. 3 Keb. 478.

The Plaintiff let Houses for Years to the Defendant, and covenanted to repair the Houses by such a Day; the Defendant by the same Indenture covenanted with the Plaintiff, that from the Time that the Plaintiff was to repair the Houses, unto the End of the Term, he would repair and leave them so repaired; and for not performing this Covenant on the Defendant's Part, the Plaintiff brought his Action. Defendant demurred to the Declaration, because the Plaintiff had not shewed for his Part that he had repaired the Houses according to the Covenant, and so the Declaration supposed he was not bound to repair, because he was bound to repair from the Time that the Plaintiff had repaired them, and not before, and so no Cause of Action. Style 140. These are reciprocal Covenants on his Part, it does not excuse the other.

In Covenant to repair, and so to leave the Premises repaired; in the Declaration the Plaintiff shews the Breach in sixty Roods, &c. Defendant pleads, that one Barn was pulled down by the Plaintiff's Consent; and as to the Rest, that they were repaired, and so left. To which the Plaintiff demurred generally, the particular Breach being not answered. Per Hale, He should have either taken Issue reparavit the Particulars, or to say, they were not in decasu modo & forma. 2 Keb. 298.

Plaintiff declared that he let to the Defendant a House, and that he covenanted to repair it. Defendant pleaded, it was sufficiently repaired before the Action brought. Plaintiff demurred, because he did not plead that he himself did it. Kelyng and Rainsford inclined against the Demurrer; for be it repaired, tho' by any Body, the Plaintiff has no Damages, nor Cause of Action. Twisden doubted; afterwards they waived the Demurrer. Vent. 38. 2 Keb. 535.

Defendant pleads, that after the Decay he made such Concord that the Plaintiff should take 30 s. and such Goods, in Satisfaction of that Destruction, &c. and shews it to be executed: On Demurrer, it was held the Plea was good; though when an Action is grounded upon a Deed, it cannot be discharged unless by Deed; as a Bond with Condition cannot be discharged by Contract: But this Plea here is not pleaded in Discharge of the Covenant, but only for the Damages which are demanded by Reason of the Breach of the Covenant, and the Covenant remains. And in every Action where only Amends is demanded by Way of Damages, Accord executed is a good Bar in Discharge of them; and so adjudged. Cro. Jac. 199.

The Plaintiff declared (inter alia) on a Covenant to repair all the Pales of a Garden demised, (excepting the Pales on the East-side) and assigned a Breach in not repairing the Pales contra formam conventionis, but shews not that the Defect was in the Pales not excepted. Defendant pleads he had repaired the Pales according to the Covenant; and Issue upon it; and Verdict pro Quer. It was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that the Breach was not sufficiently alledged, for the Defect might be in the Pales excepted; sed non allocat'; for it shall be intended after a Verdict, who had given Damages to the Plaintiff, that the Defect was in the Pales to be repaired by the Covenant, Et eo potius, because the Issue was as to Repairs according to the Covenant; but it was agreed, if the Defendant had demurred, Judgment ought to have been given for him. T. Jones 125.

Covenant for that he let to R. M. Quoddam molendinum aquaticum in Paroch' de S. & omnia domus edificia aquas, aquarum cursus Ripas [Angl' Dams] dicto molendino adjacent' spectant' & pertinen' for twenty-one Years, and he covenanted to repair the Houses of the said Mill, the Flood-Gates, &c. The Breach was assigned for not repairing of the Mill and Mill-Banks, and for not leaving the Mill-Stones; and Exception was taken, because he shews not in what Vill the Mill-Banks were; sed non allocat'; 1. For they shall be intended to be in the same Vill where the Mill is. 2. Because it was not shewn whether it were a Corn-Mill or a Fulling-Mill; sed non allocat'; for all is one, the Breach being assigned for not repairing. It was also moved, that there were three Breaches assigned, and the Defendant having demurred upon the whole Declaration, the Plaintiff ought to have Judgment for them wherein the Breach was well assigned; and of that Opinion was all the Court, for they are as several Action. Cro. Jac. 557.

The Lessee covenants to repair the demised Premises as often as Need shall require; a Barn is built upon the demised Premises after the Covenant entered into, which is pleaded by the Defendant in an Action of Covenant; and upon a Demurrer it was held, that the Tenant shall repair it though built after the Covenant made. Brown and Blundel, 34 Car. 2. Rot. 752. 3 Lev. 265. Skin. 121.

Where to be tried.

Plaintiff declared of a Lease made in Hampshire of a Messuage in Berkshire; and assigns a Breach for not repairing a House. Defendant pleads, Non infregit conventionem: And Issue was tried in Hampshire, where it is supposed the Covenant is made. Verdict pro Quer. Moved in Arrest of Judgment, that it ought to have been tried in Berkshire, where the House is, and the Repairs to be made; and so per Cur. it ought to be. The Breach is in not repairing, and the Issue is Non infregit conventionem: This shall be intended only in answer to the Breach, viz. that he had not broken the Covenant for want of Repairs; and so this is the only Matter triable, and only where the House lies. Lev. 114. Keb. 575, 601. The Plaintiff had made his Breach local in not repairing, and the Issue, Non infregit conventionem, refers specially to that. This is a special Issue, as well as if the Defendant had pleaded that the House was in good Repair. T. Raym. 85. Sid. 157.

A Man made a Lease for Years, and the Lessee covenanted to make Reparations; Lessor granted the Reversion to another; Lessee for Years made his Wife his Executrix, and died. Per Cur', The Grantee of the Reversion shall not recover Damages but from the Time of the Grant, and not for any Time before; but yet the Wife, the Executrix, should be charged for the not repairing, as well in the Time of her Husband as in her own Time; and if she makes the Reparation depending the Suit, yet thereby the Suit shall not abate, but it shall be a good Cause to qualify the Damages, according to that which may be supposed that the Party is damnified for the not repairing, from the Time of the Purchase to the Time of the bringing the Action; and by Manhood, By the Recovery of the Damages the Lessee shall be excused ever after for making of Reparations; so as if he suffers the Houses for want of Reparations to decay, that no Action shall be brought for the same thereupon afterwards, but the Covenant is extinct. 3 Leon. 51. Who shall recover Damages.

Thirdly, That the Lessee will not assign, &c. the Premises leased.

A Lessee for Years covenanted with the Lessor that he would not assign the Land let, nor any Part thereof, without the Lessor's Consent; the Lessor entered into Part, the Lessee assigned over the Rest without Consent; an Action of Covenant lies, for it was collateral; and the Covenant is broken notwithstanding the Lessor's Entry into Part of the Land. Style 265.

A Lessee covenanted that he would not alien the Advowson let to him without Consent of the Lessor, and shewed he had aliened to J. S. without his Consent. Defendant pleads, he had not aliened without his Consent; and found pro Quer': The Breach was well laid, though he has not laid the Alienation to be by Deed, (an Advowson not passing without Deed) for it shall be intended to be by Deed. Winch 34.

Debt on Bond conditioned for Performance of Covenants in a Lease: One Covenant was, that the Lessee, his Executors or Assigns, shall not alien without Licence of the Lessor, but only to his Wife and Children. The Lessee deviseth to his Wife, and makes her his Executrix, who enters therein as Legatee, and takes K. the Defendant to Husband, and they alien the Estate. The Lessor brings Debt upon the Bond; they pleaded they had not aliened contra formam conventionis. The Plaintiff shews the Alienation abovesaid; and it was thereupon demurred. Per three Justices, The Covenant is broken; for the Feme is restrained from aliening by express Words, as well as the Lessee himself, for it extends to the Lessee and his Assigns, and she is Assignee; so though there was once Alienation by Licence, yet that Assignee cannot alien without Licence. But per Walmsley, The Words are, that the Lessee or Assignee should not alien but to his Wife or Children; and the Wife is not within these Words, for she cannot alien to herself. But it hath been adjudged, that where a Condition within a Lease was, that neither he nor his Assigns should alien without Licence, the Lessee died Intestate, the Administrator was bound by this Condition. Cro. Eliz. 757.

If a Man by Indenture letteth Land for Years, provided always and it is covenanted and agreed between the said Parties, that the Lessee should not alien; it was adjudged that this was a Condition by Force of the Proviso, and a Covenant by Force of the other Words. Co. Lit. 203. b.

Fourthly, That the Lessee will drain the Water which is upon the Land.

If Lessee for Years covenants to drain the Water that stands upon the Land before such a Day, and after the Lessor enters upon the Land, and disturbs the Lessee; this is a good Excuse of the Performance of the Condition. Roll. Abr. 454. Cro. Eliz. 374. Owen 66.

If Lessee for Years covenants to drain the Water which is upon the Land before such a Day, and after the Lessor enters before the Day, and there continues till the Day is past; yet this shall not excuse the Performance of the Covenant, because this is collateral to the Land. Roll. Abr. 453.

But if it had been a Covenant adhering to the Land, and in Respect of the Enjoyment thereof, it would have been otherwise; but then it must have been shewed that he held him out of Possession. Moor 402. pl. 534. Owen 65.

Fifthly, That the Lessee will do all reasonable Chares for the Lessor.

If Lessee for Years covenants to do all reasonable Chares for his Lessor with his Carts, Carriages, and otherways, upon Request, and the Lessor requires him to bring him three Load of Coals: If the Lessee has no Cart nor Carriage, he is excused; for he is not bound to keep Carts to serve his Lessor. Latch 202.

Sixthly,

Sixthly, That the Lessee shall have House-boot, &c.

A Lessor covenants that the Lessee shall have House-boot, Hay-boot and Plough-boot, without committing Waste, upon Pain of Forfeiture; whether this was a Condition. Curia: This Covenant is no more than what the Law appoints, and therefore vain; also it is a Covenant on the Part of the Lessor, and therefore cannot be a Condition. Cro. Eliz. 604. pl. 18.

Seventhly, That the Lessor may view the Premises.

Lessee covenants that after four Years the Lessor might come twice a Year to see if there were any Waste done: The Lessor comes within the four Years; and adjudged that he might, for that this particular Covenant doth not take away the general Covenant in Law, which is, that the Lessor may come when he pleases, to see whether any Waste is done. Lit. Rep. 205.

Eighthly, That the Lessee will render up the Possession at the End of the Term, and in good Condition, &c.

One seised in Fee of Lands, lets it for Years, and Lessee covenants to render up the Possession to the Lessor, his Heirs and Assigns, at the End of the Term, upon Request; and after the Lessor assigns over the Reversion to two, and one of them at the End of the Term comes to the Lessee and demands the Delivery of Possession. Upon this Demand, by one only, he is bound to deliver Possession, otherwise he has forfeited his Covenant, for the Demand of one Joint-tenant is sufficient for both. Roll. Abr. 428.

Lessee covenanted that he would leave the Land in as good Condition as it was demised to him: He cut down Oaks, which could not grow again during the Term; an Action of Covenant does not lie till after the Term, but Waste lies presently. 2 Roll. Rep. 332, 347, 348.

If a Lessee for Years covenants to leave Part of the Land at the End of the Term fallowed and fit for Wheat; provided that the Lessee, upon such Warning, may surrender and depart at any Feast of Michaelmas at any Time within the Term, performing the Covenants: If after Warning he surrenders, and does not leave the Land fallowed, he has forfeited his Covenant; for the Acceptance of this Surrender does not dispense with the Covenant, inasmuch as by the Covenant he is to accept thereof. Roll. Abr. 454.

(BB) Of Covenants which may or may not be in Deeds of Conveyances of Land, or may be in Articles of Covenant only.

First, To pay Money.

IN an Indenture the Word Covenant is the Word of both; as if Lessee covenants to pay the Rent, this amounts to a Reservation. Roll. 80, 81.

I oblige myself to pay so much at such a Day; this is a Covenant. Hard. 178. Cban. Rep. 249. And an Action of Covenant lies upon the Default of the first Day, but Debt doth not lie till the last. Co. Lit. 223. b. 47. b. 292. b. 3 Co. 22. a. Cro. Jac. 505. Cro. Car. 241. 4 Co. 94. 5 Co. 51.

It was agreed that A. shall pay B. 100*l.* for Lands in D. It seems to be a mutual Covenant, and Covenant lies if he will not convey the Lands. 1 Sid. 423. T. Raym. 183.

A Covenant with three jointly and severally, that they should pay, &c. and one of the three was sued, and a Breach assigned that he hath not paid: And it was demurred unto, because he had not paid, Nor any of the other had not paid. Curia: If the Action had been brought against all, the Non-payment of all must be alledged; but when brought but against one, then it is sufficient to say, That he hath not paid; and if either of them hath paid, the Party sued ought to plead it.

So if two are jointly and severally bound in a Bond, in an Action against one, it is sufficient to say, That he hath not paid it. Latch 50. In a Charterparty the Covenants are several and not joint. 5 Co. 22. b.

Time and Place.

In an Action of Covenant on Indenture for Payment of Money at a certain Time; Defendant pleaded Payment at the Time, and upon this Issue was joined; adjudged pro Defendant. Plaintiff moved in Arrest of Judgment, for that the Issue was misjoined, because the Place of Payment was not alledged, which is material; and so there can be no Judgment. It was said on the other Side, it is not material to alledge a Place of Payment, because cause it is a personal Action, and it shall be intended where the Action is brought. 1 Ed. 5. fol. 3. There is Difference between finding the Money paid, and the finding it not paid. Style 172.

Covenant to pay 10s. when A. comes to his House, and 10s. at the Feast of St. Michael, and at the Feast of St. Andrew then next following, 10s. These last Sums ought to be paid at the said Feasts or Times, and not at the next Feast after A. comes to his House. Roll. Abr. 442.

Covenant upon an Adventure to Newfoundland, to pay so much Money within forty Days next after the Ship shall make her first Return and Arrival in this Voyage from Newfoundland into the Port of Dartmouth, or into any Harbour, Creek or Port of England where she shall first unlade her Goods: The Covenantor is to pay the Money within forty Days after the Arrival of the Ship, and shall not have forty Days after the Unlading of the Goods, for this is not for Freight, but for Adventure; and the Unlading of the Goods is only mentioned to describe the Haven where the Arrival shall be, and not to put a Limitation of the Payment of the Monies to have forty Days after the Discharge. Style 30. Roll. Abr. 442.

A Covenant to deliver twenty Quarters of Corn on the 29th of February next following, and that Month had but twenty-eight Days. Per Cur', He is not bound to deliver the Corn till such a Year comes, when February hath twenty-nine Days, and that is Leap-Year. Leon. 101.

If a Man is bound by Covenant or Bond to pay a Sum of Money at such a Feast and Place, and between certain Hours of the Feast-Day; and before the Feast, at another Place, he pays the Money to the Covenantee, and he makes Acquittance of this: This is a Discharge of the Covenant or Condition by the Acceptance, &c. Dyer 122.

Covenant to render and pay 1188 Florins, which then amounted to 33*l.* 12*s.* to be paid Ad solutionem festi Purific', called Candlemas Day next ensuing. The Plaintiff in his Declaration avers, that prædictæ solutiones dicti festi Purification' next, after the making the Covenant, according to the Use of the Merchants, were the twentieth Day of February. Defendant pleaded Non est factum, and found against him. Upon Arrest moved, it was resolved that Payment among Merchants is known to be on the 20th of February; and the Judges ought to take Notice of it, and the father, the Defendant by his Plea confesseth the Declaration to be true in that Averment. Brownl. 102.

If A. covenants the first of May to pay to B. 10*l.* at the Feast of St. Michael, without saying more; this shall be intended the Feast of St. Michael next ensuing. Roll. Abr. 444.

A Covenant that D. Deputy Post-Master of Oxon, for six Months should pay all such Sums as he received while he continued Post-Master. On Oyer, the Defendant pleads Performance generally. Plaintiff replies, E. continued two Years longer Post-Master, and such a Day received so much, and paid not over. Per Cur', No Action lay, the six Months being past, and the Continuance after must be on new Agreement. 3 Keb. 45, 59. 2 Saund. 411.

If a Place of Payment be limited by the Covenant, he is not bound to pay it in any other Place. Roll. Abr. 445.

Covenant to pay 10*l.* at D. if the Covenantee accepts this at another Place, it is a good Performance. Ibid. 456.

In Covenant to pay 1200*l.* on Procurement of Pardon for B. who killed L. T. in Ireland. To pay Money on Procurement of Pardon. The Condition of the Articles was, that if B. were acquitted or pardoned, they should pay 1200*l.* B. was convicted of Manlaughter; and the Penalty pardoned; 900*l.* was deposited in the Hands of Sir J. F. It was prayed that common Bail might be accepted, this being an odious Contract to be discountenanced; which the Court agreed as to the Acquittal, being in Effect to stifle Evidence and embrace Jury; but as to the Pardon alone, it might be less illegal; but here is no Pardon of the Offence within the Intent of the Articles, but only a Pardon of the Penalty of Conviction, and an Appearance was only granted. 3 Keb. 415.

Secondly, To make Assurances of Land, &c. See before concerning Covenants for further Assurance.

In Debt for 100*l.* the Plaintiff declared, that by Articles of Agreement 1 May, 8 W. 3. between the Plaintiff and Defendant, First, it was agreed between the Parties aforesaid, and the Plaintiff covenanted, that he, and all Persons claiming under him, should make to the Defendant a good and sufficient Title, Assurance and Conveyance of certain Lands, upon or before the 17th of November then next ensuing. Secondly, the Defendant covenants with the Plaintiff, that he or his Assigns, tempore execution' & sigillation' tal' Conveyance, and in Consideration thereof, thereof, would well and truly pay, or cause to be paid, unto the Plaintiff, his Executors, Administrators or Assigns, the full and just Sum of 503 l. at the House of Sir Francis Child, situate, &c. and some other Articles, do bind themselves in 100 l. for Performance. The Plaintiff avers, he had performed all the Covenants and Articles on his Part, and that the Defendant had not kept the Articles and Covenants on his Part; and in particular the Plaintiff avers, that he and one R. M. of, &c. post confession præd' scripti articulo præd' & ante præd' 17 diem Novem' in eodem scripto articulo mentionat' scil' 16 die ejusdem mensis Novemb' (eodem Roberto Markham) possessionat' existen' de & in tenementis & præmissis præd' pro resid' duorum terminorum annorum reversione inde præfat' Will'o Chaloner (le Plaintiff) & hæredibus suis spectan' apud S. præd' quandam indenturam suam barganiæ & venditionis de tenementis ac præmissis præd' in scripto articulo præd' mentionat' fecer' & sigillaver' & ut facta sua indentur' ill' ad' usum ipsius Thomæ Davis adtunc & ibid. deliberavere per quam quidem indentur' præd' Willielmus Chaloner & Robertus pro & in consideratione separat' Sum of 5 s. &c. eidem W. M. in Consideration of 5 s. (and so recites the Release); and the Plaintiff avers, that he was then and there ready, and offered semperque postea fuit & adhuc paratus existit ad custagia ipsius Thomæ (le Defendant) facer' & procurare fier' aliquam aliam conveyanciam de tenementis & præmissis præd' secundum formam articulo præd' : And further avers, that the Defendant postea scil' præd' 17 die Novem' apud S. præd' de præmissis notitiam habuit. Et inde, &c. On Demurrer these Exceptions were taken to this Declaration :

1 Except. That the Execution of the Conveyance ought to precede the Payment of the Money, and then if the Plaintiff hath not sufficiently shewed that he had executed such Conveyance, he hath not well intitled himself to the Action, and the Execution of the Conveyance ought to precede the Payment of the Money: And it was said by the Defendant's Counsel, that by the Articles no Day certain was appointed for the Payment of the Money; but this by Agreement of the Parties was to be reduced to a Certainty by the Act of the Plaintiff, viz. the Execution of the Conveyance: By the Articles the Conveyance was to be made upon or before the 17th of November then next ensuing; and, as it seems, if the Plaintiff had executed a Conveyance before this Day, he might have brought an Action for the Money immediately after, by which it is proved the Duty accrues to the Plaintiff after the Execution of the Conveyance, and not before. If the Covenant had been to convey the Lands on a certain Day, then there had been some Colour that the Words, Tempore executionis & in consideratione inde, &c. should refer to the said Day, and not to the Execution of the Conveyance; and yet in such Case it hath been adjudged, that the Payment of the Money should refer to the Act to be done, as was in the Case of Elwick and Cudworth, Lut. and so the Case of Sbales and Seignoret, Intr. 10 W. 3. B. R. where the Plaintiff covenants with the Defendant to transfer to the Defendant 400 l. in the Bank-Stock; and the Defendant covenants that he would accept it, and that he, Tempore translationis inde, would pay so much to the Plaintiff; and in an Action on the Breach of this Covenant, the Plaintiff declares that he had given Notice to the Defendant, that he at such a Day and Place would transfer, &c. and appointed the Defendant to be there, &c. which he had refused, and the Breach was assigned in Non-payment of the Money; but upon Demurrer, Judgment was given for the Defendant; for that it appears by the Plaintiff's own shewing that there was not any Transfer, and so no Money was due: The Opinion of the Court was, that the Execution of the Conveyance was to precede the Payment of the Money.

And as to the Point of Pleading the Execution of the Conveyance, it was not well pleaded, for that upon the whole Matter there was a Surrender of the Interest of Markham to the Plaintiff, and by Consequence the Lease for a Year was only the Lease of the Plaintiff, and then the Plaintiff ought to have declared upon the Truth of his Cause, according to the Operation of Law, upon all the Matter of Fact of the Case, which not being done, the Declaration for this is ill; and these Cases were cited to prove it, 2 Saund. 96. Noy 66. Mod. 14. 7 Co. 24. 2 Vent. 149, 260, 266. And the Opinion of the Court was, that for this the Declaration was ill; for it was said, Tenant for Years may not make make a Lease within the Statute of Uses, and by this Means to give Possession to the Defendant to make him capable of a Release of the Reversion.

<sup>2</sup> Except. to the Declaration, That by the Articles the Plaintiff was to seal and execute to the Defendant and his Assigns a good and sufficient Assurance, &c. and the Declaration is, that he sealed and delivered to the Use of the Defendant a Lease and Release, which is not a sufficient Averment of Performance of the Covenant in this Respect, for Peradventure they were delivered to him who would not deliver them to the Defendant, and the Defendant had not any Means to compel the Delivery to him, because the Plaintiff has not mentioned any Person to whom he delivered them; and for this Exception these Cases were cited, Noy 18. <sup>4</sup> Leon. Case 48. Cro. Car. 143.

<sup>4</sup> Except. The Covenant is, that the Declaration shall pay the Money upon the Execution of the Conveyance at the House of Sir Francis Child, &c. and the Declaration is, that he has not paid secundum formam & effectum articulorum, which is not good Pleading: For there being a Time and Place appointed for the Payment, it ought to be alledged, that the Money was not paid at such Time and Place. <sup>2</sup> Keb. 874. was cited as to this Exception. Vide Lev. 145. <sup>3</sup> Lev. 293. Cro. Car. 281. <sup>2</sup> Mod. 268. Cro. Car. 5. But no Resolution of the Court was upon these three last Exceptions. Judgment was given pro Defendant. Lut. 565.

A Man by Deed indented bargained and sold Lands to another in Fee, and covenanted by the same Deed to make him a good and sufficient Estate in the said Lands before Christmas next, and afterwards before Christmas the Bargainor acknowledged the Deed, and the same is inrolled. Per Cur', By the Act the Covenant is not performed, for he ought to have levied a Fine, or made a Feoffment. <sup>3</sup> Leon. 1.

The Condition or Covenant is to make an Estate of Inheritance to the Obligee or Covenantor at such a Day and Place: The Defendant pleads, he was ready at the Day and Place to make it, &c. Plaintiff demurs. Per Cur', The Plea is ill, he ought to give Notice what Estate of Inheritance he would make him. Style 61. Allen 24. <sup>5</sup> Co. 22.

In Covenant on Articles to pay upon St. Thomas's Day, the Plaintiff making a good Estate, and licet the Plaintiff had performed though Defendant did not. Defendant pleads, ready to pay and Tender, and that the Plaintiff made no Assurance. The Plaintiff replied, that he sealed a Feoffment, and the Defendant neglected to take Seisin. Defendant demurs, because here is no sufficient Averment without Notice of the Character made, and when and how he will execute it; for he making a good Estate, is a Condition precedent to the Payment; which the Court agreed; and where a precedent Condition is expressed, it must be averred in the Declaration, and a Licet the Party had performed all on his Part, is not sufficient. Judgment pro Defendant. <sup>2</sup> Keb. 801. Ventr. 147.

If a Man is bound to make a good, absolute and perfect Assurance in Fee of Copyhold Lands, or others, it must not only be an absolute but an effectual Conveyance. If a Man be bound to surrender a Copyhold to the Use of A. and his Heirs, on Consideration of Money; if he surrenders into the Tenant's Hands, he must get it presented, for it must be an effectual Surrender: As if a Man be bound to make a Feoffment to me upon Request, if I request him to make a Deed of Feoffment, with Letter of Attorney to B. to make Livery to me, and he doth so; this is a good Inception; yet if Livery be not made, it is a Forfeiture of the Condition. Roll. Abr. 425.

If one of the Parties covenants to assure Lands, and the other, in Consideration of the same Covenant performed, covenants to pay a Sum of Money, he is not obliged to pay the Money until the Lands are assured. <sup>2</sup> Saund. 156. But otherwise it is if the Covenant had been in Consideration of the Covenant to be performed. Ibid. and Brocas's Case, <sup>3</sup> Leon. Case 290.

If a Man makes a Feoffment to the Use of A. for Life, Remainder to B. for Life, Remainder to C. in Fee; if A. refuses, B. shall take the Estate presently, because it is a Transmutation of Estate. But in Covenant to raise Uses, the Consideration which raises every several Use is also several, and all the Uses grow out of the Covenantor's Estate; And therefore if A. refuses, the next in Remainder shall not take presently, but the Covenantor shall retain it. Co. 154.

And

And where a bad Title was sold with Covenant for further Assurance, and afterwards the Vendee purchased a good Title, and was decreed to confirm, &c. See 2 Chan. Ca. 212.

One in Consideration of Marriage settles Land upon himself for Life, Remainder to his intended Wife for Life, Remainder to the Heirs of his Body on his Wife to be begotten, Remainder to his own right Heirs; and in the Deed of Settlement there is a Covenant with the Trustees, from the intended Husband, for himself and his Heirs, that he will not discontinue, dock or suffer a Recovery to bar the Limitations in the Settlement, but that the Issue of the Marriage shall enjoy and hold the Premises pursuant to the said Limitation. The Marriage takes Effect, and they have Issue a Daughter, who marries the Plaintiff, and to whom her Father, who made the Settlement and Covenant, gave a considerable Portion. The Father afterwards suffers a Recovery to the Use of himself and his Heirs, and then devises the Land in Trust for his said Daughter for Life, Remainder to her first, &c. Son in Tail Male; and if the Daughter survived the Husband, to the Daughter in Fee; but if the Daughter should die first, then the Remainder over; and dies. Husband and Wife bring a Bill for a specific Performance of the Covenant, and it was held that A. being Tenant in Tail, and as such having a Power to suffer a Recovery, the Lands devised shall not be effected though the Covenant was good to bind the Assets; and such Covenant being at first accepted, Equity ought not to vary or alter it. Will. 104, 461.

By Agreement between the Plaintiff and the Testator of the Defendant, a Parcel of Land was to be sold for 400*l.* but if it did not arise to so much, then they covenanted with each other to repay proportionably to the Abatement; and the Defendant's Testator covenants for himself and his Executors to pay his Proportion to the Plaintiffs, so as the Plaintiff gave him Notice in Writing by the Space of ten Days, but saith not such Notice was given to his Executors or Administrators. On Oyer of the Indenture, there was a Variance between the Covenant (which was for Notice to be given to the Testator) and this Declaration, by which Notice is averred to be given to the Executor, and so a Demurrer. Per Cur', This is no material Variance, because the Covenant runs in Interest and Charge, and so the Executor is bound to pay, and therefore it is necessary that he should have Notice: But the Declaration was nought for another Reason; they had not declared that this Notice was given in Writing, and that he gave Notice secundum formam & effectum conditionis, which was not good. 2 Mod. 268.

According to

In Consideration the Plaintiff had promised to pay the Defendant 700*l.* for the Reversion of a Manor, the Defendant covenanted to seal the Instrument for the Assurance of it with Warranty, &c. according to the Draughts between them before agreed; and though the Defendant tendered to him the first of March the Instrument written, secundum traditiones præd', and the third of March requested him to seal them, yet he had not sealed them, nor conveyed the Reversion of the Manor; after Verdict pro Quer', moved in Arrest of Judgment.

1. That he ought to shew the Instruments to the Court, that they might judge of them; to which it was answered and resolved, the Instruments were agreed before, and therefore he need not shew them to the Court.

2. He doth not shew that he tendered him Wax, Pen, Ink, &c. as he ought; to which it was answered and resolved, there needs no Tender, for the Defendant had taken upon him to do it.

3. The Request is not well made, being at another Time, not when the Tender was; but it was resolved the Tender after the the Request was the better; for so he had Time to read them and consider them.

And by Windham Justice, Where Conveyances are before agreed, and to be sealed according to the Agreement, so that there is not any Need of Counsel, the Defendant is to do it at his Peril; and where one is to grant a Reversion, he had Time to do it at any Time during his Life, if it so long continues a Reversion, if he be not hastened by Request. Here is a Request, and the Conveyance being agreed, no Tender need to be; but if one be to seal a Conveyance generally, there the Counsel of the Purchaser is intended to draw them, and then the Purchaser ought to tender them. Lev. 44. Keb. 122.

If a Covenant be to assure certain Lands to such Person as the Covenantee shall name, and after he assures this to the Covenantee himself; this is a good Performance of the Covenant.

venant, though it be not alledged that he named himself, for this Acceptance is a Nomination of himself. M. 13 Jac. Housy and Wild.

Condition of a Bond was, that if the Plaintiff shall seal to the Defendant a good and sufficient Usual Covenants. Conveyance in the Law of his Lands in Jamaica, with usual Covenants, as by the Defendant's Counsel shall be advised, then if the Defendant should thereupon pay, &c. After Oyer of the Condition, the Defendant pleads, that Mr. W. a Counsellor at Law, did advise a Deed of Bargain and Sale from the Plaintiff to the Defendant, with the usual Covenants, of all his Lands in Jamaica, and tendered the Conveyance to the Plaintiff, who refused to seal the same. Plaintiff demurs.

1. Because the Defendant hath not shewed the Conveyance, and an Affirmative Plea ought to be particular: As to plead generally exoneravit, is not good, but it must be shewed how. Cro. Jac. 165, 359, 363. Sid. 106. Cro. Car. 383. 2 Leon. 214.

2. The Matter of the Condition consists of Law and Fact, and both ought to be set out. The preparing of the Deed is Matter of Fact, and the Reasonableness and Validity thereof is Matter in Law, and the Court must judge of it.

3. The Plea is that the Indenture had the usual Covenants, but doth not set them forth. But per Cur', The Plea is good; for if the Defendant had set forth the whole Deed verbalim, yet because the Lands are in Jamaica, and the Covenants are intended such as are usual there, the Court cannot judge of them, but they must be tried by the Jury. He hath set forth, the Conveyance was by Deed of Bargain and Sale, which is well enough; and so if it had been by Grants, for Lands in Jamaica pass by Grant, and need no Livery and Seisin. If any Covenants were unreasonable and not usual, they are to be shewed on the other Side. Judgment pro Defendant. 2 Mod. 239, 240.

One covenants to make such Assurance as the Plaintiff's Counsel shall advise, and he pleads Such Assurance as Performance of Covenants, he cannot afterwards say, Concilium non dedit advisamentum. Cro. Eliz. 822. Grantee or his Counsel shall advise.

If I am bound to make you such Assurance as J. S. shall devise, I am bound at my Peril to procure Notice; but If I am bounden to make such Assurance as your Counsel shall devise, there Notice ought to be given to me. Leon. 105.

If a Man covenants to make such reasonable Assurance as Counsel shall advise; usual Covenants may be put in; for the Covenant shall be so understood; but there must not be a Warranty in it. Mod. Rep. 67.

A Covenant to make such Assurance as shall be reasonably devised, must be of such Assurance as differs not from the Bargain. Hob. 275.

In a Declaration on a Covenant to make such good and lawful Estate and Assurance in the Law, as by the Plaintiff's Counsel learned in the Law shall be advised. Plaintiff says, that J. S. was of his learned Counsel, and advised such a Conveyance, and that the Plaintiff gave Notice to the Defendant of the Advice, and requested him to perform: Whether this Advice of Counsel ought to be given to the Man who was to make the Conveyance, or to him for whom it was to be made; and adjudged that it must be given to him for whom the Conveyance is to be made, and he is to give Notice thereof to the Party who is to make it.

If a Covenant be to make such Assurance to the Covenantee as the Covenantee shall advise, and after the Covenantee devises an Indenture, and tenders it to him, and he requires Time to shew it to his Counsel to advise with, which the other denies to him, yet if he seals it not presently, the Condition is broken. 2 Co. 3.

A. covenants with B. to make such reasonable Assurance to B. in Fee of such Land, reserving to A. and his Heirs 20l. Rent per Ann. as Counsel shall advise; and after B. tenders to A. a Deed Poll, by which A. shall enfeof B. of Land in Fee, reserving the said Rent to A. in Fee: This is not any such reasonable Assurance to bind A. to seal it, for this is a Rent-seck, and the Deed belongs to the Feoffee, and then A. without the Deed cannot have any Remedy for the Rent, it ought to have been a Feoffment by Indenture, rendering Rent. Roll. Abr. 423.

If one be bound to make to a Man a sure, sufficient and lawful Estate in certain Lands by Advice of J. D. if he makes an Estate to him according to the Advice of J. D. be it sufficient or not, lawful or not lawful, yet he is excused of the Obligation. 5 Co. 23. b.

A Lease was made for Life by B. and F. and the Covenant was, that he should make such reasonable Assurance as the Counsel of the Lessee should advise. The Counsel advised a Fine with Warranty by B. and F. with Warranty against the Husband and his Heirs, it was moved it was not a reasonable Assurance, because the Warranty did reach to other Land; but the Court over-ruled it, and said it is the ordinary Course in every Fine to have a Warranty, and the Party may rebut the Warranty. Godb. 435.

Covenant to assure such Land by reasonable Assurance, as by the Plaintiff shall be advised and required; who devised and required an Indenture of Feoffment, with Covenant Reasonable Assurance.

to save and discharge him of all Incumbrances made by the Defendant, and for further Assurance, and for not sealing this Assurance the Action is brought. Per Cur', On Demurrer to the Declaration, though these Covenants are ordinary and reasonable, yet the Agreement not being to make it with reasonable Covenants, but only reasonable Assurance, he is not bound to seal it, for it is not any Part of the Assurance, and an Assurance may be without Covenants. Cro. Jac. 571. T. Raym. 190. & Sid. 467. Quere.

Articles of Agreement, whereby the Plaintiff covenanted to make an Assurance by a Day of Lands, as the Counsel of the Defendant shall advise, and on Perfecting thereof the Defendant is to pay 300*l.* and 300*l.* at a Day after. The Defendant pleads, the Plaintiff had not at the Time of the Covenant, or after, any Right or Estate. Plaintiff demurs. Per Twisden, He may demur, for though the Plaintiff has no Estate, yet if he be required to convey, and doth not then do it by the Time, the Covenant is broken, for the Estate of the Covenantor may be in Trust; sed Cur' contra. This is good in Action by the Defendant for Non-assurance; but here the Action is for the Money, and so the Defendant hath Election to plead as here, or that he tendered special Conveyance by Advice, and the Plaintiff refused; and the manifest Intent of the Parties is not to pay any Money but upon Assurance. Keb. 734, 756.

Covenant to make such Assurance as Counsel shall devise; they say they tendered a Lease and Release devised by Counsel, and sets it forth with the usual Covenants, and with a Warranty: Usual Covenants may be put in, but not a Warranty. Mod. 67. Vide 2 Keb. 685. T. Raym. 190.

Covenant to make such Assurance as Counsel of, &c. shall devise; and the Defendant by Advice of Counsel demands a Release with Warranty. Per Cur', This is not any Assurance, but a Means to recover in Value. Leon. 130.

If A. covenants to make such Assurance for the Payment of 100*l.* to B. as his Counsel shall devise, and his Counsel devises that A. shall make an Obligation of 1000*l.* for the Payment of 100*l.* he ought to perform it; aliter if the Covenant had been to make such reasonable Assurance. Roll. Abr. 423.

A Man covenants to make such Assurance as the Counsel of the other shall devise; and the Counsel adviseth that he shall be bound in a certain Obligation that the other shall occupy the Lands peaceably; he is not bound to perform it, for this is not any Assurance within the Intent of the Covenant. Per Cur', But if a Man be bound to do such Acts for the Assurance of the Manor of B. as the Counsel of the other shall devise, and the Counsel deviseth that he shall make an Obligation or Statute that the other shall enjoy it, he ought to perform it, otherwise he hath broken his Covenant.

If a Man covenants to make such Assurance as the Counsel of the Covenantor shall devise, of an Annuity of 30*l.* and of 200*l.* in Monies; and the Counsel deviseth that he shall make an Obligation, by which he shall oblige himself, his Heirs and Executors, to pay to the other the Annuity, and also 200*l.* at certain Days; he is not bound to perform it, for this Obligation is not any Assurance of the Annuity.

A Covenant is to make to the Covenantor, or his Assigns, as good a Lease as Counsel may advise; and that after the Obligee comes to the Obligor and appoints him to make a Lease to J. S. he ought to do it, although no Counsel adviseth it but the Obligee himself; for by the Words it is not necessary to have the Advice of Counsel, but only that the Lease may be made so good as Counsel may advise.

If the Condition or Covenant be to make such Assurance in Law of certain Lands to the Covenantor or Obligee, as by the Counsel of the Covenantor, upon Request made, shall be advised; and after J. S. was of Counsel of the Covenantor, and gives his Advice to the Covenantor, that the Covenantor shall make a certain Assurance; and the Covenantor gives Notice to the Covenantor of the said Advice, and requires him to perform it: He ought to perform it, for it is more convenient that the Counsel shall give the Advice to the Covenantor than the Covenantor, for that the Covenantor doth not know whether he be of Counsel in this Matter, for he may be of Counsel in one Thing and not in another. 5 Co. 51. b.

If the Condition or Covenant is to make such Assurance to the Obligee or Covenantor as the Obligee or Covenantor shall devise, and after the Covenantor deviseth an Indenture, and tenders this to him, and he requires Time to shew it to his Counsel, he must seal it presently, for the Covenant is peremptory. And. 122. Case 117. Roll. Abr. 424. 2 Co. 3.

Defendant covenanted to seal such a Conveyance of an Estate as Counsel should advise; and the Breach assigned was, that the Defendant did not seal such Conveyance as his Counsel advised; whereas the Plaintiff ought to have said, That his Counsel advised such Conveyance, and the Defendant refused to seal it; and after Verdict upon Non est factum, Pollexfen pro Quer: It shall be intended the Covenantor's and not the Plaintiff's Counsel, because the Covenantor hath none of the Deeds which made the Title, and so cannot advise any Conveyance. Holt contra, It is a vain Construction to say, that the Counsel shall be intended to be the Defendant's Counsel; surely they will be ruled by the Defendant, and then the Plaintiff will be in a very bad Condition: And he cited 5 Co. 19, 20. Roswell's Case; and Allen and Wedgwood, Bridgman's Reports. But Judgment was given, that the Defendant, who had the Deeds, ought to have produced his Title to the Counsel, and to have given Notice thereof to the Plaintiff. Hayward and Gee, Pasch. 4 Jac. 2. B. R.

A Covenant to make an Assignment according to an Agreement between him and the Defendant, and as Counsel should advise, (and says not what Counsel); an Action was brought for Non-performance, and moved that the Plaintiff's Counsel should give the Advice, because he is the Person interested. Answered, that the Defendant had also an Interest, for it is an Advantage to him to make the Assignment for the Saving of his Covenant. But it had been otherwise, had it been to make such Conveyance as Counsel should advise; for that the Person to whom the Covenant is made may chuse whether he will have a Feoffment, Release or Confirmation; and then the Counsel shall advise what Sort of Conveyance is proper. But here it is to make such Assignment as the Parties had agreed upon. 3 Mod. 191, 192.

In Action of Covenant, which was to make such an Assignment to the Plaintiff, according to an Agreement made between him and the Defendant, as Counsel should advise. The Question was, If the Plaintiff's or Defendant's Counsel shall give the Advice? It seems his Counsel shall advise to whom the Covenant is to be made. Bulst. 160.

A Covenant to make such Estate to the Plaintiff as his Counsel shall advise, and saith, Concilium non dedit advisamentum: It was a Quære, whether he ought not to say, Concilium nullum dedit advisamentum; but now it is settled a good Plea, 11 H. 7. 23. a. 6 H. 7. 4. and he needs not alledge what Persons were of his Counsel, and that they gave no Advice, for the Plea is in the Negative: But if he pleads his Counsel gave to him such Advice, he ought to plead what Persons were of his Counsel; then the Replication was, that J. W. was of the Plaintiff's Counsel, and no more, and he gave such Advice, &c. which Advise ment the Plaintiff notified to the Defendant: Issue on the Advice. 6 Hen. 7. 4.

The Defendant covenanted, that whereas the King had granted the Office of Aulnegeor to the Duke of Lenox, who had made the Plaintiff his Deputy for seven Years, of all Places except Colchester; that the Defendant covenanted with them, whereas the said Duke had made a Deputation of that Office in Colchester for two Years, he would procure a Deputation to them for seven Years in the same Manner as Everden had it, Proviso that they, upon the making thereof, should give Security for the Payment of 100*l.* per Ann. Rent for it, and Performance of Covenants; and they alledged that they were always ready to give Security for the Rent, and the Defendant had not procured the Deputation. Defendant demurs: 1. Because they do not alledge Performance of the Promise, but only a Readiness to have given Security; sed non allocat'; for they need not give Security till Deputation made, and the Non-performance of the Promise ought to come on the other Part. 2. Because it is not shewed that they required a Deputation to be made, and the Quality how the other was made, nor in facto that there was any Deputation made to Everden; sed non allocat'; for the Covenants mention that there was a Deputation, and he is estopped to say the contrary; and at his Peril he ought to procure such a one to the Plaintiff as the other was, and that the Defendant ought to procure it immediately after the two Years expired, that the Plaintiff might not lose the Profits thereof after they were due. 3. Because they shewed not the Breach according to the usual Form. Et sic non tenuit conventionem in hoc, &c. Sed per Cur', There being a Breach thereof sufficiently alledged, they need not make a Repetition. Cro. Jac. 297.

In Covenant to convey Land to make and suffer, &c. all and every such reasonable Act and Acts, Thing and Things, whatsoever they be, for the good and lawful Assuring and sure Making of the Manor of S. to J. S. and his Heirs, &c. and the Breach assigned was, that he requested the Defendant, Quod ipse conveyaret & assuraret manerium de S. to J. S. &c. It is sufficiently assigned, for the Defendant ought to have done this upon Request by Feoffment, or some Kind of Assurance; and if after the Plaintiff request a Fine, the Defendant ought to acknowledge it also, and so upon every several Request; but he is not bound to give any Obligation or Recognizance, which is collateral Security. Yelv. 44, 45. Moor 682. Brownl. 84.

Whereas B. per another Indenture had assigned to C. a Messuage, &c. Now this Indenture witnesseth, that R. covenants that he or his Brother would deliver to C. or in his Absence to E. at his Shop, a Tarrier of the Premises, and of the Verity of this, ad optimam eorum peritiam, upon Request made to them by C. would take their Oath before a Master of the Chancery, and also would deliver to one W. safely to be kept, to the Use of the said B. and C. the original Demise whereof he then had Copy, &c. Though in this Case they are not bound to make Oath without Request, yet they are to deliver the original Demise ans Request, for the Request refers not to this, but the first, as appears by the Request amongst the Covenants, and not in the Beginning or End. 2 Roll. Abr. 250.

W. covenants for himself, his Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, within seven Years, upon Request, to convey to the Plaintiff a Copyhold Estate: W. dies, a Request must be made to his Executors; though W. was seised in Fee, the Executors are bound to see it done. 2 Bulst. 158.

Covenant to make a Lease of so many Rooms upon Request, and the Covenantor prostrated Part, the Plaintiff did not aver in his Count, that he requested the Defendant to make him a Lease; but it seems not to be necessary, the Defendant having disabled himself by the Prostration of the Buildings. Lut. 308.

If A. covenants with B. upon reasonable Request to him made by B. to surrender certain Land and all his Interest in it to B. and also to permit B. to take the Profits of the Land; in this Case the Request doth not go to the taking of the Profits, but only to the Surrender, so that he is bound to suffer him to take the Profits without Request, although there is but one Word that goes to the Whole. 2 Roll. Abr. 248, 249.

The Condition was, to make Assurance of certain Lands to the Obligee before the tenth of March 17 Eliz. and if it fortunes that the Obligee refuse to accept the Assurance, and shall make Request to have 100*l.* in Satisfaction of it; then if upon such Request within five Months after he pay the 100*l.* that then, &c. and at the Day he refused the Assurance, and afterwards, 27 Eliz. he maketh Request to have the 100*l.* The Question was upon Demurrer, whether this Request was sufficient for the Time? Per Cur', A Request at any Time during his Life is good, and he is not restrained to make it at or before the Day the Assurance was to be made. Judgment pro Quer'. Cro. Eliz. 136. Leon. 185.

Covenant or Condition before Michaelmas to make, acknowledge and suffer, &c. all and every such reasonable Acts and Things, whatsoever they be, for the lawful Assuring, sure Making, of the Manor of D. to J. S. and his Heirs. Defendant pleads, that before Michaelmas the Plaintiff rationabiliter non requisivit le Defendant ad faciend', &c. aliqua rationabilia actum & acta quæ forent pro bona & legitima assurantia of a Manor. Plaintiff replies, quod such a Day before Michaelmas he requested the Defendant, quod ipse conveyaret & assuraret manerium de D. to J. S. secundum tenorem conditionis (conventionis) præd': found pro Quer'. Moved in Arrest, that no sufficient Breach was found, for the Plaintiff ought to have required an Assurance in certain, viz. Feoffment, Fine, &c. The Condition being special, all and every Act, &c. sed non allocatur; the Issue is good, and the Condition is broken, for by the Condition the Defendant is to do all and every Act whatsoever; so that if the Plaintiff request a Fine, &c. then when the Plaintiff requested to convey the Manor in Generalty, the Defendant ought at his Peril to do it by some Kind of Assurance; and if he makes a Feoffment, yet if after the Plaintiff request a Fine, &c. he must do it. Yelv. 44. Brownl. 84. Moor 682.

Tender.

An Assurance ought to be drawn according to the Covenant; it was agreed 22 Jan. 28 Eliz. That the Defendant should make an Indenture of Bargain and Sale of all the Lands which the Defendant then had in Yarmouth, and on 14 Sept. 29 Eliz. the Plaintiff tendered to the Defendant an Indenture of Bargain and Sale of all the said Lands which he then had in Yarmouth, Habend' to him and his Heirs, secundum conclusionem & agreementum præd'; which the Defendant refused to seal. The Indenture of Bargain and Sale is not warranted by the Agreement, because it may be he had other Lands on the 14th of Sept. 39 Eliz. than he had at the Time of the Agreement, so needs not to seal it, though in Truth he had not any more Lands; though Popham said he had more Lands: He ought to have shewed it. Cro. Eliz. 660.

If the Assurance drawn agrees in Substance with the Covenants, though they vary in Words, it is not material; as if it were covenanted to assure all his Lands in D. and the Assurance is drawn by particular Names, it is good. Ibid.

First Act.

If A. leases to B. for twenty-one Years, and covenants at any Time during the Life of B. upon Surrender of the old Lease, to make a new Lease for the Residue of the Term, and after A. leases to a Stranger: Though B. by the Words of the Indenture ought to do the first Act, viz. make a Surrender, yet because A. has disabled himself to make a new Lease, B. shall not be obliged to surrender his old Lease without Possibility of a new Lease, but may bring Covenant without making any Surrender. 5 Co. 20, 21.

So if a Man covenants to enfeof J. S. upon Request, and after enfeoffs another, J. S. may have Covenant without Request. 5 Co. 21. a.

A Covenantor covenanted with the Covenantee, that he at the Costs of the Covenantee would assure such Lands to him before such a Day; the Covenantor ought to do the first Act, viz. to give Notice what Assurance he will make, so as the other may know what Costs he is to tender; aliter if he covenants to make some certain Assurance, as Fine, Feoffment, &c.

Et c. Cro. Eliz. 517. Owen 157. Moor 157. 5 Co. 22. And it is all one when the Covenant is general and when it is particular; as to make a Feoffment, the Covenantor ought to do the first Act there if he will have it by Parol or Indenture.

One covenants to make an Estate in Fee at the Costs of the Covenantor; the Covenantor is to do the first Act, viz. to let him know what Conveyance he will make: So Twisford and Buckley's Case, upon an Indenture of Covenants, wherein one of the Parties did covenant to make a Lease for the Life of the Covenantor, and for two other Lives as he should name, and the Covenantor was to give Possession. The Breach assigned was, that the Defendant had not made Livery and Seisin, and upon Performance pretended, the Plaintiff did demur, and upon great Debate, it was resolved that the Covenant was not broken, for that the Plaintiff had not done that which was first to be performed on his Part, viz. to name the Lives. 2 Mod. 75.

Covenant or Statute with Defeasance, to make such good Assurance of an House to W. with such Covenants which he should accept and signify under his Hand to be reasonable, or should pay to him before the first of August 3501. He surmisseth he was always ready to make the Assurance, and that the said W. had not signified what Assurance he would accept, nor required any. Per Cur', He is not bound to devise any Assurance or Estate; but it is in his Election to accept an Estate tendered, or the Money, and there cannot be an Acceptance but where there is a Tender on the other Party, and therefore the other Party ought to have devised the Estate, and procured W. to accept thereof, otherwise he ought to pay the Money. Cro. Eliz. 718.

A Condition or Covenant to make a sufficient Lease to the Oblige or Covenantor before such Costs a Day, the same to be made at the Costs of the Oblige: It is a good Plea, that the Plaintiff did not tender the Costs to him, and if then, that he was ready. Moor, pl. 72.

If the Assurances are to be made at the Costs of him to whom they ought to be made, he may require the Assurance to be made by Parcels; aliter when the Covenantor is to be at the Charges: Yet there, if the Party requires an Assurance of Parcel, the Covenantor must do it, but then he is discharged from making any Assurance of that which remains. Cro. Eliz. 681.

When I am obliged that J. S. who is a Stranger, shall levy a Fine to the Oblige, the Oblige is bound to sue forth a Writ of Covenant, for it is no Reason to compel the Obligor, who is a Stranger to the Estate that passeth by a Fine, to sue a Writ of Covenant; but if I am obliged to you that J. S. shall levy a Fine to J. N. in such Case the Fine ought to be levied at my Peril though J. N. will not sue a Writ of Covenant. Winch 29.

If one covenants generally to levy a Fine of Lands, he is not bound thereby to go before Commissioners by Dedimus. Stile's Praet. Reg. 75.

A covenants at the Costs of B. to assure him such Lands before such a Day; the Day was past, and no Assurance tendered by the Covenantor, nor Costs by the Covenantor: The Covenantor is to make the Assurance, and that may be what he pleaseth, by Fine, Feoffment, Et c. and therefore he ought to notify his Readiness to do it, and what he will do, so as the other may know what Cost to tender: But if he had covenanted to make some certain Assurance, as Fine, Feoffment, Recovery, Et c. aliter. Cro. Eliz. 517. pl. 42. The Covenantor ought to do the first Act, viz. notify to the Covenantor what Estate he will make, so that the Covenantor may know what Sum to tender, and it is all one whether the Covenant is general or particular, as to make a Feoffment. Moor 457. 5 Co. 22. b.

A Covenant was, that the Covenantor would make such Assurance before such a Day to the Covenantor, at the Covenantor's Charge (but there was no Request mentioned in the Covenant on either Part): Here the Obligor hath his Election of what Manner of Assurance he will make, and then the Oblige is to provide the Costs for it. Moor 454.

Thirdly, To save harmless and indemnified.

A Man sold his Land, and covenants to save the Vendee harmless on Request: It was said, if the Land be extended by Force of a Statute before the Request, the Covenant is not broken, for that now the Covenant is become impossible by the Negligence of the Covenantor himself. Moor 67.

A Covenant was, that the Covenantor, his Heirs and Assigns, shall and may lawfully enjoy and hold a Messuage, &c. without the Let, &c. of the Covenantor or his Heirs, or of every other Person discharged, or upon reasonable Request, saved harmless by the said Covenantor from all former Gifts. Defendant pleads, no Request was made to save him harmless. Judgment pro Quer', because the Defendant hath not answered to all the Covenants, viz. to the enjoying of the Lands; for there were two Covenants, the enjoying and saving harmless. Moor 591. pl. 797.

A Covenant was, whereas J. F. claimed to have a Lease for Years of the Manor of Dale, made to him by W. that the Defendant would keep without Damage from all Claim and Interest to be challenged by I. F. de tempore in tempus, during the Years, &c. The Defendant pleaded, that after the making of the Obligation until the Action brought the Plaintiff was not damaged Ratione dimissionis: The Plea is good, for if he were not damaged Ratione dimissionis, then he was not damaged by Reason of any Claim or Interest. 3 Lev. 118.

Covenant was brought upon Indenture of Lease for nine Years, dated 1 June 16 Car. 2. which was to save the Plaintiff harmless of all Ejections during the Term; and the Breach assigned was Ejection, 26 June 16 Car. 2. Defendant pleads, that the said Deed was Primo Deliberat 1 July 17 Car. 2. which was after the Breach assigned; and pleads further, that the Plaintiff was not ejected after the Delivery of the Deed; upon which the Plaintiff demurs. Et per Cur', These Words during the Term in Computation, and not only from the Time of the Delivery of the Deed, when it commenceth in Point of Interest; and so Judgment given for the Plaintiff. Sid. 374. Cro. Jac. 263.

Covenant to save harmless and indemnify the Plaintiff and his Lands in Sale from an annual Rent of such a Lease during the said Term. Defendant pleads, Quod a tempore consecution' scrip' prad' hucusq; exoneravit & conservavit the Plaintiff and all his said Lands from the said Rent; Et hoc, &c. Plaintiff demurs, he ought to shew Quomodo exoneravit, it being a Plea in the Affirmative; had he pleaded Non damnificat', it had been good. Cro. Jac. 634.

In Debt on Bond to save harmless from lawful Ejection; Dower being recovered after Bar by Fine and Non-claim, without Exception to it, which might have been taken: It was held no lawful Ejection, and so the Defendant found Not guilty, for the Plaintiff must sufficiently intitle himself. Keb. 379.

Covenant to save harmless from Suits and lawful Ejections. Defendant pleads Performance. Plaintiff replies, that J. S. took out a Writ of Hab' fac' possession' out of B. R. Debito modo execut'; and by Virtue thereof entered on the Possession of the Plaintiff, and did expel and amove him. Defendant demurs; Judgment pro Defendant. Debito modo is not sufficient without shewing Particulars: Contra in the Spiritual Court; as in Debt for Rent to say A. did demand debito modo, it is ill; the Hab' fac' possession' doth always recite the Term of the Judgment, and that must at least be shewed, but not the Title of him that ejected. Per Windham, 1 Keb. 379, 413. Lev. 83.

In Consideration of a Promise of 7l. per Ann. for five Years, the Defendant promised to save harmless against all; but P. the Plaintiff shewed, that one M. entered: Here is no Lease as there was in the Cases of Brocham and Cham, and Gotier's Case, Dyer 328. Hob 35. And so no lawful Title of Entry need to be shewed, the Debate not being concerning the Title, but only concerning the Occupation. 3 Keb. 755. 2 Lev. 194.

If a Man enters into a Bond with another for his Debt, with Condition to pay Money at a Day, and the Principal assumes to discharge and save him harmless from the said Obligation, and after he does not pay the Money at the Day, by which the Bond is forfeited, and the Surety to avoid Suits pays the Money: He may have an Action on the Case against the Principal, for the Assumpsit is broke; and the Court said it is a stronger Case by Reason of the Word Discharge. H. 14 Jac. B. R. Roll. Abr. 433. But,

If a Lessee of a Term, rendering Rent, assigns it to B. and B. covenants to keep A. without Damage of all Rents payable to the Lessor, and after B. lets Parcel of the Land to A. and after the Hay of A. is there distrained for Rent in Arrear, yet the Covenant is not broken, for that the Distress for the Hay is unlawful, and a Trespass, and the Sufferance of the Rent to be in Arrear without actual Damages, is no Breach of the Covenant. Roll. Abr. 433.

If A. and B. are bound in an Obligation to perform certain Covenants contained in an Indenture, whereof one is to pay certain Monies, and C. covenants with A. and B. to save them harmless of all Things contained in the said Indenture, and after the Money is not paid according to the Indenture, whereby the Obligation is forfeited; yet it seems C. is not bound to save them harmless from the Bond, for it is a Thing collateral to the Indenture. Mic. 5 Jac. Scot and Pope v. Griffin.

Condition of a Bond, reciting, that whereas the Plaintiff and one H. were bound in another Bond for Performance of Covenants: If the said H. should perform the Covenants in that Indenture, and should save the Plaintiff harmless of the said Bond, then, &c. The Defendant on Oyer of the Condition pleaded, that H. had performed the Covenants in that Indenture, and that he had saved the Plaintiff harmless of that Bond. Upon a general Demurrer the Plea is ill in Substance, both because the Covenants in the Indenture were not set forth, and some of them might be in the Negative, &c. and also because he hath not shewed how he saved the Plaintiff harmless. Allen 72.

The Plaintiff declared that the Defendant let to him such Land, and covenanted to save him harmless against all Suits, Ejections or Expulsions. Defendant pleads, J. S. ousted him by an Hab' fac' possession'. Plaintiff demurs: The Plea is ill for two Causes; First, Because he pleads Expulsion by an Execution, without shewing any Judgment: He ought to have said, that J. S. brought Ejectment upon which taliter processum fuit quod consideratum fuit, that he shall recover; and upon this sued an Hab' fac' possession'. Secondly, He ought to have shewed that J. S. had legal Time before the Lease, upon which he brought the Action; for the Covenant doth not extend but to Expulsions upon eigne droit, and perhaps in this Case J. S. might recover by Virtue of a Lease made to him by the Plaintiff himself. Lev. 83. 2 Keb. 379.

Fourthly, Concerning Marriages and Portions.

T. in Consideration the Plaintiff would marry his Daughter Sarah, promised to give him as much in Marriage with her as he gave in Marriage with any of his other Daughters, and alledgeth he had three Daughters, Alice, Anne and Sarah; that Plaintiff married Sarah; and that Alice married E. and that T. gave 100*l.* and a Bond of 100*l.* to pay to E. 50*l.* more at three Months End after his Decease, if the said Alice, or any Issue of her Body, were then living; and assigns for Breach, that he had only paid him 40*l.* in his Life-time, and that he had requested of the Defendant's Executors 60*l.* more, and a Bond for the Payment of 50*l.* and avers that Alice had such Issue alive. Per Cur', He ought to have averred that Sarah, or some Issue of her Body, was then alive; but the Judges agreed not, whether the Covenant or Promise extends only to Money given, and not to the Bond. Cro. Car. 186.

In Consideration of Marriage the Defendant promiseth or covenants he would pay for the Wedding Apparel. Plaintiff alledgeth he married her, and provided for her two Gowns and two Petticoats, and the Defendant had not paid; and it was moved for Error, that he ought to pay for one Gown and one Petticoat, and no more; sed non allocatur; Wedding Apparel to be taken according to common Parlace, &c. on the Wedding-Day, and used sometime after, the Declaration is good. Cro. Car. 53.

If A. covenants with B. Whereas there is a Marriage intended to be solemnized between A. and C. the Daughter of B. at or before the 14th Day of August next; and whereas the said B. hath paid A. 1000*l.* Portion, &c. the said A. in Consideration thereof doth covenant with B. that he within one Year of the Day of the Marriage will assure Lands of the Value of 400*l.* per Annum. Although the Marriage be not before that Day, yet the Covenant must be performed. Trin. 21 Jac. B. R. Gregory and Lane.

Upon Marriage the Plaintiff covenants to pay to his Son-in-law and Daughter 20*l.* per Ann. and upon Demurrer the Question was, if 20*l.* by the Year shall be intended for one Year only, or for their Lives: It shall be for their Lives, and the Maintenance shall be as lasting as the Marriage; it is in Lieu of a Portion, and shall be taken strongly against the Covenantor. Sid. 151. Lev. 102.

If one covenants to pay 10*l.* to the Covenantee at the Day of Marriage of the Covenantee, the Covenantee is not bound to give Notice to the Covenantor before his Marriage, at what Day he will be married; but the Covenantor ought to take Notice of it at his Peril, inasmuch as he has taken upon him to pay it at the Day. Roll. Rep. 355. Cro. Jac. 404. So if it were a Covenant to pay so much within a Year after B. shall marry C. Roll. Abr. 463.

If A. seised of Lands in Trust for B. covenants with J. S. that in Consideration that he would marry his Daughter, that he himself would stand seised of the Land to the Use of J. S. for Life, Remainder to D. in Fee; the Marriage takes Effect. J. S. not having Notice of the Trust, it seems that the Estate for the Life of J. S. nor the Remainder of D. are not subject to the Trust, because they come in under a valuable Consideration, viz. the Marriage, and have not Notice of the Trust. 2 Roll. Abr. 781.

In Assumpsit, about the Communication of the Marriage of the Plaintiff's Daughter, the Defendant promised him, that if he would hasten the Marriage, and have a Son within twelve Months then next following, he would give him 100*l.* He sets forth he did hasten the Marriage, and had a Son within twelve Months after the Marriage; and a Verdict pro Quer'; and it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that the Plaintiff had not set forth he had a Son within the Time, the Words, then next following, shall be referred to the Time of the Communication. But per Cur' contra. Vent. 262.

If I covenant with a Man that I will marry his Daughter, and he covenants with me, that for the same Cause he will make an Estate to me and his Daughter, and to the Heirs of our two Bodies begotten, of his Manar of D. he shall not make it till we are married. Godb. 8.

Defendant

Defendant covenanted that if the Plaintiff, ad instantiam defendentis, would marry the Defendant's Daughter, he would pay him 20l. and give him twenty French Pieces towards his Wedding Dinner; and alledgeth in Fact, he married the Defendant's Daughter, and had required him to pay the 20l. and he had not paid it; and that twenty French Crowns amounted to six Pounds in our English Money, and the Defendant had not paid them. Object. 1. He avers not that he married her ad instantiam defendentis: But per Cur', It shall be intended so; and twenty French Pieces is not twenty French Crowns, for it may be any other Pieces. But per Cur', French Crowns are the common Coin of France, and here known, and it shall be intended according to the usual Speech. Cro. Car. 195.

Covenant to pay 300l. in Consideration of a Marriage between the Plaintiff and his Daughter; which 300l. was to be paid within three Months after that he shall come to the Age of eighteen Years, or within eighteen Days of the Marriage, after Notice made, which shall first happen. Per Cur', The Notice shall relate to both, because it is uncertain which of them shall happen first. Latch 158.

Covenant was to assure such a Copyhold to the Plaintiff if he married his Daughter. Per Cur', It is sufficient for the Plaintiff to alledge licet sepius requisitus, without giving Notice of the Marriage, and he need not shew a Court to be holden. Cro. Jac. 102.

A Marriage Portion to be laid out, &c. is not Assets. 2 Keb. 841.

Settlement of Lands on precedent Agreement and Treaty of Marriage and Portion paid, is sufficient against the Purchaser though there were no Article. 3 Keb. 6.

Bond for Performance of Covenants; one was to marry S. the Daughter; another that Sir E. S. and his Wife should levy a Fine of such Lands to the Defendant, and to the Plaintiff's Daughter S. and to the Heirs of their Bodies. 3. That the Inheritance of the Premises should remain in the said Sir E. S. or himself, until the Fine levied. 4. Whereas he had granted a Lease for Years to S. the Plaintiff's Daughter, that he had not made any former Grant, nor would make any Grant thereof without the Plaintiff's Assent. The Defendant, quoad the last Covenant in the Negative, pleads that he had not made any former Grant of the Lease, nor had made any Grant after the Obligation without the Plaintiff's Assent. Et quoad omnes alias conventiones, that he had performed them. Plaintiff demurs:

1. Because the Covenant to ley a Fine is an Act to be performed by a Stranger, and it is an Act to be performed on Record, in both which Cases he ought to plead how he had performed it; and it is not sufficient to plead general Performance, for Acts of Record ought to be shewed specially, and the Answer to them is only Nul tiel Record, and no other Issue can be taken.

2. Because the Covenant being in the Disjunctive, he ought to shew specially which of them, and not generally.

3. He pleads he did not grant without the Plaintiff's Assent, which is a Negative pregnant, and so not good; and all allowed per Curiam. Cro. Jac. 559. 2 Roll. Rep. 159.

Fifthly, Concerning building Houses, &c. Vide Repairs ante.

Lessee covenanted to build a House upon the Land within ten Years. Lessee assigned his Term. Action is brought against the Assignee. Assignee pleads, that the Lessor entered, and had the Possession for Part of the ninth Year. Per Cur', He ought to have shewed that he held him out with Force, and would not suffer him to build (for it may be entered by Right for Non-payment of Rent) as indeed it was. Godb. 69, 20.

In Covenant to build a House, juxta regulas prescript' in the Stat. 19 Car. 2. c. 23. the Breach was assigned in not covering with Cantilevers with Lead, juxta regulas prescript' in the aforesaid Act of Parliament; to which the Defendant demurred. Per Twisden, It should be recited that the Statute doth so prescribe. Wild contra: This is not issuable, but confessed by the Demurrer not to be done. juxta regulas prescript' in predict' actu; but the other is a sufficient Averment. But C. J. Hale gave Judgment, because the very Covenant itself stops to say it was otherwise in the Act of Parliament; but were this not the Covenant itself the Breach were too short, unless it be averred that the Act of Parliament is to cover with Cantilevers, &c. 3 Keb. 142, 151. 2 Lev. 85.

If A. covenants with B. to build a House by a Day, and B. doth forbid him, and thereupon he forbears to do it; in this Case the Covenant is broken: But if he by actual Impediment hinders him, or be the Cause why the Thing is not done, then the not doing it is no Breach of Covenant.

Covenant for not building of a House; Defendant covenanted that he would erect three Houses upon such Land demised to him, unless he were restrained by the King's Proclamation. Defendant pleaded, such a Day and Year the King made a Proclamation to restrain building. Plaintiff demurs, because a Proclamation was pleaded, and no Place expressed where the Proclamation was made, and so no Venue, if Issue should be joined; also because it is not pleaded to have been sub magno sigillo Angliæ, for a Proclamation binds not unless it be under the Great Seal; and if it be denied, there can be no Issue thereupon, (but only Nul tiel Record) which cannot be unless he pleads it to be sub magno sigillo. Cro. Car. 180.

Sixthly, To permit Things to be done.

Plaintiff demised two Houses in Mark-lane in the Parish of St. M. W. with all Ways, Passages, &c. for twenty-one Years, at 24 l. Rent. The Defendant covenants that she would permit at his own Costs to make a Drain to convey the waste Water from the demised Houses and the main Shore in Six-Bell Yard; he shews he entered, and that the Defendant had broke the Covenant, eo quod, that she being possessed of a Term for Years then and yet to come of a certain Parcel of Land and two Stables lying between the demised Premises and the said main Shore in Six-Bell Yard, and by which the Drain ought to run; and then sets forth, the Defendant had assigned all her Term in the said Piece of Ground and Stables to T. who entered and died possessed; and M. his Wife, as Administratrix, possessed herself of it, and married to B. and the said B. and his Wife non permiserunt to make a Drain, but refused. Defendant pleads, the said Passage being in the demised Premises, is situate in the Parish of St. James aforesaid, and leads from the demised Houses in Six-Bell Yard, and such a Drain might have been made, and still may be; and the Defendant did permit the Plaintiff to make a Drain, and the Plaintiff might have done it. Plaintiff demurs. Per Cur', There shall not be Election to make the Passage through the Stables, &c. if other proper Ways may be.

But there were Exceptions to the Declaration:

1. There is no certain Place for the Houses demised, which are said to be lying and being in the Parish præd', whereas there are two named before, St. Margaret's and St. James's.
2. The Breach, eo quod, they did not permit, is no positive Affirmation.
3. The Covenant is, that the Defendant, her Executors, Administrators and Assigns, shall permit: And the Breach is laid in the Assignees not permitting. And it appears in the Pleading, that this Assignment was made to Tomlinson divers Years before this Demise to the Plaintiff; and this Covenant cannot be extended but only to the Assignees of the Defendant after the Demise made.

4. It is said Quod non permiserunt, but no special Disturbance, which ought to have been particularly set forth for the Court to judge of.

Per Cur', All these Exceptions but the second are fatal, especially because the Disturbance is laid to be by an Assignee who came in before the Demise. Sand. 116. 2 Vent. 277.

A Man makes a Lease for Years, and a Bond with Condition that he shall suffer the Lessee peaceably and quietly to enjoy during the Term, and that without Trouble or Eviction of the Lessor, or any other Person, then the Obligation to be void. Per Cur', The Word suffer shall rule all the Residue of the Sentence; so that by the Entry of a Stranger on the Lessee, without Procurement of the Lessor, the Obligation is not forfeited. Dyer 255.

In Covenant the Plaintiff declared that he had and held the Office of Chamberlain to the Queen Dowager, and that by Deed produced in Court he agreed with the Defendant for the Sale of the said Office, and that the Defendant should hold it with the Consent of the Queen; but by the said Writing the Defendant obliged himself that the Plaintiff should have, receive and enjoy, during the Life of the Plaintiff, divers Pensions and Salaries belonging to the said Office, and that the Defendant should receive no Part of them. Then he shews, that the Defendant at his Procurement, and with the Approbation of the Queen, was admitted, and enjoyed it, and ten Years were in Arrear of a Salary due to the Plaintiff, which the Plaintiff had not received, and the Defendant had not paid him, licet sapius requisitus. Defendant pleads, that he, from the Time of the Agreement to the Time of the Writ brought, permitted the Plaintiff to receive yearly the Profits according to the said Agreement, absq; hoc, that the Defendant received any Part of the Profits of the said Office. Per Cur', The Plea is good, and that upon the Agreement the Defendant was not bound to pay the Money d, but only restrained from intermeddling. 2 Vent. 79.

Where no Act is to be done, but only a Permittance, Defendant needs not plead it specially, Et non permisit, or permisit, is a good Plea.

One is bound to permit his Tenants to use the Common, and that he shall not alter the Course of the Common, quod permisit, and that he did not alter, &c. is a good Plea generally. Dyer 279. pl. 6.

A Covenant that the Plaintiff to such of the said Lands as by the Custom of the Country Tunc jacebant friscæ, should have free Ingress, &c. The Defendant pleads, Quod permisit querentem intrare, &c. in tales terras quales tunc jacebant friscæ secundum consuetudinem patriæ; he needs not shew what Lands did lie fresh; for here is no Act to be done, but a Permittance, and it was in the Negative, and not a Disturbance, in which Case Permission is a good Plea. Leon. 136.

L. covenants with S. that he would suffer him and his Assigns to have free Ingress, &c. into his House and Shop, without Let or Interruption of the said L. and that S. appunctuavit one T. ut servientem suum in messuagium, &c. intrare, & præd' L. expulit. It was moved in Arrest; 1. It is alledged that L. expelled the Servant, but this was the Expulsion of the Master. 2. Appunctuavit intrare, and saith not what Time, for perhaps his Licence to enter might be determined. 3. It is not said at what Time he entered, but super quo intravit; but all these Exceptions were over-ruled. 2 Roll. Rep. 78.

A. and B. are Executors of C. and A. alone covenants with N. that if N. marries the Daughter of C. it should be lawful for N. to view and search all such Accounts as concerned the Estate of C. payable to that Daughter. N. marries her, and after N. requested A. and also B. the other Executor, who had those Accounts, to view the same: B. refuseth to shew them, by this A. hath broken his Covenant; for thereby in Law A. undertook that any Person that had such Accounts should suffer N. to view and search them. Roll. Abr. 431.

If A. (being a common Brewer) covenants that B. shall have seven Parts of all his Grains made in his Brewhouse for seven Years; and after A. puts in great Quantities of Hops into his Malt, of which the Grains were made, by Means whereof the Grains are spoiled: This is a Breach, because in all Contracts the Intention of the Parties is to be considered; and here it was the Intention of the Parties, that B. should have the Grains for the Use of his Cattle; and they will not eat them when Hops are put into them. T. Raym. 464.

Seventhly, To account.

The Covenantor, who was Bailiff of a Manor of the Covenantee, covenants to render a just Account before such a Day of all the Rents of the Manor which he hath received: He pleads to an Action against him, that before the said Day he had made an Account of all the Rents which he had received, and because he did not shew what Sums he received, the Plea was ill. Cro. Eliz. 749.

Debt on Bond wherein the Testator did acknowledge himself to be indebted in 40*l.* to the Plaintiff, which he did covenant to pay when such a Bill of Costs should be settled by two Attornies, indifferently to be chosen. Per Cur', It is not a solvend', but a Covenant, which did not take away the Duty ascertained by the Obligation; and if it should not be a Covenant, but an intire Bond, then it would be in the Power of the Obligor whether ever it should be payable; and the Plaintiff having named an Attorney, ought to recover. 2 Mod. 266.

The Plaintiff being possessed of a Term for six Years of a Tavern in Gracechurch-street, let the same by Indenture, with Plate and divers Utensils in the House to the Defendant for three Years. The Defendant, in Consideration thereof covenanted with him and his Assigns, that de mense in mensem mensatim he would upon Request render to him and his Assigns an Account for every Tun of Wine he did sell there, and pay him for every Tun sold 30*s.* And there were divers other Covenants on his Part (some in the Affirmative and some in the Negative); he pleaded Covenants performed (which was ill in that). The Plaintiff replieth, that upon the last Day of July he required the Defendant to give him an Account of a Tun of Wine sold at such a Time, which he refused to do. The Defendant rejoined, that before that Time the Plaintiff being possessed of a Term in the Tavern for divers Years, Part whereof were yet to come (but shews not what Time in certain, nor the Commencement of it, and therefore it was agreed by all it was ill in that) granted the Residue of the said Term then to come to B. to which Grant he attorned, after which Time he did not refuse. Plaintiff demurs. This is a Rent reserved, and in Nature and Lieu of the Rent; but the Request of an Account was to be within the Month, and this Request, as appears by Computation, was the Day after the Month, which the Secondary certified, and for that Cause Judgment against the Plaintiff. Cro. Eliz. 62.

In Action of Covenant to account for Money received during the Lunacy of Sir B. W. The Plaintiff shewed there was 800*l.* received, and saith not during the Lunacy, which per Cur' is ill; præter Windham, who conceived this ought to be shewed by the Defendant in Discharge. It is said the Defendant had laid out the 800*l.* in Reparations of Fences, and doth not shew he had accounted; which per Cur' he ought to do. And it is no Plea to say the Plaintiff did not assign Auditors, as it is in Account against Bailiff. Judgment pro Quer', as to this Breach, upon the want of Account. 2 Keb. 145. Saund. 47.

In Action of Covenant the Plaintiff declared, that whereas it was covenanted between the Plaintiff and Defendant, that each of them upon Request should be accountable to the other for all the Corn growing upon such a Place, and that upon such Account the one of them should deliver to the other the Moiety of the Corn, or the Profit of it: And whereas the Defendant had taken all the said said Corn, viz. twenty Loads of Wheat, &c. growing upon the said Land, and had been required to render Account of the said Corn, which he refused to do. The Defendant traversed the Request; and it was demurred to. It was moved that the Traverse was not good; but the Defendant ought to say, that the Plaintiff did not require him modo & forma; but the Exception was not allowed; but per Cur', The Traverse was held good. 2 Leon. 5.

Debt on Bond or Covenant to give an Account of all such Monies which should come to his Hands, and to pay them to the Plaintiff. Defendant pleads, no Monies came to his Hands. Plaintiff replies, such a Sum came to his Hands. Defendant demurs. Per Cur', The Replication is ill, in not mentioning that he refused to come to an Account, and that Breach ought to be assigned. Lev. 226. Sid. 340. Saund. 102.

Covenant to pay so much out of the Profits of an Office, which shall be clear beyond such a Sum: The Declaration shews not the Place of Account, nor the Sum clear; it is ill. Sid. 304. Bucknall's Case. 2 Keb. 92.

Covenant in Writing sealed, by which the Defendants Testator acknowledged himself to be accountable to the Plaintiff for all such Money that shall be charged by him upon A. to be paid to B. and saith, he charged so much upon A. to be paid to B. and that he had not paid it, for which he brought this Action against the Executors. Covenant well lies; though Cro. Car. 128. Geary and Reason's Case was cited to the contrary; and so it will lie upon Words in a Deed purporting an Agreement for Payment of Money. It was moved, there is not any Notice given what the Money was, and that was not paid over: But per Cur', He having taken it upon him, and the Person being certain, so that he might inform himself, and the Agreement not being to pay it upon Notice, the Defendant is bound to take Notice himself. Judgment pro Quer'. Lev. 47.

Upon a special Agreement that the Plaintiff shall enjoy and receive the Profits and Salary of an Office during Life: Upon Covenant brought the Defendant pleaded, that he suffered the Plaintiff to enjoy and receive the Profits, &c. And per Cur', It is good, for it is not a personal Warranty or Engagement to pay the Salary. The Defendant is not bound by this Agreement to pay the Money, but only restrained from intermeddling with the Profits and Salary. 4 Mod. 43.

A Condition recited, that the Defendant served the Plaintiff as Clerk to a Brewer, and that if he performed such Covenants, &c. The Defendant pleaded, Performavit omnia. Plaintiff replies, one Covenant was to give the Plaintiff a true Account of all such Monies as the Defendant should receive when requested; and alledged that 30*l.* came to his Hands, and he requested, and he refused. The Defendant rejoins, and confesseth the Receipt; but saith, that before the Request made by the Plaintiff he laid it up in the Plaintiff's Warehouse, and that certain Malefactors (to the Defendant unknown) stole it away; Et hoc paratus, &c. Plaintiff demurs generally:

1. Because it is a Departure.

2. He ought to have concluded to the Country. Plaintiff alledgeth, the Defendant received 30*l.* and gave no Account. Defendant in his Rejoinder sets forth he did give Account; and there was an Issue; both were over-ruled.

First, It is no Departure, but a Fortification of the Bar; for shewing that he was robbed, is giving an Account.

Secondly, The Conclusion is proper, because the Defendant alledgeth new Matter, and therefore ought to give the Plaintiff Liberty to come in with the Rejoinder; he doth not say he gave an Account, but setteth forth the special Matter how. Vent. 121. 2 Lev. 5.

Debt by a Brewer on a Bond to perform Articles against his Clerk: One was, that the Defendant should deliver such Ale and Beer weekly as should be delivered unto him to such Customers as he had in his Charge, and to receive the Monies due for the same, and should account with the Plaintiff every Saturday Weekly for such Money he should receive: For Breach the Plaintiff assigns, that the Defendant did not account with him for such Monies as he had received on Saturday the 25th, &c. Verdict pro Quer'. Judgment was arrested; for the Breach was uncertainly alledged, because the Plaintiff doth not shew the Defendant had any Customers in his Charge, or who they were, or that he had delivered Ale or Beer to them, or received any Money of them. Style 473, 476.

Eighthly, Concerning Apprentices and Servants.

An Infant by Custom of the Land may bind himself Apprentice by Indenture, and it shall be good. 2 Bulst. 192.

An Action of Covenant was brought by an Apprentice, who assigned for Breach, that Action by App- the Testator of the Defendant had covenanted to instruct the Plaintiff in the Art of a Sadler prentice. for seven Years, and to find him Meat and Drink during this Term; and that the Defendant after after the Death of the Testator did put the Plaintiff out of his House, and so kept him from Meat and Drink. It was agreed, that & sic is a sufficient Averment of the Breach, and that is not but Matter of Form: And as for the Law, the Opinion of the Court was, that the Apprentice remains an Apprentice to the Executor; for though he cannot instruct him, yet he may find him Meat and Drink, &c. Per Hide, This general Covenant to instruct is not gone by his Death, though there be no particular Custom, as in London, especially since the Stat. 5 Eliz. Sid. 216. Keb. 761, 820.

Covenant by Infant per Gard. suos, for that he was bound Apprentice to the Defendant by Indenture, and he did keep him with Meat: And Defendant pleads he was a Citizen and Freeman of Bristol, and that at the General-Sessions of the Peace it was ordered, that he should be discharged from his Master for disorderly Living, and this Order inrolled by the Clerk of the Peace. Per Cur', præter Hale, They had Power to discharge him, and it is frequent at Sessions so to do. Vent. 174.

An Action of Covenant was brought by an Apprentice; the Master covenanted to find and allow the Plaintiff Meat, Drink, Lodging, & alia necessaria, during such a Time; and the Breach was as general as the Covenant, viz. That he did not find him Meat, Drink, Lodging, & alia necessaria. The Plaintiff had Judgment by Nihil dicit, and on Inquiry intire Damages were given against the Defendant. Error was brought, that the Breach is too general, and intire Damages were given, amongst other Things, for alia necessaria, and doth not say for what: And in Cro. Jac. 486. Astell and Mill's Case, Judgment was reversed for that Reason, but that Case has since been adjudged not to be Law; a Breach may be assigned as general as the Covenant. Curia: In a Quantum meruit they formerly set out the Matter at Length, but now it is in general Words, Pro diversis aliis bonis, and held good: There are indeed many Instances where Breaches have been generally assigned, and held ill; that in Croke is so, but the latter Opinions are otherwise. Affirmetur judicium. 3 Mod. 69.

Covenant against Apprentice and those bound with him.

Covenant was brought against an Apprentice on Indenture. Defendant pleads, he was within Age. The Plaintiff in his Replication maintained his Action by the Custom of London, that he may bind himself at the Age of fourteen: The Question in 4 Leon. 77. and in Cro. Eliz. Walker and Nicholson's Case, was, whether this was a Departure in Pleading? And it was much doubted there; and the Case in 19 R. 2. was cited, how that an Infant brought an Action against his Guardian in Socage; who pleaded, that the Plaintiff was within Age; the Plaintiff did maintain his Declaration, that by the Custom of such a Place an Infant of eighteen Years might bring an Account against his Guardian in Socage; and it was held it was no Departure: So it was much argued in Bold and Wallis's Case, 14 & 15 Car. 2. B. R. because he brought his Action as at Common Law generally, and maintained it by a Custom. Some argued that it was a Departure, and cited Co. Lit. 304. It seemed to be agreed by all the Court, that where one alledgeth a general Custom in a Count, and replies by a special Custom, that this is not good; but by Windham, This is no Departure in the principal Case, being no Matter varying from the Count, that being but Supposal, and always general, this special Matter is a good Support; and that this is no Departure from the Title, but an Answer to a Disability pleaded in Bar. Foster held it to be no Departure, the Gift of the Action being laid in London, and the Title is the same still, only the Person enabled. But by Twisden, All the Precedents are to count on the Custom, as being the Ground of the Action; and he was of Opinion that it was a Departure; but the Court gave Leave to the Plaintiff to discontinue his Action, and to declare on the Custom of London, that an Infant may bind himself. Winch 63.

In Covenant Plaintiff declared that the Defendant, by his Deed shewed in Court, did covenant to satisfy the Plaintiff all such Sums of Money as J. his Son, the Plaintiff's Apprentice, should imbezil from him, within three Months after Request; and then lays the Imbeziling and Request, &c. The Defendant prays Oyer of the Deed, which was entered in hæc verba; and there the Covenant was to satisfy within three Months after Request, and due Proof made of such imbeziling. The Issue was, whether he imbeziled? and found pro Quer'. Judgment was arrested, because it appears by the Entry of the Deed, that the Plaintiff ought not to have brought this Action until the three Months were incurred, as well after Proof as after Request: Whereas the Plaintiff had averred no Proof in the Declaration, and the Word Proof generally laid shall be understood Proof judicial, by Jury, Confession or Demurrer in Court; but if the Form of Proof were by Writing otherwise appointed, that shall prevail, as by Witnesses before two Aldermen, by Certificate, &c. which Proof shall be set down in the Plea, with all the Circumstances, and then it shall be in the Discretion of the Court, whether the Proof were competent according to the Meaning of the Writing; but in this Case Proof may be made in Court judicially, in Action brought against the Apprentice, Apprentice, before the Action brought on the Covenant made by another; and so it may well be taken for Proof by Trial in Court. Hob. 217.

Collateral Covenants shall not bind an Infant; as in Action of Covenant brought against the Infant, on Covenant to serve his Master faithfully as an Apprentice in the Mystery of a Draper; and he lays in the Action, that he defrauded him of his Goods. Per Cur', The Stat. 5 Eliz. is not so strong against Infants as to make collateral Covenants good. An Infant is not bound by those Words at Common Law, and no collateral Covenant shall be maintainable upon that Statute. Action on the Case lies on the Covenant in Law, but not on the Covenant in Fact, and for that he ought to have collateral Security; and the Retainer is for the Benefit of the Infant to learn his Trade, but the Covenant is to his Disadvantage; but Winch thought the Covenant to be good, being incident to the Retainer. There is no Remedy but by Action on the Case. Winch 63. Hetl. 63.

Covenant was brought upon Indenture of Apprenticeship, containing the usual Covenants in such Indenture, and he ran away with his Master's Money in London; and two Exceptions were taken to the Declaration:

1. In the Indenture the Words are, that the Infant shall be loyal and faithful, & secreta sua velare, &c. without any Words of Covenant express; but it was resolved that the Words imply a Covenant.

2. It was excepted, that where Infants shall be bound by Covenant, it is pleadable nowhere but in London; the Custom is that Infant shall not wage his Law upon Covenant for Tabling; sed non allocat'; it is pleadable at any Place. This Covenant is allowable at Law, and the Words of the Statute are, that the Covenants shall become of such Effect and Efficacy as if he had been at full Age at the Time of the Sealing the Indenture, and then he shall be bound in every Place within the Realm. The Court seemed to be of Opinion that the Action was well brought. Moor, Stanton's Case. T. Raym. 60. Lev. 81.

Covenant against an Executor upon the Covenant of the Testator to teach an Apprentice his Trade. It was moved, that the Covenant was personal to the Testator, and binds not the Executors, but only binds the Master during his Life to teach him. But per Cur', It binds the Executors also, and they ought to see the Apprentice taught his Trade; and if they are not of the Trade, they ought to assign him to another who is of the Trade. Lev. 177.

If a Man covenants with me to serve me for a Year, and I covenant to pay him 10l. although he does not serve me, he shall have an Action for the 10l. But contra, if I covenant to give him 10l. for his Service. 15 H. 7. 10. per Fineux. Mod. Ca. in Law and Equity 41. Popb. 198.

Ninthly, To do Things.

If I covenant to deliver so many Yards of Cloth, and I cut it in Pieces, and then deliver it: This is a Breach; for the Law regards the real and faithful Performance of Contracts, and discountenances all such Acts as are done in fraudem Legis.

Covenant to do any Thing upon Request; the Plaintiff assigned for Breach, the Defendant could not be found. After he made Proclamation at the Church, and in several Markets, giving Notice of the Request; yet this is not any Request, inasmuch as it ought to be made to his Person. M. 8 Car. B. R. Gruit and Pinnell.

If A. covenants with B. that A. or his Son C. or either of them, shall work with B. at the Grinding and Polishing of Glafs, B. paying to each of them so much, &c. and B. requests C. to work with him, &c. if he does not, the Covenant is broke, for B. had the Election to require both, or any of them, to work with him. 2 Sid. 107.

Error of Judgment in Northampton in a Writ of Covenant; the Error assigned was, that the Declaration there was ill, because he declares of a Covenant, whereby the Defendant covenanted to find the Plaintiff with Meat, Drink, Apparel, and other Necessaries, and doth not shew in particular what other Things were Necessaries; and the Breach was assigned as general as the Covenant, viz. That he did not find him with Meat, Drink, Apparel, and other Necessaries; and doth not shew in particular what other Things were necessary, or not: And per Cur', The Declaration was ill. Cra. Jac. 486.

If a Man covenants with me to collect my Rents in such a Town: If I interrupt him in the collecting thereof, this excuses the Covenant. 13 H. 7. Roll. Abr. 454.

Tenthly, Of Covenants determining with the Estate, and of suing on Covenants after the Estate determines.

It is commonly said in our Books, that Covenants in a void Deed are void. In Soprane and Skurri's Case, Yelv. 18. the Declaration doth not express that Z. did demise the House, and if there be no Demise there is no Term; and the Indenture was sealed on the Part of the Lessee, and not on the Part of the Lessor (for any Thing that appears); and if Lessee seals his Part, and not the Lessor, nihil operatur, neither in Respect of the Interest, nor in Respect of the Covenants; for the Covenants depend upon the Lease, and the Bond on the Covenants; and if the Lease had been made, and after surrendered, all the Covenants and Bonds for the Performance thereof had been void also; but yet in some Cases the Acceptance of the Surrender shall not dispense with the Covenant, as in Noy 118. Austin and Moyle. Leon. 179.

Austin and Moyle's Case was, A. leases by Deed to M. for ten Years, and M. covenants at the End of the Term to leave four Acres of the Land fallowed and ploughed; and in it also there was a Proviso, that if M. dislike his Bargain, that upon a Year's Warning he may surrender his Estate; and M. surrendered, but left not any fallowed: The Acceptance of the Surrender hath not dispensed with the Covenant, but upon a void Lease the Covenants are void, as in Capenburst's Case, Keb. 131, 164, 182. Bond for Performance of Covenants, that the Grantee shall quietly enjoy a Term; but the Grant was of so much of the said Term as shall be unexpired at his Death, which as Chedington and Grosvenor's Case, Dyer 7. is void, and so the Covenants depending thereupon are void also. Windham put a Difference, and it was agreed, where a Deed is void in the Fabrick, there the Covenants on it are void; as when a Freehold is to commence in futuro, and where there is only want of Interest in the Party Grantor, but that Deed is good; which the Court agreed, if the Intent is that the Covenant shall go with the Lease, which if void, that falls.

Lease of Tenant pro Life for twenty-one Years, with Covenant to enjoy during the Term, and Bond accordingly; by his Death the Bond falls. In Dyer there was an Opinion, that Debt lay on Bond notwithstanding a Release of Covenants in an Indenture to which the Obligation relates; but that Case is settled, that the Bond and Covenants to which it relates are but one Assurance, and the one being made void, the other falls. Vide Sid. 307. 2 Keb. 116.

In Covenant the Plaintiff declared, that whereas the Queen by her Letters Patent granted Licence to him, his Deputies and Assigns, to buy Spanish Wool, and to transport it hither, &c. He by Indenture granted to the Defendant and to R. N. the said Licence for eight Years; in Consideration whereof the Defendant did covenant and grant to pay him 100*l.* every Year at two Feasts, viz. the Annunciation and Michaelmas; and further, that every Year at the Feast of the Annunciation, or within twenty Days after, he would make a new Obligation of 150*l.* for the Payment of the said 100*l.* the next Year; and alledges in facto, that the Defendant had not paid him the 50*l.* due to him at Michaelmas, 28 Eliz. and that he did not make an Obligation at the Annunciation, &c. and for those Covenants broken he brought the Action. The Defendant pleaded, that in the Indenture is contained, Proviso semper, that if the Defendant doth not every Year make the Bond at the Feast of the Annunciation, or failed in the Payment of the Money at the Day, that then and from thenceforth the said Indenture, and every Clause, Article and Sentence therein, should be void and of none Effect; and shewed that he failed in making the Obligation at the first Day, and so the Indenture is void. Judgment si actio. The Action lies, for this Covenant broken before the Indenture became void; but the Court agreed, that for the Covenant for Payment of the Money no Action did lie, because the Indenture was void half a Year before by not making the Obligation; and the Intent of the Party was, that it should be void only to have Benefit of Covenants broken in futuro; but for Covenants broken before, it was never their Intent, but that the Party should have Advantage of them. But by Wray, The Thing that makes the Indenture void is the breaking of the Covenant, so they are both at one Time, and so he hath had all his Bargain and all his Benefit of the Indenture, and so the other Party is at large. Judgment pro Quer. Cro. Eliz. Dr. Man v. Gee.

Debt on Bond conditioned for Performance of Covenants in an Indenture, by which the Defendant's Testator, being Lessee for Years of a long Term, assigned so much of the Term as shall be to come at the Time of his Death to the Plaintiff, and covenants that he shall enjoy it; and he makes the Defendant Executor, and dies; and assigns a Breach, that the Defendant after the Death of the Testator ousted him; and after Verdict pro Quer., it was moved in Arrest of Judgment, that the Assignment of so much of the Term as should be to come after his Death was void, and so is the Covenant also; for the Covenant cannot subsist without an Estate; and that the Assignment was void, were cited Co. Rector of Chedington's Case, and Gravenor's Case in Dyer, and Cro. Jac. Child and Baylie's Case; and so is the Covenant, Yelv. 18. Sopranie's Case; and of that Opinion was the Court: But it was further moved, that then the Obligation is single; for if the Condition refer to a Thing that is not, it is all one as if there were not any Condition; and to this the Court inclined; but after-afterwards the Covenant and Obligation being both for the Corroboration of a Grant which was void, they are also both void; and the Court gave Judgment pro Defendant. Lev. 45.

Tenant for Life makes a Lease for Years; Lessee by Indenture grants and sells all his Estate, Hab. in tam amplis modo & forma, as he ought to hold it. Lessee for Life dies, he in Reversion enters; Bargainee brought Covenant against the Bargainor; it lies not. Here is no Warranty in Deed or Law, but only an Assignment; and if there were a Warranty, yet the Covenant determines with the Estate; as Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, and dies without Issue, the Covenant doth determine with the Estate. Cro. Eliz. 157. And. 12.

But let the Lease be good or void, yet when there is an Eviction, Covenant lies though the Lease be originally void.

Covenants in Law extend to lawful Evictions, and to Estate in Being, and not where an Estate is determined; as Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, and dies, Lessee shall not have Action of Covenant or Covenant in Law. Dyer 2. 2 Brownl. 163, 164.

R. brought Covenant against H. Parson of D. the Case was, That H. let to the Plaintiff Parcel of the Glebe and Tithes for Term of the Life of H. if he should continue so long Parson, rendering 26 s. 8 d. Rent; and covenants by another Deed that the Lessee shall peaceably and quietly have and enjoy the said Land and Tithes; and covenants likewise that he had not done any Act or Acts by which the Plaintiff shall be interrupted in the said Lease, where revera he had made another Lease before of them to J. S. and the Plaintiff being ousted by J. S. brought this Action against the Defendant, who pleads the Statute of 13 Eliz. c. 10. that Leases made by Parsons, otherwise than is therein limited and expressed, shall be void; and he pleads over the Statute of 14 Eliz. c. 11. that Covenants shall be of the same Validity, and not otherwise, as Leases by the same Persons: And inasmuch as the Lease is void, there being another more antient Lease in esse, so the Covenant shall be also. Gawdy, The Statute of 14 Eliz. doth not intend to avoid any Covenants but such as were made to corroborate Leases made void by Stat. 13 Eliz. before, and not to defeat Covenants made upon void Leases by the Common Law; Quod nota adjorn. Hil. 37 Eliz. Rot. 161.

M. brought Action of Covenant against A. Defendant demurs upon the Count, and the Case was this: Lease for seven Years to A. by Indenture of Land, who covenants to leave Part of the Land ad finem dicti Termini fallowed and stirred, fit for Wheat Season, proviso that it shall be lawful for the Lessee at any Time within the said Term, giving Warning to the Lessor at the Feast of St. Michael, to depart, &c. and he doth not leave it fallow according to the former Covenant: The Question was, If the Lessee be bound to leave it fallow or not when he departs within the Term? for this Power of Departure upon Warning is limited with this performing of Covenants; adjorn.; nota per Yelverton and Tanfield, that the End of the Term of seven Years, and the End of the Term, are all one, for both refer to the Interest of the Term, and to the Determination, be it by Surrender or otherwise; but if it were at the End of seven Years, this is not before the seven Years incurred, without Respect to the Term. Vide Bro. Exposition of Terms 44. 35 H. 8. Paget's Case in the Rector of Chedington's Case, Dyer 177. And after comes Croke, who said that the Plaintiff shall not have this Action; for after the Covenant broken it appears that he had accepted the Surrender of the Term, whereby he is concluded. Per tot' Cur., Though he had accepted of a Surrender of the Term, yet he may have Covenant for Covenant broken before; but Action of Waste he may not have, for he accepts of the Land, which is Parcel of the Thing to be recovered by the Action; for which Judgment was given pro Quer. Hil. 4 *Jac. If the Covenant depend on the Interest of a Lease, as a Covenant to pay Rent, it is void What Cove- if the Lease is void; but where the Covenant is for a Thing collateral, as a Covenant that nants are the Lessor is Owner at the Time of the Lease, or that the Lessee shall enjoy it; these Co- good in a venants being collateral to the Lease and Interest, are good though the Lease be void. Nichols cont. void Lease. Covenant to save the Plaintiff harmless against T. in a void Lease, the Lessee is disturbed by T. the Covenant is good; for when an Estate is created in which is implied a Covenant in Law, there if the Estate be void, the Covenant is void also; but when there is an express Covenant in Deed, aliter, although the Lease be void or voidable; as if he covenants that the Lessee shall enjoy during the Term, and the Lessee resigns, yet is the Covenant good although the Term is gone. Owen 136.

Defendant by Rejoinder sheweth, that in the Indenture was a Proviso, that if he paid 10*l.* the 31st of March 30 Eliz. that then the said Indenture and all therein contained shall be void, and alledged he paid the 10*l.* at the Day; it was adjudged, that by the Covenant broken before the Condition performed the Bond was forfeited. Cro. Eliz. 244.

Covenant for that the Defendant 35 Eliz. let to him the Lands for six Years, and covenanted that he should enjoy it without Interruption during the Term, and discharged from Tithes and other Duties: And further covenanted, that if Tithes were demanded and recovered against him during the Term, that he should recoup so much in his Hands of the Rent as the Tithes amounted to; and for Breach sheweth, that the Parson 42 Eliz. sued him for the Tithes of Corn growing there in the Years 38, 39 Eliz. and so brought this Action; and thereupon it was demurred. Per tot' Cur', This Suit after the Determination of the Term is a Breach of Covenant, for he did not enjoy it discharged, &c. which is not intended of a real Discharge; for that appears not by the Intent of the Parties, because it is agreed, that if he were sued he should recoup as much Rent in his Hands; but their Meaning was, he should be freed from Suit and Payment of it; and he is as greatly prejudiced by a Suit after the Term, as if he had been sued before the Expiration of the Term: But it was not alledged that this Suit was lawful, or that the Tithes were due (for he was not bound to discharge him from illegal Suits) so the Breach was not well assigned. Cro. Eliz. 916.

Obligation for Performance of Covenants upon a Lease void per Statute-Law is void also; as where the Stat. 32 H. 8. makes void Leases made of Houses to alien Artificers. Sid. 309. And on Bond to perform Covenants which way soever the Lease becomes void, per Release, Surrender, &c. the Obligation is void also.

Of a Warrant (or Letter) of Attorney to make Livery of Seisin.

THE next Part to the Covenants in some Deeds (as Feoffments, Gifts in Tail, or Leases for Life) is what is usually called a Letter of Attorney to make Livery of Seisin, though I think it more properly called a Warrant of Attorney to make Livery of Seisin, especially where the Deed is by Indenture, for then it wants the Direction, which a Letter of Attorney commonly has, viz. To all People to whom these Presents shall come, or the like. And though a Letter of Attorney is equal to a Warrant to authorize a Person to act in the Stead of him who makes it, yet every Warrant of Attorney is not a Letter of Attorney, for the Difference of Form gives us different Ideas as to the Name, although of the same Nature and Purport; for which Reasons I conclude that this Part of a Deed is more properly called a Warrant of Attorney to make Livery of Seisin, which begins in this Manner: And this Indenture further witnesseth, that the said A. B. hath made, ordained, &c.

Livery of Seisin may be made either by the Feoffor, &c. himself, or by his Deputy or Attorney; and when it is to be by Attorney, a Warrant must be made, which may either be in the Deed of Feoffment itself, whether it be indented or Poll, although the Attorney be no Party to the Deed; or it may be made by another and single Deed of itself.

The Livery of Seisin that is made by Letter of Attorney, must be a Livery in Fact, and not a Livery in Law, for a Livery in Law cannot be made by Attorney.

And in making such Livery of Seisin the Attorney should take care,

First, That there be a good Deed for a Foundation, otherwise the Letter of Attorney, and the making of Livery upon it, will signify nothing.

Secondly, That there be a good Letter of Attorney in Writing to warrant the making of Livery of Seisin.

Thirdly, That he pursues the Authority given him by the Deed, at least in the Substance thereof; and therefore if it be given to two Attornies jointly, one of them cannot do it; if to three Attornies jointly and severally, it is not safe for any two of them to do it.

Fourthly, That it be done in the Life-time of the Parties, for it cannot be done after their Deaths.

Fifthly, That he acts in the Name of him who makes the Letter of Attorney.

Sixthly, That in the making of it as an Attorney he should do it after the same Manner as the Party himself should do it.

Seventhly, That a Memorandum thereof be endorsed upon the Back of the Deed: N. B. This is advisable, but not necessary where Proof (on Occasion) may be had.

For the Forms thereof, see the second Part; and for more concerning Livery of Seisin, see the next Chapter, Title Feoffment.

S E C T. X.

Of the Conclusion of a Deed, or the in cuius rei Testimonium.

NOW we are come to the Conclusion of a Deed, which in an Indenture is usually in these Words: In Witness whereof the said Parties have hereunto interchangeably set their Hands and Seals on the Day and Year first above written. And in a Deed Poll in these Words: In Witness whereof I have hereunto set my Hand and Seal this — Day of — in the Year, &c.

The Date in an Indenture is usually in the Beginning of it, and in a Deed Poll at the End; but either of them is good, whether the Date be in the Beginning or End.

And a Deed is good that is without a Date, or with a false or impossible Date, as the 30th of February, or the like: And although it be dated before or after the Time of the Delivery of it, yet it is good enough: Nor is it needful to express the Time of the Delivery of it, but in Pleading it must be shewed. 2 Co. 5. Dyer 19, 28. Kelw. 70. Perk. §. 120. Co. Lit. 7. Latch 59. Yelv. 138. 3 Leon. Case 144. Nor is it needful to mention any Place or Time of the Sealing and Delivery of it.

If a Deed has no Date, or bears Date after the Delivery of it, and he that delivers it dies before the Time of the Date, it is good enough; but one may not plead the Delivery of the Deed before the Time of the Date of the Deed. 2 Co. 4. Style 97.

And yet a Jury may find the Delivery to be before the Date. Hetley 175.

The Delivery makes it a Deed, and he that pleads it, and against whom it is pleaded, may vary from the Date in the Time of the Delivery, and say it was delivered at another Time. Perk. §. 146, 147, 148, 149, 150.

If a Lease for Years be made by Indenture bearing Date the 26th of May, to have and to hold for twenty-one Years from the Date, or from the Day of the Date, it shall begin on the 27th of May. Quære. 5 Co. 1, 94. Co. Lit. 46. b. 2 Inst. 674. contra. Roll. Abr. 849, 850. contra. 2 Roll. Abr. 520. Cro. Jac. 135, 258. Cro. Car. 388. 3 Lev. 438. Salk. 413.

If the Lease bears Date the 26th of May, To have and to hold from the making thereof, or from henceforth; it shall begin on the Day on which it was delivered.

But every Deed shall be intended to be delivered on the same Day it bears Date, unless the contrary is proved.

But if a Deed is dated at four o'Clock in the Afternoon on the 20th of June, the whole Day is to be taken in; for the Law in this Computation rejects all Fractions and Divisions of a Day for the Incertainty. 2 Inst. 674.

As to a Place, if it bears Date at a Place out of the Realm, it is good, by averring that the Place mentioned in the Deed is in some County in England. For here the Place is not traversable.

But if this is not averred, and it appears that it was dated beyond Sea, it is otherwise, and the Deed cannot be tried.

A Deed is good without the Words In cuius rei Testimonium, &c. Owen 5. Case 33. Cro. Jac. 456. If it be duly sealed and delivered. Bulst. 300, 301, 302. Leon. 25. Bendl. 155.

Yet if the Deed says, that the Party both put his Hand and not his Seal to it; if he does put his Seal to it, it is good enough. Hetley 29.

And yet in Hetley 88. it is said, that a Serjeant said, that if the Words In cuius rei Testimonium were wanting in a Deed, that the Deed is not good, and that all Covenants, Grants and Agreements, which came after those Words in a Deed are not of Force, nor may be pleaded as Parcel of the Deed; but the Law is now taken to be otherwise. Hetley 136, 137. Dyer 19.

S E C T. XI.

Which of these formal or constituent Parts of Deeds are essential or not.

HAVING now gone through the several formal and constituent Parts of Deeds, it is necessary to observe,

That although they are the orderly and formal Parts of a Deed, yet they are not all essential Parts; for if a Deed of Feoffment is without Premises, Habendum, Tenendum, Reddendum, Clause of Warranty and Date, yet the Deed is good. Co. Lit. 7. a.

For if one by Deed gives Lands to another and to his Heirs, without saying any Thing more, and puts his Seal to the Deed, and delivers it, and makes a Livery where necessary, it is good. Ibid.

Nor is it necessary where all the formal and ordinary Parts of a Deed are in a Deed, that they be set down in Order, or in any orderly Place or Way; for if any Thing be written in the Deed after the Close of it, after In cujus rei Testimonium, or on the Back of the Deed before the Sealing and Delivery of the Deed, it is as good a Part of the Deed, and of as great Force, as any Part of the Deed that is within it. Bendl. 1, 2. Moor 5. Telv. 1, 2, 5 Co. 117. Style 97. Hetley 175. 2 Brownl. 107.

S E C T. XII.

Of the Ceremonies used on the Execution of Deeds.(A) Reading Deeds to blind or illiterate Men.

IF a Party to a Deed be blind or illiterate, and desires to hear it read before he seals it, it must be read truly to him; for if such a Man be to seal a Deed, and he desires to hear it read, or to have the Contents of it declared to him, and this be not done, and he afterwards seals and delivers it, this is not a good Deed; for he that is unlearned must, if he desires it, have the Deed he is to seal read to him in such Language as he understands. 2 Co. 9. 11 Co. 27. 14 H. 8. 20.

So if the Deed, or Effect of it, be otherwise declared to him than in Truth it is, it makes the Deed void. 2 Co. 9.

And therefore if the Parties to a Deed shall agree upon a Release to discharge the Arrearages of an Annuity, and one of the Standers by takes it whilst it is reading, and says to him that is to seal it, You will better understand it by hearing than by reading; and takes it in his Hand, and saith, It is but a Release of the Arrearages; and he says, If it be so, I am contented. And the Deed is a Release of all his Right in the Land, the Deed is void. Moor, Case 294. And. Case 175.

If he that is to seal the Deed can write and read, but is so old that he cannot see, and he directs what shall be written, and it is declared to him falsely and deceitfully, otherwise than it is; this will make it void. 12 Co. 90.

But if the Party that is to seal the Deed can read himself, and does not, or being an illiterate or blind Man, doth not require to have the Deed read, or the Contents of it declared: In these Cases, although the Deed be contrary to his Mind, yet it is good and unavoidable. 2 Co. 93. 11 Co. 27. 14 H. 8. 26. And. 129.

And if upon or without the Party's Request that is to seal a Deed, the Party himself to whom it is made, or a Stranger, shall read the Deed, or declare the Contents thereof falsely, or otherwise than the Truth is; by this the Deed (at least for so much as is mis-read or mis-declared) will lose its Force. 2 Co. 6. 11 Co. 24.

If there be two absolute and distinct Clauses in a Deed, and the one of them is read to the illiterate Party, and not the other, the Deed is good for that Clause, and void for the other, ab initio.

So if 20*l.* be in an Obligation, and but 20*s.* is read to him; and if he pays this, he is to be discharged of the Obligation. 14 H. 8. 26. 9 H. 5. 15. 11 Co. 27.

And if the Party himself that is to seal and deliver a Deed, shall (before it be done) cause a Stranger covinously to read it, or to declare the Contents of it falsely to him on Purpose to make the Deed void; this will not hurt the Deed.

If three distinct Obligations are written on a Piece of Parchment, and one of them is only read to the Obligor, being an illiterate Man, and he seals the Deed; this will be good for that which is read, and void for the Rest: But if the Obligation be for 20*l.* and he reads 20*s.* this is void for all. 11 Co. 27. 14 H. 8. 27, 28, 29.

If a Deed be read, as of a Grant or Gift of an Estate-tail, and a Letter of Attorney to give Livery of Seisin, and so the Party seals it, but it is a Feoffment in Fee: In this Case, although the Letter of Attorney be truly read, yet the Deed is void for all, because of the Dependence one Part hath with another. 11 Co. 27. Kelw. 70.

If one owes me two Debts, and pays me one of them, and I am to release it, and the Release is read to me as such, but it is a general one; it seems to be good only for so much as was read. 11 Co. 28. Fitz. Feoffments 57.

Illiterature is not an Excuse for not sealing of a Writing tendered in due Time, where he is bound to seal a Deed. 2 Co. 3. Moor, pl. 284.

A Deed

A Deed read amiss to him that cannot read, or mis-reported or mis-read to him that is blind, binds not. Hob. 96.

As if a Lease or an Obligation be read to an unlearned Man thus: If J. S. and his Wife convey unto you their Estate, then you shall make a Lease or Bond, &c. and in Truth the Condition is, If the Husband does it without naming the Wife, it is void. Hob. 226, 230. So if it be a Lease with Power of Revocation, and is read, or the Contents declared to be otherwise than it is. 12 Co. 90.

(B) Of signing Deeds.

THE subscribing of the Parties Names that make the Deed to the Deed, is not necessary; for the Deed, if it be sealed and delivered, is good, although the Party that makes it never puts his Hand or Mark to it. But it is the best and surest Way notwithstanding to have the Name or Mark of the Party to be subscribed to the Deed; for by this Means the Deed may be the better proved when the Witnesses are dead. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Fait, 9 Jac. Scot's Case.

(C) Of sealing Deeds.

WHEN a Deed is signed, the next Thing to be done is the Sealing of it.

Sealing is necessarily incident to a Deed, for it cannot be good without it, though it may be good without signing.

The Sealing is comprehended in these or the like Words, (viz.) In Witness whereof I have set my Seal. Though if these Words are wanting, the Sealing of the Deed is sufficient.

The Seal is an essential Part of the Deed; if a Writing is not sealed, it cannot be a Deed. If the Print of the Seal be utterly defaced, the Deed is insufficient; so that it cannot be pleaded, though it may be given in Evidence.

A Bargain and Sale of the Term to the Assignee of the Term, when the Bargainor is out of Possession, will not pass the Estate unless the same is sealed upon the Land; and to that Purpose, if the Grantor cannot be upon the Land to deliver the Deed himself, then he must sign and seal (but not deliver) the Deed of Assignment, and then make a Letter of Attorney of the same Date, to some Person to enter upon the Land and take Possession for him, and then being in Possession, the Attorney to deliver the Deed upon the Ground, as the Act and Deed of the Grantor.

So also it is of a Bargain and Sale of an Estate of Inheritance. 3 Lev. 387, 388, 312. Lev. 270, 271, 272.

The Deed must be only indorsed at the first thus: Signed and sealed, but not delivered, by the within written A. B. If the Deed is signed, sealed and delivered off from the Land, the Delivery upon the Land afterwards by the Attorney will signify nothing. Cro. Eliz. 483. pl. 19.

A Deed is made, and in the End thereof these Words: In Witness whereof I have hereunto set my Hand. And he writes his Name, and puts his Seal; this is a good Deed although no Mention be made of his putting of his Seal to it. Hetley 75.

(D) Of delivering Deeds.

AFTER a Deed is read, signed and sealed, it must be delivered.

For if it be never so well written and sealed, it is of no Force if it is not delivered by the Party himself, or his special Attorney, to whom it is made, or to his Use. Co. Lit. 35. b. 2 Co. 5. 5 Co. 1.

A Delivery is a necessary Incident to every Deed; and then when it is delivered, it shall bind him that delivers it though dated before, and though another wrote or sealed the same. Noy's Max. 55.

The Delivery of the Deed may be absolutely or conditionally.

When you deliver a Deed absolutely, Words are not necessary; for then a Man that is mute could not deliver a Deed. It is sufficient if it is delivered.

And as a Deed may be delivered to the Party without Words, so may a Deed be delivered by Words, without any Act of Delivery; as if the Writing sealed lieth upon the Table, and the Feoffor, &c. saith to the Feoffee, &c. take that as my Deed, it is a sufficient Delivery. 9 Co. 137. Co. Lit. 36. a. 49. b.

In Case of the King's Letters Patent, or of Grants under the Seal of the Duchy of Lancaster, the Seal is Matter of Record, and the Deeds need no Delivery: So the Deeds of a Corporation need no Delivery, the common Seal is perfect without it. Inst. 209. 2 Roll. Abr. 23, 24. Dav. 44.

When a Deed is delivered conditionally, it is called an Escrow; as where one seals a Deed, and delivers it to a Stranger until certain Conditions are performed, and then to be delivered to him to whom the Deed is made, to take Effect as the Deed of him who so delivered it; for it shall have Relation to that first Delivery.

In the Delivery of a Deed as an Escrow, you must use Words, and say, I deliver this as my Escrow, to deliver to the Party as my Deed, upon Condition that, &c. or to the like Effect.

For here a bare Act of Delivery to a Stranger without Words signifies nothing, it must be delivered to a Stranger; for if it is delivered to the Party himself, it is an absolute Delivery, though Words mention it only as an Escrow.

(E) Of Witnesses to the Execution of Deeds.

THERE must be Witnesses to testify the Sealing and Delivery of the Deed: Their Names should either be underwritten or indorsed by them. Co. Lit. 7. b. 10 Co. 93.

A Deed is good without the Words, sealed and delivered in the Presence; if it be sealed and delivered, and there are Witnesses to prove it: And although the Witnesses Names be not indorsed, if they can prove the Sealing and Delivery, it is well enough. Co. Lit. 6.

(F) Of indorsing the Receipt for the Consideration Money.

Notwithstanding there is a Receipt for the Consideration Money, and a Release of the same in a Deed, which is commonly in the Premises, (vide p. 239.) yet it is usual for a Receipt to be written on the Back of the Deed, and signed (but not sealed) by the Person that received the Money; and witnessed by the Witnesses to the Deed.

(G) Other Ceremonies necessary to perfect a Deed.

ALthough a Deed be never so well written, honestly intended, lawfully grounded, orderly and legally drawn and contrived, read, sealed, delivered and attested; yet for want of some additional Ceremony, or other Act required in the Case, it may be ineffectual; as,

1. In some Cases it is requisite for the Perfecting of a Deed, and the Estate made by it, that the Party to whom it is made agrees to it.
2. In other Cases that Livery of Seisin be made. Or,
3. That Attornment be made. Or,
4. That actual Entry be made into the Thing given or granted. Or,
5. That an Election be made upon the Gift or Grant; for want whereof the Deed will be defective not only for what will not, but for what will pass without it. Or,
6. That the Deed be inrolled in due Time. Or,
7. That it be registered.

First, As to the Agreement of him to whom a Deed is made.

Where a Deed is made for a Man's Advantage, the Law presumes he accepts it, unless the contrary be shewn. Cro. Eliz. 138.

But a Disagreement will make a Nullity of a Thing which before had an Essence; as,

If a Deed be made to a Feme Covert, and the Husband afterwards disagrees to it, this will make the Deed void.

If an Estate be made in Fee-simple or Fee-tail to a Man and his Wife, and he dies, and has not disagreed to it; this is an Agreement in Law, and vests the Estate in her: And if after his Death she enters into the Land and takes the Profits thereof; this is an actual Agreement, and good to bind her, though she says never a Word, or does it never so secretly. 3 Co. 26. 4 Co. 4, 62, 64. 5 Co. 36, 40. 5 Co. 119. Hob. 204.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant enfeoffs the Lord and a Stranger, and gives Livery to the Stranger in the Name of both, and after the Lord enters and takes the Profits; this is a good Agreement in Law. 10 Ed. 4. 3 Co. 26.

If an Infant or Parcener who has divided the Land, after he is of Age takes the Profits of his Part allotted to him: This is a good Agreement, affirming the Division, but taking the Profits of a Moiety does not so. Co. Lit. 171.

But an Agreement or Disagreement to an Interest must be made to the Party himself. Moor, Case 93. Hob. 204.

Secondly,

Secondly, As to Livery of Seisin.

Whenever a Feoffment is made, whether it be by or without Deed, there must be Livery of Seisin; for it is of the Essence of a Feoffment, and cannot be perfected till it be made; for till then the Feoffee has only an Estate at Will in the Land, liable to be put out whenever the Feoffor pleases. And if either of the Parties dies before Livery of Seisin made, the Feoffment is void.

And no Warrant of Attorney to make Livery can be executed after the Death of the Feoffor or Feoffee; neither is there any Remedy in this Case to get the Assurance made perfect but in a Court of Equity.

But in Case there are many Feoffees, there the Death of one, or some of them, will not hinder the Livery; but it may be made to him or them who survive.

For more relating to this Matter, see before concerning Letter of Attorney to make Livery of Seisin, and Title Feoffment in the next Chapter.

Thirdly, As Attornment.

See the next Chapter Title Grants, where this Subject is particularly treated.

Fourthly, As to actual Entry.

Where a Lease for Years may be made, it may be good to some Purposes; for the Lessee may forfeit or grant it before his Entry into the Thing let and granted; and yet to some other Purposes it is not perfect till the Lessee makes his Entry into the Land let; for if the Lessor, after he makes such a Lease, still continues the Possession of the Land let, he may not have, sue or recover the Rent reserved upon the Lease. Nor is the Lessor said to have any Reversion of the Land, so as by that Name to be able to grant it, till the Entry of the Lessee. Plowd. 432, 433.

But where a Man is to enter, there in most Cases the Entry will serve for many who have Interest, and the Entry into Part will gain the Possession of the Whole.

He who enters into Land, must be sure that he has a Right or Title of Entry, and that thereby he bring the Possession and Right together: For if he has not a Right or a Title to the Land, he shall have no Property in it in any Case, but in the Case of an Occupancy, whereby the Freehold is gained.

Although upon a Fine, which is a Feoffment on Record, the Conusee has a Freehold in Law in him before his Entry, yet in other Cases it is otherwise; for upon an Exchange (be it with or without a Deed) the Parties have neither Freehold in Deed or in Law before they enter.

So upon a Partition the Freehold is not removed until an Entry upon a Livery; within the View no Freehold is vested before an Entry: But if Tenant for Life, by the Agreement of him in Reversion, surrenders, he in Reversion has a Freehold in him in Law before he enters.

And if one bargains and sells his Land by Deed indented and inrolled, the Freehold in Law passes presently.

And so when Uses are raised by Covenant upon a good Consideration. Co. Lit. 266. Vide 11 H. 4. 61. 21 H. 7. 12. 38 E. 3. 12. 41 Aff. 2. 10 H. 6. 14, &c.

For more concerning Title Entry, see before Chap. 2.

Fifthly, As to Election.

In Cases where a Gift or Grant is by Deed, and at first incertain, there it may in many Cases be made good by Election; as,

If one gives me one of the two Horses in his Stable, and there be in the Stable two Horses, I may take which of them I will; and having so done, the Gift or Grant is good. Perk. Tit. Grants.

For more relating to Election, vide post Tit. Grant.

Sixthly, As to introlling Deeds.

This Head, though necessary to be mentioned here, is more properly treated of under the Title Bargain and Sale in the next Chapter.

Seventhly, As to the Registering Deeds and Wills, &c.

I shall now conclude this Chapter with an Abridgment of those excellent Statutes concerning Registering Deeds, Laws worthy of an universal Extent! though at present limited only to the East, West and North Ridings of Yorkshire, and the County of Middlesex.

An Abridgment of the Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 4. "For the publick Registering of all Deeds, Conveyances and Wills, that shall be made of any Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, within the West-Riding of the County of York, after the nine and twentieth Day of September 1704.

West-Riding
in Yorkshire.

This Statute recites, That whereas the West-Riding of the County of York is the principal Place in the North for the Cloth Manufacture, and most of the Traders therein are Freeholders, and have frequent Occasions to borrow Money upon their Estates for managing their said Trade; but for want of a Register find it difficult to give Security to the Satisfaction of the Money Lenders (although the Security they offer be really good); by Means whereof the said Trade is obstructed, and many Families ruined; for the Remedy whereof, at the humble Request of the Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen and Freeholders of the said West-Riding, It is enacted,

1. That a Memorial of all Deeds and Conveyances which from and after the 29th of September 1704. shall be made and executed, and of all Wills and Devises in Writing, made or to be made and published, where the Devisor or Testatrix shall die, after the said 29th of September, of or concerning, or whereby any Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments in the said West-Riding, may be any ways affected in Law or Equity, may, at the Election of the Party or Parties concerned, be registred in such a Manner as herein after directed; and that every Deed or Conveyance that shall at any Time after any Memorial is so registred, be made and executed of the Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or any Part thereof, comprized or contained in any such Memorial, shall be adjudged fraudulent and void against any subsequent Purchaser or Mortgagee for valuable Consideration, unless such Memorial thereof shall be registred, as by this Act is directed, before the Registering of the Memorial of the Deed or Conveyance under which such subsequent Purchaser or Mortgagee shall claim: And that every Devise by Will of the Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or any Part thereof, mentioned or contained in any Memorial so registred as aforesaid, that shall be made and published after the Registering of such Memorial, shall be adjudged fraudulent and void against any subsequent Purchaser or Mortgagee for valuable Consideration, unless a Memorial of such Will be registred in such Manner as is herein after directed.

2. And for settling and establishing a certain Method, with proper Rules and Directions for Registering such Memorials as aforesaid, it is further enacted, That one publick Office for Registering such Memorials of and concerning any Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, that are situate, lying and being within the said West-Riding, shall be established and kept in Wakefield, the nearest Market-Town to the Center or Middle of the said West-Riding, to be managed and executed by a fit and able Person, to be from Time to Time elected and appointed in Manner herein after directed, or his sufficient Deputy, and to continue in the said Office so long as he shall well demean himself therein.

elected.

3. And that all Elections of a Register to be made or appointed by Virtue of this Act, shall be performed by balloting in Manner following, (that is to say) All the Freeholders that at the Time of any such Election have an Estate of Freehold of or in any Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments within the said West-Riding, of the yearly Value of 100*l.* (to be determined by the Oath of the Elector, before the Scrutators herein after mentioned, if any Doubt arise touching the same, which Oath they are hereby impowered to administer) shall be Electors of the said Register; and that the Justices of the Peace for the said West-Riding in that Behalf assembled, or the major Part of them, or any five of such Justices, to be appointed by such major Part, shall be Scrutators of the Ballot; who shall meet on the Day and Place of Election, and there in the Presence of the Electors shall place one or more Glass Vessels to be provided for that Purpose, into which each Elector present shall put one open Paper, containing the Name of such Person as he approves of to be Register; which Papers shall be taken out again in the Presence of the said Scrutators, by a Person by them in that Behalf appointed; and the Name or Names of every Person therein, shall be once transcribed in distinct Columns, and under each Name shall be set down the Number of their Electors, which shall be deliberately cast up by the said Scrutators, and the same shall be read over in the Hearing, and fixed up in the View of the Electors present; and the Person upon whom the Majority shall fall shall be declared Register.

4. The

4. The Election of the first Register to be made at the next General Quarter-Sessions When chosen of the Peace to be holden for the said West Riding, after the Feast of Easter in 1704, in open Court, on the said second Day of the said Sessions, between nine in the Morning and three in Afternoon.

5. And when and as often as the said Office shall become vacant by the Death, Forfeiture or Surrender of any such Register, the Justices of the Peace for the said West-Riding, assembled at the General Quarter-Sessions of the Peace next after such Vacancy shall happen, or the major Part of them, shall in open Court declare the said Vacancy, and by Order of the same Sessions shall appoint and prefix a certain Day and Time within the Space of one Calendar Month, and above three Weeks ensuing the End of such General Quarter-Sessions, for the Electors to assemble at Wakefield aforesaid, to chuse a fit and able Person, in the Manner aforesaid, to supply the said Vacancy: And to the Intent that all Persons qualified to be Electors may have due Notice of such Vacancy and Time of Election of a succeeding Register, the Clerk of the Peace for the Time Being of the said West-Riding shall forthwith cause Copies of such Order for the prefixing the Time of such Election, to be delivered to the respective chief Constables of the several Wapentakes within the said West-Riding, who shall and hereby are required to publish the same in full Market in every Market-Town within their respective Wapentakes, on the next Market-Day after the Receipt thereof, and to affix the same in the most publick Place of Resort there.

6. And upon the Death of any such Register, and until another Election of a Person to execute that Office shall be made in Manner aforesaid, the Executors and Administrators of the Register deceased, together with the Sureties for the said Register, or their Executors and Administrators, shall appoint a proper Person to execute the Office of Register, for whose Demeanor in the Execution of the said Office, the Security given for such Register deceased shall be answerable.

7. And all and every Memorials so to be entred or registred shall be in Writing, in Velum or Parchment, and directed to the Register of the said Office; and in Case of Deeds and Conveyances, shall be under the Hand and Seal of some or one of the Grantors, or some or one of the Grantees, his or their Guardians or Trustees, attested by two Witnesses, one whereof to be one of the Witnesses to the Execution of such Deed or Conveyance; which Witness shall upon his Oath before the said Register, or his Deputy, prove the Signing and Sealing of the said Memorial, and the Execution of the Deed or Conveyance mentioned in such Memorial; and in Case of Wills, the Memorials shall be under the Hand and Seal of some or one of the Devisees, his or their Guardians or Trustees, attested by two Witnesses, one whereof shall upon his Oath before the said Register, or his Deputy, prove the Signing and Sealing of such Memorial; which respective Oaths the said Register, or his Deputy, is hereby impowered to administer.

8. And every Memorial of any Deed, Conveyance or Will, shall contain the Day of the Month and the Year when the Deed, Conveyance or Will bears Date, and the Names and Additions of all the Parties to such Deed or Conveyance, and of the Devisor or Testatrix of such Will, and of all the Witnesses to such Deed, Conveyance or Will, and the Places of their Abode; and shall express or mention the Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments contained in such Deed, Conveyance or Will, and the Names of all the Parishes, Townships, Hamlets, Precincts or Extraparochial Places within the said West-Riding, where any such Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments are lying or being, that are given, granted, conveyed, devised, or any way affected or charged by any such Deed, Conveyance or Will, in such Manner as the same are expressed or mentioned in such Deed, Conveyance or Will, or to the same Effect; and that every such Deed, Conveyance and Will, or Probate of the same, of which such Memorial is to be registred as aforesaid, shall be produced to the said Register, or his Deputy, at the Time of entring such Memorial, who shall endorse a Certificate on every such Deed, Conveyance and Will, or Probate thereof, and therein mention the certain Day, Hour and Time on which such Memorial is so entred and registred, expressing also in what Book, Page and Number the same is entred; and that the said Register, or his Deputy, shall sign the said Certificate when so endorsed, which Certificate shall be taken and allowed as Evidence of such respective Registries in all Courts of Record whatsoever; and that every Page of such Register-Books, and every Memorial that shall be entred therein shall be numbered, and the Day of the Month, and the Year and Hour, or Time of the Day when every Memorial is so registred, shall be entred in the Margents of the said Register-Books, and of the said Memorial; and that every such Register shall keep an Alphabetical Calendar of all Parishes, Extraparochial Places and Townships within the said West-Riding, with Reference to the Number of every Memorial that concerns the Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments in every such Parish, Extraparochial Place or Township respectively, and of the Names of the

10. And when and as often as the said Register shall appoint any Deputy to execute the said Office, such Deputy shall, before he enters upon the Execution thereof, take the said Oath appointed to be taken by the Register, before two or more Justices of the Peace for the said Riding; and every Register at the Time of his being sworn into the said Office, shall also enter into a Recognizance with two or more sufficient Sureties, to be approved of by five or more of the Justices of the Peace of the said Riding that were present at his said Election, by Writing under their Hands and Seals, to be registred at the next General Quarter-Sessions of the Peace for the said Riding, of the Penalty of two thousand Pounds unto her Majesty, her Heirs and Successors, to be taken by the same Justices of the Peace that approved of his Security, conditioned for his true and faithful Performance of his Duty in the Execution of his said Office: The same to be transmitted by the same Justices of the Peace within one Month next after the Date thereof, into the Office of her Majesty's Remembrancer of the Exchequer, there to remain amongst the Records of the said Court.

11. Provided that when any Register shall die, or surrender his Office, and that within the Space of three Years from and after such Death or Surrender no Misbehaviour appears to have been committed by such Register in the Execution of his said Office, then and in such Case, at the End of the said three Years after his Death or Surrender, the said Recognizance shall become void.

12. And it is further enacted, That every such Register, or his sufficient Deputy, shall give due Attendance at his Office every Day in the Week (except Sundays and Holydays) between nine and twelve in the Forenoon, and two and five in the Afternoon, for the Dispatch of all Business belonging to the said Office; and that every such Register or his Deputy, as often as required, shall make Searches concerning all Memorials that are registred as aforesaid, and give Certificates concerning the same under his Hand, if required by any Person.

13. And that every such Register shall be allowed for the Entry of every such Memorial as is by this Act directed, the Sum of one Shilling, and no more, in Case the same do not exceed 200 Words; but if such Memorial shall exceed 200 Words, then after the Rate and Proportion of 6d. an 100 for for all the Words contained in such Memorial, over and above the first 200 Words: And the like Fees for the like Number of Words contained in every Certificate or Copy given out of the said Office, and no more; and for ever Search in the said Office, one Shilling, and no more.

14. And that if any such Register, or his Deputy, shall neglect to perform his or their Duty in the Execution of the said Office, according to the Rules and Directions in this Act mentioned, or commit, or suffer to be committed, any undue or fraudulent Practice in the Execution of the said Office, and be thereof lawfully convicted; that then such Register shall forfeit his said Office, and pay treble Damages with full Costs of Suit to every such Person or Persons that shall be injured thereby; to be recovered by Action of Debt, &c.

15. And that the Person to be nominated as aforesaid, upon the Death of any Register, to execute the said Office during the Time the same shall be vacant as aforesaid, shall, before he enter upon the Execution thereof, take the Oath herein before appointed to be taken by such Register and his Deputy, before two or more Justices of the Peace for the said Riding: And that if such Person so nominated shall be lawfully convicted of any Neglect, Misdemeanor, or fraudulent Practice in the Execution of the said Office during such Vacancy, he shall be liable to pay treble Damages, with full Costs of Suit, to every Person that shall be injured thereby; to be recovered as aforesaid.

16. Provided

16. Provided that this Act shall not extend to any Copyhold Estates, or to any Leases at a Rack-Rent, or to any Lease not exceeding one and twenty Years, where the actual Possession and Occupation goeth along with the Lease.

17. Provided that where there are more Writings than one for making and perfecting any Conveyance or Security which do name, mention, or any ways affect or concern the same Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, it shall be a sufficient Memorial and Register thereof, if all the said Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, and the Parishes, Townships, Hamlets, or Extraparochial Places where the same lie, be only once named or mentioned in the Memorial, Register and Certificate of any one of the Deeds or Writings made for the Perfecting of such Conveyance or Security; and that the Dates of the Rest of the said Deeds or Writings relating to the said Conveyance or Security, with the Names and Additions of the Parties and Witnesses, and the Places of their Abodes, be only set down in the Memorials, Registers and Certificates of the same, with a Reference to the Deed or Writing whereof the Memorial is so registred, that contains or expresses the Parcels mentioned in all the said Deeds, and Directions how to find the Register of the same.

18. And that a Memorial of such Deeds, Conveyances and Wills, as shall be made and executed, or published in London, or in any other Place not within forty Miles of the said West-Riding, which do or may concern or affect any Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments in the said West-Riding, shall be entred or registred by the afore-said Register, or his Deputy, in Case an Affidavit sworn before any one of the Judges at Westminster, or a Master in Chancery, be brought with the said Memorial to the said Register, or his Deputy, wherein one of the Witnesses to the Execution of such Deeds and Conveyances shall swear he or she saw the same executed, and the Memorial signed and sealed as above-said, or wherein one of the Witnesses to the Memorial of any Will shall swear he or she saw such Memorial signed and sealed as above-said; and the same shall be a sufficient Authority to the said Register, or his Deputy, to give the Party that brings such Memorial and Affidavit a Certificate of the Registering such Memorial; which Certificate signed by the said Register, or his Deputy, shall be taken and allowed as Evidence of the Registries of the same Memorials in all Courts of Record whatsoever.

19. And that if any Person or Persons shall at any Time forge or counterfeit any such Memorial or Certificate as are herein before mentioned and directed, and be thereof lawfully convicted, such Person or Persons shall incur and be liable to the Penalties in Stat. of 5 Eliz. against all Forgers of false Deeds and Writings: And that if any Person or Persons shall at any Time forswear himself before the said Register, or his Deputy, or before any Judge or Master in Chancery, in any of the Cases afore-said, and be thereof lawfully convicted, such Person or Persons shall incur and be liable to the same Penalties as if the same Oath had been made in any of the Courts of Record at Westminster.

20. Provided that all Memorials of Wills that shall be registred in Manner as afore-said within the Space of six Months after the Death of every respective Devisor or Testatrix dying in England, Wales, and Town of Berwick upon Tweed, or within the Space of three Years after the Death of every respective Devisor or Testatrix dying upon or in any Parts beyond the Seas, shall be as valid and effectual against subsequent Purchasers, as if the same had been registred immediately after the Death of such respective Devisor or Testatrix.

21. Provided that in Case the Devisee, or Person or Persons interested in the Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments devised by any such Will as afore-said, by reason of the contesting such Will, or other inevitable Difficulty, without his, her or their wilful Neglect or Default, shall be disabled to exhibit a Memorial for the Registry thereof within the respective Times herein before limited; then and in such Case the Registry of the Memorial within the Space of six Months next after his, her or their Attainment of such Will, or a Probate thereof, or Removal of the Impediment, whereby he, she or they are disabled or hindred to exhibit such Memorial, shall be a sufficient Registry within the Meaning of this Act.

22. And no Member of Parliament for the Time Being shall be capable of being chosen Register, or of executing by himself, or any other Person, the said Office; or have, take or receive any Fee, or other Profit whatsoever, for or in Respect thereof: Nor shall any Register, or his Deputy for the Time Being, be capable of being chosen a Member to serve in Parliament.

23. This Act shall be taken as a publick Act; and all Judges and Justices are hereby required as such to take Notice thereof, without special Pleading the same.

An Abridgment of the Statute 6 Ann. c. 35. "For the publick Registering of all Deeds, Conveyances, Wills, and other Incumbrances that shall be made of or that may affect any “Honours, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments within the East-Riding of the County of York, or the Town and County of the Town of Kingston upon Hull, after the nine and twentieth Day of September 1708. and for rendring the Register in the West-Riding more compleat.”

East-Riding
in Yorkshire.

This Statute recites, That whereas the Lands in the East-Riding of the County of York, and in the Town and County of the Town of Kingston upon Hull, are generally Freehold, which may be so secretly transferred or conveyed from one Person to another, that such as are ill-disposed have it in their Power to commit Frauds, and frequently do so, by Means whereof several Persons (who through many Years Industry in their Trades and Employments, and by great Frugality, have been enabled to purchase Lands, or to lend Monies on Land Security) have been undone in their Purchases and Mortgages, by prior and secret Conveyances and fraudulent Incumbrances, and not only themselves but their whole Families thereby utterly ruined: For Remedy whereof, (at the humble Request of the Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen and Freeholders of the said East-Riding, and of the said Town and County of the Town of Kingston upon Hull) It is enacted,

to be registred.

1. ## CHAP. VI.

Of the different Kinds of Deeds, Wills and Testaments.

SECT. I.

Of the Difference between Deeds, Wills and Testaments.

BEING in this Chapter to treat of the different Kinds or Sorts of Deeds, Wills and Testaments, it is proper to shew what Distinction the Law makes between one and the other.

A Deed (as before observed, Chap. 5. §. 1.) is a Writing or Instrument sealed and delivered to prove the Agreement of the Parties to what is contained therein.

And a Will, Devise or Testament, is Directions for the Disposition of a Person's Effects after his Decease.

The former takes Effect on the Perfecting thereof, by Sealing and Delivery, Livery of Seisin, &c. and the latter on the Death of the Testator; but as Lands or Goods may either be conveyed by Deed or Will, it is necessary to treat of both in this Chapter.

SECT. II.

Of the various Kinds of Deeds in general.

(A) With Relation to the exterior Form.

AS to the exterior Forms of Deeds, I have before shewn in what Hand and Language a Deed must be written, and that it must be written in Paper, Parchment or Vellum; it remains now to shew what Kinds of Deeds there are relative to the exterior Form: Therefore observe, that all Deeds are either indented or Poll.

Indenture.

A Deed indented (or that which is called an Indenture) is when the Paper or Parchment is indented, or cut unevenly, or in and out on the Top or Side answerable to another that comprehends the self same Matter and Form; and it is so called because it is so indented; for although it is called an Indenture, and usually begins in these Words, This Indenture, &c. yet if it begins with these Words, and is not actually indented, it is no Indenture, but it will have the Effect of a Deed Poll; and if it be not so called, or the Words, This Indenture in the Beginning, or Words importing the same, be omitted, yet if it be indented it is an Indenture in Law.

An Indenture was antiently called Charta cyrographata vel communis, because each Party had his Part.

An Indenture is sometimes Bipartite, i. e. of two Parts, when there are two Parties and two Parts of the Deed, and then commonly the Feoffor, Grantor or Lessor has one Part, and the Feoffee, Grantee or Lessee, the other Part. Sometimes it is Tripartite, i. e. when there are three Parties and three Parts, and then commonly each Party has a Part of the Indenture. And sometimes it is Quadripartite, Quinquépartite, &c. according to the Parts that are sealed interchangeably one to another. Among these Parts that which is sealed by the Feoffor, Feoffor, Grantor or Lessor, is the Principal or Original, and the Rest are called Accessary, Counterparts or Copies; and yet all of them in Law do make up one intire Deed, every Part of the Indenture being of as great Force and Effect as all the Parts together.

These Deeds are sometimes in the first Person; as, Know all Men, and that I A. B. have given and granted, &c. and although an Indenture be so made, yet it is good.

And sometimes they are made in the third Person; as, This Indenture witnesseth, &c. that the same A. B. &c. hath given and granted, &c. But a Deed Poll is usually made in the first Person, yet if it be made in the third Person, it is good.

And though the Feoffor, Donor or Lessor, only seals the Part of the Indenture running in the third Person belonging to the Feoffee, Donee or Lessee, the Indenture is good; for if the Feoffee, Donee or Lessee, never seals the Counterpart belonging to the Feoffor, &c. he has an Interest in the Estate, being made Party to the Deed in the Beginning.

But if the Indenture is made in the first Person, mention must be made in the Deed, that the Feoffee, &c. has put his Seal; and he must put his Seal accordingly to make himself Party to the Deed; for he is not Party to the Deed, (being made in the first Person) but only by the Clause that he hath put his Seal thereunto.

All the Parts of a Deed indented in Judgment of Law make up but one Deed, and every Part is of as great Force as all the Parts together, and they are esteemed the mutual Deeds of either Party, and either Party may be bound by either Part of the same, and the Words of the Indenture are the Words of either Party.

And although they be spoken as the Words of one Party only, yet they are not his Words alone, but may be applied to the other Party if they more properly belong to him; for every Word that is doubtful shall be applied and expounded to be spoken by him to whom they will best agree, according to the Intent of the Parties; and they shall not be taken more strongly against one, or beneficially for the other, as the Words of a Deed Poll shall: If therefore A. by Indenture enfeoff B. upon Condition, and then enters for the Condition broken; in this Case it hath been held, that A. in his Pleading may shew forth the Deed that he himself sealed, and this is sufficient.

And therefore it is also thought that an Indenture made in the first Person is as good in the Law as an Indenture made in the third Person, when both Parties have to this put their Seals; for if in an Indenture made in the third Person, or in the first Person, Mention be made that the Grantor only has put to his Seal, and not the Grantee, then the Indenture is only the Deed of the Grantor; but when Mention is made that the Grantee also has put his Seal to the Indenture, it shall be said to be the Deed of them both.

And although both Parts of an Indenture are but as one Part, yet the Deed of the Grantor, Feoffor, &c. is the Principal, and the other are but Counterparts.

And therefore if the Lessor only seals and not the Lessee, yet it is as good as if both had sealed; and if there be any Difference between the Parts, the Counterparts shall be made to agree with the Principal, and it shall be deemed the Misprision of the Clerk.

But now it is customary in some Deeds, and very proper, to make all the Parts Originals by all the Parties signing, sealing and delivering each Part.

This Deed is the strongest Kind of Deed of the two, for this worketh an Estoppel, i. e. it bars and concludes either Party to say or except any Thing against any Thing contained in it; for if a Lease be by Indenture, both Parties are concluded to say that the Lessor has nothing in the Land at the Time of the Lease made; so that if the Lessor happens to have the Land afterwards by Purchase or Descent, the Lessee may enter upon him by way of Conclusion, and the Lessee by Estoppel shall be forced to pay his Rent: But it is otherwise of a Deed Poll, for this is commonly but of one Part, which is sealed by the Feoffor, Lessor, &c. only; and this shall be expounded to be the sole Deed of the Feoffor, Lessor, &c. and the Words therein contained shall be said to be his Words, and shall bind him only, and be expounded altogether in Advantage of the Feoffee, Lessee, &c. and against the Feoffor, Lessor, &c. and does not work any Estoppel against either Party.

But if a Deed be indented or Poll, and there be therein reciprocal Covenants between them from one to another, although there be but one Part, yet if each of them seals and delivers it one to the other, this is good for both Parties; and each of them that can get the Deed into his Hand to shew or plead may take Advantage thereof against the other; and in this Case the Deed is usually kept by one indifferent between them both.

A. enfeoffs B. of a Manor, rendring for certain Closes, Parcel of the Manor, 60*l.* Rent per Ann. and A. assigned the Rent to C. by Bargain and Sale inrolled; B. delivered the Counterpart sealed by him to C. who lost it, and A. found it and tore it. C. brought an Action against A. for tearing the Counterpart; upon which it was held by all the Judges but the C. J. that this being only a Counterpart, and not being particularly granted, did not pass to the Plaintiff as incident; but the Chief Justice held, that this Counterpart waited upon the Interest, and is as good Evidence for it. Yelv. 223.

In Cur' Can' a Counterpart of a Settlement in Tail was admitted as sufficient Evidence, that there was such a Settlement, and a Conveyance was decreed accordingly. Prec. Chan. 116.

Duplicate.

There were two Patentees of the same Office for their Lives; one whereof had the real Patent, and the other had only a Duplicate: The principal Patent was wrote per Warrantiam de privato sigillo auctoritate Parliamenti, and a little under the Seal of the other was wrote the Word Duplicate; he that had the principal Patent surrendered it in the Absence of the other Patentee who was beyond Sea, and took a new Patent to himself and another Person, and the first Patent was cancelled: It was several Persons Opinions, that when the principal Patent was cancelled, the Force of the Duplicate was gone in Law, because no Title could be made by this Patent, because it was granted and sealed by the Chancellor at his Pleasure, and without any Warrant from the King so to do. D. 179. b.

Per Holt C. J. If a Fine be levied by Baron and Feme of Lands which he has in Right of his Wife, and there is a Deed made at the same Time to declare the Uses thereof, and afterwards this Deed is lost, and then another is made to the same Effect, and dated as the first; that Deed is sufficient to declare the Uses of the Fine. Holt's Rep. 735.

A Person who had a large Estate, settled the greatest Part of it, and constrained himself to deliver all the Deeds to the Purchaser, by which he had none left to make out the Title to the Residue. The Vendor moved the Court of Chancery, that the Parties to the Conveyance to him might be ordered to execute a Duplicate of the Conveyance to be kept by him. Lord Keeper Wright said, he looked upon it to be within the Covenant for further Assurance, and ordered that a Duplicate should be executed, but that it should be indorsed upon it, that this was only a Duplicate. But the Matter being moved again by the other Side, the Order was discharged; because the Decree being once executed, the Court had no more to do in it. Abr. Ca. Eq. 166.

Deed Poll.

A Deed Poll is that which is plain without any indenting when the Parchment or Paper is polled or cut even.

This was antiently called Charta de una parte; for it is single and but one, which the Feoffee, Grantee or Lessee, for the most part has.

Every Deed that is pleaded shall be intended to be a Deed Poll, unless it is alledged to be indented. It commonly begins thus, To all People to whom these Presents shall come, &c. or Know all Men by these Presents, &c. In this Deed Poll a Lessee is not estopped or concluded to plead, that the Lessor had nothing at the Time of the Lease made; for the Lessor only puts his Seal to it, and delivers it only as his Act.

If a Defeasance of a Statute be indented, yet it is but in the Nature of a Deed Poll, and the Words of the Defeasance are the Act and Words of the Conusee only; and if the Conusor and Conusee deliver a several Deed to one another, and there is a Variance in any material Point, it shall be expounded according to the Deed delivered by the Conusee. 2 And. 58.

If an Indenture be not made between Parties, it is in Nature of a Deed Poll, and thereby the Party may covenant with a Stranger. 2 Lev. 74.

A. by a Deed Poll covenanted with B. to sell him Land for 200*l.* and B. by the same Deed covenanted with A. to pay the Money. B. sealed and delivered it as his Deed to A. and so did A. to B. This was adjudged the Deed of both A. and B. and he that has it may have Covenant against the other on Breach. 2 And. 30.

What Conveyance must be by Indenture, and not by Deed Poll.

By Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 16. No Manors, Lands, Tenements or other Hereditaments, shall pass, alter or change from one to another, whereby any Estate of Inheritance or Freehold shall be made or take Effect in any Person or Persons, or any Use thereof to be made by Reason only of any Bargain and Sale thereof, except that the same Bargain and Sale be made by Writing indented, sealed and inrolled.

For more of this Act, vide Tit. Bargain and Sale, post.

And by Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. All Leases of any Manors, &c. by Writing indented under Seal for Term of Years, or Life, by any Person of full Age, having any Estate of Inheritance either in Fee-simple, or in Fee-tail, in their own Right, or in the Right of their Churches or Wives, or jointly with their Wives, of any Estate of Inheritance made before the Coverture or after, shall be good and effectual in the Law against the Lessors, their Wives, Heirs and Successors, and every of them.

And by Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 7. A Bargain and Sale of a Bankrupt's Estate must be by Deed indented and inrolled.

For this Statute see before Page 96.

And by Stat. 43 Eliz. c. 11. Where the Queen or her Successors is or shall be Lord or Owner of the Freehold of the Soil of Waste or Common (proposed by this Act to be drained and recovered recovered in the Isle of Ely, and the Counties of Cambridge, Huntington, Northampton, Lincoln, Norfolk, Suffolk, Sussex, Essex, Kent, and County Palatine of Durham) the most Part of the Commoners in such Soil may contract, bargain, assign and set forth Part of their Common therein, to any Persons who will undertake the Draining; which shall bind all the said Commoners, their Heirs, Executors or Assigns, and all others that shall hereafter, by Reason of any their Residence, claim any Common of Pasture in the said Wastes or common Grounds whereof the Soil belongs to the Queen, of and for all their Interest or Claim of Common therein; To hold according to the true Intent and Effect of such Contract, Bargain, Assignment and Conveyances, by Writing indented, sealed and delivered by the most Part of such Commoners, as shall be made between the most Part of such Commoners and such Undertakers: But shall not in any Sort be of any Effect or Validity against the Queen, her Heirs, Successors or Assigns, or their Estates in the Soil thereof, except such Conveyances be by Writing indented in Parchment, and one Part thereof under the Hands and Seals of most Part of the Commoners so contracting the same, certified into Chancery, if the Waste or Soils shall be of the Possessions of the Queen's Crown of England; and except her Majesty's Royal Consent be obtained thereunto, and signified by and under the Queen's Privy Seal, or Great Seal, and inrolled in the Queen's said Court of Chancery; and after such Assent so had, signified and inrolled, then the same Contracts and Covenants shall be good and available to all and every such Undertakers, their Heirs and Assigns, against the Queen's Heirs and Successors, according to the Provisions, Agreements and Covenants so assented unto by the Queen, her Heirs and Successors; and where they are of the Possession of the Duchy of Lancaster, then the said Contract, Bargain, Assignment of or from the Queen, shall not be of any Effect or Validity against the Queen, her Heirs, Successors and Assigns; except such Contract and Bargain touching the Premises, and such Assignment and setting forth of such Part to the said Undertakers to hold in Severalty be, by Writing indented in Parchment, sealed and delivered by the said Commoners, or the most Part of them, and the said Undertakers, and one Part thereof, certified under the Hands and Seals of most Part of the Commoners, into the Queen's Court of the Duchy of Lancaster for the Time Being, and her Majesty's Royal Consent under the Seal of the said Duchy obtained thereunto, and there inrolled in that Court; which Consent Royal being obtained for the Soil of such Waste, being of the Possessions of the Crown, and under the Seal of the said Duchy, of the Queen's Soil of such Waste as are of those Possessions, the said Undertakers, and their Heirs and Assigns, shall and may enjoy in Severalty the Soil of so much Waste and Common as was so contracted for, assigned and set forth by the most Part of the Queen's Commissioners, in such Sort and Quality as the said Undertakers shall hold and enjoy the Interest of Common to all Intents and Purposes.

Provided always, that this Act, nor any Thing therein contained, shall not extend to the Impairing, Diminishing, Letting, Taking away or Extinguishing of the Interest of Commoners, or any of them, or of the Lords or Owners of the Soil, of, in or to any Part of the Residue of the Waste or Commons which is not or shall not be set forth or assigned to the Undertakers, nor to any Franchises or Liberties, or Waif, Stray, Leet, Law-Day, nor other Liberties to be used or taken in the Part so to the said Undertakers assigned, but that as well the Commoners and Lords and Owners of that Soil, shall and may enjoy their Commons in the Residue thereof; and the Queen's Majesty, her Heirs and Successors, and the Lords and Owners, shall and may have and enjoy such Liberties and Franchises in such their Part as heretofore was lawfully used, and as they or any of them should or might have done, if this Act, or such Contract, Bargain and Assignment, had never been.

Provided always, that this Act, or any Thing therein contained, shall not extend either to any Bargain, Sale, Agreement, Grant, Conveyance or Assurance, or to the Inning, Draining, or Laying dry of any Commons, Marshes or surrounded Grounds, whereby or by Means whereof any of the Havens or Ports of the Realm may be in any Sort annoyed, impaired or hindred, nor to any Grants within eight Miles of Yarmouth, or six Miles of Lynn in Norfolk.

Note; The preceding Clause of this Act relates to Contracts, &c. made concerning the Wastes and Commons of which the Soil belongs to Subjects, but it does not direct such Contracts, &c. to be by Deed indented; the Clause of the Act is as follows:

It is enacted, That the Lord or Lords, as well Bodies Politick or Corporate, as any other Person or Persons whatsoever of all and every the Waste and Commons aforesaid, and the most of the Commoners for their particular Commons, and likewise the Owners, and such as have or shall have Interest in any several surrounded Grounds lying within or near the same, may contract or bargain for Part of such Commons, Wastes and Severals aforesaid, with such Person and Persons which will undertake the Draining and Keeping dry perpetually the several Wastes or Commons of that Quality; which Contract, and Bargain and Conveyances thereupon made, shall be good and available in Law to all Constructions and Purposes against the said Lords of the said Soil, and Owners of Severals, and their Heirs, Successors and Assigns, and all the Commoners, and such as shall or might have Common or Interest there afterwards, according to the Contracts, Covenants, Provisions and Agreements in those Conveyances to be specified, and for so much of such Commons, Wastes or Severals, as shall be so contracted or conveyed; To hold and enjoy in Severalty, to such Person or Persons, his or their Assignee or Assignees, as shall or have undertaken the same, in such Manner and Form as his or their Estates and Interest are or shall be, by or upon such Contracts or Agreements, by such Conveyances limited or appointed.

There are three Kinds of Persons who may make Leases for three Lives, &c. but they must be by Deed indented, and not by Deed Poll, viz. (1) Any Person seised of an Estate-tail in his own Right. (2) Any Person seised of an Estate in Fee-simple in the Right of his Church. (3) Any Husband and Wife seised of any Estate of Inheritance in Fee-simple or Fee-tail in the Right of his Wife, or jointly with his Wife before the Coverture or after, viz. the Tenant in Tail by Deed to bind his Issue in Tail, but not the Reversion or Remainder; the Bishop, &c. by Deed without the Dean and Chapter, to bind his Successors; the Husband and Wife by Deed to bind the Wife and her and their Heirs; and these are made good by the Statute of 32 Hen. 8.

(B) Of the various Kinds of Deeds with Relation to their Use and Effect.

THERE are some Deeds which concern the Publick, and others which concern and are made between particular Persons.

And of these some are absolute and some conditional, some concern the Realty, some the Personalty, and some are mixed.

Some Deeds contain Matter of Grant, or Gift, amongst which Feoffments, Gifts, Bargains and Sale, Grants and Leases, are the chief.

And some of them contain Matter of Discharge, as Releases, Acquittances, Defeasances, and such like.

And some of them contain other Matter, as Confirmations, and such like.

Or as they are otherwise distinguished: Some of them are constitutive and making, and some are remissory or liberatory. Some of the first Sort are creating, i. e. such whereby an Estate, Property or Obligation, not having Essence before, is newly raised and created; as the first Grant of a Rent, Common, Way, &c. Estate-tail for Life, Years, &c. and some of them are conveying, i. e. such by which Estates, Properties, and the like, being already created, are conveyed to others; as Feoffments, Bargains and Sales, Grants over, or Assignments, Surrenders, and the like.

Those of the last Sort are such as describe and testify some precedent Contract for a Duty or Fact to be paid, performed or done, released or discharged; of which Sort are all Acquittances, Releases, and other such like Matters of Discharge.

But observe, First, That there may be and are divers other Kinds of Deeds besides those which are named before; for every Agreement put in Writing, sealed and delivered, becomes a Deed.

And Attornments, Exchanges, Surrenders, Partitions, Authorities, Commissions, Licences, Revocations, and the like, are usually made, given, done and granted by Deed; and there are divers other Instruments concerning Merchants, and other Affairs; if therefore any of these be done by Deed, such a Deed is for the most part subject to the Rules of Deeds herein laid down.

Although Feoffments, Gifts, Bargains, Leases, Attornments, Exchanges, Surrenders, and such like, may in divers Cases be as well made and done without as with a Deed; yet if a Man will make his Claim to any Thing given or granted by such Feoffments, Gifts, &c. by Deed, such Deed must be a good and perfect Deed.

Conveyances are either, (1) According to the Course of the Common Law; (2) According to, or by Force or Power of Acts of Parliaments; or (3) According to Custom.

First, According to the Course of the Common Law, there are two Kinds of Conveyances; 1. By Matter of Record; 2. By Matter in pais.

I. By Matter of Record, they are either, (1) By Fine; (2) By Common Recovery; or (3) By Deed inrolled.

1. Fines in general are of two Kinds; (1) At Common Law; or (2) With Proclamations: And their Effects are, (1) In Relation to the barring Privies, or Conveyance of Estates; or (2) In Relation to Strangers, Non-claim.

2. Common Recoveries as to their Kinds, are either with single, double or treble Voucher : And as to their Effects, they are (1) In Relation to transferring or barring Estates-tail, Remainders, Reversions, &c.

3. Deeds inrolled are of three Kinds ; (1) Deeds inrolled by special Custom, as in London ; (2) Deeds inrolled at Common Law ; or (3) Deeds inrolled in Pursuance of Stat. 27 H. 8. or Bargains and Sales inrolled.

II. Conveyances by Matter in pais, are either, (1) Without Deed ; or (2) By or with Deed.

Conveyances in pais without Deed, are either, (1) Of Chattels, as Leases or Extents of Land, which may be either by Grant or Assignment by Parol, or by Exchange, (but as to the last Quære) ; or (2) Of Freeholds of Lands by Livery, and Conveyances in pais with or by Deed, with Relation to the creating or passing Estates, are called Charters, Grants or Feoffments.

Deeds with Relation to their Use (as has been observed in the last Section of Chapter 5.) are either, (1) Such as have their Efficacy without the Adjunct of some other Ceremony ; or (2) Such as to their Effects require another Ceremony to be joined with them.

I. As to the first they are of three Kinds, (1) Grants, (2) Releases, and (3) Confirmations.

As to Grants ; there are many Things that are of an incorporeal Nature ; as Advowsons, Tithes, Liberties, Commons, &c. that cannot pass from one to another by Act of the Party without Deed, and yet pass by Deed without any other Ceremony requisite.

As to Releases, they are of several Kinds, viz. (1) Releases whereby the Thing released is extinguished in the Possession of the Releasee ; as Rights, Common, Seigniories, Rents, &c. and other Profits issuing out of Lands by Release to the Tenant ; or (2) Releases whereby an Estate is transferred, which is either by Mitter le Estate, as of one Jointenant to another ; or by Encrease or Enlargement of the Estate, being made by the Reversioner to the Lessee in Privy, with apt enlarging Words.

As to Confirmations, they are of two Sorts, viz. 1. Corroborating the Estate of which it is made ; as Dean and Chapter confirming the Grant of the Bishop ; Patron and Ordinary confirming the Grant of the Parson ; or the Disseisor that of the Disseisor. 2. Enlarging the Estate with apt Words, as in Case of Release.

II. And as to such Deeds as require a Ceremony concomitant with them to make them effectual ; such Ceremonies are Livery of Seisin in the Case of Feoffment, though by Deed ; or Attornment, which is requisite in Grants of Reversions, Remainders, Rents, Seigniories.

The Effects of Attornments are, (1) To create a Privy of Distress or Action, as in the Case of Fines, Quid juris clamat, Quem redditum reddit, Per quæ servitia. Or (2) To pass the Interest, as in Case of Grants singly by Deed.

As to other Concomitant Ceremonies, see the last Section of Chapter 5.

Secondly, Conveyances according to, or by Force or Power of Acts of Parliament, are of two Kinds ; 1. By way of Bargain and Sale, according to the Stat. 27 H. 8. 2. By way of Use, which is either, (1) With Transmutation of Possession, as by Feoffment or Fine ; or (2) Without Transmutation of Possession, by Covenant to stand seised. 3. By way of Devise.

Thirdly, Conveyances according to Custom. These are of Copyhold Estates, which are either by the Grant of the Lord where he is absolute Owner ; or by Surrender and Admittance, where the Owner is a Copyholder.

All which Kinds of Deeds and Instruments, whether constitutive, conveying, restrictive, remissory or liberatory, are proposed to be particularly treated of in the ensuing Part of this Chapter, viz. under the Titles of,

1. Feoffment.
2. Fine, which is a Feoffment on Record.
3. Common Recovery, which is a common Conveyance, and is in the Nature of a Feoffment on Record.
4. Indentures to lead the Uses of Feoffments, Fines and common Recoveries.
5. Covenants to stand seised to Uses.
6. Bargain and Sale.
7. Grant.
8. Lease.
9. Release.
10. Lease and Release.
11. Confirmation.
12. Assignment.

13. Mortgages.
14. Exchange.
15. Surrender.
16. Revocation and new Declaration.
17. Statute.
18. Obligation and Bond.
19. Defeasance.
20. Will and Testament.

Of Feoffments.

(A) Feoffment what, and Feoffor and Feoffee who.

Feoffment,
Definition of
Derivation of the Word.

A Feoffment is a Conveyance in Fee-simple of a corporeal Estate of Inheritance by Word or Writing, with Livery of Seisin.

The Word Feoffment (Feoffamentum) in the Opinion of some Writers, is derived from the Gothick Word Feodum, which is interpreted Fee, and signifies Donationem Feudi. Cowel's Interp.

Lord Coke (Co Lit. 9. a.) says, Feoffment is derived from the Word of Art Feodum quia est Donatio Feodi; for the antient Writers of the Law call a Feoffment Donatio, of the Verb Do or Dedi, which is the aptest Word of Feoffment; and that Word Ephron used (Gen. 23. ver. 11, &c.) when he enfeoffed Abraham, saying, I give thee the Field of Machpelah over against Mamre, and the Cave therein I give thee, and all the Trees in the Field and the Borders round about; all which were made sure unto Abraham for a Possession, in the Presence of many Witnesses.

It is a Conveyance in

A Feoffment is a Conveyance in Fee-simple; for Lit. §. 57. says, a Feoffor is where a Man enfeoffs another in any Lands or Tenements in Fee-simple, and makes this Difference between him and a Donor or Lessor: A Donor (says he) is where a Man gives certain Lands or Tenements to another in Tail, and a Lessor is where a Man lets to another Lands or Tenements for Term of Life or Years, or to hold at Will.

real Estate.

* Sed vide
(B).

A Feoffment must be of a corporeal Estate of Inheritance. An Estate in Fee or Inheritance is either corporeal, as Lands and Tenements which lie in Livery, comprehended in the Word Feoffment, and may pass by Livery by Deed, or * without Deed, which some call Hereditas corporata. Or incorporeal, which lie in Grant, and cannot pass by Livery, but by Deed, as Advowsons, Commons, &c. which by some is called Hereditas incorporata. Co. Lit. 9. a.

Sometimes a Conveyance is improperly called a Feoffment when an Estate of Freehold only passes. Co. Lit. 9. a.

By Freehold only is meant such Estate as is not Fee-simple, or of Inheritance, as a Man's own or another's Life, or an Estate in Tail; for although an Estate in Fee-simple is Freehold too, yet it is also an Estate of Inheritance, and the greatest Estate a Man can have.

These Estates are called Freeholds to distinguish them from Estates for Years, Chattels upon uncertain Interests, Lands in Villenage, or customary or Copyhold Lands. And Note, that Tenants by Statute-Merchant, Statute-Staple or Elegit, are said to hold Lands ut liberum Tenementum till their Debts be paid; but in Truth they have no Freehold but a Chattel, which goes to the Executors. Co. Lit. 43. b.

By Word or Writing.

A Feoffment must be by Word or Writing. Parol Feoffments were usually made in former Times, but now they are restrained (by the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. of Frauds and Perjuries) to extend no farther than Estates at Will. See the next Division (B).

So that now Feoffments are usually made in Writing, and then they are called Deeds of Feoffment, as a Distinction from Parol Feoffments.

With Livery of Seisin.

Livery of Seisin must be of the Thing conveyed, for till that is made, the Words or Deed of Feoffment have no Effect to change any Use, nor pass any Estate but at Will, so that Livery of Seisin is essentially necessary.

Investiture.
Feoffor and Feoffee who.

The Feudists call a Feoffment an Investiture. Spelm. Gloss. verbo Feoffare.

A Feoffor is he who makes such Feoffment; and a Feoffee is he to whom it is made.

Enfeoff what.

From whence proceeds the Word enfeoff; so one may properly say, the Feoffor enfeoffs the Feoffee of such and such Lands, &c.

(B) Of

(B) Of the Antiquity of Feoffments.

AS all Property in Lands began by Occupancy, so it seems the first Method of transferring Property was by Investiture (that is by Feoffment); for as no Man could originally appropriate but by settling himself in the Possession and Application of it to his own Use; so no Man could transfer but by a solemn and publick Delivering over the Possession, and the Ceremony used in such Act of Delivery is in our Law called Livery of Seisin, and is thus defined, Solemnis rei feudalís traditio sub protestatione fidei coram testibus vassalo facta. Spelm. Gloss. 510.

The End and Design of this Institution was, by this Sort of Ceremony or Solemnity, to give Notice of the Translation of the Feud from one Hand to another; because if the Possession might be changed by the private Agreement of the Parties, such secret Contracts would make it difficult and uncertain to discover in whom the Estate was lodged; and consequently the Lord would be at a Loss of whom to demand his Services, and Strangers equally perplexed to discover against whom to commence their Actions for the Prosecution and Recovery of their Right; to prevent therefore this Uncertainty, the Ceremony of Livery and Seisin was instituted.

This Method of Conveyance was made use of before Men were acquainted with Letters, and therefore it was required to be on the Land, or near the Land, that the other Tenants of the Manor might be Witnesses of it, who in those Days were called to the Lord's Court to determine all Controversies relating to such Translation; and though after the Use of Letters a Charter of Feoffment was introduced, yet was not this necessary, but only tended to the Authentication or Evidence of it; and so our Law determined before the Statute of Frauds and Perjuries. See the Alterations that Statute made hereafter.

It has been before observed, that Ephron enfeoffed Abraham (Gen. 23. ver. 11, &c.) of the Field of Machpelah over against Mamre, and the Cave therein and all the Trees in the Field and Borders round about, in the Presence of many Witnesses, A. M. 2133.

It is plain in the Scriptures, that upon making a Feoffment of Lands Livery of Seisin was made; for we read in Ruth, chap. 1st and 4th, that Elimelech, his Wife Naomi, and two Sons Mahlon and Chilion, went into the Land of Moab, where the two Sons married Orpah and Ruth: The Father and two Sons died; the Widow returned into her own Country with Ruth her Daughter-in-law. Now Boaz was a near Kinsman to Elimelech, and Naomi thought he had a Right to inherit her Husband's Lands; but Boaz called into Judgment a nearer Relation than himself, and advised him to redeem the Estate according to the Manner in Israel; and telling him, that if he would not, he himself was the next after him. He said he would redeem it; but upon Boaz's telling him, that upon buying the Land of the Hand of Naomi, he must buy it also of Ruth the Moabitess, the Wife of the Dead, to raise up the Name of the Dead upon his Inheritance, the Kinsman replied, he could not redeem it for himself, lest he married his own Inheritance, and so offered Boaz his Right; so he pulled off his Shoe, and gave it to Boaz in the Name of Seisin of the Land; for it was the Manner in former Time in Israel concerning redeeming and changing, and to confirm all Things, a Man plucked off his Shoe, and gave it to his Neighbour, and this was a Testimony in Israel. And Boaz said to the Elders and all the People, Ye are Witnesses this Day, that I have bought all that was Elimelech's, and all that was Chilion's and Mahlon's, of the Hand of Naomi. Moreover, Ruth the Moabitess, the Wife of Mahlon, have I purchased to be my Wife, to raise up the Name of the Dead upon his Inheritance, that the Name of the Dead be not cut off from among his Brethren, and from the Gate of this Place: Ye are Witnesses this Day. And all the People that were in the Gate, and the Elders said, We are Witnesses.

This was about 1312 Years before Christ. See Deut. chap. 25. ver. 5. to 11.

And Lord Coke (2 Inst. 119.) observes, that Feoffments in England by Deed or without Deed were of great Antiquity in antient Times before the Conquest.

(C) Of the Kinds of Feoffments.

FEoffments are either by Parol or Writing.

A Feoffment in Writing is either by Deed Poll or indented.

Feoffments were antiently made in most Cases by Word without Writing, but now in few Cases otherwise than in Writing. See the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. post.

The

The Father enfeoffed the Son to the Use of the Father himself for his Life, and after his Decease then to the Use of the Son and his Heirs; and after the Father and Son (upon Communication that the Father should rehave the Land in Fee) came together to the Land, and upon the Land by Parol, without any Deed the Son delivered Seisin of the Land to the Father, Habendum to him and his Heirs, &c. This was held a good Feoffment, and in Law the Acceptance of Livery implies two Effects, viz. first a Surrender, and after a Feoffment; as a Surrender to the Grantee of a Reversion amounts to an Attornment and Surrender. Dyer 358. pl. 48. Bendl. 288.

A Feoffment with Livery without Deed, by way of Mortgage, has been held good. Mod. 144.

A Feoffment might have been of an Advowson by Livery of the Door of the Church without Deed. 43 Ed. 3. 1. b.

A Feoffment might be with Attornment of a Manor without Deed, and the Services would pass by Letter of Attorney. 3 Co. 29. 20 H. 6. 7. a.

The Question was, Whether an Advowson would pass by the Livery made in the View of the Church without Deed or not, the Church being full of an Incumbent. Upon which it was resolved by the Lord Chief Justice of the King's Bench and Justice Manwood, to whom the same was referred, that the Advowson could not pass by that Livery. Cary's Rep. 74.

And Livery of Seisin (contrary to the Opinion of Coke Ch. Just.) might be received without Deed, as a Stranger might take Livery to the Use of J. S. and if after J. S. agreed to it, it was held good. 2 Sid. 61.

By Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. it is enacted, That after the 24th of June 1677, all Leases, Estates, Interest of Freehold or Terms of Years, or any uncertain Interest of, in or out of any Messuages, Manors, Lands Tenements or Hereditaments, made or created by Livery and Seisin only, or by Parol, and not put in Writing, and signed by the Parties so making or creating the same, or their Agents thereunto lawfully authorized by Writing, shall have the Force and Effect of Leases or Estates at Will only, and shall not either in Law or Equity be deemed or taken to have any other or greater Force or Effect; any Consideration for making any such Parol Leases or Estates, or any former Law or Usage to the contrary notwithstanding.

2. Except nevertheless all Leases not exceeding the Term of three Years from the making thereof, whereupon the Rent reserved to the Landlord during such Term shall amount unto two third Parts at the least of the full improved Value of the Thing demised.

3. And moreover that no Leases, Estates or Interest, either of Freehold or Terms of Years, or any uncertain Interest, not being Copyhold or Customary Interest, of, in, to or out of any Messuages, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, shall at any Time after the said 24th Day of June be assigned, granted or surrendered, unless it be by Deed or Note in Writing, signed by the Party so assigning, granting or surrendering the same, or their Agents thereunto lawfully authorized by Writing, or by Act and Operation of Law.

The Difference between Feoffments at Common Law and Feoffments by Stat. 1 R. 3.

And there is a Difference between a Feoffment at Common Law and a Feoffment according to the Statute of 1 R. 3. which operates sub modo. Those at Common Law are the ancient Conveyances of Lands, but they which are according to the said Statute are Upstarts, and have not had Continuance above 150 Years.

In Case of those at the Common Law the Feoffor ought to be seised of the Lands at the Time of the Feoffment, but in Case a Feoffment be made according to the said Statute, the Feoffor needs not be in Possession.

Feoffments at Common Law give away both Estates and Rights, but Feoffments by Statute give the Estates but not the Rights.

The Feoffee at Common Law is in the Per, viz. by the Feoffor; but if by the Statute, the Feoffee is in the Post, viz. by the first Feoffees.

So a Feoffment by Cestuy que Use by Force of the said Statute will not fasten upon any Thing but what the Statute requires. 5 H. 7. 5. 21 H. 7. 25. 2 Roll. Rep. 334. Godb. 318.

(D) Feoffment, how made and executed.

It has been already observed, that since the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. Feoffments in most Cases must be by Deed in Writing, Poll or indented.

How made,

The Poll Deeds were usually made in Latin, and did begin, Sciunt presentes & futuri quod ego, &c. but sometimes in English, and did begin, To all Christian People, &c. and were called Deeds Poll, because they are cut plain at the Top without indenting. Co. Lit. 229. a.

Indentures begin, This Indenture; and must be indented at the Top, for the Writing of This Indenture, without the actual indenting of it, will not do. Co. Lit. 229. a.

Both

Both the Poll Deeds and Indentures must be written in Parchment or Paper. Co. Lit. 229. a.

The antient Forms and Examples of these Deeds are very brief; and yet they had these Parts contained in them:

1. The Premises. 2. The Habendum. 3. The Tenendum. 4. The Reddendum. 5. The Clause of Warranty. 6. The In cujus rei testimonium. 7. The Date. 8. The Clause of Hiis testibus. Hæc fuit candida illius ætatis fides & simplicitas quæ pauculis lineis omnia fidei firmamenta posuerunt.

All which different Parts are fully treated of in the fifth Chapter.

The Execution of a Feoffment is by Signing, Sealing and Delivery of the Deed, and also and executed. by Livery of Seisin made by the Feoffor to the Feoffee, or else by Attorney or Attornies, authorized by Deed to deliver Seisin, or to receive it, as the Case shall be.

But nothing of the Land passes by the Delivery of the Deed, though upon the Land. Popb. 49.

But the Feoffee upon his Entry (until Livery) will become Tenant at Will to the Feoffor. Lit. §. 60.

Though if the Deed is delivered on the Land in the Name of Seisin of the Land; or if the Feoffor says to the Feoffee, Take and enjoy the Land according to the Deed; or enter into the Land, and God give you Joy of it: These Words would amount to a Livery. Co. Lit. 57. a. 48. a. 9 Co. 137. b. 6 Co. 26. 2 Roll. Abr. 7. Vide Cro. Jac. 80. which seems contra.

A Delivery of any Thing upon the Land in the Name of Seisin, although it be nothing relating to the Land, as a Gold Ring, &c. it is good. Co. Lit. 48. a.

A Deed executed by Livery shall not take Effect any other way. Andersf. 113 Popb. 49.

A Father in Consideration of Love which he beared to his Son, and for natural Affection to him, bargained and sold, gave, granted and confirmed to him and his Heirs the Land; the Deed was inrolled: This did not pass the Land, unless Money had been paid, or it were executed with Livery; but because the Son was then in Possession, it was held that it shall enure as a Confirmation. Cro. Jac. 127. pl. 17. 4 Co. 31. a.

The Manner of making Livery, see post.

A Lease and Release countervails a Feoffment. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 5. 44 Ed. 3. 3.
A Lease for Years and Release is said to have been adjudged a good Feoffment, because a Freehold passes by the Release; and that if it was a Grant of a Reversion after the Death of Tenant for Life, it would be otherwise. 11 H. 4. 33. a. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 13. And that it would be otherwise if it be with a Warranty. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 10.

A Lease for Years, and a Release afterwards made to the Lessee in Fee, is, in a Manner, agreed to be a Feoffment. Per Fitz. contra to Ingham.

And a Lease for Life, and a Release in Fee, countervails a Feoffment, but is not a Feoffment in Fact; for the Fee and Freehold do not go uno statu, as in Casu supra. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 30. — 31 Aff. 25.

In Formedon the Tenant in Dower granted his Estate to W. N. and afterwards he in Reversion released to him in Fee: This is no Feoffment, and yet it countervails a Feoffment; but if the Issue be taken, if the Heir infeoffed him, this is no Feoffment; Quod caveat placitand. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 44, 58. Co. Lit. 207. a.

A Release to a Disseisor is an Extinguishment of the Action and Right, and not a Feoffment; for a Feoffment is, where there is a Transmutation of Possession from one to another, which there is not upon a Release by a Disseisor to the Disseisor. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 10.

And a Freehold will not pass by a Release. Idem, pl. 58.

A Bargain and Sale was made to J. S. and his Heirs by Deed indented but not inrolled, and the Bargainor made Livery of the Land secundum formam Chartæ, &c. this was held a good Feoffment. 2 And. 68.

If one who has a Freehold in Possession levies a Fine come ceo, &c. it enures as a Feoffment with Livery on Record; but where he has but a Reversion or Remainder, it enures only as a Grant thereof, without Tort presumed or done to the Possession of a Stranger, who has the Freehold. Moor, fol. 629.

The Father seised in Fee infeoffed his Son in Fee, to the Use of the Father for Life, and after to the Use of the Son in Fee; and after to the Intent that the Father should be enabled to make a Lease to the Son for sixty Years, the Son without any Writing infeoffed the Father of the Tenements aforesaid, Habendum to the Father and his Heirs. The Court held the Feoffment good; and in this is implied that the Father should have the Land to him and his Heirs for the Use intended. And. 51. pl. 126. Dyer 358. pl. 48. Bendh. 288. pl. 288.

A Man made a Feoffment to the Use of himself in Tail, the Remainder to his Son in Tail. The Father died, and the Son entred, and by Indenture made a Bargain and Sale of the Land (without any Words of Dedi and Concessi) to the Uses of J. S. in Fee, and in the Indenture was a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, which was made accordingly. J. S. by the said Indenture covenanted, that if the Son before such a Day paid 40*s.* then J. S. and his Heirs would stand seised, &c. to the Use of the Son and his Heirs; and if the Son did not pay, &c. then if the said J. S. did not pay to the Son within four Days after 10*l.* that J. S. and his Heirs should thenceforth be seised to the Use of the Son and his Heirs, &c. And the Son covenanted further, to make such further Assurance as the Son's Counsel should advise: Both failed of Payment, and the Son levied a Fine to J. S. without any Consideration: This was adjudged a good Feoffment well executed by the Livery, notwithstanding the Words of Bargain and Sale only, and that the Covenant to be seised to the new Uses conditionally upon Payment and Non-payment being in one and the same Deed, should raise the Use upon the Contingency according to the Limitation of it. 1 Leon. 25.

IN a Covenant to stand seised to Uses, all the Uses that are not disposed of return back and remain in the Covenantor to serve the contingent Uses when they happen; but in a Feoffment to Uses, the Uses are disposed of by the Livery, the Estate in Law being in the Feoffees. Carter 202.

A Feoffment to the Use of A. for Life, Remainder to B. A. refuses to take the Estate, B. shall then take presently, because the whole Estate is out of the Feoffor by the Livery: But if it had been by Covenant to stand seised, B. should not take till after the Death of A. but it should rest in the Covenantor, because he had not parted with the Possession, and therefore should have the Use in the mean Time, which is not in the Case of a Feoffment to Uses, the Estate being only in the Feoffee, and passed out of the Feoffor by the Livery. 2 Lev. 77. See the Lord Paget's Case in the Rector of Chedington's Case, 1 Co. and in 1 Leon. Case 279.

But if a Man makes a Feoffment, and declares the Uses for Life, or in Tail, the Residue of the Use not disposed of is in himself by Result. Ibid.

If a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, without a valuable Consideration, to divers Uses, so much of the Use as he disposeth not of is in him, as in his antient Use, in Point of Reverter. Co. Lit. 23. a. 13. a. 1 Co. 100. b.

Where a Man, in Consideration of 200*l.* paid by the Father for a Marriage-Portion with his Daughter to his Son, covenants to execute an Estate of such Lands by such a Time to the Use of the Man and Woman (agreed to be married) for their Lives, and after their Decease, to the Use of the Issue of their Bodies; and he afterwards executes the Estate by Feoffment, Fine and Recovery, to the aforesaid Uses, and the Marriage doth not take Effect. It was held, that the Use did arise to the Man and Woman agreed to be married, as well as if the Marriage had taken Effect, which it did not, because it is a Use declared upon an Estate executed, viz. by Feoffment, Fine and Recovery, which needed not any Consideration: But if it had been an Use declared upon a Covenant to stand seised upon a Consideration of Marriage and Money, there no Use will arise without Marriage, although the Money was paid, because the Marriage is the principal Consideration in the Intent of the Parties, and the Money is but the Accessary, which attends the Marriage. Moor, Case 247.

In the Case of Thompson and Atfield it was allowed, that although a Conveyance be made purporting a Deed of Feoffment, yet nevertheless it may operate as a Covenant to stand seised to Uses, &c. And here a Difference was taken between the several Sorts of Conveyances, as to the supplying their Defects, in what Cases they may and may not be made good. Vern. 40.

(G) In what Cases Uses are vested or changed by a Feoffment.

IF A. makes a Feoffment to B. to the Use of his last Will expressed in the same Deed, viz. to his own proper Use for his Life, and after to E. and his Son in Tail, &c. and after he makes a Lease for Years, and dies: He might have altered his Will in this Case; for where the Word Will is expressed in the Deed or Schedule, he may alter his Will notwithstanding.

withstanding the other Words; but where the Use is declared upon the Livery without the Word Will, there he cannot alter his Will. Per tot' Cur' except Shelley, 19 H. 8. 11. Bro. Feoffments al Uses, pl. 1.

If a Man makes a Feoffment, and annexes a Schedule to it containing the Use, he cannot change such Use afterwards. Bro. Feoffments al Uses, pl. 47. 30 H. 8.

It is so if the Use be expressed in the Deed of Feoffment; but otherwise where he declares the Use by the Words of his Will; as that, I will that my Feoffees shall be seised to such an Use; in this Case he may change the Use, because it is by Will, &c. Bro. Feoffments al Uses, pl. 47.

The Lord Audley made a Feoffment to B. G. and others, and afterwards by Indenture, reciting the said Feoffment, he declared the same was made, to the Intent his Feoffees should perform his last Will, to this Effect, (viz.) My Will is that my Feoffees shall stand seised, &c. to pay all my Debts, and afterwards that they make an Estate of the Lands to me and Elizabeth my Wife, and to the Heirs of our Bodies, with divers Remainders over. The said Lord had Issue by one Wife a Son, and by another a Daughter; the Feoffees never made any Estate to the Lord and his Wife. Adjudged that by this Feoffment and Deed no Use was changed; for though the Feoffees shall be seised to the Use of the Feoffor and his Heirs, (for there was no Consideration for which they should be seised to their own Use) yet the same cannot make a new Use to the Lord and to his Wife in Tail; neither can this Writing take Effect as a Will, because it appoints an Estate to be made to the Lord himself, and he cannot take by his own Will. 2 Leon. 159. Dyer 324. Moor 516.

Lease to Husband and Wife for the Life of the Wife, Remainder to the Heirs of the Husband; afterwards the Husband made a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself and Wife for their Lives, Remainder to his own right Heirs: The Husband died, the Wife committed Waste; and in an Action of Waste brought against her, it was adjudged that she is in, not by the Lessor, or by the Feoffment, but by the Statute of Uses. 2 Leon. 222.

(H) Of Feoffments upon Conditions, and to the Uses of another, and to a Will.

THE Feoffee seised of Lands in Socage made a Feoffment thereof to his Son and the Heirs of his Body, to the Use of him and his Heirs: Adjudged that his Son had an Estate in Tail, and no Fee-simple, because Tenant in Tail cannot stand seised to an Use. At Common Law, if a Feoffment had been made to one and to the Heirs Male of his Body, such an Estate had been a Fee-simple conditional; and if it had been afterwards limited to the Use of him and his Heirs, these are always intended such Heirs as were named before, viz. the Heirs of the Body of the Feoffee. See Plowd. Com. 555. Walsingham's Case.

Feoffment in Fee, to the Use of such Person and Persons, and for such Estate and Estates as he shall appoint by his last Will: In such Case by the Operation of Law the Use vests in the Feoffor, and he is seised of a qualified Fee, viz. until he makes a Will, and declares the Uses according to the Power reserved; so where he makes a Feoffment to the Use of his last Will, he is seised in the mean Time to the Use of himself and his Heirs; and when the Will is made, it is only directory; for nothing passes by it, but all by the Feoffment. 6 Co. 18. Moor 567. Cro. Eliz. 877. Bulst. 200. Moor 476.

Feoffment in Fee to B. G. upon Condition that he shall not alien; this Condition is void; but if Livery is made, the Feoffment is good against the Feoffor, but a Covenant that he shall not alien may be good. Cro. Jac. 596.

Feoffment in Fee to the Use of another, upon Condition, &c. it was inrolled in Chancery, but no Livery made: Adjudged no good Feoffment, but the Inrolment shall conclude the Person to say that it was not his Deed. Popb. 6.

The Husband made a Feoffment, upon Condition that the Feoffee should make a Feoffment to the Use of the Husband and his Wife for Life, Remainder over in Fee to a Stranger: Adjudged that the Feoffee is not bound to make this Feoffment till required by the Husband, because the particular Estate for Life, which is the Foundation and Support of the Remainder, ought to be made to the Husband himself, who is a Party to the Condition; but if he should die before the Feoffment made, then the Feoffee is bound to make it to the Wife without Request; she is a Stranger to the Condition, and if she dies before it is made, then it must be made to him in Remainder without Request. Hetley 56.

If a Feoffment be made to a Man upon Condition that he will kill B. it shall be good, but a Bond with such a Condition is void. For in the one Case, lest the Man should have any Temptation to do the Act, the Law secures him the Possession of the Land without performing the Condition; and in the other, frees him from the Penalty of of the Bond; so that the Law has the same End in View in making the Feoffment good, and the Bond void, viz. the Prevention of the Fact. Ca. Law & Eq. in Macclefield's Time, 134.

(I) Of the Nature, Operation and Force of a Feoffment.

AS the Conveyance by Feoffment is the most antient Kind of Conveyance, so it is the best and most excellent of all others, and in some Respects excels the Conveyance by Fine or Recovery; for it is of that Nature and Efficacy by Reason of the Livery of Seisin, which is always inseparably incident to it, that

It clears all Disseisins, Abatements, Intrusions, and other wrongful and defeasible Titles, and reduceth the Estate clearly to the Feoffee when the Entry of the Feoffor is lawful; which neither Fine, Recovery, nor Bargain and Sale by Deed indented and inrolled, will do when the Feoffor is out of Possession. Co. Lit. 9. a. 49. a.

And it passeth the present Estate of the Feoffor, and not only so, but barreth and excludeth him of all present and future Right and Possibility of Right to the Thing which is so conveyed, insomuch that if one has divers Estates, all of them pass by his Feoffment; and if he have any Interest, Rent, Common, or the like, into or out of the Land, it is extinguished and gone by the Feoffment. Hob. 337. Co. 111.

And further, it bars the Feoffor of all collateral Benefits touching the Land, as Condition, Power of Revocation, Writs of Error, Attaint, and the like, insomuch that if a Man makes an Estate of his Land upon Condition, or with Power to revoke it, and after he makes a Feoffment of the Land, by this he is barred for ever of taking Advantage of the Condition or Power of Revocation.

It destroyeth contingent Uses, gives away a future Use inclusively, gives away a Seniory inclusively, and gives away a Right of Action: For both the Feoffment and Livery of Seisin incident thereunto are much favoured in Law, and shall be construed most strongly against the Feoffor, and in Advantage of the Feoffee.

And besides all this, because it is solemnly and publickly made, it is of all other Conveyances most observed, and therefore best remembered and proved. Co. Lit. 9, 49, 237. Co. 111, 112, 121. 6 Co. 70. Plow. 423, 424, 554. Perk. §. 210. 39 H. 6. 43. 9 H. 7. 24. 24 Ed. 3. 70. Bro. Scire Facias 88.

If the Feoffment be made by Deed, then must the Deed be so made, written, read, sealed and delivered, as all other Deeds that are well made must be.

A Feoffment excludes the Feoffor of all Right, Entries, Actions, Titles, Possibilities and Conditions. W. Jones 72.

It bars all present Rights, and all Rights after arising to the same Parties by Causes before the Feoffments, and that without Respect to the Loss of Strangers. Hob. 337. 2 Roll. Rep. 506. Co. 174. a.

And it is a Bar to a Writ of Error. Godb. 301, 320. Co. 111.

If when my Entry is taken away I oust the Tenant, and after enfeof him by Deed, he is remitted, and I shall be barred; for this is a good Confirmation. Bro. Feoffment de terre, pl. 84. 11 H. 7. 20.

If a Feoffment be made, but no Livery, and the Feoffee enters, he is become Tenant at Will to the Feoffor, because he enters by Consent; but the Feoffor may oust him when he pleases. Co. Lit. 56. b.

What is extinguished by Feoffment.

And if one who has Title of Dower enters and enfeofs the Heir by Deed, her Title of Dower is determined; for it is a good Confirmation and Discharge of the Dower, & econtra without Deed. Bro. Feoffment de terre, pl. 84. 11 H. 7. 20.

A future Right and Right of Action is gone by Feoffment. 2 Roll. Rep. 323. 9 H. 7. 24. Fitz. Gibb. 234.

A Possibility to be Tenant by the Curtesy is gone by Feoffment; so of Attaint, and so of Writ of Deceit. 2 Roll. Rep. 337. 9 H. 7. 1. 4 H. 6. 38 Ed. 3.

(K) Who may make a Feoffment, and to whom it may be made.

IN every good Feoffment that is made there must be, (1) A Feoffor, i. e. a Person able to grant the Thing passed by the Feoffment; (2) A Feoffee, i. e. a Person capable to take by it; (3) A Thing grantable; and (4) It must be granted in that Manner as the Law requires: Therefore observe, that

Whosoever

Whosoever is disabled by the Common Law to take, is also disabled to make a Feoffment, Gift, Grant or Lease.

And many also that have Capacity to take by such Conveyances, have no Ability to grant Attainted Persons, Aliens, Villains, Non sane memorie, deaf, blind, dumb, Feme Covert, Infant, Durefs, by them; as Men attainted of Treason, Felony, or in a Præmunire, Aliens born, the King's Villains, Non sane memorie, deaf, blind, dumb, Feme Covert, Infant, and a Man by Durefs; for the Feoffments, Gifts, &c. of such Persons may be avoided.

But such Persons as have committed Treason or Felony, if Attainder do not follow; such as are Attaint of Herefy, a Leper removed by the King's Writ from the Society of Men, Bastards, such as are deaf, dumb or blind, that have Understanding and sound Memory, although they cannot express their Intentions otherwise than by Signs. Those that are drunken, the Villains of a common Person before Entry, &c. also excommunicate Persons, and outlawed Persons, although the King take the Profits of their Lands; all these may make Feoffments, Gifts, &c. and all these have Capacity to take by such Conveyances. Co. Lit. 2, 42, 43. Perk. §. 182, 183, 185. Bro. Feoffment 2, 7, 8, 9, 17. 39 H. 6. 43. 21 H. 7. 7.

And if a Man de non sane memorie makes Feoffment and Livery himself, it is not void. Contra 9 H. 6. 6. Non sane memorie.

All his Acts in pais are void, except his Feoffments, Livery and Seisin, and those are only voidable. The Reason is because of the Respect the Law gives to a Feoffment on the Account of its Solemnity in the Transmutation of a Freehold. And the Writ De non compos mentis, which says Demisit, must be understood of a Feoffment or a Fine; those being the antient and only Conveyances at that Time. 2 Salk. 427.

If a Person Non compos makes a Feoffment, and gives Livery himself; this is allowed on all Hands to be good to bind himself, so that he can by no Process or Plea avoid the Feoffment, and restore himself to the Possession; the same Law of an Idiot; and the Reason is, because the Investiture being made before the Pares Curie, their solemn Attestation could not be defeated by the Person himself, because it is presumed they are competent Judges of the Ability of the Feoffor to make such Feoffment. 2 Roll. Abr. 2. Co. Lit. 247. 4 Co. 125. a. Show. Parl. Cases 153.

Feoffment by one deaf and dumb is not good; for if he makes Livery himself it is voidable, as it seems, like Feoffment of an Infant, or one Non sane memorie. If it be by Letter of Attorney, it seems a Disseisin. Quere. Bro. Feoffment de terre, pl. 7. 2 H. 4. 8.

If an Infant makes a Feoffment, and makes Livery himself, it is a good Feoffment till it be defeated. 42 E. 3. 12. b. 9 H. 6. 5. It is only voidable. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 48. 18 E. 4. pl. 27. Bro. Coverture, pl. 1. 26 H. 8. 2.

And it is not material of what Age the Infant is at the making of the Feoffment; for whether he be within Age of Discretion, viz. of five or seven Years, or beyond the Age of Discretion, viz. sixteen or more, his Feoffment is not void. 9 H. 6. 6. b.

But if an Infant makes Livery by Attorney, it is void. 7 H. 4. 5. b. 12.

If an Infant seised of Land joins in Feoffment with a Stranger who has nothing in it, yet it is a good Feoffment. 42 E. 3. 12. b.

If an Infant makes a Feoffment, and makes Livery himself, this shall not bind him, but he himself may avoid it by Writ of Dum fuit infra ætatem; yet the Feoffment of the Infant is not void in itself, as well because he is allowed to contract for his Benefit, as that there ought to be some Act of Notoriety to restore the Possession to him equal to that which transferred it from him. 4 Co. 125. 2 Roll. Abr. 2. 8 Co. 42, 43. Whittingham's Case.

But if an Infant makes a Feoffment, and a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, that is void: So if a Person Non compos makes a Surrender or Release, this is void in Law; so if he makes a Letter of Attorney to give Livery; but the Heir at Law, after the Death of the Person Non sane memorie, or Idiot, may avoid his Feoffment; and so may the King upon an Office found of his Lunacy during his Life. 8 Co. 45. Co. Lit. 247. a. 4 Co. 125. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 2. Show. Parl. Cases 153.

As the Infant's Feoffment is voidable by Dum fuit infra ætatem, when he comes of full Age; so it is voidable by him by Entry during his Nonage, but his Letter of Attorney is merely void; and the same Law seems to be of a Feme Covert, for if she makes a Feoffment upon the Land, it is voidable by her Husband; but if she makes a Letter of Attorney to give Livery, it is absolutely void in Law; and the Reason is, because the Contracts of those that are disabled by Law to contract were void Contracts; but their Infeudations were not in themselves void, because they were made Coram paribus Curie, who were presumed not to attest Contracts of Persons disabled by the Law to contract, especially since such Contracts were made for Military or Socage Service, which were for the Good of the Commonwealth; and by those Infeudations a Stranger was directed to bring his Præcipe against the Person that was actually invested in the Land, wherefore the Infant's Feoffment was good till it was avoided by an Act of equal Notoriety, to wit, by his Entry Coram paribus, which was equally solemn with the Act of Feoffment, or by bringing his Action at full Age, when the Law had enabled him, by Action in a Court of Record, to set aside the Feoffment that he had made during Minority; but the Law enabled him by Entry to set aside the Acts Coram paribus during Minority, because the Pares might undo what was done in pais; but the Courts of Justice were not to destroy the Act in pais till the Infant by his own Discretion had chosen to avoid them, because it was derogatory to the Dignity of the Courts of Justice to set aside the solemn Acts in pais till the Infant had come to such Age of Discretion as might make it fully appear that the Feoffment was made during his Disability, for the Infant was not received to disable himself during the Time of his Disability; for during such Disability he might, by equal Solemnity in pais, disable himself, since such an Act was only Coram paribus, in the same Manner as the Feoffment itself was made; but the Warrant of Attorney of the Infant was ipso facto void, and therefore such Feoffee was a Disseisor as if no Authority had been committed to the Attorney to make the Feoffment; but in the Case of the Non compos he was not admitted to stultify himself, because there was no stated Time when such Persons returned to Sense and Understanding, and therefore they could not be presumed to be conscious themselves of their own Follies or Defects; but the King who had the Care of all his Subjects, might by solemn Office found avoid such Acts of Insanity, and so might the Heir at Law after their Death. 2 Bac. Abr. 499. cites 4 Co. 125. 2 Roll. Abr. 2. 8 Co. 42, 43, 45. Cro. Jac. 617. Gardiner and Norman. Perk. §. 183.

Durefs.

If a Man makes a Feoffment by Durefs, it is not void. Contra 9 H. 6. 5. b. It is only voidable. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 48. 18 E. 4. 27.

Outlaw.

He who is outlawed in Action Personal, and Office is found that he was seised of such Land the Day of the Outlawry, may make Feoffment of his Land well enough; for the King is not seised. Bro. Office Devant, &c. pl. 2. 9 H. 6. 20.

Baron and Feme.

If Baron and Feme are Jointenants, and Baron makes Feoffment and Livery, the Feme being upon the Land, and disagreeing to it, yet it is good. 21 E. 3. 6. b.

But though a married Woman be seised in her own Right with her Husband, yet Livery and Seisin made by her alone, without the Agreement of her Husband, is void, inasmuch that her Husband and she may have an Affise notwithstanding such Livery of Seisin, if the Husband be seised of the Freehold in the Right of his Wife: But in such Case if he was seised in his own Right, then notwithstanding such Livery of Seisin made by the Wife, he shall have an Affise in his own Name, &c. Perk. §. 186.

A Man cannot make a Feoffment to his own Wife after the Marriage is consummate. But after a Contract made, and carnal Knowledge had, he may make a Feoffment to her, and such Feoffment will be good. Perk. §. 194.

A Feme was Devisee for thirty Years of the Occupation and Profits of a Term, if she should so long live a Widow, and after her Widowhood, the Residue of the Term in the Lease to go to B. his Son. The Feme entred, and afterward Reversioner by Indenture Dedit, concessit, &c. totum illud tenementum, &c. to the Feme and her Heirs. Resolved, that a Lessee for Years in Possession may take a Feoffment although it be by Deed, and may take Livery after the Delivery of the Deed, although the Lessee may take the Deed by way of Confirmation, and then the Livery is but Surplusage and void. Owen 6, 7.

Cestuy qui Use.

If Feoffment be made to the Use of W. N. for Life, and after to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs, there Cestuy que Use in Remainder or Reversion in the Life of W. N. but he cannot make Feoffment till after his Death. Bro. Feoffments al Uses, pl. 44. 25 H. 8.

A Lessee for Years, Remainder to B. in Tail, Remainder over. A. infeoffed J. S. and made a Letter of Attorney to W. R. to enter into the Lands and seal the Feoffment, and deliver it in his Name to the Use of B. and his Heirs; B. made a Letter of Attorney to C. to enter in his Name, who entred accordingly: This was held a good Feoffment though both A. and the Attorney were Disseisors; for it is good between the Feoffor and Feoffee. For the Remainder-Man by the Feoffment and Entry is remitted, and the Term gone, the Freehold having come to it. Gouldsb. 92.

If a Lessee for ten Years makes a Lease for one Year to a Reversioner, there he in Reversion, who has the Land for a Year, may make a Feoffment to the Lessee for ten Years, and it is good. Owen 66.

A Lessee for Years, Remainder to B. for Life, Remainder to C. and C. infeoffed A. by Deed, and made Livery. The Conveyance was held void, for it could not work by Livery to the Tenant for Years, who was in Possession before. Vent. 360.

Corporation.

Neither the Head alone, nor any one or more of the Members of a Corporation Aggregate of many alone, may make a Feoffment of any of the Land belonging to their Corporation; ration; but all of them together may make a Feoffment: And if any of them be seised of Land in his own Right and in his natural Capacity, he may make a Feoffment of this Land as another Man may do; yea he may make a Feoffment of this Land to the same Corporation whereof he is a Head or Member, and so give and take also in a divers Capacity. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 29. Perk. §. 205, 224, 225.

Ecclesiastical Persons cannot make Feoffments, Gifts, &c. of their Ecclesiastical Lands Ecclesiastical for longer Time than three Lives, or twenty-one Years; for all Feoffments, Gifts, Grants Persons. and Leases by Bishops, although they be confirmed by Dean and Chapter, or by any of the Colleges or Halls in either of the Universities, or elsewhere, or by Dean or Chapters, Masters or Guardians of any Hospitals, Parsons, Vicars, or any other having Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Living, are voidable. Co. Lit. 43.

If Deed of Feoffment be made to J. S. and Letter of Attorney to make Livery to J. S. Capellano, he cannot make Livery to J. S. unless he be a Chaplain. 4 H. 6. 1. b. Bro. Grants, pl. 50. 4 H. 6. 1.

A Feoffment might be made to an Abbot or Prior, by the Name of Abbot or Prior of such a Place, &c. without naming them by their Names of Baptism. 39 E. 3. 13. b. The same Law is of a Mayor or Dean. Ibid.

If four join in a Feoffment, whereof one is only seised of the Land, yet it is a good Feoffment. 42 E. 3. 12. b. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 4.

If there are two Coparceners, one of them may enfeoff the other of her Part or Portion. Coparceners. Perk. §. 193. 17 E. 3. 47. b.

And if he does it by Dedi & Concessi, it shall enure by Confirmation without Livery; for it countervails Remisi & Confirmavi. Bro. Confirmation, pl. 18. 10 Ed. 4. 3.

One Jointenant cannot make a Feoffment of his Part of the Land to his Companion, for Jointenants a Man cannot give a Possession to him that hath it before. And hence it is also that the and Tenants Lessor cannot make a Feoffment to his Lessee for Life, Years, or at Will. in common.

And yet perhaps a Feoffment in this Case, if it be in Writing, may work as a Confirmation; but one Tenant in common or one Coparcenor may make a Feoffment of his Part of the Land to his Companion. Perk. §. 197. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 26.

If a Man makes a Feoffment of another's Land, it is a Disseisin, but a good Feoffment Disseisor and against all Men but the Disseeisee himself. Disseeisee.

And if four join in a Feoffment of Land, and three of them have nothing in the Land, and the fourth hath all the Estate; this is a good Feoffment. Bro. Feoffment 4. Perk. §. 222.

A Disseeisee cannot make a Feoffment, though to the Disseisor by Agreement. Goldsb. 25. pl. 6. Owen 1.

A Disseisor cannot make a Feoffment of the Land to the Disseeisee but it will be void, for the Disseeisee will be remitted. But a Disseeisee may make a Deed of Feoffment, and a Letter of Attorney to enter and give Livery: And if the Attorney do so, this will be a good Feoffment. Perk. §. 197. Co. Lit. 48, 49.

(N) What

(N) What Consideration is necessary to a Feoffment.

BEFORE the Statutes of 13 Eliz. c. 5. & 27 Eliz. c. 4. against fraudulent Conveyances, to a Feoffment there was no need of a Consideration of Money, Blood, or otherwise; but since those Statutes, if a Man makes a voluntary Feoffment without good Consideration, it shall be fraudulent against a Purchaser (but good amongst themselves. Cro. Jac. 270. 2 And. 272.) for a real Consideration, a Mortgagee, a Judgment or Statute-Creditor for good Consideration. See the said Statutes hereafter Title Fraudulent Conveyances, & Cro. Jac. 270. pl. 3. Lucas 247, 489, &c. 2 Williams 203.

Note; The Consideration of Money paid, or the Money for which Judgments or Statutes are entred into, must be proved upon a Trial.

(O) Of what a Feoffment may be.

A Feoffment may be made at this Day of any Thing which lies in Livery, by whatsoever Tenure it be held, notwithstanding the Statute of Magna Charta, cap. 32.

But in some Cases where a Man aliens his Land held of the King, he must have the King's Licence before-hand to do it, or else he must pay a Fine to the King afterwards for not having a Licence.

But of such Things as lie in Grant, whereof no Livery of Seisin can be made, as Advowsons, (Qu. vide post) Rents, Reversions, &c. no Feoffment can be made. Co. Lit. 49. 21 H. 7. 7.

A Feoffment cannot be made of incorporate Things, because no Livery can be of them. Co. Lit. 49.

A Feoffment cannot be made of an Advowson in Gross, because no Livery can be of it. Contra 11 H. 6. 4. 2 Roll. Abr. 1. 2.

It may be of an Advowson by Livery of the Door of the Church. 43 Ed. 3. 1. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 11. Bro. Grants 18. Feoffments de terres, pl. 49. 20 Ed. 4. 15. Bridgm. 95.

A Feoffment and Livery may be made in an upper Chamber; for a Man may have an Inheritance in it, and it is corporeal. Co. Lit. 48. b. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 79. cites 5 H. 7. 9. accordingly; but cites 21 H. 6. contra.

Feoffment by Tenant in common is good of his Moiety, though undivided, and not in Severalty. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 75.

One may make a Feoffment of a Moiety, third, fourth or fifth Part of his Manor, or other Land, and that by the Name of a Moiety, third or fourth Part. Co. Lit. 190.

If Parceners have made a Partition of their Land, that the one shall have it from Lammas to Easter to her and her Heirs, and the other shall have it from Easter to Lammas to her and her Heirs, or that the one shall have it one Year and the other the other Year alternis vicibus: Or if they have two Manors descended, and they agree that the one shall have the one Manor one Year, and the other the other Manor the same Year, and the next Year that he that had the one shall have the other alternis vicibus for ever: In these Cases the Parceners may either of them make a Feoffment of this Land or Manor. Co. Lit. 4, 48.

If there be a Meadow of one hundred Acres which Time out of Mind hath been divided amongst divers Persons, and each Person hath a certain Number of Acres, but in no certain Place, the Custom being to allot each Person his Number in one Year in one Place and another in another alternis vicibus; in this Case either of these Persons may make a Feoffment of his Part by the Name of so many Acres lying in such a Meadow, without any bounding or describing of it. Co. Lit. 4, 48.

No Livery can be made of a running Water, because it is fugitive; secus of Water in a standing Pool. 4 Leo. 238. pl. 385.

Livery cannot be of a Reversion. Bridgm. 96.

(P) By what Name a Thing may be enfeoffed.

A House may pass by a Deed of Feoffment, which makes mention only of a Curtelage. 13 H. 4. 10. b. Dubitatur. 2 Roll. Abr. 1.

A Feoffment may be of a Manor by the Name of a Knight's Fee. 17 E. 3. 8. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 1.

If a Man seised of a Manor, leases Parcel of the Demesnes for Life, and after makes Feoffment of the Manor, to which the Lessee and the Tenants of the Matter attorn. The Reversion of this Land so leased for Life shall pass by this, because it is Parcel of the Manor. 2 Roll. Abr. 2.

If a Manor be known only by the Name of Sarrett, and he who is seised of this Manor makes a Deed of Feoffment by the Name of Seriot, and delivers Seisin secundum formam Chartæ, the Manor shall pass by it; for the making Delivery secundum formam Chartæ refers to the Estate, and not to the Name. 2 Roll. Abr. 2.

Upon a Scire Facias upon a Fine of certain Lands, the Tenant pleaded a Feoffment by the Ancestor of the Plaintiff with Warranty of the same Land, by the Name of the Manor of D. where in Fact the Land is no Manor, and yet a good Plea by Judgment, by Reason of the Livery of Seisin of the same Land. Bro. Scire Facias, pl. 200. 22 H. 6. 39.

If a Man has a Manor in the County of N. and Land is held of the Manor which lies in the County of S. by Grant of the Manor with the Appurtenances in the County of N. the Services of the Land in the other County shall pass, and by Livery of the Manor made in one County, the Services of the Land in the other County shall pass. Bro. Grants, pl. 32. cites 21 E. 3. 18.

If a Man by Deed grants Vesturam to another and his Heirs, and makes Livery secundum formam Chartæ, he shall have by this Vesturam terræ, viz. the Corn, Grass, Underwood, Sweepage, and such like, and he shall have an Action, Quare clausum fregit. Co. Lit. 4. b.

But in this Case he shall not have the Soil by this Grant, because he has by this but a particular Right in the Land; for by this he shall not have the Houses, Timber-Trees, Mines, and other real Things, Parcel of the Inheritance. Co. Lit. 4. b.

It passes not the Soil, for the Livery cannot enlarge the Grant. Co. Lit. 4. b.

So it is of Grant of Herbage of Land, the Soil shall not pass, but he shall have only a particular Interest; but shall have Trespass Quare clausum fregit. Co. Lit. 4. b.

If a Man by Deed grants Separalem piscariam in a River, and makes Livery secundum formam Chartæ, the Soil shall not pass by it, nor the Water; for if the River becomes dry, the Grantor may take the Benefit of the Soil. Co. Lit. 4. b.

So if a Man grants Aquam suam, the Soil does not pass, but the Fishery within the Water shall pass. Co. Lit. 4. b.

But if a Man by Deed grants the Profits of his Lands, and makes Livery secundum formam Chartæ, the Soil shall pass. Co. Lit. 4. b.

If a Man has a moveable Estate of Inheritance in thirteen Acres, Parcel of a Meadow of eighty Acres, the Charter of Feoffment ought to be generally of the thirteen Acres, lying within the Meadow of eighty Acres, without bounding or describing of it in Certainty, and Livery may be made of the thirteen Acres allotted to the Feoffor for the Year, secundum formam Chartæ; and this is good Livery to pass the Contents of thirteen Acres in what Place soever it lies in that Meadow. Co. Lit. 48. b. Cro. Eliz. 421. Moor 302.

By the Grant of Boilloury de Salt, the Soil shall pass. Co. Lit. 4. b.

If a Man grants to another to dig Turfs in his Land, and to carry them at his Will and Pleasure; the Land shall not pass, because he has granted only Parcel of the Profit. Co. Lit. 4. b.

And he may bring Assise of Common of Turbary, and shall recover; but he cannot bring Assise of the Soil. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 21. 5 Ass. 9.

For more concerning these Matters, see Chap. 4.

(Q) What is a good Feoffment in Respect of the Presence or Possession of other Persons on the Land.

IF there be a Lease for Life or Years in Being of that Land or Thing whereof the Feoffment is made, and he that hath this Lease for Life or Years, or in his Absence his Bailiff or Servant, keeping in the House or Land, whereof the Feoffment is to be made, doth give Leave and agree that Livery of Seisin shall be given upon the House or Land by the Lessor himself, or by his Attorney, and for this Cause doth leave the Possession of the House or Land, and thereupon Livery of Seisin is made; this is a good Feoffment and a good Livery of Seisin, and yet it doth not prejudice the Estate of the Lessee.

And if the Lessor makes a Feoffment of the Land to a Stranger by Assent or Licence of the Lessee, the Lessee then being on the Land, it is a good Feoffment.

In like Manner as it is where the Lessor enfeoffs a Stranger to which the Termor agrees, saving his Term.

And if the Lessor makes such an Entry upon the Lessee for Life or Years as to put him out of Possession of the House or Land, and then he makes a Feoffment and Livery of Seisin of it; or if the Lessor in the Absence of the Lessee, his Wife, Servants and Children, enters upon the Thing in Lease, and makes a Feoffment and Livery of Seisin thereof: In these Cases there is a good Feoffment to pass the Reversion; for in these Cases when the Lessee for Life or Years re-enters, the Law adjudges this to be an Attornment in Law.

But if a Lessor will enter upon his Lessee, and against his Will (the Lessee being still in Possession of the Land) makes a Feoffment of the Land, and gives Livery; this is void, and can never take Effect as a Feoffment.

And therefore if there be a Conveyance made of a House and Land thereunto belonging in Lease, and the Feoffor comes into Part of the Land without the Leave of the Lessee, and there makes Livery of Seisin of that Part in the Name of all the Rest of the Land (the Lessee himself, his Wife, Child or Servant, being then upon any other Part of the Land, and especially if they be in the House); this is no good Feoffment for any Part of the Land, but void of the Whole. 2 Co. 32. Co. Lit. 48, 49, 52. Dyer 340, 18. Perk. § 221, 222. 21 H. 7. 7. 46 Ed. 3. 25. Bro. Feoffments de terres 68.

And yet if the Lessee for Years makes an Under-Lease of Part of the Land to another, and the Feoffee makes a Feoffment of this Part, and gives Livery of Seisin upon this Part; in this Case the Possession of the first Lessee in the Residue will not hurt the Feoffment or Livery for this Part, but it is a good Feoffment. Veynor's Case, Trin. 7 Jac. B. R.

Also if the Lessee gives the Lessor leave to make Livery, and depart and leave a Servant of the Lessee upon the Land; in this Case his Presence upon the Land while the Livery is made will not hurt.

And so if the Lessee leaves the Possession, and leaves nothing upon the Land but his Cattle; they will not keep his Possession, nor prejudice the Livery of Seisin. Co. Lit. 48.

If a Lease be made of an Acre to one, and another Acre to another, and the Lessor makes a Feoffment of both these Acres; and makes Livery in one of them in the Name of both Acres; this is no good Feoffment for the other Acre; for by this Livery he is not put out of Possession of that Acre.

So if one makes a Feoffment of two Manors, the one in Possession and the other in Lease, and gives Livery of Seisin of the Manor in Possession in Name of both of the Manors; this is no good Feoffment for the other Manor; neither will it pass by this Feoffment.

So if one makes a Lease for Years of a House, and after makes a Feoffment in Fee of the House and of a Close adjoining, and gives Livery of Seisin of the House, the Termor's Wife and Children being then in the House; this is no good Livery neither to pass the House nor the Close. 21 H. 7. 7. Dyer 18.

If Lessee for Life or Years makes a Feoffment of the Land, the Lessor being then upon the Land, and not contradicting it; it seems this is a good Feoffment, and that the Presence of the Lessor upon the Land, especially if he does not contradict it, will not hinder the Virtue of the Feoffment as against the Feoffor and all others: But the Lessor may enter afterwards for the Forfeiture notwithstanding if he pleases. Perk. 222. Dyer 362.

If the Husband alone makes a Feoffment of the Land he has in the Right of his Wife, or that he has jointly with his Wife, his Wife being then upon the Land and disagreeing to it; in this Case the Feoffment is good against the Feoffor and all others but the Wife notwithstanding her Presence and Disagreement; but the Wife may after his Death avoid it. Perk. § 223.

Jointenants.

If one Jointenant makes a Feoffment of the whole Land, his Companion being then upon the Land; by this there passes no more but a Moiety, and the Feoffment is void as to the Moiety of his Companion, for the Feoffment does not give his Moiety. Perk. § 220.

If a Man enters into my Land by Wrong, and makes a Feoffment of it to a Stranger, I being then upon the Land; this Feoffment is void, for in this Case the Law adjudges me to be always in and never out of the Possession. Perk. § 219.

Prerogative.

If the King has any Possession of the Land by Wardship or otherwise, the Owner of the Land can make no Feoffment of it; and therefore if the King be intitled to Land by Wardship, or primier Seisin after Office found after the Death of an Ancestor of one of his Tenants; in this Case it is said the Feoffment of the Heir is void and passeth nothing, for the King is still in Possession.

And if it be before Office found it will be all one, for the Office shall relate to the Death of the Ancestor; and yet in these Cases the Feoffment is good against the Heir himself, and all others besides the King.

If the Heir before Office found enters and makes a Feoffment, and then the King pardons the Feoffee; in this Case the Feoffment is good; and yet such a Feoffment after Office with Pardon is void.

And

And the like Law is if the Entry be before Office, and the Pardon after the Office, for this is void also.

But if a Man be outlawed for Debt or Trespass, and thereupon the King has the Profits Outlawed, of the Land; in this Case the Owner may make a Feoffment of this Land notwithstanding.

THE Stat. 1 Ric. 9. c. 2. recites, That many People of the said Realm, as well great as small, having Right and true Title as well to Lands, Tenements and Rents, as in other personal Actions, be wrongfully delayed of their own Rights and Actions, by Means that the Occupiers or Defendants to be maintained and sustained in their Wrong, do commonly make Gifts and Feoffments of their Lands and Tenements which be in Debate, and of their other Goods and Chattels, to Lords and other great Men of the Realm, against whom the said Pursuants, for great Menace that is made to them, cannot nor dare not make their Pursuits.

And also on the other Part, Complaint is made to the King, that oftentimes many People do disseise others of their Tenements, and anon after their Disseisin done they make divers Alienations and Feoffments, sometimes to Lords and great Men of the Realm to have Maintenance, and sometimes to many Persons of whose Names the Disseisees can have no Knowledge, to the Intent to defer and delay by such Frauds the said Disseisees, and the other Demandants, and the Heirs of their Recovery, to the great Hindrance and Oppression of the People. And therefore

It is ordained and established, that from henceforth no Gift or Feoffment of Lands, Tenements or Goods, be made by such Fraud or Maintenance.

And if any be in such wise made, they shall be holden for none, and of no Value.

And the said Disseisees shall from henceforth have their Recovery against the first (a) Disseisors, as well of the Lands and Tenements as of their double Damages, without having Regard to such Alienations, so that the Disseisees commence their Suits within the Year next after the Disseisin done.

And it is ordained and established, that the same Statute shall hold Place in every other Action in Plea of Land where such Feoffments be made by Fraud or Collusion, to have the Recovery against the first such Feoffor.

And it is, to wit, that this Statute ought to be understood where such Feoffors thereof take the Profits.

The Preamble of the said Act declares, That Mischiefs which the Makers of the Act intended to Remedy were, to those who had Right and just Title, or were disseised; and the Purview gives the Remedy only to Disseisees, and so it must be a Disseisin in Fact, and after this Use made; in which Case Remedy is given to such Disseisee against Cestuy que Use, and a Recovery against him shall bind him and the Feoffees; and so this Act makes no other but Cestuy que Use able to lose the Land of the Feoffees in a just Action brought by the Disseisee, but does not make him able to lose the Land of the Feoffees in a feint Action brought against him. Plow. 3. b.

By this Statute Feoffments made to great Men for Maintenance are declared void; but this is as to Strangers, but not between the Feoffor and Feoffee. Bro Feoffment de terres, pl. 1. And that Strangers shall have an Action against the Pernor of the Profits. Ibid, pl. 19. And such Feoffment would not make a Remitter in Prejudice of a third Person. Ibid.—Co. Lit. 369.—Hawk. P. C. 263. §. 3.

If Baron and Feme, being Cestuy que Use in Right of his Wife, make a Feoffment, and the Baron dies; this Feoffment is not void ab initio, but is determined. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 1.

A Feoffment by a Feme, of her Jointure made by her first Baron in Possession or in Use, is void, by the Statute of 11 H. 7. as to the Heir, but not as to all. Ibid.

A is Tenant for Life, Remainder to B. for Life, Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of A. Feoffment by A. is no Discontinuance. Lord Raym. 855.

(S) Livery of Seisin what.

LIVERY of Seisin is the giving Possession of Lands or Tenements corporeal; or it is a Solemnity or overt Ceremony required by Law in passing Lands or Tenements corporeal, as an Evidence or Testimonial of the willing Departing by him that makes the Li-

(a) Who are Pernors of the Profits, (which is as much as to say, that they are Cestuy que Use.) Plow. 3. b.

very from the Thing whereof Livery is made, and the willing Acceptance thereof by the other Party.

(T) The Antiquity and Origin of Livery of Seisin.

LIVERY of Seisin is as antient as a Feoffment, for no Feoffment is made without Livery of Seisin, altho' Livery of Seisin be sometimes made upon other Conveyances. See before concerning the Antiquity of Feoffments.

Livery of Seisin was first invented as an open and notorious Act, to the End that the Country might take Notice how Lands pass from Man to Man, and who is Owner thereof, that such as have Title thereto may know against whom to bring their Actions, and that others may know that have Cause, of whom to take Leases, and of whom to require Wardships, &c.

And by this Means if the Title comes in Question, the Jury can better tell in whom the Right is.

(U) The Kinds of Livery of Seisin.

THERE are two Kinds of Livery of Seisin: 1. A Livery in Deed and a Livery in Law.

Livery in Deed what.

A Livery in Deed is when the Feoffor, Donor, &c. in Person or by Attorney takes the Ring of the Door of a House, or a Turf or a Twig off the Land, or a Ring of Gold, or any other Thing, tho' it does not concern the Land, and delivers the same upon the Land unto the Feoffee, Donee, &c. in the Name of Seisin of the House, or Seisin of the Land; or it may be made by Words only without Deed.

In Law what.

A Livery in Law is where the Feoffor says to the Feoffee, being in View of the House or Land, I give you yonder House (or Land) to you and your Heirs, go enter into the same and take Possession thereof accordingly, or the like.

See more concerning Livery in Deed, and Livery in Law, post.

(V) The Nature and Operation of Livery of Seisin.

THE Manner of Conveyance by Feoffment is so antient, and the Ceremony of Livery of Seisin being inseparably incident to it, it is much favoured in Law; and therefore it is expounded and taken strongly against him that makes it, and beneficially for him to whom it is made.

And for this Cause it worketh not only to transmit the present Estate, but also to bar all present and future Rights and Possibilities.

If therefore one makes a Lease for Life to J. S. the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. D. (which J. D. is then living) and gives Livery of Seisin according to the Deed; in this Case altho' he in Remainder be not capable of this Remainder, yet by the Livery it shall pass out of the Feoffor, and shall be in Abeyance during the Life of J. S.

So if a Feoffment be made to one & heredibus, without the Word suis, and Livery of Seisin be made of the Deed, this Livery perhaps may make the Estate good. 5 Co. 92. Lit. §. 70. 6 Co. 26. Doct. & Stud. 13. Co. Lit. 49.

(W) The Effect and Operation of Livery of Seisin to pass a future Interest.

THE Ceremony of Livery of Seisin was first instituted, that the Pares of the County may upon any Dispute relating to the Freehold determine in whom it is lodged, and from thence be the better enabled to determine in whom the Right is. Hence therefore it is, that if a Man makes a Feoffment, or Lease for Life to commence in futuro, and makes Livery immediately, the Livery is void, and only an Estate at Will passes to the Feoffee; for the Design of the Institution would fail if such Livery were effectual to pass the Freehold, for it would be no Evidence or Notoriety of the Change of the Freehold, if after the Livery made the Freehold still remained in the Feoffor; the Use of the Investiture would rather create than prevent the Uncertainty of the Freehold, and in many Cases would put Men to fruitless Trouble and Expence in Pursuit of their Right; for by that Means after a Man had brought his Præcipe against a Person whom he supposed to be Tenant to the Freehold, and had proceeded in it a considerable Time, the Writ might abate by the Freehold's vesting in another, by Virtue of a Livery made before the Purchase of the Writ. Another Reason why such future Interest cannot be allowed to pass by an Act of Livery of Seisin was, because no Man would be safe in his Purchase if the Operation of Livery might create ate an Estate to commence many Years after the Livery was made, and tho' they have allowed a future Interest to commence by way of Lease, yet that had no such ill Effect in making Purchases uncertain, because antiently they were under the Power of the Freeholder, who by Recovery might destroy them; and now, unless such Leases be made upon good Consideration, they are fraudulent against a Purchaser; and it is not to be presumed that Leases at great Distances should be purchased for Value. Cro. Eliz. 451. 2 Vent. 204. Co. Lit. 217. 5 Co. 94. b.

From hence we may account why a Freehold in Reversion or Remainder cannot be granted in futuro; tho' there no Livery is necessary to pass it; as,

Where A. is Tenant for Life, Remainder to B. in Fee. A. makes a Lease for Years to C. and afterwards grants the Land to D. Habend. from Michaelmas; because such future Grants create an Uncertainty of the Freehold; and the Tenant of the Freehold being the Person who is to answer the Stranger's Præcipe, and was answerable to the Lord for the Services; it were unreasonable to permit him by any Act of his own to prevent or delay the Prosecution of their Right. 2 Co. 55. 2 And. 29. Moor 423. Cro. Eliz. 450, 585. Hob. 170, 171. 5 Co. 94. Roll. Rep. 261.

But where a Man makes a Lease to commence from Michaelmas, and after Michaelmas, makes Livery and Seisin; this is sufficient to pass the Freehold, because in this Case, at the Time of the Livery made, the Possession and Freehold were actually transferred to the Lessee, and did not remain in the Lessor, after the Notoriety made, which gives Notice of transferring the Freehold. Hob. 314. Cro. Jac. 458, 563. 3 Bulst. 290.

Yet if the Feoffor had made a Letter of Attorney to give Livery, the Attorney could not give Livery after Michaelmas, unless an express Authority were therein contained for it, because the natural Import of such Authority is to give Livery immediately; and the Authority of the Representative cannot extend beyond the Delegation. Cro. Jac. 563. Hob. 314.

If A. makes a Lease for five Years to B. upon Condition that if B. pays him 10*l.* within two Years, that then he shall have a Fee-simple in the Lands, and makes Livery and Seisin to B. this passes the Freehold immediately, and B. has a Fee conditional, because if the Freehold were not to vest in B. till the Condition performed, it would be difficult to determine in whom the Freehold is; for such Conditions may be inserted in Deeds, which are perfected privately between the Parties, and therefore not so proper to govern the Possession and Seisin of the Freehold, as the solemn Investiture by Livery, which is made in the publick View of the whole County; therefore if this Solemnity was first appointed to give Notice of the transferring the Freehold, it follows that from the Reason of the Investiture the Freehold must pass at the Time of the Solemnity made, or not at all. But if A. had made a Lease for Life, upon like Condition to have Fee, the Livery made thereon should not carry the Inheritance till after the Condition performed, because there passed a certain Freehold in all Events to the Lessee, and the Livery gave Notice in whom it was lodged; so that no Man can pretend Ignorance against whom to bring his Præcipe, which would be the Mischief in the former Case, if the Freehold did not pass at the Time of Livery made. Lit. §. 350. Co. Lit. 217.

A. by Indenture demised to B. Habend' a die datus, (which was the 10th of June) Indenture prædict' for his Life, with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery; the Attorney made Livery the 23d of July following, and the Livery was held to be void, because the Estate for Life being by the Indenture to commence the 10th of June, the Attorney had no Authority to change the Commencement of the Estate, and therefore having not pursued his Authority, by not giving Livery to let the Freehold commence according to the Deed, what he did afterwards was without any Authority, and consequently void; but in this Case, if the Deed had not been delivered till after the Day of the Date, and the Attorney had given Livery at the Time of the Delivery of the Deed; this had been a good Livery, because the Deed of Feoffment was to govern the Livery, but the Deed itself had no Effect till the Delivery, and therefore the Attorney making the Livery at the Time the Deed of Feoffment began to operate, which was to govern it, seems to have well enough executed his Authority. Cro. Jac. 153. Moor, pl. 876. Cro. Eliz. 873.

If a Lease for Years be made to begin at Michaelmas, Remainder to J. S. in Fee, and Livery is made before Michaelmas, the Livery is void for the former Reason, but a Lease for Years may be made to commence in futuro, because the Freeholder, who is to answer the Stranger's Præcipe, is, notwithstanding such future Interest, certain and known, and therefore not within the Reason of the former Case. Plow. 156. a. Co. Lit. 217.

If a Man makes a Feoffment to commence after his own Death, or makes a Feoffment in this Manner, being upon the Land: I do here, reserving an Estate for my own and my Wife's Life, give you these my Lands to you and your Heirs; these are void Feoffments, because the Possession is not delivered at the Time of the Notoriety made, and therefore if such Feoffments were allowed, the Investiture would be so far from being an Evidence to discover in whom the Freehold is lodged, that it would often mislead the Juries in such Inquiries; besides, it were absurd to suffer a Man to reserve a particular Estate to himself, and thereby in the same Contract be both Feoffor and Feoffee. Cro. Eliz. 344, 345. Poph. 47, 48. 2 Roll. Abr. 7. Hob. 170. Co. Lit. 48. Moor 687.

If a Lease for Years be made to A. Remainder to the right Heirs of B. and Livery and Seisin is made to A. yet the Freehold does not pass from the Lessor, and therefore the Livery is void, because there was no Person in Being at the Time of the Livery made in whom the Freehold could vest, for Nemo est heres viventis; and the Law will not endure such future Operation of the Investiture, because it would create an Uncertainty of the Freehold, which would necessarily perplex and delay all Prosecutions against the Freehold. Co. Lit. 217. a.

If a Lease for Years be made to A. the Remainder to B. for Life, and Livery is made, the Freehold is well conveyed to B. but this Livery cannot be made to B. himself, for that belongs to A. during the Term; the Livery therefore must be made to A. who is to receive the Possession, and such Livery actually vests the Freehold in B. because the Presumption is that every Man accepts of a Gift which is for his Interest, and A. is looked upon as the Attorney of B. to take the Livery, because he having an immediate Interest in the Land, is the only Person to whom the Possession can be delivered, for B. has no immediate Right to the Possession; and therefore as he cannot receive it himself, by Consequence he cannot dispute another to take it. Lit. §. 60. 5 Co. 94. b. Co. Lit. 49. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

But this Livery must be made to A. upon the Land, for a Livery within the View will not pass the Freehold to B. for this Livery within the View, being antiently made in Court, could only be made by the immediate Homagers of the Court from one to the other; but A. in this Case being no Homager to the Court, since he was only Lessee for Years, was not capable of such Livery within View. Co. Lit. 49. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 6.

And this Livery to A. must be made to him before he actually enters and takes Possession by Virtue of the Lease, because if the Possession be once filled by the Lessee for Years, there is no vacant Possession to be transferred by the Livery; for Quod semel meum est amplius meum esse non potest, no Man can receive that from another which is already in his Possession. Lit. §. 60. Co. Lit. 49, 216. 5 Co. 94. Moor 14. Plow. 156. a.

If a Lease for Years be made to B. the Remainder to C. in Fee, and Livery is made to A. in the Absence of B. whether the Conveyance be by Deed or without, the Livery is good to vest the Remainder in C. because by the bare Demise A. and B. have an Interest in the Land during the Term without any further Ceremony, and each being equally intitled to the whole Possession, either may invest himself in the whole Possession by Entry, or receive the Possession from the Lessor by the Solemnity of the Livery; and therefore when the whole Possession is delivered by the Lessor, and Livery made to A. in the Absence of B. in the Name of both, this Livery is sufficient to vest the Remainder in C. because A. had as much Power to receive the Possession of the Whole, he and B. being Jointenants by the Demise, and thereby seised per my & per tout. Co. Lit. 49. 5 Co. 94. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

But if a Lease for Life had been made to C. to commence immediately, and C. had appointed A. and B. his Attornies to take Livery from the Lessor; the Livery made to one of them alone had been ineffectual and void, because one only without the other had no Authority from the Delegation to receive the Possession, and consequently what is done by a Representative, without an Authority from the Principal, is a Nullity and void; but otherwise it is if the Letter of Attorney had been jointly and severally to receive Livery. Co. Lit. 49. b. 5 Co. 94. b. Palm. 23.

The Father having two Sons, did give to his youngest Son certain Lands in Consideration of Marriage, Habendum to him and his Heirs after the Death of the Father, but no Livery was made; the Father died; it was insisted for the youngest Son, that the Lands did pass by way of Covenant to stand seised; but adjudged that they should not, for by the Word give, it shall be intended to pass an Estate by Transmutation of Possession, and that cannot be done without Livery; but if Livery had been made in this Case it had been void, because the Gift of the Land was to his Son and Heirs after the Father's Life, and an Estate of Freehold cannot begin at a Day to come, because the Livery must enure on a present Estate. March 50.

In Ejectment the Case upon the Pleadings was, The Father being seised in Fee, did in Consideration of the Marriage of his eldest Son, speak these Words, Stand forth Eustace, reserving an Estate to myself and my Wife, I do give thee my Lands, and to thy Heirs: It was objected, that a Man could not pass a Freehold from himself to begin at a Day to come, and and by it to make a particular Estate to himself at the same Time. It is true it was adjudged, that these Words being spoken on the Lands amounted to a Livery, and that the Son should have a Fee-simple after the Death of his Father and Mother: But this Judgment was reversed in the Exchequer-Chamber; first, because no Use was raised by these Words; and it could not be a Feoffment, because there are not proper Words for that Purpose, nor any Livery. Popb. 47.

A Lease for Years may commence in futuro, because it may be made without Livery, but a Lease for Life cannot, and a present Livery cannot be made upon a future Estate, therefore nothing passes by such Livery; but if there are two joint Lessees for Years, Remainder to B. G. for Life, the Livery made to one in the Name of both is good, because they have an Interest in the Land before they enter, and such Livery made to one is sufficient to support the Remainder to B. G. 5 Co. 93.

Feoffment was made, Habendum to the Feoffee and his Heirs after the Death of the Feoffor, and Livery was made; yet adjudged a void Feoffment, because an Estate of Freehold in Lands cannot begin at a Day to come; but where the Lessor made a Lease to three for their Lives, and granted the Reversion, Habendum to the Grantee for his Life, which said Estate for Life shall begin after the Death of the Survivor of the said three Lessees for Life; this was adjudged a good Estate in Reversion for Life. Hob. 171.

(X) The Effect of Livery of Seisin with Respect to the Presence or Possession of others.

IT is regularly true, that the Feoffor must be actually in the Possession of the Land at the Time of the Livery made, or otherwise the Livery will be ineffectual and void, because the Design of the Livery is to give Notice of the Change made of the Possession, and therefore it must be a vacant Possession that is delivered; but it were absurd that a Man should be permitted to transfer to another what he has not within himself; wherefore if a Man makes a Lease for Years or Life of his Land, or has his Land extended by Virtue of a Statute-Merchant, &c. and makes a Feoffment and Livery, the Conusee or Lessee being in Possession of the Land, the Livery is void, because the Land is filled by the Lessee, and consequently during the Continuance of his Interest the Feoffor cannot deliver a vacant Possession; and therefore the Livery, which is a Solemnity instituted to give Notice of the Change of the Possession, must be void. Co. Lit. 48. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 3, 4. 7 H. 4. 19. b. Dyer 33. Cro. Eliz. 322.

Thus if there be Lessee for Years of a House and several Closets, and the Lessee and all his Servants being in the House, the Lessor enters into one of the Closets, and makes a Feoffment of it, and gives Livery, that is a void Feoffment; because the Possession of Part of the Thing demised is Possession of the Whole, for the Impossibility that a Man should be in the actual Possession of every Part of the Land at the same Time; and consequently the Lessor cannot take Possession of the Close, which was filled by his Lessee; and therefore the Livery must be void, because the Feoffor had no vacant Possession to transfer at the Time of the Livery made. 2 Co. 31. b. Moor, pl. 397. 2 Roll. Abr. 4. Co. Lit. 48. b. Dyer 18. b.

So it is if the Lessee for Years himself had not been in the House, or on any Part of the Land, yet if his Wife, Children or Servants had been on any Part of the Land, that were sufficient; but the Cattle of the Lessee grazing upon the Land, without either Wife or Servant on the Land, does not fill the Possession as to prevent the Lessor from entering and making a good Livery to pass the Freehold, because the Cattle cannot be said to continue upon the Land Animo possidendi, for the Benefit of their Master, as a Servant may and in Duty ought to do. Co. Lit. 48. 2 Roll. Abr. 4. Dyer 18. Bro. Tit. Feoffment 66. But Moor 11. cont.

In the making of every Livery of Seisin it is requisite that all Persons that have any lawful Estate and Possession in the Thing whereof Livery is to be made, as Lessees for Life, Years, and such like, join in the making thereof, or be removed thence, for every Livery ought to bring an immediate Possession to the Feoffee or Donee, &c. Shep. Touch. 213.

If Lessee for Years makes a Feoffment and Warrant of Attorney to give Livery of Seisin, and the Attorney makes Livery of Seisin, the Lessor being present upon the Land, and not contradicting it; it seems this is a good Livery of Seisin. Dyer 361.

The Presence of the Feoffor, Donor, &c. upon the Land after he hath delivered Seisin to the Feoffee, Donee, &c. although he stays upon the Land awhile, and does not depart and leave the Feoffee, &c. in Possession, will not hurt the Livery. Bro. Feoffment 24.

If a Man makes a Lease for Life of Lands, and afterwards makes a Feoffment of the same Lands, and makes Livery and Seisin upon the Land, by the Assent of the Lessee, and in his Presence; this is a good Livery to pass the Inheritance, because the Lessee's permitting the Feoffor to come upon the Land, and make Livery, is a sufficient quitting of the Possession to him, either by way of Surrender, or to create a Tenancy at Will in the Feoffor, to make the Feoffment and Livery more effectual and valid. 2 Roll. Abr. Bro. Tit. Surrender 48.

But if the Servant of the Lessee were only on the Land, the Livery made by the Feoffor, though with the Servant's Permission, had been void if the Servant continued in Possession at the Time of the Livery made, for while the Servant continued in Possession, it must be only for the Use and Benefit of him that placed him there; and consequently the Possession of the Servant must be looked upon as the Possession of the Master, and therefore the Livery must be void, because it could not deliver a Possession which was still filled by the Master, and which the Master never consented to part with; and the Permission of a Servant will not admit of such a Construction as was made in the precedent Case, because the Servant having no Interest but in Right of the Master, could neither make a Surrender nor a Tenancy at Will to the Feoffor. 2 Roll. Abr. 5.

If there be a Lessee for Years of six Acres, and he makes a Lease for Years of three Acres to J. S. and he in Reversion enters upon J. S. and makes a Feoffment with Livery, this shall pass the three Acres, because by the Demise of A. for Years, the Possession became separate and divided, which was united and one under the Lease to A. himself, and therefore A. continuing in Possession of his own three Acres, could never be a Possession of the other three which he had no Right to during the Demise to J. S. but if A. had only made a Lease at Will to J. S. of those three Acres, the Entry and Livery of the Reversioner had not passed them, because he is still supposed to be in Possession of those three Acres, since he may enter into them when he pleases, by the Determination of his own Will, for no Man can be actually upon every Parcel of the Land, yet the Possession of one Acre is very reasonably construed the Possession of the Whole. 2 Co. 32. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 4. Dyer 18. b.

Lessee for Years of a House, and a Close distant from the House, and other Lands; afterwards the Lessor made a Feoffment of the said House, and all the Lands mentioned in the Lease, and made Livery and Seisin in the Close, the Lessor being within the House; adjudged that it is void for the Whole, because when an House and Land is demised together, the House is the Principal, and the Possession of the House is the Possession of the Whole; therefore the Lessee being in the House, he had the Possession of the Whole, and by Consequence the Livery not good; but if the Lessee had made a Lease for Years of any Part of the Land, and the Lessor had made Livery on that Part, it had been good to pass that Part; but not if such Lease had been at Will. 2 Co. 32. Moor 250.

The Disfeisor made a Feoffment in Fee, and a Letter of Attorney to enter and take Possession of the Lands, and afterwards to make Livery secundum formam Chartae; adjudged this was a good Feoffment though the Disfeisee was out of Possession at that Time, because the Power given to the Attorney was executory, and nothing passed till he had made Livery and Seisin. 37 Eliz. Brown v. Terry.

It has been held, where a Man made a Lease for Years of a House, and afterwards made a Feoffment of it, with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and the Attorney came to the House to make Livery in the Absence of the Lessee, and finding No-body in the House but the Servant of the Lessee, who quitted the Possession of the House at the Desire of the Attorney, and then the Attorney made Livery, which the Master approved of at his Return, saving his Term; that this was a good Livery, because here the Servant actually quitted the House, and thereby the Attorney had a vacant Possession to deliver to the Feoffee; so if the Attorney had found the Lessee himself upon the Land, and had entred and ousted him, and then made Livery, that had been good to pass the Freehold; for though the Ouster had been a tortious Act, yet the Possession became thereby vacant, and consequently by the Livery might be delivered to the Feoffee. Dyer 363. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 5. Moor 91.

So it is in Case of a Tenant at Sufferance; as if Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself in Fee, and afterwards makes a Lease for Years, and dies, by which the Issue is remitted before Entry, and consequently the Estate of the Lessee for Years is determined and changed into a Tenancy at Sufferance, because the Fee-simple, out of which it was derived, is vanished by the Remitter, and the Issue enters into Part of the Land descended, and makes a Feoffment of the Whole, and gives Livery of that Part into which he entred in the Name of the Whole; this shall pass all the Lands to which the Issue was remitted; though the Tenant at Sufferance was in Possession of Part, because that Possession may be reasonably supposed to be in me, which I may actually place myself in at my Pleasure, and therefore the Livery in that Part, in which the Issue had actually entered in the Name of the Whole, shall pass all the Lands. 2 Roll. Abr. 5. 2 Roll. Rep. 260. Moor, pl. 1, 143.

A. seised of Land in Fee, held of the Queen in Socage, died, and it was found by Office that he died without Heir, by which the Lands were seised as the Escheat of the Queen, and B. the Heir of A. traversed the Office upon which the Issue was joined, and pending the Issue, B. made a Deed of Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney; and afterwards the Issue being for B. Judgment was given Que les meins le R. soient amove, and then the Attorney made Livery, after which the Amoveas manum was executed; this was held a good Feoffment and Livery, because by the Judgment against the Queen, her Possession was defeated, and B. was restored to his Right of Possession, which he might have placed himself in at his Pleasure, and therefore might transfer that to another which he might actually invest himself in at Pleasure. 2 Roll. Abr. 5, 6.

Thus if Land descends to J. S. who enters but in Part of it, and makes a Feoffment of the Whole, and Livery in that Part in which he entered in the Name of the Whole; all the Lands shall pass, for besides that in this Case an Entry into Part may be construed an Entry into the Whole, the Feoffor having a Power to reduce the Whole into his actual Possession at his Will, the very Act of Feoffment, with the Livery in all these Cases, may reasonably be taken to be a Determination of his Will to take the Possession, since the Livery and Feoffment would be invalid unless he were in Possession. 2 Roll. Abr. 5.

If Husband and Wife be seised of Land in Fee, and the Husband makes a Feoffment of the Whole, the Wife being upon the Land, yet the Livery shall pass the Land, because the Husband had the whole Possession, either in his own Right, or in Right of his Wife; and therefore could deliver it over by the Investiture though the Wife disagree to it. 2 Roll. Abr. 5. Perk. §. 223.

If a Man be seised of two Acres, and being disseised of one, makes a Feoffment of both, and Livery in the Acre in Possession in the Name of both; yet the Acre of which he was disseised does not pass, because he could not deliver that Possession to the Feoffee which the Disseisor had. So it is if the Disseisor had made a Lease at Will, and then the Disseisee had made a Feoffment of the Acre in his Possession in the Name of both; this had not passed both the Acres, because the Possession of one Acre was still out of him, and the Feoffment could not be any Determination of the Will of the Disseisor. 2 Roll. Abr. 6. Dyer 18.

But if a Man be seised of two Acres, and makes a Lease at Will of one, and after enfeoffs J. S. of both Acres; this shall pass both, because the very Feoffment and Livery is a Determination of the Estate at Will, and consequently the Feoffor has thereby resumed the Possession in order to convey it by Livery; otherwise of a Lease for Years, because the Possession is in the Termor during the Lease. Dyer 18. 2 Roll. Abr. 5.

If A. be Lessee for Life of Blackacre, and being likewise seised in Fee of Whiteacre, makes a Feoffment of both, and gives Livery in Whiteacre in the Name of both; this is a good Feoffment of both Acres, because A. had the Freehold and Possession of both Acres, and therefore might well deliver them over by the Investiture; otherwise if A. had been only possessed of Blackacre for Years; for then it should not pass by the Feoffment; because the Charter of Feoffment passes the Interest in the Term before the Livery made, and a lesser Estate by Right shall be supposed to pass rather than a greater by Wrong; but in the first Case, where A. had the Freehold in both Acres, nothing passes till the Livery must operate to pass the Fee in both Acres, secundum formam Chartæ, or else it can pass nothing. 2 Roll. Abr. 6. 9 H. 7. 25. b.

But if A. had been possessed of Blackacre for Years in Auter droit, as Guardian to an Infant, and had made Feoffment of both Acres, and given Livery in Whiteacre in the Name of both; that had passed both Acres to the Feoffee, because the Term being vested in the Infant, the Guardian could lawfully transfer it as if he had been in Possession of it in his own Right; and therefore the Livery must operate to oust the Infant of the Term, and disseise him in Reversion, or else it will have no Effect at all. 2 Roll. Abr. 4.

If a Man be seised of two Acres, and makes a Lease for Years of one of them, and after makes a Feoffment of both Acres, and Livery of the Acre in his own Possession in the Name of both, the Livery is void and ineffectual to pass the Acre in Lease, because that being full of the Lessee, the Feoffor had not the Possession to transfer by the Livery; yet such Feoffment is a good Grant of the Reversion of the Leasehold Acre, if the Termor attorns, because every Man's Act is construed most strongly against himself; and therefore the Feoffor shall not be admitted to claim any Thing in any of the Acres, since the Possession of the one was actually transferred by the Livery, and the Reversion of the other in Lease by the Deed of Feoffment, which with the Attornment of the Tenant amounts to a Grant. Co. Lit. 49. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 56. Plow. 162.

But if there be a Lease for Years, Remainder to B. for Life, and C. the Reversioner in Fee makes a Feoffment in Fee with Livery to A. this is void as a Feoffment, because C. had no Possession to transfer by the Livery, that being already in A. and the Freehold in B. by the former Lease; and the Acceptance of the Livery by A. was neither a Surrender nor an Attornment; as in the former Case it could not amount to a Surrender, because of the intermediate Freehold which was in B. nor did the Feoffment amount to a Grant and Attornment; for though according to the former Case every Man's Conveyance is construed most strongly against the Grantor, yet in this Case the Grant is ineffectual for want of Attornment; for A.'s Acceptance is no Attornment, because he shall not bring B. with his Fealty, by an Act which was not in its original Intention designed to be prejudicial and injurious to B. by displacing his Remainder. 2 Roll. Abr. 4, 56. Roll. Abr. 482.

If the Queen be Lessee for Years, and he in Reversion enters upon the Land, and makes a Feoffment in Fee; this is void, because the Law preserves the Possession for the Queen, who by constantly attending the Business of the Publick, is presumed not to have Leisure to take Care of her private Concerns; but if the Queen had made a Lease for Years to J. S. and he in Reversion had entered and ousted him, and made a Feoffment, that had been good, because the Queen had no Right to the Possession during the Lease to J. S. and the Reversioner having gained the Possession by his ousting J. S. might consequently deliver it by the Investiture. 2 Roll. Abr. 5. & vide 2 Co. 53.

If a Man makes a lease for Life to A. Land after makes a Feoffment and Livery to A. of the Land in Lease, this is a good Livery and Feoffment; for though the Land was in Lease to A. yet his Acceptance of the Feoffment and Livery amounts to a Surrender, Ut res magis valeat, and consequently the Feoffor has thereby Possession to transfer by the Livery to the Feoffee. 2 Roll. Abr. 495. Dyer 358. Moor 636.

(Y) Livery of Seisin, in what Cases it is requisite, or not.

LIVERY of Seisin is needful, and must be had and made in all Cases where an Estate of Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for a Man's own or another Man's Life, is made or granted by Writing or Word in pais, of any Lands or Tenements corporeal. [But see the Statute for transferring Uses into Possession, post.]

Every Feoffment, whether it be made with Deed or without Deed, must be made with Livery of Seisin, and this Livery of Seisin must be made according to the Rules of Livery and Seisin herein after laid down; for this is of the Essence of a Feoffment, and a Feoffment is not perfect until Livery of Seisin be made, for till then the Feoffee has only an Estate at Will in the Land, and the Feoffor may put him out when he will.

And if either of the Parties die before the Livery of Seisin be made, the Feoffment is void, and no Warrant of Attorney to make Livery can be executed after the Death of the Feoffor or Feoffee; neither is there any Remedy in this Case to get the Assurance to be made perfect but in a Court of Equity.

But in Case where there are many Feoffees, there the Death of one or some of them will not hinder the Livery. Lit. §. 59, 66. Co. Lit. 52. Dr. & Stud. 31.

Lessee for Life may surrender to him in Reversion without making any Livery. 44 Aff. 3. Curia. 2 Roll. Abr. 1. pl. 1.

But if Lessee for Life makes a Grant to him in Reversion during the Life of the Lessor, rendering Rent during his Life; this Lease is not good without Livery. And. 33.

By Exchange a Freehold may pass without Livery. Co. Lit. 1, 49. 2 Salk. 620.

A Freehold may, by Custom, be surrendered without Livery. Co. Lit. 49. a.

And where one makes a Lease of Land to another for Years, the Remainder to a Stranger in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life; in these Cases Livery of Seisin must be had and made to the Lessee for Years, or else nothing will pass to him in Remainder, and yet the Lease for Years will be good. Moor, Case 54. Plow. 156. a.

An Inheritance in Land may be granted without Livery, though the Land itself cannot, as Vesturam terræ. Fitz. Præcipe 55. And so may Trees which were an Inheritance in the Land. Lev. 171.

If a Lessee enters before Livery made, then the Freehold and Reversion is in the Lessor; but if he makes Livery to the Lessee before his Entry, then the Freehold is in them in Remainder, according to the Form of Deed. Lit. §. 60.

A. leases to B. for Years, Remainder to the right Heirs of B. and makes Livery; the Remainder is void, because there is not any in esse who can take presently by the Livery; for every Livery ought to operate presently: But where a Lease is made to B. for Life, Remainder to his right Heirs, he hath a Fee executed, and it shall not be in Abeyance, for there he takes the Freehold by the Livery. 4 Leon. Case 67.

So that it is necessary that the Lease and Livery should be executed at the same Time by the Lessor himself: Or if Livery be to be made by an Attorney after the Lease is sealed, sealed, the Livery must be made before the Lessee hath actually entered; for until actual Entry the Lessee has only an Interesse Termini; for after he has actually entered, Livery will signify nothing, he having as much as Livery can give him, viz. the Possession.

By the Entry of the Lessee, he is in the actual Possession, and then the Livery cannot be made to him who hath the Possession already. But if the Lessor and the Lessee come upon the Ground on Purpose for the Lessor to make, and the Lessee to take Livery, there it vests no actual Possession in him till Livery made. Co. Lit. 49. b.

And where a Lease for Years is made upon Condition that if such a Thing happens the Lessee shall have the Fee-simple; in this Case the Lessee must have Livery of Seisin before his Entry, otherwise the Estate will not increase. Co. Lit. 216.

If Lessee for Years makes a Lease for Life without Livery, the Term shall pass. Moor 423.

If A. is Lessee at Will, and the Lessor leases to A. for Years, Remainder to B. in Fee; this is good, tho' no Livery be made; for Possession countervails Livery. Dyer 269. b.

So a Gift in Tail, &c. to the Lessee at Will, or Tenant at Sufferance, is good without Livery of Seisin, because of the Possession which countervails a Livery of Seisin. Noy 56.

And if the King makes a Feoffment of the Land he has in Right of the Duchy of Lancaster that is not within the County Palatine; in this Case Livery of Seisin must be made as in the Case of a Subject, if it be not of the Lands within the County Palatine; for they pass by Letters Patent of the Duchy without Livery; but a Lease for Years of them, or of other Lands, ought to be by Deed; Quod nota bene. And Quere if the Act of 1 Ed. 4. which annexed it to the King and his Heirs, Kings, was remembered. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 51. cites 21 E. 4. 60.

If I make a Feoffment to the King by Deed, it is good without Livery if he inrols the Deed, otherwise not; for the King cannot take but by Matter of Record. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 69.

And in all these Cases where Livery of Seisin is requisite and it is not made, there doth pass no Estate by the Conveyance, but an Estate at Will at the most. Plow. 224, 219. Br. Feoffment de terre, pl. 69.

But Livery of Seisin is not needful or requisite to be had and made in Cases where any Estate of Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life, is made or granted of any Lands by Matter of Record, as by the King's Letters Patent, Fine, Recovery, Deed indented and inrolled, and the like; nor is it needful where any such Estate is created by way of Covenant and raising of Use, by way of Exchange, Indowment ad Ostium Ecclesie, or ex assensu patris; nor is it needful where any such Estate is passed or granted by way of Surrender, Devise, Release or Confirmation, or by way of Increase or executory Grant, as when the Fee-simple is granted to the Lessee for Life or Years in Possession; neither is it requisite or can be made where any incorporeal Hereditaments, as Reversions, Rents, Commons, or the like, are granted in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life; for in some of these Cases there is an Attornment to be made that doth supply a Livery.

Neither is it requisite in some Cases where an Estate of Freehold is made of a corporeal Thing: as if a House or Land belong to an Office, and the Office be granted by Deed; in this Case the House or Land doth pass as incident thereunto.

So if a House or Chamber belong to a Corody; by the Grant of the Corody the House or Chamber passes without any Livery of Seisin. Co. Lit. 49.

Neither is it requisite upon a Lease for Years; for if a Man makes a Lease for 1000 Years, it is perfect by the Delivery of the Deed without any Livery of Seisin.

Neither is it needful where one grants to me and my Heirs all the Trees growing on his Ground; for this will pass without any Livery of Seisin at all. 2 Co. 23. Lit. §. 59. Co. Lit. 49. 8 Co. 137. 11 Co. 49.

A. being seised in Fee of an Estate upon Trust, and having two Daughters B. and C. conveyed the same to B. and her Heirs by Deed in Nature of a Feoffment without Livery and Seisin; and it was held that the Trust passed tho' the Deed was not executed by Livery, and that it was sufficient to declare the same, which as the Law then stood might be declared by Parol. Nels. Rep. in Canc. 86.

Where Grants are made for Life or Lives in Pursuance of a Power, Livery and Seisin is not necessary, because it is only the Execution of an Authority; as in Case of Leases for three Lives made by bare Tenant for Life who has such Power; and so of a Sale of Land by Executors by Virtue of the Will. Ca. in B. R. in William 3d's Time 281.

If a Deed be inrolled in London, it binds as a Fine at Common Law, but not as a Fine with Proclamations; and in that Case Livery of Seisin is not requisite, it is a Discontinuance without Livery; and because the Custom there is saved by divers Acts of Parliament it shall bind as a Fine. Bro. Fines, pl. 110.

If

If a Gift be made of Land, Rectory and Tithes in Fee, and no Livery made, the Tithes do not pass, tho' Words of Grant will pass them without Livery. Moor 496.

(Z) By whom Livery of Seisin may be made.

LIVERY of Seisin may and must be made either by the Party himself that makes the Estate, or if it be a Livery indeed, it may in his Absence be made by his Attorney, sufficiently authorized by Writing.

And he that makes an Estate, to the Perfection whereof Livery is requisite, may himself and in his own Right make Livery thereupon, and in the Right of another, and as Attorney to another; so divers that cannot make any Estate, may notwithstanding make Livery of Seisin.

And therefore the Husband, altho' he may not make a Feoffment in Fee or Lease for Life, &c. of Land to his Wife, yet he may as an Attorney make Livery of Seisin to her upon a Conveyance made by another.

And so also may the Wife, upon a Conveyance made to the Husband or her.

And so also Monks, Infants, Aliens, and such like Persons disabled to make Feoffments, &c. may notwithstanding make Livery of Seisin, as Attornies upon Conveyances made to others.

And so likewise may he in Remainder in Fee make Livery to the Lessee for Years. Et sic de similibus. Perk. §. 184. Co. Lit. 48, 49, 52.

There are some Persons who may make Livery of Seisin in their own Right, and also as Servants to others; and some cannot make Livery of Seisin in their own Right, but as Servants unto others they may; and some may make Livery of Seisin by themselves in their own Right unto some Persons, and unto others they cannot; and some shall make Livery of Seisin, and take by the same Livery, &c. Perk. §. 183.

All such Persons as may grant by themselves may make Livery of Seisin themselves, viz. in their own Right, and as Servants unto others, in the same Manner and Form as they may grant, &c. mutatis mutandis, &c. Perk. §. 184.

A. grants a Lease to commence at Michaelmas to B. Remainder in Fee to C. Tho' A. makes Livery and Seisin to B. yet the Livery and Seisin and the Remainder shall be void, because he has no present Estate to which the Livery may be annexed, nor on which it can rest on the mean Time. Plow. 156.

If a Man leases Land for Life, and the Lessee thereof enfeoffs a Stranger, and makes a Letter of Attorney to his Lessor to make Livery of Seisin accordingly, and he makes Livery; in this Case it hath been said by some Persons, that the Lessor might enter upon the Feoffee for a Forfeiture notwithstanding the Livery of Seisin made by himself; for they say that the Feoffee took nothing by him; for the Lessor had nothing to do upon the Land, if not to see whether Waste were done, and to distrain for Rent and Services if they were behind. Perk. §. 200.

Some Persons may make Livery to some who cannot do it to others, who yet may take by Livery from others; as if one Jointenant makes Feoffment to the other; this cannot be a good Deed at Common Law, for he cannot make Livery and Seisin, because the other is jointly seised with him; yet this Deed shall enure by way of Confirmation, and must be so pleaded, and not literally as the Deed is worded. 4 Mod. 150. Q. vide Perk. §. 193, 197. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 48.

(AA) To whom Livery of Seisin may be made.

LIVERY of Seisin may and must be to the Party himself that taketh the Estate, or in his Absence to his Attorney or Procurator sufficiently authorized; and in this Case any one may be an Attorney to take, that may be an Attorney to give Livery. Co. Lit. 48. 49.

If a Feoffment be made to divers by Deed, and Livery of Seisin is made to one or some of them; this is a good Livery to execute the Estate to them all.

But if a Feoffment be made to divers without Deed, and if Livery of Seisin be made to one or some of them in the Name of all the rest; in this Case the Feoffment is good to execute the Estate in him or them to whom the Livery is made, and as void to the Rest. Dyer 35. Co. Lit. 49, 359. 5 Co. 95.

If a Lease for Years be made to A. and B. without Deed, the Remainder to D. in Fee, and Livery of Seisin is made to A. or B. in this Case this is a good Livery to make the Remainder pass to D.

But if a Lease be made to A. the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. in Fee, J. S. being then living, and Livery of Seisin is given to A. this Remainder is void; for Nemo est heres viventis. Co. Lit. 217.

One Jointenant cannot make Livery of Seisin to his Companion as a Tenant in Common may.

And a Lessor cannot make Livery of Seisin to his Lessee for Life or Years. Perk. §. 40. 10 Ed. 4. 3.

If a Man enfeoffs four by Deed, and makes Livery to the one in the Name of all, this is a good Feoffment to all; but if a Man enfeoffs four without Deed, and makes Livery to the one in the Name of all; there it vests nothing but in him that takes by the Livery, Quod nota Diversitas; quod nullus negavit. Bro Feoffment de terres, pl. 16.

Livery made to a Mayor and Commonalty, or other Corporation, without Deed, to receive it by an Attorney, is not good; but per Keble, a Feoffment made to them and to another is good without Deed, if the other takes the Livery; but Hussey contra; for they shall be Tenants in Common by their several Capacities, for which they ought to have several Liveries of the Seisin. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 41. cites 7 H. 7. 9.

If a Feoffment is made to two, Habendum one Moiety to one and the other Moiety to the other; this operates as several Conveyances, and not as one; for there must be two Liveries, because there are several Freeholds, and Livery to one secundum formam Chartæ will not enure to the other. 1 Williams 18, 19.

If A. and B. Jointenants in Fee, lease to C. for Life, and C. grants his Estate to B. some think that this shall enure by way of Surrender, because every one of the Lessors is seised of the Whole, and of the whole Reversion, and the Grant of the Estate of the particular Tenant cannot take Effect by way of Grant without Livery of Seisin; and the Grantee cannot take Livery of Seisin of the same Land, because he has the Reversion in Fee of the whole Land in him immediate to the same particular Estate, and in his own Right. Perk. §. 82.

A. leases to B. for Years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the said B. and makes Livery, the Remainder is void, because there is not any Person in esse who can take by the Livery presently, and every Livery ought to have its Operation presently. But where a Lease is made to B. for Life, the Remainder to his right Heirs; there he has a Fee executed, and it shall not be in Abeyance, for there he takes the Freehold by the Livery. 4 Leo. 21. pl. 67.

A Lord of the Manor of D. by Indenture between him of the one Part, and J. S. his Cophold Tenant in Fee, and R. S. Son and Heir Apparent of J. S. of the other Part, in Consideration of 100*l.* paid by J. S. enfeoffed, released and confirmed, &c. to J. S. the said Land, Habendum to J. S. and R. S. and their Heirs; and covenanted that all Assurances should be to the Use of J. S. and R. S. and Livery was made secundum formam Chartæ; resolved that J. S. only took by the Livery, and R. S. took nothing thereby; but R. S. took by the Limitation of the Use in the Habendum, as Jointenant with J. S. and by the Statute of Uses of 27 H. 8. was jointly seised of the Interest and Possession with J. S. Ley 13.

When a Feoffment is made to A. for Life, Remainder to the Heirs of his Body, and Livery is made to A. secundum formam Chartæ, this is good. 2 Roll. Abr. 10.

If J. S. be enfeoffed to have and to hold to J. S. and T. K. and Livery of Seisin is made unto J. S. according to the Deed, it is void unto T. K. Perk. §. 164.

But if Livery of Seisin had been unto T. K. according to the Deed, then he takes by the Livery of Seisin, and not by the Deed. Perk. §. 164.

Some make Livery of Seisin and take by the same Livery of Seisin; but then they do not make Livery of Seisin in their own Right, or otherwise they do not take by the Livery of Seisin in their own Right, unless in special Cases, &c. Perk. §. 198. And therefore,

If Land be leased for Life to J. S. the Remainder to T. K. in Fee, and a Letter of Attorney is made to T. K. to make Livery of Seisin, and he makes Livery of Seisin to the Lessee accordingly; in this Case he takes by the same Livery of Seisin which he himself made, but not of his own Grant, for he made the same as Servant to the Grantor. Perk. §. 198.

And it is said, that if a Man enfeoffs two by Deed, and makes a Letter of Attorney to one of them to make Livery of Seisin, and he makes Livery of Seisin according to the Deed to his Companion; he who makes the Livery of Seisin shall take by the same Livery of Seisin, because he shall be in by the Feoffor, and not by himself, &c. Perk. §. 199.

If a Man makes Deed of Feoffment of his own Land to himself and to a Stranger, and makes Livery of Seisin to the Stranger according to the Deed; all shall pass to the Stranger and nothing to himself, because he cannot give unto himself, as this Case is, &c. Perk. §. 203.

If a Feoffment was formerly made to a Monk professed, and to a Stranger, by Deed, and Livery of Seisin was made to the Stranger according to the Deed, all passed to the Stranger: But if Livery and Seisin was made to the Monk according to the Deed, and not to the Stranger, nothing passed thereby. Perk. §. 204.

And unto divers Respects a Man may take by Livery of Seisin which he makes in his own Right; but then he shall not take in his own Right, unless in special Cases. Perk. §. 205. And therefore,

If there be Dean and Chapter, and one of the Chapter is sole seised in Fee in his own Right of Lands, and thereof by Deed enfeoffs the Dean and Chapter, and makes Livery of Seisin according to the Deed; in this Case the Feoffor gives and takes by the same Gift in divers Respects. Perk. §. 205. cites 22 H. 6. 43.

And so shall it be of a Mayor and Commonalty; if one of the Commonalty be seised of Land in his own Right, and thereof enfeoffs the Mayor and Commonalty. Perk. §. 205.

And such Persons as are in Possession of Lands for Years or Life, &c. cannot take Livery of Seisin of the same Land, &c. Perk. §. 205.

In a Feoffment to the Dean and Chapter, they cannot take Livery of Seisin but by Letter of Attorney under Seal. Bro. Corporations, pl. 34. cites 14 H. 8. 2. 29.

If a Man enfeoffs a married Woman, and makes Letter of Attorney unto the Husband to make Livery of Seisin according to the Deed, and he makes Livery of Seisin accordingly; it is a good Feoffment, for the Husband is but a Means to convey the Freehold to the Wife; for by this Act done, no Freehold doth pass from the Person, &c. Perk. §. 196.

Livery to a Corporation is not good unless it be executed by Letter of Attorney. Cro. Jac. 411.

(BB) When Livery of Seisin must be made.

IN all Cases where this Ceremony is requisite, whether it be done by the Parties themselves in Person, or their Deputies, it must be done and made,

1. In the Life-time of the Feoffor, Donor or Lessor, and in the Life-time of the Feoffee, Donee or Lessee, for if either of them die, it cannot be done afterwards; neither can a Warrant of Attorney be made to deliver Seisin after the Death of the Feoffor, &c. But if there be more Feoffees, Donees or Lessees than one, in such Cases, although all of them die but one, the Livery of Seisin may be made to the one that survives, and it will be good to him to execute the Estate in all the Land. And so it is if there be a Warrant of Attorney made by a Corporation Aggregate, as a Mayor and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter, or the like, to give Livery of Seisin; in this Case the Death of the Mayor, &c. will not determine the Authority; and therefore in that Case the Livery of Seisin may be made after his Death. Co. Lit. 52.

2. If there be a Lease for Years with a Remainder over in Fee, the Livery must be made to the Lessee for Years before his Entry, or at the Time when he enters for that Purpose, for afterwards it cannot be made. Quod semel meum est amplius meum esse non potest. Co. Lit. 49, 216. Perk. §. 205. Quare whether the Law be not so in all other Cases, and let Men take heed they do not (as commonly they do) enter into the Land before they have Livery of Seisin made thereof unto them.

And yet it seems the Livery of Seisin is good when it is made afterwards. 2 Co. 55.

If a Man makes a Lease for Years to A. and B. Remainder to C. for Life, the Lessor ought to make Livery to A. and B. before their Entry; and by the Livery to A. and B. C. shall take a present Estate for Life by way of Remainder, by Force of the Livery made to the Lessees for Years. 5 Co. 94. b. Lit. §. 60.

3. It must not be made before the Estate begins; for if a Lease be made for Years to begin at Michaelmas with a Remainder over, and the Livery of Seisin is made before Michaelmas, this Livery of Seisin is void; for if a Livery work at all it must work presently, and so it cannot in this Case, because it is before the Estate begins. Co. Lit. 217.

Livery made after the Day, not working futurely, is good enough. Cro. Jac. 458.

As Lease for Life to commence at Michaelmas, and Lessor makes Livery after Michaelmas, it is a good Livery. Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. 2 Roll. Rep. 366.

But if the Lessor had made Livery before Michaelmas, it had been void. 2 Roll. Rep. 109.

Feoffment Habendum a die datus; if the Seisin be not made at the last Instant of the Day, it is not good. Style 189.

A Lease for Lives to commence a die datus, was adjudged good, because Livery was executed after the Day of the Date: But if before, it should not. Moor 637. Roll. Abr. 828. pl. 50.

But

But where the Date was the 30th of July 21 Eliz. and the Livery was 23 Eliz. secundum formam Chartæ, the Livery so long after will not help the Lease, which was Habendum a die datus. Cro. Eliz. 873.

So if the Attorney makes Livery the same Day secundum formam Chartæ, it is void. Cro. Car. 388.

But such Livery must be made the next Day if it be to be made secundum formam Chartæ; for that is forma Chartæ. 2 Bulst. 306.

In a special Verdict in Ejectment the Case was, Two Women were Jointenants in Fee, one of them made a Feoffment with Livery within the View, (viz.) go. enter and take Possession; but before it was executed by an actual Entry she married the Feoffee. It was insisted that this Feoffment was void, because there was no Entry; and by the Marriage the Feoffee became seised in Right of his Wife, and now cannot by his own Act work any Prejudice to her Right; but adjudged that this Livery might be well executed after the Marriage, for he had not only an Authority to enter, but an Interest passeth by the Livery in View, and the Woman did all on her Part to be done. Vent. 186. Mod. 91. 2 Lev. 34.

In Letters of Attorney antiently Power was given to take Possession for the Feoffee; and although the Letter of Attorney be indefinite, without Limitation of any Time, yet the Law says, it must be in the Life of the Feoffor and Feoffee; and upon the Death of either of them the Deed is void, because nothing passes before Livery: For if the Feoffee dies, Livery cannot be made to his Heir, because then he should take by Purchase where Heirs are named by way of Limitation to take by Descent. Co. Lit. 52. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 9. Perk. §. 188.

By Dodderidge J. The Act of the Attorney by Delivery of Seisin cannot make the Estate to pass if the Fabrick of the Deed is void: But if there be a good Deed of Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, the Attorney hath his Election to do it when he will. Roll. Rep. 130. But Note, it must be made in the Life of the Feoffor and Feoffee, otherwise it will be void.

(CC) At what Place Livery of Seisin must be made.

IF an Estate be made of divers Pieces of Land in divers Villages in the same County; in this Case the making of Livery and Seisin of and in any Part thereof in the Name of all the Rest, or of one Parcel, according to the Deed, although he does not say in the Name of, &c. sufficeth for all, if all the Pieces be in the Grantor's Possession and out of Lease.

But if the Pieces of Land lie in divers Counties, or in the same County, and they be in Lease, or out of the Possession of the Feoffor, contra; for in that Case the making of Livery in one Part in the Name of all the Rest, is not sufficient for the Rest; for in this Case it is requisite that Livery of Seisin be made upon and in some of the Lands in both Counties, and upon every Parcel of Land that is out of Possession, or at least in some Part of the Land that is in the Occupation of every several Tenant.

And yet if one Part of a Manor be in one County and the other Part in another County in View of that Part; in this Case it seems Livery of Seisin in the one Part in the one County in the View of the other Part in the other County, is good, and suffices for all.

So if the Site of a Manor lies in one County and the Rest of a Manor in another County; in this Case the making of Livery in the Site of the Manor is sufficient for the whole Manor. Co. Lit. 48. Lit. §. 61, 418. Perk. §. 226, 227, 228. Dr. & Stud. 3. Fitz. Feoffments and Fairs 111.

If a Feoffment be made of the Manor of Dale in Sale, the which Manor doth extend in Dale and Sale, and Livery of Seisin is made accordingly in Dale only, and not in Sale also; by this Feoffment there passes no more of the Manor but that which is in Dale only. Perk. §. 228.

If I be seised of one Acre in Fee, and of another Acre for Life, and I make Feoffment of both Acres, and make Livery of Seisin in that Acre whereof I am seised in Fee in the Name of both Acres; in this Case it seems that suffices to pass both the Acres.

But if I be seised of one Acre in Fee, and possessed of another Acre for Years, and I make a Feoffment of both Acres, and Livery of Seisin on that Acre only whereof I am seised in Fee in the Name of both the Acres, contra; for this is as if I make a Feoffment of Land whereof I am seised, and of other Land whereof I am not seised, &c. 9 H. 7. 5. Per Frowick.

If I be seised of two Acres of Land, and let one of them for Years, and then make an Estate of both of them to another, and make Livery of Seisin in that I have in Possession in in the Name of both the Acres; this will not serve to pass the other Acre, but Livery must be made in that Acre also. Fitz. Facts and Feoffments 2.

And accordingly it was agreed in the Case of Montague ver. Jefferies, in the King's Bench, Hil. 38 Eliz. which was that a Man was seised in Fee of a Manor, and other Lands called Groves, and he made a Feoffment of it, (Groves being then in Lease for Years) and a Letter of Attorney to give Livery, and the Attorney made Livery of the Manor in the Name of the Rest, the Lessee being still in Possession of Groves; in this Case it was agreed that this was no good Feoffment for Groves.

When a Feoffment is made of a House and Land, the Livery of Seisin is most aptly to be made of and in the House in the Name of the Rest, and at the Door of the House, &c. and when a Feoffment is made of a Rectory or Parsonage, the Livery of Seisin may be made in the Parsonage-House; or if there be no House, it may be made upon the Glebe; or if there be neither, it may be made at the Ring of the Church-Door.

(DD) Of what Things Livery of Seisin may be made.

LIVERY of Seisin may be made of any corporeal Thing, as Manors, Houses, Lands, Meadows, Pastures, Woods, Chambers, or the like; and these Things therefore are said to lie in Livery. But of incorporate Things, as Rents, Advowsons, Commons, Estovers, and such like Things, Livery cannot be made.

And these Things therefore are said to lie in Grant, and not in Livery; and therefore when a Livery is made of these, nil operatur. Co. Lit. 49.

William Lord Dacres the Father made a Feoffment in Fee to his two Sons, upon Condition that they should make a Feoffment over to Thomas Dacres and one Middleton, with a Letter of Attorney; but before the Father had delivered their Deed to his Sons, they had delivered their Deed of Feoffment to Thomas Dacres and Middleton, with a Letter of Attorney to B. G. to make Livery; afterwards the Father delivered his Deed, and then Livery was made by Virtue of the Letter of Attorney: Adjudged that the Livery was void, because the Sons, at the Time they made the Feoffment, had nothing to pass. 2 Bull. 302.

Adjudged that where a Man covenants to make a Feoffment of the Value of 50*l.* to T. S. and afterwards he makes a Feoffment to the Uses in that Indenture generally, and doth not mention the 50*l. per Ann.* certainly, that in such Case nothing passes but the very Land on which the Livery was made. Roll. Rep. 187.

(EE) How Livery of Seisin is to be made.

TO every good Livery of Seisin is requisite either such an Act as the Law doth adjudge to be a Livery, or apt Words that amount unto it: For a Livery may be good by Words without any Act or Deed at all.

But it cannot be good by an Act or Deed without any Words at all; however, that Livery that has an Act or Ceremony in it is the best, because it takes the deepest Impression in the Witnesses. Co. Lit. 49. 9 Co. 137.

The most usual, formal and orderly Manner of making of Livery of Seisin is thus: That the Feoffor, Donor, &c. and the Feoffee, Donee, &c. if they be present, or in their Absence their Attornies or Servants that have Authority, do come to the Door or Garden, if it be a House, if not, then to some Part of the Land where Seisin is to be delivered, and there in the Presence of many good Witnesses do shew the Cause of their Meeting, openly and plainly do read the Deed, or declare the Contents thereof, and of the Letter of Attorney, if there be any.

And then the Feoffor, &c. or his Attorney, (if it be a House) do take the Ring, Latch or Hasp of the Door, (all the People, Men, Women and Children, being out of the House) or (if it be a Piece of Ground) do take a Clod of the Ground, or a Bough, or a Twig of a Tree, or Bush growing thereupon; and (all the People being out of the Ground) the same Ring, &c. Clod, Bough, &c. with the Deed, do deliver to the Feoffee, Donee, &c. or to his Attorney; and in the Delivery hereof do use these or such like Words, viz. I deliver these to you in the Name of Seisin of all the Lands and Tenements contained in this Deed, To have and to hold according to the Form and Effect of the same Deed.

Or, I deliver you Seisin and Possession of this House or Ground in the Name of all the Lands contained in the Deed according to the Form and Effect of the Deed.

And then if it be a House, the Feoffee, &c. enters in first alone, and shuts to the Door, and then he opens it and lets in others.

And if the Feoffment, Gift or Lease be made without the Deed, then they do and must withal express the very Estate itself which the Feoffee, Donee or Lessee is to have: As for Example,

Example, the Feoffor, Donor or Lessor, must come to the House or Land which is to be granted, and where Livery of Seisin is to be made, and there must by apt Words grant the House or Land to him that is to have it in Fee-simple, or in Tail, or for Life, as the Agreement is, (but see the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. post.) and in Seisin thereof must deliver him the Ring of the Door, or a Turf or Twig of the Land.

And if the Feoffment, &c. be made by Writing, then it is Wisdom to indorse and set down on the Back of the same, how, when and where the same is made, and the Names of the Witnesses thereunto. West. Symb. §. 251. Perk. §. 209, 210. Co. Lit. 48.

But a Livery of Seisin that is not so exactly made, may be good notwithstanding.

And therefore if the Feoffor, Donor, &c. or his Attorney, takes any Thing else that comes of the Land, as a Stone, or the like, and therewithal makes the Livery of Seisin; or if he takes a Turf or Twig from off another Man's Ground, and not from the same whereof Possession is to be given, and delivers that upon the Ground in the Name of Seisin; or if he takes a Piece of Silver or Gold, or a Rod, Stick, or the like, and delivers this upon the Land in the Name of Seisin; all these are good Deliveries of Seisin and Possession. 9 Co.

137. Fitz. Feoffments and Fairs 111.

So if the Feoffor, &c. be at the Door, or by the Land, or in the House or upon the Land, and after he has delivered the Deed, he says to the Feoffee, Donee, &c. Here I deliver you Seisin and Possession of this House or Land in the Name of Seisin and Possession of all the Lands and Tenements contained in the Deed; or, Have and enjoy this House or Land according to the Deed; or, Enter into this Land or House, and God give you Joy of it; or, I am content you shall enjoy this Land: In all these Cases there is a good Livery of Seisin. Et sic de similibus. 6 Co. 26. 41 Ed. 3. 17.

If I being seised of a House in Fee, make a Feoffment of it, and of divers Lands, to a Man then present with me in the same House, and there deliver him the Deed in the Name of Seisin of all the Lands contained in the Deed; in this Case this is a good Delivery of the Deed, and a good Livery of Seisin also, although I continue in Possession of the House still, and go not out of it. Bro Feoffment 28.

And if I be Lord of a Manor, and lying sick within some Part of the Manor, I make a Feoffment of the Manor, and deliver the Deed to the Feoffee, saying to him, I will that you take Seisin presently; and thereupon command all my Tenants of the Manor to attorn to him, and they do so; this is a good Livery of Seisin. Perk. §. 211, 212.

So if I make a Deed, and after I have read it, being upon the Land, I deliver it to the Feoffee, Donee, &c. and say, here I deliver you this Charter as my Deed, in the Name of Seisin of all the Lands therein contained, or the like; this is a good Delivery of the Deed and of Seisin.

But if I do only seal and deliver the Deed upon or in View of the Land, without saying or doing any more; this will not amount to a Livery of Seisin. Perk. §. 215. 6 Co. 26.

And therefore if a Man makes a Feoffment with Letter of Attorney to give Livery of Seisin, and then he delivers the Deed upon the Land; this is no good making of Livery of Seisin.

And so also if there be no Letter of Attorney. Adjudged in Cromwel's Case in Scaccario 15 Eliz.

If I be seised of a House in Fee, and being in the House, say to J. S. Here J. S. I demise you this House for Term of my Life; this will not amount to a Livery of Seisin; and therefore it is no good Lease until Livery of Seisin be made, but it is a good Beginning of a Lease. 6 Co. 26.

If the Father enfeoffs his Son of Land, and the Son suffers his Father to enjoy, and after the Son comes to the Parish Church where the Land lies, and there in the Audience of the Parishioners useth these Words to his Father: Father, you have given me such and such Lands (and names them); as freely as you gave them to me, I give them to you again; this is no good Livery of Seisin, neither does any Estate pass hereby. Perk. §. 216.

So if one being upon the Land says to J. S. J. S. stand forth, I do here, reserving an Estate to me for my own Life, give this Land to thee and thy Heirs for ever; this is no good Livery of Seisin, neither does any Estate pass thereby. Hil. 37 Eliz. B. R. Collard's Case.

So if one makes a Charter of Feoffment to me, and makes no Livery of Seisin thereupon, and after I make a Feoffment of the Land to J. S. and the Feoffor hearing and having Notice of it, saith, I do willingly agree to it, and am contented that J. S. shall have it; or, I do agree to the Feoffment, or the like; this does not make the Feoffment that was made to me good. Fitz. Fairs and Feoffments.

If divers Parcels of Land be conveyed, and Livery of Seisin is made in one; or there be divers Feoffees, and Livery and Seisin is made to one of them according to the Deed, without using any more Words; this is good.

But the best Form and Order of making of Livery in this Case is to add these Words, In the Name of all the Rest, &c. Co. Lit. 48. Fitz. Estoppel 177.

But if there are divers Feoffees named in a Deed, and Feoffor makes Livery to one of the Feoffees according to the Deed, without saying In the Name of the whole; yet the Land shall pass to all. Co. Lit. 48. a.

Where a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, or a Lease for Life, and said to the Feoffee, being on the Land, or in Sight of it, Enter into that Land and enjoy the same, according to the Purport of the Deed; this is a good Livery; but the Delivery of the Deed on the Land without any further Ceremony, or saying any Thing, doth not amount to a Livery. 6 Co. 26. Moor 458.

If A. makes a Deed of Feoffment of Land, and delivers the Deed, and says no more but Take and enjoy the Land; or, Take the Land according to the Deed, or such Words which amount to a Livery, when he delivers the Deed, nothing passeth; for the Law requires more Ceremony than the Delivery of the Deed on the Land. Cro. Jac. 80.

If the Feoffor says, I am content you should have this House according to the Deed to you made; this is not a good Livery, for there is no Intent expressed either by Words or Circumstances to make Livery, but rather import an Assent and Promise to do a future Act. Ley 3.

If Words may amount to a Livery within View, much more it shall upon the Land, as I am content you shall enjoy this Land, &c. according to the Deed, &c. Co. Lit. 48. a. 9 Co. 137. b. 138.

The Delivery of any Thing upon the Land in the Name of the Seisin of that Land, tho' it be nothing concerning the Land, as a Ring of Gold, is good, Co. Lit. 48. a. who says that it had been so resolved by all the Judges. But this by the Feudists is called Investitura impropria. Spelm. Gloss. Verb. Feoffare.

An Exchange amounts to a Livery. Co. Lit. 51. b.

Where two Tenants in Common of a House and Land, made Partition within the House of the House and Land by Parol without Deed; it was held that tho' it might have been good upon the Land, because it would have amounted to a Livery in Law; yet not being found that the Land was within View, it could not amount to a Livery in Law. Cro. Eliz. 95.

Tenant in Fee made a Feoffment, and delivered it on the Land in the Name of the Seisin; adjudged that this Livery is good, and hath a double Operation at the same Time, viz. to making the Writing take Effect as a Deed, and to deliver Seisin of the Land according to the Deed. 9 Co. 136.

If a Feoffment be made of divers Lands, and an House in which the Feoffor dwells, and the Feoffor delivers the Feoffment in the House, but says nothing of the Land; yet it is good for all; for they having an Intent to give and take Livery, it is a good Feoffment, for they assembled there for that Purpose. Cro. Eliz. 142.

But if a Feoffment be of a House, and the Deed is delivered in the House without other Circumstance, the same does not amount to a Livery of Seisin. And yet if he does any Act by which the Intent of the Feoffor appears, that the Feoffee should have Livery of Seisin; as if the Parties go of Purpose to the Place intended to pass, to the Intent the Deed may be delivered in that Kind; it amounts to a Livery. Leon. 207.

If Lands be given to a Mayor and Commonalty for their Lives, by Intendment, they have an Estate not determinable. So if a Feoffment be made of Lands unto a Dean and Chapter without Speech of their Successors. Perk. §. 240.

If my Feoffee in Fee of one Acre of Land do re-enseoff me of the Acre by Deed, reciting in the same Deed, that I have enfeoffed him of an Acre of Land, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs; and saith further in the Deed, that as fully as I have given the Lands unto him he doth give them me back again, and delivereth to me the Deed, and Seisin of the Land according to the Deed: In this Case it seemeth that I have an Estate of Inheritance in this Land notwithstanding that it is not given unto me and my Heirs, because that my Estate doth relate upon an Estate of Inheritance, recited within the same Deed. Tamen quare. Perk. §. 241.

But if Land be given unto me by Deed, To have and to hold to me in Fee, without speaking of my Heirs, and Livery of Seisin be made unto me according to the Purport of the Deed; by this Feoffment I have an Estate but for the Term of my Life, &c. Perk. §. 243.

If A. makes a Feoffment to B. and C. without Deed, and he makes Livery to B. in the Absence of C. in the Name of both; this is void as to C. because a Man who is absent cannot take a Freehold by Livery, but by an Attorney lawfully authorized to receive Livery by Deed. Co. Lit. 49. b.

But if a Feoffment be made to A. and B. and Livery is made to A. in the Absence of B. in the Name of both; this is good, because it is by Deed. Co. Lit. 49. b.

If there are four Feoffees, and one makes Letter of Attorney to one R. to take Livery in the Name of the Feoffee and the Co-Feoffees according to the Deed, and to do all other Things for him and his Feoffees which he might have done if he was personally present; and the Feoffor makes Livery to the Attorney in Name of that Feoffee and the other Co-Feoffees, to their Uses, according to the Deed; this is good to all. 2 And. 196.

Feoffment to Corporation and another Person, there ought to be several Liveries in Respect of their several Capacities, which makes them Tenants in Common. Finch 23. b.

If a Man be enfeoffed by Deed of two Acres, To have and to hold three Acres, and Livery of Seisin is made to him according to the Deed in the two Acres, the third Acre, of which there was no Speech in the Premises of the Deed, shall not pass by the Deed; but if Livery of Seisin be made in this Acre, then it shall pass by the Livery of Seisin, &c. Perk. §. 165.

If Livery be made to one of the Feoffees according to the Deed, it passes the Land to all; so of the Seisin of one Parcel; but the best way is to say in the Name of the Whole, or of all the Feoffees. Co. Lit. 48. a.

Where the Deed is void, Livery secundum formam Chartæ is also void. Co. Lit. 48. b. Cro. Eliz. 603. 2 Bulst. 302. Roll. Rep. 229.

A Lease for Life is made 25th of March, Habendum a die datus, with Letter of Attorney in the Deed to make Livery secundum formam Chartæ; the Attorney makes Livery the 26th; this is not good. 2 Bulst. 302. 2 Roll. Rep. 229.

If a Man has a moveable Estate of Inheritance in thirteen Acres, Parcel of a Manor, they will pass by Name of the Manor. Co. Lit. 48. b.

If a Man has a moveable Estate of Inheritance in thirteen Acres, Parcel of a Meadow of eighty, the Charter of Feoffment ought to be generally of thirteen Acres lying within the Meadow of eighty Acres, generally without bounding, or describing of it in Certainty, and Livery may be of the thirteen Acres allotted to the Feoffee for a Year, secundum formam Chartæ; and this is good Livery to pass the Content of thirteen Acres in what Place soever it lies. Co. Lit. 48. b.

This is to be understood if the thirteen Acres are in Gros, and not Parcel of a Manor. Co. Lit. 48. b.

If a Manor be separated and divided between two, so that the one has one Part one Year and the other Part the next Year, and so the other, and so they have moveable Freeholds; in this Case Livery ought to be made in the Manor. Co. Lit. 48. b.

But where two Manors are separated and divided alternis vicibus, there the Charter of Feoffment ought to be made in both, and Livery in this Manor whereof he is seised in any one Year secundum formam Chartæ, and the next Year in the other secundum formam Chartæ; for there are two distinct Manors, and several Estates in them. Co. Lit. 48. b.

If a Man makes a Charter by which he grants the Land in Fee, and delivers Seisin for Life secundum formam Chartæ, the Fee shall pass; for this shall be taken most strong against the Feoffor; for by the said Words, secundum formam Chartæ, are intended according to the Quantity and Quality of the effectual Estate in the Deed. Co. Lit. 48.

If a Man lease for Years by Deed, and delivers Seisin according to the Form and Effect of the Deed; yet he has but an Estate for Years, and the Livery is void. Co. Lit. 48. b.

If A. by Deed gives Land to B. to have after the Death of A. to B. and his Heirs; this is void, because he cannot create a particular Estate in himself; and if Livery be made according to the Form and Effect of the Deed, this is void, because it refers to a Deed which is void in Law. Co. Lit. 48. b. 5 Co. 94. b. 11 Co. 78. Cro. Eliz. 254. Hob. 171. 2 Roll. Abr. 10.

If a Man covenants to make a Feoffment of Land of the Value of fifty Marks to J. S. and after makes Feoffment of the Land of a far greater Value, without assigning where the Land for fifty Marks shall be; this is void for the Uncertainty, and no more shall pass than the Place where the Livery was made. 2 Roll. Abr. 10. pl. 4.

So in the same Case the Feoffor cannot after the Livery assign fifty Marks of Land to make so much to pass by the said Livery, inasmuch as it does not pass at first. 2 Roll. 10. pl. 5.

But otherwise it would be if he had assigned where the fifty Marks Land should be before the Livery made. 2 Roll. Abr. 10. pl. 6.

So it seems it would be if he had assigned it upon the Livery made; for then the Assignment is Uno flatu with the Livery. 2 Roll. Abr. 10. pl. 7.

If a Man covenants to make a Feoffment of all his Land, whereof fifty Marks Value shall be to such a Use, and the other to other Use, &c. and after makes the Feoffment of all all accordingly, without assigning the fifty Marks Value, he cannot after assign it. 2 Roll. Abr. 10. pl. 8.

If A. seised of one hundred Acres of Land in Fee, enfeoffs B. of eighteen of the said one hundred Acres versus austrum or versus orientem, and makes Livery; this is good, for this is certain at the Time of the Feoffment. 2 Roll. Abr. 11.

But if A. seised of one hundred Acres of Land in Fee, enfeoffs B. of eighteen of the said one hundred Acres, Habendum sibi & heredibus suis ad electionem ipsius B. & heredum suorum quandocunque eis placeret, and makes Livery accordingly; this is a void Feoffment for the Uncertainty where the eighteen Acres shall be among the one hundred Acres, for the Freehold of the eighteen Acres ought to pass absque ullo temporis intervallo, from the Feoffor to the Feoffee; for a Livery cannot operate in futura. 2 Roll. Abr. 11.

In this Case the Feoffee died before Election, and the Judgment according to And. 11. seems to be grounded only upon the Election by the Heir; and Anderson puts a Quare, if the Feoffee himself might have made an Election or not, and the Livery take Effect by such Election; and Hob. 174. cites it so, as that the Election of the Feoffee himself makes the Grant good. See And. 11 & 12.

If a Man makes a Charter in Fee, and makes Livery for Life secundum formam Chartae, it passeth the whole Fee-simple. Co. Lit. 48.

If a Deed contains no Condition, but Livery does, the Land passes not by the Deed. Lit. §. 359.

If the Livery be larger than the Agreement, some hold that the Estate shall be according to the Agreement. Co. Lit. 222. b.

(FF) Livery in Deed, how and to whom to be made, and when it is good.

IF the Feoffor being upon the Land, or at the Door of the House, says to the Feoffee, I am content that you should enjoy this Land according to the Deed; or, Enter into this House or Land, and enjoy it according to the Deed; this is a good Livery to pass the Freehold, because in all these Cases the Charter of Feoffment makes the Limitation of the Estate, and then the Words spoken by the Feoffor on the Lands, are a sufficient Indicium to the People present to determine in whom the Freehold resides during the Extent of the Limitation, besides the Words being relative to the Charter of a Feoffment plainly denote an Intention to enfeoff. Co. Lit. 48. a. 9 Co. 137. b. 6 Co. 26. Roll. Abr. 7. Vide Cro. Jac. 80. which seems contra.

If the Feoffor delivers a Charter upon the Land in the Name of Seisin of all the Lands comprized in the Deed; this is good to execute the Deed, and to give Livery also, because the bare Delivery of the Deed is good to execute it as a Deed, and the Delivery of the Deed, or any other Thing in the Name of Seisin of the Land, is sufficient to give Livery, because the Intention of those solemn Acts is only to discover to all Persons in whom the Freehold is lodged; and this End is as effectually answered by the Delivery of a Deed, or any Thing else in the Name of Seisin, as of a Turf or a Twig, the one being equally visible and notorious as the other. 9 Co. 137. b. 138 a. Co. Lit. 48. a. 57. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 7. 6 Co. 26.

A. being seised of Lands in Fee, borrowed 20*l.* of B. and for Repayment agreed to assure him the Land; and thereupon they both went to the Land, where A. said to B. *I am indebted to you 20*l.* and if I don't pay you before Michaelmas, then I bargain and sell this Land to you; and if I pay you then, I shall have my Land again;* and then put B. in Possession of the Land: This was held a good Livery, because here the Possession was actually delivered pursuant to the Agreement of assuring the Land for the Security of the Money, which Possession was to be reverted on the Payment of the Money by A. the Feoffor. Moor pl. 286. Cro. Eliz. 25.

But if a Man without any Charter, being in his House, says, *I here demise you this House as long as I live, paying 20*l.* per Ann.* this passes no Freehold, but only an Estate at Will, because the Word Demise denotes only the Extent of the Limitation of the Estate intended to be conveyed; but bare Words of Limitation, without some Acts or Words to discover the Intention of the Feoffor to deliver over the Possession, are not sufficient to convey the Freehold; for if a Charter of Feoffment be made to a Man and his Heirs, this without some other Act or Words to give the Possession only passes an Estate at Will, because the Act of Delivery is requisite to the Perfection of the Charter; but besides the Charter of Feoffment, there must be some Act or Words to deliver over the Possession before the Feoffee can enjoy it pursuant to the Charter. 6 Co. 26. 2 Roll. Abr. 7. Co. Lit. 48. Cro. Eliz. 482. 9 Co. 138. Moor, pl. 632.

If it appears that a Man intended to make an actual Livery, this shall never amount to a Livery in Law. Dyer 28. 2 Roll. Abr. 7.

A Feoffment was made, Habendum to A. and B. for Life, Remainder to C. and Livery was made to all three. Resolved it was good to two for their Lives, Remainder to the third. 2 Mod. 79.

For more see before (EE).

(GG) Livery in Law, or within the View, how and to whom to be made, and when it is good.

THIS Sort of Livery seems to be made at first only at the Court-Barons, which were antiently held sub die in some open Part of the Manor, from whence a general Survey or View might have been taken of the whole Manor, and the Pares Curie easily distinguished that Part which was then to be transferred. Pollex. 47.

But this Sort of Livery is not perfect to carry the Freehold till an actual Entry made by the Feoffee, because the Possession is not actually delivered to him, but only a Licence or Power given him by the Feoffor to take Possession of it; and therefore if either the Feoffor or Feoffee die before an Entry made by the Feoffee, the Livery within the View becomes ineffectual and void; for if the Feoffor dies before Entry, the Feoffee cannot afterwards enter, because then the Land immediately descends upon his Heir, and consequently no Person can take Possession of his Land without an Authority delegated from him who is the Proprietor; nor can the Heir of the Feoffee enter, because he is not the Person to whom the Feoffor intended to convey his Land, nor had he an Authority from the Feoffor to take the Possession; besides if the Heir of the Feoffee were admitted to take Possession after his Father's Death, he would come in as a Purchaser, whereas he was mentioned in the Feoffment to take as the Representative of his Ancestor, which he cannot do since the Estate was never vested in his Ancestor. Co. Lit. 48. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 3. 7. Vent. 86. Moor 85. Pollex. 48.

If the Feoffee dares not enter into the Land without Peril of his Life, he may claim the Land as near as he may safely venture to go, and this shall be sufficient to vest the Possession in him, and render the Livery within View perfect and compleat; for No-body is obliged to expose his Life for the Security of his Property; but when he is gone as far as he may with Safety, the Law very reasonably looks upon such Intention to be as effectual as the Act itself; for otherwise it might be in the Power of a Man, by his own Act of Violence, to deprive another of his Right, and thereby to receive an Advantage from an unlawful Act. 2 Roll. Abr. 3. Co. Lit. 48. b.

If a Man be disseised and he dares not enter the Land, he may go as near as he dares for fear of Death, and make his continual Claim, and then make Livery of it within the View; for this Claim settles the actual Possession in him. 38 Aff. 23. 2 Roll. Abr. 6.

A Corporation cannot execute a Feoffment by Livery within View. Dyer 233. pl. 11.

If a Man makes a Deed of Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney to J. S. to make Livery, the Attorney cannot make Livery within View; for his Warrant is to be intended of an actual Livery, and not of a Livery in Law. Co. Lit. 52. b.

If the Feoffor, Donor, &c. delivers the Deed in Sight or View of the Land, and use these or any such like Words: I will that you shall enter into the Land, and have it according to the Deed; or, Take and enjoy the Land according to the Deed; or, I deliver you this Deed in the Name of Seisin; or, Enter you into the Land and take Seisin of it; or, Take the Land, and God give you Joy of it: Or if the Estate be made without Deed, I give you yonder Land to you and your Heirs, and go and enter into the same, and take Possession thereof accordingly; or, Enter into the Land and enjoy it in Fee-simple to you and your Heirs, or for your Life, &c. In all these Cases the Estate and the Livery is good although the Feoffor, &c. stand in one County, and the Land in View be in another County. 9 Co. 137. 6 Co. 26. Co. Lit. 25, 348.

If a Man delivers a Charter of Feoffment to his Feoffee within View, and says, I will that you have the Lands that you see there, the which are comprized in this Charter, according to the Purport of the Charter; this is a good Livery within View; for the Charter of Feoffment fully denotes the Intention to enfeoff, and the Words are a Licence to the Feoffee to enter into the Land, and to take the Possession thereof, according to the Charter.

But if the Feoffor had only delivered the Charter of Feoffment within View, and only shewed the Feoffee the Lands without saying any Thing, though the Feoffee had actually entered into the Land, and the Feoffor had afterwards agreed to the Entry; yet this is no good Feoffment, because the bare shewing of the Lands to the Feoffee implies no Authority or Licence from the Feoffor to take Possession, and consequently the Entry being without any any Authority cannot vest the Freehold in him, because there was no solemn Act nor publick Declaration made by the Feoffor, by which the Pares might discover a real Intention to change the Possession, and the subsequent Agreement of the Feoffor can never support an Act which was originally void; for though the Feoffee, after the Delivery of the Charter, might take the usufructuary Possession as Tenant at Will, yet the Freehold still continued in the Feoffor; for that cannot pass from one to another without some solemn or publick Declaration that the Pares may upon any Dispute determine in whom the Freehold resides.

2 Roll. Abr. 7. 2 Co. 55. b.

But in all these Cases of Livery within the View, it must be made,

1. By the Person himself that makes the Estate, for it cannot be made by his Attorney. Terms de la Ley. Co. Lit. 48. Dyer 18.

2. There must be a Relation to the Land; for if the Feoffor delivers the Deed only to the Feoffee in Sight of the Land, this is not a good Livery within the View. 11 H. 8. 16.

3. The Parties must stand within View of the Land; for if the Feoffor, &c. being out of Sight of the Land, says to the Feoffee, &c. Go enter and take Seisin of the Land, and God send you Joy of it; this is no good Livery of Seisin. Co. Lit. 48.

4. There must be Somebody capable of a Freehold to take by the Livery; for if it be made to a Lessee for Years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and J. S. is then living, it is void.

5. The Feoffee must enter presently, for if either the Feoffor, Donor, &c. or Feoffee, Donee, &c. dies before Entry, the Livery cannot be made good; and yet if the Party dares not enter for fear, in this Case if he claims it only, and do not enter, it is sufficient. Co. 156. Perk. §. 214. Fitz. Facts 47.

A Man delivers a Charter of Feoffment, and says to the Feoffee, God give you Joy of it; this is a good Feoffment; yet no Divery was made, and it does not appear that it was within View. 41 E. 3. 17. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 7.

But it seems it is to be intended that it is a Livery within the View, but it appears there that the Feoffor was not upon the Land. 41 Aff. 10. Co. Lit. 48. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 7.

If a Man within View of the Land delivers a Charter of Feoffment of it to the Feoffee, and saith, I will that you have the Tenements which you see there, the which are comprized in this Charter according to the Purport of the Charter, and shews the Land; this is a good Livery within the View. 38 E. 3. 11. b. 12. 38 Aff. 2. Co. Lit. 48.

A Man makes a Charter of Feoffment, and within View of his Land says to the Party, See you the Land, enter into and enjoy it according to the Effect of this Charter, and the Feoffee enters; this amounts to a good Livery and Seisin of the Land. But otherwise it would be if he had been out of the View of the Land at the Speaking of the Words. 18 H. 6. 16. b. 9 Co. 137. Co. Lit. 48.

If a Man makes Livery within View to a Woman, and before she enters the Feoffor marries her, and afterwards never claims any Thing but in Right of his Wife; this is a good Execution of the Livery, for the Husband claiming the Land in Right of his Wife, shall be sufficient to reduce the Lands actually in her Possession, since he is the proper Person to transact for her; and therefore shall be presumed to have parted with and delivered up the Possession to her, since after the Coverture he claimed the Land only in her Right. Perk. §. 214. 2 Roll. Abr. 3. Bro. Feoffment 57. Vent. 186. Pollex. 53.

So where two Women were Jointenants in Fee, and one of them made a Feoffment to a Man, and Livery within View, by saying, Go, enter and take Possession; and before the Man entred he married the Feoffor; his Entry after the Marriage was a good Execution of the Livery, because by the Livery within View an Interest passed to the Feoffee, which was not revocable by the Feme, and his Entry after the Coverture makes the utmost Notoriety the Thing is capable of to discover in whom the Freehold is lodged, and his Entry shall be intended for his Benefit, and therefore shall have a Retrospect to the Livery in View to make it a perfect Feoffment. Mod. 91. Keb. 872, 880. Vent. 186. Pollex. 45 to 53.

If a Man lying Sick upon certain Land of which he is seised in Fee, and agrees to make a Feoffment of the Land to another, and says to him, that he vouchsafes that he shall take Seisin immediately, and commands all his Servants that they take the Feoffee as their Lord and Master; this is good Livery within the View. 43 Aff. 20. 2 Roll. Abr. 7.

In Affise it was found by Verdict that A. was seised in Fee, and made a Deed of Feoffment to M. and her Heirs; and before Livery A. marries M. and at the Church-Door, extra terram, shewed her the Land, which was in another County, and delivered her the Deed, and said that he would that she shall have the Land secundum formam Chartæ, and were married, and after they entred; and the Baron in the Life-time of M. his Wife claimed nothing but in Right of M. his Wife, and M. died; and after the Baron devised the Land to J. S. in Fee, and died; and the Issue of M. brought Affise against the Devisee; and upon this this Matter he recovered by Judgment; for the shewing of the Land and their Entry was taken instead of a Livery, and the Baron in his Life did not disagree to it, and the Devise was not taken for a Disagreement; and it is said in the Time of H. 8. that express Mention shall be made in the Pleading, that the Land was within the View. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 11, 57.

Though the Livery be made within View, yet the Lease shall be pleaded to be made where the Land is; for it is no Livery nor Lease till the Entry of Lessee. Dyer 233.

If a Man delivers a Deed of Feoffment to the Feoffee within the View, and shews the Land to him without saying any more, and the Feoffee enters, and Feoffor agrees to this Entry; yet it seems that it is not a good Feoffment. Contra 38 E. 3. 12. 2 Roll. Abr. 7.

The Livery within View may be made of Lands in another County than where the Lands lie, because the Translation of the Feud was often made at the Court-Baron in the Presence of Pares Curiae; and these Courts being held sub die, the Pares could have a distinct View of every Part of the Manor, and therefore were proper to attest this Sort of Investiture though the Lands were in a different County; for notwithstanding that they might have Part of the same Manor for which the Court was held. Co. Lit. 48. b.

When Livery is made within the View, if the Feoffor or Feoffee dies before Entry of the Feoffee, it is void. Co. Lit. 48. b.

See before (EE).

A Feoffment was made of a House and Land which was within the View of the House, and no Livery made, but only the Deed of Feoffment delivered as his Deed in the House; and this was adjudged no Livery for the Land, nor for the House, without mentioning that he should take the House. Moor 458. pl. 632. 9 Co. 137. b.

If A. makes a Lease for Years to B. the Remainder to C. in Fee, and makes Livery to B. within the View; this Livery is void, for none can take by Force of a Livery within the View but he who takes the Freehold himself. Co. Lit. 49. b.

Two Femes A. and B. were Jointenants in Fee; A. made a Charter of Feoffment to J. S. and Livery within View, and bid him enter, and after, before it was executed, married him. This Livery was well executed after Marriage, for an Interest passed by the Livery within View, which cannot be countermanded. Vent. 186.

(HH) What shall be said an Execution of the Livery.

IF a Man made and delivered a Deed of Feoffment to a Feme at the Door of a Monastery, and made Livery to her within the View, and after married her, and afterwards they both went from the House to the same Land, and the Baron never after claimed any Thing in the Land but in Right of the Feme: This was adjudged an Execution of the Livery, for by this he agreed to the Entry of the Feme, or his Entry should be an Entry for the Feme. *2 Roll. If a Man makes a Deed of Feoffment, and makes Livery within the View, and the Feoffee dares not enter for the Fear of Death, but claims it; this shall be a good Execution of the Livery, and shall vest the Freehold in him. Co. Lit. 48. b.

If a Deed of Feoffment be delivered, and Livery within the View made, yet it is not a good Feoffment if the Feoffee does not enter into the Land; for it is not executed before Entry. 38 E. 3. 11. b. admitted. 38 Aff. 2. Co. Lit. 48. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 3.

(II) In what Cases several Parcels will pass by one Livery, or where several Parties may take by a Livery to one.

IT seems that antiently the Feoffment and giving Livery was performed before the Pares of the Manor where the Lands lay; but this being found too much to streighten the transferring the Possession, it was found necessary to admit the Testimony of Strangers; and this came afterwards to be established for the Conveniency of it; and because all Men of the County assembled at the County-Court in order to determine Disputes relating to the whole County, as the Tenants of the Manor did at their Court-Baron; and because there lay an Appeal from the Court-Baron to the County-Court, so that the Pares of the County were thereby ultimately to determine all Things relating to the particular Manors, it seemed the more reasonable to admit the Pares Comitatus to attest the Investiture through any particular Manor, and indifferently through the whole County; and from hence it came to be admitted, and so the Law continues, that if a Man seised of Lands in several Villages in one County makes a Feoffment of the Whole, and gives Seisin of Parcel of the Lands in one Town in the Name of all the Lands in that Town, and in the other Towns, that all the Lands of the Feoffor lying in that County shall pass, as well as if there had been Livery given in each Town. Co. Lit. 253. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 11.

But

But if a Man having Lands in two Counties makes a Feoffment of both, and gives Livery of the Land in one County in the Name of all, the Land in the other County shall not pass, because there was no Relation or Dependance between one County and another, as there was between the several Manors and County-Court; for one County having no Power or Jurisdiction over another, the Pares of one were reasonably presumed to be ignorant of what was transacted in the other; and therefore the Investiture, which passed the Land in one County, was ineffectual to carry the Lands in the other, because that Investiture could be only a Notoriety to the Pares of the other County by any Solemnity of the Transferring of the Possession, the Possession must reside where it was placed by the last Investiture. Perk. §. 227. 2 Roll. Abr. 11.

But if a Manor extends into two Counties, and a Feoffment be made of the whole Manor, and Livery only in the Part lying in one County in the Name of the whole Manor, yet the whole Manor shall pass, because the Investiture is a Notoriety equally to all the Pares of that Manor of the Transmutation of the Possession; and though they live in different Counties, yet they reside in eodem territorio ab eodem feudum habentes, and therefore are presumed to be consant of every Thing done within the Territory or Manor to which they belong. Perk. §. 229.

But if the Manor of Dale extends into the Counties of D. and S. and a Feoffment be made of the Manor of Dale in D. and Livery and Seisin in D. nothing passes by this Livery but that Part of the Manor which lies in D. because the Feoffment being confined to the Manor of Dale in D. nothing can pass that doth not lie in the County of D. Perk. §. 228.

If a Feoffment be made to A. and B. by Deed, and Livery is made to A. in the Absence of B. in the Name of both, the Livery is good to pass the Estate to both; but if the Feoffment had been made without Deed, and the Livery given to one in the Name of both, it should operate to him only; because the Parties are united in a Deed, they all take as one; therefore Livery to one in the Name of the Rest, is an actual Delivery to them all, but without a Deed they are not so united; and therefore the Delivery to one in the Name of several, is no actual Delivery to the Rest, but the whole Estate must reside in him to whom it is delivered, and a subsequent Assent cannot take it out of him, such Assent being not so solemn as the Feoffment; besides in the Case of the Feoffment by Deed, A. may be looked upon as the Attorney of B. to receive Livery, and therefore the Estate shall immediately vest in B. because every Man is presumed to take a Grant to his Advantage; but the Feoffment without Deed will admit of no such Construction, because no Man can receive Livery as Attorney to another without an Appointment. Co. Lit. 49, 359. 2 Vent. 202, 205. 5 Co. 95. 2 Roll. Abr. 9. 2 Leon. 23.

(KK) Of making Livery of Seisin by Letter of Attorney (in general).

IN the making of this Livery Care must be had,

1. That there be a Deed of Feoffment, for otherwise a Letter of Attorney to deliver Possession availeth nothing.
2. That there be a good Authority in Writing, which may be either in the Deed of Feoffment itself, whether it be Poll or indented, and that although the Attorney be not Party to it, or else by a single Deed besides the Feoffment, &c.
3. That the Attorney do pursue his Authority, at least in the Substance and Effect of it.
4. That the Attorney do it in the Name of the Feoffor, Donor, &c. who doth give the Authority.
5. That it be done in the Life-time of the Parties.

But a Livery in Law may not be made by an Attorney.

And therefore if a Letter of Attorney be to deliver Seisin generally, and the Attorney by Virtue thereof delivers Seisin in View, the Livery of Seisin is void. Skep. Touch. 217.

Livery of Seisin in Deed may be made or taken by the Deputies or Attornies of the Parties, and Livery by them is as good as Livery made by the Parties themselves, although the Parties themselves be upon the Land at the Time of the making thereof, if they do not contradict it. Skep. Touch. 217.

A Man

A Man may either give or receive Livery by Attorney; for since a Contract is no more than the Consent of a Man's Mind to a Thing, where that Consent or Concurrence appears, it were most unreasonable to oblige each Person to be present at the Execution of the Contract, since it may as well be formed by any other Person delegated for that Purpose by the Parties to the Contract. Co. Lit. 52. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

If a Charter of Feoffment be made by Deed indented between A. and B. with Letter of Attorney to C. to make Livery; tho' C. be not a Party to the Deed, yet the Warrant of Attorney is good, and the Estate shall pass by this Livery. Co. Lit. 52. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 8, 9.

It seems that a Man dumb, who has Reason to perceive by Signs, may make a Feoffment with Livery by Attorney. Bro. Feoffment, pl. 26.

A Disseisee may make a Feoffment; but when he makes a Letter of Attorney to one to make Livery, where he himself has no Estate, it is not good; for he has neither jus in re, nor ad rem. 2 Bull. 305.

A Tenant for Life with Power to make Leases cannot make Livery by his Attorney; nor Executors who have Power to sell; but where they have Interest they may. 2 Roll. Rep. 393. 9 Co. 77.

If Cestuy que Use having Power to make a Feoffment, he may make Livery by Attorney. 2 Roll. Rep. 394.

But Brook makes a Quare; for he says it was held otherwise at that Day.

If an Infant, or Woman Covert, makes a Feoffment and Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and the Attorney do so; this is void, for they are not able to give such an Authority. Infant, Feme Covert.

And if a Man whilst he is of sound Memory makes a Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney to give Livery, and after he becomes Paralytick, and so dumb, but by Signs he doth declare himself to be willing to have Livery of Seisin made, and it is made; this is a good Livery of Seisin. Sane Memory.

But if a Letter of Attorney be made to deliver Seisin of certain Land by one that is De non sane Memorie, and the Deed of Feoffment was made while he was of sound Memory, and afterwards he doth come to his Memory again, and then the Livery is made upon the first Warrant without any new Assent, &c. in this Case the Livery is not good. *Bro. THERE are but few Persons that are disabled to be private Attornies to make Livery of Seisin; for Infants, Feme Coverts, Persons attainted, excommunicated, Aliens, &c. may be; and a Feme may be Attorney to deliver Seisin to the Husband, and the Husband to the Wife, and he in Remainder to the Lessee for Life. Co. Lit. 52.

If a Man seised of Land in the Right of his Wife, lease the same Land for Life reserving Rent, and makes a Letter of Attorney unto the Wife to make Livery of Seisin, and she makes Livery of Seisin accordingly, and the Husband dies, and the Wife accepts the Rent, yet she shall have Cui in vita; for this Acceptance cannot make the Lease good, insomuch as she is a Stranger unto the Lessee; for the Lessee took nothing by the Wife notwithstanding that she made Livery of Seisin, for she made that but as Servant unto her Husband. Perk. §. 199.

A Feme Covert may be an Attorney to deliver Seisin to her Husband, and so may he in Remainder be an Attorney to make Livery to the Tenant for Life. Co. Lit. 52. a. Perk. §. 198.

If Lessee for Life makes a Deed of Feoffment and Letter of Attorney to his Lessor to deliver Seisin, if the Lessor makes Livery accordingly, it is a good Feoffment, but the Lessor notwithstanding he gave Livery himself may enter for the Forfeiture of the Tenant for Life, because the Freehold being in the Tenant for Life, the Lessor was only his Representative to transfer it; but if the Tenant had been only Lessee for Years, and the Lessor had made Livery, that had been no Forfeiture of the Term, because the Freehold being only in the the Lessor, he could not be the Representative of the Termor to convey what the Termor had not; and therefore the Freehold which passed by the Livery must proceed from the Lessor himself, and consequently shall bind him. Co. Lit. 52. Perk. §. 200.

If a Letter of Attorney be made to Lessee to make Livery, and he makes it accordingly; yet this does not determine his Interest in the Land; for what he does is as Officer or Servant to the Lessor. 1 Leon. 192.

If A. makes a Lease for Years to B. and after makes a Deed of Feoffment with Letter of Attorney to B. to deliver Seisin, and B. makes Livery accordingly; this shall not extinguish or affect his Term, because the Livery was made to pass the Freehold, and that he did as Representative to the Lessor; and therefore since the Feoffee can claim nothing from the Lessee, the Interest of the Lessee remains as it was unaffected by the Feoffment. Co. Lit. 52.

(OO) Livery to be by Deed.

A Letter of Attorney to give or receive Livery must be by Deed and not by Parol, that it may appear to the Court that the Attorney had a Commission to represent the Parties that are to give or take Livery, and whether the Authority was pursued. Co. Lit. 48. b. 52. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

For if the Letter of Attorney be to make Livery upon Condition, as to make a Feoffment conditional, and the Attorney delivers Seisin absolutely, the Livery is not good, because the Attorney had no Authority to create an absolute Fee-simple, and therefore such absolute Feoffment shall not bind the Feoffor, because he gave no such Authority; and hence in some Things the Attorney is called a Disseisor. 11 H. 4. 3. 2 Roll. Abr. 90. Co. Lit. 258. Perk. §. 188.

But if the Letter of Attorney had been to make Livery absolutely, and the Attorney had made it upon Condition; this seems a good Execution of his Power, and the Feoffment good, because when the Attorney had once delivered Possession, he fully executed his Power, and the Condition annexed to it being without Authority, is void, and therefore shall not destroy the Operation of the Livery. 26 Aff. 39. 2 Roll. Abr. 8. Co. Lit. 258. Perk. §. 192.

An Attorney of the Feoffee by Parol, without Letter of Attorney by Deed made to him, cannot take Livery. Co. Li. 48. b.

If a Lease for Years be made to A. by Deed, or without Deed, the Remainder in Fee to B. and Livery is made to A. this is good tho' he be but an Attorney to take Livery for him in Remainder; for this enures only to him in Remainder. Lit. §. 8. 60. Co. Lit. 49. b.

(PP) When Livery must be made.

A Letter of Attorney to make Livery must be executed during the Life of the Person that gives it, because the Letter of Attorney is to constitute the Attorney my Representative for such a Purpose, and therefore can continue in Force only during the Life of me that am to be represented; and hence it is that if J. S. make a Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin after my Death, it is void, because he cannot deliver Seisin during my Life, for that were plainly without any Authority from me; nor can he do it after my Death, for the former Reason. 2 Roll. Abr. 9. Co. Lit. 52. Perk. §. 188.

This Authority to give Livery may be delegated by Deed indented tho' the Attorney be not Party to the Deed, because the Attorney takes nothing by the Deed, but has only a naked Authority delegated to him; and therefore since a Man may take an Estate in Remainder tho' he is not Party to the Deed, a fortiori one not Party to the Deed may receive a naked Authority or Power by it. 2 Roll. Abr. 8, 9. & vide Co. Lit. 52.

But if any Coporation Aggregate, as a Mayor and Commonalty, or Dean and Chapter, make a Feoffment and Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin; this Authority does not determine by the Death of the Mayor or Dean, but the Attorney may well execute the Power after their Death, because the Letter of Attorney is an Authority from the Body Aggregate, which subsists after the Death of the Mayor or Dean, and therefore may be represented by their Attorney; but if the Dean or Mayor be named by their own private Names, and die before Livery, or be removed, Livery after seems not good. 14 H. 8. 3. 11 H. 7. 19. Co. Lit. 52. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 12.

If a Man makes a Deed of Lease for Lives rendring Rent, payable at four Quarters of the Year, with Letter of Attorney to J. S. to make Livery; *J. If A. be disseised of Land, and after makes a Charter of Feoffment to B. with Letter of Attorney to make Livery, who doth it accordingly: this is a good Feoffment tho' he was out of Possession at the Time of the Charter made; for the Authority given by the Letter of Attorney was executory, and nothing passed by Delivery of the Deed till Livery made. Co. Lit. 48. b.

If a Mayor and Commonalty generally, without naming the proper Name of the Mayor, make a Feoffment, and Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and the Mayor dies, and another Mayor is elected, and after that the Attorney makes Livery; this is good enough. Bro. Corporations, pl. 34.

A Lease was made for twenty-one Years, wherein was a Covenant, that after the Expiration of the said twenty-one Years the said Lessees shall enjoy for Term of their Lives. To make this a Remainder for three Lives, the Delivery of the Deed and the Livery of Seisin must be at the same Time; but if the Lessor first delivers the Deed, and the Attorney delivers Seisin after, the Livery is void, for by this Livery it cannot pass as a Remainder. 1 And. 8.

If a Feoffment be made on Condition to re-enseoff Baron and Feme and the Heirs of their Bodies. The Jury found that he demised the 10th of June 44 Eliz. by Indenture of the same Date: It is a Demise at that Time, and the Livery not being made by the Attorney till the 23d of July, was void. Popham Ch. Just. If the Deed had been delivered after the Day of the Date, and then Livery had been made by Attorney, it had been well enough, and had been so adjudged. Cro. Jac. 153.

A Lease for Life was made to commence at Michaelmas, and the Lessor made Livery after Michaelmas; this was a good Livery. So if he made a Letter of Attorney to make Livery after Michaelmas. But if he made Letter of Attorney to make Livery generally, and the Attorney makes Livery after Michaelmas; this is a Disseisin to the Lessor. 2 Roll. Rep. 366. And if Lessor or Attorney had made Livery before Michaelmas, it had been void. 2 Roll. Rep. 109.

A Feoffment was made Habendum after Michaelmas, and the Attorney made Livery after Michaelmas; yet it was held void. Cited per Popham, Cro. Eliz. 585.

The Difference is where the Livery is made by the Lessor in Person, and where by Letter of Attorney, being in the same Charter generally made; but if the Letter of Attorney be to make Livery after Michaelmas, then in both Cases it is good enough; for there is no Intention that the Livery should operate futurely, but that Livery shall be made when it should operate, and the Estate should be good presently. Cro. Jac. 563.

(QQ) In what Place Livery by Attorney may be made.

AN Attorney cannot make Livery within View, because such Livery is made by Signs or Words instead of the Act of Delivery; besides the Power of the Attorney is to deliver the Possession, but that Power is not executed by the Livery in View, because the Possession is not in the Feoffee till actual Entry made by him, and consequently the Attorney has not executed his Authority. Co. Lit. 52. 2 Roll. Abr. 9.

(RR) How Livery must be made.

IF the Land be in Lease, if the Letter of Attorney be made, the better way is to add this Clause, Ac omnes alios inde expellendi; otherwise it is a Question if he may enter upon the Lessee. Dyer 131, 71. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

But if it has not this Clause, it seems he may enter and make Livery. Dyer 71, 340. 49. Co. Lit. 52. b.

If a Man makes twenty several Deeds of Feoffment of one Acre of Land, all agreeing in Substance, and delivers Seisin upon all, it is good. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 12.

If the Letter of Attorney be to deliver Seisin upon Condition, and he delivers it without Condition; this is not good, but he is a Disseisor. 11 H. 4. 3. 2 Roll. Abr. 9.

That which for the most part, as to the Manner and Order of making it, is a good Livery of Seisin if it be made and taken by the Parties themselves, is good being made and taken by their Attornies or Deputies that have a good Authority, and do well pursue it; and therefore if the Conveyance be made of divers Lands, and they lie in one County, and a Warrant of Attorney is made to give Livery generally, and the Attorney makes it in one Part of the Land in the Name of all the Rest; this is a good Livery. Et sic de similibus. Dyer 283. (SS)

(SS) Livery to one in the Absence of the other Feoffee, or to more Persons than is requisite.

IF a Lease be made to A. and B. for Years without Deed, the Remainder in Fee to C. and Livery is made to A. in the Absence of B. in the Name of both; this is good Livery to vest the Remainder in C. Co. Lit. 49. b.

If a Letter of Attorney be made to two jointly, to make or take Livery of Seisin, and one of them alone doth it without the other; this is a void Livery.

But otherwise it is when it is made to two jointly or severally, for there one of them alone may do it. Co. Lit. 49.

And so in all such like Cases, where the Attorney does less than the Authority and Commandment, all that he does is void.

But for the most part where the Attorney does that which he is authorized to do, and more also, it is good for so much as is warranted, and void for the Rest. Co. Lit. 52, 258. Perk. §. 187, 188, 189.

And altho' Livery of Seisin cannot be made to one in Name of him and of another who is absent, by which any Estate of Freehold shall pass to him who is absent, without Deed, because his Estate is only to commence by the Livery; yet when a Lease is made to two for Years without Deed, the Remainder for Life, the Lessees immediately have an Interest in the Land before any Livery made; and therefore Livery made to one who has Interest in the Name of him and the other, suffices to this Purpose. 5 Co. 95. a.

If a Lease for Years be made to A. and B. Remainder to C. for Life, a Diversity was taken by some between two Joint-Attornies, who have express Authority to take Livery and Seisin by Deed, and two Joint-Lessees, who have Power to receive Livery for the Benefit of another by Warrant in Law; for Livery made to one Attorney in Name of both, is not good; for he does not pursue his express Warrant, because he had no Warrant for himself only, they both making but one Attorney. But in Case of two Joint-Lessees, the Livery made to one Lessee in Name of both, is good; for they had an Interest in the Land before their Entry, and the Livery made to one in the Name of both makes an actual Possession in both, which is sufficient to support the Remainder to C. And in the one Case the Livery is made to the Lessees who have Interest, and in the other to him who made the Warrant of Attorney by his Attornies, who have but a bare Authority. 5 Co. 94. b. 95. a. Co. Lit. 49. b.

If A. makes a Deed of Feoffment to B. and C. with Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and he makes Livery to B. in the Absence of C. in the Name of both, it is good. Co. Lit. 52.

If a Man makes Letter of Attorney to make Livery to W. or to S. and he makes Livery to either of them, it is good. But if he makes Livery to both, it is void; for it is contrary to his Warrant: And hence it seems that the Feoffment is good by the Livery by the Letter of Attorney without Deed of the Feoffment. Bro. Feoffment de terres, pl. 83.

If a Man be disseised of Blackacre and Whiteacre, and a Warrant of Attorney is made to one to enter into both these Acres, and to make Livery, and the Attorney enters into one Acre only, and makes Livery of Seisin there secundum formam Chartae; the Livery of Seisin is void for all, for in this Case he does less than his Authority.

If a Letter of Attorney be to give Livery of Seisin to J. S. and the Attorney gives it to J. S. and W. S. this Livery is good to J. S. and void to W. S.

If a Warrant of Attorney be given to make Livery to one, and the Attorney makes Livery to two, or if the Attorney had Authority to make Livery of Blackacre and Whiteacre, and he made Livery of Blackacre and Whiteacre, tho' the Attorney has in these Cases done more, yet there is no Reason that should vitiate what he has done pursuant to his Power, since what he did beyond it is a perfect Nullity and void. Perk. §. 189.

But if the Attorney were to deliver Seisin to two, and he made Livery only to one; that had been void, because he had no Authority to deliver the whole Possession to one exclusive of the other, and therefore it is void for the Whole. Perk. §. 188.

If a Letter of Attorney be given to two jointly to take Livery, and the Feoffor makes Livery to one in the Absence of the other in the Name of both; this is void, because they being appointed jointly to receive Livery, are considered but as one. Co. Lit. 49. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

But if a Feoffment be made to A. and B. and the Feoffor gives a Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin, and J. S. gives Livery to A. in the Absence of B. in the Name of both; this this is a good Livery, for though the intire Possession be delivered to one only, yet they be Jointenants by the Deed of Feoffment, such Livery to one makes no Alteration or Change in the Possession, because if the Livery had been made to both, each had been placed in the Possession; besides that every Man be presumed to accept a Gift for his Advantage, A. is looked upon as the Attorney of B. to receive the Possession for him; and therefore the Livery to A. enures to the Benefit of B. till he disagrees to it. Co. Lit. 49. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

But if a Letter of Attorney be made to three Conjunctim & Divisim, and two only make Livery; this is not good, because not pursuant to their Authority; for the Delegation was to them all three, or to each of them separately; yet if the third was present at the Time of the Livery made by two, though he did not actually join with them in the Act of Livery, yet the Livery is good, because when they all three are upon the Land for that Purpose, and two make Livery in the Presence of the third, there is his Concurrence to the Act though he did not join in it actually, since he did not dissent to it. Dyer 62. Roll. Abr. 32. b.

If a Letter of Attorney be given to A. to make Livery of Lands already in Lease, the Attorney may enter upon the Lessee in order to make Livery, because while the Lessee continues in Possession, the Attorney cannot deliver Seisin of it; and therefore to execute the Power given him by the Letter of Attorney, it is necessary he should have a Power to enter upon the Lessee. But by Rolle, It is the safer way to insert a Clause in the Letter of Attorney, for the Attorney to enter & omnes alios inde expellend. Co. Lit. 52. b. Poph. 103. Dyer 131. a. 340. a. 2 Roll. Abr. 9.

(TT) Delivery of Seisin of Part in the Name of the Whole, or of more than the Authority extends to.

IF a Man be seised of Blackacre and Whiteacre, and he makes a Deed of Feoffment of both, and a Letter of Attorney to enter into both these Acres, and to deliver Seisin of both of them according to the Form and Effect of the Deed, and he enters into Blackacre, and delivers Seisin secundum formam Chartæ; this Livery of Seisin is good although he does not enter into both the Acres, nor into one Acre in the Name of both; for when he delivers Seisin of one secundum formam Chartæ, this is Tantamount, and implies a Livery of both. Co. Lit. 2. a.

And if the Feoffment be made to two or more, and the Warrant of Attorney is to make Livery to them both, and the Attorney makes Livery of Seisin to one of the Feoffees secundum formam & effectum Chartæ; this is good to both, and yet he that is absent may waive the Livery. Co. Lit. 52. a.

If a Letter of Attorney be to give Livery of Seisin of Whiteacre only, and he makes Livery of Whiteacre and Blackacre also; this Livery is good for Whiteacre, and void for Blackacre.

In Ejectment it was held by Chief Baron Hale, and the Court, That where a Letter of Attorney is made to enter into any Part of the Lands in the Name of the Whole, and to make Livery, that the Attorney may enter into any Part accordingly, though in the Possession of several Tenants, and make Livery of the several Tenements severally. Hardres 314.

IF Letter of Attorney to receive Livery on a Feoffment misrecites the Feoffment, the Livery is void. Cro. Eliz. 603. 2 Roll. Rep. 274.

(VV) What Act or Thing is a Revocation of a Letter of Attorney to make Livery of Seisin.

IF a Man makes a Deed of Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery, he may revoke it before Execution of the Livery. 34 H. 6. 14. 2 Roll. Abr. 11. 5 Co. 90. b.

If a Man makes Charter of Feoffment with Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin, and before Livery made, by Malady he becomes Paralytick, so that he is mute at the Time of making Livery, but by all Signs which a Man could perceive he agreed to the Delivery of the Seisin; this is a good Feoffment, and no Revocation of the Letter of Attorney. 25 Aff. 4. 2 Roll. Abr. 11.

If there be a Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin, and before Seisin delivered by Virtue thereof, the Feoffor gives Authority Ore tenus to the Attorney to make Livery, he may give Seisin by Virtue of the Authority Ore tenus notwithstanding the Letter of Attorney; but but then (as in Case the Letter of Attorney was in any wise defective) the Attorney must swear he did it by Virtue of the Authority Ore tenus; for if he did it by Virtue of the Letter of Attorney, the other Authority will not avail the Delivery. It was said he could not deliver it by Virtue of both Authorities; Quod quære. Allen 53.

If a Man makes a Charter of Feoffment of two Acres, whereof the one is in Lease for Years and the other in Demesne, and makes Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and after the Feoffor himself makes Livery of the Acre in Demesne in Name of the Whole; though the other Acre, which is in Lease, cannot pass by it, yet the Letter of Attorney is revoked for this Acre, for it appears that so was the Intent of the Feoffor. 2 Roll. Abr. 12.

If the Feoffor dies before Livery is made by the Attorney, the Letter of Attorney is revoked in Law, because by his Death the Land is descended to his Heir. Co. Lit. 52. b.

So if the Feoffor dies before Livery be made by the Attorney, the Letter of Attorney is revoked in Law, because Livery cannot be made to his Heir, for then he shall take by Purchase where he was named by way of Limitation. Co. Lit. 52. b.

If a Corporation Aggregate, as Mayor and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter, or such like, make a Charter of Feoffment, with Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and before Livery made the Mayor or Dean dies, yet the Letter of Attorney is not revoked, because the Corporation never dies. Co. Lit. 52. b.

But it is otherwise of a Sole Corporation, as a Bishop, Parson, &c. Co. Lit. 52. b.

If a Man makes a Deed of Feoffment of Land in two Villis with Letter of Attorney to make Livery, and before Livery made by the Attorney the Feoffor himself makes Livery of the Land in one Vill; this is a Countermand of the Letter of Attorney, so that the Attorney cannot take Livery in the other Vill. 2 Roll. Abr. 12.

If a Fine be passed between the Grant and the Livery, it is no Countermand of the Livery. Dalif. 111.

(WW) How Livery of Seisin shall enure, and be taken and construed.

LIVERY of Seisin is sometimes made single, and without any Relation to the Deed whereby the Estate upon which the Livery is created at all: And sometimes and most commonly it is made with Reference to the Deed in these or such like Words, [Secundum formam Chartæ]. In the first Case the Estate is oftentimes made upon the Livery; and there may be one Estate contained in the Deed, and another made by the Livery; also there may pass more Land by the Livery than is in the Deed; and by this Means when there is a Fault in the Deed so that the Land will not pass by the Deed, it may perhaps pass by the Livery: But in this Case then there must be apt Words used in the making of the Livery to create the Estate also, as well as to give the Possession.

But where the Livery of Seisin is made with Relation to the Deed, there it must take Effect according to the Deed, or not at all; for these Words, secundum formam Chartæ, are to be understood according to the Quantity of the effectual Estate contained in the Deed.

And therefore if one makes a Deed of Feoffment to another, and in the Deed there is contained no Condition at all; and when the Feoffor makes Livery, he makes Livery upon Condition; or if the Deed contain an Estate to him and his Heirs, and he makes Livery of an Estate in Tail or for Life; in these Cases there passes nothing by the Deed.

And yet if there be apt Words used to create such an Estate at the Time of the Livery made, such an Estate may be made by the Livery without the Deed, and then the Deed shall be void.

But if in these Cases the Feoffor says when he makes Livery on Condition in Tail or for Life, secundum formam Chartæ; in this Case there is a good Feoffment made according to the Deed, and the additional Words are void.

So if a Man makes a Lease for Years, and makes Livery secundum formam Chartæ; this is but a Lease for Years still.

And if A. gives Land to B. to have and to hold after the Death of A. to B. and his Heirs; this is a void Deed; and therefore if the Livery of Seisin be made secundum formam Chartæ, the Livery of Seisin is also void.

But if when he gives Livery of Seisin, he gives it to him and his Heirs, without these Words secundum formam, &c. or if in the making of Livery he says, Here I deliver you Seisin of this Land, to have and to hold to you and your Heirs for ever, or the like; this may make a Fee-simple.

And so if one makes a Deed of Feoffment of two Acres, and after makes Livery of Seisin of four Acres; in this Case if there be Words in the Livery of Seisin sufficient to make a new Estate, the other two Acres may pass also. Lit. §. 359. Co. Lit. 48, 49, 122. Fitz. Estoppel 177. Feoffments and Facts 23. 7 Ed. 4. 25.

If

If A. by Deed gives Land to B. to have and to hold after the Death of A. to B. and his Heirs; this is a void Deed; and therefore if upon this Deed Livery of Seisin be made before the Day by the Party himself, or after the Day by his Attorney, secundum formam & effectum Chartæ, the Livery is void also, for it cannot enter so.

And yet if a Lease be made for Life to begin in futuro, and at or after the Day comes the Lessor himself in Person, and makes Livery of Seisin secundum formam Chartæ; in this Case the Lease perhaps may become good by the Livery of Seisin. 2 Co. 55. 5 Co. 94. & Greenwood's Case, Mic. 17 Jac. B. R.

If an Agreement be made between two, that the one shall enfeoff the other upon Condition of Surety of Money, and afterwards Livery of Seisin is made generally without any such Condition; in this Case, it is said by some, the Estate shall be on Condition still. Co. Lit. 222.

If there be a Fault in the Deed, as by the Misnaming of the Feoffor, &c. Feoffee, &c. or the like, and afterwards the Feoffor, &c. in Person makes Livery of Seisin upon this Deed to the Feoffor, &c. by this the Fault of the Deed may be holpen and cured. Perk. §. 42.

If one makes a Feoffment to himself and another, and gives Livery of Seisin to the other; this is a good Feoffment, and shall enure to the other wholly, and he shall take the Whole by the Feoffment and the Livery; and so if the Livery be made to one that is capable, and to another that is not capable; he that is capable shall take the Whole, and the other shall have nothing.

So if a Feoffment be made to two, and one of them dies before the Livery is made, and after the Livery is made to the Survivor; in this Case the Livery shall enure to the Survivor only, and he shall have all the Estate thereby.

So if a Feoffment be made without a Deed to a Corporation and to J. S. and Livery is made to J. S. alone; in this Case J. S. shall have the Whole, and the Corporation nothing at all. Perk. §. 203, 204. 7 H. 7. 9.

If a Feoffment be made to four, and Livery of Seisin is made to one, two or three of them; this shall enure to them all.

But if Lessee for Years make a Feoffment in Fee, and such a Letter of Attorney to the Lessor, and he delivers Seisin accordingly; this Livery shall bind him, for it shall be said as in his own Right, because the Lessee had no Freehold whereof to make Livery. Co. Lit. 52.

If a Lessor makes a Deed of Feoffment, and a Letter of Attorney to the Lessee for Years to give Livery, and he does it accordingly; this shall not be construed to extinguish or hurt his Term. Co. Lit. 52.

But if the Feoffment be without Deed, it shall enure to him wholly to whom the Livery is made.

And if one of them gives Warrant to the Rest to take Livery for him, and they do so; this shall enure to them wholly, and not to him at all for any Part. Dyer 35. 10 Ed. 4. 1. 5 Co. 95.

If the Tenant makes a Feoffment to his Lord and another, and gives Livery of Seisin to the other; this shall enure wholly to the other until the Lord agree to it, and then to them both. 10 Ed. 4. 12.

If one makes a Feoffment of one Acre of Land to A. and his Heirs, and another Deed of the same Land to A. and his Heirs of his Body, and delivers Seisin according to the Form and Effect of both Deeds; in this Case it shall enure by Moieties, i. e. he shall have an Estate-tail and a Fee-simple expectant in the Moiety, and a Fee-simple in the other Moiety. Co. Lit. 21.

If two several Deeds of Feoffment be made to two several Persons of one and the same Thing; he that can get the Seisin first shall have it. Rem domino vel non domino vendente duobus, in jure est potior traditione prior. Ibid.

If Lessee for Life makes a Feoffment and a Letter of Attorney to the Lessor to make Livery, and he makes Livery accordingly; in this Case this shall not enure to bar him of his Entry upon the Feoffee for the Forfeiture of his Lessee.

Feoffment of a Messuage in the Tenure of Thomas Cotton, and a Letter of Attorney to make Livery of a Messuage in the Tenure of Robert Cotton; adjudged that the Feoffment was good notwithstanding this Variance, for the Livery was made of the right House, and the Mistake of the Tenant's Name shall not make it void. Dyer 376. Hob. 171. Vide And. 58.

In an Affise brought by Husband and Wife de libero Tenemento in South-ton, the Plaintiff was of a Messuage, forty Acres of Meadow, &c. cum pertinentiis, &c. The Defendant pleaded a Lease for Years made to him by J. P. at S. per nomen of a Capital Messuage, &c. in in the County of H. and of all Lands, &c. which were demised with the said Capital Messuage, and which were in the Occupation of the said J. P. or his Assigns; and averred, that the Lands mentioned in the Plea were occupied with the said Capital Messuage by the said J. P. To this Plea the Plaintiff demurred, for that the House and Lands were in several Counties; but adjudged that upon a Lease for Years the Lands in both Counties shall pass; but it is otherwise upon an Estate for Life or upon a Feoffment, because there must be several Liveries. Dyer 246.

The Feoffor being seised in Fee of three Acres, made a Feoffment of one Acre to B. G. to the Use of the Feoffor in Fee, and so of another Acre to another, and of the third Acre to another, to the same Use; and afterwards he made another Feoffment of all three Acres to another Person in Fee, with a Letter of Attorney to R. M. to deliver Seisin in the Name of all three Acres; adjudged this was a good Feoffment and Livery, and that all the three Acres passed. Bendl. 15.

A Deed of Bargain and Sale was made without the Words Dedi & Concessi, and at the Bottom of the Deed there was a Letter of Attorney to B. G. to make Livery; this Deed was given in Evidence at a Trial in an Action of Trespass; and it was objected that the Letter of Attorney was void, because the Attorney was not a Party to the Deed; but adjudged that this Sort of Conveyance is a common Assurance, and therefore good. Cro. Eliz. 905. Leon. 25.

Lease for Years, and afterwards the Lessor bargained and sold the Lands to T. S. and his Heirs; which Deed being not inrolled, the Bargainor delivered Seisin on the Lands secundum formam Chartæ indentatæ prædictæ: The Question was, whether this was a Feoffment, and adjudged that it was; it is plain that the Bargainor intended that it should be so by the Livery. Another Question was, if the Lessee had attorned to the Bargainee, whether the Reversion would have passed; and it seemed that it would not, because there were no Words in the Deed to pass it as a Reversion; and it was said, where a Man has a Reversion, and he releases or confirms to another all his Right in the Lands, if he to whom the Release was made had nothing in the Land, although an Attornment is made, nothing operates by such Deeds, although there are Words in them to enlarge an Estate, viz. Habendum to them and their Heirs. 2 And. 68.

If a Deed of Feoffment with Letter of Attorney to make Livery be simple, and the Attorney makes Livery upon Condition, yet it is a good Execution of the Letter of Attorney, inasmuch as he has performed all which he was commanded, and more, (but the Condition is void). 26 Aff. 39. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

If a Deed of Feoffment and Letter of Attorney to make Livery be simple, and after the Feoffor commands the Attorney to make Livery upon a certain Condition, and he does it accordingly; this is not a good Feoffment, but a Disseisin to the Feoffor; for it is a Revocation of the first Letter of Attorney, and then this cannot create a new Power to make the Feoffment without Deed. Dubitatur, 26 Aff. 39. 2 Roll. Abr. 8.

If a Deed be acknowledged to be inrolled, and before Inrolment Livery is made; this will make it to be a good Feoffment, and not a Bargain and Sale. So where a Man for a valuable Consideration of Money makes a Deed and Letter of Attorney to deliver Seisin, and before Livery the Deed is inrolled within six Months; this shall be a good Bargain and Sale: But if the Livery is made before the Inrolment, the Estate shall then pass by the Livery. Popb. 49. And. 113. 4 Co. Hind's Case. 2 And. 3, 162, 203. 4 Leon. 4. Hob. 222.

If a Letter of Attorney be in the Deed, or a Covenant to make Livery, there nothing shall pass by the way of Use, viz. by Transmutation of Possession; but according to the Common Law by Transmutation of Estate only. 2 Inst. 672.

If a Man be disseised, and makes a Deed of Feoffment and a Letter of Attorney to enter and take Possession, and afterwards to make Livery secundum formam Chartæ; this is a good Feoffment though he was out of Possession at the Time of the Deed made, because the Feoffment takes Effect by the Livery, and not by the Deed.

In all Cases the Attorney must pursue his Warrant of Attorney that he hath to deliver Seisin in Substance and Effect. Co. Lit. 52. b.

Also the Authority given by the Letter of Attorney is executory; and nothing will pass by the Delivery of the Deed but only an Estate at Will (Lit. §. 70.) till Livery made. Co. Lit. 48. b.

(XX) What must be done after Livery of Seisin.

AFTER the Delivery of Seisin the Feoffor, or his Attorney, and all the Witnesses, must withdraw and leave the Feoffee in quiet Possession, and then there must be an Indorsement on the Back of the Deed to this Effect:

Q. Demo.

Memorandum, That the Day and Year above written (or any other Day wherein the Livery is made) Livery of Seisin was made by the within written A. B. (the Feoffor) to the within named C. D. (the Feoffee) of all and singular the Messuages, Lands and Tenements within mentioned, To have and to hold to the said C. D. and his Heirs, according to the Form and Effect of the within written Deed.

But if the Livery be made or received by Attorney, and the Warrant or Warrants of Attorney are not in the Deed, (which is the best way) then in the Indorsement it is necessary for the Attorney who delivers or receives the Seisin to say, that by Virtue of a Letter of Attorney bearing Date, &c. he received Seisin, (or he gave Seisin) &c.

Note; If in the Indenture there is a Warrant or Warrants of Attorney or Attornies to make Livery, the Deed must be Tripartite, according to the old way, between the Feoffor of the first Part, the Feoffee of the second Part, and the Attorney or Attornies of the third Part. But if there are Attorney or Attornies, as well to make as to take Livery, then the Indenture ought to be Quadripartite, between the Feoffor of the first Part, the Feoffee of the second Part, the Attorney or Attornies to make Livery of the third Part, and the Attorney or Attornies to take the Livery of the fourth Part.

(YY) Where Livery is presumed at Law, or supplied in Equity.

THE Defendant would have avoided a Conveyance for want of Livery, but the Plaintiff on a Bill by him was relieved. Totb. 104. S. P. Totb. 105, 117.

The like for want of Livery or Attornment. Totb. 116.

A Feoffment being made by way of Mortgage, but no Livery and Seisin thereof made, a Bill was brought by the Executors of the Mortgagee to supply the Defect, and to be relieved against Judgments suffered by the Heir of the Mortgagor; and accordingly it was decreed; and that the Judgments ought not to incumber the mortgaged Premises till the Mortgage Money should be all paid, especially since the Mortgagor had covenanted for further Assurance. Rep. in Canc. in Finch's Time 28.

More Lands having passed in a Feoffment than were intended, was holpen in Equity notwithstanding a Verdict and Judgment at Law, supposing some Circumvention. Totb. 186.

Where a Person died before Livery and Seisin, and before Assurance perfected, it was ordered to be perfected. Totb. 237.

There were three Coparceners, and one for a valuable Consideration sold the Land, but before Execution he died; it was decreed against the Defendant in Canc. M. 14 Car. Totb. 106.

Defendant would have avoided a Lease for want of Livery, but because the Plaintiff had enjoyed the Premises twenty-five Years, it was decreed that he should enjoy it quietly. Chancery presumes Livery, and therefore decreed Plaintiff should hold out during the Continuance of his Life; though after long Possession Courts at Law will presume Livery. Vern. 196. Totb. 116.

If a Man sells Lands in two Counties for Money, and makes Livery in one only, he shall be compelled in Conscience to perfect the Assurances by another Livery; for the Contract faileth in a Circumstance or Ceremony. Cary's Rep. 24.

A Deed of Lands in two different Counties, by way of Feoffment and Livery and Seisin, was indorsed of the Lands in one County only, but nothing mentioned of any Livery of the Lands in the other County; but decreed that by Reason of the Possession and great Length of Time (being upwards of seventy Years before) Equity will suppose and supply it; and said, that it would have been much stronger on the other Side, had the Livery been indorsed of the Lands in one County in the Name of both; for that would have implied that none was of the other, and that one was designed for both. Select Ca. Canc. in King's Time 18.

In this Case it was insisted, that as to the Possession and Length of Time, the Intendment endeavoured to be made out from thence can have no Weight, because the same Persons that enjoyed the Lands under the Deed were also Heirs at Law, and as such must have enjoyed them otherwise though there had been no such Deed; yet Lord Chancellor declared, that was he to try this Matter (at Law), he should presume and so direct that Livery was executed as to all the Lands, according to the Deed, after this Length of Time; but however that this Court would aid a Defect of this Kind. Fitz-Gibb. 146.

A. made a Feoffment in Fee by way of Mortgage of several Houses in London for securing the Payment of 400*l.* and Interest; and being likewise indebted to several other Persons by Bonds, he died before the Money due on the Mortgage was paid. After his Death the Bond-Creditors demand their respective Debts of his Heir, who had nothing to pay them but the Equity of Redemption of this Mortgage. One of the Creditors of B. undertook to satisfy the Mortgage, which he did, in order to let himself into the Estate, and hold it till his Bond-Debt was paid; but having discovered that there was no Livery and Seisin indorsed on the Feoffment, he brought an Action of Debt against the Heir upon the Bond of his Ancestor, and got Judgment; but before the Execution the Seal was opened on Purpose for a Subpœna, which was taken out, and a Bill filed, to help this defective Conveyance, which was supplied accordingly, and the Mortgagee had his Money. Nel. Rep. in Canc. 183.

And though the Heir of the Mortgagor, after discovering the Defect of Livery, suffered Judgments to be obtained by several Bond-Creditors, in order to prevent the Mortgagee's having his Money; yet the Heir was decreed to convey a perfect Estate of Inheritance, subject to Redemption on Payment of the Principal and Interest due on the said defective Deed; and a perpetual Injunction for quiet Possession against the Heir, and all other Defendants, and to stay all Proceedings at Law. Rep. in Canc. in Finch's Time 28.

If a Deed of Feoffment be given in Evidence at the Assises to be made forty Years past, but it cannot be proved that Livery was made, yet if Possession has gone all the Time according to the Deed, it is good Evidence to the Jury. And Coke C. J. said, he would direct them to find a Livery, for it shall be intended; but if the Jury find all this specially, he could not adjudge this to be a good Feoffment without Livery. Roll. Rep. 132.

After Freehold Estate determined, Livery shall be intended, and needs not be pleaded by the Reversioner. Plow. 149.

A. Tenant in Tail, by Settlement on Marriage of B. his Son with M. made a Feoffment to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to B. for Life, Remainder to first, &c. Sons by M. This Deed was indorsed generally, (viz. Livery made to J. S. appointed by W. R. the Feoffee thereto) B. and M. had C. D. E. the Plaintiff, and F. the Defendant, and six other Sons. A. levied a Fine to W. then his eldest Son, to the Use of A. and his Heirs; W. dies; A. conveyed the Land to F. and died; (C. and D. the two elder Sons, died, as it seems, and without Issue) F. entered, supposing that Livery was not well given. Lord Keeper decreed, First, That the Letter of Attorney should be supplied, and Livery admitted; though it was objected that this was in Effect to decree a Discontinuance, which is a wrong and unlawful Act; and that it was Secondly, to assist a Remainder Man in Tail in a third Remainder (for he was the third Son) against a legal Fine of his Father, Tenant in Tail, and whose Fine was a Bar to him in Law; and also against the Acceptance of the Fine by W. who joined with A. who had Power by the Recovery to have barred the Estate of the Plaintiff. But to this last the Lord Keeper said, the Grandfather might have the Conveyance, made by himself, in his own Hands: And it is apparently so; for he recites in that Deed, that he was Tenant in Tail, and he recites not the Feoffment made by himself. Ca. Chan. 240. And that at any Trial at Law to be brought by E. (the Plaintiff) F. the Defendant should admit Livery and Seisin; and that this Decree was affirmed on a Rehearing. Rep. in Canc. in Finch's Time 174.

Lands were conveyed by Feoffment, as a Marriage-Settlement on the Wife, but no Livery was made: The Husband died, and by his Will left to the Wife more than she would have by the Settlement, and gave the Lands to A. and B. Decreed that A. and B. execute Conveyances to her for Life, and deliver the Possession to her. Rep. in Canc. in Finch's Time 388.

Where the Deed under which the Plaintiff claimed appeared to be fairly executed by the Defendant's Father, and that there was no Defect therein, save only the Form of Livery and Seisin, and made on such valuable Consideration as Marriage. Decreed the Defendant to execute Livery and Seisin in the said Deed, and make farther Assurance of the said Premises to the Plaintiff and his Heirs; and the Plaintiff is decreed to enjoy the same against the Defendant. 2 Rep. in Canc. 218.

S E C T. IV.

Of Fines.

(A) A Fine, what.

Fine, what.

A Fine is a Conveyance on Record, signifying an amicable Composition or final Agreement made between Parties (fictitiously said to be) in Suit, concerning Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, by the Consent or Licence of the King, or his Justices in the Common Pleas, or others authorized, to end all Controversies between those that are Parties and Privies to the same, and all Strangers not claiming in due Time.

The Word Fine is ambiguously taken in our Law; for sometimes it is taken for a Sum of Money, or Mult imposed or laid upon an Offender for some Offence done, and then also it is called a Ransom. Different Acceptions of the Word Fine.

And sometimes it is taken for an Income, or a Sum of Money paid at the Entrance of a Tenant into his Land.

And sometimes it is taken for a final Agreement or Conveyance upon Record for the settling and securing of Lands and Tenements.

And in this Sense it is taken here; and so it is defined by some to be an Acknowledgment in the King's Court of Land, or other Thing, to be his Right that doth complain.

And by others, a Covenant made between Parties, and recorded by the Justices.

And by others more fully, an Instrument of Record of an Agreement concerning Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, duly made by the King's Licence, and acknowledged by the Parties to the same, upon a Writ of Covenant, Writ of Right, or such like, before the Justices of the Common Pleas, or others thereunto authorized, and ingrossed on Record in the same Court, to end all Controversies thereof both between themselves, which are Parties and Privy to the same, and Strangers not suing or claiming in due Time.

This Conveyance by Fine is so called, Quia finem litibus imponit, & est exceptio peremptoria; or it is called Finalis concordia, quia finem ponit negotio, adeo ut neutra pars litigantium ab eo de cetero possit recedere. Glanv. lib. 8. cap. 1, 2, 3.

The Civilians call it Transactio judicialis de re immobili. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

A Fine is the End or Complement of all Differences, performing that good Office between Parties who are re vera litigant, or at Strife in good Earnest amongst themselves in a real Action about a Title to some Lands, Tenements, Rents, Common, or other Hereditaments; and this may not improperly be conjectured from the very Words of the Indentures ingrossed by the Chirographer, which are these: This is the final Agreement made in the Court of the Lord the King, &c.

But when the Case is otherwise, and the Fine only an Instrument on Record by Consent of the Parties without any real Controversy, then indeed it is only a formal Assurance of Course, from the Result of a feigned Difference; from whence it is termed Fictio juris, or a Fiction in the Law, because the Suit is but voluntary, and not coercive. Brown's Introd. to Fines 1, 2.

A Fine when levied by Consent is said by Bracton and Fleta to be Amicabilis Compositio, with whom the Lord Coke agrees in his Sentiments upon the Words De Dono and Concessit, whereby he seems to insinuate a Fine to be, An Act to bind the Parties to each other by a voluntary Gift or Concession; which being entred upon Record according to the Course of the Court, is available to the highest Degree of Assurance in the Law. Bro. Intr. 3.

A Fine in our Law-Books is commonly called a Feoffment on Record; but in Salk. 340. the Court denied a Fine to be a Feoffment on Record, and said it was improperly so called: But the Meaning was, that it had the Effect of a Feoffment to some Purposes, if he who levied the Fine was seised of the Freehold at the Time of levying it.

A Fine is said to be the most effectual Feoffment of Record where it is a Feoffment; and the most effectual Release where it is to be a Release. 2 Mod. 110.

(B) Of the Origin and Antiquity of Fines.

A Fine was pleaded to be levied 2 Ed. 1. but not pleaded as a Fine, because there was no Chirograph of it. 20 H. 6. 3. 2 Roll. Abr. 13.

But in 7 Ed. 1. Rot. Clausarum Membrana 5. in Dorso, a Fine was levied between the King and Bigod Earl of Norfolk, in such Form as at this Day, &c. Hec est finalis Concordia, &c. 2 Roll. Abr. 13.

And in 8 Ed. 1. Membrana 11. a Fine was levied upon a Release of an Advowson.

And in 18 Ed. 1. Libro Parliamentorum, amongst the Reasons of the Judgment there given, it is said, Nec in Regno isto provideatur, vel sit aliqua securitas major seu solemnior, per quam aliquis vel aliqua statum certiores habere possit, vel ad statum suum verificandum aliquod solennius Testimonium producere, quam finem in Curia Domini Regis levatum; qui quidem finis sic vocatur, eo quod finis & consummatio omnium Placitorum esse debet, & hac de causa providebatur. 2 Roll. Abr. 13. 2 Inst. 511.

Fines were frequent before the Conquest. 2 Inst. 511.

And Plowd. in his Commentary, p. 369. says, that Catlin cited some Fines before the Conquest, relating to the Possessions of the Abbot of Crowland.

Fines seem originally to have been invented and allowed of for different Ends and Purposes than they are now applied to; for they were at first no more than a friendly Composition and Determination of the Matters in Debate between the Demandant and Tenant in the the Lord's Court; and this way of composing Differences was easily admitted in those Days, because the Suitors of the Court, who were Judges of all Suits, were by these amicable Compositions the sooner dismissed from their Attendance at the Court; nor did the Lord of the Manor suffer by them, because on these Agreements the Parties litigating paid him a Fine for his Conge de accorder, as they do the King at this Day, which was equivalent to Amercements which were paid him in adversary Suits.

From an Observation of the peculiar Benefit and Security from Fines, and from the Countenance and Encouragement they received from the Courts of Justice, Men began to engage themselves, and oblige each other by Covenants to compose their Differences, and they were the usual Expences of adversary Suits, which being generally prosecuted with Warmth and Animosity by the Parties litigating, must necessarily involve one or both Parties in Difficulties, which such friendly Compositions are free from; and the Judges considering these Agreements as the publick Acts of the Court, allowed them some Sanction with their own Judgments; and hence they came to be improved into that useful and common Assurance which we find to be at this Day, as they stand upon the Statutes 4 H. 7. c. 24. and the 32 H. 8.

The Antiquity of Feoffments is before particularly mentioned in the last Section; a Fine seems to be next in Antiquity, for the Reasons before given.

The Fine was in the Lord's Court; by it all Feudal Right which was in Possession, of which there are Instances in the Times of Henry the 2d and Edward the 2d, and it was called a Fine, on Account of a Fine which was paid to the Lord for such Agreement, because it transferred the Feudal Right held of the Lord. Gilbert's Tenures 93.

And notwithstanding in such Court all the Right the Tenant had in Possession passed, yet the Right of Action could not be transferred, because that would encourage Maintenance; therefore whatever such Grantee could seise passed by this Feudal Conveyance; but the Right of Distress and of Action did not pass without Attornment. Ibid.

The Feoffment conveyed the Feudal Possession Coram paribus out of Court; for it was necessary to convey sometimes before the Court was held, and then the Possession was delivered over Coram paribus; but as there were two Conveyances of Copyhold, one in the Lord's Court, and the other to the Customary Tenants; so in Freehold, where the immediate Grant was to the Feoffee, and not to the Lord, as in Copyhold; yet they were two Sorts of Conveyances; one by Fine in open Court, the other by Feoffment Coram paribus; the Right only passed by Fine, because the Possession being in the Grantee, they might well stay till the next Court to transfer the Right; but where the Possession was to be parted with, or Service to be done, or Money paid, there the usual Way was Coram paribus, that the Feoffee might not lose the Profits in the mean Time, or the Possession be delivered before the Contract could be completed. Ibid. 93, 94.

Thus it stood till sometime after the Conquest; but the after Kings endeavouring to retrench the Privilege of the great Lords, the first in Magna Charta, and after by the Statute of Quia emptores terrarum, began to admit of Alienations without Fine to the Lord, and the Acts of Court-Baron were only esteemed to create Notoriety among the Tenants of the Manor; from hence Grants in the Lord's Courts were omitted, and the Attornments in pais were the only Notories of such Grants, no Fine being paid to the Lord; and the King's Courts creating a Notoriety all over the Land, the usual way was to make the Grant in the King's Court in this Manner: They used to suppose that the Parties had covenanted to alien; and all Writs of Covenants (as being an Action of Concern to the Justice of the Kingdom) were suable only in the King's Court, and by Consequence this Covenant to alien was suable there; and the Court being possessed of the Matter as an adversary Cause, they were admitted to make all Manner of Agreements touching such Suit depending, and these Agreements being amicably made by way of Composition before the King's Court, it became the Justice of the King's Court to see them performed; and therefore a Scire Facias issued to execute the Fine, and a Quid juris clamat to the Tenant. Ibid. 94, 95.

It was antiently the End of a Suit; for after there had been some Contention about the Thing by Suit, the Parties became agreed who should have it, and so a Fine was levied of it, and there was an End of the Matter; and hence it is said to be Fruetus or Effectus legis, because it gives a Man the Fruit or Effect of his Suit.

And to this Day therefore a Writ doth always issue before a Fine can be levied; and this is now one of the common Assurances of the Kingdom.

(C) The Nature, Use and Effect of a Fine.

A Fine is a Record as of great Antiquity, so of a high Nature, great Force, and much Credit and Esteem; and it is now become and serves for a formal Conveyance of of Land, and one of the common Assurances of the Kingdom; for by this Means a Man may convey his Land to another in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, with Reservation of Rent also.

It is therefore called a Feoffment of Record, for it countervails a Feoffment with Livery of Seisin in the Country, and it concludes all that the Feoffment does, and works further of its own Nature.

It is for many Purposes the best and most excellent Assurance of all others; for by the antient Common Law it was so high a Bar, and of so great Force, and of so strong a Nature in itself, that it concluded and barred not only such as were Parties and Privies thereto, and their Heirs, but all others of full Age, out of Prison, of good Memory, and within the four Seas, the Day of the Fine levied, if they did not make their Claim within a Year and a Day.

And it is still of that Force, although it be somewhat enfeebled by some Statutes, that either it passes all the Right and Interest of the Conusor to the Conusee, or else works by way of Extinguishment and Estoppel, and perpetually bars the Conusor and his Heirs of all present and future Right, and Possibility of Right, or other Collateral Benefit to the Thing whereof the Fine is levied.

And if it be a Fine with Proclamations, in Time it becomes a perpetual Bar to all others also that have Right, except they take Care to prevent the Bar by their Claim, Action or Entry, within five Years after the Proclamation ended.

And it bars Intails peremptorily, whether the Heir does claim within five Years or not, if he makes his Claim by him that levies the Fine. Shep. Touch. 6. cites Stat. of Fines, 18 E. 1. 1 Co. 3. Plow. 358, 265.

This is esteemed a Conveyance of greater Security than a Feoffment, or the Investiture by Livery, being not only equivalent to the Notoriety of Livery, but having the constant and undoubted Credit of a Court of Record to protect and support it; and this further Convenience and Security, that it does not only transfer the Right of the Vendor, and all claiming under him, but likewise extinguishes the Right of others who omit to make their Claim in due Time.

A Fine is esteemed an Assurance or Conveyance of the highest Nature, and most Perfection in the Law, being much of the Quality of a Feoffment with Livery of Seisin executed thereupon, but of greater Efficacy, and therefore called a Feoffment upon Record [but see before the Division (A)], by which Lands may be conveyed or transferred from one Person to another in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, and thereby Rent may be also reserved. Brown's Intr. 2.

Estates may be likewise settled in the King, to the Intent that they may be intailed on the Crown to the Use of the Parties. Or,

Estates may be settled by Fine in the Family of those who have them in Fee, to continue the same in the Blood, by Tail general or special; or, In Strangers, that shall purchase the same by Tail general or special, or in Fee. Ibid.

Estates may be also granted by Fine for Life or Lives, the Remainder in Tail or in Fee, or the Reversion in Fee. Ibid.

Likewise Annuities or Rent-Charges may be granted by Fine for Years, for Life, in Tail, or in Fee. Ibid.

Some have wrote, that there neither is, nor can be provided by the Laws of the Land, any greater or more noble Security by which any Person may make his Estate more secure, or produce a more solemn Testimony for the Confirmation of his Estate, than a Fine levied in the King's Court upon Record; yet it must be allowed that in some Respects a common Recovery exceeds it; for a Fine will bar the Heir in Tail, but not him in Remainder or Reversion, but a Recovery bars them all. Brown of Fines 1.

For more concerning the Effects of Fines, vide post. where is shewn in particular what Persons are barred by Fines.

(D) Of the several Kinds of Fines.

FINES are by some divided into single or double.

A single Fine is that by which an Estate is granted by the Cognisor to the Cognisee, and Single nothing is thereby rendered back again by the Cognisee to the Cognisor.

And a double Fine is that which contains a Grant, or Render back again from the Cognisee Double, to the Cognisor, as of the Land itself, or of some Rent, Common or other Thing out of it; many Times limiting Remainders to Strangers not named in the Writ of Covenant, and sometimes with Reservation of Rent, Clause of Distress, and Grant of the same over.

No single or double Fine may be with a Remainder over to any other Person not contained in it, but it must be to the Conusee and his Heirs only; nor can any Rent be reserved upon a pure Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, but upon a Fine of Grant and Render, and upon sur Concessit only; nor may it be on a Condition. 5 Co. 38.

That by a double Fine, or Fine with Render, almost any Kind of Contract about Land may be made, and drawn up in Form by a Fine of that Nature. See West. Symb. 2 Part. Perk. §. 629. Bro. Fines 108.

Without Proclamations.

Also a Fine is either with Proclamations, or without Proclamations, and executed or executory.

That without Proclamations is termed a Fine at the Common Law, and is levied in such Manner as was used before 4 H. 7. 24. which still remains of such Force as they were at the Common Law, to discontinue the Estate of the Cognisors, if they be executed.

With Proclamations.

That with Proclamations, is termed a Fine according to the Statutes 1 R. 3. 7. 4 H. 7. 24. And such a Fine is every Fine (that is pleaded) intended to be, if it be not shewed what Fine it is.

And these Fines with Proclamations are the best Sort, and most used; and it is said to be in the Election of the Cognisee to have it with or without Proclamations; and if there be Error in the Proclamations, yet the Fine shall be taken as a good Fine at Common Law without Proclamations. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 53. 2 Co. Inst. 519.

Executed.

A Fine also, whether with or without Proclamations, is either executed or executory. Executed is such a Fine as of its own Force giveth a present Possession (or at the least in Law) unto the Cognisee, so that he needs no Writ of Habere facias seisinam, or other Means for the Execution thereof, but he may enter: Of which Sort is a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo que il ad de son done, which is in Deed the best and surest Kind of Fine of all.

And this Kind of Fine always supposes a Feoffment or Gift precedent of the same whereof the Fine is had, which the Fine is to corroborate and strengthen.

Executory.

Executory is such a Fine as of its own Force does not execute the Possession in the Cognisee; and of this Sort is a Fine sur Cognissance de droit tantum, when the Party that levies the Fine is seised of the Thing, and he to whom the Fine is levied has no Freehold therein, but it passeth by the Fine, and a Fine sur Done, Grant, Release or Confirmation.

And if these Kinds of Fines be not levied, or such Surrender made unto them that be in Possession at the Time of the Fines levied, the Cognisees must enter, or have Writs of Habere facias seisinam, according to their several Cases for the obtaining of their Possessions.

But if at the Time of levying such executory Fine, the Party unto whom the Estate is limited be in Possession of the Lands passed, he needs no Writ of Execution to put him in Possession; for then the Fine will enure by way of Extinguishment of Right, and does not alter the Estate or Possession of the Cognisee, however, perhaps, it betters it. The Fine sur Cognissance de droit tantum also serves sometimes to make a Surrender, and then it is therein recited that the Conusor has an Estate for Life, and the Conusee the Reversion; and sometimes it serves to grant a Reversion, and then the particular Estate is recited to be in another; and that the Conusor wills that the other shall have the Reversion, or that the Land shall remain to the other after the particular Estate spent.

And by some Fines are divided into four Kinds:

1. A Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c.
2. A Fine sur Done, Grant & Render.
3. A Fine sur Cognissance de droit tantum.
4. A Fine sur Concessit.

But in Fact, there are but two Sorts of Fines for the Assurance of Lands, in a strict Sense, viz.

1. A Fine sur Cognissance de droit,
- And 2. Fine sur Concessit.

These are simple and unmixed, and of which all the other Kinds are formed.

These two simple Kinds of Fines are branched out into six Divisions or Sorts, simple or compound, viz.

1. A Fine sur Cognisans de droit, come ceo que le Cognisee ad del done de Cognisor.
2. Sur Cognisans de droit tantum, ove Grant ou Concessit.
3. Sur Cognisans de droit, ove Release.
4. Sur Cognisans de droit, ove Grant & Render.
5. Sur Concessit tantum.
6. Sur Concessit & Reddidit.

From whence it appears that a Fine sur Cognisans de droit is divided into four Branches, and the Fine sur Concessit into two.

First, Of a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c.

A Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo que il ad de son done, single, is the principal, best and surest Kind of Fine; it is said to be executed, because of its own Force it gives present Possession (at least in Law) to the Cognisee, so that he needs no Writ of Habere facias seisinam, or other Means for the Execution thereof; for it admits the Possession of the Lands of which the Fine is levied to pass by the Fine, so that the Cognisee may enter, for that the Estate is thereby (in Law) in the Cognisee; that is to say, to such Uses as are declared in the Deed to lead the Use thereof; for this is a general Maxim, that unless it be declared by Deed, or otherwise, to what Use the Fine was levied, such Fine shall be and enure to the Use of the Cognisor that levied the same. The Fine is levied with Proclamations, according to the Form of the Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 24.

If Rent be reserved upon this Sort of Fine, it is void.

Lessee for Years died Intestate, and afterwards a Fine with Proclamations was levied of the Lands held by this Lease, and the Conusee, and those claiming under him, enjoyed it under this Fine above fifty Years; and then he who had the Right of Administration to the first Lessee, supposing that the Term for Years was not bound by this Fine, because it was not a Freehold or Inheritance, and by Consequence not within the Stat. 4 H. 7. took out Administration; and two of the Judges held, that he had a good Title, but one of them afterwards altered his Opinion; and he with the Ch. Just. Anderson held, that the Statute did extend to bind the Right of a Term for Years, if the Lessee was in Possession before the Fine levied. Goldf. 171.

If J. and B. his Wife levy a Fine to A. in Fee, sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. and then A. renders to J. for Life without Impeachment of Waste, the Remainder to B. his Wife for Term of her Life, the Remainder to J. and his Heirs; this is good. Bro. Fines 108.

B. G. who was a Debtor to the Queen, covenanted to convey Lands to the Lord Treasurer, &c. to the Use of the said B. G. and his Heirs, until Default of Payment, &c. and after such Default to the Use of the Queen, her Heirs and Successors, until the Debt should be paid out of the Profits, &c. and after the Debt paid, then to the said B. G. his Heirs and Assigns for ever; and he levied a Fine to the aforesaid Uses, and afterwards he bargained and sold the Lands to another; the Debt was not paid; the Queen seized the Lands, and granted them to R. W. quousque the Debt should be paid, and afterwards it was paid by Perception of the Profits; adjudged that notwithstanding the Bargain and Sale made by B. G. he should have his Lands again, because at that very Time when he made it he had an Estate, but it was determinable upon Non-payment of the Debt, and after the Debt paid, then a new Estate was limited to him, (viz.) an absolute Fee-simple to him and his Heirs; so that by the Bargain and Sale the determinable Fee-simple passed, and the absolute Fee could not, because it was not then in Being, for that was to arise upon the Payment of the Debt, which was not paid at the Time of the Bargain and Sale; but if the Conveyance had been by Fine or Feoffment instead of the Bargain and Sale, then this Possibility of an absolute Fee had passed to the Vendee by the forcible Operation of such Conveyances. Leon. 33.

Husband and Wife seized of a Rent-Charge in Fee in Right of the Wife, levied a Fine of it to two Conusees, and to the Heirs of one of them, to the Use of both of them and their Heirs for ever; adjudged that they were two Jointenants of the Rent, for otherwise there would be a Fraction of the Estate, (viz.) one would be in by the Common Law, and the other by the Statute of Uses. Hutt. 112.

In a special Verdict in Ejectment the Case was, There is a Parish called Ribton, and a Place. Vill called Ribton, but not co-extensive with the Parish; Tenant in Tail bargained and sold his Lands in the Parish, but out of the Vill, and covenanted to levy a Fine, and suffer a Recovery to the Uses in the Deed of the Land in the Parish, which was afterwards suffered of the Lands in Ribton; and the Question was, whether the Lands in the Parish did pass or not. It was argued that it did not, because where a Place is named in a Recovery, (as in this Case Ribton was named) it shall be intended a Vill; and though it appears by this Deed that the Lands in the Parish should pass, yet that Intention shall not carry the Words farther than they are contained in the Record; and though the Deed, the Fine and Recovery make but one Conveyance, yet each has its several Effect; but adjudged that since common Recoveries are become the common Assurances of Mens Estates, they shall have a favourable Construction; but this Case was the stronger, because the Jury found that the Tenant in Tail had no Lands in the Vill, therefore this Recovery would be void if it did not pass the Lands in the Parish. 2 Vent. 31. Mod. 78. Vent. 143. 2 Mod. 333. See Cro. Jac. 120.

The

The Bargainor by Deed of Bargain and Sale conveyed the Reversion of certain Lands in Whitchurch and Goring, to one Libb and his Heirs, after a Term for Years then in Being, and before the Inrolment he levied a Fine of the same Lands to the same Libb and his Heirs; and after the Fine was levied, the Deed of Bargain and Sale was inrolled, pursuant to the Statute, within the six Months; adjudged that though the Deed was delivered before the Fine was levied, yet Libb the Conusee shall be in by the Fine, and not by the Deed, because the Fee-simple passed to him by the Fine, and shall not afterwards be devested out of him by the Inrolment, since it was absolutely established in him by the Fine; it is true the Inrolment shall relate to the Delivery of the Deed, but that is to prevent and protect the Estate from all intermediate Incumbrances, but never to devest any Estate lawfully settled in the Bargainee before that Time. 4 Co. 70. And. 285. Cro. Eliz. 917. Moor 337. Yelv. 124. Ow. 70.

Lessee for Years assigned over his Lease to another in Trust for himself, and afterwards purchased the Inheritance; then he levied a Fine with Proclamations, and the Trustee did not claim the Lease within five Years; adjudged that by this Fine and Non-claim the Interest of the Lessee was barred though he had the Possession only under the Trustee, for the Trust is included in the Fine. Cro. Car. 77.

Bar.

Tenant for Life, Reversion in Fee to an Idiot, whose Uncle levied a Fine with Proclamations, and having Issue R. who had Issue B. S. he died, and afterwards the Idiot died without Issue, and then B. G. entered as Heir to him; it was adjudged that he might, and that he was not barred by the Fine of his Grandfather; for though there was a Necessity of naming him in deriving the Descent of the Inheritance to B. G. his Grandson, who was Son and Heir of R. who was the Son and Heir of the Grandfather, who was Uncle and Heir of the Idiot, who was last seised of the Inheritance; yet this was not a naming him by way of a Title but by way of Pedigree; for he made no Claim from him, but from the Idiot who was last seised, &c. Cro. Car. 514. March 94. W. Jones 456.

Tenant for Life, Remainder to the Heirs Male of his Body, Reversion in Fee to the elder Brother of the Tenant for Life; he levied a Fine with Warranty to B. G. and afterwards died without Issue Male, leaving Issue only one Daughter, then the elder Brother died without Issue; adjudged that this Fine and Warranty shall make a Discontinuance of the Fee, and devest him in the Reversion of it in whom it was placed, and gain a new Estate and Fee to the Cognisor, upon which the Fine and Warranty shall enure, and by Consequence bar the Daughter; for the Warranty did not immediately descend upon her, but upon the elder Brother, who had the Right in Reversion; yet when he died without Issue, it then descended on her as Heir to her Uncle, and by Consequence she is barred by the Fine. Cro. Car. 111.

Tenant for Life, Remainder for Life to his Brother, Remainder in Tail to their Nephew: The two Brothers intending to bar this Intail to their Nephew, one of them, who was the Tenant for Life, made a Lease for Years of the Lands, and agreed with the Lessee that he should make a Feoffment, who did it accordingly; afterwards both the Brothers released to the Feoffee with Warranty, both which Warranties descended upon their Nephew, who was their Heir, and also a Remainder Man in Tail; but adjudged that both the Warranties commenced by Disseisin, because the Feoffment was made by Covin; then it was moved, that if the Nephew, not knowing of this Disseisin, had levied a Fine to a Stranger, whether that should bar his Right, and enure to the Benefit of the Disseisor; and adjudged that it should not, but it should enure to the Benefit of the Cognisor, that is to his own Benefit, for otherwise a Disseisin being made in a secret Manner, might be a Means to disinherit any one who should levy a Fine for the Benefit of himself, or of his Wife and Children. Cro. Car. 347.

A Fine sur Conufance de droit come ceo que il ad de son done, generally implies that a Fee-simple passes thereby: But it is only so by Implication, and therefore there is no Repugnancy to limit an Estate for Life, &c. to the Conusee; for the Generality of the precedent Donation may be thereby expressed to be for Life only, or in Tail: And the general Intendment of the Conufance may be qualified by an express Limitation. Vide 41 Ed. 3. 14. Co. Lit. 9. b. Salk. 340, 341.

Tenant in Tail of Lands called Eftons, levied a Fine of Lands in Eftlington and Efton, whereas the Lands called Eftons lay in another Parish; adjudged that the Lands called Eftons did pass, though the Parish in which they lay was not named, because this being an amicable Assurance, would pass Lands in a Lieu Conus. Godb. 440.

There were two Towns A. and B. in one Parish, likewise called B. a Fine was levied of Lands in B. not distinguishing the Town of B. from the Parish of B. and whether the Lands in A. should pass, was the Question; adjudged they should not, for both A. and B. were distinct Towns; and though the Parish of B. might comprehend both, yet the Lands in A. shall shall not be comprised in the Fine levied of Lands in B. generally, unless A. had been an Hamlet of B. and the Fine had been levied of Lands in the Parish of B. and then the Lands in both the Towns had passed. Cro. Jac. 120. W. Jones 300. Cro. Car. 269; 276.

In Trespass the Question was, whether a Fine sur Cognisance, &c. could be levied of a Close by a Lieu Conus in a Town, without mentioning the Town, Vill or Hamlet where it lies; and adjudged that it might, because it is but an amicable Agreement between the Parties. Cro. Jac. 574.

Where the Cognisor is to pass the Manor of D. to B. the Cognisee, by a Fine executory, and he levy a Fine to him by the Name of the Manor of D. and of so many Acres of Land in Dale and Sale, being the Towns in which the Manor lieth, and afterwards the Cognisor purchaseth other Lands in these Towns, the Fine shall not be executed of the new purchased Lands, but shall extend only to these Lands which he had an Intent and Power to pass. Popb. 104.

Lease for Years to commence after the End and Determination of a former Lease then in Being; the first Lease ended; the second Lessee did not enter, but he in Reversion did, and afterwards levied a Fine with Proclamations, and the five Years passed without Entry or Claim of the second Lessee; adjudged that he was barred now by this Fine, and bound by the Stat. 4 H. 7. for that Statute mentions Interest to be barred by Fines, and the Lessee in the principal Case had an Interest in the Lands. 5 Co. 123.

Secondly, Of a Fine sur Concessit.

A Fine sur Concessit is where the Cognisor is seised of the Lands contained therein, whereof the Cognisee has no Freehold, but it passes by the Fine.

This Fine is said to be executory, so that the Cognisee or Cognisees therein must enter, or have a Writ of Habere facias seisinam, according to their several Cases for the obtaining the Possession, if the Parties to whom the Estate is limited at the Time of levying such Fine be not in Possession of the Thing granted; but if they be in Possession at such Time, there needs not any such Writ, or any Execution of the said Fine to put them in Possession, for then the Fine will enure by way of Extinguishment of Right, and does not alter the Estate or Right of the Cognisee, however perhaps it may better it.

If a Tenant in Tail levies a Fine sur Concessit for Life with Proclamations, and the Tenant for Life dies; in this Case the Bar of the Fine is determined. Moor, Case 1026.

In a special Verdict in Ejectment the Case was, the Husband being seised in Right of his Wife of a Reversion in Fee expectant upon the Determination of a Term for Years, settled the Tenements to the Use of his Wife Bridget for Life, Remainder to Francis Lee, an Infant, and Elizabeth his Wife, and the Heirs of Francis and Elizabeth to be begotten, Remainder to the Husband for Life, Remainder to the right Heirs of his Wife Bridget; afterwards the Husband and Bridget his Wife, by Fine sur Concessit, did grant the said Tenements & totum & quicquid habent therein, ad terminum vite ipsorum Willielmi (the Husband) & Bridgittæ & eorum diutius viventis, &c. with Warranty, and this was in Trust for the Purchasor of the Inheritance; the Lessee for Years attorned, and afterwards in the same Term the Father of Francis Leigh, and William and Bridget his Wife, levied a Fine sur Cognisance de droit to the Earl of Salisbury the Purchasor; this Warranty of the Father descended on Thomas Leigh, who was the Son and Heir of Francis, who was the Son and Heir of him who entered into this Warranty; and the Question was, whether he was barred by it; and this depended upon the Operation of the Fine sur Concessit, for if it enured as a Grant of the Estate in Possession of William the Husband and Bridget his Wife, then it displaces the Remainder to Francis, and makes Room for the Warranty to bar; but if it passes only the Estate of Bridget, the Wife in Possession, and the Remainder of William for Life, only as a Remainder, and not in Possession, then it doth not devert the Estate of Francis in Tail, and so it is not barred by the Warranty: The Court inclined, that it passed the Whole of William and Bridget in Possession, and not by Fractions. 2 Lev. 1154.

Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, he in Remainder levied a Fine to the Tenant for Life, and to her Husband sur Concessit tenementa, &c. to him and his Wife for the Life of the Wife, and after Proclamations made, the Conusor died; adjudged this Fine was no Discontinuance to bar the Estate-tail but only during the Life of the Tenant for Life; and after that is determined, the Estate-tail is neither barred nor altered. Cro. Jac. 40. Moor 747.

A Fine sur Concessit has been always taken to be the most harmless (and of less Operation in the Law) than any other, and compared only to a Grant of Totum statum suum, & quicquid habet, &c. by which no more is granted than what the Conusor had at the Time of the Grant, and consequently that it shall not work a Disseisin (to a third Person). Also that no more shall pass by such a Fine than what lawfully may (without Prejudice to another); and rather than it shall be construed to work a Wrong, the Estate shall pass by Fractions, and the several Interests remain separate notwithstanding such Fine. 2 Mod. 112.

Indeed there is a Fine sur Concessit which expresses no Estate of the Grantor, and this is properly levied by Tenant in Fee or in Tail, (and passes the whole Estate, &c.) but when particular Tenants pass over their several Estates by such Fine, they generally grant Totum, &c. quicquid habent in Tenementis prædictis, not expressing what particular Estates they have therein. Ibid.

Note; When this Fine was first invented, the Judges in those Days looked upon the Words Quicquid habent, &c. to be insignificant; and therefore 17 Ed. 3. 66. they were rejected, where two Husbands and their Wives levied such a Fine with those Words; and the Judge would not pass it, because if the Parties had nothing in the Land, nothing passed by such Fine. Vide 44 Ed. 3. 36, &c. accord. &c. 2 Mod. 110, 111, 112, &c.

Thirdly, Of a Fine sur Concessit tantum.

A Fine sur Concessit tantum, is to transfer an Estate for Life or Years from one Person or more to another, or to several Persons with or without Impeachment of Waste, if the Estate be granted for Life or Lives.

Fourthly, Of a Fine sur Concessit & Reddidit.

A Fine sur Concessit & Reddidit, is of the very Nature of a Fine sur Concessit tantum, only it differs in Form; of which see the second Part of this Work.

Fifthly, Of a Fine sur Cognisance de droit tantum.

A Fine sur Cognisance de droit tantum, is also said to be executory, and much of the Nature of a Fine sur Concessit; it is used commonly to pass a Reversion, and then it is expressed by such Fine that the particular Estate is in another, and that the Cognisor willeth that the Cognisee shall have the Reversion, or that the Land shall remain to him after the particular Estate spent.

And sometimes it is used by Tenant for Life to make a Release (in the Nature of a Surrender) to him in Reversion, but not by the Word Surrender; for it is said a particular Tenant, as for Life, cannot surrender his Term to him in Reversion or Remainder by Fine, but he may grant and release to him by Fine. 44 Ed. 3. 36. 3 Co. 86. Dyer 216. Plow. 268.

A Fine upon a Lease, as it seems, may not enure to an Use, that is, it may not be intended to the Use of any other but to him to whom it is levied, unless an Use be expressed in the Fine, or in another Deed; and if a Disseisor be, and the Disseisee levies a Fine upon a Release, thereby the Right is gone, and a Stranger may levy such Fine to Tenant for Life, and it shall be no Forfeiture of his Estate. 3 Leon. 36, 37. 3 Co. Inst. 36.

A Fine upon a Release may not enure to an Use. 3 Co. Inst. 36.

Sixthly, Of a Fine sur Cognisance de droit tantum, ove Grant ou Concessit.

A Fine sur Cognisance de droit tantum, ove Grant ou Concessit, sometimes called a Fine sur Done, Grant, is partly of the Nature of a Fine sur Cognisance de droit, and partly of the Nature of a Fine sur Concessit, only it is levied without Proclamations, and executory by Writ of Habere facias seisinam, as a Fine sur Concessit is.

It is sometimes used by Tenant for Life to surrender his or her Estate to him or them in the Reversion or Remainder; or to grant the Reversion after the Death of Tenant for Life.

It may also be expressed in such Fine that the particular Estate is in another Person, whom the Recognisor is willing to have the Reversion or the Remainder thereof.

Seventhly, Of a Fine sur Done, Grant & Render.

A Fine sur Done, Grant & Render, is that which is called a double Fine, as is before observed, being in a Manner two Fines, (that is to say) a Fine sur Cognisance de droit comeo, and a Fine sur Concessit, both formed into one, whereby the Cognisee after a Release and Warranty made to him by the Cognisor of the Lands contained therein, doth grant and render back to the Cognisor the Lands, &c. or some Part thereof, and many Times limiting thereby thereby Remainders to Persons that are Strangers, and not named in the Writ of Covenant: This Fine is partly executed, partly executory, and as to the first Part of it, is altogether of the same Nature with a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo; but as to the second Part, containing a Grant and Render back (as aforesaid), it is taken in Law to be rather a private Conveyance or Charter between Party and Party, and not as a Writ of Judgment upon Record.

This Render is sometimes of the whole Fee, and sometimes of a particular Estate with Remainder or Remainders over, or the Reversion; and sometimes with Reservations of Rents with Distress, and sometimes with a Grant thereof over by the same Fine.

Note; A Render must be made upon a Come ceo sur Release; or other Fine executed.

A Fine was levied of an Advowson sur Cognissance de droit tantum, with a Grant and Render of the next Presentation to the Conusor, and of the second Presentation to the Conussee, and so to present by Turns; and this was held good. 9 Eliz. Dyer 259.

Affise for a Rent-Charge, in which the Case was thus, viz. Husband and Wife were seised of two Manors, and they by Fine conveyed the same (inter alia) to the Conussee, by the Name of two Manors, &c. and he by the same Fine rendered back to them an yearly Rent of 50*l.* and to the Heirs of the Wife, and also rendered the two Manors to them for their Lives, Remainder over in Tail; the Husband and Wife died, the Rent descended to the Plaintiff as Son and Heir to the Wife, and he had Judgment in the Affise; and upon a Writ of Error brought, the Error assigned was, that the Fine was pleaded of the two Manors (inter alia), by which it may be reasonably intended that other Lands passed besides the Manors, and therefore the Affise brought against him alone, who was Tenant of the Manors, is not good, because all the Tenants of the Land ought to be named; this was adjudged a material Exception; the second Error was that the Grant of the Rent was void, because the Land was granted at the same Time, and to the same Person, and the Grantee cannot have both; but as to this it was adjudged, that the Law shall marshal it so as to make the Grant of both to be good; for in the first Place the Rent shall pass, and then it shall be as a Purchase of the Remainder of the Land in Fee, which shall not extinguish the Rent. Cro. Eliz. 226.

If a Grant and Render in a Fine of Land be immediately, in Primo gradu, to one that is no Party to the Writ, this is not good, but immediately, or in secundo gradu, &c. such a one may take; as if two levy a Fine, and the Grant and Render back again is to one of them only, this is good enough. 2 Co. Inst. 514.

So if a Writ of Covenant be brought by A. against B. of the Manor of D. and B. levied a Fine to A. Come ceo, &c. in this Case A. may grant or render the same to B. for Life, or in Tail, the Remainder to F. in Fee; and this is good as in a Deed by way of Remainder. 2 Inst. 514. Bro. Fines 111, 117, 118.

W. H. was seised in Fee, as Heir on the Part of his Mother, and he and his Wife levied a Fine to W. R. and L. R. with Warranty, and then by the same Fine did grant and render the same Lands to the Husband and Wife in Tail, Remainder to the Heirs of the Husband; they both died without Issue; adjudged that the Conusees had once the Estate in them, and that the Fine and Render was a Conveyance at Common Law; and if so, then the Render made the Conusor a new Purchasor, and by Consequence the Lands shall go to the Heir of the Part of the Father. Salk. 337.

The Render of a Rent (if any be) must be to one of the Parties to the Fine, and not to a Stranger. Dyer 63, 69. 2 Co. in Lord Cromwell's Case.

A Man may not reserve to himself a less Estate by way of Remainder than the Fee; as if A. levies a Fine of his Land to B. and B. re-grants and renders it to A. for Life, this will be void. 14 H. 4. 31. 34 Ed. 4. 36. Dyer 33, 34, 69.

There may not be a Condition or Clause of Re-entry for Non-payment of Rent inserted in this Kind of Contract; and yet some hold, that a Fine levied to one in Tail, upon a Condition, with a Remainder over, is good. Co. 76. 6 Co. 33. 2 Co. in Cromwell's Case. Dyer 33, 69. See 27 H. 8, 84. Plow. 34. 24 E. 3. 62.

Whereby it seems a Fine may be levied to one upon Condition, with Remainder, but not with Re-entry.

In Replevin the Case upon the Pleadings was, a Feoffment was made, rendring 3*l.* per Ann. Rent, with a Clause of Distress, and the Feoffor covenanted to make a further Assurance of the Land; afterwards he levied a Fine to the Feoffee, with a Render of 3*l.* Rent; adjudged that he might avow for the old Rent upon the Feoffment notwithstanding the Fine; and that the Render is not a Grant of new Rent, but a Confirmation of the old. Moor 298.

A Fine upon a Grant and Render was levied in the Reign of Ed. 4. and a Scire Facias brought, and Judgment given, and a Writ of Seisin awarded, but not executed; afterwards another Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo was levied of the same Lands, and five Years passed, passed, and the Writ of Seisin of the first Fine being not executed, another Scire Facias was now brought to execute it, to which Scire Facias the Fine sur Cognissance de droit was pleaded in Bar; and the Question was, whether it should bar it, or not; it was insisted that it should not, because the first Fine was executory, and in Custodia Legis, by which it is preserved, and a Fine sur Cognissance cannot effect a Thing executory, for the Estate ought to be turned into a Right, otherwise it cannot be barred by such Fine; but the Estate of him in this first Fine is not turned into a Right by the second Fine, and by Consequence not barred; besides the Stat. 4 H. 7. is a general Law, and in the Affirmative, and therefore shall not take away the Statute of William the 2d, which gives the Scire Facias; but the Court inclined, that the second Fine, and five Years passing, was a Bar to the first Fine not being executed. March 194.

A Render of a Concord may not be of any other Thing than what is in the Writ of Covenant, unless it be of a Rent, or Common issuing out of it. 18 E. 4. 12.

But a Fine may be (as hath been said) with a Render back again of some Estate in the same Land that passeth by the Fine, or some Rent out of it; so that in this Kind of Fine there may be a Reservation of Rent, a Clause of Distress, or Nomine pænæ, and a Warranty; and therefore if A. levy a Fine to B. sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. and B. by the same Concord grants and renders the Land back again to A. for Life, without Impeachment of Waste, the Remainder to C. the Wife of A. for her Life, the Remainder to A. and his Heirs; this is a good Concord, and by this Devise a Jointure may be, and is oftentimes made for a Woman.

In Replevin the Case was, B. and G. levied a Fine of the Place where, &c. sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, and the Conusee by the same Fine rendered back the Lands to B. in Tail, reserving a Rent to himself; and also that if the Tenant in Tail should die without Issue, then the Lands should remain to G. the other Conusor in Fee; afterwards B. the Tenant in Tail died without Issue; it was a Question, whether the Rent and the Reversion passed, it being by one Fine; and adjudged that both did pass, and that it should enure as several Fines; but where a Gift is made in Tail, rendering Rent to the Donor, the Remainder over in Fee; this being a Deed is good Reservation of the Rent, and the Remainder only without the Rent shall go to him to whom it is limited over. Cro. Eliz. 727.

And a Lease for Life or Years may be made by Fine with a Render. The Lessee must acknowledge the Land to be the Right of the Lessor that is seised of the Land, as that, &c. and then the Lessor must grant and render the same back to the Lessee (that is Conusor in the Fine) for Life, or for certain Number of Years, (as the Agreement is) reserving Rent with Clause of Distress; and this is a good Fine and a common Devise for this Purpose; but if the Lessor be Tenant in Tail, it seems this Kind of Fine will not bind the Issue in Tail.

And yet if a Tenant in Tail and N. do by Fine acknowledge the Land to be the Right of a Stranger, as that, &c. and then the Stranger (that is the Cognisee) doth grant and render the Reversion to the Tenant in Tail; this will be a good Fine to bar the Issue in Tail also, and will likewise pass the Rent and Reversion to the Tenant in Tail also. Bro. Fines 118. 6 Co. 33. Co. 76. pl. 435. Dyer 279. Perk. §. 629.

To have a Lease for Years to bind a Tenant in Tail: The Tenant in Tail and the Lessee did acknowledge the Tenements to be the Right of one A. a Stranger, who did grant and render the same Fine to the Lessee for Years, the Remainder to the Lessor and his Heirs; this was with Proclamations; this is a good Lease to bar the Issue in Tail. 44 E. 3. 45.

Husband and Wife levied a Fine to the Conusee, who by the same Fine granted and rendered to them and to the Heirs of the Husband, and rendered other Part of the Lands to the Wife in Tail, Remainder over; now there being a plain Variance in this Case, for after the Whole was rendered to the Husband in Fee, then Part to the Wife in Tail; the Heir of the Husband brought a Writ of Error, and assigned this Variance for Error; but adjudged that there is no Occasion of a precise Form in a Render upon a Fine, because it is only an amicable Assurance upon Record. 5 Co. 38.

Adjudged that where the King is Tenant in Tail by the Gift of any of his Ancestors, being Subjects, he may upon a Fine by Grant and Render bar the Estate-tail; but in such Case it would be necessary for the Conusee to have likewise a Grant from the King by express Words to enter upon the Lands, because the Fine upon a Grant and Render being only executory, it may be a Question, whether the Conusee may enter upon the Possessions of the King without such a Grant. 7 Co. 32.

By a Fine with a Render a Lease for Years may be made thus also: If one that is Tenant in Tail within the 11th of Henry 7. accept of a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. and then by the same Fine render back the Land to the Cognisor for one hundred Years; this will be a Discontinuance, and bind the Issue by this Statute. 2 Leon. Case 206.

H. seised in Fee as Heir of the Part of his Mother, together with his Wife levied a Fine to A. and B. with Warranty; and A. and B. by the same Fine did grant and render the Lands to the Husband and Wife in Tail, Remainder to the Heirs of the Husband: The Husband and Wife die sans Issue; and the Question was, whether the Heir a parte paterna, or a parte materna, should take the Lands by this Fine? It was argued, a parte materna, that the Seisin of the Conusee is fictitious; for if the Conusee were Tenant for Years, the Term would not thereby be extinguished; and that he is like to a Surrendree of a Copyhold, nothing but a mere Instrument; and therefore that nothing was altered by the Fine, but that the Use and Estate remained as before. But on the other Side it was said, that the Conusee could not render if he had not the Estate in him; and that the Render was a Re-enfeoffment; and of that Opinion was the Court, who held, that the Estate was (by this Fine) once put in the Conusee, and the Fine and Render is a Conveyance at Common Law, and the Render makes the Conusor a new Purchasor as much as a Feoffment and Re-enfeoffment at Common Law. Salk. 337.

THERE are five essential Parts of a Fine, viz.

1. The Original Writ against the Cognisor.
2. The Composition or King's Licence to alienate the Lands contained in the Writ of Covenant.
3. The Concord.
4. The Note of the Fine.
5. The Foot of the Fine.
6. And to this may be added a sixth Part, if the Fine be to be levied with Proclamations.

First, As to the Original Writ.

The Writ of Covenant is the usual original Writ, taken out by the Cognisee or Cognisees against the Cognisor or Cognisors to the Fine, for without an Original a Fine cannot be levied; yet a Fine may be levied upon any Writ of Right, or other Writ whereby Land is demanded or recovered. It begins thus:

Midd. Command A. B. that justly, &c. be perform, &c. to D. the Covenant, &c.

A Writ of Covenant lies properly upon a Covenant in the Realty, where one by Deed grants to another, to acknowledge unto him by Fine, certain Lands or Tenements to him and his Heirs; in which Case the Grantee shall have a Writ of Covenant against the Grantor to levy a Fine of those Lands.

This Writ of Covenant is now become the only Original now used to ground a Fine upon, tho' a Fine may yet be levied upon a Quid juris clamat, Per quæ servitia, De Rationabilibus divisis, Warrantia Chartæ, or upon any Writ of Right, or other Writ whereby Lands, Tenements or other Hereditaments are demanded, or may be recovered in a real Action; but the Use of these Writs are chiefly antiquated.

Secondly, As to the Composition or King's Licence.

The Composition or King's Licence to alien the Land, for which the King has a Fine or Sum of Money, which is called the King's Silver.

For this is properly that Money which is due to the King in the Court of Common Pleas, in Respect of a Licence there granted to any Man for passing a Fine, and is Part of the Revenues of the Crown.

Note, That if the King's Silver be entered and indorsed upon the Writ of Covenant by the Clerk for that Purpose, altho' the Cognisor dies before the Fine comes to the Chirographer, yet this Fine is good for the other two Parts, viz. the Note and the Foot of the Fine are but Abstracts taken out of this. Brown's Treat. of Fines 8.

Thirdly, As to the Concord.

The Concord is the Agreement between the Parties that intend the levying the Fine, wherein is declared how and in what Manner the Things contained in the Writ shall pass; and as the Writ of Covenant is the Foundation, so this is the Substance of the Fine. It begins thus, viz.

And the Agreement is such, to wit, that the aforesaid A. hath acknowledged the Tenements aforesaid, with the Appurtenances, to be the Right of him the said B. &c.

The Concord is the Foundation or Substance of the Fine, for if upon this the King's Silver is entered, altho' the Conusor dies afterwards, yet the Fine is good, and the Note and and the Foot of the Fine are but Abstracts out of the Præcipe and Concord by the Chyrographer. Vide 5 Co. 38, 43.

See more hereafter concerning the Concord of a Fine.

Fourthly, As to the Note of the Fine.

The Note is an Abstract taken out of the Writ of Covenant and Concord by the Chyrographer before it be ingrossed. It begins thus:

Oxon, ff. Between A. B. Plaintiff, and C. D. Deforciant, &c.

Fifthly, As to the Foot of a Fine.

The Foot of a Fine is an indented Piece of Parchment, containing the Effect and Substance of the Fine; as the Parties to the same, the Thing granted, the Day, Year and Place, and before whom the Concord was made. It begins thus:

This is the final Agreement, &c.

And this is called the Foot, because it is the last Part of the Fine.

And when this is done, the Fine is ingrossed of Record, and the Indentures made by the Chyrographer, and delivered for the Party to whom the Cognifance is made, and then the Fine is said to be ingrossed. 5 Co. 38, 43. 2 Inst. 514.

The Foot of the Fine is also taken for all the casual Parts of a Fine (that emerge from the Writ of Covenant to the Caption of the Concord) filed together.

Sixthly, As to the Proclamations made upon a Fine.

Altho' Proclamations made upon a Fine are not the essential Parts of the Fine, yet they are a necessary Adjunct; for upon every Fine made according to the Statute of 4 H. 7. c. 24. they must be made, and being made, they make a Bar accordingly to what does pass. Popb. 63. Moor 356.

And according to that Statute the Chyrographer or his Deputy proclaims them in the Court of Common Pleas every Term.

These Proclamations were appointed first by the Stat. 1 Rich. 3. 7. (tho' before that Time, by the Stat. de finibus levatis, Fines were openly to be read at two certain Days in the Week, (by the Discretion of the Justices); and by the Stat. of Rich. 3. Fines at the Common Law have the same Force they had before, and might be levied according to that Statute, or the Common Law, at the Election of the Parties.

The Proclamations were to be made four several Days in each Term, during four succeeding Terms, by the Stat. 1 R. 3. 7. 4 H. 7. 24. 32 H. 8. 36.

But by the Stat. 31 Eliz. c. 2. Fines in the Common Pleas shall be proclaimed four Times only, viz. once in the Term wherein the Fine is ingrossed, and once in each of the three Terms then next following.

If any Proclamation be made upon a Sunday it is Error, because it is not dies juridicus. Dyer 128.

Proclamations are absolutely requisite to a Fine sur Cognifans de droit come ceo, &c. (but not to a Fine sur Concessit) for they make a Bar according to what passes.

Writ.

Note; A Writ of Covenant was Teste 24 April, return' Quinden' Pasch', which was in Truth the 15th of April, and so the Return was nine Days before the Teste; but this being a common Assurance between and by the Consent of the Parties, shall be amended, but not in other Writs. 5 Co. 45. Moor 571. S. C. contra, that it is not amendable.

Where the Sheriff is one of the Deforceants, the Writ must be directed to the Coroner; otherwise it is not good. Cro. Eliz. 300.

Concord.

A Fine was, Hæc est finalis concordia facta, &c. a die Sancti Michaelis in tres Septimanas Anno 10 Willielmi tertii coram Thoma Trevor, &c. & postea in Crastino Sancte Trin' Anno primo Annæ concess' & recordat' coram Justiciariis ejusdem, &c. The Question was, of which Term this should be a compleat Fine; adjudged it should be of that Term in which the Concord was made, and of which the Writ of Covenant was returnable; for the Concord is the compleat Fine, but the Concess. recordat. is only Leave to inrol it. 1 Salk. 341. 6 Co. 68. Hob. 330. 2 Vent. 47.

(F) Who may be Cognifors.

IN every Fine (as before observed) there is a Suit supposed wherein the Party that is to have the Thing is called the Plaintiff, and sometimes the Conusee or Recognisee; and he who parts with the Thing is called the Deforciant, and sometimes the Conusor or Recognisor.

Any Person Male or Female, Body Sole or Corporate, that hath Capacity to grant, or is able to be a Grantor by a Deed, may levy a Fine and be a Conusor therein. All Persons that may grant.

But there are certain Persons prohibited by Law, which the Judges or Commissioners that take the Conusance of Fines ought not to admit or receive, and yet if they do admit them, and a Fine be levied by such Persons, the Fine is good and unavoidable. Fieri non debet, sed factum valet: And of this Sort are Madmen, Lunatics, Villains, Idiots, Men that have the Lethargy, doting old Persons that want Discretion, drunken Men, and Men that are forced to it by Threatning, Imprisonment, or the like; also such as are born blind, deaf and dumb; but a Man that becomes so accidentally may be received, and ought not to be refused.

Also Persons attainted of Felony or Treason ought not to be received to levy a Fine; but such Persons being admitted to levy a Fine, the Fine will be good against all Persons but the King and the Lord of whom their Lands whereof the Fine is levied are held for their Times.

Also Infants ought not to be received to levy a Fine; and yet if an Infant be admitted to levy a Fine, and he does not avoid it by Writ of Error during his Minority, (as he may if it be not a Fine sur Grant & Render in Tail or for Life) the Fine will be good for ever against him and all others.

And if he dies during his Nonage, before he hath avoided it, it seems his Heir can never avoid it; and yet upon this Point the Judges of the Common Pleas have been divided on a solemn Argument; and of this Just. Dod. in 17 Jac. made a Quere.

If an Infant or Feme Covert be to take by Fine, he or she needs not be examined, as Infant, Feme when they are Conusors in a Fine. 24 E. 3. 62. 3 H. 6. 41. Feme Covert.

Persons who by our Law were accounted civilly dead, as Monks, Friars, and the like, Persons civilly might neither be Cognisors nor Cognisees in Fines, nor would a Fine levied by or to any of dead. them be good. 22 E. 4. 4. 15 E. 4. 21. 19 H. 6. 25. 5 H. 7. 25.

And a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. may not be levied to any Person, but to Party to the one that is Party to the Writ of Covenant; yet a Vouchee after he has entered into the War. Writ. ranty to the Demandant, it is said, may confess the Action, or levy a Fine to the Demandant; for he is then supposed to be Tenant to the Land.

So a Fine or Release from the Demandant to the Vouchee is good, and yet they are not Parties to the Writ; but a Fine levied by the Vouchee to a Stranger is void. 3 Co. 29. 7 Ed. 4. 13. 5 H. 7. 40.

Corporations Civil, that have an absolute Estate in their Possessions belonging to their Corporations, as a Mayor and Commonalty, &c. may together and with a joint Consent levy a Fine of the Land belonging to their Corporation, as a single Person may do; but no one of the Corporation, though he be the Head thereof, nor any of the Members, without the general Consent of the whole Corporation, can levy a good Fine.

Also Bishops, Deans and Chapters, Heads and Fellows of Colleges, and such like, who have Spiritual Per- an Estate of Freehold in Ecclesiastical Lands in Right of their Churches, &c. are forbidden sons. and restrained by divers Acts of Parliament from levying any Fines of their Lands belonging unto them; but of the Lands such Persons have in their own Right, they may levy Fines as other Persons may do. 21 Ed. 4. 13. Plowd. 11, 78, 122, 124, 538, 575. 11 Co. 78.

Also Women that have Husbands ought not to be admitted alone without their Huf- Feme Covert: bands to levy Fines, and yet if such a Woman alone levies a Fine of her own Land which she has in Fee-simple, and her Husband does not avoid it (as he may if he will) by Writ of Error, Entry or otherwise during his Life; or after her Death during his own Life, if he be Tenant by the Curtesy; this is now a good Fine, and will bind her and her Heirs for ever, except she be an Infant at the Time of the Fine levied, and her Husband happen to die during her Minority; for then in that Case if it be not a Fine sur Grant & Render to her in Tail or for Life, she may avoid it during her Minority; but if the Coverture continues unto her full Age, in that Case she cannot avoid it except her Husband joins with her in it, but the Husband and Wife ought to be received together to levy any Fine of her Land.

He who has an Estate in Fee-simple in Land in the Right of his Wife, is forbidden to Husband and levy a Fine without her. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 36. & 28. Wife.

The Persons that levy a good Fine must be such, and must have such an Estate in Such as have the Land as they are not prohibited by any Law to levy the Fine, otherwise the Fine an Estate. will be void.

But such Persons who are outlawed, or waived in personal Actions only, may levy a Fine. Persons outlawed.

Also he that has an Estate of the King's Gift or Provision, cannot levy a good Fine of it Tenant in to bind the King, or to bind the Issue in Tail, by 32 H. 8. c. 28. Tail of the King's Gift.

Also

- Intruder upon the King. Also a Fine levied by the Heir that is an Intruder upon the King's Possession, is void. 1 H. 7. 5. 24 Ed. 3. 65.
- Jointenant, &c. A Jointenant, Tenant in Common or Partner, may levy a Fine of the Land so held by him, to a Stranger or to another Jointenant, Tenant in Common or Partner. 26 H. 8. 9. Dyer 69, 334. Plow. 338, 378. 11 E. 4. 68.
- Tenant in Fee-simple. Also Tenant in Fee-simple, in Remainder or Reversion.
- Tenant for Life. Tenant for Life, it is said, may levy a Fine sur Grant & Release of the Lands which he holds for Life, to hold to the Cognisee for Life of the Tenant for Life. 44 E. 3. 36. But if the Estate be larger, it is a Forfeiture of his Estate. 4 H. 7. Ney 30.
- Tenant in Tail after Possibility, &c. And so the Law is the same of such Fines by Tenant in Tail after Possibility, Tenant in Dower, or by the Courtesy. 39 E. 3. 16. But it seems to be no Forfeiture of a Rent. 2 H. 5. 7.

(G) Who may be Cognisees.

- All Persons that may take by Grant. ANY Person who has a Capacity to take by a Deed of Grant, so as to be a good Grantee, may be a good Cognisee in a Fine. So any Man or Woman Sole or Covert, of full Age or under Age. Any mad or lunatick Persons, Idiot or Men de non sane memory. So any Person in or out of Prison, or beyond Sea. Any Person attainted of Felony or Treason, or outlawed in a personal Action, a Bastard, a Clerk convict, an Alien; any of these may be a good Cognisee, and take by a Fine as well as by a Deed; and a Fine levied to any such Person will be good. 5 Ed. 3. 9. 3 H. 6. 42. 24 Ed. 3. 62.
- Corporations. So Corporations Spiritual and Temporal, Civil or Corporal, may be Cognisees in Fines. But before the ingrossing of such a Fine, there goes always a Writ to the Justices of the Common Pleas, Quod permittant finem ill. levare.
- Party to the Writ. A Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. may not be levied to any Person but to one who is Party to the Writ of Covenant; yet the Vouchee after he has entered into the Warranty to the Demandant, it is said, may confess the Action, or levy a Fine to the Demandant, for he is then supposed to be Tenant to the Land. So a Fine or Release from the Demandant to the Vouchee is good, and yet they are not Parties to the Writ. But a Fine levied by the Vouchee to a Stranger is void. 3 Co. 29. 7 Ed. 4. 13. 5 H. 7. 40.
- Infant, Feme Covert. If an Infant or Feme Covert be to take by Fine, he or she needs not be examined, as when they are Cognisors. 24 E. 3. 62. 3 H. 6. 41.
- Persons civilly dead. But such Persons as are civilly dead, as Friars, Monks, and the like, cannot be Cognisees in a Fine, and therefore a Fine levied to such Persons is void.

(H) By what Names, Cognisors and Cognisees may give and take in a Fine.

- Name and Surname. THE Cognisors and Cognisees in Fines ought to be rightly called by their Names of Baptism and Surname.
- Two of one Name. And if there be two of one Name, it is most proper and safe to distinguish them by the Distinction of Elder or Younger, and the like.
- Names of Dignity. But Kings, Queens, Princes, Dukes, Marquisses, Earls, Viscounts or Barons, are seldom named by their Surname, but by their Christian Name and Dignity; as, George the Second, King of England, &c. Frederick Prince of Wales; John Duke of Lancaster, &c.
- Titles of Honour. But Knights, Esquires and Gentlemen, are called by their Christian Name and Surname, together with their Additions of Honour; as A. B. Bart. C. D. Knt. E. F. Esq. G. A. Gent. &c.
- By Courtesy. And the Addition of Bishop, Dean, Prebendary, &c. it is said, are rather used out of Courtesy than Necessity, for the Fine may be good without them. 21 E. 4. 8. 1 Aff. pl. 11. 7 H. 4. 22. 14 H. 6. 15. Brownl. 30. But they are usually named by their local Titles; as Thomas Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate and Metropolitan of all England; John Archbishop of York, Primate and Metropolitan of England; Robert Bishop of Winchester, &c. Edward Dean of the Cathedral Church of St. Paul London; William one of the Prebends of the Cathedral Church of the blessed St. Peter Westminster, &c.
- Corporation. A Corporation or Fraternity must be described by the very true Name of the Corporation, as it is named in the Patent, Charter and Foundation of it. 11 H. 4. 44. 12 H. 4. 20. 7 H. 6. 27. 37 H. 6. 29.

Some small Difference in a Name, it is said, will not hurt; as Margery for Margaret, Where a Difference in a Name will hurt.
Agnes instead of Anne.

Yet a Fine levied to A. and Sibel his Wife, where her right Name was Isabel, was held void. 1 Aff. pl. 11. Bro. 344.

But if a Fine be levied by a Man and his Wife, and the Wife is named wrong, it is said this Fine shall bind her by Estoppel. Bro. 344. Wife wrong named.

Yet if a Woman has two Husbands living, and with her second acknowledges a Fine by his Name; this Fine it seems is void.

But if a Woman levies a Fine with her right Husband, and by a wrong Christian Name, she is concluded by such Fine, and cannot avoid it during her Life. Bro. Fines 17.

1 Aff. pl. 7. 7 H. 4. 22.

If a Feme Sole after the Teste of the Writ of Covenant, & Dedimus potestatem, takes the Cognisance of a Fine of her, and before the Day in Bank to record and ingross it marries, yet the Fine shall be good and recorded by the Name she had when Sole. Feme Sole marries before Day in Bank.

But her Death at such Time will make the Fine void.

See before Chap 4. §. 5.

Death after Day in Bank.

(1) Of what Fines may be levied with Respect to the Estate of the Parties.

IF either the Cognisor or Cognisee at the Time of the Fine levied be seised of any Estate of Freehold in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, whether the same be by Right or Wrong, the Fine will be a good Fine in this Respect.

And therefore if one that is seised of Land in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, general or special, levies a Fine of this Land to a Stranger, this is a good Fine.

So if a Stranger levies a Fine to him of this Land, this is a good Fine.

So also a Fine levied by or to a Tenant for Life of the Land he so holds, is good in his Respect: But he must take heed of a Forfeiture in this Case; for if a Tenant for Life levies a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. to a Stranger, or levy a Fine sur Grant & Release to a Stranger, to hold to the Cognisee for a longer Time than for the Life of the Tenant for Life. However in this Case the Fine be a good Fine, yet this is a Forfeiture of Estate of the Tenant for Life, whereof he in Reversion or Remainder may take present Advantage.

And yet if such a Tenant for Life levies a Fine sur Grant & Release, to hold to the Cognisee for the Life of the Tenant for Life, or grant his Estate by such a Fine to him in Reversion or Remainder, or by Fine grants a Rent out of the Land for longer Time than for his own Life; in these Cases the Fine is good, and there is no Forfeiture of the Estate of the Tenant for Life.

So likewise if a Fine be levied to a Tenant for Life by a Stranger, who thereby acknowledges all his Right to be in the Tenant for Life, and releases and quits Claim to him and his Heirs, and goes no further; this is a good Fine, and no Forfeiture of the Estate of the Tenant for Life; for his Estate is not changed thereby and it may enure to him in Reversion; but if the Stranger says further in the Fine, Come ceo que il ad de son done, this is a Forfeiture. Skep. Touch. 13, 14, cites Stat. 27 E. 1. c. 1. 41 E. 3. 14. 44 E. 3. 56. 39 E. 3. 16. 17 E. 3. 62. 24 E. 3. 26. 1 H. 7. 22. 2 Co. 56. 9 Co. 106.

But if neither the Cognisor nor Cognisee be seised of any Estate of Freehold in Possession or Reversion of the Lands whereof the Fine is levied at the Time of the levying the same, but have only a Lease for Years, or not so much, the Fine is void, and of no Force as to any Stranger; however it may be good between the Parties by way of Estoppel.

And therefore if a Lessee for Years, or a Disseisee, or one that hath a Right only to a Remainder or Reversion levies a Fine to a Stranger that hath nothing in the Land; this Fine is void, or at least voidable, as to and by a Stranger thereunto, and he that hath Cause may shew that the Freehold Estate and Seisin of the Land was in another before and at the Time of the Fine levied, and that Partes finis nihil habuerunt tempore levationis finis, and by this avoid it.

And yet a Vouchee after he hath entered into the Warranty may levy a Fine unto the Demandant, but not to a Stranger.

And a Disseisor may levy a Fine to a Stranger that hath nothing in the Land; and this is a good Fine, for he hath the Fee-simple by wrong in him.

Also the Issue in Tail may be barred by way of Estoppel, by a Fine levied by his Ancestor being Tenant in Tail, although neither Conusor nor Conusee have any Estate of Freehold in the Land. Skep. Touch. 14. cites 5 Co. 123. 3 Co. 88, 93. Co. Lit. 251. 3 H. 7. 9. 5 H. 7. 41. 3 H. 6. 21. 27 H. 8. 4.

A Jointenant, Tenant in Common or Coparcener, may levy a Fine of his Part to a Stranger, and this will be a good Fine.

And so also it seems may one Coparcener or Tenant in Common to another.

One single Member of a Corporation Aggregate of many cannot levy a Fine of the Lands of the Corporation, as the Mayor or Master of a College cannot levy a Fine without the Commonalty, or his Fellows, &c. But such Persons may levy Fines of the Lands they are solely seised in their own Right, as other Men may do.

Such as have Estates of Freehold in Ecclesiastical Lands in the Right of their Churches, Houses, &c. as Bishops, Deans and Chapters, Prebends, Parsons, and the like, may not levy a Fine of such Lands, for if they do, it will not bind the Successor. 11 Co. 78.

He that has an Estate of Fee-simple in Lands in the Right of his Wife, ought not to levy a Fine thereof without her; and if he does, she and her Heirs may avoid it after his Death.

Also he that has an Estate of Lands given in Tail by the King, or by the Provision of the King, ought not to levy a Fine of this Land, for it is void against the Issue in Tail and the King.

Also he that has an Estate of Lands that are prohibited to be sold by Act of Parliament, ought not to levy a Fine of such Land.

Also she that hath an Estate of Lands of her Husband, or of any of his Ancestors assured to her for her Jointure, Dowry, or in Tail, by the Means of her Husband or any of his Ancestors, may not levy a Fine of this Land; for if she grants a greater Estate than for her own Life, this worketh a present Forfeiture. Shep. Touch. 14, 15. cites Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28, 36. 12 Ed. 4. 12. 6 Co. 55. Bro. Fines 121. 5 Co. 3, 4. Stat. 1 H. 7. c. 20.

Though a Fine levied by Lessee for Years, or at Will, be void, yet it is otherwise by one having a defeasible Right. Wil. 520.

A. seised in Right of his Wife of a Share in the New-River Water in Fee; they both make a Mortgage by way of Lease for 1000 Years by Deed without a Fine, reserving a Pepper-Corn Rent. The Husband died, upon which the Wife received the Profits, and paid the Interest. The Mortgagee brought his Bill to foreclose the Wife; it was held, that there ought to have been a Fine, it being the Wife's Inheritance, and therefore she was not barred. 2 Wil. 127.

(K) Of what Fines may be levied with Respect to Things.

A Fine may be levied of all Things, whereof either a Præcipe quod reddat, or a Præcipe quod faciat, or a Præcipe quod permittat, or a Præcipe quod teneat, lies: It may be levied of Things Ecclesiastical or Temporal that are inheritable and in esse at the Time of the levying of the Fine; So a Fine may be levied of an

A Fine

A Fine may be of a Rent-charge which had no Being before, or of a chief Rent, or other Rents. Rent which had a Being before, but not of an Annuity.

A Fine cannot be levied of Money agreed to be laid out in Land, and settled in Tail; but Money. Will. 130.

a Decree in Equity can bind such Money equally as a Fine could the Land. Will. 130.
The Exception must always be of such Things as will lie in the Writ, Regist. Origin. Of what the Exception may be.
228, 229, and of such a Thing as is comprehended in the Writ.

BUT a Fine levied of Antient Demesne Lands will not be good. 32 H. 8. c. 7. 8 Co. 145. But see the Stat. 11 & 12 W. 3. c. 14.
Fines levied of any Lands prohibited to be sold by Act of Parliament, are void. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 36. & 28.

(M) By what Names Things must be expressed in Fines.

Certain and apt Words must be used to express the Things to pass by the Fine; for Apt Words. a Fine levied de Tenemento, or de Hereditamento, or de duobus Tenementis, is void, or at least voidable for Error, because of the Uncertainty and Unaptness of the Words. Cro. Eliz. 196. Leon. 88.

For the proper Words to express a Tenement or Hereditament in a Fine is Messuage, as of one Messuage, or two Messuages, &c.

One Manor may also be Parcel of another Manor, and pass by the Name of that Manor. Manor. 20 Aff. pl. 54.

A Manor may pass by his proper Name without naming of the Town or Place, Towns or Places wherein it lies; as De manerio de D. cum pertinen'. 19 E. 4. 9.

Other Things may pass in Fines by the same Names they are granted in Deeds, as de scit. ambit' & præcinet' nuper Monasterii de D. scit. manerii de D. grangia de D. parco D. præbend' de D.

Also a Castle, Honour or Hundred, may be Parcel of a Manor, and pass by the Name of Castle, Honor, the Manor whereof it is Parcel; or it may pass by its own proper Name, as of the Castle of Hundred. A. with the Appurtenances, or of the Honour of A. 1 E. 3. 4. 2 E. 3. 36. 20 Aff. pl. 54.

A Reversion of Land may pass by the Name of a Reversion, or by the Name of the Land Reversion; itself. 43 E. 3.

A Foldage may pass by the Name of D. libertate unius Faldagii cursu ovium, cum pertinen' Foldage. in F. or de libero Faldagio ovium cum pertinen' in F. or de libera Falda.

Demesnes, Rents, Seignories, Courts, Pleas, &c. whereof a Manor consisteth, pass by the Demesnes, Name of Manerium cum pertinentiis. 3 Inst. 512. &c.

A View of Frankpledge, and such like Things, may pass by their own Names, as of a View of View of Frankpledge, of Goods and Chattels waived, of Felons, Fugitives, Outlawry, put Frankpledge. in exigend', Felo's de se, Deodands, Treasure-Trove and Strays, with the Appurtenances in M. Waifs.

When a Fine is but for the Presentation to a Church only, it must be of the Advowson of Presentation. the Vicarage of the Church of S. and not with the Appurtenances.

And of Vicarages endowed, the Writ must be of the Advowson of the Vicarage of the Vicarages endowed. Church of S. and not with the Appurtenances.

And where the Vicarage is not endowed, it must go under these Words: Of the Advowson Not endowed. of the Church of S.

And Parsonages, Rectories, Advowsons, Vicarages and Tithes impropriate, pass not by the Parsonages, Words, Of the Advowson of the Church, but by this, Of the Rectory of the Church of S. Rectories, &c. with the Appurtenances.

Highwood and Underwood may pass by the general Name of Wood, as Of twenty Acres Highwood. of Wood.

House-boot, Hay-boot and Plough-boot, by the Name of Estovers, as Of reasonable Estovers House-boot, in Wood, viz. in ten Acres of Wood of the said A. in D. Hay-boot, Plough-boot,

A Fishing may pass by the Name of Separali Piscaria in aqua de S. Fishing.

A Foldage may pass by the Name of de libertat. unius Faldagii & cursu ovium. Foldage.

A Chapel or Hospital will pass by the Name of a Messuage. 13 Aff. 2. Chapel, Hospital.

So by the Name of a Messuage with the Appurtenances, may pass a House, with a Shop, House, Shop, Curtilage, Garden, Orchard, also a Dove-house and Mill, as Parcel thereof. Bract. lib. 5. Curtilage, Garden, &c.
c. 28. §. 1. Plow. 169, 170, 171.

- Toft, Chamber. So by the Name of Cottage, a Toft, a Chamber, a Cellar, &c. may pass, and yet these also may pass alone by their own single Names de uno Messuagio, uno Curtilagio, &c.
- Part of intire Things. Part of an intire Thing may pass by the Words, Of one Moiety, third Part, or of two Parts in three Parts to be divided, as the Case requires.
So, Of the Moiety of all the Tithes of Corn and Hay of the Land called B. with the Appurtenances in H.
- Manor divided. But if an intire Thing, as a Manor or Messuage be parted; as if the Manor of S. be divided into two Parts, and the Division be so made as that the Manor for that Part be not extinct, and a Fine is to be levied of Part of it, it must pass by the Name of the Whole, as Of the Manor of S.
- Messuage, &c. divided. So if a Messuage and twenty-three Acres of Land be parted, the Part divided may pass by the Name of one Messuage and ten Acres of Land, and not, Of a Moiety of one Messuage and twenty-three Acres of Land.
- Mill. Mill is good without adding Wind, or Water or Corn, yet the latter is most usual. 44 E. 3. 13.
- Land how demanded. Land may be demanded by a certain Number of Acres, as of ten Acres of Land, twenty Acres of Meadow, twelve Acres of Pasture, &c. or by the certain Measure of the superficial Quantity thereof; as De Hida, Carucata, Bovata, Virgata, Acra, Roda, Furlingo Terra, &c.
- Wood, &c. In like Manner Boscus, Subboscus, Bruera, Mora, Juncaria, Mariscus, Alnetum & Rufcaria, may be demanded by the Number of Acres thereof. 16 Aff. 9.
- Turbary. Turbary may be demanded by the Name of Mora.
- Rent. Rent by the Number of the Things, or that which is to be rendred; as ten Pounds, ten Marks, twelve Shilling, Six-pence, &c. 21 E. 3. 44.
- More Acres contained in the Fine than intended to pass. But Note, That it is usual in Fines to comprehend more Numbers of Acres than are intended to pass; and this will not hurt, for in such Case no more shall pass than what is intended and agreed upon between the Parties. Poph. Rep. 105.
- How Things excepted must be named. And every Thing excepted ought to be certainly named, but it needeth not to say cum pertinentiis after the Thing excepted. 40 E. 3. 35.

(N) The Order of placing Things in Fines.

- MANY of these may be granted together in one Fine; as fifty Messuages, four Tofts, five hundred Acres of Land, and fifty Shillings of free Rent, as Occasion requires.
So of a Dove-house, three Gardens, 2l. 6s. 4d. Rent, and of the Rent of four Capons, one Pound of Wax, and the like, all in one Fine. 3 Co. 45. 6 Co. 67. 7 Co. 38.
- Words for the dividing of Things. Where the original Writ is of many Things, they must be expressed thus: Suppose it were of a Manor, House, Rectory, &c.
First, Of one Manor; Secondly, Also of a Rectory; Thirdly, And also of a Messuage; for the fourth Thing, And likewise; for the fifth, Moreover; for the sixth, And furthermore; for the seventh, And likewise; and for the eighth, And moreover; and if there be more, then to begin again.
- The Nature and Quality of the Things must be observed; as Land, Meadow, Pasture, &c. and the Place where they lie.
- The more worthy Things must be put first; as a Castle before a Manor, a Manor before a Messuage, a Messuage before Land, Arable before Meadow. Plow. 168. 7 H. 6. 39.
- Things general before Things special; as before Meadow, Pasture, Wood, Heath, Marsh, &c. must be placed Land, that being the Genus thereto.
- So Boscus must precede Alnetum, Salicetum, &c. as Wood is the Genus to Wood-Ground.
- For the placing of Particulars in a Writ of Covenant is in all Things as in a Præcipe quod reddat of Lands.
- And for this there is a Rule in the Register (Reg. Orig. fo. 2.) which is thus set down after this Manner:

Also intire Things must be set down before their Parts; as De manerio de C. & medietat. manerii de B. cum pertinen. &c.

Parts of Things excepted, must succeed those Things out of which they be excepted; and if there be divers Parcels in one Writ, that Parcel out of which the Exception is to be made ought to be last placed; as thus, De manerio de D. cum pertin. in C. except uno Messuagio, duobus Acris Terræ & Advocatione Ecclesiæ de C. &c. Regist. Orig. fo. 6.

And yet if this Order be not observed, but the Things be otherwise placed in the Writ, if it be suffered to pass, the Fine will be good enough.

(O) Of naming the Places where the Things lie.

THE County, Town, Parish or Hamlet, where the Things lie that are intended to pass by the Fine, ought to be certainly named.

A Fine is good although it name the Lands to lie in a Hamlet, or in a Town decayed; but it is good to name the Town wherein the Hamlet is, and that with Addition for Distinction, if there be divers Towns of the same Name in that County.

If there be two Towns Walton and Street in the Parish of Street, and a Fine is levied of such Lands in Street; in this Case the Lands in Walton will not pass by this Fine, Walton being a distinct Town or Village by itself; and although Street, the Parish, comprehends both, yet in the Fine the Lands in Walton shall not be said to be comprized, unless Walton had been a Hamlet of Street, and the Fine had been levied of Lands in the Parish of Street, then all would have passed well enough. Cro. Jac. 120.

If there be divers Towns of one Name in the same County, it is best to make an Addition for Distinction.

If a Manor extends itself into divers Towns, as A. B. C. it is the best and safest to name all the Towns, or none of them at all; as Of the Manor of S. in A. B. and C. or Of the Manor of S. with the Appurtenances; for if any of the Towns be omitted, none of the Manor in that Town will pass; but it seems that if the Manor be only named, and not said in what Town it lies, the Fine may be good. 9 E. 4. 6.

Also where divers Manors be of one Name, with Distinction of North and South, as North S. and South S. it is good in all the Proceedings of the Fine to express which of the Manors is intended to be passed. Cro. Eliz. 196. Bro. Fines 44, 91.

(P) Of the Præcipe and Concord of a Fine.

THE Præcipe is an Abstract of the Writ of Covenant, and is as a Title to the Concord, The Præcipe being placed before it in the Nature of an Exordium or Introduction; wherein are recited what the Parties Names, Parcels, &c. as in the Writ.

What the Concord is, is mentioned before.

See the Forms of both in the second Part.

Concord
what.

The Concord or Agreement may be made of an Estate in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or for Years; it may be also of divers Remainders, and that to them that are no Parties but Strangers to the Fine; it may be also single or double, with a Render back again in some Estate of the same Land or some Rent out of it; so a Concord may have in it a Reservation of Rent, a Clause of Distress, or Nomine pænæ and a Warranty.

And therefore if A. levies a Fine to B. sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. and B. by the same Concord grants and renders the Land back again to A. for Life without Impeachment of Waste, the Remainder to C. the Wife of A. for her Life, the Remainder to A. and his Heirs; this is a good Concord, and by this Devise a Jointure may be and is oftentimes made to a Woman.

And if a Man would have a Lease for Life or Years made of Land by Fine, the Lessee must by the Concord acknowledge the Lands to be the Right of the Lessor, (who is seised of the Land) as that, &c. and then the Lessor must grant and render the same Land back again to the Lessee (the Conusor) in the Fine for Life, or for a certain Number of Years, as the Agreement is, reserving a Rent with Clause of Distress, &c. and this is a good Fine, and a common Devise for this Purpose.

But if the Lessor be Tenant in Tail, it seems this Fine will not bind the Issue in Tail.

And yet if A. Tenant in Tail, and N. do by Fine acknowledge the Land to be the Right of a Stranger, as that, &c. and then the Stranger that is Cognisee doth grant and render the Land again to N. for Life or Years with Clause of Distress, &c. and then grant and render the Reversion to the Tenant in Tail; this is a good Fine, and will bar the Issue in Tail also, and will likewise pass the Rent and the Reversion to the Tenant in Tail.

So if a Stranger that hath nothing in the Land levies a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo que il ad, &c. to him in Remainder in Tail, depending upon an Estate for Life, and the Cognisee by the same Fine renders to the Cognisor for ten Years, to begin at Michaelmas following,

following, and dies, and all the Proclamations are made after his Death, and then the Tenant for Life dies after the Time the Lease is to begin; this is a good Fine, and so a good Lease to bar the Issue in Tail.

If A. B. and C. levy a Fine to D. and D. renders the Land back again to A. for Life, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to C. in Tail, and the Remainder to a Stranger in Fee; this, or any such like Concord as this, is good.

And if A. and B. join in a Fine of a Messuage to C. and D. and to the Heirs of C. who do grant and render a Rent-charge of 30*l.* out of the Land to A. for his Life, to begin after the Death of B. to be paid at the Feasts of, &c. *Proviso semper quod præd' concessio præd' annualis reddit' 30*l.* non aliquatit' se extendat ad onerand' personas dict' C. & D. sed tantummodo ad onerand' dict' messuag' tota vita ipsius A.* and then they grant and render the Messuage to A. during the Life of H. the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. this is a good Fine.

But in such a Fine sur Grant & Render, these Things must be regarded:

1. None may take the first Estate by the Concord but the Cognisors, or one of them.

And therefore if A. acknowledges a Fine to B. and B. renders and grants the Land to A. Habendum sibi & E. uxori ejus, and the Heirs of their Bodies; so if the Husband levies a Fine of his Wife's Land, and the Cognisee grants and renders the Land to the Husband and Wife, this is not a good Concord.

2. The Render of the Rent must be to one of the Parties to the Fine, and not to a Stranger.

3. A Man cannot reserve a less Estate to himself than Fee; and therefore,

If A. acknowledges a Fine to B. and B. renders to A. in Tail, the Remainder to himself for Life; this Remainder is void.

So if A. by Fine acknowledges Lands to B. and B. grants and renders the Lands to the Conusor in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Fee, the Limitation of this Estate in Tail to B. is void, and he can never have Execution of it.

So if A. acknowledges Lands to B. and B. grants and renders to A. for Life.

4. The Agreement must be possible and sensible; for if there be three Conusors in a Fine, and the Conusee renders to one of them for Life or Years a Rent, and grants the Reversion to another of them for Life or Years, rendring a Rent, and grants the Reversion in Fee or in Tail to the third; this is not a good Concord.

5. There can be no Condition or Clause of Re-entry for Non-payment of Rent inserted into the Concord; and yet some hold a Fine levied to one in Tail upon a Condition with a Remainder over, is good.

And such Concords as these ought not to be received; and if they be received, the Fine in most Cases may be avoided for these Faults; but if a Fine be received with a Condition inserted into the Concord, this is a good Fine, and not avoidable by Writ of Error or otherwise.

1. No single Fine can be with a Remainder over to any Person contained in it, but it must be to the Conusee and his Heirs only.

2. No Rent can be reserved upon a Fine that is sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. but upon a Fine sur Grant & Render, or sur Concessit only; for if one levies a Fine sur Conusance, &c. rendring Rent, this Reservation is void.

3. No single or double Fine shall be received with any Covenants or other Agreements than are before mentioned; but in all these Cases also when the Fine is received and levied, it seems it is good and unavoidable, and that only the Remainder in the first Case, the Rent in the second, and the Covenants in the last, are void, and the Fine good for the Residue.

A particular Tenant, as for Life, &c. cannot surrender his Term to him in Reversion or Remainder by Fine, but he may grant and release it to him by Fine.

One may grant his Tenements which H. doth hold for Life, and which after the Death of H. ought to remain to him, to H. for Life, rendring Rent with Clause of Distress, saving a Reversion; and a Fine of this Form is good.

Of reciting
Concord.

In the Concord the Particulars or Parcels need not, nor is it usual for them, to be recited over again, as in the Præcipe for the Writ of Covenant, (or in any other original Writ whereon the Fine is to be levied); but it will be sufficient to say,

And the Agreement is such, to wit, that the said A. hath acknowledged the Tenements aforesaid with the Appurtenances to be the Right of him the said B. &c.

And by the Words Tenements aforesaid, any Number or Quantity of distinct Things or Parcels will be well enough expressed.

But if the Præcipe be of intire Things by themselves, as Of a Manor or Manors with the Appurtenances in A. then you must say in the Concord,

And

And the Agreement is such, to wit, that the aforesaid A. hath acknowledged the Manor or Manors aforesaid to be the Right, &c.

Neither will Messuages named by themselves in a Præcipe, pass by the Word Tenements in the Concord: Also an

Honor,	Common,	A Liberty,
Castle,	A Warren,	Franchise,
Island,	Fishing,	Office,
Barony,	Rectory,	Bailiwick,
Hundred,	Tithes,	Fair,
Borough,	Oblations,	Market,
Knight's Fee,	Toll,	Passage,
The Site of a Manor,	Stallage,	The Moiety or Part of an
A Park,	Pontage,	intire Thing,
Prebendary,	View of Frankpledge,	Wreccum Maris ,
Rent,		The Advowson of a Church, or Portion of Tithes, must be particularly named in the Concord as well as in the Præcipe.

A Concord may be with an Exception of some Part, but this Exception must always be Exception in of such Things whereof the Writ will lie, and are mentioned therein, they must be certainly a Concord. named, and must succeed the Things out of which they be excepted; as,

Command A. B. that justly, &c. he perform the Covenant to C. D. of the Manor of D. with Appurtenances in C. (except one Messuage, two Acres of Land, and an Advowson of the Church of C. &c.

And the Agreement &c. that the aforesaid A. hath acknowledged the Tenements aforesaid with the Appurtenances (except before excepted), &c.

And in all these and such Cases where the Concord is not formal, the Judges ought not to receive the Fine nor suffer it to pass; but if they do, and the Fine be finished, it cannot afterwards be avoided by Writ of Error, or otherwise, for these Faults.

The Manors and Tenements contained in the Writ may be divided; as if a Fine be le- Dividing vied between A. and B. of two Manors, to be the Right of the said A. as that which, &c. Things. for which A. doth grant and render one Manor to B. for Life, with two Parts of the other Manor which N. holdeth in Dower, to have the one Manor, and two Parts of the other Manor to B. for Life, the Remainder after his Death to A. in Tail, and that after the Death of N. the third Part shall remain to another.

So if a Fine be levied of the Manor of G. with the Appurtenances by A. unto C. which A. acknowledgeth the Right in C. as that, &c. and C. grants and renders the same to A. in Tail, the Remainder of the fourth Part of the Manor towards the West to the said A. and her Heirs, the Remainder of another fourth Part towards the East to J. in Fee, and so of the other two fourth Parts, or incertainly by three third Parts, in Remainder to A. B. and C. in Remainder severally; and these are good Concords.

If T. and E. his Wife levy a Fine to R. D. and T. C. of divers Manors and Lands in A. B. and C. and in the Fine there are divers Grants and Renders, and one Grant and Render is of the Manors of A. and B. and the Lands therein to T. and E. and the Heirs of T. and in another Render 100 Acres, Parcel of one and the same Manors, is granted to E. in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of a Stranger; notwithstanding this Repugnancy, the Concord, and consequently the whole Fine, is good.

As a Concord cannot be without an original Writ, so it must pursue the original Writ, and cannot be of any foreign Thing, i. e. such a Thing as is not contained in the Writ, except it be consequent thereunto; as when the Writ is of Land, there may be in the Concord of a Rent out of this Land, but there may be more Things in the Præcipe than are named in the Concord.

The End and Intent of a Fine, which is to pass a Right, and limit Estates from one to another, appears by the Concord thereof.

Though there be divers Cognisees, yet the Right shall be limited to one of them only, How the Right is to be limited.

and the Estate limited to his Heirs only whose Right it is acknowledged to be.

(As thus) A. is Cognisor, B. and C. Cognisees. And the Agreement is such, to wit, that the aforesaid A. hath acknowledged the Tenements aforesaid with the Appurtenances to be the Right of the said B. as those which the said B. and C. have of the Gift of the aforesaid A. and those be bath renised and quitted Claim from himself and his Heirs to the said B. and C. and the Heirs of the said B. for ever. And, &c.

But the King's Tenant may acknowledge the Right to be in divers.

The

Release and Warranty.

The Estate shall be limited to his Heirs only to whom the Right is limited, and not to the Heirs of all the Cognisees, as in the Example before.

It is also said, that the Release and Warranty must be by one of the Cognisors, and from him and his Heirs only; for in a Fine from divers, the Fee must be supposed to be in one of them only, 21 E. 3. 33. but the Practice is generally otherwise.

And it is otherwise where a Fine is of Lands in Gavelkind.

Indeed in a Fine from a Man and his Wife it seems sometimes to that Purpose. The Form whereof see in the Second Part.

And so it may be from two others, the Fee being in one of them.

But generally where there are divers Cognisors in a Fine, the Release is from them and their Heirs.

And in these Cases each of the Conusors may warrant a-part if they will, and one may give a general Warranty, and the other a special Warranty; and it is the usual Practice to warrant a-part where there are divers Cognisors.

But for these Matters see the second Part, Title Fines.

Several Purchases in one
Fine.

Lands bought of divers Persons by several Purchasors, may well pass in one Fine, and then the Writ of Covenant must be brought by all the Vendees against all the Vendors, and every Vendor must warrant against him and his Heirs only.

And these joint Fines are proper when the Purchases are of small Value.

Lands in feveral Counties.

And one Concord may be of Lands in several Counties, and the Fine pro Licentia Concord of all extracted intirely; but there must be several Writs of Covenant returnable all at one Day. Dyer 227. pl. 24.

Of what Term a Fine
shall be.

A Fine shall be said to be of the same Term the Concord was made, (i. e. if the King's Silver be paid) as was resolved in the Case of Loyd ver. Viscount Say and Seal, in Mic. 10 Ann. where a Fine was thus:

This is the final Agreement, made in the Court of the King at Westminster in three Weeks from the Day of St. Michael in the 10th Year of William the Third, before Thomas Trevor, &c. And afterwards on the Morrow of the Holy Trinity, first of Ann. agreed and recorded before the same Justice.

Here the Concord was of one Term, and the Recordat of another; so the Question was, of which Term this should be said to be a compleat Fine. Per Cur, It is a Fine of the Term the Concord is of, and of which the Writ of Covenant is returnable; for the Concordia facta in Cur is the compleat Fine, the Concessit Recordat is only the Leave of the Court to enrol it. Vide 6 Co. 68. Hob. 330. 2 Vent. 47. Salk. 341.

Expofition of Concords.

The Conufance of a Fine, and a Grant and Render therein, shall be expounded and taken as a Charter or other Conveyance between Party and Party, because it is a Conveyance upon Record, and not as a Writ of Judgment upon Record.

And therefore if A. and B. by a Fine acknowledge the Manors of S. T. and W. to be the Right of C. and C. doth render the Manors of S. and T. to A. by one Render, and after by another Render limits 100 Acres, Parcel of the Manor of S. to B. this shall be a good Concord, and be expounded according to the Intent of the Parties, viz. that B. shall have the 100 Acres, and A. all the Refidue of the Manor.

If a Fine be levied to two Men & heredibus, without the Word [fuis]; this is void for Incertainty in a Fine as it is in a Deed.

If a Fine be levied Come ceo que il ad de son done, hereby a Fee-simple will pass without any Word of Heirs. And so also it is in Case of a common Recovery.

If the Lands be limited in the Concord of a Fine to B. for Life, and after to the Children of C. begotten, and C. hath at the Time of the Fine levied two Daughters only; in this Case the Sons and Daughters that are born after shall take nothing by this Fine; and no Averment of Intent will help in these Cases; and yet an Averment lieth upon a Fine of the Uses thereof, and of no other Matters, as upon a Deed.

(Q) In what Courts Fines may be levied.

THE only Court of Westminster for setting out Fines, is the Court of Common Pleas, and thither they must be certified.

Also by the Stat. 2 E. 6. c. 28. Fines may be levied in the County Palatine of Chester.

And by 37 H. 8. c. 19. of Lands in the County Palatine of Lancaster.

And by 5 Eliz. c. 27. within the County Palatine of Durham.

And if any other Persons than such as hereafter mentioned shall take Cognisance of or record Fines, or if they be levied in another Court, or otherwise than as is before set forth, they will be void, or voidable at the least, for Error. 2 Inst. 514, 515. Stat. 2 Ed. 6. c. 28. 37 H. 8. c. 19. 5 Eliz. c. 27.

(R) Before

(R) Before what Persons Fines may be acknowledged.

THE Persons or Judges before whom a Fine is to be levied are of two Sorts; for some are Judges only at the Time of the Cognisance and Certificate thereof, and others are Judges to whom the Cognisance is to be certified, and before whom it is to be recorded.

The first Sort are such as have Power to take such Cognisance either ex Officio, and by Virtue of their Offices, or by some Commission general or special granted to them by the King out of Chancery. West's Symb. Tit. Fines.

As all or any two of the Justices of the Common Pleas may in open Court take Knowledge of Fines, and record them by Virtue of their Office. Stat. 15 E. 2. Stat. de Carlisle. Jenk. Cent. 4. Case 28.

Or the Chief Justice of that Court may by the Prerogative of his Place take Cognisance of Fines in any Place out of the Court, and certify the same without any Writ of Dedimus Potestatem. Dyer 224. Crompt. Juris. 92.

And so also (it seems) may two of the Justices of that Court with the Consent of the Rest, or one of them with a Knight (but this is not usual at this Day). Stat. 15 E. 2. Bro. Fines 20.

Also Justices of Assise by the general Words of their Patents may take and certify Cognisances of Fines without any special Dedimus Potestatem; but at this Day they do not use to certify them without a special Writ of Dedimus Potestatem.

And Fines have been levied before Justices Errant. Dyer 224. Bro. Fines 120.

But formerly neither the Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, nor any other Judge of that or any other Court, could take the Cognisance of Fines out of the Court of Common Pleas without a Dedimus Potestatem as appears in F. N. B. 146. g. where Fitzherbert says,

"And if he who ought to levy the Fine and make the Cognisance cannot come for Infirmary, or other reasonable Cause, to make the Acknowledgment in Court, then he ought to sue out a Dedimus Potestatem directed to some Justice, that he may go to him and take his Cognisance, and certify the same to the Justices of the Common Pleas, and the Writ of Covenant ought to be sued out before the Dedimus Potestatem be returned into the Common Pleas, and the Dedimus Potestatem ought to rehearse that the Writ of Covenant depending in the Common Pleas is depending before the Justices; and the Writ shall be thus:

Rex dilecto & fideli suo W. Rikbil, &c. and so goes on with a Dedimus Potestatem, directed out of Chancery to the Lord Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas, to authorize and empower him to take the Cognisance of a Fine of a Plough-Land out of Court.

Upon which Brown in his Introduction of Fines, p. 38. notes, That there had not been any Occasion for a Dedimus Potestatem to be directed to the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, to take the Acknowledgment of a Fine, if he had a Power annexed to his Office (as they say every Chief Justice of that Court for the Time being now has) to take Cognisance of Fines ex Officio out of Court.

Also Cognisances of Fine are taken by a special Writ issuing of the Chancery called a Commission-Dedimus Potestatem, whereby Commission is given in divers Cases to a private Man for the Speeding of some Act appertaining to a Judge upon a Surmise that the Parties that are to do the same are not able to travel; and by this Writ upon such a Surmise, Power may be given to any Serjeant at Law alone, or to any Knight and Gentleman together, to take the Cognisance of such Persons, and they may by Virtue thereof take the same either of all or some of the Parties; and that (as it seems) in any Place accordingly.

But a Justice, or other Person being Cognisee in a Fine, may not take Cognisance thereof himself.

See more concerning Dedimus Potestatem, post.

And all those who have Power to take the Cognisance of Fines are to take great Care of whom they take the same, and whom they do admit to make such Cognisance before them. Their Duty.

And therefore they are to see that they know the Parties that are to be Cognisors, that they suffer not one Man to make a Cognisance in another Man's Name, and that they do not take any Cognisance from any Person prohibited by Law.

And if a Wife joins with her Husband in the Cognisance, the Judges or Commissioners must take Care to examine her apart from the Husband, whether she parts with her Right in the Land willingly, or by Compulsion of her Husband; for although she be made to do it by Compulsion of her Husband, yet she has no way to relieve herself when it is done.

And Judges for the recording of Fines are the Justices of the Common Pleas only, and therefore all Cognisances of Fines must be certified thither; for in that Court only, and not in any other of the Courts of Record at Westminster, or in any other inferior Court, or antient Demesne, are Fines to be levied. Judges of recording Fines.

But by special Grant a Fine may be levied in a base Court; and by Acts of Parliament Fines may be and are levied in the Counties Palatine of Lancaster, Chester and Durham, of Lands lying within those Places.

And if any Person do take Conusance of Fines, or other than such as before that have Power, or any other Persons or Judges shall record Fines, or they shall be levied in any other Court or Place than as before, such Fines are void.

At this Day any Justice of the Common Pleas, King's Bench, Judge of Assise, Baron of the Exchequer, Serjeant at Law, the Attorney or Solicitor General, any Apprentice or Barrister at Law, Doctor or Bachelor of Divinity, or other dignified Clergyman, Doctor of the Civil Law, Proctor, or publick Notary, Doctor of Physick, or Gentleman of the Country, (provided a Knight or Serjeant at Law be joined with them) may take the Acknowledgment of a Fine by Dedimus Potestatem; but with this Difference, that a Judge of the King's Bench or Common Pleas, a Baron of the Exchequer, Judge of Assise, or Serjeant at Law, may take the Cognisance of a Fine before the Dedimus Potestatem be sued out; whereas the other Persons cannot. Bro. Intr. 52.

THE Manner and Order of suing out or levying a Fine is thus: First, There is an original Writ sued out, and this may be a Writ of Mesne, Warrantia Charta de Consuetudinibus & Servitiis, or any Writ of Right, (for upon these or any other Writ whereby Land is demanded or may be recovered a Fine may be levied) but the most usual Writ whereupon a Fine is levied is a Writ of Covenant.

And notwithstanding it is the common Practice to take out a Dedimus Potestatem, and have the Conusance of a Fine before any original Writ be sued forth, yet the original Writ is always supposed in Law to precede the Dedimus Potestatem, and therefore doth and must evermore bear Teste before it, or else it is erroneous.

After the original Writ sued forth, there is a Præcipe, which is the titling of the Writ whereupon the Fine is levied, and the Concord and Agreement of the Parties, both which are fairly written (and that most commonly in Parchment); after this the Party or Parties that is or are to acknowledge and levy the Fine, is or are to come in Person before him or them that have Power to take the same Conusance, who are to take Notice of the Persons, that if there be any Woman that has a Husband amongst the Conusors in the Fine; they do examine her whether she be willing and do it freely without the Compulsion of her Husband.

After this, all the Parties that are to levy the Fine are to declare themselves before the Judges or Commissioners (having Power to take the same Conusance) to be willing to pass their Right in the Lands according to the Agreement; and to subscribe their Names or Marks to the Concord: And if it be taken by a special Dedimus Potestatem, it is to be returned and certified under the Hands and Seals of the Commissioners into the Court of Common Pleas, that it may be there recorded and finished.

FIRST make your Præcipe in Paper for the Curfitor of the County to make the Writ of Covenant, and having received it from him sealed, then write a Præcipe and Concord thereof in Parchment, and deliver them all to one of the Serjeants at Bar, the Cognisors being also present.

Then the Serjeant will desire the Justices to record the Appearance, which being granted the Serjeant says,

The King's Silver.

Then the second Prothonotary, or his Clerk, answers,

What will he give.

Then the Serjeant will answer thus,

What he will have.

Then the second Prothonotary, or his Clerk, answers again,

Draw the Concord.

Then the Serjeant will say, With your Leave the Concord is as follows, to wit, &c. reciting the Substance of the Concord, with Relation to the Lands in the Præcipe.

And after that, if any of the Cognisors be a Feme Covert, or married Woman, the Serjeant will direct her to go up to the Puisne Judge to the Bench, to be examined of her Consent to part with her Right in the Land, whether she does it freely, or by Compulsion; and then the Judge takes the Concord in Parchment, and reads her the Contents, and examines examines her privately apart; and that done, she delivers it to the Prothonotary to be recorded.

After it is recorded, you must pay the Fees of the Court, and then take the Præcipe and Concord, and annex it to the Writ of Covenant, and pass it through the several Offices as hereafter directed.

(U) How to sue out a Fine before the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas.

FIRST, Draw your Præcipe and Concord under it fairly on Paper.

Vide the Forms in the second Part, Tit. Fines.

Then ingross them in the like Manner on Parchment.

And you may also for Dispatch write the Caption underneath.

Then go with the Cognisor or Cognisors to the Lord Chief Justice of the Common Pleas, at his Chamber, and deliver your Paper or Parchment to the Clerk of the Fines, who will inquire of him that comes with the Parties to the Acknowledgment of the Fine, if he knows them, and see that he subscribes his Name to the Fine; which done, he will get the Lord Chief Justice's Hand to the Caption of the Concord, ingrossed in Parchment, (and also to the Copy thereof in Paper, which is to remain with the Clerk of the Fines).

Then carry the Concord in Parchment to the Curfitor of the County where the Lands lie, and there get your Writ of Covenant made, which (before it be sealed) you are to carry to the Alienation-Office, and there compound it, and get it entred and indorsed; then carry it back to the Curfitor, who will get it sealed.

This being done, you must make a Warrant of Attorney, &c.

See of passing Fines after Caption, post.

(V) How a Fine must be acknowledged before a Judge of Assise in the Country.

1. DRAW the Præcipe and Concord in a fair Hand upon Paper.

2. Carry the Præcipe and Concord so drawn, to the Curfitor of the County where the Lands comprized in the Fine lie, who will thereby make the Writs of Covenant and Dedimus Potestatem.

3. Then carry the Writ of Covenant to the Commissioners of the Alienation-Office, before it is sealed, (2.) and there compound the King's Fine.

4. Then get the Writ of Covenant indorsed, entred and signed by the Commissioners of the Alienation-Office, together with the Receiver's Hand thereto, for what Money is paid for the Value of the Lands.

5. Then carry the Writs of Covenant and Dedimus to the Curfitor, who will get them sealed. Qu. If not always sealed before Writ of Covenant is carried to the Alienation-Office.

6. Then carry them to the Clerk of the Fines belonging to the Judge of Assise, who will draw the Concord, (2.) and return the said Writs with the Judge's Hand to the same, and then he must put in his Warrant of Attorney, &c. as in other Cases. Bro. Intr. 47, 48.

This may be the regular Method, but in the Instructor Clericalis the Method is thus:

1. Leave the Præcipe and Concord with the Judge's Clerk.

2. And when the Judge comes to Town, bespeak of the Curfitor of the County a general Dedimus, directed to that Judge, and his Clerk will return the Substance of the Concord on the Back of the Dedimus.

3. Then get a Writ of Covenant, and compound it, and pass it through all the Offices, as in other Cases.

(W) The Manner of acknowledging and levying Fines before Commissioners.

WHEN the Cognisance of a Fine is to be taken in the Country, it is most frequently taken before Commissioners, or Persons authorized by a Writ called Dedimus Potestatem.

The Persons who may take the Acknowledgment of Fines are mentioned before; therefore it only remains now (as to Fines taken by Commissioners) to shew,

First, In what Cases a Dedimus Potestatem may issue.

Secondly, How to sue in out.

Thirdly, How the Commissioners are to take the Acknowledgment, and return or certify the same into the Common Pleas Court.

Fourthly, How the Fine must be transmitted to and allowed by a Judge of the Common Pleas.

And in the next Place to shew the Method of passing the same (as well as Fines taken by other Persons) through the several Offices till the same is compleated.

First, In what Cases a Dedimus Potestatem may issue.

If a Man levies a Fine, and is going into the King's Service, he may have a Dedimus Potestatem directed to a Justice to take his Acknowledgment. Bro. Intr. 40.

And of a Woman that is pregnant, &c. Ibid.

And the Writ must make mention thereof. Ibid.

If he in Reversion will levy a Fine of his Reversion to another upon a Writ of Covenant sued out against him, in that Case the Acknowledgment shall be taken in the Common Pleas; but if the Fine be not ingrossed till the Tenant for Life has attorned, (and the Fine is said to be ingrossed when the Chirographer has made the Indentures thereof, and delivered them to the Conusee) after which the Conusee shall never have a Quid juris clamat against the Tenant for Life; but the Course is, when he in the Reversion, upon a Writ of Covenant sued against him, makes Conusance of the Reversion by Fine, &c. then the Conusee thereupon shall have a Quid juris clamat against the Tenant for Life. And if the Tenant for Life be so infirm that he cannot travel, then he may sue out a Dedimus Potestatem directed to some Justice to take Cognisance, &c. and to certify the same into the Common Pleas. Bro. Intr. 40, 41.

And a Dedimus Potestatem shall be granted where the Lord by Fine grants the Services of his Tenant to another upon a Writ of Covenant sued out against him, if the Conusee sues out a Per quæ servitia against the Tenant, then if he be feeble he may sue out a Dedimus Potestatem to take his Acknowledgment, &c. and to certify the same, &c. Bro. Intr. 41.

But now the Course is, to admit the Defendant in a Quid juris clamat, or Per quæ servitia, to make Attornment after Plea pleaded; and that especially where he pleads such a Plea that he forfeits his Estate, if it be found against him, &c. then it is clear that he may make an Attorney after the Plea pleaded, as the Course is, and if he be adjudged to attorn, to award a Distringas ad attornand' against him, &c. F. N. B. 147. A.

If one has divers Writs of Covenant depending against several Persons in divers Counties, &c. he may have one Writ of Dedimus Potestatem directed to one Justice to take their Acknowledgments severally, and to certify them, &c. Bro. Intr. 39.

A Fine was taken by Dedimus, but it was not mentioned in what County the Lands did lie; the King's Silver was entred, but the Fine remained at the Chirographer's Office, not yet ingrossed, and the Conusor died; it was held to be a good Fine by Virtue of the Dedimus, and might be ingrossed as a Fine at Common Law, and not by the Stat. 4 H. 7. because if the Party had been living, he might have it with or without Proclamations, but being dead, no Election can be made. Dyer 254. Vide 4 Leon. 96.

A Fine was taken by Dedimus in Hilary Vacation of Carrill and his Wife, who was then about the Age of nineteen Years; the Writ of Covenant was dated in January, returnable Craftino pur', and the Dedimus was dated three Days after, and the Queen's Silver was entred in Easter Term, four Days before the Death of the Wife, (viz.) Die Veneris in septimana Paschæ; but the Fine was not ingrossed usque diem Mercurii prox. whereupon the Heir of the Wife moved, that the Fine might not be recorded; but adjudged, that because the Caption was well taken by the Dedimus, and the Queen's Silver entred, though the Wife died before the Fine was ingrossed, yet it was a good Fine, and should bar her Heir. Hil. 5 Eliz. Dyer 220. 3 Mod. 140. 2 Vent. 47. S. C. Hob. 330. 12 Co. 124.

Secondly, How to sue out a Dedimus Potestatem, and when it is necessary to sue out a Writ of Covenant at the same Time.

Make a Præcipe on Paper with the Commissioners Names underwritten.

Carry it to the Curfitor of the County, and at the same Time you may bespeak a Writ of Covenant, but that is usually let alone till the Dedimus is returned; yet if it be a Fine of the preceding Term, it is the best way to have a Writ of Covenant at the same Time; for if the Dedimus is not taken and returned in Time, you must be obliged to petition the Master of the Rolls for a Writ of Covenant returnable of the preceding Term.

The Dedimus must be sent down into the Country, the Præcipe and Concord annexed to it, and then to be taken and returned by the Commissioners.

If a Fine is acknowledged before Commissioners in the Country in the Vacation, and the Conusor dies before the Term, though no Writ of Covenant was sued out, or King's Silver entred, the Court will permit the Conusee to enter the Fine as of the Term preceding. 2 Ld. Raym. 850.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, How the Commissioners are to take the Acknowledgment of a Fine and Return, or certify the same into the Court of Common Pleas.

Deliver the Dedimus Potestatem to the Commissioners, with the Præcipe and Concord ingrossed in Parchment, with Wax and Seals unto it.

The Commissioners ought to take Care that they know the Cognisors, and their Fitness and Capacity to be so; and if Husband and Wife be Cognisors, she ought to be examined solely and apart, whether she does it of her own free Will, or by Threats and Compulsion.

The Cognisance being taken, the Commissioners must return the Dedimus Potestatem, as in Second Part, Tit. Fines.

And then annex the Concord to the Back of the Dedimus, and the Commissioners must set their Seals to the Concord, and their Hands to the Dedimus, under the Return thereof.

The Caption also must be entred under the Concord, and the Commissioners Names subscribed thereto.

If the Dedimus be to two jointly to do it, one of them in this Case ought not to do it; or if it be to three jointly, two of them ought not to do it, for it will be Error; therefore Care must be taken concerning their joint and several Power; so if one of the Cognisees be one of the Commissioners, and he himself takes it, it is Error. F. N. B. 146, 147. Dyer 220. Cro. Eliz. 249.

And after the Commissioners have taken the same Cognisances by Dedimus Potestatem, they are to certify the same truly, and the Day and Year when it was taken, and not another Time, and to return the Commission into the Court of Common Pleas under their Hands and Seals within a Year after the taking of the same Cognisance, at the farthest.

And if they refuse to return or certify it, the Party grieved may by a Writ called Cognitionibus admittendis, or a Certiorari, compel that Commissioner that hath it in his Custody, or his Executor or Administrator, if he be dead, to certify it.

But if any of the Cognisors happen to die before it be certified, then it cannot be certified at all, for it cannot now be made a good Fine.

And so also (as some hold) if the King dies. But if the King's Silver be entred in Paper or upon the Back of the Writ of Covenant, (as the Use is) and the Party dies after this; in this Case the Fine may go on, and will be a good Fine notwithstanding the Death of the Party.

If a Man has a Writ of Covenant against one to levy a Fine, and upon that a Dedimus Potestatem is directed to the Justice to take the Cognisance of the Party, and the Justice takes the Acknowledgment by Force of the Writ, and afterwards will not certify the same into the Common Pleas, then the Party may sue out a Certiorari directed to the same Justice, rehearsing the whole Matter, and how he had taken the Cognisance, commanding him by the said Writ to certify the said Acknowledgment into the Common Pleas, &c. and thereupon he may have an Alias and Pluries, and also an Attachment, &c. against the said Justice, if he will not certify the same, or return the Certiorari, and shew Cause why he ought not to certify, &c.

And if the Justice be dead who took the Acknowledgment, the Conusee may have a Certiorari directed to the Executors of such Justice to certify the Cognisance; and may also have upon such a Certiorari an Alias and Pluries, or a Causam nobis significes, &c. and thereupon an Attachment may in like Manner be had against the Executors of such Justice upon the Refusal to certify as aforesaid; by which it appears that though a Certiorari be sent to the Justice to return the Acknowledgment before the Justices of C. B. yet the Party who is Cognisee in the Fine ought to sue out another Writ to be sent and directed to the Justices of that Court to receive such Acknowledgments as are taken; the Forms of both which Writs may be seen in the Register among the Writs of Covenant. F. N. B. 147. B.

There is also another Writ of Certiorari directed to the Treasurers and Chamberlains of the Exchequer, to certify the Transcript of a Fine into the Chancery, and a Writ of Mittimus out of the Chancery, directed to the Justices of the Common Pleas for the Transcript of the said Fine, &c.

And there is another Form of a Writ of Certiorari, directed to the Chirographer of the Court of Common Pleas, to certify into the Chancery the Tenor of a certain Note of a Fine levied in a former King's Reign, &c. as appears by the Register. F. N. B. 147. D.

Fourthly, How a Fine must be transmitted to and allowed by a Judge of the Common Pleas.

By a Rule of the Court of Common Pleas made in the 13th Year of George I. it was ordered, That no Fine whatsoever taken and acknowledged before any Commissioners, by Virtue of a Writ of Dedimus Potestatem to them directed, should be allowed to pass, unless some Person present when such Fine was taken and acknowledged did personally appear before the Lord Chief Justice, or some other Justice of that Court, and was examined upon Oath, touching the due Execution thereof, and particularly whether such Person knew the Parties acknowledging such Fine.

Which Rule having been found by Experience to be attended with Inconveniences, and having not answered all the good Purposes for which it was intended; for Remedy thereof, and the better to ascertain the Practice for the future, in Hilary Term 17 Geo. 2. it was ordered by the said Court, That from and after the first Day of the then next Michaelmas Term, instead of an Oath made viva voce of the due Acknowledgment of such Fines, an Affidavit or Affidavits in Writing on Parchment shall be made and annexed to every Fine so taken as aforesaid, in which Affidavit or Affidavits the Person or Persons making the same shall swear, That he or they knew the Party or Parties acknowledging such Fine; that the same was duly signed and acknowledged; that the Party or Parties acknowledging, and also the Commissioners taking the same, were all of full Age and competent Understanding; that the Females Covert (if any) were solely and separately examined apart from their Husbands, and freely and voluntarily consented to and acknowledged the same, and that the Conusor or Conusors, and every of them, knew the same to be a Fine to pass his, her or their Estate or Estates; which Fine, together with such Affidavit or Affidavits annexed, shall be transmitted to the said Lord Chief Justice, or some other Justice of the said Court, for his Allocatur thereon, and such Affidavit or Affidavits shall remain annexed to such Fine, and be left with the same in the proper Office. And it was ordered, That all and every such Affidavit and Affidavits as aforesaid, except where the Person or Persons at the Time of their acknowledging the Fine are in Ireland or some other Parts beyond the Seas, shall be made by some Attorney or Attornies of the Courts of Westminster-Hall, or of the great Sessions in Wales, or of the Counties Palatine of Chester, Lancaster and Durham, and shall be sworn before a Person duly authorized to take Affidavits in the said Court.

And it was further ordered, That if any such Affidavit or Affidavits as aforesaid, shall be made and annexed to any Fine, and transmitted to the Lord Chief Justice or any other Justice of the said Court for his Allocatur thereon, before the said first Day of Michaelmas Term, the same shall be received and allowed instead of an Oath made viva voce of the due Acknowledgment of such Fine.

Which Rule having been found by Experience to have answered many, but not all the good Purposes for which it was intended; to make therefore the same more effectual and compleat, and the better to ascertain the Practice for the future, in Hilary Term 26 & 27 Geo. 2. it was ordered by the said Court, That from and after the first Day of next Michaelmas Term, in the Affidavit or Affidavits made in pursuance of such Rule, the Person or Persons so making the same should not only swear as they are directed by the said Rule, but also that the Fine was duly signed and acknowledged upon the Day and Year or Days and Years mentioned in the Caption; and if there should be any Rasure or Interlineation in the Body or Caption of such Fine, that such Rasure or Interlineation was made before the Party or Parties signed the said Fine, and before the Caption was signed by the Commissioners, which Affidavit or Affidavits should be annexed to the Fine, and should be transmitted to the said Lord Chief Justice or some other Justice of the said Court for his Allocatur thereon, and should remain annexed to such Fine, and be left with the same in the proper Office, as is directed by the said Rule.

The Form of which Affidavit you may see in the Second Part.

You pay for the Judge's Allocatur 4s.

(X) How to pass a Fine (after it is allowed) through the several Offices till it is finished.

HAVING before shewn how a Fine must be acknowledged at Bar, or before a Judge or Commissioner, and how to sue out and return a Dedimus, &c. it now remains to shew what is afterwards to be done to compleat the Fine.

The Fine being allowed, if the Writ of Covenant be not made out, leave the Dedimus and Caption (when taken by Dedimus) with the Curfitor, and he will make out the Writ of Covenant, for which you pay 7s. 6d.

Then carry the Writ of Covenant to the Alienation-Office to be compounded, and to have the Post-Fine indorsed, pursuant to 32 Geo. 2. c. 14. sect. 1.

After it is compounded, carry it back to the Curfitor, and he will mark how much the King's Fine is.

Then

Then carry the Writ of Covenant to Mr. Prothonotary Dickens's Office, to be returned, for which pay 1 s. 6 d.

But Writs of Covenant upon Fines of Messuages, Lands or Tenements, or Rehts issuing out of them, lying in London, or the Liberties thereof, or in Middlesex, whether singly or jointly, with Messuages, Lands or Tenements elsewhere, not to be returned until the Attorney prosecuting the Fine gives Notes in Writing to the said Clerk for the said Returns, or his Deputy, as well of the Name and Place of Habitation of the Attorney to the Fine, as of their own Names and Habitations, as also of the particular Street, Lane or Place where such Messuages, &c. are situate; and of the Persons Names who are in Possession of such Messuages, Lands or Tenements, or who are to pay the Post-Fines thereupon due to the King. And such Notes to be kept on a File, to be on Application to the said Clerk taken Account of by the Secondaries of the Counties in London, or Under-Sheriff of Middlesex.
Reg. E. 6 W. & M.

Next make out a Warrant of Attorney upon a Piece of Parchment (see the Form in the second Part) which carry with the Writ of Covenant to the Clerk of the Warrants, and he will file the Warrant and sign the Writ; pay him 4 d.

Then annex the Dedimus and Caption to the Writ of Covenant, and carry them to the Custos Brevium in Brick-Court in the Temple, who will indorse upon the Writ when Proclamation was made; pay him 3 s. 8 d.

Then carry them to the King's Silver-Office in the Temple to be entred; pay 1 s. 8 d.

Note, That till it was entred in this Office and the King's Silver paid, it was not formerly accounted a Fine in Law; but now it is said to be a late Resolution, that it is a Fine in Law from the Caption.

And when taken as above, not to pass the King's Silver-Office, and the King's Silver be recorded, unless Oath be made before some Judge of this Court of the due Execution, and of the Day and Year when each Cognisor executed the same, where a Rasure in the Day or Year shall appear in the Caption; and no Fine so acknowledged before such Commissioners in Case of such Rasure, to be received and entred by the Clerk of the King's Silver, before there be an Allocatur of a Judge obtained. And Fines taken and acknowledged before the said Lord Chief Justice or any Judge of Assise, or Serjeant at Law, if the Date of the Caption appears to have been rased, not to pass the King's Silver-Office, nor the King's Silver be recorded, before there be an Order under the Hand of some Judge of this Court obtained. And after any Fine has passed the said Office, and the King's Silver of such Fine is recorded, neither the Præcipe nor Caption of any such Fine or Writ of Dedimus Postestatem, or Writ of Covenant, by which such Fine is passed, must be rased or altered before there be an Order under the Hand of a Judge of this Court for doing thereof, and for amending all Entries made from such Writs first obtained. Reg. E. 9 A.

All Caveats and Orders for stopping Fines (illegally acknowledged) to be renewed every Term, and Copies thereof left with the Clerk of the King's Silver, who is to demand only 3 s. 4 d. per Term, or to be void. Reg. E. 29 C. 2.

From the King's Silver-Office carry it to the Chirographer's Office in Hare-Court in the Temple, and the Clerk who belongs to the County where the Lands lie will make the Indentures and deliver them to you. Then the Fine is finished.

(Y) Of Fines by or to Husband and Wife, or one of them.

IF the Husband without the Wife levies a Fine of the Wife's Land, she and her Heirs may avoid it after his Death; but if she does not make her Claim, &c. within five Years after her Husband's Death, then she is barred of her Right for ever notwithstanding the Stat. 32 H. 8. and so are her Heirs barred for ever. Dyer 72. Plow. 373. Lit. §. 731.

The Husband alone levied a Fine with Proclamations of the Lands of his Wife, and died, and five Years passed without Action or Entry by the Wife; adjudged that she is barred by the Stat. 4 H. 7. and that she is not aided by the Stat. 32 H. 8. because that Statute doth not mention Fines with Proclamations. 6 Ed. 6. Dyer 72. 8 Co. 72. Dyer 224. 2 Co. 93.

And if one seised of Land in Fee marries a Wife, and after makes a Lease of this Land to A. for Life, the Remainder to B. in Fee, and B. levies a Fine with Proclamations, and the Husband dies, and the Wife does not make her Claim, &c. within five Years after the Death of her Husband; hereby she is barred of her Dower for ever, notwithstanding the Estate for Life in A. but if the Remainder of B. had been put to a Right at the Time of the Fine levied, she might have avoided the Fine by Plea, Quod partes finis nihil habuerunt, &c. Anne Twist's Case, M. 18 Jac. C. B.

- And if the Husband levies a Fine of his own Land and dies, and his Widow having no Impediment does not make her Claim within five Years after his Death, hereby she is barred of her Dower for ever. 2 Co. 93. Dyer 224. Goldsb. 148. 3 Co. Inst. 216. 3 Leon. 221.
- Dower. If a Jointure be made to a Woman after the Coverture, and her Husband and she levy a Fine of it, by this she is without Question barred of her Jointure in the Land; but it is thought that this will be no Bar to her of her Dower in the Residue of the Land of the Husband, and especially where the Fine is sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. Dyer 358.
- Jointure. For that the Election to have Jointure or Dower is not given to her till her Husband's Death. Leon. 285.
- Dower. If Husband and Wife be Tenants in special Tail, and the Husband alone levies a Fine, and dies, the Wife may enter, but the Issue is barred. Moor 28. Case 90.
- Husband alone. If Lands be given to a Man and his Wife in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband, and the Husband alone levy a Fine of this; this will not bar the Wife except she suffer five Years to pass after his Death without making Claim, &c. and therefore if the Fine be to the Use of the Husband and his Heirs in Fee, he may dispose it as a Fee-simple, and his Issue hath no Remedy. Dyer 351.
- He and Wife Tenants in special Tail. And if Husband and Wife be Tenants in special Tail, and they levy a Fine at Common Law, and take back an Estate to them and their Heirs; by this the Estate-tail is not barred; for here she is not examined; and yet against a Fine levied by herself she shall not be remitted, for in this Case she is examined. Lit. §. 670.
- Heir. She is not examined but when a Right is to pass from her. If a Husband makes a Feoffment of the Land of his Wife upon a Condition which is broken, the Feoffee levies a Fine, the Husband dies in the fourth Year after the Proclamations, having Issue by his Wife, and after the Wife dies, and five Years pass, the Heir is barred to enter as Heir to his Father upon the Condition, but he shall have five Years after the Death of his Father as Heir to his Mother for her Right. Quando duo jura in una persona concurrent æquum est ac si essent in diversis. Plow. 397.
- Two Husbands. If a Woman during her first Husband's Life marries a second, and with him and by his Name acknowledges a Fine, it shall not bind her, because she is misnamed. 7 H. 4. 22, 23.
- Fine levied with second. And if she levies a Fine with her right Husband by a wrong Christian Name, she is bound by Estoppel during her Life, and the Tenant may plead that she by such a Name levied the Fine. 1 Aff. pl. 11. Bro. Fines 117.
- Misnomer. A Woman that has a Husband ought not to be admitted alone without her Husband in any Case to levy a Fine.
- Feme Covert alone. But if she be admitted to levy a Fine without her Husband of her own Lands, wherein she has a Fee-simple, the Husband may avoid it by Entry, or otherwise, during her Life, (or if he be Tenant by Curtesy he may do it after her Death) but if he does not, it is a good Fine, and will bind her and her Heirs for ever.
- Except she be an Infant at the Time of the Fine levied, and her Husband happens to die during her Minority; for in this Case (if it be not a Fine sur Grant & Render to her in Tail, or for her Life) she may avoid it during her Minority: And yet if in this Case the Coverture continues till her full Age, she may not avoid it unless her Husband joins with her in it.
- Baron and Feme together. But the Husband and Wife together may, and ought to levy a Fine either to dispose of her own Land, or to bar her of any Jointure or Dower upon her Husband's Land. 12 Co. 122, 7, 8. 27 Aff. 51. 3 Co. Inst. 515.
- In Formedon in Remainder the Case was, There were three Sisters, the eldest was Tenant in Tail, as to a fourth Part of the Lands, Remainder to the other two in Fee; the Tenant in Tail married, and then she and her Husband joined in a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. to the Use of them both, and to the Heirs of the Body of the Wife, Remainder in Fee to the right Heirs of the Husband; and this was with Warranty against them, and the Heirs of the Wife, who afterwards died without Issue; and then the two Sisters brought a Formedon against the Husband, who pleaded this Fine and Warranty; and upon a Demurrer it was objected against the Form of pleading this Fine, which was of a fourth Part, without saying into how many Parts to be divided; but adjudged that it is good in a Fine, being a common Assurance, but not in a Writ; then as to the Matter in Law, whether this Warranty was a Bar to the Demandants; and adjudged that it was, because the Husband warranted during his own Life only, and took back as large an Estate as he warranted, so that the Warranty as to him was destroyed as soon as created. Mod. 181. Leon. 114.
- The Husband and Wife covenanted to levy a Fine of the Lands of the Wife to the Use of the Heirs of the Body of the Husband on the Wife to be begotten, Remainder to the Husband in Fee; they both died without Issue; and in Ejectment the Question was, whether the the Heir of the Husband, or the Heir of the Wife, should have these Lands; and adjudged that the Heir of the Wife had the Title, because this Limitation to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, is meerly void; for taking it as a Remainder, there is no precedent Estate of Freehold to support it; for here can be no Estate for Life to the Husband by Implication, because the Estate is the Wife's Estate, to which in Law he is a Stranger; and taking it as a springing Use, then it must be executory, because it is to arise after a dying without Heirs of his Body, which the Law will not expect; but a Feoffment to the Use of T. P. and the Heirs of his Body, to commence four Years from thence, or to commence after the Death of T. P. without Issue, if he die without Issue within twenty Years, is good as a springing Use, because the whole Estate remains in the Feoffor till that Time.

2 Salk. 675.

If the Wife be within Age, and she and her Husband levy a Fine of her Land, they may reverse it by Writ of Error, and it shall be reversed as to both of them. Leon. 115, 317. Age.

Upon a Writ of Error to reverse a Fine levied by Husband and Wife for the Nonage of the Wife, they shall have present Restitution; for when they join in a Fine of the Lands of the Wife, all the Estate passes from her, and the Husband is joined only for Conformity; and therefore the Law permits the whole Estate to be restored to her though her Husband is living. 2 Co. 77.

The Wife was an Infant, and she and her Husband levied a Fine of her Lands, which was exemplified; they were both brought into Court by Rule, upon the Complaint of him in Remainder; and all this Matter appearing, the Fine was vacated in C. B. and the Exemplification was brought into Court and delivered up; the Vacat was quoad the Wife only, and he in Remainder was ordered to bring an Information against the Commissioners who took the Caption of the Dedimus, &c. 3 Lev. 36.

A. seised in Right of his Wife, made a Mortgage by Lease for 1000 Years by Deed without Fine, reserving a Pepper-Corn Rent; A. died, his Wife received the Profits and paid the Interest: On a Bill to foreclose the Wife, it was held that there ought to have been a Fine, it being the Wife's Inheritance, and therefore she was not barred. 2 Will. 127.

Where the Caption of a Fine is taken of a Feme Sole upon a Dedimus, and she marries Dedimus: before the Day of recording it; yet the Fine shall be engrossed and recorded as the Fine of a Feme Sole, because she had done all towards passing the Fine which was in her Power to do, and it shall bind her and her Heirs; and by the Opinion of some, her Husband shall be bound by this Fine, because the Marriage was the Act of both; but if she had died before the Return of Dedimus, then the Writ of Covenant had abated, because her Death was by Covenant. the Act of God. Dyer 246.

In a special Verdict in Replevin the Case was, a Feme Covert alone declared the Uses of Declaration of a Fine intended to be levied by her Husband and herself of her own Lands, and before the Uses. Fine was levied the Husband alone declared other Uses; it was agreed on all Hands, that the Uses declared by the Wife were void, and that the Uses declared by the Husband were only good against himself during the Coverture, and no longer. 2 Co. 56. Moor 196. And. 164. 4 Leon. 88.

No Fine or other Act of the Husband's only of or upon any the Lands that are the In-How the Act heritance of a Freehold of his Wife during the Coverture between them shall hurt the Wife, of the Husband shall but that she or her Heirs, or such as shall have Right to the Land, may avoid it; but the bind the Wife. Fine of the Husband and Wife together of her Lands is good, and shall bind her and her Heirs. Stat. 37 H. 8. c. 28.

She that has an Estate of the Land that was her Husband's, or any of his Ancestors, Forfeiture, assured to her for Jointure, Dower or Intail by her Husband, or any of his Ancestors, may Jointure, not levy a Fine of his Land to grant a greater Estate thereby than for her own Life; if Dower, &c. she does, it will make a present Forfeiture by Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20.

And if such a Woman accepts of a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. and by the same Fine renders back the Land to the Cognisee for 100 Years; this is within this Statute a Forfeiture.

So if a Woman that has Title of Dower, will before she be endowed enter and levy a Fine; this will be within the Statute, and a Forfeiture of her Estate, by 12 H. 7. Cro. Jac. 689. Leon. 206.

But a Lease for twenty-one Years by such a Woman Tenant in Tail by her Husband's Gift, &c. although it be not warranted by 32 H. 8. yet it seems this is no Forfeiture within 11 H. 7. Cro. Jac. 689.

(Z) Of Fines by Tenant for Life, Tenant in Tail, &amp;c.

IF either the Cognisor or Cognisee at the Time of the Fine levied be seised of an Estate of Freehold in Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life, in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, whether the same be by Right or Wrong, the Fine will be good as to Point of Estate.

And therefore if one that is seised of Land in Fee-simple or Fee-tail, general or special, levies a Fine of this Land to a Stranger, this is a good Fine; but if neither of the Parties have any Thing in the Land passed, the Fine in many Cases will be void and useless, and it may be avoided by this Plea, viz. That neither of the Parties had any Thing to do with the Land. 41 E. 3. 14. 22 H. 6. 43. 3 H. 7. 9. 27 H. 8. 4.

If a Fine be levied by or to a Tenant for Life of the Land he doth so hold; this Fine will be good as to the Estate of the Parties to the Fine; but he must take heed of a Forfeiture in this Case. For,

If a Tenant for Life levies a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. to a Stranger, or levies a Fine sur Grant & Release to a Stranger, to hold to the Cognisee for longer Time than for the Life of the Tenant for Life; in this Case though the Fine be a good Fine, yet it is a Forfeiture of the Estate of the Tenant for Life, whereof he in Reversion or Remainder may make present Advantage, and enter.

But if such a Tenant for Life levies a Fine sur Grant & Release, to hold to the Cognisee for the Life of Tenant for Life, or grants his Estate by such a Fine to him in Reversion or Remainder, or by Fine grants a Rent out of the Land for longer Time than for his own Life; this Fine is good, and there will be no Forfeiture of the Estate of Tenant for Life by it.

So likewise if such a Fine be levied by Tenant for Life to a Stranger, who thereby acknowledges all his Right to be in the Tenant for Life, and releases and quits Claim to him and his Heirs, and goes no further; this is a good Fine, and no Forfeiture of the Estate of the Tenant for Life, for his Estate is not charged thereby, and it may enure to him in Reversion.

But if a Stranger says further in the Fine, Come ceo que il ad de son done; this is a Forfeiture. 27 Ed. 1. 1. 44 Ed. 3. 36. 1 H. 7. 5.

The same Law is of such Fines for Tenant in Tail after Possibility, &c. and Tenant by the Curtesy, 39 E. 3. 16. and yet such a Fine of Rent out of the Land is no Forfeiture.

A Tenant for Life in Tail after Possibility, &c. or in Dower, may not by Fine grant and surrender his Estate to him in Reversion; but he may grant and release it by a Fine. 17 Ed. 3. 62. 24 Ed. 3. 26.

If neither the Cognisor nor Cognisee be seised of any Estate in Freehold, in Possession or Reversion of the Land whereof the Fine is levied, at the Time of levying thereof, but have only a Lease for Years, or not so much; in this Case the Fine will be of no Force as to any Stranger, however it may be good between the Parties themselves to conclude them by way of Estoppel; and therefore if the Lessee for Years levies a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, this will not be a good Fine, because he has no Freehold in him. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 45.

If a Lessee for Years, or a Disseisee, or one that has a Right only to a Reversion or Remainder, levies a Fine to a Stranger that has nothing in the Land; this Fine will be void, or at least voidable as for or to any Stranger to the Fine; and he that has Cause to except against it, may shew that the Freehold Estate and Seisin of the Land was in another before, and at the Time of the Fine levied, and that Partes finis nihil habuerunt tempore levationis finis, and by this avoid the Fine.

And yet a Disseisor may levy a Fine to a Stranger that has nothing in the Land, and this will be a good Fine, for he has the Fee-simple by Wrong in him; and if the Disseisee suffers five Years to pass without Claim, the Disseisee is barred. Plow. 353. 6 Co. 105. 3 Co. 87.

If Tenant in Tail levies a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations according to the Statute; this is a Bar to the Estate-tail, but not to him in the Reversion or Remainder, if he makes his Claim or pursues his Action within five Years after the Estate spent. Co. Lit. 372.

If a Gift be made to the eldest Son and the Heirs of his Body, the Remainder to the Father and to the Heirs of his Body, and the Father dies, and the eldest Son levies a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations according to the Statute, and dies without Issue; this shall bar the second Son, for the Remainder descends to the eldest. Co. Lit. 372. b.

If Tenant in Tail be disseised, or have Right of Action, and the Tenant of the Land levies a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. according to the Statute, and five Years pass, the Right of the Estate is barred. Co. Lit. 372. b.

If the Donee in Tail of the Gift of the King had levied a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations, according to the Form of the Statute of 4 H. 7. this had barred the Estate-tail, although the Reversion was in the King.

But since by the Statute of 34 H. 8. such a Fine levied by the King's Donee in Tail, the Reversion continuing in the Crown, is no Bar to the Estate-tail. Co. Lit. 372. b.

If Tenant in Tail be disseised, or makes a Feoffment in Fee, and afterwards levies a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations, according to the Form of the Statute, unto the Disseisor or a Stranger; this will for ever bar the Issues in Tail. 3 Co. 90.

Where the Issue in Tail claims by the same Title, and is driven to make his Conveyance to the Lands by him that levied the Fine; in every such Case the Fine will bar him. 9 Co. 138. Dyer 354.

If Tenant in Tail dies before all the Proclamations are passed, yet being once perfected, though after his Death, the Fine shall bar his Issue. 3 Co. 86.

So notwithstanding the Issue in Tail be deins Age, hors de Realm, de south Coverture, de non sane Memorie, or in Prison at the Time of the Fine levied, and the Proclamations passed, yet he will be barred thereby. 3 Co. 84.

Where the King is Tenant in Tail of the Gift of any of his Ancestors as Subjects, he may levy a Fine of such Estate, and bar his Issue, and upon a Grant and Render he may destroy the Estate-tail. Co. Lit. 372. 3 Leon. 76, 77.

A Fine levied by Tenant in Tail of the Gift of the King will be no Bar to the King, nor to the Issue in Tail, though it will bar all other Persons. Dyer 279.

Where one is Tenant in Tail of Lands, whereof the Remainder is in the King, and the Tenant in Tail levies a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations according to the Statute; there the Issue shall be barred notwithstanding the Statute of 34 H. 8. Moor, Case 258.

So where one is Tenant in Tail of Lands, (whereof the Reversion is in the Crown) who is disseised, and afterwards the Disseisor levies a Fine sur Cognisance de droit come ceo, &c. with Proclamations, according to the Form of the Statute, and the five Years incur without any Claim made by the Tenant in Tail; he shall be thereby barred himself, but not his Issue, according to the Statutes of 32 & 34 H. 8. Moor, Case 665.

A Fine may bar the Issue in Tail though he be not Tenant in Tail at the Time of the Levying thereof, provided the Land be intailed upon him. Cro. Car. 670.

If Lands be given to an eldest Son and the Heirs of the Body of the Father, (the Father being then dead) and he levies a Fine of this Land, this will bar the younger Brother. Per Cur', Trin. 21 Jac. C. B.

But if the Issue in Tail do not make his Title by him that did levy the Fine, there the Fine will not bar; and therefore if my Father be Tenant in Tail, and his Brother disseise him and levy a Fine, and he and my Father die, this Fine shall not bar me as Issue in Tail, because I do not make my Title to the Land by him; but if I suffer five Years to pass, and do not make my Claim, &c. by this Means I may be barred by the Fine. Dyer 3.

And if the Fine be levied of another Thing than the Thing itself intailed; as if the Tenant in Tail grants by Fine a Rent, Common, or the like, out of the Land intailed, this Fine will not bar the Issue.

So if a Rent be intailed, and the Tenant in Tail of the Rent disseise the Terretenant of the Land out of which the Rent doth issue, and then levies a Fine of the Land, this is no Bar to the Issue of the Rent. Plow. 435.

Although the Fine be a double Fine with a Grant and Render, yet it is within these Statutes, and will bar the Issue in Tail as well as a single Fine, so as the Grant and Render be of the Land itself, and not by any Profit appender out of it.

And therefore if Husband and Wife be Tenants in special Tail, and they levy a Fine with Proclamations, and the Conusee grants and renders the Land to them and their Heirs; this Fine will bar the Issue in Tail.

And if Tenant in Tail join with J. S. and levy a Fine to a Stranger, and the Stranger doth grant and render the Land again to J. S. for Years, and to the Tenant in Tail in Fee afterwards; the Issue in Tail is barred by this Fine.

So if there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder in Tail, and he in Remainder in Tail accepts of a Fine from a Stranger, and grants and renders to the Stranger again for Years with a Remainder over; hereby the Issue in Tail is bound. 3 Co. 353. Co. Lit. 353. Bro. Fines 118. Dyer 279.

If

If Tenant in Tail accepts of a Fine of the Land intailed from a Stranger, and then grants and renders a Rent out of the Land to the Stranger by the same Fine; this will not bind the Issue in Tail to pay the same Rent. Plow. 435.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment on Condition, and dies, having two Sisters inheritable to the Tail, and one of them levies a Fine with Proclamations sur Release to the Feoffee of the Whole; in this Case it is doubted whether the other Sister be barred of her Half or not. Dyer 117.

Although the Tenant in Tail dies before all the Proclamations be finished, yet when they be finished, as they may be after his Death, the Issues in Tail are bound by the Fine; for howsoever by the Death of the Tenant in Tail the Right of the Estate-tail descends to the Issue, yet when the Proclamations are passed, this Right that descends is bound by the Statutes, and the Issue cannot by any Claim, &c. save the Right of the Estate-tail that descends unto him. 3 Co. 86, 87.

Although the Issue in Tail be within Age, out of the Realm, under Coverture, Non compos mentis, or in Prison at the Time of the Fine levied, and the Proclamations passed, yet the Estate-tail is barred by the Fine.

And therefore if A. be Tenant for Life of Land, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Reversion to B. and his Heirs expectant, and B. levies a Fine to C. and his Heirs, and has Issue, and dies before all the Proclamations are passed, the Issue in Tail being then out of the Realm; the Proclamations are made, and after the Issue in Tail comes into the Realm and claims the Remainder in Tail upon the Land; in this Case the Estate-tail is barred for ever. 3 Co. 84, 91.

These Statutes extend to Fines levied by Tenant in Tail by Conclusion, and the Issue shall be bound by the Fine of their Ancestor unto whom they are privy in Estate and Blood, although Partes finis nihil habuerunt tempore finis.

And therefore if the Issue in Tail in the Life of his Ancestor when he hath only a Possibility; as if there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Grandfather be Tenant in Tail, and the Father levies a Fine of the Lands before the Grandfather's Death, and then the Grandfather dies before the Father, and after the Father dies; in this Case the Issue is barred by this Fine. 3 Co. 90. Dyer 279. Plowd. 435. So also if the Grandfather survives the Father.

But in Case of a Collateral Descent, if the Collateral Ancestor dies in the Life-time of his Father without Issue, this Fine is no Bar; but if he survives his Father, contra.

So if Lands be given to the Grandfather and his Wife in special Tail, and the Grandfather dies, and the Father disseises the Grandmother, and levies a Fine with Proclamations, the Grandmother dies, and then the Father dies; in this Case the Son is barred. Cur', Trin. 21 Jac. C. B. Godfrey and Wade's Case, Dyer 48.

So if Lands be conveyed in Tail to a Woman for her Jointure within the Statute of 11 H. 7. c. 20. and whilst she lives the Issue in Tail levies a Fine of the Lands; by this the Issues inheritable to the Estate-tail are barred for ever. 3 Co. 50, 51. 9 Co. 140.

So if Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment to be disseised, and after levies a Fine with Proclamations for a Stranger, hereby his Issues are barred for ever. Plow. 434, 435.

So if Tenant in Tail dies, and his Issue before his Entry (having a Freehold in Law only) levies a Fine with Proclamations; this shall be a Bar to his Issues, and to his Collateral Heirs and Brothers of the Half Blood. Cur', 21 Jac. C. B.

So if a Tenant in Tail has four Daughters, and one of them levies a Fine in the Life-time of the Father; this will be a Bar to her Issue for the fourth Part of the Land. Idem.

But in these and such like Cases where the Issue in Tail levies a Fine in the Life-time of the Tenant in Tail, the Tenant in Tail himself may after levy a Fine of the Land, and thereby bar his Issue, and the Conusee also to whom his Issue hath levied a Fine; and therefore in all these Cases it is supposed that the Tenant in Tail dies, and suffers the Right to descend to his Issue. 3 Co. 50, 51. 9 Co. 140.

If Lands be given by Will to one when he shall come to his Age of twenty-four Years, to hold to him and the Heirs of his Body, and he after his Age of twenty-one Years levies a Fine of this Land with Proclamations; this is a Bar to the Issue in Tail.

If a Disseisor makes a Gift in Tail, and the Donee makes a Feoffment to A. and after levies a Fine with Proclamations to B. that has nothing in the Land; this Fine will bar the Issues in Tail, and they shall not avoid it by pleading that Partes finis nihil habuerunt, &c. but it is no Bar to the Disseisee, for he may avoid it by his Plea when he will. 3 Co. 50, 51. 9 Co. 141. 10 Co. 50.

And a fortiori therefore, if a Fine be levied by the Tenant in Tail that has only an Estate of Freehold in Remainder or Reversion, it is good; as if A. be Tenant for Life, the Remainder mainder to B. in Tail, and B. levies a Fine; although this be no Discontinuance, yet it is a Bar to the Estate-tail. 3 Co. 84, 89.

But if Tenant in Tail has Issue a Son and a Daughter, and the Son, living the Tenant in Tail, levies a Fine and dies without Issue, and then the Tenant in Tail dies; by this the Daughter and the Estate is not barred.

So if the younger Son levies a Fine in the Life of the Father, and then the Tenant in Tail dies; this is no Bar to the elder Son.

So if Lands be given to a Man and the Heirs Female of his Body, and he has a Son and a Daughter, and the Son levies a Fine of the Land; this is no Bar to the Daughter.

So if Tenant in Tail has a Daughter, his Wife being with Child of a Son, and the Daughter levies a Fine, and after the Son is born; this Fine shall not bar the Son, for these (notwithstanding they be Privies and Heirs to the Blood, yet) are not Privies and Heirs to the Estate. Trin. 25 Jac. C. B. Godfrey v. Wade.

Although the Estate passed by the Fine be afterwards (before all the Proclamations had) avoided, yet the Issue in Tail is barred by it.

And therefore if Tenant in Tail discontinues in Fee, and after disseises the Discontinuee, and levies a Fine with Proclamations to a Stranger, and takes an Estate back by Render in the same Fine, and the Discontinuee before all the Proclamations pass enters and claims, and so avoids the Fine; yet hereby the Estate-tail is barred. 3 Co. 91.

And if Tenant in Tail enfeoffs the Issue in Tail, and after disseises him and levies a Fine, the Issue enters, and after the Proclamations pass, and after the Issue in Tail enfeoffs the Tenant in Tail which levied the Fine, and dies; it seems this Fine shall bar the Issues in Tail. Per Popham and Fenner Just. M. 37 & 40 Eliz. B. R.

A Fine is a Bar to the Estate-tail and to the Issues only, and is no Bar to him in Remainder or Reversion; and therefore when the Estate-tail is spent, this Bar is at an End.

And therefore, if an Estate be limited to A. and B. his Wife, and the Heirs Male of the Body of A. the Remainder to C. and A. and B. have Issue, and A. dies, and B. and her Issue, or her Issue alone, levies a Fine; this will bar the Issues of the Issues whilst there be any; but if they fail it will not bar C. in Remainder, except he suffers five Years to pass, and so be barred by his Non-claim.

So if Tenant for Life and he that is next in the Remainder in Tail join in a Fine; this is a good Bar to the Issues in Tail for ever as long as that Estate-tail shall continue, but not to him that is next in Remainder, nor to any other that shall come in of any Remainder in Tail or in Fee, nor to him in Reversion. Co. 76. Co. Lit. 372.

If Lands be given to A. and the Heirs Male of his Body, the Remainder to B. and the Heirs Male of his Body, the Remainder to the right Heirs of A. and A. bargains and sells this Land by Deed indented and inrolled to J. S. and his Heirs, and after levies a Fine of it sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. to him and his Heirs; by this the Remainder to B. is not discontinued, but it is a Bar to the Estate-tail by the Statutes, and causes the Estate of the Bargainee to last so long as the Tenant in Tail has Issue of his Body; but if the Fine had been before the Bargain and Sale, it had been a Discontinuance of the Remainder, but in neither Case a Bar to him in Remainder, unless he suffers himself to be barred by his Non-claim within five Years after his Remainder happens to come in Possession. 10 Co. 96. & Jac. B. R.

If there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to him in Tail, and the Tenant in Tail levies a Fine of this Land, hereby both his Estates are barred. Et sic de similibus. Co. Lit. 372.

But notwithstanding all this, if Lands be conveyed to a Woman in Tail for her Jointure within the Statute of 11 H. 7. c. 20. and she levies a Fine of this Land, this will not bar the Issues in Tail.

Or if Lands be given in Tail to any Subject by the King's own Gift or Provision, and the Tenant in Tail levy a Fine, this Fine shall not bind the Issues in Tail nor the King, but others it will bar; for these Fines are not intended within but excepted out of the Statute of 32 H. 8. but the King himself being Tenant in Tail of the Gift of some of his Ancestors, being Subjects, may levy a Fine of it to bar his Issues in Tail.

And in all Cases where a Recovery will not bar the Issues in Tail, there a Fine will not bar them. Bro. Fines 121. 6 Co. 55. Dyer 4. Co. Lit. 372. 8 Co. 17, 78.

The Husband being seised in Fee, covenanted to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, then to the Use of his Wife for Life, Remainder to the Heirs Male which he should beget on her, Remainder over; he had Issue only a Daughter; the Husband and Wife afterwards levied a Fine to the Use of the Daughter with Warranty, and both died, and the Warranty descended upon him in Remainder, who made a Lease to the Plaintiff in the Action; adjudged that the Estate-tail was not executed in the Husband and Wife; for if it had, then this Fine would have been a Discontinuance, which it was not, because there was an intermediate Estate for Life to the Wife, which remained as a separate and distinct Estate from the Inheritance; but if it had been an intermediate Estate for Years, there the Freehold and Inheritance had been united in the Husband simul & semel. Sid. 83. Stephens v. Bitteridge. Perk. §. 336. S. P. in the Case of King and Edwards, the Husband and Wife were jointly seised to them and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, so that the Estate-tail was executed in him.

Tenant in Tail, Remainder to the King, levied a Fine with Proclamations; adjudged that this Fine shall bind his Issue notwithstanding the Saving in the Stat. 32 H. 8. which speaks of a Reversion, and not of a Remainder, and here there was no Reversion in the King; it is true in the Stat. 34 H. 8. c. 20. there is a Proviso, that no Act done by the Tenant in Tail shall prejudice his Issue; but that must be intended where the King is Donor, as it appears by the Preamble of the Statute. Moor 115.

Formedon in Descender by the Issue in Tail for a Moiety of Lands in N. in Com. D. in which the Demandant counted upon a Gift in Tail made to one of his Ancestors in the Reign of Edw. the First; the Tenant B. pleaded in Bar, that the Great Grandfather of the Demandant Anno 30 H. levied a Fine of the Lands to the Use of himself for one Month, Remainder to the Use of his Wife for Life, Remainder to the Use of the Cognisor and his Heirs; that the Wife was dead, and that the Cognisor being thus seised in Fee, made a Feoffment of the Lands in Fee, under whom the Tenant now claims, and demands Judgment, if the Plaintiff should claim by the Intail against the Fine of his Ancestor; the Demandant replied, that at the Time of the Levying the Fine his Ancestor was seised but of a Moiety, and avers that the B.'s were seised of the other Moiety, and then sets forth how they became Jointenants at that Time, and always afterwards, and so Partes finis nihil habuerunt; and upon Demurrer to this Replication the Question in Law was, whether the Issue in Tail might thus aver against the Fine of his Ancestor, that Partes finis nihil habuerunt; and adjudged that he could not; it is plain that the Issue could have no such Averment at Common Law, for being the lineal Heir to the Tail, he is privy to him who levied the Fine, and is barred as the Party himself was until the Stat. of Westm. 2. which gave him the Formedon to recontinue the Estate-tail, by which Statute he might avoid the Fine, in respect to the Tail, until the Stat. 4 H. 7. was made, by which it is enacted, That both Parties and Privies shall be bound by a Fine and Non-claim; now ever since the making that Statute it hath been held, that the Issue in Tail is bound as privy; and though by that Statute there is a Saving of the Averment, that Partes finis nihil habuerunt, yet that extends only to Strangers, and not to those who are either Parties or Privies to the Fine; but even between these two Statutes there was another made which explains this Matter, viz. the Stat. 32 H. 8. by which it is enacted, That no Man shall demand any Lands against the Fine of his Ancestor; which Words are peremptory against the Issue in Tail, and bar him from any Plea to avoid the Fine, whether Partes finis had any Thing or not. Moor 250. 3 Co. 88. And. 165. Godb. 138. Leon. 75.

Husband and Wife Tenants in Tail, Remainder to the Heirs of the Husband; they had Issue two Daughters, which Daughters levied a Fine to W. R. then the Husband died, and the Widow, who was the surviving Tenant in Tail, made a Lease of the Lands for 100 Years to T. S. and died, under which Lease the Plaintiff in Ejectment claimed; and the Question was, whether this Lease was good against the Cognisee of the Fine, and adjudged that it was so long as any of the Issue in Tail were living; for the Widow might have disposed of the whole Estate if she would, she being Tenant in Tail in Possession. Sid. 62.

In Ejectment the Case upon the Evidence was, Tenant in Tail covenanted to stand seised to the Use of himself for ninety-nine Years, if he so long lived, Remainder to his first Son in Tail, Remainder over, then he levied a Fine to T. S. and whether this Fine shall corroborate the Remainder, or enure to the Use of the Cognisee, was the Question. Hale Ch. J. held the first, because the Tenant in Tail did not limit to himself an Estate for Life, but for Years; and therefore not like Blithman's Case, 3 Cro. 279. nor Beddingfield's Case 895. where the first Estate was limited for Life; but here it being for Years, the Remainder may arise to the Son out of the Residue of the Estate the Covenantor had to dispose of in his Life-time; and if so, it is executed in the Son and corroborated by the Fine, like Wingfield's and Duncumb's Case, 2 Lev. 84.

Tenant in Tail of a Rent issuing out of Lands of which T. S. was seised in Fee, levied a Fine of the said Rent come ceo, &c. and the Question was, whether his Issue was bound by the Fine; it was argued that they were not, because the Land was not intailed, but only the Rent; and that if Tenant in Tail of Lands grants a Rent out of them by Fine, this shall not bind the Issue, which is very true: Sed per Curiam, the Stat. 4 H. 7. and 32 H. 8. give a Tenant in Tail as large and ample Power to bar their Issues by Fine as Tenant in Fee had; therefore where Tenant in Tail of an Office levies a Fine of Lands which belong to to such Office, this will bind his Issue, and yet it was not the Land but the Office which is intailed. 2 Roll. Rep. 500.

Lands were given to the Grandfather and his Wife in special Tail; the Grandfather died, the Father disseised the Grandmother, and levied a Fine in her Life-time with Proclamations, then she died, and the Father afterwards died; adjudged that the Son was barred by this Fine, and yet the Father at the Time when he levied it had only a Possibility to inherit the Estate-tail. Co. in Archer's Case.

The Cognisor being seised in Fee, levied a Fine of Lands to two, and to the Heirs of one of them, who granted and rendered the same Lands to the Cognisor and his Wife, (who was no Party to the Writ) and to the Heirs of the Body of the Cognisor, who suffered a Recovery, with Vouchers in the Life-time of his Wife, and afterwards died; the Wife died, he in the Remainder brought a Scire Facias to have Execution of it; adjudged that the Grant and Render to the Wife was not void, but only voidable, because she was no Party to the Writ, and that this Recovery against the Husband alone did not bar the Remainder. 3 Co. 6.

Adjudged that where a Tenant in Tail levies a Fine, and dies before all the Proclamations are made, though the Right of the Estate-tail descends upon the Issue per formam doni immediately upon the Death of the Ancestor, yet if Proclamations are made afterwards, such Right shall be barred by the Fine, by the Statutes 4 H. 7. and 32 H. 8. which is explanatory of the Stat. 4 H. 7. for it is provided by that Act, That every Fine after the ingrossing of it, and Proclamations had and made, shall be a final End, and conclude as well Privies as Strangers, and it cannot be denied but that the Issue in Tail is Privy, for he claims as Heir by Descent; and if it should be objected, that by the Equity of the Statutes the Issue in Tail might claim where his Ancestor dies before Proclamations are made, for otherwise that Solemnity would be to little Purpose; the Answer is that by the Statute of the 4th of H. 7. every one had Liberty to levy a Fine according to the said Act, either with Proclamations or without, as at Common Law; and therefore the Act 32 H. 8. appoints that Proclamations shall be made according to the Statute 4 H. 7. not to enable the Issue in Tail to claim where his Ancestor dies before they are made, for that would be against the express Intention of the Act itself; but it was to distinguish such a Fine from a Fine at Common Law, where Proclamations were not requisite; and it would be very inconvenient if when such Fine is levied, either for some valuable Consideration in Money, or for the Advancement of his Family, or for Payment of his Debts, and the Cognisor shall die before all the Proclamations pass, that all should be avoided by the Claim of the Heir. 3 Co. 84. Co. 97. S. P.

Tenant in Tail bargained and sold his Land in Fee, the Bargainee levied a Fine with Proclamations, and five Years passed in the Life-time of the Bargainee; adjudged that the Issue in Tail is not barred by this Fine, but that she shall have a new five Years to make his Claim after the Death of the Tenant in Tail, for he is within the Saving of this Statute. Cro. Eliz. 897.

The Father being seised in Fee, had Issue two Sons, the eldest Son had likewise Issue two Sons by several Venters; the Father made a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to the Use of his eldest Grandson in Tail, Remainder to the Use of his eldest Son in Tail, Remainder to the Use of the right Heirs of the Father, who died, then his eldest Son died, and the Grandson, who was Tenant in Tail, levied a Fine, and declared the Uses to himself in Tail, Remainder to the Use of his Uncle, who was the younger Brother of his Father in Fee, and died without Issue; adjudged that by this Fine he had barred his Half Brother by Virtue of the Statutes 4 H. 7. and 32 H. 8. Leon. 3.

Husband and Wife were Tenants in Tail, and they had Issue two Sons; the Husband died, and his Widow married again, then she and her Husband, in Consideration of Money paid, did bargain and sell the Lands to her eldest Son, but no Livery was made; afterwards the eldest Son, in the Life-time of his Mother, who was the surviving Tenant in Tail, by Bargain, Sale and Fine, conveyed the Lands to B. S. and his Heirs for a valuable Consideration in Money paid, and then the said eldest Son died without Issue, his Mother still living; adjudged upon a Writ of Error brought to reverse this Fine in the Exchequer-Chamber, that it did not bar the second Brother; for though the elder Brother was inheritable to the Estate-tail, and if he had survived his Mother, who was Tenant in Tail, his Fine would have barred his Brother; yet because he was never seised by Force of the Tail, by Reason of his Death in the Life-time of his Mother, his younger Brother shall never mention him in a Formedon in Descender, and by Consequence his Fine shall be no Bar. Cro. Eliz. 314.

Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Tail; the Tenant in Tail in Possession made a Lease for three Lives, warranted by the Stat. 32 H. 8. and afterwards died without Issue, he in Remainder mainder in Tail, before he was in Possession of the Land, levied a Fine thereof with Proclamations; adjudged a good Bar to the Estate-tail, because by the Death of the Tenant in Tail without Issue, the Freehold and Inheritance was immediately vested in him in the Remainder. Leon. 268.

Tenant in Tail levied a Fine, and five Years passed, and then he died; it was objected that the Issue in Tail shall not be reputed privy, because he pleads per formam doni, and then his Right is saved by the second Saving in the Statute; but adjudged that though he is the first to whom the Right descends after the Levying the Fine, yet because he suffered five Years to pass without any Claim, he shall be barred. 19 H. 8. Dyer 3.

Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail to B. G. when he should come to the Age of twenty-five Years; the Tenant in Tail levied a Fine in the Life-time of the Tenant for Life, and before he was twenty-five Years old, and this was to the Use of R. W. adjudged that though the Tenant in Tail had nothing in the Lands till he was twenty-five Years of Age, yet this Fine had extinguished his Right, and barred the Estate-tail. 2 Leon. 36. Goldf. 107.

A Woman Tenant in Tail within the Stat. 11 H. 7. acknowledged a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, and by the same Fine rendred the Land to the Cognisee for 100 Years; it was adjudged this was a Discontinuance, for by such Practice the Meaning of the Law might be defeated; for if the Render of 100 Years should be good, it might be for 1000 Years, which would be as prejudicial to him in the Reversion as a Discontinuance. 2 Leon. 168.

Husband and Wife were Tenants in Tail, Remainder to the Husband in Fee, he died, and after his Death the Wife, who was now the surviving Tenant in Tail, and the Son and Heir of the Husband, levied a Fine, &c. to the Use of him and his Heirs, and afterwards she made a Lease of the Lands for twenty-one Years, and died; the Son devised the said Lands to G. D. and died; and the Question being, whether this Lease shall be good against the Devisee; it was adjudged that the Issue in Tail himself was barred by this Fine to avoid the Lease, and that though the Estate-tail was barred, yet it is not quite extinguished, but shall have a Being to support the Lease so long as any of the Issue in Tail are living. Bridgm. 28. Cro. Jac. 688.

Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself and his Wife, and to the Heirs Male of their two Bodies, Remainder to the Husband and his Heirs; they had Issue a Son and a Daughter, and then the Husband died, the Son levied a Fine to the Use of himself in Fee, and died without Issue; adjudged that this was no Bar to his Sister, because he had only a Possibility to inherit the Tail, which was wholly in his Mother after the Death of his Father, and she surviving both her Husband and Son, the Land so intailed shall descend to her Daughter immediately upon her Death. Hob. 332.

Grandfather, Father and Son, the Grandfather being Tenant in Tail made a Feoffment in Fee to W. R. rendring Rent to him and his Heirs, and died; the Father accepted the Rent; then W. R. who was the Feoffee, levied a Fine with Proclamations, and the five Years passed without any Claim; then the Father died, and the Son brought a Formedon; the Question was, whether the Father had extinguished his Right to the Estate-tail by the Acceptance of the Rent; for if so, then when the Fine was levied he had no Manner of Right; and if he had no Right at that Time, then the Son shall be barred by the Fine, and the five Years incurred in the Life-time of his Father, because if the Father had no Right, then the Son was the first to whom the Right came after the Levying the Fine, and he should have made his Claim within the five Years after it was levied; but adjudged that he was not barred, because by the Acceptance of the Rent the Father had not extinguished his Right and Interest in the Estate-tail, but only by way of Estoppel. Moor 301.

The Case upon the Pleadings in Replevin and Avowry was thus: The Husband made a Feoffment to the Use of himself and his Wife for their Lives, and afterwards to the Use of B. their eldest Son, and after his Decease to the Use of him who should be his eldest Son at the Time of his Death, in Tail, Remainder to C. in Tail, Remainder over in Fee; the Husband died, the Wife made a Lease for Years to B. who afterwards made a Feoffment to W. R. and then the Wife died, and C. levied a Fine, &c. to W. R. the Feoffee; then B. died, having Issue a Son, who entred; adjudged that the Feoffment made by B. and the Fine levied by C. had prevented the future Use to arise in the Son of B. and this upon the Authority of Dillon and Freyne's Case, Moor 545.

Tenant in Tail Male, Reversion to W. R. his Brother, made a Lease for three Lives, warranted by the Stat. 32 H. 8. and afterwards levied a Fine of the same Lands to one Taylor, with Warranty against all Persons, and died, leaving Issue only a Daughter; then the Brother died without Issue, the said Daughter being his Niece and Heir at Law; the Lease for Lives expired, and then Taylor, the Cognisee of the Fine, entred; the Question was, was, whether the Warranty in the Fine should make a Discontinuance in Fee, and be a Bar to the Daughter, or whether it was determined by the Death of her Father; adjudged that it was a Bar to the Daughter, for when her Father made an Estate for Lives, with Warranty likewise against all Persons, he gained a new Fee, and then when by the Fine he granted the Reversion with Warranty, that being annexed to the Fee binds him or her who had any Right; for the Reversion being devested and displaced, the Fine and Warranty enures thereon; and though it did not descend upon the Brother who had the Right of Reversion upon the Tenant in Tail's dying without Issue Male, yet upon the Death of his Brother it descended upon his Niece, who was the Daughter of the Tenant in Tail, and she is barred; for when her Uncle who had a Right at the Time of the Death of the Tenant in Tail, and did not prosecute that Right by a Formedon in Reverter, but suffered five Years to pass after the Fine levied, and without any Entry or Claim, it is a Bar, and he shall not have the Advantage of entering after the Expiration of the Estate for three Lives, because he had no other Title upon their Death than before, for his Title was by the Death of the Tenant in Tail without Issue Male, and then he should have brought his Formedon. Cro. Car. 156. Salvin or Sawle v. Clerke.

The Lord Ch. Just. Vaughan tells us, this Case is wrong reported; for it was, that the Warranty did bind the Daughter, because the Reversion was discontinued by the Lease for Lives, and a new Fee gained thereby, and so the Reversion was displaced, and the Warranty was annexed to that Fee, and passed away by the Fine and Warranty, which could not be; for the Lease was warranted by the Statute 32 H. 8. and then it could be no Discontinuance, nor no new Fee of a Reversion gained; and so is Cro. Eliz. 602. Keen versus Cope. Vaughan's Rep. 283.

Tenant in Tail had Issue a Son and Daughter; the Son levied a Fine in the Life-time of his Father, who was Tenant in Tail, and this was to confirm a Lease by him made, &c. and then he died without Issue, living his Father; the Question was, whether his Sister was barred by this Fine; and adjudged that she was not; and this depends upon the Exposition of the Word privy, in the Stat. 4 H. 7. and the Words Heirs in Tail, in the Stat. 32 H. 8. Now there are three Sorts of Privies; one is privy in Blood and not in Estate; another is privy in Estate, but not as Heir at Common Law; and the third is privy both in Blood and Estate; so there are three Sorts of Heirs, as there are three Sorts of Privies; but the first of these Privies and Heirs is not within either of these Statutes, as for Instance, If Lands are given to T. S. the Son, and his Father levies a Fine, he is neither Heir nor Privy within either of these Statutes; but he who claims as Heir at Common Law, or an Estate per formam doni, to or from that Person who levied the Fine, he is both Privy and Heir within these Statutes: But in this Case the Sister cannot claim as Heir to her Brother who levied the Fine, because he died in the Life-time of his Father, and had no Right, but only a Reversion whilst living; it is true the Sister is Heir, but not Heir to his Estate; and if so, then she must derive a Title from the Father; and if she is not in the Letter, she is not within the Intention of the Statute; for by that it was intended to bar the Issue in Tail, who claimed the Estate-tail as Heir to him who levied the Fine; for if any other Construction should be made, viz. if such Heir should be bound who claims the Estate-tail from another Ancestor, then if Tenant in Tail hath Issue two Sons, and the youngest levies a Fine, this would bar the eldest, which no Body will maintain. W. Jones 31.

A Contingent Remainder destroyed by a Fine will not be revived by reversing the Fine. Ld. Raym. 314.

(AA) Of Fines barring Estates in general.

A Fine at Common Law, or a Fine without Proclamations, was once a perpetual Bar to all Persons that had Right and no Impediment at the Time of the Fine levied, and that did not claim within a Year and a Day after the Execution of the Fine by Possession; but now this Law is changed, and this Kind of Fine will bar none but such as are Parties and Privies thereunto.

But a Fine by the Statute, or a Fine with Proclamations, is now much of the same Vertue and Force as a Fine at the Common Law was; for by the Statute of the 4th of H. 7. it is provided, That every Fine after the ingrossing thereof shall be proclaimed in the Court the same Term, and the three next following Terms, four several Days in every Term, which Proclamations so made, the Fine shall conclude all Parties, Privies and Strangers, except Women Covert, Persons within twenty-one Years of Age, in Prison, out of the Realm, or of Non sane memorie, (being no Parties to the Fine) so as they or their Heirs take their Action or lawful Entry within five Years after these Imperfections removed, saving to all Persons and their Heirs (other than Parties) the Right, Claim and Interest which they have at the

Time of the Fine, so as they pursue it by Action or Entry within five Years after the Proclamation; and saving to all other Persons such Right, Title, Claim and Interest, as first shall grow or come to them after the Proclamations by Force of any Matter before the Fine, so as they make their Claim or Entry within five Years after the same grow due; or if at that Time there be any Impediment as aforesaid, within five Years after the Impediment removed.

And by Statute of 32 H. 8. (which is an Exposition of this Statute) it is provided that all Fines with Proclamations levied according to 4 H. 7. by any Person of twenty-one Years of Age, of any Land, &c. before the Fine levied intailed to him that doth levy the Fine, or any of his Ancestors, in Possession, Reversion, Remainder or Use, immediately after Proclamations had, shall be a Bar against him and his Heirs claiming only by Force of any such Intail, and against all others claiming only to the Use of him or any Heir of his Body.

By which Statute it doth appear, that all the Parties to the Fine, Conusors and Conusees, whether they be Females Covert, Men de non sane memorie, or others, (Infants only excepted who during Minority may avoid it) and whether they have a Natural or Civil Capacity; and Privies, viz. Privies in Blood, as Heirs, whether they be lineal or collateral, or Privies in Representation, as Executors, Administrators, and all Strangers also, viz. all others besides Parties and Privies that have or pretend any present Right or Title, (except Women Covert, and the Rest that have Impediment that do make their Entry or Claim, or bring their Action within five Years after Proclamations had; and those Persons excepted also if they make not their Claim, &c. within five Years after the Impediment removed) all these are included, for their Right is extinct thereby, that they can have no Pretence to the contrary; saving to all others such as have no present Right at the Time of the Fine levied, and were excepted before such Right, Title, Claim or Interest, as shall accrue to them after the Proclamations upon any Trust, Gift in Tail, or other Cause, before the Fine levied; so as they make their Claim, &c. within five Years after their Right first accrued, if they have then no Impediment; or if they have, within five Years after they Impediment removed.

The Persons to be barred by a Fine are the Parties to the Fine, the Privies and Strangers.

THE Parties are really barred although they be Ideots or Non compos mentis. Co. Lit. 247. 2 Co. Inst. 516.

So the Fines of Men that have the Lethargy, old doting Persons, drunken Men, &c. (though they ought not to be received, yet) being received, are unavoidable and binding. 17 E. 3. 5. 78. 17 Aff. 17. Plow. 368. 4 Co. 124.

The Parties themselves to the Fine (if they be of the Age of twenty-one Years) are for ever bound up by the Fine, and have no Time given them by Claim to avoid it: But an Infant is preferred during his Minority; so that if he pass away his Estate by Fine, it may be reversed at any Time during his Minority, but not afterwards. 17 Ed. 3. 52, 78. 59 E. 3. 5. 2 Bulst. 320.

Such as are blind, deaf or dumb, naturally or accidentally, if they can express their Minds in Writing, may in some Cases be barred by their own, or by the Fines of another Man.

(CC) How Privies shall be barred.

PRIVIES, being Heirs and Executors to the Parties, (void of Impediment at the Time of the Fine levied or not) if they claim by the same Title that their Ancestor had that levied the Fine, are barred for ever by the Fine.

And by Privies also are understood Privies in Blood, not only the Heir at the Common Law, but Heirs by Custom, as Borough-English, Gavelkind, and the like, who claim as Heirs by Custom.

But by Privies are not intended such Privies in Estate as are Jointenants, Donor and Donee, Lessor and Lessee, or the like. 2 Co. Inst. 516.

That the Son shall never have Remedy upon a Fine levied in the Time of his Father, and the five Years after the Proclamations passed, but in Case where the Right begins first to be a Right in the Son. Popb. 113. Plow. 369.

Privies or Heirs in Estate and Blood, as he that is Heir to him to whom the Land doth or should descend, are within these Statutes, and shall be barred by the Fine of their Ancestor of that Land: And so also shall Privies in Estate, that are not Privies in Blood; as where one hath Land in Borough-English, and levies a Fine of it, hereby the younger Son is barred.

If

If my Father disseises my Grandfather of an Estate in Fee, and thereof levies a Fine with Proclamations, and first my Grandfather, and then my Father dies; I am now barred as privy, for that I cannot otherwise convey myself to the Lands than as Heir to my Father the Conusor. Dyer 3.

But one that makes his Title as Heir by another, and not by him that levied the Fine, may not be barred. Cro. Eliz. 377.

Also he that is privy in Blood only, and not in Estate also, is not within these Statutes, neither shall he be barred by the Fine.

As if Lands be given to a Man and the Heirs Female of his Body, and he has a Son and a Daughter, and the Son levies a Fine and dies without Issue; this is no Bar to the Daughter, for though she be Heir to his Blood, yet she is no Heir to the Estate, nor hath she need to make her Conveyance to it by him; but if the Father had levied, it would have been otherwise. Trin. 21 Jac. C. B. Godfrey's Case.

If Husband and Wife, Tenants in special Tail, have Issue, and the Wife dies, and the Husband marries another Wife, and hath Issue, and levies a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. and by the same Fine takes an Estate in special Tail, the Remainder over, &c. and dies; in this Case the Issue by the first Wife is barred, for that he is privy in Blood notwithstanding the Continuance of Possession in the Husband. Dyer 354.

So if Lands be given to Husband and Wife in special Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband in Fee, and he alone levies a Fine with Proclamations of it; by this the Issue in Tail may be barred, for he cannot otherwise convey himself to the Tail and Descent than as Heir of the Body of Father and Mother. Dyer 3, 251. Bro. Fines 109.

(DD) How Strangers shall be barred.

THE Strangers that are to be concluded by a Fine are,

First, All Persons whatsoever that have present Right and no Impediment, who are barred by five Years after Proclamations, if they make not their Claim within that Time; and so as well Tenant for Years, Tenant by Statute Merchant and Staple, Copyholders and Customaryholders, as Tenant of Freehold and Inheritance, if they be out of Possession or Seisin at the Time of the Fine levied, are barred; for a Fine levied by a Stranger (by the Common Law) cannot Bar him that is in Possession. 2 Co. Inst. 517.

Secondly, Or they are such as have present Right and have Impediments, as Infants, Persons in Prison, Non sane memorie, &c.

And these are barred if they make not their Claim, &c. within five Years after the Impediment removed.

And if after Proclamation their Impediments be wholly removed, and afterwards they fall into the like again and die, their Heirs shall not have five Years claim anew, but the first Years begun immediately after the first Removal shall run on to five Years. Plow. 375.

Thirdly, Or they are such as have no present but future Right upon Cause precedent; and then such Strangers to Fines being void of Impediments, whose Right or Title cometh or descendeth to them after the Proclamations, have five Years after the coming of such Right.

1 R. 3. 7. 4 H. 7. 24. Plowd. 378. a. b.

So he in Remainder or Reversion, depending upon an Estate of Freehold after the Reversion or Remainder accrueth, hath five Years to enter; and if he die before Entry, his Heir hath only five Years to enter after the Death of the particular Tenant. Plow. 374. a. b.

But if these have Impediments, they shall have five Years after the Impediment removed. Plow. 364. a.

Fourthly, Or they are such as have neither present nor future Right at the Levying of the Fine by reason of any Matter had before the Fine, whose Right grows either intirely after the Proclamations, or partly before and partly after.

And these may enter and claim when they please within the Time of Prescription; as if the Father dies seised, his eldest Son being professed in Religion, and the younger Son entreth, and is disseised, and a Fine with Proclamations levied, and after the eldest Son is deraigned, i. e. discharged of his Profession or Religion; it seemeth he is bound to no Time, but may claim when he will. Plow. 3. Stowell's Case.

Note; If a single Woman, being a Stranger to the Fine, having present Right, takes an Husband who suffereth the five Years to incur, she is for ever barred. Plow. 366. a.

They that have Right of a Reversion or Remainder expectant upon an Estate-tail or for Life, shall have five Years after their Title comes unto them to make their Claim. 2 Co. Inst. 518.

Civil Bodies and Corporations having an absolute Estate so as to maintain a Writ of Right, as Mayor and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter, &c. are barred presently as Privies, and within five Years as Strangers; as if one disseises such a Corporation of Land belonging to it, and after levies a Fine of it with Proclamations, and they claim not, &c. within the five Years, they are barred. Plow. 538, 537.

But in such Case of a Fine levied by a Disseisor or other, every Successor or Successors, Head of the Corporation, shall have a new five Years to make their Claim. Plow. 539.

So every Officer that hath Land appertaining to his Office, as Parker, Forester, Keeper of a Gaol, &c. will be barred by Non-claim after a Fine levied by a Disseisor, and after five Years past after the Proclamations: But the Successor shall not be bound, if he also shall not suffer five Years to pass in his Time.

So that these and Corporations are by their Laches barred only for their own Time. Plow. 537.

Deans, Bishops, Masters of Hospitals, Parsons, Vicars, Prebendaries, &c. which may not have a Right, are not barred by five Years; for they are restrained by divers Statutes to levy a Fine to conclude their Successors of such Land as they hold in Right of their Churches, &c. nor will the Non-claim of such prejudice their Successors. Plow. 138, 375, 378, 538. a.

And it is a Rule, that such Persons as may not have a Writ of Right, but either a juris utrum, or Sine assensu capituli, are not barred by such Fines if the Patron and Ordinary join not with them. F. N. B. 118.

By the antient Common Law, he that had Right was to make his Claim, &c. within the Year and a Day after the Fine levied, and the Execution thereof, or he was barred for ever.

And if such a Fine without Proclamations be now levied, he that hath Right may make his Claim or Entry, &c. at any Time to prevent the Bar. Co. Lit. 254, 262.

(EE) Persons having Natural or Civil Capacities how barred.

AND Parties, Privies and Strangers to Fines that are barred thereby, are such as have Natural Capacities or Civil; for both these are barred.

And therefore it is held, that if such a Corporation as has an absolute Estate and Authority of their Possessions, so as they may maintain a Writ of Right thereof, as Mayor and Commonalty, Dean and Chapter, &c. levy a Fine of their Lands, they and their Successors are barred presently; but if a Bishop, Dean or Prebend, with the Assent of the Dean and Chapter; or a Parson and Vicar, without Assent of the Patron and Ordinary, had levied a Fine; this would not have barred the Successor; neither will it bar now with their Assent, for they are restrained by divers Statutes.

So also such Persons are barred by the Fines that are levied by others if they make not their Claim in Time; as if one disseise a Corporation Aggregate of Land belonging to their Corporation, and after levies a Fine of it with Proclamations, and they do not make their Claim, &c. within five Years, thereby they are barred. Plow. 538, 337, 375, 378.

(FF) Heirs when barred.

WHERE the Ancestor is barred by the Fine, there for the most part the Heir is barred also.

And therefore, if Tenant in Tail be disseised, and the Disseisor levies a Fine with Proclamations, and the Tenant in Tail suffers five Years to pass without Claim, &c. hereby he and his Issues are barred for ever, so that the Heir suffers for the Laches of his Ancestor. 9 Co. 105.

(GG) Where a Disseisee, &c. may be barred by a Fine of the Disseisor, &c.

IF a Man disseises me of the Land I have in Fee-simple or Fee-tail, and after levies a Fine of this Land with Proclamations, and I do not make my Claim, &c. within five Years after the Proclamations had, hereby I and my Heirs are barred for ever of this Land.

And if I being such a Tenant in Fee make a Lease for Years, or be Lord of any Copyhold Estate, and my Lessee for Years, or Copyholder in Fee, or for Life, be ousted, and I thereby disseised, and the Disseisor levies a Fine, and neither I nor my Lessee for Years, or Copyholder, do make any Claim, &c. within five Years after the Fine levied; hereby we are all barred for ever.

And

And if one disseises me of Land, and after makes a Lease for Life of it, and then levies a Fine with Proclamations, and I suffer five Years to pass; hereby I am barred both of the Reversion and of the Estate for Life also. 9 Co. 105. 3 Co. 87. Co. Lit. 698.

If Tenant for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee, and the Feoffee levies a Fine with Proclamations, and he in Reversion or Remainder does not make his Claim, &c. within five Years; hereby he is barred for ever. Plow. in Stowel's Case.

If I pretend Right or Title to Land, and enter upon it, and put him out that is in Possession, and then I levy a Fine with Proclamations with an Intent to bar him, and he does not make his Claim, &c. within five Years; hereby he is barred for ever, although he had the true Right, and I no Right at all. 3 Co. 79.

If I purchase Land of H. and after perceiving my Title defeasible, and that a Stranger has the Right of the Land, I do levy a Fine to, or take a Fine from another with Proclamations, with Intent and of Purpose to bar him that hath Right, and he suffers five Years to pass, and doth not make his Claim, &c. hereby he is barred of his Right for ever; and in these and such like Cases there is no Relief to be had in Equity. 3 Co. 79. Doll. & Stud. 83, 855.

Fines may operate by Disseisin where they can have no other Interpretation.

In the Case of Piggot vers. The Earl of Salisbury, Mich. 28 Car. 2. it is said to be agreed, that Fines may work a Disseisin when they can have no other Interpretation; as if Tenant pur autre vie levies a Fine to a Stranger for his own Life, it is more than such a Tenant could do, because his Estate was only during the Life of another, and no longer.

So a Fine sur Conusance de droit, &c. implies a Fee, which being levied by any one who has but a particular Estate, will make a Disseisin. 2 Mod. 112.

But in the same Case, 2 Mod. 117. it is said, that in Case of a Fine a Lease for Years is an Impediment or Displacing of the Reversion.

For if Tenant in Tail expectant upon a Lease for Years levies a Fine, it is a Discontinuance of the Tail; and notwithstanding the Lease, the Fine has such an Operation upon the Freehold, that it displaces the Reversion in Fee. Co. Lit. 32.

Where one is in Possession by Virtue of a particular Estate for Life, &c. and accepts a greater Estate, it shall not divest the Estate of those in Remainder for Life, so as the same may be barred by Fine and Non-claim.

This Rule seems to be cleared arguendo in the Case of Smith and Pierce, Pasch. 4 Jac. 2. B. R. where a Term for Years was devised for Payment of Debts, with a Remainder over in Tail; he in Remainder entred and levied a Fine, and settled the Land on his Wife for Life, and died; the Wife survived, and the Debts not paid; and it was insisted the said Term was not barred by this Fine and Non-claim; sed adjournatur.

But in the Argument of the same Case this further Case seems to be proved, viz. where a Lease is for 100 Years in Trust to attend the Inheritance, and Cestuy que Trust being in Possession, demises to another for fifty Years, and levies a Fine, and five Years pass, the Term of 100 Years is divested by such Fine and Non-claim, and is turned to a Right, and so barred. Vide 3 Mod. 195, 196.

(HH) Where a Fine shall be a Bar as to one Person and not to another; or as to one Part of the Land and not to another.

IF there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Tail, and the Tenant in Tail bargains and sells the Land by Deed indented and inrolled, and after levies a Fine with Proclamations to the Bargainee sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. in this Case as to the Tenant in Tail and his Issue, this is a Bar, but as to all others it is no Bar although they never make any Claim, &c.

So if Tenant in Tail levies a Fine of his intailed Land; this is a Bar as to him and his Issue, but as to all others it is no Bar at all, and therefore he in Remainder or Reversion in their Times may enter notwithstanding. 10 Co. 95. 9 Co. 106.

So if Lands be intailed to the Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Husband alone levies a Fine of this Land; this as to the Husband, Tenant in Tail, and his Issue, is a Bar, but not as to the Wife, for she shall be Tenant in Tail still; and yet it seems she may not suffer a Recovery of this Land afterwards.

So if a Man attainted of Felony or Treason levies a Fine of his Land; this as to the King and Lord of whom the Land is held is void, and is no Bar to their Advantage and Title of Forfeiture, but as to all others it is a good Bar. 9 Co. 140, 142.

So if one levies a Fine of Lands in Antient Demesne, and of other Lands together; this as to the Lands in Antient Demesne is not good, nor any Bar at all, but as to the other Lands it is a good Bar. 7 H. 4. 44. F. N. B. 98.

(II) What Estate may be barred by a Fine.

THE Estates that shall be barred by Fine are Estates by the Common Law, or by Copyhold, in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life or for Years; the Estates also of Tenant by Statute, Elegit, and of Gardians in Chivalry, and of Executors that have Land until Debts and Legacies be paid.

And therefore if one enters upon and puts out a Copyholder of Land, and levies a Fine thereof, and the Copyholder suffers five Years to pass, and makes no Claim, &c. the Copyholder and his Lord both are hereby barred for ever.

And if a Lease be made for Years, and the Lessor, or another before Entry of the Lessee, levies a Fine with Proclamations, and the Lessee does not make his Claim, &c. within five Years; hereby the Lessee is barred of his Interest for ever. 9 Co. 104. 5 Co. 124.

The Things whereunto the Statutes relating to Fines do extend, are Lands and Tenements, and not a Rent or other Profit appender out of the Land; and therefore if I have a Rent, Common or Estovers out of Land, or a Way over Land, or Power to sell the Land, and a Fine is levied of the Land itself, and I do not make my Claim of my Rent, &c. within five Years, yet I am not hereby barred of my Rent, &c. And for this Cause it is, that if a Tenant in Antient Demesne levies a Fine of his Land, and five Years pass, the Lord is not hereby barred to avoid it, for herein he claims not the Land, but his antient Seignory. Plow. 378. Bro. Fines 123. 5 Co. 124.

No Fine shall bar any Estate in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, which is not divested and put to a Right at the Time of the Fine levied.

And therefore if one levies a Fine of my Lands whilst I am in Possession of it, this Fine will not hurt me.

So if the Tenant of the Land out of which I have a Rent or Common, &c. levies a Fine of the Land, this shall not bar me of my Rent or Common, for I am still in Possession of this in the Judgment of the Law.

So if there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder for Life; or Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Tail, and the first Tenant in Tail or for Life bargains and sells the Land by Deed indented and inrolled, and after levies a Fine to the Bargainee; in this Case the Remainders are not barred although five Years pass without claim; for the Law in these Cases adjudges them always in Possession.

So if I make a Lease for Years of Land, rendering Rent, and the Stranger levies a Fine of the Land, and the Lessee for Years pays his Rent to me duly; in this Case I am said to be always in Possession, and therefore am not barred by this Fine of my Reversion; so if there be a Tenant by Copy or Lease for Life, the Remainder for Life, and the first Tenant for Life accepts of a Fine of the Land with Proclamations, and five Years pass without Claim, &c. hereby he that is in Remainder is not barred.

So if one has a Lease for Years of Land, to begin in futuro, and a Fine levied of the Land, and five Years pass after the Term begins; it seems this is no Bar, because this Estate is not put to a Right. 5 Co. 124. 9 Co. 106.

A Fine does not bar the Estate, but binds the Right; and where the Fine does not turn the Estate to a Right, there needs no Claim. T. Raym. 149. 9 Co. 106. 2 Inst. 517. Cro. Jac. 60. 5 Co. 124. Vent. 81.

No Fine bars any Estate which is not divested and put to a Right; and he that at the Time of the Fine levied had not any Title to enter, shall not be barred by the Fine. T. Raym. 149. 9 Co. 106. b. This is in the Case of a future Interest, not in Case of Tenant in Tail barring his Issue. Per Stat. 32 H. 8.

No Fine bars any Estate in futuro: For if a Man has a future Interest, and the Lessor is disseised, and the Disseisor levies a Fine, the future Interest is not touched; and because it is not turned to a Right, he is not bound to claim. T. Raym. 149.

A Fine of a Cestuy que Trust will bar an Estate, but not a Remainder over to another; and it has been doubted, whether by a Recovery of a Cestuy que Trust any Thing be barred. Chan. Caf. 213.

But it has been held, that the Fine or Recovery of a Cestuy que Trust shall bar and transfer the Trust, as it should an Estate at Law, if it be upon a valuable Consideration. Ibid. 49.

And Cestuy que Trust in Tail, where the Remainder in Tail was devised over, levied a Fine, and died without Issue: On a Question, whether this Fine by Cestuy que Trust in Tail and Non-claim should bar the Remainder-Man, the Lord Keeper was of Opinion that it should. Vern. Rep. 226. vide Mod. Ca. in Law and Equity 144.

But

But if there be an Entry and Claim, quare whether the Remainder is barred. Vide 2 Chan.

It has been resolved, that a Fine with Proclamations and Non-claim has all Trusts and Equity (or else no Man would know when he was sure of Inheritance); but this is on two Differences: First, where the Equity chargeth the Lands, there the Fine bars; but when it charges the Person in respect of the Land, it does not bar; and if the Equity or Trust be created by the Fine, that Fine shall never bar the Equity which it created.

An Entry on the Land by Cestuy que Trust is not sufficient Claim to avoid the Fine; for the Claim of an Equity can be made no other way but by Subpœna. Chan. Caf. 268, 278.

If J. S. devises Land to B. in Tail, Remainder to C. in Tail, subject to the Payment of Legacies, and C. levies a Fine, and five Years and Non-claim pass, and C. grants a Rent-charge to A. and mortgages to B. yet the Legacies are not barred by the Fine and Non-claim; for C. having no Title but under the Will, the Purchasers must be presumed to take Notice of the Legacies and the Contents thereof. 2 Vern. 662.

A. having prevailed with a Woman to levy a Fine of some Houses, and to execute a Deed leading the Uses thereof to him and his Heirs; and it being proved, that she at the Time of levying the Fine declared, that she must make use of some Friend's Name in Trust; and afterwards by Will declaring, that she only levied such Fine in Trust, the better to dispose of her Estate, and having devised it to J. S. subject to the Payment of her Debts; the Court decreed not only the Estate liable to the Debts, but also a Conveyance to J. S. the Devisee. 2 Vern. 307.

Lands are devised to Trustees till Debts paid, and then to an Infant and his Heirs, and J. S. a Stranger, enters on the Lands, and levies a Fine, and five Years and Non-claim pass, and the Infant, when of Age, brings an Ejectment, but is barred, because the Trustees ought to have entred; yet Equity will relieve, and not suffer an Infant to be barred by the Laches of his Trustees, nor to be barred of a Trust-Estate during his Infancy; and the Infant in this Case shall recover the mesne Profits. 2 Vern. 368.

A Trustee sold the Land to a Stranger, who had no Notice of the Trust, and a Fine and five Years pass; and afterwards the Trustee, for a valuable Consideration really paid, purchased these Lands again: And it was decreed, that the Trustee, notwithstanding the Fine and Non-claim for five Years, should stand seised in Trust as before the Sale. Bovey's Case, Vern. 60. 2 Chan. Rep. 124.

A. seised in Fee in Trust for B. for full Consideration conveys to C. the Purchaser having Notice of the Trust; afterwards C. to strengthen his own Estate, levies a Fine: Whether B. the Cestuy que Trust, be not in that Case bound to enter within five Years. Vern. 149. B. is not bound, because here C. purchased with Notice; and although any Consideration be paid by him, yet he is but a Trustee for B. and so the Estate not being displaced, the Fine cannot bar. Per Serjeant Maynard & al.

Fine levied by a Mortgagee, and five Years Non-claim, will not bar the Mortgagor of his Equity of Redemption, who may notwithstanding bring his Bill to redeem. Vern. 252. See 2 Vern. 189.

(KK) Where a Fine is a Corroboration only and no Bar.

WHERE there is a precedent Agreement amongst the Parties, as a Feoffment, or the like, there the Fine shall not pass any Thing, nor work by way of Estoppel, but only by way of Corroboration, and shall be guided by the precedent Agreement.

And therefore if a Feoffment be made to two and their Heirs, and after a Fine is levied to them two and the Heirs of one of them; this shall enure as a Release, and shall not alter the Estate. 10 Co. 96, 2.

If A. enfeoffs B. of certain Land in Fee, rendering Rent with Condition of Re-entry for Non-payment of Rent, and by Indenture at the same Time covenants to levy a Fine of the same Land to the Feoffee, to the Use and Conditions in the Deed of Feoffment, and after a Fine is levied sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. accordingly; in this Case the Fine shall enure as a Fine sur Release, because the Conusee hath the Fee before, and it shall not enure by way of Estoppel, although it be a Fine sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. and therefore the Rent and Condition shall remain in this Case, and not be extinct. Dyer 157. Fitz. Estoppel 211. 2 Co. in Cromwell's Case.

(LL) Hew

(LL) How a Fine is a Bar by Estoppel.

A Fine is sometimes a Bar by way of Estoppel only. It is called an Estoppel where one is concluded and forbidden in Law to speak against his own Act, (although it be the Truth he would speak) whereby his Mouth is stopt, and his Hands are bound, that now he cannot say or do that which otherwise he might have said or done; and this may be done by Matter of Record, or by Matter in a Deed, or by Fact in the Country. Vide 2 Co. 4, 55. Plow. 397, 431, 434. F. N. B. 97. 3 Co. 3, 19. 4 Co. Hind's Case. 4 Co. 53, 71. 21 H. 7. 24. Moor 896. Case 869.

Where a Feoffment will work an Estoppel, there a Fine (which is a Feoffment upon Record) will much more work an Estoppel.

Estoppels do always descend upon the Heir general, and upon the Heir at Common Law, and none others; and the Daughter which comes in by a Possessio fratris shall escape an Estoppel of the Father. Hob. 31. Co. Lit. 352.

In every Estoppel Privy is required, for it ought to be reciprocal, viz. to bind both Parties; and therefore regularly a Stranger shall never take an Advantage of nor be bound by an Estoppel; but Privies in Blood, as the Heir; Privies in Estate, as the Feoffee, Lessee, &c. Privies in Law, as the Lord by Escheat, Tenant by the Curtesy, in Dower, the Incumbent of a Benefice, and others that come under by Act of Law, or in the Post, shall be bound and take Advantage of Estoppels. Co. Lit. 353.

A Fine levied by a Remainder-Man in Tail binds by Estoppel.

This Rule seems to have been admitted arguendo in the Case of Hollis vers. Carr, Pasch. 28 Car. 2. in Cancellaria, where it is said, that it would be very hard to decree the Execution of the Fine in that Case; for that the Father of the Defendant was alive when the Defendant executed the Deed; and the Father who never sealed it being Tenant in Tail, the Son who sealed could have no present Right: And how could a Court of Equity decree a Fine in that Case, whereby a Right may indeed be extinguished, but can never be transferred, and by which no Use can be declared? For though such Fine be good by Estoppel before the Estate-tail descends to the Issue, yet no Use can be declared thereupon. 2 Mod. 90.

(MM) Where a Fine works a Discontinuance.

A Fine sometimes works a Discontinuance of Land, and the Possession of it. A Discontinuance is where one that is present Owner of the Land grants some larger or greater Estate than he has, (and thereby deveys and interrupts the Inheritance or Estate which should or ought to have come to another) and then dies, and another has Right to have them, but he cannot enter by reason of such Alienation.

And there is a Discontinuance in Fact, which is where there is a Transmutation of Possession, and in Law, as by Cognisance of Right by Fine; by which, notwithstanding that the Cognisor continues the Possession, yet the other is Tenant in Law, and the Right of the Estate or of the Tail is discontinued or dissolved. Lit. §. 192. Co. Lit. 325.

All Fines and Recoveries suffered by Tenant in Tail to bar the Estate-tail are Discontinuances, in which there is no Remedy but in Case where the Reversion is in the King. 10 Co. 96.

Where a Feoffment will make a Discontinuance, there a Fine will much more make a Discontinuance.

Where an Estate is not discontinued, there regularly it is not barred by a Fine. Cro. Eliz. 827. Moor 170.

A Fine of Lands in Antient Demesne works a Discontinuance, but is no Bar; this appears by the third Resolution in the Case of Hunt and Brown, Hil. 1 Ann. where the Court held, that a Fine levied in the Court of Antient Demesne may work a Discontinuance though that Court is not a Court of Record; for the Discontinuance is because the Freehold is recovered in the Action; for every Recoverer recovers a Fee-simple, and a Recovery of a Fee-simple must work a Discontinuance. But though such Fine be a Discontinuance, yet it is not a Bar to an Intail. For it is by the Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 24. that a Fine with Proclamations shall bar an Estate-tail, and no Fine but a Fine with Proclamations is within the Statute, nor can bar an Estate-tail. Salk. 240.

(NN) Where

(NN) Where a Fine works by way of Remitter.

A Fine sometimes works by way of Remitter.

A Remitter is a Man's Restitution to his former Right; or where a Man is come to two Titles of Land, and his latter is defective, and not so good as the former, he is remitted to the former and better Title, &c.

No Remitter shall be where there is a Fine or Recovery to hinder it. Vide Co. Lit. 349.

But if Tenant in Tail levies a Fine with Proclamations, and after the same is reversed by Writ of Deceit; the Issue in Tail is remitted, and shall avoid all the Estates made, because the Fine is void between the Parties. Cro. Car. 471.

(OO) Where a Fine is an Extinguishment of an Estate.

A Fine levied by the Issue in Tail is an Extinguishment of that Estate. This Rule has been often held, as appears by the Case of Symonds and Cudmore, Hil. 2 W. & M. in ment. B. R. 4 Mod. 4, 5. and the Reasons and Authorities there cited; see also Show. 370. that upon the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 36. (that a Fine levied of Lands intailed on the Cognisor, or any of his Ancestors, shall be a Bar against the Person and his Ancestors claiming by Force of such Intail) It has been often held, that a Fine levied by a Remainder-Man in Tail during the Estate of a Tenant for Life, was an Extinguishment of the Intail.

Yet a Lease made by Tenant in Tail dying before the Commencement, shall be good against a Fine levied by such Issue or Remainder-Man in Tail; as was agreed in the same Case of Symonds and Cudmore, which as it is reported in Salk. 338. is thus, viz. in Ejectment a special Verdict found A. Tenant in Tail in Reversion after a Lease for Years, Remainder to Issue in Tail in Fee: A. made a Lease to commence at a Day to come, and died before the Day, having Issue, who afterwards and before the said Day levied a Fine; and agreed per tot' Cur',

First, That the Remainder in Fee stood chargeable with this Lease, and it should have been served out of the Remainder in Fee, had the Tenant in Tail died without Issue.

Secondly, That the Estate-tail was extinct by the Fine, as much as if Tenant in Tail were dead without Issue; for these Reasons, viz. 1. Because two Fees immediately expectant one upon another cannot subsist in the same Person. 2. Because by 32 H. 8. c. 36. the Fine is declared to be a Bar and a Discharge of the Estate-tail. 3. Because the Statute of Westm. 2. having made Estates-tail a Kind of particular Estates, they are (the Protection of the Statute being gone by the Fine) like all other particular Estates, subject to Merger and Extinguishment when united with the absolute Fee; and several Cases are there to prove it.

And by that Book three Judges denied Co. Lit. 46. b. and held the Issue in Tail had Election either to avoid or affirm the Lease, and that by Westm. 2. but that the Conussee had not; for that the Power and Privilege is Personal, and cannot be transferred. But note, Holt Chief Justice differed, and held the Lease actually void quoad the Issue, as if Tenant in Tail make a Lease; and that as by Law no Act is necessary to be done to avoid the Lease, so the Fine in this Case does not prevent its being void.

Where a Husband is intitled to be Tenant by Curtesy, and levies a Fine with his Wife, his Right is extinguished.

This Rule is laid down obiter in the Case of Winchurst and Maseley, Mich. 7 W. 3. On Motion to quash the Party's own Writ of Error brought to reverse a Fine, for that one of the Parties to the Fine was omitted in the Writ of Error. The Court refused it, saying, they could take Notice of nothing but what was on the Record, and not of a foreign Suggestion; and cited a Case where a Fine being levied by three, two of them brought Error, and reversed it, for perhaps the other has nothing in the Land.

But if one intitled to be Tenant by the Curtesy joins with his Wife in a Fine of those Lands to which he is so intitled; Quare, whether his Title to be Tenant by Curtesy be not extinguished if the Fine be reversed after her Death? Indeed if it be reversed in her Lifetime, he may have a new Title. Fine by Tenant by Curtesy extinguishes his Right.

A Fine levied to a Stranger may extinguish a Right, but cannot increase an Estate. 2 Lord Raym. 782.

But if he makes a Feoffment on Condition of her Lands, and she dies, and then the Condition is broken, shall he be Tenant by Curtesy? Quasi diceret non. 5 Mod. 67.

(PP) How a Fine levied by Decree in Chancery works.

BY Decree in Chancery a Fine was levied to a particular End and Purpose, which would operate further in Point of Law than the Decree ordered it; and it was resolved, that such Fine should not be suffered in Equity to work any further than the Decree intended. Chan. Ca. 49.

(QQ) Where a Fine enures as a Release.

IF A. enfeoffs B. of Land, rendring Rent with Condition of Re-entry for Non-payment, and by Indenture at the same Time covenants to levy a Fine of the same Land to the Feoffee, to the Uses and Conditions in the Deed of Feoffment; and after a Fine is levied sur Conusance de droit come ceo, &c. accordingly: In this Case the Fine shall enure as a Release, because the Conusee has the Fee before, and it shall not enure by way of Estoppel; and therefore the Rent and Condition shall remain in this Case, and not be extinct. 2 Co. 72. b. 73. a.

(RR) Where levying a Fine makes a Forfeiture, and where not; and where the Entry for such Forfeiture is good.

TENANT for Life, Remainder in Tail; the Tenant for Life levied a Fine Come ceo, &c. to the Use of himself and his Heirs; adjudged this was a Forfeiture; afterwards the Tenant for Life, and he in Remainder, joined in a Feoffment, and made a Letter of Attorney to make Livery: Adjudged this was a Discontinuance, for it is first an Entry for the Forfeiture, then it is a Feoffment of him in Remainder; and lastly, the Confirmation of the Tenant for Life. Dyer 214.

Tenant for Life, Remainder in Fee, the Tenant for Life made a Lease for four Years in March. 20 Eliz. and afterwards granted the Lands to B. G. Habendum from Midsummer next ensuing for Life; the Lessee for four Years attorned, and after the Expiration thereof B. G. entered and made a Lease at Will, and the Tenant for Life levied a Fine Come ceo to the Lessee at Will; adjudged that when B. G. entred by Colour of the Grant made to him by the Tenant for Life, he was a Disseisor, because an Estate of Freehold was granted to him to commence in futuro; and if the Fine had been levied to him, the Remainder-Man might have entered for a Forfeiture, and so he may as it is levied to the Lessee at Will. 2 Co. 55. Moor 423. Cro. Eliz. 450. 2 And. 29.

Tenant for Life, Remainder in Tail, Remainder in Fee; the Tenant for Life bargained and sold the Lands to one, who before the Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 8. suffered a common Recovery, in which the Tenant for Life was vouched, and he vouched over the common Vouchee, &c. thereupon he in Remainder entered for a Forfeiture; and adjudged he might, because the Recovery suffered by the Tenant for Life made a Forfeiture of his Estate, for he did as much as he could do to disinherit him in the Remainder in Tail. Co. Sir William Pelham's Case.

Tenant for Life made a Lease of Part of the Lands, to hold the same at Will, and being in Possession of the Residue, he levied a Fine of the Whole with Proclamations; the Lessor entered for the Forfeiture on the Land, which was leased at Will, and this he did in the Name of the Whole, and adjudged good for the Whole; but where a Disseisor makes a Lease of Part, and continues in the Possession of the Rest, and the Disseeisee enters on that which is in his Possession in the Name of the Whole, that Entry is not good for that Part which was in Lease, because the Lessee was in it by Title; but in the other Case, where the Tenant for Life leases Part at Will, and afterwards levies a Fine, that is a Determination, and by Consequence the Lessee has no Title to that Part, and then the Entry is good for the Whole. Leon. 51.

Husband and Wife, Tenants in Tail, had Issue two Sons, and they made a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of the Wife for Life, and after her Decease to the Use of the Heirs of the Body of the Husband begotten, Remainder in Fee to W. R. afterwards the Mother and her youngest Son levied a Fine with Warranty against her and her Heirs, and the Conusees in that Fine rendered to the Son an Estate for sixty Years, rendring Rent, and then granted the Reversion to the Mother and the Heirs of her Body of the Body of her Husband begotten, Remainder in Fee to W. R. The eldest Son entred, the Mother died, and then the youngest Son claimed this Lease; adjudged that he had no Title to it, because by the Entry of his elder Brother, as for a Forfeiture at least, all the other Estates are avoided. Dyer 111.

Where

Where Tenant for Life is of full Age, and he in Remainder, being an Infant, levies a Fine, which is afterwards reversed by reason of the Infancy; in such Case the Infant shall not enter for the Forfeiture, because he assented to it by joining in the Fine. 2 Leon. 108.

The Father having two Sons, made a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself for Life, afterwards to the Use of his youngest Son for Life, Remainder to the first Son of his youngest Son who should have Issue Male of his Body, and to his Heirs for ever; Remainder in like Manner to the Daughter, Remainder for want of such Issue to the right Heirs of the younger Son for ever: The Father died, the eldest Son had Issue a Son and died, the youngest Son had likewise Issue a Son who died without Issue, and then his Father levied a Fine of the Lands, and the Son of his elder Brother entered on the Conusees for a Forfeiture; adjudged that this Remainder to the first Son of the youngest Son, who should have Issue Male, is a contingent Remainder, and the Remainder to the right Heirs of the youngest Son vested in him; therefore his levying the Fine was no Cause of Forfeiture. Cro. Car. 265.

In a special Verdict in Ejectment the Case was, Tenant for Life, Remainder for Life; the Tenant for Life levied a Fine to him in Remainder for Life, and to his Heirs, and this was sur Cognissance de droit, &c. Adjudged that both their Estates are forfeited, the Tenant for Life levying the Fine, and the Remainder for Life by accepting of it. 2 Lev. 202. T. Jones 65.

Tenant for Life, Remainder for Life, he in Remainder for Life levied a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come ceo, &c. as if he had a Fee-simple; the Conusee brought a Quid juris clamat against the Tenant for Life, who not appearing, he was adjudged to attorn to the Conusee; adjudged that by this Attornment the Tenant for Life had not forfeited his Estate, because it was by Compulsion of the Court, and that the Remainder for Life had not forfeited his Estate by levying the Fine, for nothing passed but what he might lawfully pass; but the Chief Justice and another Judge were of a contrary Opinion as to this Point, for that the Forfeiture is not only where there is a Discontinuance, but where the Party does any Act upon Record, in order to disinherit him in Reversion. Cro. Eliz. 751.

Agreeable to the Opinion of the Chief Justice, &c. was this Case: ff. Tenant for Life, Remainder for Life, Remainder in Fee to one B. B. he in Remainder for Life coming into Possession by the Death of the Tenant for Life, levied a Fine sur Cognissance de droit, &c. adjudged that by this Fine of the Remainder-Man for Life, the Remainder in Fee was not touched or discontinued; yet because he had done as much as he could in order to dispose the Fee-simple by the Fine, he did thereby take that upon him, which amounts to a Forfeiture. Leon. 46.

Tenant in Tail, upon Condition that if he or any of his Heirs shall alien or discontinue the Lands, &c. that then the Donor may re-enter; he had Issue two Daughters, and died, one of the Daughters levied a Fine Come ceo, &c. Adjudged this is a Forfeiture of their Estate, and that the Donor might enter, because both of them are but one Heir. Leon. 292.

(SS) Where Equity will relieve against a Forfeiture by levying a Fine.

A. Devised to B. the Father for Life, Remainder to his Son C. an Infant, and devised 400*l.* to the Son, to be paid at twenty-one, and made the Father Executor, and left 2000*l.* Personal Assets; and B. having spent the Personal Assets, mortgaged the Lands to J. S. and made Affidavit that they were free from Incumbrances, and that he was seised in Fee, and levied a Fine for corroborating the Mortgage, and also declared the Use thereof to him and his Heirs. The Son having entered for a Forfeiture, the Mortgagee brought his Bill to be relieved, and the Court decreed, That the Mortgagee, notwithstanding the Forfeiture, should hold and enjoy the Lands against the Son during the Father's Life. Abr. Ca. Eq. 257.

(TT) Claim what, and the different Kinds of Claim.

CLAIM is a Challenge of the Ownership or Property that a Man has not in Possession, but is detained from him by Wrong.

Mr. Brown in his Introd. to Fines, p. 67. says, There are four Sorts of Claims provided by the Law for defeating of Fines, viz.

1. By Action Real.
2. By Entry of the Claim in the Chirographer's Office at the Foot of the Fine.
3. By actual Entry.
4. By Claim.

Of

Of these, the two first are by Record, and the other two by Acts in the Country.

But as to the second Sort observe, that in Michaelmas Term, 29 Eliz. it was adjudged, that where a Disseisor levieth a Fine, and the Disseisee, to preserve his Right, entereth his Claim in the Record of the Foot of the Fine, this is not such a Claim as will avoid the Stat. 4 H. 7. of Fines. 2 Leon. 53.

(UU) Of Non-claim.

TENANT in Tail levied a Fine after the Stat. 4 H. 7. with Proclamations, and five Years incurred in his Life-time, and then he died; adjudged that it shall bar the Issue in Tail. Dyer 3.

Husband and Wife levied a Fine with Proclamations of the Lands of the Wife, the Husband died, and five Years passed after his Death without Action or Entry; adjudged that the Wife and her Heirs are barred. Dyer 72.

Where a Man has a Right to a Writ of Error to reverse a Fine for an apparent Error, and he suffereth five Years to pass without bringing it, he shall be barred by such Fine and Non-claim, by the Stat. 4 H. 7. by the Word Actions in the Statute; and so it was adjudged in the Exchequer-Chamber, 27 Eliz. Mandeville's Case, Cro. Jac. 332.—Roll. Rep. 36. 2 Bulst. 244.

Error in B. R. to reverse a Judgment in Ejectment in C. B. in a special Verdict, wherein the Case was, That Tenant in Fee-simple made a Lease to A. M. for 100 Years, in Trust to attend the Inheritance; afterwards the Tenant in Fee entred and took the Profits, and made two Leases to other Persons for short Terms of Years, which were expired; then he made a Lease to one Germin for fifty-four Years, and levied a Fine with Proclamations to corroborate the Term to Germin, who entred, and the five Years passed; adjudged that this Fine and Non-claim was a Bar to the Term of 100 Years. Vent. 55, 80. Sid. 349, 458. Lev. 246, 270. Hardres 448.

A Copyholder of a Dean and Chapter levied a Fine Come ceo, and five Years passed without any Claim by the Dean, &c. adjudged in a special Verdict in Ejectment, that the succeeding Dean was not bound by this Fine and Non-claim; for if he should, the Statutes 1 and 13 Eliz. which restrain the Alienation of Church Revenues, would be to little Purpose. Vent. 311.

Non-claim on a Fine no Bar of Deceit to reverse the Fine. Ld. Raym. 179.

(VV) Of Entry.

IN Ejectione firme it was held, that where a Fine was levied with Proclamations, and a Friend of him who had a Right to the Land entered to his Use, but without his Appointment, in order to avoid the Fine before the five Years passed, and the Conusee re-entered, and then the five Years passed; that this Entry should not avoid the Fine, unless he who had the Right agreed to the Entry, but his Agreement to it afterwards will not do. Cro. Eliz. 561. Popb. 108. Moor 450, 457.

Where a Lessee for Life in Possession levies a Fine Come ceo, &c. if the Lessor does not enter within five Years afterwards, he shall be barred, by the Opinion of the Ch. Just, and another Judge; but Windbam was of a contrary Opinion; for he hath Liberty to enter within five Years, or may stay till the Death of the Lessee for Life. Leon. 46.

There was a Lease made to commence after the Determination of another Lease then in Being; the first Lease ended, the second Lessee did not enter, but he in Reversion entered and made a Feoffment, and levied a Fine, and the five Years passed without Entry or Claim; adjudged that the second Lessee was barred of his Term by the Stat. 4 H. 7. of Fines, because the Words of the Statute are general, and extend to all Estates, and the Saving is of Claim and Interest, &c. and he who hath a Term for Years, hath an Interest, and such an Interest which may be barred by a Fine, and so are the Interests of Tenants by Statute Merchant, Elegit, Guardians and Executors; and though he who hath only a Right to an Inheritance cannot levy a Fine, yet if the Tenant of the Land levies a Fine, he shall be bound by it. 5 Co. 123.

A Lease was made Anno 20 H. 6. for eighty Years; the Lessee died Intestate, and Anno 4 Mar. a Fine was levied of the Lands with Proclamations, and the Cognisee enjoyed the same till 37th of Eliz. and then W. R. took out Administration to the Goods, &c. of the Lessee; two Judges held, that the Right of a Term for Years is not within the Statute of 4 H. 7. of Fines, but a Right of Freehold, and therefore this Lease shall not be bound by that Statute, and by Consequence that the Entry of the Administrator was lawful; but Anderson Ch. Just. was of a contrary Opinion, viz. that the Statute did extend to a Right of a Term, Term, and shall bind it, if the Lessee ever was or might have been in Possession before the Fine levied. Goldf. 171.

In a special Verdict in Ejectment the Case was; T. S. being seised in Fee; did for the Continuance of his Lands in his Name, and for the Maintenance of his Brother; make a Lease to G. D. and M. G. for 500 Years, in Trust for himself for Life; and afterwards for his Brother, and upon some other Trusts, &c. afterwards being still in Possession according to the Trust, he covenanted with W. W. and T. P. to stand seised of these Lands, upon the same Consideration and to the same Uses as mentioned in the Lease, and covenanted to levy a Fine accordingly, and afterwards levied a Fine, and enjoyed the Profits during his Life; and the five Years being long since passed, he died, then G. D. one of the Lessees in Trust, entered; and the Question was, whether the Lease for 500 Years was barred by this Fine and Non-claim; it was insisted that it was according to the Distinction made in Saffin's Case, viz. where a Lease commences immediately in Point of Time, though the Lessee doth not enter, a Fine and Non-claim is a Bar; but it is not so where it is to commence in futuro, which is this Case; but adjudged that this Fine was no Bar to the Estate for 500 Years, because it was levied in Affirmance of it; and it shall be intended that the Conusor continued in Possession, by the Leave and Permission of the Lessees; if so, then he was but Tenant at Will; and being in Possession upon such a Privy between them, that will protect the Interest of the Lessees; it is like the Mortgagor's levying a Fine and five Years pass; this will not bar the Mortgagee, he being out of Possession; besides this Fine doth not displace the Estate and turn it to a Right, as where there is Lessee for Years, Remainder for Life to another, and the Lessee for Years levies a Fine, and the five Years pass, the Lessor is not barred by Non-claim, because the Fine operates nothing, for Partes finis nihil habuerunt may be pleaded; but it is otherwise where Tenant for Life levies a Fine, because he hath a Freehold, and his Fine displaces the Remainders, and therefore an Entry is requisite within five Years after his Death; but in the principal Case the Lease was precedent to the Estate of the Lessor who levied the Fine, and he had a Freehold expectant upon the Lease; and his Fine is so far from working a Wrong, that he intended it should fortify the Lease, therefore he shall not be made a Wrong-doer against his Will; and so it has been adjudged in Blunden and Baugh's Case; nor will the Court presume it to be a Tort, if it may be intended otherwise. Hardres 400. Vide Cro. Jac. 60. Moor 220, 298. Noy 23.

In Ejectment it appeared upon the Evidence that the Title of the Lessor of the Plaintiff was by Virtue of a Remainder limited to him for Life, &c. but that there was a Fine levied, and that within five Years after this Title accrued, he sent two Persons to deliver Declarations on the Lands; adjudged that this was no Entry or Claim to avoid the Fine, because this was no express Authority given to them for that Purpose. Vent. 42.

Adjudged upon a Trial at Bar in Ejectment, that where a Fine Come reo was levied by Tenant for Life, and the Plaintiff in Ejectment, who had the Reversion for Life after the Death of the Cognisor of the Fine, directed one to deliver a Declaration to the Tenant in Possession within five Years after the Death of the Cognisor, which was done accordingly; that this did not amount to an Entry to avoid the Fine, although in this very Declaration the Lease was contained, upon which the Ejectment was brought. Saund. 319.

There must be an actual Entry to avoid a Fine, and the Demise cannot be laid on a Day before the Entry. 2 Stra. 1086. Andr. 125. Cas. Temp. Hardw. 98, 99. 2 Barnard. K. B. 217.

(WW) The Time of Entry or Claim.

THE Time in which they must make their Claim or bring their Action that have present Right and no Impediment, is within five Years after Proclamation had, and the Time for them which have Impediments is within five Years after the Impediment removed. Plow. 370.

And the Time within which they must make their Claim or bring their Action whose Right doth happen afterwards, if they have no Impediment, is within five Years after the Time that their Right accrues; and if there be Impediment, within five Years after the Impediment removed.

And the Persons whose Right is saved and preserved are mentioned in the first and second Saving of the Statute of 4 H. 7. and they are Strangers and not Parties nor Privies; and they that have Benefit by their first Saving of the Statute shall have none by the second Saving, for he that will be within the second Saving to have Benefit by it must be,

1. Another Person.
2. The Right must come and accrue to him first.

7 I

3. It

3. It must come to him after the Fine and Proclamations.

4. His Right must be some Cause or Matter before the Fine.

A Lessee for Years shall have five Years from the Commencement of his Lease to claim. Cro. Jac. 60.

He that hath two Titles shall have two five Years to make his Claim. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 45.

Five Years are given after a Remainder doth fail, and five Years after the Forfeiture of Tenant for Life, and five Years for a Woman to claim her Dower after her Husband's Death. Plow. 374. Dyer 3. 19 H. 8. 7.

An Infant shall have five Years after he comes to his full Age, although he was in his Mother's Womb at the Time of the Fine levied. Plowd. 539.

Madmen, &c. have five Years after Cure of their Maladies, although the Infirmary happens after the Fine levied and before the last Proclamation. Plow. 339, 367, 375, 377. Dyer 3.

Strangers out of the Realm at the Time of the Fine levied shall have five Years after their Return; so also if they were in England at the Time of the Fine levied, and within the five Years be sent in the King's Service and by his Commandment. Plow. 366.

If the Party be beyond the Sea at the Time of the Fine levied, and never returns, but dies there, the Heir shall not be barred at all. Sir Thomas Cotton's Case, 20 Eliz.

If he be in Ireland or Scotland, he shall be said to be out of the Realm. 4 H. 7. Plow. 367.

They who have divers Defects, have five Years after the last Infirmary removed; but if there be divers Impediments, and once wholly removed, and afterwards they fall into the like again, and die; the first five Years begun in the Ancestor's Time shall proceed and reckon to the Heir, and he shall at the End be bound, as the Ancestor should, if he had remained free all the five Years. Plow. 375. Dyer 133.

If he that has Right be beyond Sea at the Time, and never returns, the Heir is not limited to Time.

And so it is if an Infant being Party to the Fine having present Right, if he dies in his Infancy, his Heir is not limited.

And so it is of a Person Non compos mentis by the Act of God, or a Man in Prison by the Act of the Law, or a Feme Covert by her own Act, if she dies so, being no Parties to the Fine. 2 Inst. 319, 320. Plow. 366.

The Husband made a Conveyance of his Land by Fine, and afterwards died; if the Widow make her Claim within five Years after his Death, she shall have her Dower though five Years had incurred in the Life-time of her Husband after he levied the Fine; but if she doth not within five Years after his Death, being Sole, and of full Age, &c. and not under any Incapacity, as mentioned in the Stat. 4 H. 7. she shall lose her Dower. Goldesb. 148. Moor 53.

The Husband being seised in Fee levied a Fine, and was afterwards outlawed for High Treason, and the Conusee conveyed the Lands to the Crown; afterwards the Daughters and Heirs of the Cognisor reversed the Outlawry; and upon a Petition of Droit de Dower to the Queen, it was adjudged, that though the five Years were passed long since, and after the Fine levied, and the Death of the Husband, yet this Petition being within five Years after the Reversal of the Outlawry, the Widow shall not be barred of her Dower, because so long as the Outlawry was in Force, that was a Bar to her Claim; but that being reversed, she shall have another five Years after the Reversal to make her Claim, which she had now done by Petition. Moor 639.

The Testator devised the Lands to an Infant in Fee, and died; B. G. entered and levied a Fine of it in the Life-time of the Infant, who afterwards died within Age, the Wife of E. B. being his Sister and Heir; the Husband suffered the five Years to pass without Entry or Claim; adjudged that the Fine shall be a good Bar to him and her, and all claiming under them during the Coverture, but that the Wife, if she survives, shall have five Years more after the Death of her Husband. Cro. Car. 91.

Writ of Error to reverse a Fine under which the Plaintiff in the Action claimed; and the Defendant pleaded, that he was beyond Sea at the Time of the Fine levied; the Plaintiff replied, that the Defendant came into England in August within five Years after the Fine levied, upon which they were at Issue, and the Jury found that he came in July; adjudged that though the Verdict differs from the Issue in Point of Time, viz. in the Month, the one being in July and the other being in August, yet the Substance of the Issue is found, viz. that the Defendant was in England within five Years after the Fine levied, and might have made his Claim; and it is not material in what Month he came, so as he was here, and therefore the Fine and Non-claim shall bar him. March 3.

In Dower against the Tenant of the Land, he pleaded that her Husband Anno 14 Jac. levied a Fine of the Lands with Proclamations, and that he died in the same Year, and that the Widow made no Claim within five Years afterwards, so that she was barred by the Stat. 4 H. 7. of Fines; the Demandant replied, that Anno 15 Jac. she brought a Writ of Dower against the now Tenant and two others, and that the Writ abated by the Death of those two, and that she now brought this Writ by Journeys Accompts; the Defendant rejoined, that those two were not Tenants, but that one W. R. was Tenant; and upon Demurrer to this Rejoinder it was objected that it was ill, because it amounted to a Negative pregnant, and to a Confession that the Defendant was Tenant; for if those two were not Tenants, then he was, and so the Writ is well brought against him; now admitting that he was not Tenant then, it is true that the Writ being brought against him is not any Claim within the Statute; but if he was Tenant then where she brought her Writ against him and two others, then it abated by their Death; and now she brings a second Writ by Journeys Accompts, though after the Time limited by the Statute, yet it is a good Claim.

In a special Verdict in Ejectment the Case was, A Settlement was made by Covenant to stand seised, &c. to the Use of C. M. for ninety-nine Years, if he should so long live, Remainder to Trustees to preserve contingent Remainders, (which being two Strangers, and not of the Blood of the Covenantor, was void as to that) Remainder to the first, and so to the tenth Son of C. in Tail, Remainder to E. M. the Father of the Lessor of the now Plaintiff in Tail, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Covenantor; in October 1656. C. made a Feoffment to the Defendant, and in Hilary Term following levied a Fine to him; E. M. the Father of the Lessor of the Plaintiff, being then living, who died in March 1661. leaving the Lessor of the Plaintiff then and still under Age; C. died in 1664. without Issue Male, but had a Daughter now living; the Question was, whether the Lessor of the Plaintiff shall have five Years after the Death of C. to enter to avoid this Fine, or if the Entry should not be within five Years after the Fine levied; but if the first, then he is right in Point of Time, being at the Death of C. and still an Infant; but if the last, then the Right of Entry being attached in his Father, and he not entering within five Years after the Fine levied, the Sons are barred. It was insisted for the Defendant, that if C. had been Tenant for Life, he in Remainder would have five Years to enter after his Death though he might have entered in in the Life-time of the Tenant for Life, and this by the Saving in the Stat. 4 H. 7. viz. the second Saving, by which future Rights are saved; now the Title comes by the Determination of the Estate for Life, is a new Right which accrues to him in Remainder, and therefore he shall have five Years to enter and claim after the Death of the Tenant for Life; but my Lord Coke, in Podger's Case, tells us, it is otherwise where a Fine is levied by Tenant for Years, for then the Entry and Claim must be within five Years after the Fine levied, because in such Case he in Remainder hath a present Right, being disseised by levying the Fine; but adjudged for the Lessor of the Plaintiff that he shall have five Years to enter after the Death of C. that there are no Words either in the first or second Saving of the Statute to warrant the Difference of a Fine levied by Tenant for Life, and a Fine levied by Tenant for Years, for by the first Saving all present Rights are saved, and by the second all future Rights; and there is nothing mentioned of Freehold or Chattels: Now when Tenant for Life levies a Fine, he in Remainder hath a new Right of Entry upon the Determination of that Estate, as well as he in Remainder hath upon the Determination of the Estate for Life, for in both Cases the Levying a Fine is a Forfeiture; and the Reason why it doth not bar, is because of the Trust and Privy which is between the Lessee and him in Remainder, that no Prejudice be done to him by their Acts; now in the principal Case the Lessee was trusted with the Possession, and if he in Remainder should not have five Years to enter after the Determination of the Estate for Years, then there would be an apparent Injury and Fraud done by his Means and Privy. 2 Lev. Whaley v. Tancred. T. Raym. 209.

Vent. 241, 334.

In Ejectment the Case upon a special Verdict was, That T. L. acknowledged two Statutes to K. and G. and another to B. which K. and G. extended by Liberate, and afterwards they two granted their several extended Interests to one E. L. but that T. L. the Conusor, still continued in Possession, and levied a Fine Come ceo to L. and his Heirs; that J. L. demiseth the Lands to the said E. L. in Tail Male, and for want of such Issue to his Daughters; that afterwards E. L. being in Possession, levied a Fine to F. to the Use of the said E. and his Heirs; the Question was, that when E. L. had the extended Interest upon K. and G.'s Statutes, and soon afterwards the Estate of Inheritance likewise in himself, and then levied a Fine to F. to the Use of himself and his Heirs, whether that Fine did destroy the extended Interests which were in him; and adjudged that it did; for when a Fine is levied by him who hath the Freehold, whatever Interest he hath besides passes inclusively, not by way of transferring of it, but Consolidation with the Fee; if so, then B. might have entered immediately mediately, which he did not, but five Years passing afterwards without Claim, the Extent upon his Statute is barred, for he shall not have a new five Years after G.'s Statute shall be satisfied by Perception of Profits, or Satisfaction acknowledged upon Record, by Virtue of the Saving in the Stat. 4 H. 7. viz. saving such Right as shall first remain after the Fine levied by reason of any Matter before, so that he pursue the Right within five Years next after it shall accrue; for whether the Extents upon K. and G.'s Statutes were barred by the Non-claim in the first Fine levied by T. L. or destroyed by the last Fine levied by E. L. there was no Pretence that B. claimed within five Years after either of those Fines, so that the Right was not pursued within five Years after it did first accrue; and this had been necessary to be done where there was only a Right of Action; as for Instance, Tenant in Tail levied a Fine, by which the Remainder was destroyed, he having before the Fine levied made an Estate for Life warranted by the Statute, and then died without Issue; adjudged that he in Remainder was barred of a Formedon in the Life of the Tenant for Life within five Years after the Fine levied, and could not have a new five Years after the Death of the Tenant for Life, (although he could not enter whilst the Tenant was living) because of the Death of the Tenant for Life, the Remainder-Man had no new Right, for it was the very same he had before: In Whaley and Tancred's Case it is held, that he in Reversion shall have a new five Years, after a Term in Being when the Fine was levied shall be ended by Effluxion of Time; but that was upon an apparent Fraud, where a Fine was levied by a Lessee for Years continuing still in Possession; but even in that Case the Resolution was carried beyond the Words of the Statute, for the Right was not pursued within five Years after it first came; and it was a Construction by Equity to weaken the Force of a Statute contrary to the very Reason of the Common Law, which takes no Care for a Reversionary Interest; besides to let him who has a Reversion by Extent have five Years to claim after a precedent Extent is satisfied by Perception of Profits, or Satisfaction acknowledged, is to let in a Claim after an Estate that no Man can see an End to, whereas other particular Estates have an End either by express Limitation of the Parties, or by Operation of Law. 2 Vent. 321. 4 Mod. 247.

By Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. No Claim or Entry to be made into any Lands, &c. shall be of any Force to avoid a Fine levied with Proclamations, according to the Form of the Statute in the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, or in the Courts of Sessions in any of the Counties Palatine, or Grand Sessions in Wales, of any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments; or shall be a sufficient Claim within the Statute of Limitation of Actions, and avoiding Suits in Law, unless upon such Entry or Claim an Action be commenced within one Year after making of the Entry or Claim.

Devise to A. and B. for their Lives equally to be divided, and after their Deceases to their Heirs Male of their Bodies equally to be divided, and if either of them die without Issue, then to the Survivor and his Heirs Male; A. and B. make Partition, and B. levies a Fine, and suffers a Recovery and dies without Issue, the Entry of A. is taken away, and no Title accrues by Survivorship. Stra. 12.

(XX) Where there is no need of Claim.

A Fine does not bar the Estate, but binds the Right; and where the Fine does not turn the Estate to a Right, there needs no Claim. T. Raym. 149. 9 Co. 106. 2 Inst. 517. Cro. Jac. 60. 5 Co. 124. Vent. 81.

(YY) How Fines Executory are to be executed.

THE Execution of a Fine is the obtaining of actual Possession of the Things contained in the same by Virtue thereof; and it is either,

1. By Entry into the Lands; or,
2. By Writ.

Entry.

First, By Entry into the Lands; as where the Fine is sur Cognissance de droit come ceo que il ad de son done, the Cognisee may obtain the actual Possession of the Land contained in the Fine by an Entry: For in this Case of a Fine executed, if the Cognisor be still in Possession of the Land whereof the Fine is levied, the Cognisee may without any Writ of Habere facias seisinam enter upon him, and so get the Seisin and Possession of the Land.

And note, That if a Fine be levied to Husband and Wife in special Tail, the Remainder to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, and the Wife dies without Issue, the Remainder is executed in Possession of the Husband; for the Estate-tail meets with the Fee-simple, and it is drowned. 41 Ed. 3. 14. 14 Ed. 3. 5. 7 H. 4. 23. 2 West's Symb. p. 57.

Secondly, The Execution of Fines by Writ is either,

1. By Habere facias seisinam; or,
2. By Scire facias.

1. A Writ of Habere facias seisinam in this Case is a judicial Writ issuing out of the Record of a Fine executory, directed to the Sheriff of the County where the Land lies, commanding him to give the Cognisee or his Heirs Seisin of the Land whereof the Fine is levied.

This Writ lies within the Year after the Fine or Judgment upon a Scire Facias. 2 West's Symb. 57.

2. And a Writ of Scire Facias upon a Fine lies in the same Case as a Writ of Habere facias seisinam does, excepting that it is to be sued a Year and a Day after the Fine is levied, whereby the Sheriff is commanded to warn the Tertenant to appear and shew Cause, if he can, why the Cognisee or his Heirs should not have Execution.

At the Return whereof, if the Tenant appears and shews no Cause to the contrary, the Plaintiff shall have an Habere facias seisinam, ut supra. 2 West. Symb. 58.

A Scire Facias to execute a Fine must agree with the Fine, and then it is not material if Surplusage. one Thing be twice demanded thereby, as a Manor, and a Hundred, Parcel of the same Manor. 27 H. 8. 2.

A Scire Facias may be sued out upon the Note of a Fine before it be ingrossed by the Upon the Chirographer. 22 H. 6. 13. Note.

But if a Fine be levied before Time of Memory, a Man shall not have Execution by Scire A Fine before Memory. Facias. 1 E. 4. 6. contr. 16 H. 7. 9.

Where a Fine executory is levied of a Seignior, if the Land escheats, or the Tenant be Of Land in forejudged, &c. the Cognisee shall have a Scire Facias of the Land in Lieu of the Services. Lieu of the Services. 48 E. 3. 11.

A Mittimus makes no Mention whether the Fine be ingrossed or not, but Cum quidam finis Mittimus levasset, &c. 22 H. 6. 13.

If a Fine be levied to A. in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to C. in Fee, and the Record is sent into the Chancery, and the first Tenant in Tail dies without Issue, and the Record comes back into the Bench by Mittimus, at the Suit of him in the first Remainder, and thereupon he had a Scire Facias to execute the Fine, and died without Issue before Execution had; he in the Remainder in Fee shall not hereupon have a Scire Facias without a new Commandment, because the Record was once out of Court, and came again at the Suit of him in the first Remainder, unto whom he in Remainder in Fee is a Stranger; yet the Issue of him which removed the Record in this Case might have a Scire Facias without any new Commandment, because he is privy. 14 H. 7. 16. 9 E. 4. 15. 11 E. 4. 13.

If two sue a Scire Facias to execute a Fine, and the one dieth, the Survivor shall have a Scire Facias without any new Commandment. 1 E. 4. 13.

But if divers Persons, as Heirs to A. B. pray a Scire Facias, it is not grantable until they have sued several Writs to the Justices of the Bench, commanding them to make Execution. 11 E. 4. 13. T. 21 E. 4.

In a Scire Facias to execute a Fine as Cousin and Heir to him in Remainder or Reversion How Cousin after the Death of the particular Tenant, the Plaintiff needs not shew how Cousin and Heir, and Heir. so long as the Plea has Continuance, by Idem dies, &c. given to the Tenant, nor at his Appearance, nor until the Plaintiff prays Execution; and then the Coment Cousin & Heir is to be entered thus in the Roll only: And the aforesaid J. says that he is Cousin and Heir of J. W. to wit, the Son and Heir of T. W. the Brother and Heir of J. W. 33 H. 6. 54. 41 E. 3. 13. & 24 H. 8. 4. 31.

In a Scire Facias by him in Remainder upon an Estate-tail against A. B. supposing the Bastardy. Donee to be dead without Issue, if A. B. pleads that he is Issue to the Donee, and the Plaintiff replies that he is a Bastard, it is a good Replication. 40 E. 3. 16.

Scire Facias upon a Fine levied to T. R. and W. and to the Heirs of the Body of R. the Upon Estate Remainder to the right Heirs of the said W. T. died, and R. died without Issue, and W. executed. survived and died; his Heirs need no Scire Facias to execute this Fine, because it is executed in his Life by the Union of the Fee and Freehold in W. 40 E. 3. 20.

And so if a Fine be levied to a Baron and Feme, and to W. and his Heirs, and he dies, and then the Baron and Feme die, the Fine is executed for one Moiety in the Life of W. Fitz. Scire Facias 19. 43 E. 3. 9. 24 E. 3. 57.

Tenant for Life in Scire Facias had Aid of him in Remainder. 41 E. 3. fo. 16. & 20, Aid. 22 E. 3. 12.

In Formedon in Reverter or Remainder, the Demandant must mention the Death of eve-Death shew'd. ry one which ha Estate and survived his Ancestor, but not so in a Scire Facias sur Fine. 42 E. 3. 19.

- Several Estates. If the Plaintiff has several Estates created by one Fine, he needs but one Writ of Scire Facias, 43 Ed. 3. 11. tho' it be of several Things against several Tenants. 11 H. 4. 15.
21 E. 3. 14. 24 E. 3. 25.
- Default. If in a Scire Facias the Sheriff returns the Party summoned, and he appears not, Execution shall be awarded. 43 E. 3. 13.
- Reversion. If a Fine sur Cognissance de droit come, &c. be levied of a Reversion by the Name of the Land, it is not executory. 43 E. 3. 15.
- Seignior. If the Services escheat after a Fine levied of the Seignior, the Cognisee shall have Execution of the Land escheated. 48 H. 3. 11.
- Of Things out of the Writ. A Scire Facias lies sometimes of Things not comprised in the Writ; as if in a Fine sur Release the Cognisee renders Rent in Tail. 48 E. 3. 8.
- Execution by Entry of him in Remainder. If Land be given by Fine for Life, the Remainder to Baron and Feme in Tail, and the Baron dies, and then the Tenant for Life dies, and the Feme enters, the Fine is executed so as their Issue needs no Scire Facias. 49 Ed. 3. 12.
Scire Facias lies for the Donor in Tail against any that abates after the Death of the Donee in Tail by Fine, without Issue. 22 E. 3. 12.
Upon general Non-tenure pleaded, the Plaintiff may take Execution at his Peril: But special Non-tenure seems a good Plea. 7 H. 6. 25.
A Man shall not have Execution upon Nil returned, because the Tenant may be summoned in the Land demanded. 24 E. 3. 25.
If a Fine be levied to Husband and Wife in Tail, the Remainder to his right Heirs, and they having Issue, the Husband dies, the Wife has Issue by another Husband and dies, the Issue by the first Husband enters and dies without Issue, and his next Heir enters, as into the Remainder in Fee, against whom the Issue by the second Husband brings a Scire Facias and recovers, by reason that the Fee could never execute in Possession in the Elder Brother during the Estate-tail. 24 E. 3. 30 & 62.
A Feoffment with Warranty from the Plaintiff's Ancestor, is a good Plea in a Scire Facias upon a Fine. 22 H. 6. 39.
The Heir shall have his Age in Scire Facias. Cont. Westm. 2. cap. 45. — 24 E. 3. 28 & 60.

(ZZ) Of Attornment upon a Fine.

A Fine of a Reversion ought not to be ingrossed until the Tenant for Term of Life attorns, for until Attornment he is punishable of Waste; neither can the Cognisee avow upon him for the Rent behind before Attornment. 22 H. 6. fol. 13. Plow. 431.

And the Cognisee may compel such Tenant for Life to attorn by Quid juris clamat, a judicial Writ issuing out of the Record of the Fine which lies in the Custos Brevium's Hand, and lies for the Grantee of a Reversion or Remainder to force the particular Tenant to attorn.

Or a Quem redditum reddit, a judicial Writ issuing out of the Note of a Fine against the Tenant of the Land, to compel him to attorn upon the Grant of Rent-Seck or Rent-charge out of the Land.

Or a Per quæ servitia, a judicial Writ issuing from the Note of a Fine, and lies for the Cognisor of a Manor, Seignior, chief Rent, or other Services, to compel him that is Tenant of the Land at the Time of the Note of the Fine levied to attorn unto him.

And this must always be sued forth upon the Note of the Fine made by the Chirographer, and before it be ingrossed by him, for after the Ingrossing it cannot be had, F. N. B. 47. a. b.

For more concerning these Writs and the Forms thereof, see 2 West's Symb. from p. 47 to 54.

Note, That by Stat. 11 G. 2. c. 19. §. 11. The Attornment of Tenants to others is void, except in Consequence of Judgments or Decrees, or with the Consent of the Landlord, or in Case of Mortgages forfeited.

See more concerning Attornment before, p. 457.

(AAA) Of avoiding Fines in general.

- A Fine may be avoided for good Cause in many Cases; as,
1. By the Death of all or some of the Parties before it is finished.
  2. By some Error escaped in the suing of it out and Prosecution of it.
  3. By Fraud, Deceit or Covin that hath been used in it.

4. By Claim, Entry, &c.

5. By Sentence of a Court.

And so it is sometimes avoidable by a Writ of Deceit, sometimes by a Writ of Error, and sometimes by Pleading only.

The avoiding of a Fine by one defeats it against all, altho' their Right were bound before by their Non-claim, which sets at large all other Rights above them. Plow. 358.

If the Husband and Wife levy a Fine, and both of them be within Age, whilst either of them be within Age they may avoid the Fine as against them both. 1 Co. 76.

2 Co. 77.

But if there be Tenant for Life, and he in Remainder in Tail being an Infant, and they two levy a Fine, and he in Remainder reverse it for Infancy; this shall not avoid the Fine as to the Tenant for Life also. Ibid.

Lands that are bought of divers Persons may pass by one Fine, and then the Writ of Covenant must be brought by all the Vendees against all the Vendors, and they must every one of them warrant for himself and his Heirs, and such a Fine is good.

If Lands lie in divers Shires, it may be contained in one Concord, and good enough; but there must be several Writs of Covenant in every County, else the Fine will not be good.

15 Ed. 4. 33. Dyer 227.

A Fine may be reversed as to part of the Land, but cannot be reversed in toto as to one man, and stand good as to another. Ld. Raymd. 179.

First, By Death of some of the Parties.

If either of the Parties Cognisors die after the Cognisance or Concord, and before the King's Silver be entered, this will avoid the Fine, and it cannot be made good: But if the King's Silver be entered in Paper, or upon the Back of the Writ or Covenant (as the Use is) and the Party dies after this; the Fine by this shall not be avoided, but may be finished. Vide Cro. Eliz. 469. Dyer 89, 320, 220, 246. 5 Co. 39. Co. Lit. 9. 2 Inst. 511. Hob. 330, 403, 404.

Where the Cognisor dies after the Cognisance made, the Writ of Covenant and Dedimus Potestatem being antedated, and the King's Silver paid, the Fine will be a good Fine. Jenk. Cent. 4. c. 28. 7. c. 3.

It is held also, that if a Judge take the Cognisance of a Fine, and before it be certified the King demises, and the Judge has Notice of this; that now the Fine cannot be certified, for his Patent is at an End: And there seems to be the same Reason for Commissioners to take a Cognisance by Dedimus Potestatem. Jenk. Cent. 4. c. 28.

Note, That where any fine is levied, it shall be said to be all that Term wherein it is levied in pectore judicis to amend it for Error, as the Judges see Cause. Latch 180.

If any one of the Conusors dies before the Conusance be certified after it is acknowledged and taken, the Fine cannot now be made a good Fine; and yet if the Commissioners shall certify this Conusance with an Antedate, and the Fine be finished, this may be a good Fine at the Common Law: But if the Conusance be certified, and the King's Silver paid to the King before the Death of the Conusor, the Fine may be ingrossed and finished after his Death well enough, and it will be a good Fine.

And if a Feme Sole makes a Conusance of a Fine, and before it be certified and ingrossed she takes a Husband; this will not hinder the Fine from being finished; and altho' it be recorded and issued out in her Name as Sole, whereas in Truth she is Covert and of another Name, yet the Fine is good; however in this Case it is not amiss to get a Release of Errors from her Husband. Dyer 220, 246, 254. Crom. Jur. 92.

Writ of Deceit to avoid a Fine may be brought after the Death of all the Parties. Ld. Raymd. 178.

Secondly, By Error.

The Fine must be levied and sued out in that Manner and Order as before is set forth; for if it be not so, but that there wants an original Writ, or if there be one, it bears Teste after the Dedimus Potestatem, or the like; it will be a defective Fine, and either ipso facto, or at least voidable by Writ of Error.

No Error but such as is notorious shall avoid a Fine; for in this the Rule is, Consensus tollit errorem.

If there wants an Original, or if there be a Writ, and that bears Teste after the Dedimus Original Dedimus Potestatem, or the Dedimus Potestatem be to two, and one alone takes it; this, it is said, dimus, is Error, for which the Fine may be reversed; but for the Teste of the Writ of Covenant after the Dedimus Potestatem, this is amendable. Latch 186.

A Writ

Error De re-
cordo quod co-
ram vobis,
&c.

A Writ of Error De recordo quod coram vobis, &c. lies in B. R. on Affirmance there of a Fine levied in C. B. Salk. 337, 338.

And yet the Writ of Error in B. R. to reverse a Fine in C. B. removes the Transcript only, and not the Record itself. Salk. 337, 338, 341.

But if the Court of B. R. adjudge the Fine erroneous, then a Certiorari goes to the Chirographer to certify the very Fine, and when it comes up it is actually cancelled. Salk. 341.

Error contrary to the Record.

No Error may be alledged to reverse a Fine where the Error is contrary to the Record or Certificate of the Justices; as to say, the Commissioner was not a Knight, when the Dedimus Potestatem saith he was. Jenk. Cent. 6. c. 53. Dyer 89. Cro. Jac. 11. Yelv. 33.

Caption.

If a Dedimus Potestatem be awarded against two, and one of them takes the Caption of the Fine, which is afterwards drawn up in the Common Pleas, yet the Party may have a Writ of Error, because the Caption was without Warrant, being contrary to the Record, for the Dedimus is Parcel of the Record; but if such an erroneous Caption be taken on a Dedimus, and the Fine is drawn up not as upon a Dedimus, but as a Fine acknowledged in Court; in such Case it shall not be avoided for Error in the Caption. Yelv. 33. Cro. Jac. 11.

The Writ of Covenant was returnable Oftab' Pur', and dated 23d January, the Dedimus Potestatem bore Date the same Day, and the Judge certified the Caption on the 14 of February, which was two Days after the Term, and the Fine was hec est finalis concordia facta, &c. in Oftab' Pur' and afterwards it was recorded in Easter Term; and yet this was adjudged a good Fine. Hutt. 135.

tions.

Four Proclamations were made on a Fine every Term, according to the Statute 4 H. 7. but the 13th was made on the 7th of June, which was not dies juridicus, being Sunday, and that was assigned for Error to reverse the Fine; but adjudged that the Fine should stand, and the Proclamations only should be reversed; for the Statute doth not appoint any new Form of Fines, but they remain in Substance and Form as they were before; it is true it gives Proclamations upon the Fine, to the Intent that Strangers may have Notice of it; but the Fine itself is perfect without Proclamations, and being Matter of Record, shall bind the Parties. Plow. Com. 265. Dyer 182.

Scire Facias.

On Error to reverse a Fine a Scire Facias must go against the Ter-tenants, for the Conusees are (often) but nominal Persons. Salk. 339. 2 Salk. 598.

The same Rule is affirmed and said to be for fear of Purchasors and in Favour of them; and though in Strictness of Law a Scire Facias being returned against the Conusees is sufficient, yet the Course of the Court is to have it also against the Ter-tenants. Salk. 339.

Error to reverse a Fine levied in the County Palatine of Chester, and several Errors assigned; but because there was no Scire Facias against the Ter-tenant, who might have something to plead as a Release or other Matter, there was no Answer made to the Errors, but a Mandamus was awarded to the Chamberlain of Chester, to warn the Ter-tenant ad audiend' errores. Dyer 321.

Error to reverse a Fine levied by Charles Earl of Devonshire; the Writ was brought by the Plaintiff as Cousin and Heir of the Earl, and a Scire Facias ad audiend' errores, and did not shew in either of those Writs how he was Cousin to the Earl; adjudged good, for the first Writ is only a Commission to hear Errors, and needs not such Certainty; and the Scire Facias is founded upon it, in which it is not requisite to shew any Title, unless it is in some special Case varying from the common Form; and though in some Writs and Cases it is shewed how Cousin, as in Vernon's Case, yet it is not necessary so to do. Mich. 14 Jac. Sir Richard Champernoou ver. Sir William Godolphin.

Bar.

One may bar himself of this Writ of Error by a Feoffment of the Land, or a Release of his Right to the Land, or by a Recovery, or by a Fine and five Years past. Cro. Eliz. 69. Co. 77. 2 Co. 77. 2 Inst. 518. Cro. Jac. 332. 2 Leon. 263.

And by making of a Lease for Years, he may suspend it.

A Writ of Error was brought to reverse a Fine levied in Lancaster by Tenant in Tail; the Defendant in the Writ of Error pleaded in Bar, that the Tenant in Tail had suffered a Recovery, in which he was vouched, and thereupon he appeared, and vouched the common Vouchee; and upon Demurrer the Question was, whether the Issue in Tail was not barred by the coming in of the Tenant in Tail as Vouchee, to bring this Writ of Error to reverse an erroneous Fine which he had levied; and adjudged that he was barred. Moer 367.

Lands in divers Counties.

If the Lands lie in divers Counties, and there be not several Writs of Covenant for every County, this will be Error. Dyer 225. 15 Ed. 4. 13.

Where

Where Error is in the Proceed of the Proclamations only, there they only shall be reversed, and the Rest of the Fine shall stand good at Common Law. Hughes's Abr. 938.

Case 2, 3, 4.

Husband and Wife levied a Fine of the Lands of the Wife, she being then under Age, and Infancy, afterwards they suffered a Recovery, wherein they being vouched, vouched over the common Vouchee, &c. there were two Writs of Error brought, one to reverse the Fine, and the other the Recovery; adjudged that it was clear the Fine ought to be reversed for the Infancy of the Wife; but it was doubted concerning the Reversal of the Recovery, because she appeared in Person, and vouched; yet afterwards it was reversed. Goldf. 181.

Husband and Wife levied a Fine of the Lands of the Wife, she being an Infant; both of them brought a Writ of Error to reverse the Fine; adjudged that it shall be reversed as to both for the Infancy of the Wife, and not stand good as to the Husband, and be reversed as to her, because it is an intire Thing, and cannot be affirmed in Part and reversed in Part. Leon. 115. Owen 21.

Tenant for Life, Remainder to an Infant in Fee, join in a Writ of Error to reverse a Fine, it shall be reversed as to the Infant only. Leon. 155.

An Infant may avoid a Fine by a Writ of Error during his Minority, but not afterwards. 2 Co. 230. Dyer 201.

After the Teste of the Writ of Covenant, and the Dedimus Potestatem to take a Fine of a Marriage, Feme Sole, and before the Day in Bank to record and ingross it, she married; adjudged that this Fine shall be ingrossed as her Fine; for she had done all she could do, and the Fine shall bind her and her Heirs; but if she had died, in such a Case the Writ of Covenant should abate, that being by the Act of God, but Marriage was her own Act. Dyer 246.

Error to reverse a Fine, that it was levied of a Reversion, &c. and the Conusee brought Death. a Quid juris clamat, in order to compel the Tenant to attorn, and pending the Writ he died; then his Heir brought a new Quid juris clamat, and the Tenant pleaded, that as to one Part he claimed the Fee, and as to the other Part he was ready to attorn, and the Plaintiff accepted thereof, and as to Remainder Quod defendens eat inde sine die; and the Fine was ingrossed, and Proclamations made; the Error assigned was, that the Conusee alone was to have Election, whether he would have the Fine with Proclamations or not, and that he being now dead, his Heir cannot have it with Proclamations; besides, the Judgment in the Quid juris clamat is, that the Fine be ingrossed for Part, and here it was ingrossed for the Whole; but adjudged that the Heir hath Election to have the Fine with Proclamations as well as his Ancestor had, for it is for his Benefit; as for the Quid juris clamat it is not material, for the Conusee might have the Fine ingrossed without that Writ; it is true he might not compel the Tenant to attorn without it, therefore he brought the Writ for that Purpose; and though the Judgment is, that the Fine be ingrossed in Part, yet if he will he may have all the Fine ingrossed. Cro. Eliz. 692.

The Husband made a Feoffment in Fee to the Use of himself and his Wife and the Heirs of their two Bodies, Remainder to the right Heirs of the Husband; they had Issue a Daughter, then the Husband died, and the Daughter married, and she and her Husband joined in a Fine to confirm her Estate, and then she died without Issue; her Cousin and Heir brought a Writ of Error to reverse the Fine, and assigned for Error, that after the Writ of Covenant and before the Caption certified, viz. 25th of March, which was before the Teste of the Dedimus, the Daughter died; but this being contrary the the Record certified by the Judge who took the Caption, was not suffered to be assigned for Error. Dyer 89.

So where fifteen Proclamations were made, and one of them out of Term; it was adjudged that the Fine should stand, and the Proclamations be reversed. Dyer 216.

Writ of Error to reverse a Fine; and the Error assigned was, that the Ancestor of the now Plaintiff in Error who levied this Fine, died between the Teste and Return of the Writ of Covenant; the Defendant pleaded, that after the Death of him who levied the Fine, the Father of the now Plaintiff entered on Parcel of the Lands, and made a Feoffment in Fee to B. G. and upon Demurrer to this Plea it was adjudged for the Defendant, and that the Plaintiff was barred of this Writ of Error by the Entry of his Father, and his Feoffment of Parcel; for where a Man hath a Right of Action to recover the Land, and it is suspended or extinguished as to Parcel, it is extinguished as to the Whole; but if he hath an actual Right to the Land itself, he may release or suspend it as to Part, and it shall remain good for the Residue. Moor 413.

Tenant in Tail, Remainder to H. in Tail, Remainder to W. M. in Tail, the Remainder over in Fee, &c. The Tenant in Tail and his Wife and H. who was the next in Remainder, join in a Fine, and on the last Day of January 3 Car. the Writ of Covenant was brought, and the Caption was 2d of February following; and so the Fine went on, and five Years and more passed; then a Writ of Error was brought to reverse it, and the Error assigned was, for that the Tenant in Tail having Issue, died before the Return of the Writ, or the King's Silver was entered, so that the Estate-tail descended on his Issue, and by Consequence H. the next in Remainder, had nothing at the Time of the Perfecting the Fine; and thereupon he alledged Diminution in the Record, before the Chief Justice of Chester, (this Fine being levied there) and afterwards before the Prothonotary, who returned no Diminution on the Record, for that the King's Silver was entered on a Paper-Book in the Office, &c. without shewing for what; and thereupon the Defendant demurred, and that the Plaintiff joined in Demurrer. It was insisted, that this was no Entry of the King's Silver, it being in Paper, and all Records ought to be in Parchment; it is true, if a Feme Sole brings a Writ of Covenant which is taken by Dedimus, (as in this Case) and before the Return of the Writ she marries, the Fine shall go on and bind her, because the Marriage was her own Act; but in the principal Case, the Death of the Tenant in Tail was by the Act of God, and as to the five Years passing, that shall not hinder where the Fine itself was erroneous; and of this Opinion were two Judges, and so was the Chief Justice; but he held, that the Entry of the King's Silver could not come in Question; for to proceed on a Fine after the Death of the Cognisor, and before the Return of the Writ, is building without a Foundation; that in all Fines the Writ of Covenant is the Foundation; that where the King's Silver is entered, and the Fine ingrossed, the Fine is good though one of the Parties die; that even in the principal Case, if the Tenant in Tail had not died, the King's Silver might be paid; and if not, yet there was a Composition for it; and in Favour of common Assurances it shall be presumed to be paid; so Judgment was, that the Fine shall be reversed in the Whole. 2 Sid. 54, 92. Dyer 246.

Misnomer.

Tenant in Tail of a Messuage and Lands called Estons, lying in L. levied a Fine thereof by the Name of a Messuage, and 200 Acres, &c. lying in Effington, Eston and Chilford; and the Jury found that there was not any Vill, Hamlet, or Lieu Conus, by the Name of the Messuage or Tenement called Estons, out of the Vill or Hamlets, and that none of the said Tenements were in Effington or Chilford; it was objected, that a Fine cannot be of Lands in a Vill or Hamlet, by the Name of a Lieu Conus, for the Vill being the Principal, ought to be named; but adjudged that the Fine being an amicable Assurance, ought to be taken favourably; and since it is recorded, it shall be good. Cro. Car. 196 & 201.

In a special Verdict in Ejectment the Case was, A Fine was levied of Lands in the Parish of St. Inderion; the Cognisor had Lands in Portgwyn, and the Jury found that Portgwyn had a Tithingman, but that the Constables of St. Inderion did exercise their Authority in Portgwyn; the Question was, whether the Lands in Portgwyn passed by this Fine; and this depended upon another Question, whether Portgwyn was of itself a Parish, because it had a Tithingman, or whether it was a Vill or Hamlet in the Parish of St. Inderion; adjudged that if it had been found that they had distinct Constables, and could not interfere in their Authority, that then they might be distinct Parishes; but here it is found that the Constables of St. Inderion did exercise their Authority in Portgwyn, therefore it must be a Vill in Inderion, and a Parish may contain many Villages; and if a Fine is levied of Lands in the Parish, it passeth whatsoever is in the Villages. Vent. 170. 2 Mod. 234. 2 Vent. 31.

Misprision amended.

The Conusor levied a Fine of a Manor, and of several Acres of Lands, naming them, to the Value of 20 Marks per Annum, so that the King's Silver was 40s. for the Whole, and the Clerk to whom it was paid entered it thus, (viz.) B. G. Dat Domino Regi 40s. pro licentia concordandi in placito conventionis of so many Acres, leaving out the Manor; upon which a Writ of Error was brought; and the Transcript of the Record being removed into the King's Bench, it appearing to the Judges of the Common Pleas, upon Examination, that the King's Silver was paid for the Whole, they amended the Record, it being but the Misprision of the Clerk. 5 Co. 43.

Variance.

Error to reverse a Fine, because the Caption was by Roger Manwood Chief Baron, on the 27 Martii 27 Eliz. and the Dedimus Potesstatem was dated 9 Aprilis, so as the Caption was taken without Warrant; but this was held not to be Error; then it was objected, that the Caption was upon the Dedimus, in which the Land was mentioned to be to the Husband and Wife, and to the Heirs of his Body on her Body to be begotten; and the Fine ingrossed was, to the Heirs of the Body of the Husband on her to be begotten; so the Word Body was left out; but adjudged this Variance was not material, because in both Cases the Words are of the same Import, and the Wife hath but an Estate for Life, and the Husband an Estate-tail in both Limitations. Cro. Eliz. 275.

The Writ of Covenant and the Dedimus Potesstatem were, that a Fine should be of the Manor of R. and of 20 Acres of Land, and 40s. Rent in R. and the Concord was, Quod cognovit Manerium & Tenementa præd' cum pertinentiis esse jus, &c. leaving out the Rent, and so it varies from the Writ of Covenant and Dedimus; and this upon Error brought was assigned for Error; but adjudged it was not Error, because the usual Course of the Fine-Office is, is, that where a Fine is levied of a Manor and a Rent, &c. if the Rent is under 5*l.* yearly, they never mention it in the Fine; but if it is 5*l.* or more, then they mention it in the Concord; another Error assigned was, that the Dedimus was directed to Roger Manwood, who was then a Knight, and the Caption was taken by Roger Manwood, Knight, and so certified by him; but this was not allowed, because it was expressly against the Judge's Certificate. Cro. Jac. 11.

That Variance in the Persons in the Render, or of the Estates of Lands, except it be very gross, will not make it void. Hughes's Abr. 239. Case 9. 946. Case 10.

Notwithstanding a Variance between the Deed and the Fine, yet the Fine is by Construction of Law to the Uses of the Deed, if nothing appears to the contrary. Lord Raym. 239.

Writ of Error to reverse a Fine, and one of the Parties to the Fine was omitted in the Writ, whereupon the Plaintiff in Error moved for Leave to quash it; but it was denied, because the Court cannot take Notice of any Thing but what is of Record; however they made a Rule that the other Side should shew Cause why the Plaintiff might not discontinue, though Writs of Error are seldom discontinued. 5 Mod. 67.

Thirdly, By Fraud, Deceit or Covin.

If a Fine be gotten or obtained by any notorious Fraud or Practice, it may in some Cases be avoided by a Vacat. Vide Cro. Eliz. 518, 531, 471. Moor, Case 21. Plow. 370.

If a Lessee for Life or Years, or a Copyholder, levies a Fine of Covin on Purpose to bar him in Reversion, or the Lord of his Inheritance; this may be avoided for Fraud, and therefore Non-claim within five Years shall not hurt in this Case. 9 Co. 105. 3 Co. 78.

And as a fraudulent Deed or Conveyance may be avoided for Fraud, so a Fine may be avoided.

So also it seems the Law is of a Fine suffered in Pursuit of an usurious Contract. 3 Co. 18, 80, 45. 16 H. 7. 5. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 45. Stat. 13 Eliz. & 76 Eliz. Style 288.

A Fine levied to deceive a Purchaser or Creditor, may be void, or be voidable. Vide 3 Co. 79.

But if one pretends Title to Land, and enters and disseises the Tenant, and after levies a Fine with Intent to bar the Disseisee; this is good.

And if the Disseisee shall not enter or claim within the five Years, he is barred. 3 Co. 79.

Note, That it is Felony without Benefit of Clergy, without Corruption of Blood or Loss of Dower, to acknowledge, or procure to be acknowledged, any Fine, Recovery, &c. in the Name of any Person not privy or consenting thereunto: But this does not extend to a Judgment acknowledged by Attorney of Record for another. Stat. 21 Jac. 1. c. 6.

The Conusor being possessed of several Lands under several Titles, viz. some for Years, of others by Copy of Court-Roll, and of some in Fee, made a Lease of the Whole to B. G. for Life, and then levied a Fine of so many Acres to him as amounted to the whole Land, and continued in Possession, and paid the Rent to the Lord till the five Years passed; adjudged that the Lord should not be barred of the Copyhold by this Fine, because he could not possibly have Notice of the Covin. 3 Co. 77.

If a Fine be levied of Covin by a Lessee for Years or Life, or a Copyholder, on Purpose and with an Intent to bar him in Reversion, or the Lord of his Inheritance; this is of no Force, and therefore Non-claim within five Years will not hurt in this Case.

So that it seems a Fine or Recovery may be covinous and avoidable for Covin as well as a Deed, and therefore a Fine or Recovery levied or suffered of Fraud, to deceive Purchasers or Creditors, will be void as to them as well as any other Conveyance.

So also a Fine or Recovery levied or suffered in Execution, or Pursuit of an usurious Contract, may be avoided by the Statutes of Usury as well as a Feoffment or other Conveyance by Deed.

But a Fine or Recovery shall not be said to be levied or suffered per duress, and avoided for that Cause.

One A. G. being seised in Fee of Lands, &c. B. G. procured another Man to take upon him the Name of the said A. who was then beyond Sea, and to acknowledge a Fine of the Lands to the said B. G. which was accordingly done; for which Offence each of the said Persons were fined in a very great Sum in the Star-Chamber, but no Sentence to take the Fine from the Roll, or Damages to the Party grieved. 12 Co. 123. Moor 630. S. C. that a Vacat was made of the Fine.

Although the Court of Chancery has a Power to relieve as much against a Fine obtained by Fraud or Practice as any other Kind of Conveyance, yet such Relief was not by decreeing decreeing a Vacat of the Fine, but by ordering a Re-conveyance; but that for any Error in the Fine, or Irregularity, or ill Practice in the Commissioners, it was a Matter cognisable in that Court where the Fine was levied, and for which that Court may vacate the Fine. Abr. Ca. Eq. 259.

Writ of Deceit to avoid a Fine may be brought after the Death of all the Parties. Lord Raym. 178.

Fourthly, By Claim, Entry, &c.

A Fine also is and may be sometimes avoided, or at least lose much of its Force, by the Claim, Entry or Action of him that hath Right to the Land; for if the Estate contained in a Fine be once within five Years after Proclamation lawfully defeated, the Party hath thereby left his whole Estate both against him which did reverse the same, and against all others which had Right or Title paramount, and made no Claim within the five Years, although he which brings the Action has no Judgment and Execution within seven Years after the Proclamations.

In like Manner if there be a Tenant for Life, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder in Fee, and the first Tenant for Life aliens, and the Alienee levies a Fine with Proclamations, and the second Tenant for Life claims or enters, &c. this makes void the Fine both against him and against him in Remainder also; for it is a Rule, that any one that hath an Estate in Possession or Reversion which will be barred by the Fine when it is levied, may make a Claim or Entry to prevent the Bar of the Fine.

As Tenant for his own or for another's Life, Tenant for Years, he in Reversion or Remainder after an Estate for Life or Years, a Copyholder, or the Lord, a Guardian in Nature or Nurture, may avoid a Fine; and this they may do for themselves and others, and for others without Authority precedent, or Assent subsequent, and the Claim of one of them in this Case shall avail the other. And by Authority also, any other Man may make a Claim, Entry, &c. in this Case for him that hath Right; and so he may do also without any Authority precedent, if the Party for whom he doth it do afterwards agree and assent unto it; but a Stranger of his own Head (unless perhaps it be for an Infant) cannot make such a Claim or Entry to prevent the Bar of a Fine, except he that hath the Right do give him Authority before it be done, so to do, or do agree to it after it be done.

And therefore if a Stranger of his own Head will make an Entry or Claim into Land whereof a Fine is levied whereunto I have Right, and he does it to my Use, and I do not agree to it within the five Years, this Entry or Claim will not avoid the Fine.

And yet it was held by Just. Doderidge, M. 2 Car. B. R. that if a Stranger enters in my Name and to my Use that has the Right, this doth vest the Estate in me before Agreement, and I shall be said to agree until I do disagree. Plew. 358, 359. 9 Co. 106.

Lands were devised to Trustees till Debts paid, and then to an Infant and his Heirs; and J. S. a Stranger entered into the Lands and levied a Fine, and five Years and Non-claim pass, and the Infant when of Age brought an Ejectment, but was barred, because the Trustees ought to have entered; yet Equity will relieve, and not suffer an Infant to be barred by the Laches of his Trustees, nor to be barred of a Trust-Estate during his Infancy; and the Infant in this Case shall recover the mesne Profits. 2 Vern. 368.

Fifthly, By Plea.

A Fine also is and sometimes may be avoided by Plea, as by Averment of the Continuance of Seisin of the Land in another at and before the Time of the Fine levied, and that Partes finis nihil habuerunt tempore levationis finis, and then he must shew in whom the Estate was.

As if Lessee for Years, or a Disseisee, levies a Fine to a Stranger that has nothing in the Land, or A. be disseised by B. and B. be disseised by C. and B. levies a Fine to D. or one that has a Right of Remainder only, or a Disseisor makes a Gift in Tail, and the Donee makes a Feoffment to A. and after levies a Fine to a Stranger that has nothing in the Land.

But this Plea, it seems, neither Parties nor Privies, altho' they be Issues in Tail, may have at this Day, but Strangers only; and therefore in the last Case the Disseisor and not the Issue in Tail may avoid this Fine by this Plea.

But if a Collateral Ancestor of whom the Issue in Tail does not claim the Land levies such a Fine, the Issue may by this Plea avoid it.

It seems also the Issue in Tail may have this Plea to a Fine sur Release only. Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 24. 3 Co. 141, 88. Dyer 334.

Also

Also there is a Plea by which (as it seems) a Fine hath been avoidable, which in Effect is nothing else but an Averment of Seisin still in the Demandant or Plaintiff, or his Heirs, before, at and after the Time of the Fine levied.

And this Plea (as it seems) no Man may have at this Day but the Issue in Tail only to avoid a Fine levied sur Grant & Render by the Ancestor in Tail, and not to avoid a Fine levied sur Cognisance de droit come ceo que il ad de son done, &c. and a Feme Covert to avoid a Fine levied by her Husband alone.

If there be two of one Name, and one of them levies a Fine of the Land of the other, or a Stranger levies a Fine of him that is Owner of the Land; in both these Cases the Fine may be avoided by Pleading the special Matter: And yet some hold in this Case the Party hath no Remedy but by Action of Deceit.

Fine levied by one of the same Name of the other's Lands, may be avoided by Deceit or Pleading.

The Plea of per Duress, or Imprisonment, will not, it is said, be admitted. 17 E. 3. 52.

17 Aff. 17.

Issue in Tail may aver Continuance of Possession against a Fine sur Cognisance de droit tantum, or Surrender. See 12 Ed. 4. 12, 15. 11 H. 4. 85.

But not against sur Cognisance de droit come ceo que il ad de son done.

For Pleas to avoid a Fine, see Owen's Rep. 21. and Stat. 27 Ed. 1. c. 1.

How a Fine is to be pleaded, see 1 Leon. 386, 986. 2 West's Symb. Cro. Car. 903, 917.

2 Lev. 31.

Error to reverse a Fine brought by one as Cousin and Heir of the Conusor, and a Scire Facias ad audiend' errores, and did not shew in either of the said Writs how he was Cousin and Heir; and this was pleaded in Abatement of the Writ; but adjudged well enough without shewing it, for the Scire Facias is only a Commission to hear Errors, and needs no such Certainty; and the Writ of Error is founded upon it, and therefore it is not necessary to shew the Title in that Writ. Cro. Jac. 160.

Writ of Error to reverse a Fine levied by his Ancestor of twenty Acres of Land; the Defendant pleaded, that the Plaintiff after the Death of his Ancestor did disseise him of the Land, and being in Possession by Disseisin made a Feoffment thereof to B. G. The Plaintiff replied, that he did enter upon the Defendant, absque hoc, that he made a Feoffment to B. G. and upon this they were at Issue; and the Jury found that the Fine was levied of twenty Acres, and that the Plaintiff was in Possession of the Whole by Disseisin, and being so possessed made a Feoffment of six Acres, Part thereof to B. G. Adjudged that this Feoffment was only a Bar to the Reversal of the Fine as to the six Acres; and that it might be reversed as to the Residue for Error. Owen 21. Moor 413.

Formedon in Descender was brought by the Issue in Tail; the Tenant pleaded in Bar and confessed the Estate-tail, but said, that before the Death of the Tenant in Tail B. G. was seised of the Lands in Fee, and levied a Fine to him with Proclamations, and the five Years were passed without Entry or Claim; it was adjudged, that upon this Plea it shall be intended that B. G. was in by Disseisin, and being so in Possession, levied the Fine, which shall be a good Bar to the Issue. March's Rep. Taylor's Case.

The Issue in Tail being privy, as Heir to his Ancestor who levied a Fine, is estopped by the Stat. 27 Ed. 1. which took away Exceptions against Fines levied to plead that Partes finis nihil habuerunt; and by the Stat. 4 H. 7. he cannot make any such Averment. 3 Co. 88.

By the Stat. 1 R. 3. it is enacted, That all Conveyances made by Cestuy que Use shall be good against him and his Heirs; now since this Statute, Fines levied by Cestuy que Use are as good and effectual as if levied of immediate Possessions and Seisins; and by the Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 36. Fines levied by Tenants in Tail of a Possession, Reversion or Use, shall be a good Bar to the Intail; now by the Stat. 4 H. 7. c. 24. which tells us who shall be concluded by a Fine levied, there is a Saving to that Person who is not Party or Privy to the Fine, and that he may plead to avoid it, that none of the Parties, nor any to their Use, had any Thing in the Land at the Time of the Fine levied; and this proves that the antient Form in Pleading a Fine was Quidam finis se levavit, without alledging a Seisin in Fee in the Cognisor. See 2 Lutw. 1608.

Sixthly, By Sentence of a Court.

A Fine also is and sometimes may be avoided by the Sentence of a Court, when it appears Vacat, to be gotten and obtained by some notorious Fraud or Practice.

In some Cases a Fine may be reversed without Writ of Error; as was done in Hutchinson's Case, M. 33 Car. 2. in C. B. where H. and his Wife (she being an Infant of sixteen Years) levied levied a Fine of her Lands, and paid the King's Silver, and got the Fine perfected and exemplified; but on the Complaint of him in the Remainder in Fee depending on the Estate-tail of the Wife, the Husband and Wife were brought into Court by Rule and examined; and thereupon the Levying the Fine and the Infancy appeared, and the Infant's Father and Mother came also into Court, and prayed that the Fine might stand; and tho' Maynard for them insisted, that it ought not to be vacated, the King's Silver being paid; yet on View of the Roll in Pierpoint's Case, Hil. 4 Jac. 1. Rot. 70. and other Precedents cited, the Court vacated this Fine, and caused the Exemplification thereof to be brought in to Court and delivered up, and ordered him in Reversion to prosecute an Information against the Commissioners who took the Cognisance of the Fine.

But note, the Vacate was entered quoad the Feme tantum.

And in Trin. 34 Car. 2. a Fine levied by Sir Robert Massam and his Wife an Infant, was vacated for the same Cause. Vide 3 Lev. 31.

(BBB) Where Equity will not make good a Fine, nor supply any Defect in the Levying it.

IF a Tenant in Tail covenants to levy a Fine, and dies before it is executed, though the Fine has proceeded to a Caption, yet Equity will not make it good, although it be for a valuable Consideration. Abr. Ca. Eq. 358. 2 Vern. 5.

A. has two Sons B. and C. A. on the Marriage of B. covenanted before the End of Easter Term then following, to levy a Fine to the Use of B. and the Heirs of his Body, Remainder to the Use of C. and the Heirs of his Body, Remainder to A. in Tail, Remainder to him in Fee. The Fine was levied as of Easter Term, but the Marriage being put off till after Easter Term, the Deed was not dated till after, so that the Fine was levied before the Date of the Deed, and consequently the Deed was no Declaration of the Uses of that Fine. The Father died, and then B. died, leaving Issue W. who having borrowed some Money of J. S. mortgaged the Land to him and died without Issue. C. claiming under the Settlement brought his Bill to have it established, and that the Defect beforementioned might be supplied; but in Regard the Consideration of B.'s Marriage did not extend to him, the Court refused him any Relief. Abr. Ca. Eq. 258.

S E C T. V.

Of Common Recoveries.

(A) Recovery what, and how a Common Recovery differs from other Recoveries.

A Recovery in general is the obtaining of any Thing unjustly taken or detained, by Judgment or Trial of Law.

And it is either a Common Recovery, which is such a Recovery as is used for a Common Assurance of Land, or a true Recovery which is not used as an Assurance of Land.

A true Recovery is an actual or real Recovery of any Thing, or the Value thereof, by Judgment, as if a Man buys Land of another with Warranty, and this Land is afterwards recovered by a third Person; the Buyer has Remedy against the Seller to recover it in Value, that is, to recover so much Money as the Land is worth. F. N. B. 124.

But the Common Recovery (which is here proposed to be treated of) is Fictio Juris, a feigned formal Thing by Consent, and is used where a Man is desirous to cut off an Estate-tail, &c. in Lands or Tenements, to the End to sell, give or bequeath, as he thinketh meet, for the Assurance of them that shall after have the Land.

And this is somewhat after the Example of the Recovery upon Title, which is without Consent and contrary to the Will of him against whom the same is had: For there is in this a colourable Suit, wherein there is a Demandant which is called the Recoveror, and a Tenant which is called the Recoveree, and one that is called to warrant upon a supposed Warranty, which is called the Vouchee. Co. Lit. 154. Vide the Preamble of the Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 10. 23 Eliz. c. 3. Doct. & Stud. 41.

(B) Of

(B) Of the Origin of Common Recoveries.

Common Recoveries and Fines are said to be first invented when Intails fell out to be inconvenient; for before the Stat. de donis conditionalibus, Westm. 2. cap. 1. Feoffees after they had Issue had Power to alien and disinherit the Issue contrary to the Mind of the Donors.

And by this Statute in Edward the First's Time, the Inheritance was made so strong, as that the Tenant in Tail could not put away the Land from the Heir by any Act of Conveyance or Attainder, nor let it, or any way charge or incumber it longer than for his own Life.

But from this Statute there arose many Inconveniences; for by this Means the Lands were made so sure to the Heir, as that the Father could not put it from him; and hereupon the Son oftentimes proved disobedient, negligent, wasteful, &c. knowing he could not be disinherited; and many Times the Owners themselves of such intailed Lands were less fearful to commit Felonies, Murders, Manslaughters and Treasons, for that they knew that none of these Acts could hurt the Inheritance of their Heir.

Again, such as had intailed Lands could make little or no Profit of them; for none would give a Fine of any Value upon such an uncertain Estate as that of the Owner's Life only, neither would they much improve the Lands for the same Reason, with many other Inconveniences.

For the Remedy whereof several later Statutes were made; as 4 H. 7. c. 24. 32 H. 8. c. 36. whereby a Tenant in Tail may disinherit his Son by Fine and Proclamations.

By 26 H. 8. c. 13. Tenant in Tail forfeits his Land for Treason.

By 32 H. 8. he may make Leases for twenty-one Years or three Lives, &c.

By 33 H. 8. intailed Lands are liable by Extent for the King's Debt.

And by 13 Eliz. c. 4. they are saleable for his Arrearages upon his Account for his Office.

Also for the Remedy of those Inconveniences of intailed Lands these Common Recoveries were first invented, and Men began to cut off Intails by such Means as they could find Law for it; and now by Use these Recoveries are become Common Assurances against Intails, and against Remainders and Reversions, and are the greatest Assurances that Purchasers have for their Money, being grounded upon the strictest Principles of the Law, though by Consent; for a Fine will bar the Heirs in Tail, but not the Remainders or Reversions; but these Recoveries will bar them all. Co. 22, 62.

Mr. West, in his Symbol. Part. 2. §. 1. saith, That the End and Effect of a Common Recovery is to discontinue and destroy Estates, Remainders and Reversions, and to bar the former Owners thereof.

(C) The Nature and fictitious Formality in suffering Common Recoveries.

THE Common Recovery is sometimes with a single Voucher, which is when the Writ is brought against him that is to pass the Land immediately, and he does vouch over the Common Vouchee.

And sometimes it is with a double Voucher, which is when the Writ is brought against another to whom he that is to pass the Land has aliened it, and he does vouch him that is to make the Assurance, and he does vouch over the Common Vouchee; and this is the surest Way, and the safest Kind of Recovery.

The Formality of a Common Recovery is, that by Agreement of the Parties a real Action is begun by a Writ of Entry brought by him that is to have the Land assured against him that is to make the same Assurance, if it be with a single Voucher; or if it be with a double Voucher, against him to whom he that is to make the Assurance has aliened the Land.

And in this Suit the Recoverer that brings the Action surmises that the Tenant against whom the Writ is brought has no Right to the Land, but that the Recoverer has Right thereto, and that the Tenant came to it from such a Stranger whom the Demandant does name.

And to this the Tenant does appear in Person or by Attorney, and then enters into Defence of the Land, but in Pleading vouches to warrant, alledges that he bought the Land of J. S. a Stranger, who in the Conveyance thereof bound himself and his Heirs to warrant and make good the Title to him or them to whom it is conveyed, and thereupon he prays that J. S. may be called in to defend the Title, and then he is allowed by the Court to call in J. S. to say what he can for the justifying of his Right to the Land before he so conveyed it.

And

And hereupon J. S. appears and makes shew as if he would defend the Title, but prays further Day may be assigned him to make his Defence, which being granted by the Court, at the Day appointed he by Agreement, Covin and Assent of the Parties, does not come in, but makes Default.

And thereupon the Land is to be recovered by him that brought the Writ against the Tenant, and he is left for his Remedy to J. S. upon this Warranty, and accordingly Judgment is given by the Court that the Demandant or Recoverer shall recover the Land demanded against the Tenant, and that the Tenant shall recover so much Land of J. S. of his own Land in Recompence for the Land recovered from him, which he ought to have warranted and defended, but suffered to be lost. See Co. 94. 10 Co. 43, 45.

And this Recovery over is called a Recovery in Value or pro rata.

Recovery in Value or pro
rata what.

But if the Recovery be with a double Voucher or a treble Voucher, J. S. is upon his Appearance to call or vouch to warrant J. D. and to alledge in the same Manner as the Tenant does, and to pray that J. D. may come in, and thereupon J. D. appears and makes Default: And so if there be more Vouchers, and then there must be several Recoveries over in Value against every one of them; but he that is the last Vouchee is always the Common Voucher, who is one of the Criers of the Court of Common Pleas, a Man not worth any Thing, and one that has no Land to render in Value upon the supposed Warranty.

And by his Devise grounded upon the strict Principles of Law the first Tenant does willingly let go the Land for the Assurance of the Purchaser, and yet in Truth has no Recompence over, because the Vouchee has no Land to render in Value.

And by this Means, if one has an Estate-tail in Lands which he is desirous to sell or to convert into an Estate in Fee-simple, the same is commonly done; for the Tenant in Tail causes the Purchaser, or some Friend of his, to bring a Writ of Entry against him for this Land, and he appears to the Writ, and in Pleading says, that the Land came to him or his Ancestors from such a Man or his Ancestors, who in the Conveyance bound themselves to warrant it.

And thereupon that Man is called in, who appears and makes Default, and thereupon Judgment is had against him in Manner as aforesaid.

Or if he would have the Recovery with a double Voucher, then he by Fine, Feoffment, or Deed of Bargain and Sale inrolled discontinues the Land, and then causes the Recoverer that is to have the Land to bring this Writ of Entry against the Discontinuee, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail, who vouches over the Common Vouchee, and so it is done.

And by this the Estate-tail that the Tenant in Tail has or had is barred and bound, for that it appears now he had no Power to intail the Land whereunto he had no just Title, and besides he shall recover Recompence over in Value; and this is adjudged in Law to go in Succession of Estate as the Land should have done, which is the Reason why the Recovery is a Bar to all that are in Remainder and Reversion as well as to the Issues in Tail. F. N. B. 134. 9 Co. 6.

Warrant of Attorney.

And in the suffering of these Recoveries the Tenants and Vouchees do appear most commonly in Person in Court, and so the Recovery is finished in the Court presently without more ado; but sometimes they will not or cannot appear in Person, and then they appear and suffer the Recovery by Attorney, and in that Case there must be a Consuance for a Warranty of Attorney taken to authorize the Attornies in the Manner mentioned in the Second Part of this Work.

There must be two Attornies at the least, with Authority jointly and severally, that if one of them dies before the Recovery be suffered, the other may have Power to do and dispatch it.

Dedimus Po-
testatem.

And these Warrants of Attorney for the suffering of Recoveries are to be acknowledged and certified in the same Manner as the Consuances of Fines acknowledged in the Country are, except that Recognisances for Warrants of Attorney for Recoveries may be taken by any Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, or any Serjeant at Law, without a Dedimus Potestatem.

But if any others take it, they use to do it by a special Dedimus Potestatem, which is to command the Commissioners therein named to come to such Persons and to take the Names of their Attorney or Attornies in the Suit, and to certify the same in the Chancery under their Seals such a Day.

Examination.

And if a Feme Covert be to make the Consuance, it seems she is to be examined as in the Case of the Consuance of a Fine.

And when this is done the Recoveries may be suffered by the Attornies without the Personal Appearance of the Parties.

And

And this is as good a Recovery as the other which is suffered by the Persons themselves appearing in Court; but it will require longer Time for the Perfection of it; for in this Case there must go forth a Summoneas ad warrant, which must have nine Returns before the Recovery can be perfected, and by that Time one of the Parties may be dead. Summoneas.

And when the Recovery is thus suffered by the Parties in Person, or by their Attornies, the same is to be entered by some one of the Clerks of the Court of Common Pleas upon the Rolls of the same Court, there to remain upon Record.

And herein there must go forth a Writ of Execution called an Habere facias seisinam, Habere facias which is sent to the Sheriff of the County where the Land lies to put the Recoverer in seisinam. Possession of the Land, except a Recovery be of a Reversion of Land after a Lease for Years of it, in which Case the Reversion shall be in the Recoverers by a Claim without any Writ.

And this Writ the Sheriff returns as executed according to the Contents thereof, although Return in Truth he never does any Thing upon it.

And after all this the same Proceeding is to be exemplified by the Clerk of the same Court. Co. 94. 10 Co. 43.

(D) The Use and Operation of Common Recoveries.

A Recovery being Matter of Record is much of the Nature of a Fine, and such a Thing as whereof the Law takes Notice; for it is now become a formal and orderly Manner of Assurance of Lands, and one of the Common Assurances of the Kingdom, or a Common Way and Means to pass Lands from one to another.

And therefore, if a Tenant for Life suffers such a Recovery of his Land, it is a Forfeiture of his Estate; an Use may be averred upon it as well as upon a Fine, and it may be avoided for Covin as well as any other Kind of Conveyance.

But it is of special Use, and has a special Virtue to bar and bind Estates in Tail, and all the Remainders and Reversions thereupon.

And because many of the Inheritances of the Kingdom depend upon this Assurance, and it is oftentimes the greatest Security Purchasers have for their Money, therefore it has much Favour from the Law at this Day.

And therefore the Law will not endure it shall be disputed against, for Communis error facit jus; and hence it is that it shall not be avoided for small Errors; for it is another Rule of Law, Consensus tollit errorem. 5 Co. 41. 10 Co. 37, 39. 3 Co. 5, 6, 41, 42. Dr. & Stud. 41, 49, 50. Stat. 13 El. c. 5. 23. c. 3. 7 H. 8. c. 4.

And if a Recovery be suffered by a Tenant in Tail, hereby he has not only discontinued, barred and destroyed the Estate-tail, and so defeated himself and his Issues, the former Owner of the Land, and all the Remainders and Reversions thereupon that should take Place after the Estate-tail, whether they be in esse or contingent only, but also all former Estates, Leases and Charges made by him in Remainder or Reversion.

For when the Estate-tail in Possession is not barred by a Recovery, the Estates in Reversion or Remainder are not barred, for Quod non in magis proquinquo non in magis remoto valebit; so it is converso; where the Estate-tail in Possession is barred by the Recovery, all the Remainders and the Reversions, Conditions, Charges, Incumbrances and Estates dependant upon it are barred also, except it be in some special Cases where the Remainder or Reversion is in the King. And therefore,

If A. be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to C. in Fee, or B. or C. makes a Lease for Years of the Land, or grants a Rent-charge out of the Land, or enters into a Statute, or the like, or grants the Remainder or Reversion upon Condition, and after A. suffers a Common Recovery of the Land, and after dies without Issue; in this Case the Recoverer shall hold the Land discharged of all these Estates and Charges in Remainder.

But it is otherwise if A. himself makes a Lease, or enters into a Statute, and then suffers a Common Recovery of the Land; in this Case this Recovery does not avoid but affirm the Lease or Charge; for whereas it was before avoidable by the Issue in Tail, or him in Remainder or Reversion, now it is good against them all, and the Recoverer also shall hold it charged and subject to the Lease and Charge of the Tenant in Tail.

This Kind of Assurance therefore is in some Respects better than a Fine; for a Fine will bar the Heir in Tail, but not him that is in Remainder or Reversion, but a Recovery will bar them all. Co. 62, 25. Doct. & Stud. 49. 44 Ed. 3. 22.

(E) What is the Reason that Common Recoveries are a Bar.

THE Recompence in Value is the Reason of the Bar by Common Recovery against the Issue in Tail, but it is not the Reason of the Bar quoad him in Reversion, or him in Remainder; but the Reason of this is, that the Recoverer by Supposition of Law is in of the Estate-tail, and he had in Judgment of Law a Continuance still; as at Common Law the Donee post prolem fuscitat might have aliened and barred the Donor; and a Common Recovery is as a Conveyance excepted out of the Stat. de donis conditionalibus, and the Recoverer is in of the Estate that the Vouchee had; but the Issue in Tail is barred of his Claimer in Respect of the intended Recompence by the Recovery, and the Estate-tail having in Judgment of Law Continuance, nothing upon the Reversion or Remainder may take Place; and this is the Reason that a Charge made by him in Remainder cannot take Place after the Recovery suffered by Tenant in Tail. 2 Lev. 27.

(F) Who is bound and barred by a Common Recovery.

Cases not prohibited by Statutes.
King.
Subjects.

Common Recoveries should be in such a Case as is not prohibited by some Statute Law; for,

If the King gives any of his own Lands whereof he is seised, or cause or procure another in Consideration of Money or other Land to give the Lands whereof he is seised in Tail to any of his Subjects or Servants in Recompence of their Service, or the like, the Remainder to the King in Fee-simple or Fee-tail; such Estates in Tail cannot be barred by a Common Recovery: And therefore if such a Tenant in Tail shall suffer a Recovery of such Land, it is void, and it will neither bar the Issues in Tail, nor any of them in Remainder, nor the King.

But if the King makes such a Gift in Tail, keeping the Reversion to himself, and after grants the Reversion to another; in this Case the Tenant in Tail may suffer a Recovery, and bar the Estate-tail and the Reversion also.

And where a Subject by the King's Provision makes such a Gift in Tail, and then grants the Remainder to the King for Life or Years only; in this Case the Estate-tail, Remainder and Reversion also may be barred by a Common Recovery.

So in other Cases where a Subject makes a Gift in Tail, the Remainder to the King in Fee; this Estate-tail may be barred by a Common Recovery.

And therefore, if the Tenant be in Tail, the Remainder or Reversion in Fee to another, and he in Remainder or Reversion by Deed indented and inrolled bargains and sells his Remainder or Reversion in Fee to the King; or if one covenants to stand seised to divers Uses in Tail, the Remainder to the King in Fee; in these Cases the Estates and the Reversion and Remainders depending thereupon may be barred by a Recovery.

So if a Man makes a Gift in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and he in Remainder grants his Remainder to another for Life, the Remainder to the King in Fee on Condition the Estate shall be void upon the Tender of 20*l.* in this Case the Estate-tail, and the Reversion also and Condition thereupon may be barred.

So if the Duke of Lancaster had made a Gift in Tail, and the Reversion had descended to the King; this Estate-tail might have been barred by a Recovery.

So if Prince H. Son of H. 7. had made a Gift in Tail, the Remainder to H. 7. in Fee, which Remainder by the Death of H. 7. had descended to H. 8. in this Case the Tenant in Tail might have barred the Estate-tail by a Recovery.

And yet if the King makes a Gift in Tail, the Remainder in Tail, or grants the Reversion in Tail; in these Cases a Common Recovery may not be suffered to bar the Intail, Remainder or Reversion. Stat. 34 H. 8. c. 20. Co. Lit. 371. 2 Co. 5, 16. 8 Co. 77, 78.

Husband and Wife's Jointure.

And if the Husband, for the Advancement of his Wife in Jointure, and the Preferment of the Heirs of their two Bodies, makes an Estate in Tail to him and his Wife and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Wife after her Husband's Death alone by herself, or with any other Husband, suffers a Common Recovery of the Land whereof this Estate is made; this Recovery will not bar the Estate-tail.

But if in this Case the Recovery be suffered by the Heir in Tail, or by the Heir and his Mother together, it is a good Recovery.

And therefore if A. be seised of Land in Fee, and he makes a Feoffment in Fee, to the Intent that the Feoffee shall re-convey it to him and his Wife and the Heirs Male of his Body; and this is done accordingly, and they have Issue a Son, and the surrenders or makes a Forfeiture, and he enters and suffers a Recovery; this is a good Recovery and Bar to the Estate-tail: Or if the Writ be brought against the Mother, and she vouches the Heir

Heir in Tail, and so a Recovery is had, this Recovery will bar the Estate-tail. Stat. 11 H. 7. c. 20. 3 Co. 58, 59, 61.

And howsoever at the Common Law a Recovery against a Tenant for Life with a Voucher upon a lawful Warranty and a Recovery in Value was a Bar to him in Remainder or Reversion; and there was no Remedy in this Case, yet at this Day it is otherwise.

And therefore if Tenant in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, Tenant by the Curtesy, Forfeiture. or any other Tenant for Life, suffer their Lands to be recovered from them by Covin and Agreement, either as immediate Tenants or as Vouches upon feigned Titles, without the Assent and to the Prejudice of him in Remainder or Reversion; such Recoveries are void, and will not bar the Remainders or Reversions, but are Forfeitures of the Estates of such Tenants for Life.

Insomuch that if Tenant for Life be made Tenant in fait to the Writ, or Tenant in Law upon the Voucher, and so a Recovery be had; as if Tenant for Life makes a Lease for Years, and the Lessee for Years makes a Feoffment in Fee, and the Feoffee suffers a Common Recovery in which the Tenant for Life is vouched, and he vouches the Common Vouchee; these Recoveries will not bind the Reversions or Remainders.

But there is no Provision made at this Day to preserve the Reversion or Remainder expectant upon an Estate-tail, nor to avoid a Recovery of the Tenant for Life where he in the next Remainder is agreeing and assenting to it.

And therefore if there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to A. in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, &c. with divers Remainders over, and the Tenant for Life suffers a Common Recovery, in which he vouches A. who vouches the Common Vouchee; in this Case this is a good Recovery, and bars the Estate-tail, the Remainders and Reversions also.

And if one be seised of Land in Fee, and have two Sons, A. by his first Wife, and B. and a Daughter by his second Wife, and he devises the Land to his Wife for Life, the Remainder to B. his Son in Tail, and the Reversion of the Fee descends to A. and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Tenant for Life, and she vouches B. and he vouches the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had without the Assent of the Heir in Reversion; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to all the Estates in Possession, Remainder and Reversion.

And if a Writ of Entry be brought against the Tenant for Life, and he makes Default after Default, and then the next in Remainder in Tail is received, or he prays in Aid of him in Reversion or Remainder, and then they vouch over, and so a Recovery is had; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to all the Estates in Remainder and Reversion.

But if the Writ of Entry be brought against the Tenant for Life and him in the Remainder in Tail together, and they vouch the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had; this will be no good Recovery to bar the Estate-tail. Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 8. 10 Co. 43, 45. 3 Co. 6.

And if Spiritual Persons, as Bishops, Deans, Parsons, and such like, suffer a Recovery of their Ecclesiastical Lands; such a Recovery is void, and will not bind the Successor. Co. Lit. 44.

But if it be not in some such prohibited Case as before, and the Recovery be had and suffered by and between such Persons, and of such Things, and in such a Manner as aforesaid; in such Cases, altho' there be in Truth no Warranty made upon which the Voucher is had, and altho' there be nothing to be recovered in Value, for that the Vouchee has no Land to recover over in Recompence, and altho' no Execution be done in the Life-time of the Party against whom the Recovery is had; yet is the same regularly a perpetual Bar to the Parties against whom the same is had and their Heirs, of all the Estates they have in Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life in them, and against all them in Remainder or Reversion, and their Remainders and Reversions that are depending upon the Estates; with this Difference, the Recovery with the single Voucher does not bar any Estate but such as the Tenant in Tail has in Possession at the Time of the Recovery had; so that if the Tenant in Tail be in any other Estate, as by Disseisin, or the Conveyance of the Disseisor, or the like; this Estate is not barred.

But the Recovery with the double Voucher does bind and bar all Interests, Estates and Titles that the Vouchee has at the Time of the Entry into the Warranty. 10 Co. 373. 1 Co. 94. Plow. 357. 3 Co. 59. 12 Ed. 4. 13. 13 Ed. 4. 1.

If the Writ of Entry be brought against the Tenant in Tail, and he vouches the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had; this Recovery with a single Voucher is a good Recovery, and a Bar to the Estate-tail if it be then in Possession, and not put to a Right, and to all the Remainders and Reversions depending thereupon. 3 Co. 5. 10 Co. 37.

So if Lands be given to A. in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. (B. being then living) and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Tenant in Tail, and he does vouch over over the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to the Estate-tail and the Remainder also.

But if the Tenant in Tail be disseised, and then suffers a Recovery with a single Voucher; or if the Disseisor makes a new Estate in Tail to the Tenant in Tail, and then the Tenant in Tail suffers a Recovery with a single Voucher; or if the Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment in Fee of Land, and then takes back a new Estate to himself from the Discontinuee in Tail or in Fee, and then suffers a Common Recovery with a single Voucher, by this Recovery the Intail is not barred.

But by a Recovery with a double Voucher, in these Cases the Estate-tail is barred.

And therefore where the Tenant in Tail levies a Fine, makes a Feoffment, or bargains and sells the Land by Deed indented and inrolled, and the Writ is brought against the Conufee, Feoffee or Bargainee, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail, and he vouches the Common Vouchee; this bars the Estate-tail, and the Remainders and Reversion depending thereupon.

So if in these Cases the Conufee, Feoffee or Bargainee makes a new Estate in Tail to the Conusor, Feoffor or Bargainor, or he disseises the Conufee, Feoffee or Bargainee, and then levies a Fine, makes a Feoffment, or bargains and sells to another against whom the Writ of Entry was brought, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail, and he vouches the Common Vouchee; by this Recovery the first and second Estate-tail, and all the Remainders and Reversions depending thereupon are barred. 1 Co. 135, 136. 3 Co. 59. 10 Co. 45. 12 Ed. 4. 19. 13 Ed. 4.

So if Lands be given to J. S. and the Heirs Male of the Body of his Wife engendered, and he has Issue a Son, and after his Wife dies, and he discontinues and takes an Estate to him and the Heirs Female of the Body of his second Wife, and after discontinues again, and takes an Estate to him and the Heirs Female of his own Body, and after discontinues again, and the Writ of Entry is brought against the last Discontinuee, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail, who enters into the Warranty generally, and voucheth the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery and a Bar to all the Estates in Tail, and the Remainders and Reversions also.

And if A. before the Statute of Uses had been Tenant in Tail, and had made a Feoffment in Fee to B. and he and B. had after made a Feoffment to C. to the Use of A. and his Wife and the Heir of their two Bodies, and then she had died, and after A. had entered upon C. the Feoffee, and made a Feoffment to W. in Fee, against whom J. S. had brought a Writ of Entry, and he had vouched A. the Tenant in Tail; this had been a good Recovery and a Bar to all the Estates. 3 Co. 5. Plow. in Manxel's Case.

Husband and Wife.

And if Lands be given to Husband and Wife and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, with Remainders over to Strangers, and the Husband alone discontinues the whole Land by Fine, Feoffment, or Bargain and Sale by Deed indented and inrolled, and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Discontinuee, and he vouches the Husband alone without the Wife, and the Husband vouches the Common Vouchee; and so a Recovery is had; this is a good Recovery for the whole Land, and a Bar to all the Estates in Tail and Remainder and Reversion, but not to the Estate of the Wife for her Life after the Husband's Death.

But if Lands be given to the Husband and Wife and the Heirs of their two Bodies, with Remainders over to Strangers, and the Husband alone discontinues, and the Recovery is suffered, as in the last Case; it seems this is no Bar to the Estate in Tail, or Remainder or Reversion, for any Part of the Land.

And yet if Lands be given to J. S. and J. D. in Tail, and J. S. discontinues the Whole, and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Discontinuee, and he vouches J. S. alone; this is a good Recovery for the one Half of the Land, and a Bar to all the Estates.

And if Lands be given as before to Husband and Wife and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and the Writ of Entry is brought against them both, and they vouch the Common Vouchee, or the Husband alone does continue, and the Writ is brought against the Discontinuee, and he vouches the Husband and Wife both, and they enter into the Warranty and vouch the Common Vouchee, and so the Recovery is had; these are good Recoveries for the Whole, and a Bar to all the Estates in Tail, and to the Estate of the Woman, and to all other Estates. 3 Co. 5, 6, 32.

And where Lands are given to a Man and his Wife and the Heirs of the Body of the Wife, or to the Wife and the Heirs of her Body, and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Husband and Wife, and they vouch the Common Vouchee; these are good Recoveries, and will Bar the Husbands and Wives, and the Estates in Tail, Remainder and Reversion.

And where a Man has Land in which his Wife has a Jointure, or to which she will have the Title of Dower after his Death, if the Writ of Entry in this Case be brought against against them both, and they vouch the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had, this Recovery will bar them both: But the Husband alone without her cannot bar her of any such Estate by a Recovery; for she may falsify and avoid it after his Death. Plow. 514.

And if Land be given to Husband and Wife and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Husband alone, and he vouches the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had with a single Voucher; this is no good Recovery of any Part of the Land, nor Bar to any of the Estates altho' the Husband survives the Wife. 3 Co. 5. 1. 12 Ed. 4. 14.

And yet if Lands be given to two others, and the Heirs of the Body of one of them, the Remainder over to a Stranger, and the Writ of Entry is brought against one of them, and he vouches the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to all the Estates for the one Half of the Land.

If Lands be given to A. in Tail, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to C. in Tail, the Remainder to D. in Fee, and A. makes a Feoffment in Fee, and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Feoffee, and he vouches B. (being him in the second Remainder in Tail) to Warranty, and he vouches the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery, and a Bar to the second Estate-tail, and all the Remainders and Reversions depending thereupon; and yet it is no Bar of the first Estate-tail which A. has. 3 Co. 6.

If the Writ of Entry be brought against a Mortgagee, and he vouches the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had; this is no good Recovery to bar or bind the Mortgagor, but that he may enter upon the Condition broken.

So if one gives Lands to B. and his Heirs so long as C. shall have Heirs of his Body, and B. suffers a Common Recovery, and vouches the Common Vouchee; this is no good Recovery to bar the Donor of the Possibility, for in both these Cases he that is to be barred has no Remainder or Reversion, but an Interest or Possibility, which cannot receive a Recompence in Value.

But if in these Cases the Mortgagee vouches to Warranty the Mortgagor, or B. the Donee vouches the Donor, and so they vouch over the Common Vouchee, and so the Recovery is had; these will be good Recoveries to bar both them and their Heirs for ever.

And if one has an Estate in Fee-simple determinable on a Limitation or a Condition, or if Lands be given to A. and his Heirs until B. pays to him 100 l. and then that it shall remain to B. and his Heirs, and A. in this Case suffers a Common Recovery, and vouches the Common Vouchee; it seems this is no Bar to B. and his Heirs, but that upon Payment of the 100 l. he shall have the Land.

So if one by his Will devises his Land thus: I give unto A. my Son and his Heirs for ever my Land in W. paying 20 l. to B. when A. shall come to twenty-one Years of Age, and then that A. and his Heirs shall have it for ever; and if A. shall die without Heirs of his Body, C. being then living, that then C. shall have it to him and his Heirs for ever, and A. pays the 20 l. to B. at his full Age, and then suffers a Recovery of the Land; this is no Bar to C. of his Estate. Cur. Mic. 18 Jac. B. R. & vide the Case of Pell and Brown.

But note in the Cases before, where it is said that a Recovery is void, it is meant as to the Heirs and them in Reversion and Remainder; for as to the Parties themselves that suffer the Recovery, the same is for the most part good, and binds them by way of Estoppel and Conclusion.

And note also, that a Stranger that has Right to the Land at the Time of the Recovery suffered is not barred at all by the Recovery, or by his want of Non-claim, &c. as in the Case of a Fine. 3 Co. 5.

He that is in an Estate in Possession by Title above the Recovery, shall not be bound by the Recovery. Co. 96. a.

Where Lands were devised to A. for Life, and if A. should die leaving Issue Male, then to such Issue Male and his Heirs for ever; but if A. should leave no Issue Male, then to B. in Fee; and A. suffered a Common Recovery of these Lands, and five Years passed: The right Heirs of the Testator were barred, in regard they ought to have entered upon such Forfeiture, and had no new Title of Entry upon the Death of the Tenant for Life. Will. 520.

On a Recovery it was objected, that the Recovery was a wilful Forfeiture in Point of Law, and was voluntary, and upon no Condition; and that it ought not to be supplied or maintained in Equity; but the Court decreed it. Chan. Ca. 49.

(G) Of the Parties in Common Recoveries in general.

IN every good and binding Common Recovery it is requisite that there be a Demandant, a Tenant, and a Vouchee, as the efficient Causes thereof; for if either of these be wanting, it is not a compleat Recovery.

And therefore if a Common Recovery be had against the Tenant in Tail without a Voucher, this is void.

And for this it is to be known that such Persons and by such Names may be Demandants, Tenants and Vouchees in Recoveries, as may be Cognisors and Cognisees in Fines. 2 West. Tit. Recoveries. Co. Lit. 372.

And therefore a Recovery suffered by an Infant appearing by his Guardian is good, and will bind him and all others. Hob. 275.

So also a Recovery had against a Woman that has a Husband being joined with her Husband will bind her and all others. 10 Co. 43. Plow. 515.

(H) Of the Demandant.

THE Demandant is he who brings the Writ of Entry, and may be termed the Recoveror.

(I) Of the Tenant.

THE Tenant is he against whom the Writ of Entry is brought, and may be termed the Recoveree.

Tenant to the Præcipe.

It is necessary in a Recovery that there be a lawful Tenant to the Præcipe, i. e. that the Writ of Entry be brought against one that at the Time of the Writ brought is Tenant of the Freehold, either by Right, i. e. that has an Estate for Life at least in the Land, or by Wrong, i. e. that is a Disseisor of the Land demanded, and whereof the Recovery is had. Dyer 252. Co. Lit. 46. 3 Co. 6.

And therefore in this Case the Course is where the Land to be recovered is in Possession, and a Fine and a Recovery is had of it together, the Fine is sued out first; for this makes the Conusee Tenant of the Freehold of the Land, and then the Recovery is had against him.

And when the Recovery is to be had of a Reversion, and that there is an Estate for Life in Being of the Land whereof the Recovery is to be had, (for an Estate for Years, or any such like Estate, will not hinder the suffering of a Recovery) there the Course is to get a conditional Surrender for the Tenant for Life of his Estate to him in Reversion or Remainder, to the End that he may be perfect Tenant of the Inheritance, and then the Writ of Entry may be brought and the Recovery had against him; for if a Writ of Entry be brought against a Stranger, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail in Possession of the Land, and so a Recovery is had; or if there be Tenant for Life of Land, the Remainder or Reversion to another in Tail, or in Fee, and a Stranger brings a Writ of Entry against him in the Remainder or Reversion, or against a Stranger who vouches him, and so a Recovery is had; these Recoveries are not good.

And yet if the Writ be brought against the Tenant of the Land and a Stranger that had nothing in the Land together, and so a Recovery be had; this Recovery is good enough.

And if a Disseisor makes a Gift in Tail of the Land to another, and the Writ is brought against him, and he vouches the Disseisee, and he vouches the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery. 3 Co. 6. Co. Lit. 46. Lit. §. 519. Plow. 514. Dr. & Stud. 49.

I bargain and sell Lands to you and your Heirs, the Bargainee has an Estate before Entry, and he is a good Tenant to the Præcipe in a Common Recovery, yet he cannot bring Trepleas. Carter 78.

In a Case, Mic. 29 Car. 2. amongst the Serjeants, it was held by Ellis, Newdigate and Dolbin, that if a Bargainee suffers a Recovery by Writ of Entry returnable Craft's Mart, and after the Deed is inrolled; in such Case the Bargainee was sufficient Tenant to the Præcipe before Inrolment by this Relation subsequent, and that this Bargain and Sale may lead the Use of this Recovery. But Raymond doubted that the Inrolment coming after the Return of the Writ of Entry, came too late to make a Tenant to the Præcipe; and it was said 4000*l.* was lent upon this Title. And Lord Hobart in Duncomb and Wingfield's Case, is of Opinion, that if the Defendant be Tenant to the Præcipe, either at the Time of the Writ purchased, or at the Return of it, it is sufficient.

Tenant

Tenant in Tail, Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Fee. The Tenant in Tail was attainted of Treason, Office was found. The King by Letters Patent granted the Land to A. who bargained and sold it by Deed to B. and B. suffered a Common Recovery, by which the Tenant in Tail is vouched, and afterwards this Deed was inrolled. Per Holt Ch. Just. this is no Bar of the Remainder, because before Inrolment nothing passed but by way of Conclusion, and the Bargainee was not lawful Tenant to the Præcipe. Godb. 218. 2 Inst. 675.

A Common Recovery cannot be suffered where the Estate-tail is expectant on an Estate for Life, Tenant for Life not being made Tenant to the Præcipe. Vent. 360. This is true in a Writ of Entry in le post, (which is commonly used; and the Reason is, that such a Writ supposes a Disseisin) which cannot be when there is a Tenant for Life in Possession.

A. Lessee for Life, Remainder to B. in Tail, and a Præcipe is brought against B. if B. happens to have a Surrender of the Lessee for Life at any Time before the Recovery, it is a good Recovery, and the Præcipe is made good. Noy's Rep. 126.

If a Tenant to the Præcipe is made by Lease and Release, it is good though there be no Consideration. Mod. Rep. 262. 2.

The Conusee of a Fine, Ostab. Pur. is a good Tenant to the Præcipe of a Recovery the same Day; and the Court will suppose a Privy the same Day to support a Conveyance. H. 22 Car. 2. B. R. Fettiplace's Case.

Tenant for Life, and he in Remainder in Tail suffer a Common Recovery, in which they both vouch the Common Vouchee; this shall not bind the Estate-tail, for he in the Remainder in Tail is not Tenant to the Præcipe, but the Tenant pur vie; and in Truth the Land is recovered against Tenant pur vie only, and the Recompence cannot vest in him in Remainder only, because the Land is in Truth recovered against Tenant for Life. 3 Co. cited in Cupledike's Case.

Plowden's Opinion in Manxell's Case, that if there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder or Reversion over in Tail; and a Common Recovery is had against him in Remainder or Reversion, it shall bar the Estate-tail, was denied for Law by all the Judges; for there is no Tenant to the Præcipe, but only by Admittance and Collusion, which shall not bind the Issue in Tail. Præcipe against Tenant for Life, who vouched him in Remainder in Tail, who vouched the Common Vouchee, he in Remainder is barred. And. 275.

If there be a Bargain and Sale, and a Fine to a Lessee for Years or in Reversion to make them Tenants to a Præcipe, this does not destroy the Reversion for Years. 2 Roll. Rep. 249.

If Lessee for Years be made Tenant to the Præcipe, it does not extinguish his Term, because it was in him for another Purpose. Mod. 107.

In Error of a Judgment in Ejectment in C. B. where a special Verdict was found, that a Writ of Entry was brought against M. C. returnable Quind Martini; that on the Return he appeared, and the Demandant counted against him; that he vouched L. the Tenant in Tail, and a Summons ad Warrantizand issued, returnable Ostab' Pur'; after the Tesse and before the Return of the Summons, viz. 1 January, L. the Tenant in Tail conveyed to M. C. by Lease and Release for Life, and at the Return thereof L. appeared and entered into Warranty, and vouched over the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery was had. And this being held good in C. B. the Plaintiff in Error's Counsel insisted in B. R. that M. C. was not Tenant to the Præcipe at the Return of the Writ of Entry: He agreed, if he had purchased before the Return thereof, the Recovery had been good (aliter if after, as here) to bind Strangers, or the Issue in Tail, though it might be good between the Parties by way of Estoppel, because the Tenant could not render the Lands at the Return of the Writ of Entry, and a Voucher always supposes a Seisin: For it is always a good Counterplea, that the Vouchee had nothing at the Time of the Voucher, and the Nec unquam postea is not material; and if the Tenant does not plead Non-tenure, as he might and ought, that only binds himself and those that are Parties and claim under him by Estoppel. Econtra argued, That the Issue shall be bound where he may have Execution for the Value; and it is not a sufficient Counterplea of Voucher, to say the Voucher had nothing Tempore, &c. without adding Nec unquam postea. And so it is of Non-tenure. Where the Tenant appears on the Return of the Writ of Entry, and a Recovery is then had, there the Tenant must have the Freehold in him at the Return of the Writ, because it is a Recovery then suffered; but otherwise where there is a Voucher over, or interpleaded, as in this Case; for there it is sufficient if he becomes Tenant before Judgment. And of this last Opinion, both as to the Counterplea of Voucher, Non-tenure, &c. was Holt Ch. Just. And he also held, that if the Tenant to the Præcipe gains a Freehold before Judgment, it is sufficient, for it cannot be said to be a Recovery against him that had nothing; and therefore a Writ may be made good by a subsequent Purchase, and so may a Voucher; and it is the more reasonable, because the Demandant may have a good Cause of Action though the Tenant have not the Land; for it is not his being Tenant to the Præcipe, but the Demandant's having a Right to the Land, that is the Foundation and Cause of the Action; and therefore it is sufficient in Law if the Tenant has the Land to render at any Time before Judgment; and the Judgment in C. B. was affirmed nisi causa. Cause was afterwards endeavoured to be shewed, sed non allocatur: And then Holt Ch. Just. further observed, that the Recompence in the Case of Common Recoveries was ratio una, but non unica why they barred; for a Reversion expectant is thereby barred, and yet the Recompence cannot extend to that; which (he said) was a bold Advance in Favour of Common Recoveries. The Rule was made absolute. 2 Salk. Lacy v. Williams.

not

A Recovery is good though a Stranger that has nothing in the Land be made Tenant to the Præcipe with the Tenant in Tail; for the Recompence in Value shall go to him that lost the Estate; and being a Common Assurance, it shall be favourably expounded. Vent. 358.

In a Quære Impedit, the Plaintiff intitled himself to an Advowson by a Recovery suffered by Tenant in Tail; and in Pleading the Recovery, he alledged two to be Tenants to the Præcipe, but did not shew how they became so, or what Conveyance was made to them by which it may appear they were Tenants; the Court thought it was not well pleaded, but gave no Judgment. 2 Mod. 7. Mod. 219.

If he in Reversion suffers a Common Recovery to divers Uses, his Heir cannot plead that his Father had nothing in the Land at the Time of the Recovery, for he is estopped to say, that he was not Tenant to the Præcipe; and it was a good Recovery against him by Estoppel. Godb. 141. 4 Leon. 238. Cro. Eliz. 21.

On producing a Common Recovery at a Trial, the Counsel on the other Side pressed them to prove who was Tenant to the Præcipe at the Time at the Recovery; but the Court would not allow it, for it shall be intended a good Recovery; and if it were otherwise, the Proof ought to be made by the other Party. Cro. Jac. 455.

By Stat. 14 G. 2. intitled, An Act to amend the Law concerning Common Recoveries, &c. reciting, That whereas several Leases have been heretofore, and are hereafter likely to be made, of Honours, Castles, Manors, Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, for one or more Life or Lives, under particular Rents thereby reserved, and to be reserved: And whereas procuring Surrenders of such Freehold Leases, or the Tenants thereof to join, in order to make Tenants to the Writs of Entry, or other Writs for suffering Common Recoveries, frequently occasions great Trouble, Difficulty and Expence to Tenants in Tail, and the same cannot in many Cases be obtained, by reason of the Uncertainty in whom the legal Estate of Freehold under such Leases is vested, and also by reason of the Disabilities and Incapacities of such Lessees, or Persons claiming under them, by Means whereof Purchases and Family Settlements are often delayed, and may be in great Danger of being defeated, if some proper Remedy be not provided: For Remedy whereof it is enacted, That all Common Recoveries suffered, or to be suffered in his Majesty's Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, or in any other Court of Record in the Principality of Wales, or in any of the Counties Palatine, or in any other Court having Jurisdiction of the same, of any Honours, Castles, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, without any Surrender or Surrenders of such Lease or Leases, or without the Concurrence of, or any Conveyances or Assurance from such Lessee or Lessees, or other Person or Persons claiming under such Lessee or Lessees, in order to make good Tenants to the Writs of Entry, or other Writs, whereupon such Recoveries have been or shall be had or suffered, shall be as valid and effectual in Law, to all Intents and Purposes whatsoever, as if such Lessee or Lessees, or any other Person or Persons claiming under him, her or them, had conveyed, or joined in conveying, or shall convey, or join in conveying a good Estate of Freehold to such Person or Persons as has or have been, or shall become Tenant or Tenants to such Writs of Entry, or other Writs, whereupon such Common Recoveries have been or shall be suffered.

Provided always that nothing in this Act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to make any Common Recoveries valid and effectual in Law, unless the Person or Persons intitled to the first Estate for Life, or other greater Estate (in Case there be no such Estate for Life in Being, in Reversion or Remainder next after the Expiration of such Leases) has or have, by some lawful Act or Means conveyed or assured, or joined in conveying or assuring, or shall, by some lawful Act or Means, convey or assure, or join in conveying or assuring an Estate for Life at the least, to such Person or Persons as has or have been, or shall become Tenant or Tenants to the Writs of Entry, or other Writs, whereupon such Common Recoveries have been or shall be suffered.

Provided also that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to extend to prejudice the Estate of such Lessee or Lessees, or any Person or Persons claiming any Interest under such Lessee or Lessees.

A Surrender of Tenant for Life shall be presumed on a Recovery of 40 Years standing.

If A. be Cestuy que Trust for Life, Remainder in Trust for B. in Tail, Remainder in Fee to C. B. cannot bar the Remainder by suffering a Recovery if there be a good Tenant to the Præcipe. Chan. Ca. 64.

But if there be no legal Tenant to the Præcipe in order to the suffering a Recovery, yet after a Length of Time it shall be presumed that there was. Mod. Ca. in Law and Eq. 143.

And though there be no Tenant to the Præcipe, yet a Recovery is good by way of Estoppel against the Party that suffered it, but not against Remainder-Men, Strangers, &c. Lucas 45.

A Common Recovery, though defective as to a Tenant to the Præcipe, will bar an equitable Estate-tail in Trust only. <sup>2</sup> Vern. 132. <sup>2</sup> Ch. Ca. 63.

A Recovery is good in which the Tenant to the Præcipe is made Tenant of the Freehold before the Return of the Summoneas ad Warrantizandum. Ld. Raym. 227, 475, 477.

(K) Of the Vouchee.

THE Vouchee is he whom the Tenant vouches or calls to Warranty for the Land in Who Demand.

A Child in ventre sa mere it is said may be vouched in a Common Recovery, a Bill may be brought in its Behalf, and an Injunction to stay Waste, &c. <sup>2</sup> Vern. 711. Child in ventre sa mere.

(L) Of the Use of Vouchers, and the Intent of Recoveries with single, double, treble, &c. Vouchers.

THE Effect of a Recovery, as is said before, is to bar Intails, and all Remainders and Reversions that should take Place after Intails; and they are most usually suffered either with a single Voucher, double Voucher, or treble Voucher, and sometimes with a quadruple Voucher.

The Intent of a Common Recovery with a single Voucher, is to bar the Tenant and his Heirs of such Estate-tail only which then is in him, to destroy the Estates which others have of any Reversion expectant, or Remainder dependant upon the same; and of all Leases and Incumbrances derived out of such Reversions or Remainders. Intent of Recoveries with single Voucher.

But where the King is the Giver of an Estate-tail, and keeps the Reversion in himself, it is said that such a Recovery against the Tenant in Tail will not bar the Issue in Tail of his Entry, nor discontinue his Estate, nor pluck such Reversion or Remainder out of his Majesty. <sup>28</sup> H. 8. b. <sup>34</sup> H. 8. c. 20. Dyer 132.

A Recovery with single Voucher bars only such Estate as the Tenant has in Possession at the Recovery, and the Dependences thereon; as if Lands be given to A. in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of B. (B. being then living) and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Tenant in Tail, and he vouches over the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery and Bar to the Estate-tail and Remainder also. Co. 135. <sup>3</sup> Co. 59.

But if the Tenant in Tail be not in Possession, or be in of another Estate by Disseisin or Conveyance, &c. as if Tenant in Tail be disseised, and then suffers a Recovery with single Voucher; or the Disseisor makes a new Estate to the Tenant in Tail, and then the Tenant in Tail suffers a Recovery with single Voucher; or if the Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment in Fee of Land, and then takes back a new Estate to himself from the Discontinuee in Tail or in Fee, and then suffers a Common Recovery with single Voucher; by this the Estate in these last Cases is not barred. Ibid. But by double Voucher they may.

A Recovery with double Voucher, is intended to bar the first Voucher and his Heirs of every such Estate as at any Time was in him, or any of his Ancestors, whose Heir he is, of such Estate; and all other Persons of such Right to a Reversion or Remainder as was thereupon at any Time expectant or dependant, and of all Leases, Charges and Incumbrances derived out of any such Reversion or Remainder, and will be also a perpetual Bar of such Estate whereof the Tenant was then seised in Reversion or Remainder expectant or dependant upon the same. With double Voucher.

But by a Recovery with double Voucher, in the Cases before where a single Voucher is no Bar, the Estate-tail is barred, and all Interests, Estates and Titles that the Vouchee has at the Time of the Entry into the Warranty.

And therefore where the Tenant in Tail levies a Fine, makes a Feoffment, or bargains and sells the Land by Deed indented and inrolled, the Writ is brought against the Cognisee, Cognisee, Feoffee or Bargainee, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail, who vouches the Common Vouchee; this bars the Estate-tail, and the Remainders and Reversions thereupon.

So if in these Cases the Conusee, Feoffee or Bargainee, makes a new Estate to the Conusor, Feoffor or Bargainor, or he disseises the Conusee, Feoffee or Bargainee, and then levies a Fine, makes a Feoffment, and bargains and sells to another against whom the Writ of Entry is brought, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail, and he vouches the Common Vouchee; by this Recovery the first and second Estate-tail, and all the Remainders and Reversions depending thereupon are barred. Co. 135. 3 Co. 59. 12 Ed. 4. 19. 10 Co. 45.

With treble
Voucher.

The Intent of a Recovery with a treble Voucher is to make a perpetual Bar of the Estates of the Tenant, and of every such Estate of Inheritance as at any Time had been in the first or second Vouchee, or any of them, or either of their Ancestors, whose Heirs he or they are of such Estate, and as well of every Reversion thereupon dependant; as also of all Leases, Charges and Incumbrances derived out of such Reversion or Remainder.

Note; In that called a single Recovery, you will find two Recoveries included: The first by the Demandant against the Tenant, and the second by Tenant against the Common Vouchee.

2. In that with a double Voucher you will find three Recoveries included; one for the Demandant against the Tenant, the second for the Tenant against the Voucher, the last for that Voucher against the second or common Vouchee.

3. And also in a Recovery with a treble Voucher are included four Recoveries: First by the Demandant against the Tenant, the second by the Tenant against the first Voucher, (otherwise called Vouchee) the third by the first against the second, and the fourth by the second against the Common Vouchee.

(M) Of the due Order and Form required in Recoveries.

IT is necessary that every good Common Recovery be had and suffered in that Order and Form as the Law requires, viz. that there be a Writ of Entry brought, and Appearance of the Tenant in fait, a Voucher, and an Appearance of the Tenant in Law the Vouchee, Judgment and Execution; for if there be any substantial Defect in these Things, the Recovery may be thereby avoided by Writ of Error; but if it be only in Form, it will not hurt. 3 Co. 3. Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 3.

If a Recovery be intended with single Voucher, the Præcipe must be brought against the Tenant in Tail in Possession, and he must vouch the Common Vouchee.

How the Writ of Entry must be brought.

But if your Recovery be intended with a double Voucher, you must either by Fine, Feoffment, Bargain and Sale inrolled, or Lease and Release, make him (you intend to be) Tenant at the Time of the Writ of Entry brought; for every Writ of Entry must always be brought against him that must be a perfect Tenant of the Freehold of the Land demanded at the Return of the Writ, 18 R. 2. and Dyer, fol. 252. pl. 98. because the Estate of the Tenant in Tail (who is the first Vouchee) is barred in respect of the supposed Recompence adjudged over against the Common Vouchee; for in strict Law the Recompence adjudged over is to go in Succession of the Estate, as the Land lost should have done; and then it were not Reason to allow the Heir Liberty to keep the Land, and also to have a Recompence in Value, therefore he loseth the Land, and is to trust to the Recompence. Dyer 252. 3 Co. 6. Co. 42.

But in a feigned Recovery the Recompence is but imaginary, and no such Thing really in the Case.

If there be a Fine as well as a Recovery, you must make him Cognisee to the Fine who is to be Tenant in the Recovery, and he must vouch the Tenant in Tail, and in such Case the Writ of Covenant for the Fine must bear Teste, and be returnable before the Writ of Entry.

And if a Tenant has but an Estate for Life, or be Tenant in Dower, or by the Curtesy of England, it is requisite for the Strengthening of a Recovery, and saving his Estate, that he makes a conditional Surrender of his Estate to him in the Reversion or Remainder, to the End he may be a present Tenant of the Inheritance, and then to bring the Writ of Entry against him; and after the Recovery is executed, the particular Tenant, for Breach of the Condition, may enter and enjoy his Term notwithstanding such Surrender. See the Form of the Surrender in the Second Part, but see the Stat. 14 Geo. 2. c. 20. before at p. 604.

The Form of Recovery
with single Voucher.

Recoveries are mostly used for Assurances of Land in the Form whereof the Parties do agree, that one who is called the Demandant shall bring an Action real (as if he had good Right) against the Tenant of the Freehold of the Lands, as though he had no Right of Entry

Entry to the same; but after a Disseisin, which Hugh Hunt (the common Name of the supposed Disseisor) had unjustly made to the Demandant, &c. and hereupon the Tenant calls to warrant to him the Lands — (or the Common Vouchee, one of the Criers of the Court) which Vouchee is supposed to appear in Court, and warrant the Lands to the Tenant (or Defendant) whereupon the Plaintiff or Demandant claims the Lands against the Common Vouchee, who is supposed to appear and defend his Right, and pleads, that Hugh did not disseise the Plaintiff or Demandant, as by his Declaration he supposes, and puts himself upon the Country to try it; whereupon the Demandant prays a Day to imparl, or speak to the Plea; and a Day being given, the Demandant is supposed to come again into Court in proper Person, and the Common Vouchee then is supposed to make Default, and withdraw in Contempt of the Court; and thereupon Judgment is given, that the Demandant shall recover in Value against the Common Vouchee, &c. and so by this Device, grounded upon the strict Principles of the Law, the Tenant loseth the Land, and has nothing for it; but it is by his own Agreement, and for the Assurance of him that buys the Land, &c.

And so it is if it be with double or treble Vouchers; as in a double Voucher the Tenant calleth to Warranty the first Vouchee, who warranteth and calleth the Second or Common Vouchee, who pleads to the Country, and after Imparlance and Return of the Demandant makes Default, and then Judgment for the Demandant against the Tenant, for the Tenant to recover in Value of the first Vouchee, and the first to recover in Value of the Second or Common Vouchee; and it is in the like Manner with treble Voucher, &c.

(N) Who may suffer a Common Recovery.

ANY Person who is not disabled by Law may suffer a Common Recovery. Such Disabilities are either by the Common or Statute Law.

By the Common Law Infants, Feme Coverts, Persons attainted, and Aliens, are disabled. But as to Ideots and Madmen, a Recovery suffered by them is unavoidable.

Those disabled by Statute are for some particular Reasons therein given, on Account of the Abuse of Common Recoveries.

A Tenant in Fee-simple may suffer a Common Recovery of Land, and it will bind him that suffers it, his Heirs, and all others. Tenant in Fee-simple.

A Condition that a Donee in Tail shall not alien, is void; and therefore such a Donee in Tail may, notwithstanding such Condition, by Recovery bar it. Donee in Tail on Condition. 9 Co. 127.

By a Settlement A. was made Tenant for Life, Remainder to the Heirs of his Body by his Wife, and in the same Deed A. covenanted not to suffer a Common Recovery, but that the Lands shall be enjoyed according to these Limitations. A. suffered a Recovery, and then devised the Lands; this Recovery was held good to bind the Assets; but A. being Tenant in Tail, and as such having a Power to suffer a Recovery, the Lands devised shall not be affected. Tenant in Tail contrary to his Covenant. Wil. 104. 2 Vern. 635.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Mortgage, or confesses a Judgment, &c. and after suffers a Common Recovery, the Recovery shall enure to make good all his precedent Acts and Incumbrances. Tenant in Tail, Mortgagor or Cognisor, &c. Chan. Ca. 120.

If a Mortgagee suffers a Recovery, it will not bar the Mortgagor; but if the Mortgagor be a Party to the Recovery, it will be good. Mortgagee. Cro. Jac. 592, 593.

A Common Recovery, suffered by Cestuy que Trust of an Estate-tail, has the same Effect in Equity to bar the Intail and Remainders, as it would have at Law in Case he had the legal Estate in him. Cestuy que Trust. 1 Vern. 13, 440. 2 Vern. 132. 2 Chan. Ca. 71. 2 Vent. 350. Wil. 91.

If A. be Cestuy que Trust for Life, Remainder in Trust for B. in Tail, Remainder in Fee to C. B. cannot bar the Remainder by suffering a Recovery if there be a good Tenant to the Præcipe. 2 Chan. Ca. 64.

Where a Cestuy que Trust in Tail brings a Bill against the Trustees to the Intent they should join in a Recovery, this is not proper; but it is proper to pray that the Trustees may convey the Premises to Cestuy que Trust in Tail, who may then suffer a Recovery; though if the Trustees are also Trustees for any Annuity subsisting, they are not compellable to part with the legal Estate out of them to the Cestuy que Trust in Tail. 2 Wil. 134.

In a Marriage-Settlement the Husband was made Tenant for ninety-nine Years, if he so lived, Remainder to Trustees during the Life of the Husband, &c. Remainder to the first and other Sons by the Marriage in Tail Male, Remainder to the first and other Sons by any other Wife, Remainder over; a Son was born and of Age; the Wife died, and there were no other Sons by a subsequent Marriage; the Trust for preserving contingent Remainders descended to an Infant: A Court of Equity will, if it be for the Benefit of the Family, decree the Infant Trustee to join in a Recovery.

Infant.

If an Infant Tenant appears by his Guardian either as Defendant or Vouchee, he shall be bound as well as one of full Age; and if the Guardian feint pleads, or mispleads, the Infant has a good Action against him.

Where an Infant comes in Person as Vouchee, Error lies not after full Age, because it must be tried by Inspection, which cannot be after full Age.

And if he appears by Attorney, and suffers a Common Recovery, then it shall be reversed for Error; aliter per Guardian. Sid. 321. 2 Keb. 14. Mod. 48. Style 248.

Recovery against an Infant who appears by Guardian, and vouches over, is not erroneous. Earl of Newport and Sir H. Midway's Case.

A. Tenant in Tail, Remainder to B. in Fee. A. sold the Land to J. S. and his Heirs, and for Assurance made a Feoffment in Fee, and levied a Fine to J. S. to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs: By the Indenture of Bargain and Sale A. covenanted to make such further Assurance within two Years as the said J. S. or his Heirs, or their Counsel should advise; before any Assurance made J. S. died, his Son and Heir within Age; it was devised that for such further Assurance and cutting off the Remainder, a Common Recovery should be suffered in which the said Infant should be Tenant to the Præcipe, and should vouch the Vendor; and that the said Recovery should be to the said Infant and his Heirs. After some Doubt upon the Appearance of a good and sufficient Guardian for the Infant, the Recovery passed. Leon. N<sup>o</sup> 29. b.

The King, by Letter under his Privy Signet and Sign Manual, signified to Lord Hobart and his Fellow Justices of C. B. that he was petitioned by Mountjoy Blunt, under the Age of twenty-one Years, and by his Friends, Kindred and Feoffees, into whose Custody the late Earl of Devonshire did commit his Estate in Trust, that he might be admitted to suffer a Recovery of his Manor of W. for Payment of Debts, &c. Says Lord Hobart, Though we did never hold such Recovery unlawful, or void in Law, yet we have refused many Motions of that Kind, as holding it very inconvenient; but Conveniency is discerned by Circumstances: Whereupon I (said his Lordship) sent for the young Gentleman, and secretly examined him, and he being eighteen Years of Age, satisfied me that he conceived it necessary for his Estate; and I called the Earl of Southampton, Lord Davers, and Mr. Wakeman, the Persons to whom his Estate was committed in Trust; they all confessed it was necessary, and the Recovery was passed openly at the Bar against M. Blunt in Person, and the said Earl, Lord, and Wakeman, were admitted his Guardians. Hob. 196.

Sir John St Alban being of the Age of nineteen, his Sister (who was next in Remainder, and also his Heir) having married one of his Footmen, he petitioned the King for Leave to suffer a Recovery, who referred it to the Judges of C. B. before whom several Precedents of such Recoveries, suffered by Privy Seals, were cited, viz. one Bivarny, 1 June 10 Car. 1. one Young, 23 Novem. 11 Car. 1. another 13 Car. 1. another 14 Car. 1. another 1 Jac. 2. and two others, 2 Jac. 2. and another by John the Son of Sir John Croke, 10 Car. 2. But the Judges observed that seven of these Petitions were by Fathers upon the Marriage of their Sons, and an equal Recompence given; whereas here was neither Father nor Marriage to induce this Recovery, and said, that this Matter had been carried too far already, and therefore disallowed it. 2 Salk. 567.

See of Infant Feme Covert, post.

Husband and Wife.

A Common Recovery suffered by a Feme Covert jointly with her Husband is good, and will bind them, their Heirs and all others; but if she be an Infant, and appears as Vouchee by her Attorney, this Recovery will not bind her. 10 Co. 43. Plow. 515. Bridgm. Rep. 69, 70, 71.

And in Pas. 8 W. 3. Stokes and Oliver, a Common Recovery suffered by an Infant Feme Covert was reversed for Error; and the Error assigned was, that she being Vouchee and under Age, had appeared by Attorney; and it was said, that if she had vouched in Person or by Guardian, it should not have been reversed for Error after full Age, because a Guardian is made by the Court, who will not admit of any one but such as shall be answerable for the Loss the Infant may sustain through his Default: But an Attorney is made by the Party, and an Infant is not supposed to have Discretion enough to chuse an Attorney who will be faithful to him; and therefore she having appeared by Attorney and suffered a Recovery, it shall be reversed for the same after she comes of Age, because it shall be tried by the Country, whether the Warrant of Attorney was made when under Age or not. Neither can the Husband, though of full Age, make an Attorney for himself and his Wife who is under Age, so as to bind the Inheritance of the Wife: But she being the Principal, must be barred by her own Act, and therefore must appear in Court in such Manner as the Law has directed, by reason of her Infancy. And it may be a Question, whether she can be barred by any Act of her own besides that of a Fine; for she is not examined in a Common Recovery, but she is in a Fine. But this is not like the Case of a Fine levied by an Infant, for that cannot be reversed reversed but by the Infant himself during his Nonage: For it being the Act of the Court to suffer such a one to levy a Fine, the Court must therefore reform the same by Inspection, which cannot be after full Age. 5 Mod. 209, 210.

See more of Infants, ante.

Baron and Feme are Tenants, and vouch the Common Vouchee; the Feme was an Infant and appeared in Person, and not by Guardian; therefore it was reversed. Gro. Eliz. 321.

If there be Tenant for Life, Remainder to the Husband and Wife and their Heirs, and the Husband and Wife suffer a Recovery, being vouched by the Tenant for Life; this shall bind the Wife. Style 320.

Where Husband has Land wherein his Wife has a Jointure, or to which she may have Title of Dower after his Death, and the Writ of Entry is brought against them both, and they vouch the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had, this Recovery will bar them both; but not if against the Husband alone, for in that Case she may falsify and avoid it after his Death. Plow. 514. 3 Co. 5.

A Recovery cannot be suffered to bar an Intail, where there is an Estate for Life in Jointure, without the Feme joins therein. 5 Mod. 210, 211.

If a Woman who has an Estate in Dower, for Life, or in Tail jointly with her Husband, or only to herself, or to her Use, in any Lands, &c. of the Inheritance or Purchase of her Husband, or given to the Husband and Wife by the Husband's Ancestors, or any seised to the Use of the Husband or his Ancestors, do, after the Husband's death, sole, or with another Husband, suffer a Recovery of it, it shall be void; and he to whom the Land ought to belong after the Death of the said Woman, may enter as if the Woman was dead; and yet if in this Case she does it with the Consent of the next Heir, or shall join with him, it is a good Recovery; or if a Writ be brought against her, and she vouches the Heir in Tail, and so the Recovery is had. Stat. 11 H. 7. 20. 3 Co. 51, 59, 60.

Where Lands are given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Body of the Wife; or to the Wife, and the Heirs of her Body, and the Writ of Entry is brought against the Husband and Wife, and they vouch the Common Vouchee; this is a good Recovery, and will bar the Estates of the Husband and Wife, and of them in Remainder and Reversion expectant thereupon.

If Land be given to Husband and Wife, and the Heirs of the Body of the Husband, the Remainder over, and the Husband alone suffers a Common Recovery; this is no Bar to the Remainder. 3 Co. 5.

If the Husband be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder to the Wife in Tail, and he suffers a Common Recovery of the Land, she is barred.

But if Land be given to two others, and the Heirs of the Body of one of them, the Remainder over to a Stranger, and the Writ of Entry is brought against one of them, and he vouches the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had; this Recovery is good, and bars all the Estates for one Half of the Lands; but between Husband and Wife there are no Moieties. 3 Co. 5, 6.

Where an Estate is to the Husband and his Wife for Life, Remainder to his Heirs Male on the Wife begotten; the Husband cannot dock this Estate by a Recovery during his Wife's Life. 2 Salk. 568.

If the Husband and Wife be Jointenants of an Estate in Fee-simple or Fee-tail of Land before Coverture, and the Husband alone suffers a Recovery of it; this is good for a Moiety.

And if Husband and Wife be Jointenants after the Coverture, and then they suffer a Recovery together; this will bind them.

And if they be Jointenants for Life, the Remainder to the Heirs of the Husband, and they suffer a Recovery of it; this is no Bar to the Issue of any Part of the Land. Moor 350.

Persons attainted are disabled to suffer Recoveries; and therefore,

If Tenant in Tail be attainted, and Office found, the Land granted to A. who sells it to Attainder. B. who suffers a Common Recovery, and therein vouches Tenant in Tail, the Remainders are not barred. Godb. 218. But Allen in 1 Keb. 30. contra arguendo, 1 Keb. 398. But notwithstanding the Opinion in Godb. yet it seems there is such a Scintilla Juris in the Tenant in Tail after Attainder, that by a Common Recovery he may bar the Issue, Reversions and Remainders, if there be a good Tenant to the Præcipe; for if the King pardons the Party and restores the Land, though the Attainder is in Force, he may bar the Intail.

Aliens are also disabled to suffer Recoveries.

Aliens.

If an Alien be Tenant in Tail, the Estate-tail is good, but not descendible to his Issue. 9 Co. 141. But if Lands are given to an Alien in Tail, Remainder to C. in Fee, and the Alien suffers a Common Recovery, and after an Office is found, the Recovery bars C. and the King has a good Fee; for till Office he was seised, and there was a good Tenant to the Præcipe. Godb. 102. Noy 137.

Besides the before-mentioned natural and legal Disabilities, Conveniency, Decency and Order prevents some from suffering Recoveries; and therefore,

King.

The King cannot suffer a Common Recovery, for if he does, he must be Tenant or Vouchee; and in both Cases the Demandant must count against him; which the Law does not suffer, so he cannot come in as Tenant by Receipt; but if the Party has any Warranty, he may pray him in Aid. Cro. Eliz. 96, 97.

Idiots and Lunatics.

But a Recovery suffered by an Idiot or Madman is unavoidable, because the Law has a great Regard to Matters of Record; as is manifest in 2 And. 163. where a Fine levied by an Idiot a Nativitate was held good, for both the Idiot and his Heirs are estopped to say he was an Idiot; and the Court would rather judge the Office void, than bring this judicial Act in Question, or the Judgment of the Court that accepted the Fine.

(N) Of what Things a Writ of Entry may be brought, i. e. of what a Common Recovery may be suffered, and what it will bar.

IN every good Common Recovery it is requisite that there be Land demanded as the Matter, and that the Thing be demandable.

Of what

Things Entry may be.

And for this it is to be known, that of such Things and by such Names as a Writ of Covenant for the levying of a Fine may be had, a Writ of Entry for the suffering of a Recovery may be had, save only it may not be de fossato, stagno, piscaria, un' carucat' terre, estoveriis, bomag', fidelitas', de servitiis faciendis, de bovata marisci, de selion terre, de gardino, cottagio, crofto, virgata terre, fodina mineræ, mercatu, nec de superiori camera; and yet of some of these also it may be by other Names.

But a Common Recovery may be of an Honour, Island, Barony, Castle, Messuage, Curtilage, Dove-house, Land, Meadow, Pasture, Underwood, Chapel, River, County, Warren, Rectory, View of Frankpledge, Waif, Estray, Felon's Goods, Deodands, Furze, Heath, Moor, Tithes, &c.

Also a Recovery may be had of a Rent, Common, Advowson, Franchises, and the like, but not of any Annuity. Doct. & Stud. 52. 5 Co. 40, 41. 2 West. Tit. Recovery.

So if Lands be given to two and the Heirs of their Bodies, Remainders in Tail, and one suffers a Recovery of the Whole; the Tenant as well as the Vouchee may by Pleading abate the Writ: But if the Writ be admitted good, the Moiety well passes to such Uses as are declared by the Deed that leads the Uses of the Common Recovery, and the Jointure is severed. 3 Co. 3.

So if one seised of a third Part of Land bargains and sells a Moiety, and a Common Recovery is had of a Moiety; this is a good Recovery of an intire Third, and not of a Moiety of a third Part. Cro. Car. 110.

A Condition that runs with the Land cannot be barred by a Common Recovery; aliter Condition: of a Condition Collateral. 2 Salk. 570.

A. seised in Fee of the Manors of B. and C. devised them to E. for Life, and if E. should have Issue Male, then to such Issue Male and his Heirs for ever; but if E. should have no Issue Male, the Manor of B. to J. S. in Fee, and that of C. to J. N. in Fee; E. suffered a Recovery of these Manors; this barred the contingent Estates limited to J. S. and J. N. Will. 509.

A Recovery may be of a Rent de novo; and therefore if one grants a Rent in Tail to B. Remainder to C. in Tail, by a Common Recovery, the Remainder to C. may be barred. Rent de novo. Sid. 285. 2 Keb. 55.

But if one grants a Rent in Tail to B. who suffers a Common Recovery to the Use of C. and his Heirs; B. dies without Issue, the Rent is determined, because by the Common Recovery the Rent cannot be enlarged to the manifest Prejudice of the Tertenant, and the Recovery cannot give the Rent a longer Continuance than the Grantor gave it. 2 Lutw. 1225.

A reputed Manor may pass by a Common Recovery. Lev. 28.

So may Lands within a Liberty; as,

If S. and C. be two adjacent Towns, and a Tenant in Tail of Lands in both Towns being within the Liberty of S. suffers a Common Recovery of Lands in both Towns, but the Record is only in the Town of S. and Liberties thereof, yet it is good to pass the Lands in C. 2 Vent. 32.

A Recovery may be had of a Trust-Estate; as,

If Cestuy que Trust in Tail is in Possession with Remainders over, under the Trustees, who have the legal Estate, and suffers a Common Recovery; though there be no good Tenant to the Præcipe, yet the Recovery will bar both the Estate-tail and Remainder and Reversion. 2 Chan. Rep. 63, 79.

Common Recoveries are not suffered in the Court of Common Pleas of Copyhold Estates (they being in the Eye of the Law only Tenancies at Will, secundum consuetudinem manerii, and in their Institution only impleadable in the Lord's Court). Copyhold Estates.

Lord Coke is of Opinion, that Copyholds could not be intailed without a Custom co-operating with the Statutes. 3 Co. 8.

But Lord Hale was of the contrary Opinion, 3 Lev. 327. which seems the better Opinion, because the Copyholder of Inheritance has Power by Surrender to make any Estate.

A Copyholder cannot make any Tenant to the Præcipe but by Surrender; therefore the way to suffer a Common Recovery of a Copyhold intailed is either,

1. By committing a Forfeiture by Custom; as,

If W. S. being Tenant in Tail of a Copyhold, makes a voluntary Lease for twenty-one Years without the Lord's Licence, which Lease is presented at the next Court, and the Lands seized into the Lord's Hands, and W. S. appointed the Forfeiture to be to the Use of A. S. and his Heirs, and a Custom is found that these Forfeitures were used to bar Intails, and held good. See 2 Sand. 422.

Or if Tenant in Tail, by Custom, commits a Forfeiture, and then the Lord makes three Proclamations, and seizes the Copyhold, and then grants it to the Copyholder and his Heirs.

Or if Tenant in Tail, by other Custom, makes a Surrender to the Purchaser and his Heirs, and the Purchaser commits a Forfeiture, on which the Lord seizes, and on the Proclamations made the Estate-tail and Remainders are barred. Sid. 315. Keb. 752.

2 Keb. 127.

But where there is none of these Customs, then the way to bar the Estate-tail is,

2. By

2. By Surrender made by the Tenant in Tail of the Copyhold Estate to another Person to make him Tenant to the Præcipe, i. e. to a Plaintiff, who is admitted, and then a Plaintiff in the Nature of a Writ of Entry in le post is brought against him, who vouches the Tenant in Tail, and he the Common Vouchee, and so a Recovery is had; and then the Recoverer surrenders to the Use of the Tenant in Tail and his Heirs, who is admitted accordingly, and thereby the Estate-tail and Remainders are barred. Vide Co. Ent. 206, 207. pl. 10.
- Antient Demeſne Lands. A Common Recovery of Lands in Antient Demeſne is good and in Force till reversed by the Lord by Writ or Disceit. 4 Leon. 123.
- Place known. A Common Recovery may be of Lands in a Place known, though it be neither a Vill nor Hamlet, as well as a Fine may be of Lands in a Lieu Conus. 2 Mod. 49.
- Incidents, Appendants, and Appurtenants. Every Thing as incident, appendant and appurtenant, passes by a Common Recovery as in other Common Conveyances. 6 Co. 67.
- And the Acres mentioned in Common Recoveries are computed according to the Custom of the Country, and not strictly according to the Stat. de terris mensurandis. 6 Co. 67. Vide 6 Co. 66, 67. Cro. Car. 308. Cro. Eliz. 52. Lev. 28. Keb. 592.

(O) Of what Things a Writ of Entry does not lie.

A Præcipe quod reddat lies not of a Ditch, nor of a Pool, nor of a Fishery. 8 E. 3. 381. Nor of an Advowson of Tithes of one Plough (or Wain) Land. Regist. 29. Nor Common of Pasture. 27 H. 8. 12. Nor of Estovers. 2 Ed. 3. Nor of Homage of Fealty, nor of Services to be done. 6 E. 2. It lieth not of an Oxcgang of Marsh Land. 13 E. 3. 3. Nor of a Selion of Land, Ed. 1. for the Incertainty, because a Selion is a Parcel of Land, sometimes containing an Acre, sometimes more and sometimes less. It lieth not of a Garden, Cottage or Croft. 14 Aff. 13. 8 H. 8. 3. 22 E. 4. 13. A Rod of Land. 41, 43, 13 E. 3. A Quarry, a Mine, a Market. 13 E. 3. For they lie not in Demeſne, but in Gain, nor of an upper Chamber. 3 H. 6. 1. 2 West. Symb. 77. b. It lies not of an Annuity, nor of a Tenement, but it must be of Houses and a certain Quantity of Acres. Moor 953. A Writ of Entry ought not to contain one and the same Thing twice; as a Messuage and an House, Parcel of the same Messuage. 3 Ed. 4. 28. 46 Ed. 3. 26. Nor to name a Town and an Hamlet within the same Town. 22 Ed. 3. 14. 41 Ed. 3. 22. 2 West. 77. b. But the Practice is now otherwise as to this, and some other of the Things before mentioned, as you may observe before, that a Præcipe quod reddat is said not to lie of a Fishery, Estovers, nor of a Garden, nor of Common of Pasture; but the Use is otherwise; and though it may be meant that a Præcipe lies not of one of those Things singly alone, as of a Common; yet being joined and expressed with other Things, it may well lie, and is every Day's Practice.

(P) Rules to be observed in placing Particulars in a Writ of Entry.

1. THE more worthy Things must be placed before the Things less worthy; as a Castle before a Manor, a Manor before a Messuage, a Messuage before a Toft or Mill, &c.
  2. Things General must be put before Things Special; as Lands being the General or Genus to Meadow, Pasture, &c. is placed before Meadow, &c.
  3. Intire or whole Things are to be put before Parts; as one Messuage, and the Moiety of one Messuage, &c.
- For the more orderly and formal placing of Particulars in a Writ, observe this Method: The Manors of B. and S. with the Appurtenances, and two Messuages, one Shop, one Toft, one Mill, one Dovehouse, two Gardens, twenty Acres of Land, ten Acres of Meadow, five Acres of Pasture, six Acres of Wood, one Hundred Acres of Furze and Heath, one Hundred Acres of Moor, one Hundred Acres of Rushy Ground, ten Acres of Marsh, ten Acres of Alderwood, ten Acres of Broom, five Acres of Land covered with Water, twenty Pounds two Shillings one Penny one Half-penny and one Farthing Rent, and the Rent of one Pair of Gilt Spurs, ten Capons, two Cocks, two Hens, five Pounds of Pepper, three of Mace and Cloves, and one Pound of Camin, Common of Pasture for all Kinds of Cattle, View of Frankpledge, free Warren, free Fishery, Liberty of Foldage and also Fairs and Markets, Toll, Stallage and Picage, the Chattels of Felons, Fugitives.

IF the Parties live in London, or so near it that they can appear in Person in Court, it is much the easiest and cheapest way; but sometimes they either will not or cannot appear in Person, and then they appear and suffer the Recovery by Attorney: Of both which in order.

First, Of suffering a Recovery by the Parties in open Court.

Draw your Præcipe upon a Piece of Paper, wherein must be named the Demandant and the Tenant, the Quantity of Land, and what Nature, how many Acres, what Manors, Messuages, &c. and in what Place or Places they lie.

See the Form in the second Part, Tit. Recoveries.

Next you may carry it to the Cursitor of that County where the Lands lie, for a Writ of Entry. But note; It is the common Use to pass a Recovery at the Bar before a Writ of Entry is sued out; therefore having drawn your Præcipe, then enter it upon the Prothonotary's Remembrance-Roll, and put the Voucher or Vouchers Names in the Margin.

Upon this Remembrance, after the Præcipe, enter the Return and Teste of the Writ of Entry.

But the Recovery may for Dispatch be passed first at the Bar, which is the common Practice.

Therefore having entered your Præcipe on the Remembrance, (or it is common to enter it afterwards) and having your Tenant and Vouchers ready at the Bar, the Court being at Leisure, the Method used to be to deliver the Remembrance on which your Præcipe is entered (which Remembrances were always brought to the Hall in the Term Time) to one of the Serjeants at the Bar, having your Clients ready; but the Demandant needs not to appear, only the Tenant and Voucher.

If your Client be a Nobleman, you must place him in the Middle of the Bar between the King's Serjeants, or the two other eldest Serjeants in their Absence.

Your Præcipe being delivered, the Serjeants will plead, and soon dispatch your Business.

If the Recovery be with single Voucher three Serjeants plead it; one for the Demandant, one for the Tenant, and the third for the Vouchee.

If with a double Voucher, then four Serjeants.

If with a treble Voucher, then five Serjeants.

Every Serjeant's Fee is said to be 3s. 4d. out of which each Serjeant allows to the Clerk that sues out the Recovery 1s. 4d. so that you pay them only 2s. a-piece.

But the most modern Way is to deliver the Præcipe to one of the Serjeants Clerk, to whom you pay,

	l.	s.	d.
If it be with a single Vouchee,	0	6	0
With a double Vouchee,	0	8	0
With a treble Vouchee,	0	10	0
With a quadruple Vouchee,	0	12	0
And if the Tenant appears by Attorney,	0	4	0 more

The Tenant appearing personally, some of the Serjeants at the Bar will repeat the Count, and Prayer of an Imparlance.

Then give the Præcipe to one of the Criers of the Court, who will carry it to the Secondary, to whom you pay 4s. 6d. and 2s. more if it be by Warrant of Attorney, and he marks the Præcipe thus: At Bar. And it is usual to give the Crier 6d.

After the Præcipe is passed at Bar, make a Copy of it for the Curfitor to make out the Writ of Entry by.

And as to entering it on the Remembrance-Roll, that may be done when you pass the Exemplification at the Prothonotary's Office.

The Manner of the Serjeant's Pleading in a Recovery with a single Voucher is thus: The Serjeant, who has the Remembrance, (or Præcipe) will ask which is the Tenant, and cause him to stand up, as also the Vouchers, to the Intent they may be shewn to the Court; then the Judge will ask, who knows the Parties? which you or some other will answer, you know them to be such Parties; lest there should be Fraud in it, as there has been formerly, where the Husband brought in another Woman a Stranger, saying she was his Wife, and suffered a Recovery of his Wife's Land to cut off her Estate without her Consent.

And note, That Roll Chief Justice said, that though it was not necessary to examine a Feme Covert when she joins with her Husband to suffer a Recovery, yet he held it prudential, and that he used to do it. Præf. Regist. 134, 295.

Then the first Serjeant counts by the Prothonotary's Remembrance, (or the Præcipe) according as the Writ is there entered, after this Manner, viz.

Single Voucher.

1st Serjeant.] This shews to you J. D. that J. S. has deformed him of the Manor of D. with the Appurtenances in the County of E. and that this is his Right and Inheritance whereof he himself was seised in his Demesne as of Fee and Right in Time of Peace, in the Time of the present King, and has taken the Profits to the Value of half a Mark and more, and into which the said J. S. has not Entry, but after the Disseisin which Hugh Hunt thereof unjustly and without Judgment has made to the said J. S. within thirty Years last past; if the said J. S. will deny this, you have here the said J. D. who has brought his Proof thereof.

2d Serjeant, who is for the Tenant.] You have here the said J. S. who defends his Right, and vouches to Warranty Edmund Wilson, and prays that he may be summoned within the County aforesaid by the Aid of this Court.

3d Serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilson, who is here present to enter into Warranty, and prays that the Demandant may count against him.

1st Serjeant.] The same Count, changing what ought to be changed.

3d Serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilson, who defends his Right, and says, that the said H. Hunt did not disseise the said J. D. in Manner as the said J. D. by his Writ and Count supposes; and thereupon puts himself upon the Country.

1st Serjeant.] With your Leave we will imparl.

Double
Voucher.

If it be with a double Voucher, then the first Serjeant counts as before.

1st Serjeant.] This shews to you, &c.

2d Serjeant.] He counts for the Tenant as before, only instead of calling the Common Vouchee, he calls the first Voucher A. B.

3d Serjeant.] For the Vouchee, desires the Judges to record the Appearance of the Vouchee, (and so of every Vouchee, unless it be the Common Vouchee) which done, he must say, You have here the said A. B. who is here ready to enter into the Warranty, and prays that the Demandant may count against him.

1st Serjeant.] The same Count, (changing what ought to be changed).

3d Serjeant.] You have here the said A. B. who defends his Right, and vouches to Warranty Edmund Wilson, and prays that he may be summoned within the County aforesaid by the Aid of this Court.

4th Serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilson, who is here ready to enter into the Warranty, and prays that the Demandant may count against him.

1st Serjeant.] The like Count, changing what ought to be changed.

4th Serjeant.] You have here the said Edmund Wilson, who defends his Right, and says, that the said H. Hunt did not disseise the said J. D. in Manner as the said J. D. by his Writ and Count doth suppose; and thereupon puts himself upon the Country.

1st Serjeant.] With your Leave we will impart.

And so in like Manner if it be with treble Voucher mutatis mutandis.

Secondly, Of suffering Recoveries when the Parties appear by Attorney.

When the Tenant or Vouchee lives distant from London, and cannot or will not appear in Person, they appear by Attornies.

Such Warrant may be taken two several Ways:

1. Either by any of the Judges of Assise of either Bench, Barons of the Exchequer, and as some say, by Serjeants at Law in their Circuits, without a Dedimus Potestatem; or,
2. By a Dedimus Potestatem directed to the Commissioners in the Country.

I. By Warrant before a Judge, &c.

Draw up the Warrant wherein there must be two Attornies at least, and their Authority joint and several, that if one dies the other may proceed, &c.

See the Form in the Second Part.

Then go before the Judge, and he will subscribe the Date of the Caption.

There must be a Transcript in Paper, to which the Judge also puts his Hand, and then it is to remain with the Clerk of the Fines.

Then make out a Præcipe for the Writ of Entry, &c. ut postea.

II. By Dedimus Potestatem.

When the Vouchee lives in the Country, and his Attorney employs an Agent in Town, then the usual Way is to make the Country Attorney Demandant, who has no Occasion to be in Court; the Agent Tenant who appears personally at Bar, and then there needs only a Dedimus Potestatem to take the Warrant of Attorney of the Vouchee.

How to sue out a Dedimus.

A Præcipe for the Dedimus Potestatem must be made out on Paper, and left with the Cur-Præcipe for fitor. See the Form in the Second Part. Dedimus.

You pay the Curfitor 1l. 5s. 8d.

Then send it down into the Country, and there a Day must be appointed for two at least of the Commissioners to take Acknowledgment of the Warrant of Attorney, which you must have ready, written on Parchment, together with a Copy of the Præcipe. See the Form in the Second Part.

When the Acknowledgment of the Warrant of Attorney is taken, annex the Warrant to the Dedimus Potestatem, and indorse the Dedimus, as is directed in the Second Part.

If one of the Commissioners who took the Cognisance be not a Knight, (as many Times is the Case) then a Certificate must be drawn up on the Back of the Præcipe and Warrants, and a Judge's Allocatur had thereon.

Thirdly, How to sue out the Writ of Entry.

The Præcipe being passed at the Bar, if both the Tenant and Vouchee appeared in Person, you must make a Copy of it for the Curfitor to make out the Writ of Entry by; but if you had a Dedimus Potestatem, as beforementioned, you only carry that to him, with the the Warrant of Attorney annexed; for these contain sufficient Instructions, both for the Writ of Entry and the Mittimus and Transcript.

You pay 7 s. 6 d. to the Curfitor for the Writ of Entry, and more if very long, by reason of a great Number of Parcels.

Fourthly, How to sue out the Writs of Summons and Seisin.

Having got the Writ of Entry from the Curfitor, the Attorney makes out the Writs of Summons and Seisin himself.

There must be five Returns inclusive between the Return of the Writ of Entry and the Return of the Writ of Summons; for Example,

If the Writ of Entry be returnable in three Weeks from the Day of St. Michael, then the Writ of Summons must be returnable on the Octave of St. Martin.

If the Writ of Entry be returnable in one Month from the Day of St. Michael, then the Summons must be in fifteen Days from the Day of St. Martin.

If the Entry be returnable on the Morrow of All Souls, then the Summons must be on the Octave of St. Hillary.

If you account the Return of the Writ of Entry one, then the fifth Return is the Return of the Summons.

And so it is between one Summons and another.

The first Summons must be tested the fourth Day inclusive from (i. e. the Appearance Day of) the Return of the Writ of Entry, and so must the second Summons from the Return of the first.

The Writs of Summons and Seisin must be signed by the Prothonotary, for which he takes nothing till he signs the Exemplification.

Then they must be sealed, which costs 7 d. a-piece.

Fifthly, Of passing the Writ of Entry, and of returning it, and the Summons.

When you have got the Writ of Entry from the Curfitor, carry it to the Alienation-Office to be compounded by the Commissioners, who attend from nine to ten in the Morning in Term Time, and for one Week after every Term.

The Rule for the Payment of Money in the Alienation-Office.

Every five Marks and 20 s. pays	—	—	l. s. d.

When the Writ of Entry is compounded, you pay the Composition-Money to the Receiver of the King's Fines, who is at the same Office; and after that you must leave it longer in in the Office for it to be entered, and for the Commissioners to indorse their Names on the Back of it.

	s.	d.
You pay to the Clerk of that Office in Term, _____	1	6
And to the Receiver, _____	0	6
If out of Term whilst the Commissioners are at the Office, _____	2	0
And after that, to the Clerk, _____	2	6
And to the Receiver, _____	0	6

They pin the Writs of Entry, Summons and Seisin together, and leave them at the Return-Office, in Mr. Borrett's Office, to be returned; but it is usual for Readiness to indorse the Return of the Seisin (except the Sheriff's Name) before you carry it there. You pay 1 s. 6 d. for each.

When you have got these Writs from the Return-Office, carry the Writ of Entry to the Attorney General's Clerk, and he will get the Attorney General's Hand to it, for which you pay 10 s.

Sixthly, Of drawing Recoveries, and entering the Summons, Mittimus, Transcript and Recovery on the Rolls.

The Recovery may be drawn, entered on the Rolls and exemplified either during the Time the Writs are passing thro' the Offices, or afterwards, as Opportunity permits.

When a Draught is made of the Recovery, it is usual to get the Prothonotary, or one of his Clerks, to peruse it to avoid Mistakes.

There must be one Roll for the Summons, called the Summons Roll.

And where there is a Dedimus Potestatem to take the Warrant of Attorney of any of the Parties, then the Mittimus and Transcript must be entered on the Recovery-Roll in small Secretary Hand before the Recovery, the Recovery being immediately after ingrossed in large German Text, or Secretary Hand, in the Manner and Form described in the Second Part.

Seventhly, Of exemplifying the Recovery, examining, docketing, signing and sealing it, &c.

The Recovery must be exemplified on a 10 s. Stamp, in the Manner and Form mentioned in the Second Part.

You must teste the Exemplification after the Return of the Writ of Seisin, if such Writ be returnable in the same Term in which Judgment was given; but if there be not fifteen Days between the Return of the Writ of Entry (or a Writ of Summons when by Summons) and the End of the Term, then must the Writ of Seisin be returnable indilate, and the Exemplification must bear Teste the last Day of the Term in which the Writ of Entry (or Summons) came in; or if the Writ of Seisin be returnable of a subsequent Term, then Teste the Exemplification the last Day of the Term in which Judgment was given.

If the Writ of Entry (or Summons when necessary) be returnable so late in the Term that the Writ of Seisin cannot come in returnable in the same Term, but that it must be returnable the next Term; then in your Exemplification you must observe, that after awarding the Return of the Writ of Seisin, you must break off and conclude; and then upon the folding up of the Bottom of the Exemplification, or on the Label, you must indorse the Ad quem diem.

When the Exemplification is finished, (the Writs having been returned, &c. as aforesaid) carry it together with the Writ of Entry, Mittimus and Transcript, and the Writs of Summons and Seisin and the Rolls, to the Prothonotary's Office, and there you must docket the Rolls; enter the Recovery on the Remembrance-Roll, and the Prothonotary, or one of his Clerks, will examine the Writs, Entries and Exemplification, and then sign the Exemplification.

You pay the Prothonotary for the Entry of the Recovery, filing the Writs and signing the Exemplification, if the Recovery be with a double Voucher by } Warrant of Attorney, } When a double Voucher in Person, } At the Seal-Office for sealing, } But if the Recovery is not past of the same Term it is of, it must be signed by } the Clerk of the Treasury before it be sealed, for which pay, }	1	5	0

(R) Of Execution after Recovery, and the Estate the Recoveror has by the Recovery.

AFTER the Demandant has Judgment in a Common Recovery against the Tenant, and the Tenant against the Voucher, and he against the Common Vouchee; the Court awards an Habere facias seisinam to the Sheriff of the County where the Lands lie, which the Sheriff returns, and so the Recovery is compleat and executed.

The Manner of suing out such Writ, and getting it returned, is already mentioned.

And tho' this is only Matter of Form, yet in many Cases it is not safe to proceed till there is a Return of the Habere facias seisinam; for,

Whenever a Recovery is to Uses, as all Common Recoveries are, no Seisin is in Recoveror, nor no Use raised, till the Execution of the Recovery; for before then the Land does not pass. Moor 281. T. 7 H. 4. 17.

So if no Use arises till Execution of the Recovery, the Party to whose Use the Recovery is declared to be, cannot convey the Thing recovered; for Nemo dat quod non habet.

If Tenant in Tail dies after Recovery and before Execution, Execution may be sued out against his Issue. Plow. 55, 375. Co. 6.

If A. has Lands conveyed to him and his Heirs with Warranty, and he suffers a Common Recovery to him and his Heirs, it is but the old Estate in Degree and Privy, as before.

So if he has Lands conveyed to him in Fee, with Warranty to him, his Heirs and Assigns, and he suffers a Common Recovery to the Use of a Stranger, the Recoveror may vouch as Assignee. Hob. 27.

When a Man suffers a Common Recovery to his own Use, he is in the Estate as he was before.

If a Tenant in Tail mortgages his Lands, and after suffers a Common Recovery to make a Jointure, this Recovery extends the Estate-tail, and lets in the precedent Mortgage in Prejudice of the Jointure, because the Recoveror comes in, in Continuance of the Estate-tail, and subject to all Incumbrances of Tenant in Tail; and in this Case the Court of Chancery will not relieve. 1 Chan. Rep. 20.

(S) The Remedy of Recoverors against Lessees for Rents, Services and Waste.

THE Recoverors in Common Recoveries, their Heirs and Assigns, have the like Remedy against Lessees for Lives and Years of the Land recovered, their Executors or Assigns, by Distress, Avowry, or Action of Debt, for the Rents and Services reserved upon their Leases that shall be due after the same Recoveries had: And also like Actions for Waste done after the Recovery had: And like Remedy upon a Disturbance in a Presentation to an Advowson, and in like Manner and Form as the Lessor should or might have had if the same Recoveries had never been had, although the same Lessees do never attorn to the same Recoverors.

And if a Man makes a Lease for Years to begin at Michaelmas, reserving Rent, and before Michaelmas he suffers a Recovery; in this Case the Recoveror shall distrain for this Rent which the Lessor before the Recovery could not distrain for.

But if the Recovery had not been had, he might have distrained. Stat. 7 H. 8. c. 4. Dyer 31. Co. Lit. 104.

(T) Of Evidence allowed in Common Recoveries, in what Time to be disputed, or deemed valid, and of its Validity as to the Time of making Tenant to the Præcipe.

BY Stat. 14 Geo. 2. reciting, That whereas by the Default or Neglect of Persons employed in suffering Recoveries, it has happened, and may happen, that such Recoveries are not entered on Record, whereby Purchasers for a valuable Consideration may be defeated of their just Rights: For Remedy thereof it is enacted, That where any Person or Persons hath or have purchased, or shall purchase for a valuable Consideration, any Estate or Estates in Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, whereof a Recovery or Recoveries is, are or were necessary to be suffered, in order to compleat the Title, such Person and Persons, and all claiming under him, her or them, having been in Possession of the purchased Estate or Estates from the Time of such Purchase, shall and may, after the End of twenty Years from the Time of such Purchase, produce in Evidence the Deed or Deeds, making a Tenant to the Writ or Writs of Entry, or other Writs for suffering a Common Recovery or Common Recoveries, Recoveries, and declaring the Uses of a Recovery or Recoveries, and the Deed or Deeds so produced (the Execution thereof being duly proved) shall, in all Courts of Law and Equity, be deemed and taken as a good and sufficient Evidence for such Purchaser and Purchasers, and those claiming under him, her or them; that such Recovery or Recoveries was or were duly suffered and perfected according to the Purport of such Deed or Deeds, in Case no Record can be found of such Recovery or Recoveries, or the same should appear not to be regularly entered on Record: Provided, always, that the Person or Persons making such Deed or Deeds as aforesaid, and declaring the Uses of a Common Recovery or Recoveries, had a sufficient Estate and Power to make a Tenant to such Writ or Writs as aforesaid, and to suffer such Common Recovery or Recoveries.

Which Act also recites, That whereas it has frequently happened that the Deeds for making the Tenant to the Writs of Entry, or other Writs for suffering Common Recoveries, have been lost, or that the Fines or Deeds, making the Tenants to the said Writs, have not been levied or executed till after the Judgment given in such Recoveries, and the Writ of Seisin awarded; by Reason whereof great Doubts have arisen, whether such Recoveries, for want of proper Tenants to the Writs, are good and effectual in Law; to prevent such Doubts for the future, and in order to render Common Recoveries more certain and effectual, it is enacted, That every Common Recovery already suffered, or hereafter to be suffered, shall, after the Expiration of twenty Years from the Time of the suffering thereof, be deemed good and valid to all Intents and Purposes, if it appears upon the Face of such Recovery that there was a Tenant to the Writ; and if the Persons joining in such Recovery had a sufficient Estate and Power to suffer the same, notwithstanding the Deed or Deeds for making the Tenant to such Writ should be lost or not appear.

And it is further enacted, That from and after the Commencement of this Act, every Recovery already suffered, or hereafter to be suffered, shall be deemed good and valid to all Intents and Purposes, notwithstanding the Fine, or Deed or Deeds making the Tenant to such Writ should be levied or executed after the Time of the Judgment given in such Recovery, and the Award of the Writ of Seisin as aforesaid, provided the same appear to be levied or executed before the End of the Term, Great Session, Session or Assises in which such Recovery was suffered, and the Persons joining in such Recovery had a sufficient Estate and Power to suffer the same as aforesaid.

Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall extend, or be construed to extend, to make any such Common Recovery heretofore suffered, valid and effectual in Law, which has been avoided by any lawful Act or Means, or which shall hereafter be avoided by Entry duly made on or before the sixteenth Day of January One thousand seven hundred and forty, or by Judgment or Decree had or obtained upon some Action or Suit at Law or in Equity, commenced or to be commenced on or before the said sixteenth Day of January, and prosecuted with due Diligence; but every such Common Recovery shall remain and be of such Force and Effect only, as the same would have been if this Act had never been made, and of no other Force or Effect.

Provided that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed to prejudice or affect any Question of Law which may arise upon Common Recoveries not remedied, or intended to be remedied by this Act; but all such Common Recoveries shall remain and be of such Force and Effect, as the same would have been if this Act had never been made, and of no other Force or Effect.

(U) Of avoiding Recoveries.

A Recovery may be defeated, frustrated and avoided (which is called falsifying of a Recovery) in part or in all for many Causes, as for that there is some gross and substantial Error in the Manner of the Proceeding.

But a Recovery is not avoidable for false or incongruous Latin, Rasure, Interlining, Mis-entering of any Warrant of Attorney, Mis-returning or not Returning of the Sheriff, or other want of Form in Words, and not in Matter of Substance, because it is done by the Consent of the Parties.

Or it may be avoided for that he against whom the Writ of Entry is brought is not Tenant of the Freehold by Right or Wrong at the Time of the Writ brought; as when the Writ is brought against a Stranger that has nothing in the Land, and he vouches the Tenant in Tail in Possession of the Land.

Or a Recovery may be avoided for that he that has the Estate and the Right is neither Party nor Privy to the Recovery; as when the Writ of Entry is brought against a Disseisor, and he vouches a Stranger that has nothing in the Land, or a Recovery is had against the Husband alone of the Land whereunto his Wife has Title of Dower.

Or

Or a Recovery may be avoided for that another has some Estate in the Thing whereof the Recovery is had at the Time of the Recovery suffered; as when there is a Recovery had of Land whereof there is a Lease or Estate for Years by Statute, Elegit, or the like.

Or it may be avoided for that the Recovery is had by Covin; as when it is suffered by Tenant for Life to disinherit him in Reversion, or when it is gotten by some undue Practice and sinister Dealing; for in this Case it is sometimes made void by a Vacat or Sentence of a Court.

And where a Recovery is avoidable or reverfable for any of these or such other like Causes, it must be avoided by him whom it does concern that is barred and bound by the same Recovery, that should have had the Land if the same Recovery had not been, and not by any other whom it does not concern; as

If an erroneous Recovery be suffered by Tenant in Tail; in this Case his Issues, or if they fail, the next in Remainder or Reversion shall defeat it.

So also if the Land be recovered against a Stranger, the Tenant in Tail shall avoid it; and if the Land be recovered against a Disseisor, the Disseisee shall avoid it; and if the Land be recovered against him in Reversion or Remainder, the Tenant for Years by Statute or Elegit shall avoid it: But in these last Cases they shall falsify and avoid it during their particular Estates only.

So also the Wife shall falsify the Recovery suffered by the Husband alone as to her Title of Dower only, and no longer and further.

And he in the Reversion or Remainder shall falsify and avoid the Recovery suffered by the Tenant for Life either in the Life-time of the Tenant or afterwards.

But neither he in Reversion or Remainder, or any one by or under him, or any other, can falsify a Recovery suffered by the Tenant in Tail in Possession, except it be for some such Cases as before.

And the Recoveror himself cannot falsify a Recovery.

So neither can a Guardian or a Tenant of a Manor; as if one holds Land of a Manor, and a Stranger recovers the Manor by a feigned Title, a Tenant of the Manor cannot falsify this Recovery.

And in all these Cases where a Recovery is avoidable, and a Man has Power given him to falsify, he must do the same sometimes by Writ of Error, as in the Case of an erroneous Proceeding; and sometimes by Pleading and setting forth the special Matter, as in the Case where the Tenant is not Tenant of the Freehold; or when the Recovery is had by Covin against the Tenant for Life, or the like; and sometimes by the shewing and setting forth of the Practice to the Court, and a Motion made that a Vacat may be made upon the Judgment for the Causes alledged. Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 3. 5 Co. 40. 21 H. 8. c. 15. Co. Lit. 46, 104. Dyer 249. 3 Co. 4. 78. Dyer 249. Co. 62. Plow. 515.

(W) Of Errors in Common Recoveries, and in what Cases they may be amended.

THE Law gives Common Recoveries all the favourable Constructions imaginable; and for their Support (they being Common Assurances of Land) the Stat. 23 Eliz. c. 3. enacts, That no Common Recovery shall be reversed for false or incongruous Latin, Rasure, Interlining, Misentry, Omission of the Return of the Sheriff, or any other want of Form.

False Latin,
Rasure, Interlining, Mis-
entry, &c.

An erroneous Common Recovery is good till reversed, by reason of the intended Recompence; and if Tenant in Tail suffers an erroneous Recovery, and after disseises the Recoveror, and dies, his Issue shall not be remitted, for the Recovery shall be presumed good till it is reversed. 3 Co. 3. 10 Co. 38.

And Common Recoveries being only Common Assurances, the Court of Common Pleas amends and supplies the Defects in the Entries of such Recoveries, or in Writs relating to the same.

And by the Stat. 10 & 11 W. 3. c. 14. No Fine or Common Recovery, or any other Judgment, shall be reversed for Error, unless a Writ of Error be brought in twenty Years; if Persons infra, &c. then within five Years after the Impediment removed.

Error to reverse a Recovery is barred by 20 Years though the Title of Plaintiff accrued within the Time. 2 Stra. 1257.

Of Mistakes in naming the Parties.

A Common Recovery was agreed to be suffered, wherein John Chapham and Richard Elton were to be Demandants, and by Mistake of the Clerk the Writ of Entry was sued out in the Name of John Chapham and John Elton, and the Recovery was suffered in the Name of John Elton instead of Richard, and this Recovery was amended. Trin. 2 Car. 1. Chapham v. Bacon.

A Warrant of Attorney was given in order to suffer a Common Recovery by William Reynolds and Hester his Wife; but the Serjeant who took the Warrant of Attorney, certified the same to be given by the said William Reynolds and Margaret his Wife, and the Mittimus and Transcript were made of a Warrant given by Margaret, and the Recovery entered accordingly; all were ordered to be amended. M. 4 C. 1.

A Common Recovery suffered by R. Callow and Ux', but the Name of the Wife was totally omitted; ordered to be amended. M. 8 Car. 1. Turban v. Pautry.

In naming the Particulars of the Lands, &c.

A Common Recovery was agreed to be suffered of two Messuages and one Garden, and suffered only of one Messuage; ordered to be amended. T. 13 Car. 1. Brooke v. Bidolph.

As to the Place where the Lands lie.

A Common Recovery was agreed to be suffered of Lands in Alphamton and Magna Hermy in Com' Essex, but by Mistake the same was suffered of Lands in Alphamton and Lamarsh; ordered to be amended in the Writs of Entry, Seisin, and the Entry of the Recovery. M. 6 Car. 1. Skinner v. Land.

A Common Recovery was agreed to be suffered of Lands in New-Church, Levington and Mersham, but New-Church was omitted in the Recovery; this upon reading the Indenture was ordered to be amended. T. 13 Car. 1. Whetwell v. Masters.

A Fine and Common Recovery were agreed to be levied and suffered of the Manor of Inkfield in Shropshire, and by Mistake the same was made Inglefield; both were ordered to be amended, viz. the Fine in the Record of the King's Silver, in the Foot and Note of the Fine, and in all the Places of the said Fine and Recovery; in the Writ of Covenant, Writ of Entry, Exemplifications, and Habere facias seisinam. 9 W. 3. Int. J. Fostre Ar' & Ux.

A Fine and Common Recovery were agreed to be levied and suffered of Lands in Cranley in Com' Surry, and by Mistake the same was written Crawley; on perusing the Deed to make a Tenant to the Præcipe, and declaring the Uses of the Fine and Recovery, they were ordered to be amended in the several Parts of the Fine and Recovery, and in the Writs of Covenant, Entry and Seisin. T. 4 Jac. 2. Freeman, Gent. Plaintiff, Mountague, jun. Ar' & Ux' Deforc'.

A Common Recovery was agreed to be suffered of Lands in Weston in Gloucestershire, and by Mistake it was written Waston; ordered to be amended in the Record, and other Places of the Recovery, and in the Writs of Entry, Seisin, &c. M. 11 W. 3. Int' Simon Smith Ar' Peten' & Ric'um Comit' Dorset & al' Tenen'.

A Recovery amended in the Name of a Parish. Ld. Raym. 134.

In the Writ of Entry.

Writ of Entry returnable Die lune quart' septiman' quadragesim' prox' futur', shall be referred to the fourth Week next, and not the next Lent. Cro. Eliz. 389.

A Deed to make a Tenant to the Præcipe was executed, dated 1 Nov. 33 Car. 2. and a Common Recovery suffered thereon, and the Writ of Entry made returnable tres Mic' before the Date of the Deed; ordered to be amended, and the Writ of Entry made returnable Crasin' Animarum. M. 4 W. & M. Bunce & al' v. Greenway & al'.

A Deed to make a Tenant to the Præcipe was dated 11 Nov. and a Common Recovery suffered, and the Writ of Entry made returnable Mense Mic' before the Date of the Deed; ordered to be amended. M. 5 W. & M. Wattry v. Jodrell.

A Common Recovery was suffered, and the Writ of Entry made returnable before the Date of the Deed which led the Uses of it, and which made the Tenant to the Præcipe; on reading the Deed, this was ordered to be amended. M. 5 W. & M. Warkhouse v. Watts.

As to the Appearance.

If Tenant be present and vouch to Warranty A. and one appears for him, it is Error, and the Appearance is void; for he ought to appear in Person, or else a Sum' ad Warr'; and where Summons is entered on the Roll, there, at the Return, the Vouchee may appear in Person, or by Attorney. Leon. 86.

As to the Warrant of Attorney.

Error was assigned, that the Summons is dated after the Dedimus Potestatem, and so no Warrant of Attorney at the Time of Appearance; but held good. Sid. 219. And in this Case, to support a Common Recovery, the Court will intend there was another Warrant of Attorney. T. Raym. 11, 34, 90. Keb. 34. Lev. 130. Dyer 220. contra, Leon. 86.

And in T. Raym. 71. it is held that the Dedimus Potestatem is no Part of a Fine, though a Warrant of Attorney is of a Recovery; but if the Party be dead, then it is ill. 2 Vent. 96. 20 H. 7. 9.

As to the Writ of Seisin.

The Writ of Entry was sued out returnable Craftin' Animar', and a Recovery suffered thereon; but the Writ of Seisin was made returnable the same Return as the Writ of Entry; ordered to be amended. Pas. 16 Car. 1. Doncaster v. Champion.

A Recovery without Seisin is imperfectly found, and no Venire facias de novo shall go. 2 Stra. 1185.

As to the Death of Parties, and Non-age.

If the Vouchee dies before Judgment, or be under Age, and appears in Person, or by Attorney, it is Error. Roll. 301. Dyer 90. Palm. 224.

S E C T. VI.

Of Deeds declaring (or leading) the Uses of Feoffments, Fines and Recoveries.

HAVING already, in the three last Sections, largely treated of Feoffments, Fines and Common Recoveries, the next Thing in Order, is to treat of Deeds declaring or leading the Uses of Feoffments, Fines and Recoveries; but as introductory thereto, it seems necessary first to shew the Nature, Kinds, Incidents, &c. of Uses.

(A) Use what.

AN Use (as some define it) is the Profit or Benefit of Lands or Tenements. Or, as others define it,

It is the Equity and Honesty to hold the Land in Conscientia boni viri. Or, by others, described thus:

An Use is a Trust or Confidence reposed in a Person, not as to Profits issuing out of Land, but as a Thing collateral annexed in Privy to the Estate of the Land; and to the Person touching the Land, so that he for whom he is trusted shall take the Profits of the Land: And the Tertenant shall dispose of it according to his Direction; as for Example,

If a Feoffment be made to J. S. and his Heirs, to the Use, Profit or Behoof of W. S. and his Heirs; in this Case heretofore J. S. had the Estate and Property of the Land, but W. S. had and was to have the Profits in Honesty and Equity.

So if one agrees with W. S. for a Piece of Land for 20*l.* and pays him the Money, but has no Assurance of the Land, yet the Equity and Honesty to have this Land is in him that has contracted and paid the Money for it.

This Trust was called the Use of the Land; and hence came the Course in Conveyances to set down in the Habendum to whose Use the Land is to be held; as Habendum to A. and his Heirs, to the Use of A. and his Heirs. Co. 121, 122. Co. Lit. 171, 272. b.

The Use before described is an Use at Common Law.

But Uses may be raised either by Transmutation of the Estate and Possession; as by Feoffment, Fine or Recovery, &c. Or out of the Estate of the Owner of the Land; as by Bargain and Sale by Deed indented and inrolled, or by Covenant to stand seized to an Use, upon lawful Consideration, without Transmutation of the Estate or Possession. Co. Lit. 271. b.

An Use cannot rise out of an Use, or a Way or a Common newly created. Carter 46. Gro. Jac. 189, 190. pl. 13. Poph. 81.

(B) Trust

(B) Trust or Confidence what.

THERE is an Use of Goods and Chattels, which is properly called a Trust or Confidence; for one may have such Things to the Use of another.

(C) Of the Difference between Uses and Trusts.

AS to the Difference between Uses and Trusts, there ought to be the utmost Care not to let Trusts be carried on beyond the Bounds of Uses; for it will introduce different Rules, which will make great Confusion, and be mischievous to the Publick: And Perpetuities in Trust will have all the Inconveniences as Perpetuities in Estates in Law have. Mic. 9 W. Int' Lloyd and Carew.

(D) Cestuy que Use who.

HE for whom a Trust or Confidence is reposed in any Person, and who ought to have the Profit of the Land by Conveyance as aforesaid, is called Cestuy que Use. He had neither Jus in re, nor Jus ad rem, but only a Confidence and Trust, for which he had no Remedy by the Common Law: But for the Breach of Trust his Remedy was only by Sub-pena in Chancery. Co. Lit. 272. b.

But now the Statute of Uses, 27 H. 8. c. 10. has transferred the Possession to the Use. Co. Lit. 272. b. Plow. 352. b. 349. b. 1 Co. 121. a. b. 122, 127. 2 Co. 58, 78. 6 Co. 64. 7 Co. 34. Leon. 196. 2 Leon. Case 25.

(E) Of the different Kinds of Uses.

USES are either in Esse, or in Possesse or Contingency.

1. Uses in Esse are either in Possession, Reversion or Remainder; as when a Feoffment is made to J. S. to the Use of J. W. and his Heirs; or to the Use of J. W. and after to the Use of J. D. and the Heirs Male of his Body, and after to the Use of S. T. and his Heirs for ever.

2. Uses in Possesse, or in Contingency, may possibly happen to be in Possession, Reversion or Remainder; as where an Use is limited to me for Life, and after to him that shall be my first Son in Tail; this is only the Possibility of an Use, for it may or may not be. 1 Co. 121, 122, 176.

Also Uses are either express or implied.

1. An Use express is when the Use or Intent is openly declared and expressed between the Parties upon making the Estate of Land whereunto the Use is annexed; as when a Feoffment is made of Land to J. S. and his Heirs to the Use of W. S. and the Heirs of (or Heirs Male of) the Body of the said W. S. or to the End and Intent that W. S. and his Heirs, or W. S. and the Heirs of his Body shall take the Profits of it, or the like; or when I covenant to stand seised of Land to the Use of my Wife for Life, and after of my Eldest Son and the Heirs of his Body, or the like.

2. An Use implied, is when the Use is not declared upon the Agreement between the Parties, but is left to the Construction and made by the Operation of Law; as,

When a Man seised of Land makes a Feoffment in Fee, levies a Fine, or suffers a Common Recovery of it to another without any Consideration, and it is not agreed nor declared to what Use or Intent it shall be; this by Construction of Law shall be to the Use of the Feoffor, Conusor, or Recoverer.

But if there be any Consideration of Money or other Thing paid or given, or any Rent or Tenure reserved, then by Construction of Law it shall be to the Use of the Feoffee, Conusee, or Recoveror; for otherwise the Law presumes that the Intent of him that did part with the Land was so, (viz.) that the other should have the Property of the Land to his Use, and that he himself should take the Profits of it.

So when one bargains and sells his Land for Money to another, and no Use is expressed; in this Case the Law says it shall be to the Use of the Bargainee and his Heirs. Doct. & Stud. 95. Perk. §. 533. 2 Co. 50. 9 Co. 11. Dyer 18, 146. 2 Roll. Abr. 781, 782, 789.

(F) Of

(F) Of the Nature of Uses.

AN Use at Common Law, before the Statute hereafter mentioned was made, was, and where that Statute does not take place, is nothing but a mere Confidence and Trust collateral to and distinct from the Land annexed in Privy of Estate, and to the Person touching the Land to this Purpose, that Cestuy que Use should take the Profit of the Land, and the Feoffee or Tertenant that was trusted should make Estates, and otherwise dispose of the Land, as the Cestuy que Use in his Life, or at his Death by his last Will and Testament, should direct and appoint; and if he made no Disposition, then that it should go to his Heir, so that the Feoffee had the Freehold or sole Property of the Thing in him, and Cestuy que Use had neither Jus in re nor Jus ad rem, (for if he against the Will of the Feoffee had entered into the Land, he had been a Trespassor) but a bare Confidence or Trust for which the Cestuy que Use had no Remedy, but in Chancery upon Breach of the Trust, and there to have the Feoffee imprisoned until he performs the Trust according to the Order of the Court.

These Uses, to some Purposes, were reputed in Law as Chattels, and therefore were devisable by Will.

And to some Purposes as Hereditaments, and a Kind of Inheritance, of which there was a Possessio fratris, &c.

And to some Purposes, neither Chattels nor Hereditaments; for they were not esteemed Assets in the Heir or Executor; neither were they reputed as Commons, Rents, Conditions, and such like Inheritances which are discontinued or taken away by the Alienation of the Tertenant, Escheat, Disseisin, &c. but an Use is not so. 1 Co. 120. in Cbudleigh's Case; and Co. 93. Shelley's Case. Kelw. 160. Dyer 12. Bro. Feoffment al Uses 25.

(G) Of Incidents to Uses.

TO every of these Uses there were two inseparable Incidents: 1. Confidence in the Person; and 2. Privy in the Estate, expressed by the Parties, or implied in Law.

When either of these failed, the Use was either gone for ever, or suspended for a Time at least. And therefore,

If the Feoffee to Use, upon good Consideration, had infeoffed another of the Land that had not Notice of the Use, the Use had been gone for ever; because howsoever here was a Privy of the Estate, yet here was no Confidence in the Person; but if the Feoffment had been without Consideration to such a one, in this Case the Use had remained still, because the Law implied a Notice.

So also it seems the Law was when it was made in Consideration of Marriage only.

And if a Disseisor, Abator or Intruder, had come to the Possession of the Land whereof the Use was, altho' he had Notice of the Use; yet the Use was suspended during their Possession, and they should not have been seised to Use, as the Feoffee was, for they came not to the Land in the Per, but in the Post.

And if a Lord by Escheat, Lord of a Villain, or one who had entered for Mortmain, or had recovered in a Cessavit, &c. had come to such Land and had Notice of the Use, the Use had been gone for ever; for these came to the Land in the Post, and above the Use.

And Tenant in Dower and by the Curtesy should not be seised to Uses in Being, for all these wanted Privy of Estate.

And if there had been Tenant for Life, the Remainder in Fee to the Use of another, and the Tenant for Life had made a Feoffment in Fee to one that had had Notice of the Uses, this second Feoffee should not have stood seised to the first Uses.

So if the Husband had made a Feoffment in Fee of the Land of his Wife, upon Consideration and without any Use expressed, he should not have had a Subpœna, because the Feoffee was not in Privy of Estate of the Wife.

And if Cestuy que Use for Life or in Tail, the Remainder in Tail, with divers Remainders over in Use, had made a Feoffment to one that had Notice, he should not have been seised to the first Uses, Causa qua supra.

But otherwise it is of Commons, Advowsons, and such like Appendants or Appurtenants; for if Tenant in Tail, or Husband in Right of his Wife, makes a Feoffment of a Manor, or of Part of it, with an Advowson appendant: The Advowson, at least after Presentment, shall pass as appendant to the Manor, or to Part of the Manor, and not to the Estate of the Land, which is discontinued by the Feoffment. So if a Disseisor, Abator, Intruder, or the Lord by Escheat, or the like, shall have these Things as annexed to the Estate of the Land in Privy, and Commons, Advowsons, and other Hereditaments that are annexed to the Possession of the Land. Shep. Touch. 502, 503.

(H) Of

(H) Of the Original and Antiquity of Uses.

USES began first when the Custom of Property began and was brought in, that one Man knew his own from another Man's, and then was to enjoy his own, and not to be deprived of it without Consent or Order of Law; for then he that had Land had two Things in him, a Possession of the Land, and Power to take the Profits of it, and those being to be distinguished, he might give the Freehold or Possession to another, and take the Profits himself; and they were the rather allowed by the Law for a Time as reasonable, because they gave a Man Power to dispose of his Land by Will, which otherwise he could not have done but in some special Cases by Custom of the Place. Shep. Touch. 503.

By Manwood, Justice: The Commencement of Uses has been as long as Mankind has been guided by Reason; and tho' no Mention is made of Uses in our antient Books, yet that is no Argument that Uses have been but of late Times. That Uses were not common, therefore were not at all, is non sequitur. 2 Leon. Case 25.

Harper, Justice, said, That Uses began about 18 Ed. 2. after which Time there was such a general Liking of them, that they were used a-new; but they did not come into common Practice before the Time of King H. 6. when the great Contention fell out betwixt the two Houses of York and Lancaster, at which Time Uses were in great Estimation for the Safety of Inheritances. 2 Leon. Case 25.

By Dyer, Chief Justice: As to the Beginning of Uses, the same was immediately after the Statute of Mortmain, at which Time all their Shifts then in Practice were found out, for which see the said Stat. 7 Ed. 1. Stat. de Religiosis. And in the Stat. 15 R. 2. c. 5. the Words Beboof and Use are used, which is the first Time they were so in our Law; and yet a long Time before that Statute, Uses had been in Practice. 2 Leon. Case 25.

By Manwood, Justice: As long as Wills have been, Trusts and Confidences have been; and also as long as Marriage has been; and refers to the Writ of Causa Matrimonii prolocuti, and the Statute of Marlb. c. 6. 2 Leon. Case 25.

But by Harper, Justice: Whereas it has been said, that an Use has been as long as any Marriage has been, and so conceived upon the Writ de causa Matrimonii prolocuti; the same is not any Reason, because in that Case there is not any Confidence or Trust; for if the Marriage does not take Effect, the Woman shall have her Writ de causa Matrimonii prolocuti. In Conveyances we are to respect two Things, the Form and Effect of them; and in all Cases where the Form and Effect cannot stand together, the Form shall be rejected, and the Effect shall stand. Same Case.

And by Manwood, Littleton says, That the Cestuy que Use shall be sworn upon Inquests, which was not enacted by any Statute, but practised by the Common Law. Ibid.

And that he himself had seen divers antient Deeds of Uses; and that in antient Time no Man would purchase Land to himself alone, but had two or three joint Feoffees with him; and he who was first named in the Deed was Cestuy que Use, altho' no Use was declared to him upon the Livery, and so the Use was known by the Occupation of the Lands. And then says, that the Reason why no Mention is made in our antient Books of Uses is, because Men were then of better Consciences than they are now; so that the Feoffees did not give Occasion to the Feoffors to bring Subpœna's in Chancery to compel them to perform the Trusts reposed in them. And before the Statute of Westminster the third, if a Man had made a Feoffment in Fee without declaring the Uses of it, it should have been to the Use of the Feoffee, because there is a sufficient consideration between the Feoffor and Feoffee to raise an Use, (viz. the Seignior created by the Law between them): But now by the said Statute such Consideration is taken away, and then upon such Feoffment without Consideration or Declaration of Uses, it is to the Use of the Feoffor himself. Same Case.

(I) Why Uses were invented, the Mischiefs thereof, and the Remedies by sundry Statutes.

FEAR and Fraud were the Occasions of inventing Uses.

1. Fear in the Time of Troubles and Civil Wars, for saving Persons Estates from Forfeiture.

2. Fraud to defeat just Debts, lawful Actions, Wards, Escheats, Mortmain, &c. Co. 121. b. Popb. 73.

Uses in Time were turned into Abuses, and the greatest Part of all the Lands in the Kingdom (especially in the Time of the Broil between the Houses of York and Lancaster) were put in Use, partly of Fraud and partly of Fear, which produced not a few Inconveniencies.

The Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. of Uses, was made for remedying all Mischiefs and Abuses in Uses, which Act was divided into two general Branches, viz.

1. The Preamble, which expresses the Mischiefs.
2. The Body of the Act, which provides the Remedies. Co. 123. b.

The Mischiefs in the Preamble are these :

1. Whereas by the Common Law, no Land or Tenement can pass but by Livery or Matter of Record, or Writing if it lies in Grant; now by divers and sundry Imaginations, subtle Inventions and Practices, by fraudulent Feoffments, Fines, Recoveries and Assurances, craftily made to secret Uses, Intents and Purposes.
2. By last Wills, sometimes by Parol, and sometimes by Signs, in great Extremity.
3. By these fraudulent Uses many Heirs have been unjustly disinherited.
4. The Lords have lost their Wards, Reliefs, and in Effect their Seigniories.
5. No Purchaser could be assured of his Estate.
6. Nor could any man know against whom to bring his Action, or have his Execution.
7. Estates created by Law in Consideration of Marriage, as Tenancy in Dower and by Curtesy, were defeated.
8. Perjuries upon Trials of secret Uses were committed, and daily increased.
9. The King had lost his Escheats for Attainders, Purchases of Aliens, &c.
10. The Lords had also lost their Escheats. Co. 123. b.

These were the Mischiefs; then comes the Body of the Act, which provides that,

Where any Person stands and is seised of any Lands, Tenements, &c. (Note; This Statute extends to Persons seised, not possessed of any Lands, &c.) to any Use, all and every such Person and Persons that have or shall hereafter have any such Use, &c. shall from henceforth stand and be seised, and adjudged in lawful Seisin, Estate and Possession, of and in the same Lands and Tenements, and of and in such Estates as they had in the Use; and that the Estate, Right and Possession that were in such Persons as were or hereafter shall be seised to the Use of any such Person or Persons, be from henceforth clearly deemed in Cestuy que Use, after such Quality, Manner and Form as they had in the Use.

This is the Remedy that the Makers of that Act have provided to salve all the Mischiefs aforesaid. Co. 125. b.

Cause of making the Stat. 27 H. 8. For the Power of Cestuy que Use before the Statute, see 2 Ld. Raym. 876.

By Harper, Justice: As to the making the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. the Truth is, the King was displeased at the Loss of Wardships, and other injuries done to him, for which Cause he complained to the Judges of the Defect of the Law in that Case; who thereupon shewed the King the Causes of those Injuries and Losses to him; and that if the Possession might be joined to the Use, all would go well, and all the Injuries, Wrongs and Losses which came to him by reason of Uses, Wills and secret Feoffments, would be avoided; for which Reason the King, in the 24th Year of his Reign, commanded his Council to frame a Bill for that Purpose, and present it to the House of Commons; but it was then rejected; and the King at that Time would have been contented, that the fourth Part of the Land only should descend; and from that Time the King staid further Proceedings in the said Cause till the 27 H. 8. at which Time it took Effect; and their Care was to pen the Statute so precisely that the whole Estate should be executed by it, so as it did utterly take away all from the Feoffees. 2 Leon. Case 25.

By the said Statute, the Use and Possession of Land at this Day is coupled and conjoined so that they cannot stand apart and divided, but he who has the one must have the other, and the one ensues the other as the Shadow does the Body; and therefore now upon Fines, Recoveries and Feoffments, the Estate settles as the Use and intent of the Parties is declared by Word or Writing before the Act done; as for Example,

If a Writing be made between two or more, that one of them shall levy a Fine, make a Feoffment, or suffer a Recovery to the other, to the Use and Intent that one of them, or another Man, shall have it for Life, and after another in Tail, and after a third in Fee-simple; in this Case the Law settles the Estate according to the Use and Intent declared, so that now what Estate a Man has in the Use, the same he has in the Possession.

But for the more full Understanding the said Statute, and the Law at this Day, observe, That the Statute does not extend to all Manner of Uses, neither are all Uses executed and united to the Possession thereby; for

By such Act it plainly appears that every Use in esse, viz. in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, is executed by it.

But no contingent Use or Right is executed by the said Act until it comes in esse; for To every Execution of an Use these four Things are requisite:

First, There ought to be a Person seised.

Secondly, There ought to be a Cestuy que Use in esse.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, There ought to be an Use in esse in Possession, Reversion or Remainder.

Fourthly, The Estate out of which the Use arises ought to be vested in Cestuy que Use; for the Words are, that the Estate of such Person seised to the Use, shall be adjudged in Cestuy que Use. Co. 126. a.

So that when these four, viz. 1. Seisin in the Feoffees; 2. Cestuy que Use in rerum natura; 3. Use in esse; and 4. That the Estate of the Feoffees vests in Cestuy que Use, then there is an Execution of the Use within this Statute; but if any one of these fail, there is no Execution of the Use within this Statute; and therefore it is agreed that this Statute does not execute any Use, but only Uses in esse; so that the Right of a present and a future or contingent Use are excluded until they come in esse, and then the Statute executes them also, if no Alteration be of the Estate of the Land before.

And if Cestuy que Use in Tail, with divers Uses in Remainder, had made a Feoffment, and died before the Statute, no Execution should have been of this Right of an Use until Entry by the Feoffees.

So if Cestuy que Use in Possession had made a Feoffment before the Statute, no Right of the Use in Possession or Remainder shall be executed by the Statute until the Regress by the Feoffees.

So if a Feoffment had been made before the Statute to the Use of the Feoffee for Life, and after to the Uses of others in Remainder, and the Feoffee had made a Feoffment in Fee to another; this Use shall not be re-continued, or the Re-possession of the Land executed unto it by this Statute; so that the Right of Uses in esse, and Uses in Contingency until they happen to be in esse, remain at the Common Law as they were before the Statute.

And therefore if the Estate of the Feoffees be in such Cases devested by Disseisin; or the King, or a Corporation, or an Alien, or a Person Attaint, &c. be infeoffed of the Land before the Use come in esse; or if the Land be aliened bona fide upon Consideration to one who has not Notice of the Use, this Use can never be executed until these Possessions be removed by lawful Entry or Action of the Feoffees; and if their Entry or Action be barred, the Use is gone for ever.

And therefore if Cestuy que Use in Tail, the Remainder in Tail restrained with a Clause of Perpetuity be disseised, no Use in Contingency can be executed by this Statute.

And if before the Statute a Feoffment had been made in Fee to the Use of J. S. for Life, and after to the Use of the right Heirs of J. N. and the Feoffees had been disseised, and then the Statute had been made, and after J. N. dies, and after his Death J. S. dies; this Use shall never be executed in the right Heir of J. N. Co. 126, 136. Plow. 391. Dyer 58, 88, 330.

And so also if a Disseisin be after the Statute, and before the Death of J. N. no Possession shall be executed in the right Heir of J. N.

Also Uses that need no Execution by the Statute, as when a Man conveys Land to J. S. and his Heirs, to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs; this needs not the Help of this Statute.

Also Uses that are against the Rules of the Common Law shall not be executed by this Statute; and therefore,

If a Feoffment be made to the Use of A. for Life, and after to the Use of every Person that shall be his Heir one after another for Term of his Life: So if one makes a Feoffment to the Use of another in Tail, with Remainders over, with a Proviso that neither of them shall discontinue or alien, &c. these Uses shall not be executed, because the Limitations are wholly void; and in these Cases there is no Remedy in Chancery against the Feoffees.

So from all this it appears, that some Uses are executed presently, as Uses in esse, and some are executed by Matter ex post facto, if they be according to Law, and come in esse in due Time; but if they be Uses invented and limited in a new Manner, and not according to the antient Common Law, they are altogether void, and extinguished and abolished by this Statute.

And where Lands are conveyed to others in Trust after this or the like Manner, viz. that the Feoffees shall take the Profits, and deliver them to the Feoffor and his Heirs, &c. or that the Feoffees shall convey it to the Heir of the Feoffor at his Age of twenty-one Years.

And where Lands are conveyed to certain Uses expressed and declared, and there be other secret Uses and Intents agreed upon between the Parties; these Uses or Trusts are not within this Statute, neither will the Statute execute them, but they remain as they were before the Statute, determinable in Chancery: Also Leases for Years of Lands in Use that have their Being before, and are granted over in Use, are not executed by this Statute. Co. 138.

And

And therefore if a Lessee for Years of Land grants or assigns over his Estate to A. and B. and their Assigns, to the Use of the Grantor and his Wife for the Term of their Lives; this Use or Trust is out of the Statute, and not executed thereby; and therefore in this Case all the Estate is in A. and B. and the Grantor has nothing but an Use, for which he has his Remedy in Chancery.

So if one be seised of Land in Fee, and he bargains and sells it, or makes a Lease of it to another in Trust, and for the Benefit of a third Person; this is but a Chancery Trust, &c. in this third Person, as was held clearly, M. 8 Car. B. R.

And yet if a Feoffment be made to the Use of J. S. and Assigns for the Term of twenty Years; this Term of Years shall be executed by the Statute.

And so in all such like Cases and Questions of Trusts and Uses that are not within the Statute of Uses, the Law is now as it was before the same Statute was made, and all those Matters are determinable in Chancery; for, as the Questions of Uses and Trusts that are within the Statute are to be decided and ruled by the Judges of the Common Law; so are all other Questions of Uses and Trusts that are out of the Statute to be ruled and decided by the Judges of the Chancery. Dyer 369, 356. Crompt. Jur. 65.

(K) What shall be said a good Use of Land, or not; and when and where such an Use shall be raised, altered or created, or not.

First, In Respect of the Manner of raising it, and the several Ways whereby Uses may be raised.

TO make a good Use, or to make an Use to rise, (for the Rise of Uses see Ld. Raym. 291.) especially such an Use as may be within the Statute, Respect must be had to divers Things:

I. To the Ways or Means of creating and raising of Uses, wherein it is to be observed, that altho' the Quality of the Uses be changed in most Cases by the Statute of Uses, yet Uses, and Uses within this Statute, are and may be raised as they might before the Statute, either by Transmutation of the Estate; as by Fine, Feoffment, Common Recovery, &c. or out of the Estate of the Owner of the Land; as by Bargain and Sale by Deed indented and inrolled, or by Covenant to stand seised to Uses upon good Consideration: And therefore a Fine, Feoffment or Recovery, may be had of Land, to the Use and Intent that either of the Parties thereunto, or others, shall have it for any Time or Estate; and by this Means what Uses, and consequently what Estates a Man will, may be raised and created: And in these Cases the Conusor, Feoffor or Recoverer, may appoint the Use of the same Fine, Feoffment or Recovery, to whom he will, without any Respect of Marriage, Money, Kindred or the like; for in this Case his Will guides the Equity of the Estate. Co. Lit. 271. Plow. 301.

Or if a Man makes a Lease to A. for Life, to the Use of B. for Life; this is a good Use and Estate in B. during the Life of A. Dyer 186.

Or if a Man by Bargain and Sale for good Consideration sells his Land to another; hereby the Use will rise according to the Estate bargained and sold unto the Bargainee; but in this Case, if it be an Estate of Freehold, as of Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, that is sold, the Bargain and Sale must be made by Deed indented and inrolled within six Months after, in some of the Courts at Westminster, or in the Sessions Rolls in the Shire where the Land lieth, except it be in Cities and Corporate Towns where they use to inrol Deeds; otherwise no Use will arise by it; but if it be an Estate for Years only that is sold, there the Use will arise well enough without any such Matter.

Or if a Man seised of Land in Fee covenants to stand seised of it to the Use of his Wife, Children, Brethren, or other Kindred, for Life, in Fee-simple or Fee-tail; or if one seised of Land in Fee-simple covenants to stand seised of the Use of a Woman he is to marry; or to the Use of a Woman, his Son, or other Kinsman is to marry; hereby the Uses, and consequently the Estates, will rise accordingly; and in these Cases there is no need it should be by Deed indented, &c. or that the Deed be inrolled, for Uses may be raised by Deed Poll as well as by Deed indented. 6 Co. 68. Dyer 155. 2 Co. 35, 36. 7 Co. 40. 8 Co. 93, 94. 4 Co. 17.

Also Uses may be created (as some hold) by Word or Parol Agreement as well as by Deed or Writing; for it is said it has been adjudged, that if a Man says to his Son and a Woman that his Son is to marry, that in Consideration of the same Marriage they shall have the Land to them two in Tail; that hereby a good Estate-tail will arise after the Marriage.

And

And that where one by Word without Deed grants Land to his Son and to his Wife in Tail, in Consideration of their Marriage; that it was agreed by all the Judges that the Use did rise upon this Agreement. Crompt. Jur. 60, 61. Plow. 301, 308, and see the better Opinions of the Judges in Corbin's Case, 38 Eliz.

Howsoever it is more safe in these Cases to do it by Deed and in Writing; for Dyer 296. Plow. 12. seems to oppose this; and if a Man makes a Feoffment, levies a Fine, or suffers a Recovery to the Use of his last Will, or to the Intent to perform his last Will, or to the Use of such Person and Persons, and of Estate and Estates as he shall limit by his last Will, and then afterwards by his last Will declares the Uses; these are good Uses, and this is a good way of raising Uses.

So if a Man devises his Land by Will to J. S. and his Heirs, to the Use of J. D. and his Heirs; it seems that the Use will rise to J. D. and his Heirs by this Means.

And if a Man by a verbal Agreement, in Consideration of Money, or the like, sells his Land to another, or agrees and promises that the Bargainee shall have it for any Time howsoever; that hereby no Use nor Estate will arise (if it be a Freehold that is sold) within the Statute, because it is not by Deed indented, &c. yet it seems a good Use will arise at the Common Law, and that the Bargainee shall have Relief in Equity for his Purchase. Lit. §. 462, 463. 6 Co. 17. Vide Stat. 27 H. 8. of Uses, ante. Fitz. Devise 22. Dyer 229.

An Use will not rise as an Use upon an Use at the Common Law, but it may be a Trust in Equity. 2. 1 Chan. Ca. 114.

If Lands are limited by Will to A. in Trust for a Feme Covert, and that A. shall receive the Rents, and pay and dispose of them to the Feme, or to such Persons as she shall direct and appoint, without the intermeddling of her Husband, &c. This is a Trust only, and not an Use executed by the Statute. Vern. 415.

There are three ways of creating an Use or Trust remaining at Common Law, notwithstanding the Stat. 27 H. 8. which Ways are subject only to the Controul and Direction of the Courts of Equity.

First, Where a Man seised in Fee raises a Term of Years, and limits it in Trust for A. &c. for this the Statute cannot execute, the Termor not being seised.

Secondly, Where Lands are limited to the Use of A. in Trust to permit B. to receive the Rents and Profits; for the Statute can only execute the first Use.

Thirdly, Where Lands are limited to Trustees to receive and pay over the Rents and Profits to such and such Persons; for here the Lands must remain in them to answer these Purposes. Abr. Ca. Eq. 383.

Secondly, In respect of the Persons trusted, and what Persons may not be seised to the Use of another, but to their own Use.

The second Thing whereunto Respect must be had, is to the Persons trusted, or to him to whom the Conveyance is made; for to every good Use there must be a Person seised to Use, and he must be a Person capable of such a Seisin.

And as to this observe, that any sole Person who may make an Estate to himself may make an Estate to other Uses.

Also a Man may be seised of his own Land to other Uses, as in the Case of Covenant to stand seised to Uses. Co. 122, 127, 135. Plow. 238. Dyer 8, 283.

But the King, or any Body Corporate, Alien born, or Person Attaint, cannot be seised to other Uses, no more by an original Feoffment to Use, than where they come by the Land in Use at the second Hand; in which Case (as hath been shewed) neither such Persons, nor Disseisors, Abators or Intruders, or Lord of Villains, or Escheats, shall be seised to other Uses; but in all these Cases the Uses are void, and the Parties shall hold the Land to their own Uses, or to the Uses of the Feoffors, &c. and not to the Use of Cestuy que Use. Resolved in Dr. Atkin's Case 44. C. B.

And a Bargainee of Land for valuable Consideration cannot be seised of the Land to any other Use but his own. Dyer 155.

Thirdly, In respect of the Persons for whom the Trust is, or the Cestuy que Use.

The third Thing to be respected is the Cestuy que Use; for to every good Use, as there must be a Person seised to Use, so there must be a Person to whose Use he is seised, and he must be capable also. Co. 136.

And as to this observe, that any Man that is capable of an Estate directly or immediately to himself, is capable of the same Estate by way of Use: but if the Use be limited to a Corporation, there must be a Licence had; otherwise it will be an Alienation in Mortmain. Bro. Mortmain 37.

And if future Uses upon Contingencies be limited to such Persons as are not in Being; these Uses howsoever they are good at the Common Law, yet they are not good within the Statute; neither does the Statute execute them at all until they come in Possession.

And if a Feoffment be made to J. S. and his Heirs to the Use of the Parishioners of Dale; this Use is void; for they are incapable by this Name, and it shall be to the Use of Feoffor. 12 H. 7. 27. 49 E. 3. 4.

Fourthly, In respect of the Estate and Possession of him that creates the Use.

The fourth Thing to be regarded, is the Estate of him that raises the Use in the Land whereof the Use is raised; for howsoever the Tenant in Fee-simple of Land may create what Uses he will in Fee, for Life or Years upon it, and such Uses are good; and the Tenants in Tail or for Life may perhaps grant their Land for their own Lives to the Use of a third Person.

Yet if a Tenant in Tail for good Consideration covenants to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of his eldest Son in Tail; no Use will arise by this Covenant.

So if Tenant in Tail of an Advowson in Gros grants it by Deed to one and his Heirs, to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of another in Fee; this Grant is void by the Death of the Tenant in Tail. Hil. 38 Eliz. C. B. 2 Co. 52. Pas. 13 Jac. C. B. Say v. Smith.

And if such a Tenant in Tail bargains and sells his Land by Deed indented and inrolled; hereby the Bargainee has an Estate descendible to his Heirs, but determinable upon the Death of the Tenant in Tail.

And if such a Tenant in Tail bargains and sells his Land by Deed indented and inrolled; hereby the Bargainee has an Estate descendible to his Heirs, but determinable upon the Death of the Tenant in Tail. 10 Co. 96.

And if one covenants by Indenture to stand seised to the Use of B. of Whiteacre, which he has not then, but he afterwards purchases it; by this no Use will arise. Yelverton's Case, 37 Eliz. B. R.

And if one who has but a Term of Years grants it to J. S. to the Use of himself for Life, &c. This is no good Use within the Statute, but a Chancery Trust only. Dyer 369.

Fifthly, In respect of the Estate and Possession of him that takes by the Conveyance.

The fifth Thing to be respected, is the Estate of him that takes by the Conveyance out of which the Uses are derived; for

Where a Man grants in Fee-simple to another and his Heirs, he may limit what Uses he will upon this Estate.

And if a Man makes an Estate for Life to another, he may limit an Use thereupon; yet if a Man makes a Gift in Tail to another, he can limit no Use thereupon: and therefore if one grants his Land to J. S. and the Heirs of his Body, to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs in Fee; this Limitation of Use is void, and J. S. has hereby an Estate in Tail. Vide 2 Co. 78. Co. Lit. 19.

And if a Feoffment be made to J. S. to have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his Body, to the Use of him, his Heirs and Assigns for ever; this Use is void. Trin. 14 Jac. B. R. Couper and Franklin's Case.

And where one bargains and sells Land for Money, (in which Case the Law makes an express Use) no other Use can be appointed.

And therefore if A. for Money bargains and sells Land to B. and his Heirs, to the Use of A. for Life, and after of B. in Tail, and after of A. in Fee; all these Uses are void, for an Use cannot rise out of an Use.

So if A. makes a Lease to B. for Years, rendring Rent, to have and to hold to the Use of the Lessor; this Use is void, as being also against Reason. Dyer 169. Crompt. Jur. 53. Lit. §. 284.

And if a Feoffee to Use before the Statute of Uses, had bargained and sold the Land to one who had Notice of the former Use; no Use had been made hereby, for there might not be two Uses in Being of the same Land at one Time.

And

And if A. infeoffs B. to the Use of C. and his Heirs, with Proviso that if D. pays to C. 100 l. that C. and his Heirs shall stand seised to the Use of D. and his Heirs; this last Use is void, for the Use must arise out of the Estate of the Feoffee, and not out of the Estate of the Cestuy que Use. Dyer 255. Co. 136, 137.

A Rent shall (by virtue of the Statute) arise out of the Estate of Cestuy que Use, upon a Recovery, which was to arise out of the Estate of the Recoveror and his Possession; because by the Intention of the Parties the Cestuy que Use was to pay the Rent. Vaugh. 52.

An Use cannot arise out of an Use, or a Way or a Common newly created. Carter 46. Cro. Jac. 189, 190. pl. 13. Popb. 81.

Where an Estate in Use is to begin on a Contingent precedent, which is impossible, or against Law, the Use shall never rise. Leon. 199.

Sixthly, In respect of the Cause or Consideration of an Use, and what shall be a sufficient Consideration to raise or alter an Use, or not.

The sixth Thing whereunto Respect must be had, is the Cause or Consideration; for howsoever in Cases where Uses pass by the way of Transmutation of Possession, as by Fine, Feoffment or Recovery, there the Consideration is not at all material; for he that makes the Estate may appoint the Use to whom he will, without any Respect to Marriage, Kindred, Money, or other Thing; for in this Case his own Will and Consideration guides the Use and Equity of the Estate; yet in Bargains, and Sales, and Covenants to stand seised to Uses, it is otherwise; for there a Consideration is so necessary that nothing will pass, neither will any Use rise without it, i. e. some Matter that may be a Cause or Occasion meritorious, which amounts to a mutual Recompence in Deed or in Law; which must be expressed or implied in the Deed whereby the Use is created, or else supplied by Averment and Proof.

For howsoever in this Case an Averment shall not be allowed and taken against a Deed, that there was no Consideration given when there is an express Consideration upon the Deed; yet when the Deed expresseth no Consideration, or faith (for divers good Considerations) or the like, there an Averment of a good Consideration given shall be received; for this is an Averment that may stand with the Deed, and without Consideration Inrolment will not help.

And therefore if one bargains and sells his Land to another by Deed indented and inrolled without any Consideration, it seems no Use will rise by this to the Bargain. Co. 176. 11 Co. 25. Dyer 146, 169, 312. Crompt. Jur. 62.

So if one (for divers good Causes and Considerations, or for divers great and valuable Considerations) bargains and sells his Land to another, or covenants to stand seised of his Land to the Use of another that is not of his Kindred; no Use will rise by this, unless it be proved that Money, or something else, was given for it. 41 El. adjudged.

But if a Man by Deed, in Consideration of Money, as in Consideration of the Sum of 100 l. to him paid, or in Consideration of a competent Sum of Money to him paid, or otherwise promised to be paid, or in Consideration of other Land, or of giving of Counsel, or the like, bargains and sells, or by such like Words grants his Land to another in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years; in these Cases the Use will arise to the Bargain well enough. Plow. 301. Bro. Fait Inrol. 9. Doct. & Stud. 99. Crompt. Jur. 60, 61. Dyer 90.

And therefore if I covenant with B. that when he infeoffs me of Whiteacre, I will stand seised of Blackacre to the Use of him and his Heirs, and he infeoffs me accordingly; in this Case the Use of Blackacre will rise to B. and he and his Heirs shall have it according to the Agreement. Crompt. Jur. 61.

So if I agree with my Lessee for Years, that if he pays me 100 l. within his Term, that I will stand seised of the Land to the Use of him and his Heirs, and he pays me the 100 l. accordingly; in this Case the Use will rise, and he and his Heirs shall have it according to the Agreement.

So if I covenant that my Son shall marry the Daughter of A. and A. promises to give me 100 l. for the Marriage-Portion, and I covenant that if the same Marriage do not take Effect, I and my Heirs will stand seised of the Land to the Use of A. and his Heirs until the 100 l. be paid; in this Case a good Use will rise of the Land accordingly, if the Marriage do not take Effect; but in all these and such like Cases the Covenant must be by Deed indented, and it must be inrolled, otherwise no Use will arise. Bro. Exposition of Words 44.

And when the Deed is inrolled, it shall take Effect as from the Beginning by Relation to avoid all intervenient Estates and Charges whatsoever.

And

And in like Manner it is, if one for no Cause, or for no Consideration, as [because he is of his antient Acquaintance, or because there has been entire Love or great Familiarity between them, or because he has been his Chamber-fellow, School-fellow, or Fellow-servant, or because he has done him good Service, or because he was his Master and taught him, or to the End that he may pay his Debts and Legacies, and discharge his funeral Expences, or for divers good Causes and Considerations]; if one for any of these, or any such like Cause and Consideration, covenants with another that he will stand seised of his Land to the Use of that other and his Heirs, or that he and his Heirs shall have the Land, &c. by this Covenant whether it be inrolled or not, no Use at all will rise. Plow. 302. 21 H. 7. 20.

So if one covenants to stand seised to the Use of J. S. (who is a Bastard Son) and his Heirs, no Use will arise thereby; and yet perhaps upon such a Covenant as this, whereupon no Use or Estate arises, an Action of Covenant may lie. Dyer 374.

But if one [in Consideration of Nature, Kindred, Blood or Marriage with one's self, or any of his Blood, Payment of Debts, or for the like Cause] or without any such express Consideration at all, covenants to stand seised to the Use of himself, his Wife, Children, Brothers, Sisters or Cousins, or their Wives; these are good Considerations, and the Uses and Estates thereupon thus raised and made are good.

And therefore if one covenants by his Deed, without Expression of any Consideration, to stand seised of his Land to the Use of himself for Life, and after of his Wife for Life, and after of his Child in Tail or for Life, and after of his Brother in Tail or for Life, or in Fee, or in any such like Manner; these Uses will rise, and the Estates will be well made hereby accordingly. 7 Co. 11. 10 Co. 143. Co. 83, 154. Plow. 801. Lit. §. 284.

So if I agree with another, that if he marries my Daughter, that from the Time of the Marriage they shall have my Land to them and their Heirs; in this Case, and by this Agreement, if he marries my Daughter, they will have my Land according to the Agreement.

So if I being about to marry with a Woman, covenant with J. S. to stand seised of my Land to the Use of myself for Life, and after to the Use of the Woman I am to marry, for her Life, and after to the Use of the Heirs of my Body begotten on her; these are good Uses and Estates that are made by this Covenant. Plow. 301. Bro. Feoffment of Uses 54.

But here by the way, this Difference must be observed where a Man covenants, in Consideration of a Marriage to be had, to stand seised to Use, and the Marriage doth not take Effect, there no Use shall arise. Cur., T. 10 Car. B. R. Hoskin's Case.

So also if the Parties disagree at their Age of Consent: and so was it held in the Lord Herbert's Case.

But where one covenants to make a Feoffment, or levy a Fine to such Uses, and the Feoffment is made, or Fine levied accordingly; there notwithstanding the Marriage does not take Effect, yet the Use shall arise; for there he is in by the Fine or Feoffment, in which Case there needs no Consideration.

And therefore if A. covenants with B. that in Consideration C. is his Kinsman, and in Consideration of a Marriage to be had between C. and E. he will make a Feoffment and other Assurances to the Use of himself for Life, the Remainder to C. and E. and the Heirs of their two Bodies, and after Assurances are made accordingly by Fine or Feoffment, but they do not intermarry, but marry others; in this Case notwithstanding E. shall have a Moiety of the Land.

So if I covenant (in Consideration of the Love I bear to my Wife) to stand seised to the Use of her and her Heirs of my Body upon her begotten, and after to the Use of my Brother; hereby the Use will rise to my Brother also, although he be not within the express Consideration.

So if one covenants with his two Sons, for the Love he bears to them, to stand seised of his Land to the Use of himself for Life, and after his Wife for Life, and after of his two Sons in Tail, one after another; in this Case the Consideration is sufficient to raise the Use to the Husband and Wife also. 7 Co. 40. 11 Co. 24. Dyer 374.

So if one (in Consideration of the Love he bears to his Brother) covenants to stand seised to the Use of his Brother, and the Wife of his Brother for Life, or in Tail; in this Case the Consideration is sufficient to raise the Uses to them both.

So if I covenant (in Consideration of the Marriage of my Son with the Daughter of another) to stand seised to the Use of myself for Life, and after of my Son and his Wife in Tail; these are good Uses, and will rise accordingly. Plow. 307.

If I covenant with J. S. to stand seised to the Use of him, his Executors, &c. (he being none of my Kindred) for twenty Years, and after to the Use of my Son in Tail; in this Case the Use will not rise to J. S. but it will rise to my Son well enough.

For altho' the Consideration of Money given by one may be a Consideration to all the Estates, yet the Consideration of Blood, &c. is singular, and will raise the Use of that only to which it goes.

But if I covenant with B. in Consideration of the Marriage of my Son with the Daughter of B. to stand seised to the Use of R. (a Stranger) for Life, and after to the Use of my Son and his Wife in Tail; in this Case the Use shall rise to R. although he be a Stranger, and that for the Supportance of the Remainder, which cannot be without a particular Estate; and in all these and such like Cases no Inrolment of the Deed is necessary. Plow. 307. Dyer 174.

If I (in Consideration of 10*l.* given to me by my Son) covenant with him to stand seised of Land to the Use of him and his Heirs; in this Case no Use will rise without Inrolment by the implied Consideration, because there is an express Consideration; Et expressum facit cessare tacitum. 11 Co. 24, 25. 7 Co. 40.

And yet if I covenant, that in Consideration that J. S. is my Son, and hath paid me 10*l.* that I will stand seised of Land to the Use of him and his Heirs; in this Case the Use will rise without Inrolment.

And if I covenant (in Consideration of 100*l.* and of a Marriage) to stand seised to the Use of myself for Life, and after of my Son in Tail; hereby the Use is raised, and the Possession charged without Inrolment. Maurel's Case, T. 3 Jac. B. R. Plow. 4. Bro. Feoffment at Uses 15.

So also where a Feoffment is made, Fine levied, or Recovery suffered, and no Use declared thereupon, and the same is without any Consideration of Fine or Rent; by this the Use is not changed; for it results to the Feoffor, Conusor and Recoverer, and he hath the Estate as he had it before; but if in these and such like Cases there be but a Penny or a Pennyworth of Consideration given, or any Rent reserved upon the Feoffment, the Use will rise well enough to the Feoffee, &c.

And if any Tenure be created, as where a Gift in Tail, Lease for Life or Years is made; in these Cases, although there be no Consideration given, yet the Use will rise well enough to the Donee or Lessee, and especially if any Rent be reserved, for that is a Kind of Consideration: But if a Lessee for Years grants over his Term to another without any Consideration at all, it seems by this no Use at all will rise to the Grantee, and therefore that the Grantee shall hold it to the Use of the Grantor; sed Quære. Co. 24. Doct. & Stud. 97, 99, 101.

If Uses are limited without Consideration, they are void; and the Estate returns to the Covenantor again, or rather was never out of him. 1 Vent. Pibus and Midford. Mod. 159, 160, &c.

There are no Considerations at this Day to raise Uses upon Covenants but natural Love and Affection, which is for Advancement of Blood, or Consideration of Marriage, which is joining of Blood and Marriage together: Other Considerations, as Money for Land, or Land for Land, though the Words are stand seised to uses, yet they are Bargains and Sales, and without Inrolment they will raise no Use. Carter 139. Vide 1 Leon. 138 to 201.

If I covenant that A. a Stranger shall have my Land to him and his Heirs to pay my Debts and Legacies; the same is by way of Bargain and Sale, and nothing passes without Inrolment. 1 Leon. 201.

Seventhly, In Respect of the Manner and Frame of the Words used in raising of Uses, and what Manner of Uses may be made or not.

The seventh Thing whereunto Respect is to be had, is the Manner and Form of Words used in the making and raising of Uses, wherein there is much Regard to the Mind and Intention of Parties: For,

If one covenants in Consideration of 20*l.* paid him by J. S. to stand seised of Land to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs; or if one covenants that J. S. and his Heirs shall have his Land; if this Deed be inrolled, this is a good Bargain and Sale to raise the Use, and will do it as well as when it is made by the Words bargain and sell. 8 Co. 94.

So if one for good Consideration, by the Words Demise and Grant, makes a Lease of his Land for a Term of Years; hereby the Use will rise to the Lessee as well as if the Lease were made by the Words bargain and sell, & sic de similibus.

And yet if one by the Words bargain and sell, conveys his Land to his Son, no Use will arise by this, except there be Money paid, and the Deed be inrolled.

And if one in Consideration of Money grants his Land to his Son, or any other, by the Word infeoff, no Use will rise by this unless Livery of Seisin be made thereupon, because the Intent of the Parties in these Cases appears to be to pass it in another Manner.

And if in the last Case Livery of Seisin be made, then the Use shall be guided by Law, that is, if nothing be given, it shall be to the Use of the Feoffee, and not amount to a Limitation of Use to the Son. Wards v. Lambert, C. B. Pas. 37 Eliz. Stile's Case. Vide 2 Co. Rowland Hayward's Case.

If one covenants with his Son that his Land shall remain, or that his Land shall descend to him; this is a good Covenant to raise the Use according to the Limitation.

And yet if one covenants with his Son upon his Marriage, that his Land shall remain, revertt or descend to his Son in Fee, or in Fee-tail; by this no Use will be raised, because it is so incertain; but perhaps this may amount to a Covenant, whereupon the Son may have an Action of Covenant.

If I covenant for me and my Heirs, that I and my Heirs, and all others that are seised, shall be thereof seised to the Use of, &c. this is a good Covenant to raise the Use, altho' it be in Words of the future Tense. 21 H. 7. 18. Plow. 308, 301. Bro. Feoffment at Use 16.

If I covenant with my Eldest Son, and Strangers, to convey my Land to the same Strangers, to the Use of myself for Life, and after of my Son in Tail, &c. and I grant by the Deed, that the said Persons seised of the said Land shall be from thence seised to the said Uses, and no other Use, and no other Conveyance is made; it seems this is sufficient to raise the Use.

And yet if I be seised of Land in Fee, and covenant with J. S. that A. B. and C. D. and their Heirs, shall stand and be seised of this Land to the Use of, &c. it seems this is not a good Covenant to raise the Uses. Dyer 874.

If a Feoffment or other Conveyance be made to the Use of the Feoffor and the Heirs of his Body, on the Body of M. the Wife of S. T. and for Default of such Issue, to the Use of him and the Heirs of his Body of S. the now Wife of W. K. and for Default of such Issue, then to the Use and Performance of his last Will for ten Years immediately after his Death, and after the Term ended, to the Use of the Feoffees and their Heirs during the Life of W. (Eldest Son of the Feoffor) and after his Death, to the Use of the first Issue Male of the Body of the Feoffor lawfully begotten, and the Heirs of the Body of such first Issue Male; and for Default of such first Issue Male, to the second Issue Male, &c. (in the same Manner) these are good Limitations of Uses. Co. 120.

So if an Use be limited to J. S. for Life without Impeachment of Waste, and after to the Use of B. and C. their Executors and Administrators, for the Term of twenty Years, and after to the Use of C. and the Heirs Male of his Body, &c. these are good Uses. Co. 90.

So if an Use be limited after this Manner, viz. to the Use of a Man's last Will and Testament; or to the Use of such Person or Persons, and of such Estate and Estates as he shall limit and appoint by his last Will and Testament; or to the Use of such Person or Persons, or to such Uses and Purposes as he shall by any Writing under his Hand and Seal declare and appoint; these are good Limitations. 6 Co. 18. Lit. §. 462, 463.

If I covenant with another in Consideration of Blood, &c. that I will stand seised of my Land to the Use of such of my Sons, or such of my Cousins, as the Covenantee shall name; in this Case, after a Nomination made, the Use will rise well enough.

But if I (for and in Consideration of 10 l. or the like good Consideration) covenant to stand seised of Land to the Use of such Persons as the Covenantee shall name; in this Case, although the Covenantee nominates some of my Cousins, or Blood, yet no Use will rise by this for the Incertainty of it.

If a Feoffment or other Conveyance be to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs, provided that if the Feoffor pays 10 l. at such a Day, that then it shall be to the Use of the Feoffor and his Heirs; this is a good Limitation, and the Use will rise accordingly. Co. 176.

An Use may be limited to a Woman durante viduitate sua, and this is good. 4 Co. 3.

If a Man be seised of two Manors, and covenants to stand seised of the same to the Uses following, viz. of the one to the Use of the Covenantor for his Life, and after to the Use of his Wife for Life, and after to the Use of his Eldest Son in Tail, &c. and for the other Manor, to the Use of the second Son in Tail, &c. these are good Limitations, and the Uses will rise accordingly. 11 Co. 23.

If a Man seised of Land in Fee, agrees with another that a Fine shall be levied of it, and that the same shall be to the Uses following, viz. that J. S. (the Conusor) shall have one yearly Rent of 50*l.* during his Life, to be issuing out of the same Land; and as touching the Land charged with the Rent, &c. to the Use of J. D. (the Conusee) until Default of Payment of the said yearly Rent, and then to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs for ever; this is a good Limitation, and the Use will rise accordingly; Et sic de similibus. 2 Co. 69, 70.

If a Feoffment be made by J. S. to the Uses in certain Indentures Tripartite of the same Date, and therein is declared that it shall be to the Use of A. for Life without Impeachment of Waste, and after to the Use of such Farmers or Tenants to whom he shall demise any Part of the Premises for Life or Lives, or for any Term of Years, as in any such Demise shall be limited and appointed, and after to the Use of the Performance of the last Will of the said L. and to the Use of such Person or Persons severally to whom the said L. by his last Will and Testament shall appoint any Estate, and after to the Use of, &c. these are good Uses, and the Estates shall rise accordingly. 10 Co. 78.

An Use may be limited upon Condition, and the Condition may be annexed to one of the Uses, and not unto another. 4 Co. 24.

If Lands be conveyed to J. S. and the Heirs of his Body, to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs, or to the Use of a Stranger and his Heirs; this Use will not rise in this Manner.

And yet if Lands be conveyed to J. S. and his Heirs, to the Use of him and the Heirs Male of his Body, and after to the Use of a Stranger and his Heirs; it seems this is a good Limitation. Co. Lit. 19.

If one grants Lands by Deed to Husband and Wife, to have and to hold to the Use of the Husband and Wife, and of the Heirs of their two Bodies; this is a good Estate-tail by this Limitation, altho' he does not say Habendum to them and their Heirs, &c. but Habendum to their Uses; but it would be otherwise if the Uses were limited to a Stranger in this Manner. Adjudged H. 6 Car. B. R.

If Lands be conveyed by J. S. to J. D. to the Use of J. S. or to the Use of his Wife for Life, or to the Use of any other for Life, the Remainder to another in Tail or for Life, the Remainder to a third, his Executors, &c. for six Months, and after the six Months ended, to the Use of a fourth and his Heirs; these are good Limitations, and the Estates will rise accordingly. Dyer 314.

If an Use be limited to the Conusee of a Fine, or a Recoveror in a Recovery until he makes a Lease for forty Years, and after to the Use of the Recoverees or Conusors and their Heirs; this is a good Limitation, and the Use will rise accordingly. Dyer 290.

Contingent Uses, or Uses in posse, may be created as well as Uses in esse; and therefore if Lands be conveyed to the Use of a Man and the Wife he shall afterwards marry, or to the Use of his first, second or third Wife, or to the Use of J. S. for Life, and after to the Use of the right Heirs of J. D. and J. D. is then living; or to the Use of J. S. for Life, and after to the Use of him that shall be his first Heir Male, and the Heirs of the Body of such Heir Male, &c. all these and such like are good Uses; but they are Uses at the Common Law still, and are not executed by the Statute until they come in esse. Co. 135. in Chudleigh's Case.

Eighthly, In Respect of the Nature and Quality of the Use.

The last Thing whereunto Respect is to be had, is the Nature and Quality of the Use.

And herein observe, that a Man may at this Day by Act executed in his Life-time, or by his last Will and Testament at his Death, give his Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments to any Person or Persons not Corporate, and their Heirs, for any Religious, Charitable or Civil Use, as well as for any private Use.

And therefore a Man may so dispose of his Lands for the Finding of a Preacher, Erecting or Maintenance of a School, Relief and Comfort of maimed Soldiers, Sustainance of poor People, Reparations of Churches, Highways, Bridges, discharging of the poor Inhabitants of a Village of the common Charges, to make a Stock for poor Labourers in Husbandry, and poor Apprentices; and for the Marriage of poor Virgins, or other such like Uses; and these Uses are not prohibited by any Statute.

And it is good Policy upon every such Feoffment or Estate to reserve to the Feoffor and his Heirs some small Rent, or to set down some small Consideration.

But these Uses are not such Uses as are executed by the Statute of Uses, neither are they to be resembled to the Uses aforesaid; for in these Cases if there be any Misemployment of the Lands, or Breach of the Trust by the Parties trusted, Redress is to be had by the the Lord Chancellor by a special Course of Proceeding: For which see the Statutes of 39 Eliz. chap. 6. 43 Eliz. chap. 9. 7 Jac. chap. 3. Co. 26. 8 Co. 131. 4 Co. 113.

Charitable Uses.

Dr. Downham having given several Lands to charitable Uses, for the Maintenance of a Master and Usher of a Free-School, &c. and they being incorporated, in Consideration of a small Fine, and Surrender of a former Lease, granted a long Term of Years in the Lands to W. R. at a great Undervalue: This was found by Inquisition, upon a Commission of charitable Uses; whereupon the Lease was set aside, and the Lessee decreed to deliver up the Possession, and pay the Arrears of Rent according to the full Value. Vern. 415.

No Agreement of Parishioners, where there are Parochial Charities given to certain Uses, can alter or divert them to other Uses; for if they might change and apply the Charities as they thought fit, it would be a great Step towards destroying all Charities.

A Corporation for a Charity are but Trustees, and may improve the same, but cannot do any Thing to the Prejudice thereof, or in Breach of the Rules of the Founder. Vern. 42, 44. 2 Vern. 412.

Money given to a Parish generally, without saying to what Use, was decreed to the Poor of the Parish, on the Minister, Churchwardens and Overseers of the Poor exhibiting a Bill in Chancery, and suggesting that the Testator intended it for the Benefit of the Poor. It was objected against this Decree, that the Devise was void, there being no Use limited touching the Legacy, whether it was for the Poor, or for the Repair of the Church or Highways, &c. Chan. Ca. 134, 135. Vide Abr. Ca. Eq. 97, 98.

The Statute 9 Geo. 2. c. 36. restrains and makes void the Disposition of Lands, or Sums of Money, &c. to be laid out in Lands to charitable Uses, unless it be by Deed indented and executed before two Witnesses twelve Months before the Death of the Donor, and inrolled.

But this Act is not to extend to the two Universities, or the Colleges of Eaton, Winchester, or Westminster.

The Devise of a Charity not good at Law, by reason of the Misnaming of the Devisee, &c. has been held a good Limitation in Equity, within the Statute of charitable Uses; which Statute supplies all Defect of Assurance, where the Donor is of Capacity to dispose: And Legacies given to charitable Uses are more favourably construed than all others. Finch's Rep. 221. Vern. 230. 2 Vern. 755. Abr. Ca. Eq. Tit. Charity.

Pious Uses.

Pious Uses are wholly subject to the Chancery.

And no Appeal lies to the House of Lords from a Sentence by the Delegates, or a Decree of the Lord Chancellor, upon the Statute of charitable Uses.

Also the Decree on hearing Exceptions being once confirmed by the Chancellor, there can be no Rehearing, for that is final by the Act of Parliament. 2 Vern. 118. 2 Chan. Ca. 32.

Superstitious
Uses.

If any Man has heretofore given, or hereafter shall give, any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, by Act executed in his Life, or by his last Will at his Death, to any Person singular or corporate, in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, to the Intent or upon Condition to maintain any superstitious Use, as to find a Chaplain, and have the Service of a Priest to say Mass, or to have a Priest or other Man to pray for the Soul of any dead Man in such a Church or other Place; or to have or maintain perpetual Obits, Lamps or Torches, &c. to be used at certain Times to help to save the Souls of Men out of the supposed Purgatory; all these and such like Uses are void; and the Lands that are so given to such superstitious Uses, are to be forfeited, and given to the King, and he shall have them: And yet if so that there be any charitable Use intermixed with the superstitious Use, and they may be distinguished, the King shall have only so much as is given to the superstitious Use, and not that which is given to the charitable Use also: For which see Adams and Lambert's Case at large. 4 Co. 104. & Stat. 15 R. 3. c. 5. 37 H. 8. c. 4. 1 Ed. 6. c. 14.

A Devise to superstitious Uses, is where it is to find a Priest to pray for the Souls of the Dead, &c. and the Lands or Goods so devised are forfeited to the King by the Statute 1 Edw. 6.

But if Land is given to find an Obit, and for another good Use; if there is no Certainty how much shall be employed to the superstitious Use, the Gift to the good Use shall preserve the whole from Forfeiture. 2 Roll. 205. See 2 Vern. Rep. 266. Abr. Ca. Eq. Tit. Charity.

A Lecture is not within the Statute of 43 Eliz. of charitable Uses, but that Statute took Pattern from 1 Ed. 6. c. 14. against superstitious Uses, and here the Charity is mistaken.

But where a Gift is of 10*l.* per Ann. to maintain a superstitious Use, so long as the Law would allow it; when the Law did abrogate that Superstition, it was turned to a good Use, and decreed to be, to maintain a Catechist there, to be approved of by the Bishop. 2 Chan. Ca. 18. Abr. Ca. Eq. Tit. Charity.

(L) Of Deeds declaring (or leading) the Uses of Feoffments, Fines or Recoveries.

AS to a Declaration of Uses, i. e. the Manifestation or Agreement of the Parties to what Uses and Intents the Assurance made shall be, observe these Things:

First, On what Assurances Uses may be declared.

Uses may be declared or averred on a Fine, Feoffment, or Recovery of Land; but on a Bargain and Sale of Land no Use may be declared or averred, but what the Law doth make.

And upon a Covenant of Uses, no other Use may be declared or averred but what is contained within the Deed. Co. 175, 176. Dyer 169.

Secondly, Of declaring the Use according to the Estate the Party has in the Land.

Every one may declare and dispose the Use of Land according to the Estate that he has in the Land; for the Declaration and Disposition of the Use ensues the Ownership of the Land, Sicut umbra sequitur corpus.

And at this Day the Use draws the Land to it, as the Body or Principal the Shadow or Accessary.

And therefore the Owner of the Land, or he from whom the Land moves, ought to limit and declare the Use of the Land; as if the Husband and Wife levy a Fine of the Land whereof he is seised in the Right of his Wife, the Husband alone may declare the Use of this Fine, and this Declaration shall bind the Wife, although her Assent to the Limitation of the Uses do not appear, if her Dissent doth not appear; but in this Case it is most proper to have a Declaration of the Uses by the Husband and Wife both; for she alone, because she is sub potestate viri, cannot alone declare or limit any Use; neither can the Husband alone limit any Use against her good Will, because he hath not the Estate of the Land.

And therefore if A. and B. his Wife be seised of Land in the Right of his Wife, and she without the Consent of her Husband covenants by Indenture with C. and D. 14 Martii 14 Eliz. that a Fine shall be levied of this Land, and that it shall be to the Use of herself for Life without Impeachment of Waste, and after to the Conusees for their Lives, to the Intent that they shall suffer ȝ. s. to take the Profits for his Life, with divers Remainders over; and afterwards, and before the Fine levied, the Husband alone by another Indenture, 13 February 22 Eliz. (wherein the Wife is named a Party) without the Consent of his Wife, does agree that a Fine shall be levied to the Use of him and his Wife, and after to the Uses limited by the Wife's Indenture, and after the Fine is levied accordingly; in this Case, although the Variance be in one Particular only, and the Limitations in all the Rest of the Uses and Estates do agree, yet all the same Limitations by both Indentures are void, and the Use upon the Conveyance is left to Construction of Law, and therefore shall be to the Wife and her Heirs for ever.

And yet if the Husband and Wife agree in the Limitation of the Uses for Part of the Land, and differ in the Rest, the Limitations for so much as they agree in are good, and void for the Residue.

And in these Cases where the Declaration is good, the Wife and her Heirs shall be bound by it.

So if two Jointenants are, and they and two others, having several Estates, join in a Fine, and one of them declares the Use in one Manner, and the other declares the Use in another Manner; this Declaration is good for either of their Parts, for the Declaration shall be governed according to their Estates.

And if an Infant, or a Man De non sane memorie, declares the Use of a Fine levied by him; this Declaration is good, and shall bind him so long as the Fine shall continue in Force. 2 Co. 57. Dyer 290. Hughes's Abr. 892.

Husband and Wife levied a Fine of the Lands of the Wife, and he alone declared the Uses of the Fine; this shall bind the Wife if her Dissent does not appear, because it shall be intended that she did consent, if the contrary doth not appear; but if the Husband declares one Use and the Wife another, they are both void, because the Husband, though he is sui juris, hath no Estate in the Land, and the Wife, though she hath the Estate, yet she is not sui juris, but under the Power of her Husband; and in such Case the Use shall follow the Ownership of the Land. 2 Co. 89.

Thirdly, By what Deed Uses may be declared.

A Declaration of Uses may be made either by Deed indented (which is the most usual and safe way) or by Deed Poll; as where the Parties by such a Writing agree that an Assurance passed, or to be passed, shall be to such and such Uses; as that a Fine shall be levied by such a Time, and that it shall be to the Use of one for Life, another in Tail, another in Fee.

Or it may be made by a verbal Agreement without any Writing at all, (2. See the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. post.) as where an Agreement is so had and made between two or more, that a Fine or Recovery shall be had, and it shall be to such and such Uses, and the same is had accordingly; in this Case this is a sufficient Declaration, being proved; but it is not safe in these Cases to depend upon slippery Memory. 2 Co. 73.

And the Use of a Fine may be declared by Word without any Deed; and if there be such a Declaration by Parol made to lead the Use of a Fine, and it be defective to declare the Intent of the Parties, it may afterwards be supplied and made good by subsequent Parols. Style's Reg. 148. Quere.

The Uses of a Fine may be levied within the Fine itself without any Indenture. Hutt. 112.

An Use may be averred without a Deed upon a Fine sur Render; for the Deed is but to shew the Intent of the Parties, which may appear as well without as by Deed. Poph. 105.

A general Covenant shall direct the special Uses of a Fine, and the special Operation thereof, according to the Intent of the Parties. Bulst. 256.

The Render of a Fine may not be alledged to any other Use than what is expressed upon the Fine without a Writing to shew for it. Poph. 104, 105. 3 Bulst. 318, 319.

A Bargain and Sale, Fine and Recovery made at several Times to one Purpose, shall be esteemed but as one Conveyance. Bendl. 101.

Fourthly, When a Declaration of Uses may be made.

A Declaration of Uses may be made before, at or after the Time of making the Assurance; for an Indenture subsequent may direct and declare the Uses of a Fine precedent.

And therefore one may covenant or agree that J. S. shall recover against him, or that he will levy a Fine, or make Feoffment to J. S. of such Land, and that they shall be to the Use of, &c.

And if one makes a Feoffment, he may declare the Uses of it at the same Time, and that within the same, or in another Deed at his Pleasure.

And if the Assurance be past, and no Declaration of Uses had before, or at the Time of passing it, a Declaration may be subsequent, viz. That the same Assurance was and shall be, and the Recoverors, &c. shall stand and be seized to such and such Uses; for an Indenture subsequent may direct and declare the Uses of a Fine or Recovery precedent; but observe these Differences, that when precedent Indentures are made to direct the Uses of a subsequent Assurance, and after the Assurance is made accordingly, there no Averment shall be taken by Word, that the same Assurance was to other Uses than are declared by the Indenture.

But against an Indenture subsequent, declaring the Uses of an Assurance precedent, an Averment may be taken, that there were other Uses expressed and limited before or at the Time of the Assurance than those which are contained in the Indenture.

If a precedent Indenture be made to direct the Uses of a subsequent Assurance, when the Assurance comes the Land is bound, and the Conusor or Recovee cannot by any Act of his, after the Recovery had, charge or avoid it; but if the Declaration be subsequent, if in the Interim, between the Assurance had and the Declaration of the Uses, the Conusor or Recovee sells, gives or charges the Land to others, this subsequent Declaration will not subvert the mean Estates, Charges or Interests, unless it can be otherwise proved, that by a certain and compleat Agreement of the Parties, the Assurance was had and made to these Uses. 2 Co. 69, 70. 6 Co. 27, 63. 7 Co. 40. 9 Co. 8. Dyer 136, 290.

By the Statute of 4 & 5 An. c. 16. §. 15. Declaration of Uses or Trusts by Deed made after Fines and Recoveries, shall be good in Law notwithstanding the 29th of Car. 2. c. 3. which requires Writing to pass Estates at the very Time of Conveyance.

Fifthly,

Fifthly, Of a precedent Agreement for the Limitation of Uses.

When an Agreement for the Limitation of Uses is precedent, whether it be by Writing or Word, it is but directory, and does not bind the Estate until the same Assurance be afterwards had, and therefore by a new Agreement or Declaration made in the same Manner as the former, viz. in Writing, if the former be so, and between the same Parties either before or at the Time of the same Assurance passed, new Uses may be made and the former Uses changed; but when the same Assurance is pursued accordingly, and no intervening Alteration is made, it shall be expounded to be to the same Uses, and shall bind the Parties, and no naked Averment shall be received of any later or other Agreement contrary to the Indentures.

Where an Indenture precedent is to limit the Uses of a subsequent Fine or Recovery, and it is not pursued in some Circumstance of Time, Person, Quantity, or the like, yet if no other new mean Agreement may be proved, the Assurance shall be in Judgment of Law to the Uses contained in the same Indenture; but if a Variance be in these Particulars, and the Form of the Indenture be not pursued, there an Averment without Writing may be taken, that the Fine or other Assurance was to other Uses than are contained in the Indenture; and if none such can be made, then it is left to the Construction of Law.

And therefore if A. be seised of divers Manors in Fee, and by his Indenture dated 10 Martii 21 Eliz. covenants with B. and C. that he before the End of Trinity Term next will by Fine or other Conveyance assure one of these Manors to them, and that the same Assurance shall be to the Use of A. and E. his Wife, and of the Heirs of A. and the 28th Day the Deed is inrolled; and the 29th Day of the same Month he by another Indenture covenants with the same C. and D. to convey all the same Manors to the same C. and D. before the Annunciation next, and that the same Assurance shall be to the Use of A. and the Heirs Male of his Body; and for Default of such Issue, to the Use of divers others in Remainder; and by this Indenture covenants, that if he shall not sufficiently convey this Land by the Day, that he will stand seised to the same Uses, &c. and no Fine is levied by the End of Trinity Term, but 17 September following a Note of a Fine is acknowledged to B. and C. and the Heirs of B. of the Land within the first Indenture; and the 18th of the same Month another Note of a Fine is acknowledged to C. and D. of the same and other Land in the last Indenture, and both these Fines are entered in Ostabis Mich. following; in this Case these Fines cannot be directed and declared by both Indentures, and therefore it seems these Declarations are void. 2 Co. 69, 70. 6 Co. 27, 63. 7 Co. 40. 9 Co. 8. Dyer 136, 290.

Where a Man makes a Feoffment to such Uses as he shall appoint in his last Will, there the Use and Estate vests in the Feoffee, and the last Will is directory. Co. Lit. 111. b.

Sixthly, Of the Certainty of the Declaration of Uses.

A Declaration of the Uses must be certain, and especially in three Things:

(1) In the Person to whom; (2) In the Lands, &c. of which, and (3) In the Estates by which the Uses are declared; and if there want Certainty in either of these, the Declaration is not good; and it must be compleat of itself without any Reference to Indentures, or other Writings to be made afterwards; for then it is but an imperfect Communication, and no compleat Declaration.

Where the Uses of a Fine are agreed, there it must go to the Uses agreed upon; but where no Uses are agreed upon, but only that it is agreed a Fine shall be levied, and not said to what Use, or a Fine is levied; there the Law appoints the Use according to Conscience. 2 Co. 37, 38. Dyer 18. Co. Lit. 271. Moor 472, 473, 842, 843.

More Acres of Land do not pass by a Fine than the Fine names, altho' the Indenture to lead the Use of it speaks of more Acres; for the Fine is the Foundation of the Estate, and the Estate riseth out of it. Jenk. Cent. 6. Case 45.

If the Conusee of a Fine levied of Land pays Money to the Conusor of the Fine at the Time of the Fine levied, and there be no Use declared, nor is it set forth to what Use it shall be: In this Case the Law will construe the Fine to be levied of these Lands to the Use of the Conusee to whom the Fine is levied.

But if there be no Money paid by the Cognisee, nor any Use declared, it shall be to the Use of the Cognisor who levied the Fine; for nothing appears whereby it can be supposed that the Parties had any Intention the Estate in the Lands should be altered by the the Fine, but that the Fine was levied in Corroboration of the Title of the Cognisor. Bendl. 134, 135. Style's Pract. Reg. 147.

One seised in Fee as Heir of the Mother's Side levies a Fine, and declares the Use thereof to himself in Fee; this is the old Use, and there is no Diversity between an express Declaration of an Use and an implied one. 2 Will. 139.

If a Recovery declared by a precedent Deed must be confessed and avoided, Uses declared by a subsequent Deed may be traversed. Ld. Raym. 155, 289.

Uses of a Recovery declared by a subsequent Deed ought to be directly averred. Ld. Raym. 155.

Notwithstanding a Variance between the Deed and the Fine, yet the Fine is by Construction of Law to the Uses of the Deed, if nothing appears to the contrary. Ld. Raym. 289.

Infancy or Coverture cannot be alledged against a Deed which leads the Uses of a Fine. Ld. Raym. 289.

A Deed of Husband and Wife, that all Agreements relating to such Lands shall cease, will not revoke a former Deed leading the Uses of a future Fine, unless there be a Variance. Ld. Raym. 289.

(M) Of Averment of Uses, or the Proof of Uses by Witnesses.

AS to Averment of Uses, i. e. the Proof of Uses by Witnesses, observe these Things: Where any Use is expressed upon Charter of Feoffment, no other Use contra or præter the Use which is expressed shall be admitted.

But in Cases of Fines and Recoveries wherein no Uses are expressed, other Uses than what Law Construction will make may be shewed and proved to be agreed upon, and the same Assurances shall be to such Uses as by Proof shall be made to appear to be the Intent of the Parties; as,

If a Man and his Wife sell her Land for Money, and after levy a Fine to the Vendee and his Heirs; in this Case it may be averred it was for Money, and this shall carry the Use to the Vendee without any Declaration of Use, which otherwise would result to the Woman and her Heirs; and yet if a Fine be with a Grant and Render, no Averment to prove it to be to other Uses than what are contained in the Fine shall be received. Doct. & Stud. 95. 2 Co. 57. 5 Co. 20, 25. 9 Co. 8.

And where the Uses of a Conveyance be declared by Indenture before or at the Time of the same Conveyance, no Averment shall be received of any other Uses than what are contained in the Indenture.

But if the Indenture of Declaration be subsequent, there an Averment lieth and shall be received, that there were other Uses agreed upon at or before the Time of the Conveyance made. 9 Co. 8.

And where an Agreement is made to levy a Fine, or suffer a Recovery before or at a Time certain, and that it shall be of such and such Lands, and to such and such Persons; and and after it falleth out the Fine or Recovery is not had by that Time, or not of the same Land, or not between the same Persons; in these Cases an Averment may be had of other Uses, and of other Agreement. 5 Co. 26.

No Averment of Uses by Proof of Witnesses shall be admitted against an Use expressed in a Fine; but in Case where no Use is expressed in a Fine, there other Uses than what the Law will make upon the Fine may be averred and proved to be agreed upon, and the Fine shall be to the Uses. 5 Co. 26, 9, 8, 2, 57.

T. P. levied a Fine, and afterwards suffered a Common Recovery, wherein the Conusee of the Fine was Tenant to the Præcipe, but no Uses of the Fine were declared; it was therefore insisted, that the Uses of the Fine resulted to the Conusor, and though the Intent might be to make him Tenant to the Præcipe, yet since the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. there shall be no Averment of an Use or Trust; but adjudged, that at the Common Law the Use of a Fine was always intended to be in the Conusee, and that this Statute doth not extend to Uses by Operation of Law, but to such Uses as are to a third Person, (i. e.) that neither the Conusor or Conusee of a Fine shall aver the Uses to be to a third Person; so that in the principal Case the Party was immediately in by the Fine, and the Cognisee was a good Tenant to the Præcipe. 2 Salk. 676.

(N) To what Use an Assurance of Land shall be by Construction of Law, and how the Limitation of the Uses of Land by a Deed shall be construed.

WHERE the Uses of an Assurance are certainly agreed upon and declared between the Parties thereto, there regularly it shall be to such Uses as are declared and agreed upon, and to no others.

But if a Conveyance be made of Land by Fine, Feoffment or Recovery, and no Uses thereof declared and agreed upon, the Law will limit and appoint the Use according to Equity and Conscience.

And therefore if a Man levies a Fine, and makes a Feoffment, or suffers a Recovery of Land without any Consideration, the Law will adjudge the Use to be in the Feoffor, Conusor or Recoverer, who parts with the Land.

And so if a Man makes a Feoffment to the Intent to perform his last Will, or to the Use of his last Will, or to such Persons as he shall limit by his last Will; in all these Cases the Use shall be in the Feoffor and his Heirs whilst he lives, to dispose at his Pleasure. Doct. & Stud. 95. Perk. §. 533. Co. 24. Co. Lit. 271. Dyer 18. Cromp. Jur. 62.

And so if one makes a Feoffment of Land to J. S. and his Heirs, to the Use of W. S. for twenty Years, and limits the Use no further; in this Case the Residue of the Use after the twenty Years shall be to the Feoffor and his Heirs.

But if in these Cases there be any Consideration of Money, or the like, though never so little given, or any Rent reserved upon the Feoffment, the Law will adjudge the Use in Feoffee, Conusee or Recoverer. Hil. 37 Eliz. C. B. Baker's Case.

And yet in that Case also if other Uses be expressed upon the Deed, it shall go to the Uses expressed; as if A. for 20l. paid by B. infeoffs B. and his Heirs, to the Use of C. and his Heirs. Doct. & Stud. 95.

If the Husband and Wife levy a Fine of the Wife's Land without Consideration and without any Declaration of Use, the Law will adjudge this to be to the Use of the Wife and her Heirs; but if they sell her Land for Money, and after levy a Fine thereof to the Vendee; this shall be to the Use of the Vendee and his Heirs.

And if a Man be seised of Land of the Part of his Mother, and without any Consideration makes a Feoffment in Fee of it; this shall be said to be to his Use in the same Nature he had it before.

So if two Jointenants be of Land, the one in Fee-simple and the other but for Life, and they without any Consideration levy a Fine of it, and make no Declaration of Use; the Use shall be to them of the same Estate as they had before in the Land.

So if A. Tenant for Life of Land, and B. in Reversion or Remainder levy a Fine of this Land generally; this shall be to the Use of A. for Life, and to the Use of B. in Fee afterwards, as it was before.

So if A. be seised in Fee of an Acre of Ground, and he and B. join together and levy a Fine of it to another without any Consideration; this shall be to the Use of A. and his Heirs only. 2 Co. 57, 58.

If one makes a Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life or Years, although it be without any Consideration of Fine or Rent, yet the Law will adjudge the Use in the Donee or Lessee, and not in the Donor or Lessor. Perk. §. 533.

If one at this Day by Deed indented bargain and sell his Land to another for Money, and limits no Estate, but the Deed is Habendum to him only, and not Habendum to him and his Heirs, or to him and the Heirs of his Body, or to him for Life; howsoever in this Case before the Statute of Uses was made, it was otherwise; yet now the common received Opinion is, that by this there passeth only an Estate for Life, and not a Fee-simple. Plow. 539. Co. 87. Cromp. Jur. 47. 27 H. 8. 6.

If a Feoffment be made to J. S. and his Heirs to the Use of J. D. without any more Words; by this Limitation J. D. has only an Estate for Life.

So if a Feoffment be made to J. S. and his Heirs to the Use of J. D. for ever, without saying and his Heirs, hereby J. D. has only an Estate for Life.

And so of other Uses the Construction shall be according to the Rules of Law. Co. Lit. 42. Dyer 169.

If an Estate be limited to J. S. and his Heirs until A. shall come from beyond Sea, and attain his full Age, or die; in this Case if he comes from beyond Sea, attains his full Age, or dies, the Use shall cease. Pas. 3 Eliz. B. R. Ld. Mordant's Case.

If one covenants to stand seised to the Use of A. his eldest Son and the Heirs Male of his Body, and after to the Use of B. his second Son in Tail, in the same Manner, or according to the Limitation to A. by this B. has an Estate-tail to him and the Heirs Male of his Body. Hil. 17 Jac. B. R. Ridgway's Case.

If a Feoffment in Fee be made to the Use of a Man and his Wife for their Lives, and after to the Use of their next Issue Male to be begotten, in Tail, and after to the Use of the Husband and Wife, and of the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten, (they having no Issue Male then) by this the Husband and Wife are Tenants in special Tail executed; and after they have Issue Male they are Tenants for Life, the Remainder to the Son in Tail, the Remainder to them in special Tail. Co. Lit. 28.

If one makes a Feoffment to the Use of himself for Life, and after his Decease to the Use of Alice, whom he intends to marry, until the Issue he shall beget of her shall be of the Age of one and twenty Years, and after the Issue comes to that Age, then to the Use of the Wife during her Widowhood, and the Husband dies without Issue; by this the Wife shall have an Estate at least during her Widowhood. Dyer 300.

If I covenant with B. that in Consideration he will marry my Daughter, that from the Time of the Marriage I will stand seised to the Use of myself for Life, and after to the Use of C. a Stranger and the Heirs Male of his Body, and after to the Use of B. and my Daughter and the Heirs of their two Bodies; in this Case although the Use limited to C. the Stranger be void, yet B. and my Daughter shall not have the Land till the Death of C. without Issue, that my Heirs shall have it till that Time. Co. 175.

If I covenant with B. to stand seised to the Use of myself for Life, and after my Death to the Use of C. a Stranger for the Term of twenty Years, and after the End of the Term to the Use of my Son in Tail; in this Case the Use limited to C. is void, and my Son after my Death shall have the Land.

But if the Words of the Covenant be, and after the End of twenty Years, instead of and after the End of the Term, my Son shall not have the Land until the twenty Years be expired. Co. 155.

Lands and Tenements conveyed upon Confidences, Uses and Trusts, are to be ruled and decided (if a Question arises upon the Confidences, Uses or Trusts) by the Judges of the Law. Co. Lit. 271. b. Carter 197. T. Raym. 317.

The Intention of the Parties shall be observed in the Creation of Uses; but when they are created, they shall be governed by the Rules of Law. Lutw. 824.

Before the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. Uses were to be executed according to the Rules of Equity, but now they are reduced to the Common Law, and are to be construed according to the Rules of Law. 2 Mod. 251.

(O) Where and how Uses of Land may be extinguished and destroyed, or suspended, or not; and where the antient Uses shall be revived by the Entry of the Feoffees, or not.

ALL such Uses as are not within nor executed by the Statute of 27 H. 8. but remain at the Common Law, may be destroyed, discontinued or suspended, as Uses before the Statute might have been; and therefore contingent Uses may be extinguished or suspended at this Day.

As if a Man seised of Land in Fee have three Sons A. B. and C. and he makes a Feoffment of his Land to divers Feoffees, to the Use of them and their Heirs during the Life of A. and after to the Use of the first Son that A. shall beget, and the Heirs Male of the Body of such first Son; or if a Feoffment be made to the Use of a Man, and the Wife that he shall marry, or the like; if in these Cases the Feoffees make a Feoffment over before the contingent Uses happen to be in esse, as before A. have any Son, or the Man takes a Wife, &c. although it be to one that has Notice of these Uses, yet the Uses are destroyed for ever, and the Feoffees cannot enter and revive them contrary to their own Feoffment.

And if in these Cases the Feoffees before the contingent Remainder vest be disseised, hereby the Uses are suspended; but then by the Re-entry of the Feoffees the antient Uses will be revived again.

And therefore if the Feoffees release to the Disseisor, and so bar themselves of their Entry, the Uses are extinguished, and shall not be revived; and the Party grieved has no Remedy but in Chancery against the Feoffees for Breach of Trust.

And if the Feoffees in the first Case before die before A. have any Son born, the contingent Remainder is gone.

As where a Feoffment is made to the Use of the Feoffor for Life, and after to the Use of the right Heirs of J. S. in Fee, and the Feoffor dies before J. S. in this Case the Remainder is gone, for a Remainder cannot be without a particular Estate no more of a Use than of an Estate made in Possession, and such a Remainder must vest during the particular Estate, or at least eo instanti when the particular Estate ends. Co. Chudleigh's Case.

If a Feoffment be made to the Use of J. S. and the Wife he shall afterwards marry, and of the Heirs Male of their Bodies, and J. S. makes a Feoffment of this Land to another before he takes a Wife; hereby the contingent Remainder is destroyed. Co. 136.

If A. infeoffs B. and his Heirs, to the Use of C. and D. his Wife and the Heirs of the Survivor of them, and C. makes a Feoffment to E. and dies, this Feoffment destroys the contingent Remainder. Hil. 2 Car. in Scac' adjudged.

When the Estate out of which the Uses arise is gone, the Uses are gone also.

As if a Lease be made to A. for his Life, to the Use of B. for his Life, and A. dies, hereby the Estate of B. is gone. Dyer 186.

Also Uses of Lands may be gone by Revocation; where see in the next Division.

(P) Where a Power to revoke Uses of Land shall be good, and how they shall be taken; and what Revocation by reason of such Power shall be good, and what not.

Provisoes and Powers of Revocation of Uses of Lands very frequent in voluntary Conveyances (whether by Feoffment or otherwise) that pass Land by way of raising of Uses, and are executed by the Statute of 27 H. 8. and the Inheritances of many depend thereupon.

As if a Man seised of Land in Fee have divers Sons, and he covenants to stand seised of that Land to the Use of himself for Life, and after of his eldest Son in Tail, and for want of such Issue, to the Use of his second Son in Tail, &c. with a Proviso that it shall be lawful for him at any Time during his Life to revoke any of the said Uses, and to limit and appoint other Uses, &c.

Or if A. by Indenture between him and B. his Heir apparent an Infant, covenants with B. for the Advancement of his Blood, &c. to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of his said Heir apparent and the Heirs Male of his Body, and after to the Use of his right Heirs, provided that if A. by himself, or any other during his Life, shall deliver or offer to B. a Ring of Gold, to the Intent to make void all the same Uses, that then the said Uses shall be void, and he may limit new Uses.

Or if A. by Indenture covenants with B. to stand seised to the Use of himself and his Wife and his Daughter for their Lives, and after, &c. provided that if the said A. during his Life, and after the Debts mentioned in the Schedule annexed to the Indenture shall be paid, shall be disposed to determine, disannul, change, alter or enlarge, diminish or make void the Uses or Estates, or any of them, of the Premises, or any Part thereof, and by Writing indented under his Hand and Seal, subscribed in the Presence of three Witnesses, shall declare his Mind to be so, that then the same Uses shall be void; all these and such like Provisoes being coupled with an Use, are allowed to be good, and not repugnant to the former Estates.

But in case of such a Feoffment or other Conveyance whereby the Feoffee or Grantee is in by the Common Law, as where A. infeoffs B. and his Heirs to the Use of B. and his Heirs, it is said such a Proviso is merely repugnant and void.

As

As to these Provisoes or Revocations observe these Things:

First, These Revocations are favourably interpreted, because many Mens Inheritances depend upon them.

And therefore he that has Power may revoke Part of the Uses at one Time, and Part at another Time; and the Revocation of the old may be made by the making of new Uses without any expresse Revocation.

And by the same Conveyance whereby the old Uses are revoked, the new Use may be created and limited, and then the former Uses cease ipso facto by this Revocation without any Entry or Claim; as,

If one covenants to stand seised to the Use of himself and his Wife for their Lives, and after to the Use of A. his Daughter for Life, and after to the Use of B. his Daughter in Tail, &c. provided that if he shall be minded, &c. he may by Writing, &c. make void the same Uses, and declare the Uses to others, and he makes void the Use to his Wife at one Time and no more, and after by a Deed limits and appoints new Uses of the whole by a new Covenant to stand seised to other Uses; these are good Revocations, for there needs no real and expresse Revocation of former Uses, but the creating of new Uses is in Law an actual Revocation of the old Uses, as the making of a latter is ipso facto a Revocation of a former Will.

Secondly, The Proviso must for the Substance of it be pursued in the Revocation, and all incident Circumstances thereof must be observed, as Sealing, Subscription of Names, Witnessess, and the like, otherwise the Revocation will not be good.

And therefore if the Proviso be, that if the Covenantor shall be minded to revoke, and shall declare his Mind by Writing indented under his Hand and Seal, delivered before three Witnessess, the Uses shall be void; in this Case a Revocation by Word without Writing, or by a Writing and not indented, or by Writing indented and not under Hand and Seal, or under Hand and Seal and before two Witnessess only, is not good. Co. Lit. 237. 7 Co. 11, 12. 10 Co. 143. Co. 110, 173, 107. Dyer 372.

And yet if a Proviso be, that if the Covenantor shall at any Time during his Life, by Writing under his Hand and Seal delivered before two Witnessess, revoke the same, &c. the old Uses shall be void; and the Covenantor by his last Will and Testament in Writing, under his Hand and Seal before two Witnessess, gives the Land to another, and makes no expresse Revocation of the former Uses; this is a good Revocation in Law. Trin. 18 Jac. C. B. Tibbet and Lea's Case.

If the Proviso be, that if the Covenantor be minded at any Time during his Life to revoke the same Uses, &c. and shall pay or tender to A. B. 20 s. in such a Place; in this Case the Tender of this 20 s. in that Place at any Time is not good unless he happens to meet with A. B. at the Place, for then Tender at any Time is good; but otherwise the Covenantor must give Notice to A. B. what Time he will tender the 20 s. in that Place, otherwise the Revocation is not good. 8 Co. 921.

If one be to marry his Daughter to the Son of another Man, and they mutually covenant to stand seised of their Lands to the Uses of their Son and Daughter, with Proviso to revoke the Uses with the Consent of the Mother, if they or either of them be then living, and one of them dies; in this Case a Revocation by the Consent of the surviving Mother is sufficient.

Thirdly, When the Covenantor makes void such Uses by Virtue of such a Revocation, he is seised again of the Land in Fee-simple, as he was at first, without any Entry or Claim. Trin. 18 Jac. B. R. Savil and Sterling's Case.

Fourthly, This Power of Revocation, whether it be present, as those beforementioned, and most are, or future, as when they are upon contingent; as if the Covenantor overlives J. S. or the like, when it is reserved to the Party himself that made the Uses, and Provisoes are annexed, may by his Fine or Feoffment be utterly extinguished; as if he makes a Feoffment, or levies a Fine of Land whereunto the Uses and Proviso are annexed, by this the Proviso is extinct.

And yet so as if he makes a Feoffment, or levies a Fine of Part of the Land only, this shall extinguish his Power but to that Part only: But if the Power be reserved to a Stranger, a Fine or Feoffment of him that made it will not extinguish it. This Power also when it is present may be extinguished by a Release made by him that has the Power to any one that hath any Estate of Freehold in the Land in Possession, Reversion or Remainder; or it may be avoided by Defeasance whether it be present or future. Co. 111, 112, 113. Co. Lit. 237.

Where the Dower is only to revoke, no new Uses can be declared. Str. 584.

(Q) Other Trusts and Confidences of Lands and Chattels real and personal; the Nature of such Trusts, the Duty of them that are trusted, and the Remedy to be had against them for Breach of their Trust.

IF one conveys his Land to certain Friends in Trust, to the Intent that they shall convey it to such Persons as he shall set down in his last Will and Testament; or if a Man delivers Money to a Friend in Trust to purchase Land for him and his Heirs, to the End that he may have the Profits thereof for his Life, and to the End it may be conveyed to them afterwards:

Or if a Man delivers Money to his Friend to buy Land for him that delivers the Money in his own Name; or if a Man infeoffs his Friend and his Heirs of Land, to the Intent that he shall alien the Land to whom J. S. shall appoint:

Or if Land be conveyed to me in Mortgage, and I pay all the Money, but I to prevent the Jointure of my Wife, or for some such like Cause, name a Friend joint Purchasor with me, and so the Conveyance is made to us both; if in any of these Cases, or in any other such like Case, the Friend trusted proves false, and does not perform the Trust, but turns the Profits of the Land to his own Use, or refuses to settle it according to the Trust, or the like, the Party grieved must have his Remedy in Chancery; for these are not Trusts or Uses within the Statute, nor such for which there is any Remedy at the Common Law; and in that Case where the Land is settled to the Intent that the Friends trusted shall settle it where J. S. shall appoint, if J. S. does not appoint how it shall be settled, the Feoffees shall have it to their own Use. Crompt. Jur. 48, 54, 58, 59. Dyer 160. Fitz. Accompt 122.

And if a Man gives or grants his Goods or Chattels, as Leases for Years, or the like, to Friends in Trust to the Use of himself for Life, and after to perform his Will, or the like, these are such Uses and Trusts as are not within the Statute of Uses, and for the Breach of which there is no Remedy at the Common Law, but in Chancery only.

So if an Obligation or Statute be made to A. B. to the Use of C. D. this is a Trust of the same Nature; and if A. B. releases the Obligation without the Consent of C. D. or gets the Money into his own Hands, C. D. shall have Relief in Chancery.

And in all these and such like Cases, the general Rules by which Uses were governed at the Common Law are still in Force and take Place as those by which Uses and Trusts are now for the most part governed. Crompt. Jur. 62, 45, 65. Dyer 369. 11 Ed. 4. 2. 7 Ed. 4. 29. Br. Feoffment al Use 60.

As First, If there be any Cause to sue for or about the Lands or Goods wherewith the Parties are trusted; as if they deny or delay to perform the Trust, they must be compelled thereunto by Suit in Chancery. 7 Ed. 4. 29.

Secondly, The Cestuy que Use, or Party for whom the Trust is, cannot of himself dispose of the Lands or Goods; for the Property and Interest in Law is in the Trustees; and if it be an Obligation or Statute that is made to the Use of another, Cestuy que Use cannot release it, but the Trustees must release it.

Thirdly, If the Party trusted, so with Lands, Goods or Chattels, gives, grants or sells the same Lands, Goods or Chattels, to one who has Knowledge of the same Uses or Trusts, (as it is always presumed he has, where the Trusts are expressed upon the same Deed by which the Lands, Goods or Chattels are given or granted) or if the Things so given or granted, be granted upon the same Trusts, or to the same Uses, or without any Consideration at all; in these Cases he to whom the Thing about which the Trust is shall have the same Thing upon the same Trust, and to the same Use as he that gave or granted the same had it.

But where no Trust or Use is expressed upon the Deed, the Purchasor or Buyer has no Notice or Knowledge of the Use or Trust, and he gives a valuable Consideration for the Thing, there for the most part the Sale is good; and the Party grieved thereby has no Remedy but against the Party first trusted in Chancery; and the Purchasor shall have and enjoy the Thing so bought to his own Use for ever; but he that is the Party trusted will be forced in Chancery to make the Party grieved an Amends in Damages for this Breach of Trust: And if there be any Practice or Combination between the Buyer and the Seller in the Matter, there perhaps the Suit may hold against them both, and the Buyer may be forced to restore the Thing itself. Crompt. Jur. 62, 63, 65. 11 Ed. 4. 24.

And yet, if A. enters into a Statute to B. and C. to the Use of B. and A. having Notice of this Use, gets a Release from C. in this Case B. must have his whole Remedy against C. and shall have no Remedy against A. 11 Ed. 4. 8.

Fourthly, If the Trustor or Cestuy que Use in these Cases commit Felony, &c. so that the Things, if he had the Property of them, were forfeited; in this Case it seems that neither they nor their Heirs, Executors, &c. nor the Lord, &c. shall have them, but the Trustees shall keep them for ever. Bro. Feoffment al Use 34.

Fifthly, If the Cestuy que Use or Trustor die and appoint how the same Things shall be disposed of, the Trustees are bound to see it done; as if the Trustor appoints it shall pay his Debts, or provide Legacies, the Parties trusted must take Care it be so employed; and in this Case the Debtors and Legatees also may compel the Trustees in Chancery. 15 H. 7. 12. Crompt. Jur. 54.

Sixthly, In all these Cases regularly the Thing whereof the Trust is, is in Equity at the Disposing of him that is the Cestuy que Use, unless he otherwise appoints it; and if at his Death he makes no Disposition thereof, it shall go to his Heir, Executor, &c. Dyer 49.

Seventhly, In all these Cases the Trustees shall have their reasonable Allowance in Chancery for whatsoever they have laid out about the Land, &c. in Suits or otherwise for the Profit of the Trustor.

Out of all which appears how dangerous it is for a Man to meddle with any Lands, Goods or Chattels so conveyed or settled in Trust, for the Cestuy que Use or Trustor's have no Property in the Thing, and therefore they cannot sell or give it, and the Trustee has it but to another's Use; and it is not safe therefore to deal with either of them alone, nor yet indeed safe to deal at all in these Cases, unless the Buyer may have the Consent, Sale and Assurance, or the Release, &c. of the Trustors and Trustees all together.

And if there be any Feme Covert, or Infant within the Trust, it is most of all dangerous. 8 H. 7. 11.

And if Goods or Chattels be given to, or to the Use of a Feme Covert or Infant, and certain Friends are trusted therewith; if they sell or give away these Goods or Chattels contrary to the Trust, they must be sure to answer it:

If therefore they sell them, let them see that the Money made thereof be as beneficial, and be bestowed for the Wife or Children; for it is not sufficient in this Case that the Money made thereof be paid to them. 7 Ed. 6. 14. Fitz. Subpœna 5.

(R) What Uses require no Execution by the Statute of Uses.

THERE are Uses which require no Execution by the Statute of Uses, (27 H. 8. c. 10.) as when a Man conveys Lands to J. S. and his Heirs, to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs.

And when Lands are conveyed to others in Trust after this or the like Manner, viz. That the Feoffees shall take the Profits, and deliver them to the Feoffor and his Heirs; such a Trust is not executed by the Statute, but remains as before at Common Law, and is determinable in Equity in the Court of Chancery. Crompt. Jur. 48.

Also Leases for Years of Lands in Use (which Leases had their Being before, and are granted over in Use and Trust) are not executed by the Statute; and therefore,

If a Lessee for Years of Lands assigns over his Estate to A. and B. and their Assigns, to the Use of the Grantor and his Wife; all the Estate is in A. and B. and the Grantor has nothing but an Use, for which he has his Remedy in Chancery only.

And yet, if a Feoffment be made to the Use of A. and B. and his Assigns for Years; this Use is executed by the Statute, because the Lease had not its Being before; and because the Words of the Statute are, If any shall stand or be seised of any Lands; whereas the Lessee for Years of Lands that had their Being before, was possessed only of his Term, and not seised of any Freehold. Dyer 369. Crompt. Jur. 66.

So there still remains an Use of Goods and Chattels Personal, which is properly called a Chancery Trust and Confidence; for one may still have such Things in Trust, and to the Use of another. Here still the Use and Possession are divided, because not united by the Statute. Thus if an Obligation, or Statute Merchant or Staple be made to A. to the Use of B. this is a Trust of the same Nature.

And if A. releases the Obligation, &c. without the Consent of B. or gets the Money into his own Hands, B. shall have Relief in the Chancery.

And when there are other Trusts and Confidences of Lands that are not executed by the Statute, or of Chattels real or personal, and the Trustee proves false, or delays to execute the Trust, the Party grieved must have his Remedy in Equity, for there is no Remedy at Common Law. Crompt. Jur. 45, 62.

Lands were devised to Trustees and their Heirs, in Trust to pay several Legacies and Annuities, and to pay the Surplus of the Rents and Profits to a married Woman during her Life, for her separate Use, or as she should direct, and after her Death the Trustees to stand seised to the Use of the Heirs of her Body, with Remainders over; and the Question was, whether this Devise to pay the Surplus of the Rents and Profits to the Wife, was such an Use or Trust as was executed by the 27 H. 8. And it was held by the Court, that she had only a Trust for Life, and consequently the Heirs of her Body must take by Purchase; and the rather in this Case, because it was limited to the Heirs of her Body severally and successively, as they should be in Seniority of Age and Priority of Birth, and the Heirs of their respective Bodies issuing; and a Difference was taken between this Case and that of Broughton and Langley, 2 Salk. 679. 1 Lut. 823. S. C. for there it was to permit A. to receive the Rents and Profits for Life; but here it is a Trust in the Trustees to pay over the Rents and Profits to such and such Persons, and therefore the Estate must remain in them to answer these Trusts, otherwise she must be the Trustee, contrary to the express Words of the Will. Abr. Ca. Eq. 383, 384.

The Father covenanted with B. G. that in Consideration of a Marriage between his Son and the Daughter of the said B. G. that before such a Day he would levy a Fine of certain Lands, which should be to the Use of the Son and Daughter in Tail, &c. the Fine was acknowledged accordingly; the Father died. Adjudged that the Deed did not mention any Marriage had between the Son and Daughter, yet the Estate-tail was executed in them before the Marriage had, because the Fine without any Consideration carries the Uses, and they are perfected by the Fine, though the Consideration is executed afterwards; but without a Fine, such a Consideration would not have raised an Use, for in such Case the Marriage must be had, and the Consideration executed before any Use could arise. 1 Leon. 138.

In Covenant, &c. the Plaintiff declared that the Defendant had bargained and sold to him (the Plaintiff) four Messuages, by the Name of all his Lands in H. and did covenant to levy a Fine of them for farther Assurance, (but in Fact the Covenant was to levy a Fine of all his Lands in H.) and sets forth, that he tendered a Fine to the Defendant, to be levied by him, of all those four Houses comprehended in the Deed; the Defendant pleads, that at the Time of the Covenant he was seised of two Houses, &c. and that the other two descended to him afterwards upon the Death of his Ancestor, and traversed that he was seised of the said Lands modo & forma; and upon a Demurrer the Defendant had Judgment; for that the Plaintiff had declared that the Defendant was seised, and sold him four Messuages, and that he tendered him a Fine of so many; and the Defendant pleaded, that he was seised of two, and no more, and so would have the Fine extend beyond the Covenant; and therefore he might well refuse it when tendered. 1 Roll. Rep. 103, 117.

(S) Remedy at Law as to Uses, and Questions as to them how decided.

BY the Common Law Cestuy que Use had neither jus in re nor jus ad rem, but only a Confidence and Trust, for which he had no Remedy: But for the Breach of Trust his Remedy was only by Subpœna in Chancery. Co. Lit. 272. b.

But now the Statute of Uses, 27 H. 8. c. 10. has transferred the Possession to the Use. Co. Lit. 272. b. Plow. 352. b. 349. b. Co. 121. a. b. 122, 127. 2 Co. 58, 78. 6 Co. 64. 7 Co. 34. 1 Leon. 196. 2 Leon. Case 25.

The Intention of the Parties shall be observed in the Creation of Uses; but when they are created, they shall be governed by the Rules of Law. Lutw. 824.

SECTION VII.

(A) What a Covenant to stand seised to Uses is.

A Covenant to stand seised to Uses is when a Man (who has a Wife, Children, Brother, or Kindred) by bare Covenant in Writing under his Hand and Seal agrees, in Consideration of natural Love and Affection, Marriage or other good Consideration, that for their or any of their Provision or Preferment he and his Heirs will stand seised of Land to their Uses, either in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life.

As to the Nature, Kinds, &c. of Uses, see the last Section, where they are fully treated of.

This

This Covenant to stand seised to Uses is become a Conveyance of Land since the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. and it needs not be by Deed indented and inrolled, which is requisite to a Bargain and Sale of a Freehold; of which see the next Section.

A Covenant for a valuable Consideration to stand seised to another's Use, if inrolled, is in the Nature of a Bargain and Sale. 2 Inst. 672.

THERE are five Things necessary to raise an Use by way of Covenant to stand seised.

1. A sufficient Consideration.
2. A Deed.
3. Seisin in the Covenantor at the Time of the Deed.
4. A clear and apparent Intent.
5. Apt and proper Words. 1 Vent. 140.

(C) Of the Consideration in Covenants to stand seised to Uses.

IF the Party to whose Use one covenants to stand seised of the Land is not his Wife, or one that he intends to marry, his Child, Uncle, Cousin, or one that his Kinsman intends to marry, no Use will arise, and so no Conveyance.

The Law allows in such Cases the Consideration of Blood and Marriage to raise Uses, as well as Money, and other valuable or profitable Consideration, when the Use is to a Stranger.

But it does not allow any trifling Consideration of Service, old Acquaintance, &c. Plow. 302. 2 Roll. Abr. 783.

Yet where a Man conveys an Estate of his Land to others by Feoffment, Fine, Recovery, or by Feoffment, Fine or Recovery, to the Use of his last Will, and afterwards declares the Uses in his last Will, he may appoint an Use without any Consideration. 2 Co. 58. 6 Co. 18. Co. Lit. 271. b. 2 Roll. Abr. 781.

But in a Covenant to stand seised, or in a Bargain and Sale, there must be a Consideration expressed, or specially averred, where the Consideration is general, (as for good Consideration, &c.) tho' the Matter so averred is traversable. Co. 176. 2 Co. 15. 11 Co. 25.

Always, where there is no Transmutation of the Possession, it is necessary and requisite that there be a good Consideration to create an Use. Plow. 202. b. 7 Co. 13. b.

Where there is a Covenant to pay certain Sums of Money, and a Declaration that if these Sums be not paid, the Feoffees shall stand seised of the Premises till they have levied the said Sums; when there is a Failure of Payment they may enter; and if the Heir has not entered upon them they may hold over, Pari ratione when he continues and receives the Profits. Cart. 77.

Even if he had assigned, or for a valuable Consideration conveyed over the Land, after the Failure of Payment, the Feoffee or Assignee takes the Estate, subject to his Use, and liable to this Charge. Ibid.

For a future Use is a Charge and Burden upon the Land in whosoever Hands it comes, and cannot be destroyed. Cro. Eliz. 688, 689.

If a Man in Consideration of Money received and Marriage to be had with his Son covenants to stand seised, there no Use will arise to the Son and Woman without Marriage, altho' the Money be paid, because the Marriage is the principal Consideration in the Intent of the Parties, and the Money is but the Accessary which attends the Marriage; but it would have been good by Estate executed by Fine, Feoffment or Recovery. Moor, Case 247.

A Covenant to stand seised, &c. in Consideration of natural Affection to the Covenantor's Son, and of one Hundred Pounds. Per Bridgman, The principal Consideration, (i. e. the Consideration of Blood) will carry it: And in this Deed there is a mixed Consideration, and there needs no Inrolment. Carter 114. — So adjudged 2 Vent. 266. 3 Lev. 291. 4 Mod. 149.

A. seised in Fee, covenanted to stand seised to the Use of B. in Consideration of Payment of his Debts out of his own Estate; this Use is void, because there was no Consideration on the Part of B. to raise the Use, the Money appointed to be paid being to be raised out of the Profits of the Estate of A. the Covenantor. 1 Leon. 194, 195.

A. covenants that in Consideration of discharging his funeral Expences, and Payment of his Debts and Legacies out of the Profits of his Lands, and for the Advancement of his Son, that he would stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, and after his Death to C. and D. for twenty-five Years, and after the End of that Term to his Son in Tail: This Term of twenty-five Years is void for want of a good Consideration, because C. and D. were Strangers to the Consideration, viz. To the Payment of his Debts and Legacies. But if they had been Executors, whereby they became privy to the Consideration, and chargeable with the Payment of the Debts and Legacies, then the Consideration had been good.

Note; This is in Case of a Term for Years where there needs no Inrolment.

Money will not raise an Use upon a Covenant to stand seised without Inrolment.

Leon. 201.

An Use will arise upon a Lease and Release if there be five Shillings Consideration in the Lease, and no Consideration at all in the Release.

A Covenant, in Consideration of the Covenantor's natural Love and Affection to his Wife, to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, then to the Use of the Wife for Life, with Power for her to limit over the Estate to such Person as she should appoint; no Use can arise to the Person appointed. Fitz-Gib. 229. Ca. in Chan. and K. B. from 4 to 7 G. 2. 107.

(D) What amounts to a Covenant to stand seised, or not.

A. Seised in Fee of a Reversion expectant upon an Estate for Life, by Deed Poll, in Consideration of natural Love to his Wife, and B. his Son, begotten on her Body, and C. his Daughter, did give, grant and confirm unto B. his Son, all those Lands, &c. the Reversion and Reversions, &c. To hold to him to the Uses following, viz. To the Use of himself for Life, and after to the said B. in Tail, and after to C. his Daughter in Tail. A. died, B. the Son devised to the Lessor of the Plaintiff, and died without Issue. C. the Daughter, by Pretence of her Remainder, entred, against whom an Ejectment was brought of the Demise of B. the Devisee; there was no Execution of this Deed but Sealing and Delivery. Now the sole Question was, whether this Deed amounts to a Covenant to stand seised, or is void? Whereupon it was first adjudged to amount to such a Covenant, but the Judgment was afterwards reversed, and the Deed adjudged void, and the Reversal affirmed in Parliament. 2 Vent. 318, 319.

A Rent granted, as well in Consideration of natural Affection as for Money, amounts to a Covenant to stand seised, and may be so pleaded without Inrolment. 4 Mod. 150.

W. seised of a Reversion in Fee, expectant upon an Estate for Life, in Consideration of natural Love and Affection, did give, grant and confirm to his Son all those Lands, and the Reversion and Reversions, &c. Habendum to the Son and his Heirs, to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of the Grantee (who was his Son) and the Heirs of his Body; and for want of such Issue, Remainder to his Daughter in Tail: There was no Execution of this Deed by Attornment or Inrolment, or otherwise; this does not amount to a Covenant to stand seised. 2 Vent. 319.

(E) Who may covenant to stand seised to Uses.

A Man at Common Law could not during the Coverture limit an Estate to his Wife: But now by Deed he may covenant to stand seised to her Use, or make other Conveyance to another for the Use of his Wife. Co. Lit. 112. a. 7 Co. 40. Brañ. lib. 2. c. 12.

It is requisite that the Covenantor be seised at the Time of making the Deed; for a Man cannot covenant to stand seised to an Use of Land which he shall afterwards purchase, or is not then seised of. 3 Lev. 306, 307.

(F) To whose Use Covenants to stand seised may be, or not.

A Husband may now covenant to stand seised to the Use of his Wife, or may make other Conveyance to another for her Use. Co. Lit. 112. a. 7 Co. 40. Vide Brañ. lib. 2. c. 12.

Such Covenant may be to the Use of a Stranger, but then it must be for Money, or other valuable Consideration, and not for Love and Affection, &c. Vide Co. 176. 2 Co. 15. Lev. 55, 56.

A Father cannot covenant that his Son shall stand seised of the Lands whereof the Father is seised; for a Man cannot stand seised of that which he is not seised of. 3 Lev. 306, 307. Vent. 140.

See of Considerations in Covenants to stand seised to Uses.

(G) Of what a Covenant to stand seised may not be.

A Covenant to stand seised of an Office is void. 3 Mod. 145.

(H) What Words amount to a Covenant to stand seised.

A Settlement was made as follows, viz. That if I have no Issue, and in Case I die without Issue of my Body lawfully begotten, then I give, grant and confirm my Land, &c. to my Kinswoman J. S. to have and to hold the same to the Use of myself for Life, and after my Decease to the Use of the said S. and the Heirs of her Body to be begotten, with Remainders over, &c. The Question was, whether this amounted to a Covenant to stand seised, so as to raise an Use to S. without Transmutation of the Possession? It is a Covenant to stand seised though the formal Words are wanting to make it so; and so it was adjudged. 3 Mod. 237. Comb. 128. 3 Salk. 384.

A Man seised in Fee by Indenture inrolled within six Months, for the Consideration of natural Love to his Daughter, and for the Augmentation of her Portion and Preferment in Marriage, and other valuable Considerations, did give, grant, bargain, sell, alien, infeoff and confirm to his said Daughter and her Heirs. The Question thereupon was, whether this be a good Deed? Per Finch Attorney General, The Word Covenant is not absolutely necessary, so that there be other Words sufficient in Law to declare the Parties Intent, for all Words will not serve. Adjudged a good Deed. All held that Words proper for a Conveyance at Common Law will raise an Use, as Demise and Grant in Consideration of Money has amounted to a Bargain and Sale. And per Cur', If an Use should not arise by such Conveyance, it would overthrow all Conveyances by Lease and Release. Vent. 140, 141, 142.

S E C T. VIII.

Of Deeds of Bargain and Sale.

(A) A Bargain and Sale, what.

A Bargain and Sale is the Transferring of the Property of a Thing from one to another upon valuable Consideration.

And herein only it differs from a Gift, that a Gift may be without any Consideration or Cause at all, and a Bargain and Sale has always some meritorious Cause moving it, and cannot be without it.

The Words Bargain and Sale also are sometimes applied to the Assurance or Conveyance whereby the Bargain and Sale is done and made, which is called a Deed of Bargain and Sale; for a Bargain and Sale may be by Writing, or without Writing. Terms de la Ley. Plow. 301. 2 Co. 35.

A Bargain and Sale is also called an Instrument whereby the Property of Lands or Tenements is for a good and valuable Consideration granted and conveyed from one Person to another;

And is also termed a real Contract on a valuable Consideration for passing of Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, by Deed indented and inrolled within six Months after the Date thereof. 2 Inst. 612. Co. Lit. 672. Kelw. 85. Co. 87.

But these two last Definitions omit the Transferring the Property in Goods and Chattels, which may also be by Bargain and Sale; of which see hereafter.

Deeds of Bargain and Sale are by Virtue of the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. of Uses; and the Inrolment thereof by Virtue of the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 16. of Inrolments.

If the Bargainor be in Possession, this is an easy and ready Assurance; but a Feoffment reduces and restores the Possession to the Feoffor though the Feoffor had been disseised.

If the Bargainor be not in Possession, the Deed must be delivered on the Ground, ut post.

He who sells is called the Bargainor, and he to whom the Sale is made is called the Bargainor, Bargainee, who.

(B) Kinds of Bargains and Sales, viz. of Lands or Goods.

Sometimes a Bargain and Sale may be of Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, and then that Term is most properly applied.

And in that Case it is said to be, where a Recompence is given by both Parties to the Bargain.

As where one bargains and sells his Land to another for Money; in this Case the Land is a Recompence to the one for the Money, and the Money to the other for the Land. Terms de la Ley. Plow. 301. 2 Co. 35.

A Bargain and Sale is now become one of the common Assurances of the Kingdom, so that such an Assurance may now be averred not to be fraudulent within the Statute of 27 Eliz. as well as any other Assurance; a Rent may be reserved upon it, or a Condition made by it as well as by any other Kind of Assurance. Per Ch. J. Hide, 3 Car.

And sometimes a Bargain and Sale may be of moveable Things, as Trees, Corn, Grass, Oxen, Kine, Household-Stuff, and the like; the Property whereof is and may be altered by this Kind of Conveyance, as well as by Gift or Grant. 2 Co. 54.

And this Kind of Bargain and Sale is that which is commonly called a Contract; which largely taken is an Agreement between two or more concerning something to be done, whereby both Parties are bound to each other, or one is bound to the other.

But strictly it is the Buying and Selling of some personal Goods whereby the Property is altered. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Agreement.

(C) The Effect of a Bargain and Sale.

THE Effect of a Bargain and Sale is to transfer the Property, which it will as effectually do as any other Kind of Conveyance whatsoever.

And therefore the Bargainee of a Reversion howsoever he may not have the Benefit of a Condition upon the Demand of a Rent without giving Notice of the Bargain and Sale to the Lessee.

And howsoever, if A Conusee by a Fine of a Reversion before Attornment of the Tenant, bargains and sells the Reversion to B. that B. cannot distrain for this Rent until he can get an Attornment of the Tenant; yet the Bargainee shall have the Benefit of a Condition as an Assignee within the Statute of 32 H. 8.

And he may vouch by Force of a Warranty annexed to the Estate of the Land, because he is in partly in the per and partly in the post. 8 Co. 94. 5 Co. 113. 3 Co. 62.

An Heir apparent sold Land in his Father's Life-time, and received the Purchase-Money for the same; he shall be bound to make good the Sale after his Father's Death, if he hath no Title but as Heir when he comes to be Owner of the Lands he sold: But here the Money raised on the Sale was employed for the Benefit of the Family; and the Father was absent beyond the Sea, &c. Duke of Newcastle's Case. 2 Chan. Ca. 113.

Upon a Bargain and Sale, the Bargainee has presently so far actual Possession that he is a good Tenant to the Præcipe, and may surrender, assign, alien, release, &c. Vent. 361.

But upon this Possession he cannot bring Trespass until he has made his actual Entry. Carter 66, 78. W. Jones 7. Cro. Jac. 604.

The Bargain and Sale vests the Uses, and the Statute of Uses the Possession. Cro. Jac. 696. pl. 9. Lucas 47.

(D) Who may make a Bargain and Sale, or not.

See Chap. 4. §. 4. before.

NO Person can make a Bargain and Sale who has not the actual Possession at the Time of Sale: If he has not the actual Possession, then the Deed must be sealed upon the Land, upon an Entry made for that Purpose; for the Entry puts the Grantor into Possession, and purges Disseisins, &c. See before Title Entry, and see Carter 161. 2 Inst. 672. 3 Leon. 312, 387, 388. Lev. 270, 271, 272. Cro. Eliz. 483. pl. 19, 446, 447. pl. 11.

(E) To

(E) To whom a Bargain and Sale may be, or not.

A Bargain and Sale of Lands for Money cannot be to one Man to the Use of another; for an Use cannot be upon an Use, but it must be to the Bargainee only. Popb. 81. Dyer 155.

If a Man bargains and sells his Land for Money by Deed inrolled, to hold to the Bargainee in Fee, to the Use of the Bargainor for Life, &c. or to the Use of any other; this Limitation of the Uses is void, and it shall be to the Use of the Bargainee in Fee, because the Consideration and Sale implies the Use to be in him only. Bendl. 61. Dyer 155.

(F) Of what Things a Bargain and Sale may be, or not.

ALL Things for the most part that are grantable by any other way from one Man to another, are grantable, and may be transferred by way of Bargain and Sale from one to another.

And therefore Lands, Rents, Advowsons, Commons, Tithes, Profits of Courts, and the like, may be granted by way of Bargain and Sale in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years.

And all Manner of Goods and Chattels, as Leases for Years, Wardships, Cattle, Corn, Household-Stuff, Wood, Trees, Merchandizes, and the like, are grantable by way of Bargain and Sale. See 2 West. Symb. Tit. Bargain and Sale.

But it seems Estovers, and such like Things de novo, and that have not Essence before, are not grantable by way of Bargain and Sale, as they are by way of Grant or Lease, and therefore a Bargain and Sale of such Things is void. 6 Jac. B. R. adjudged. 21 H. 6. 43.

A Bargain and Sale by Deed may be of Land, rendring a Rent, and the Reversion shall be good, because the Use and Possession pass uno flatu; and therefore it is all one with a Grant of the Land itself; for if the Use passes first, then the Rent cannot be reserved out of the Use, and then the Reservation of the Rent will be void. But they both passing at the same Time makes it good. 2 Co. 54. a.

(G) By what Deed a Bargain and Sale of Land may be made.

IF any Estate of Freehold or Inheritance be made of Land by way of Bargain and Sale, the same must be made by a Writing or Deed intended, and cannot be made by Word of Mouth only, as a Lease for Years, whether it be created de novo, or be in esse before, may be. Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 16.

But Lands in London, by a special Proviso within the Statute, may be bargained and sold by Word of Mouth, without any Writing.

(H) By what Words a Deed of Bargain and Sale of Land may be made.

THE very Words bargain and sell, though it is good and proper that they be in a Bargain and Sale (being the Words mentioned in the Statute of Inrolments) yet they are not absolutely necessary, for other Words equivalent will suffice to make Land pass by way of Bargain and Sale.

For whatsoever Words upon valuable Considerations would have raised an Use at Common Law, the same amount to a Bargain and Sale within the Statute; as,

Where a Man by Deed indented and inrolled, covenants in Consideration of Money to stand seised to the Use of his Son in Fee; this by Reason of the Inrolment is a good Bargain and Sale, and yet there is not one Word of Bargain and Sale in the Deed. Carter 66. 2 Inst. 672. Cro. Jac. 210. Moor 34. Cro. Eliz. 166.

And if a Man seised of Land in Fee, by Deed indented, and by the Words alien or grant, sells them to another; or if such a Man covenants to stand seised of his Land to the Use of another, and these Deeds are made in Consideration of Money, and the Deeds be after inrolled; these will amount to good Bargains and Sales. Carter 66, 78.

And if a Man by Deed indented and inrolled, in Consideration of 10*l.* paid to him, by the Words Demise and Grant, passes his Lands to another for twenty Years; this is a good Bargain and Sale. 8 Co. 94. 7 Co. 40. 2 Co. 36. Vent. 141. Mod. 1. Cro. Eliz. 166.

(I) What Consideration is requisite in a Bargain and Sale of Land.

THERE must be some good Consideration given, or at least said to be given, for the Land. Co. 176.

And therefore if A. (for divers good Considerations) or in Consideration that the Bargainee is bound for the Bargainor, and (for divers other good Causes) or (for divers great and valuable Considerations) bargains and sells his Land by Deed indented and inrolled to B. and his Heirs; nihil operatur.

But if in these Cases there be really Money or other good Consideration given, altho' it be not expressed upon the Deed, the Bargainee may aver it, and being proved the Bargain will be good. Ward v. Lambert, Pas. 37 Eliz. 41 Eliz. adjudged. Dyer 169.

And if the Deed makes Mention of Money paid, as in Consideration of 100*l.* or the like, and in Truth no Money is paid, yet the Bargain and Sale is good.

And no Averment will lie against that which is expressly affirmed by the Deed. Dyer 90. Moor 378. Unless it comes to be questioned, whether fraudulent or no upon the Statute against fraudulent Conveyances, for the Affirmative is proved by the Deed, and it is impossible to prove the Negative. Moor 378.

And if the Deed mentions and says for a certain sum of Money, or for a certain competent sum of Money; these are good Considerations. Dyer 90. 2.

The best way is to mention a Consideration of Money, which, tho' but ten or twenty Shillings, is sufficient to pass an Estate, but a general Consideration will not raise an Use. Co. 175. a. 176. b. Moor 578, 378. 7 Co. 40. 11 Co. 24, 25.

A Consideration might formerly have been averred altho' no valuable Consideration was expressed in the Deed. But Quare if it can be so now, since the Statute of Frauds.

A. a Tenant for Life, Remainder to B. his Son in Tail, Remainder over. B. the Son being in Debt, was desirous to sell his Reversion to his Father, who proposed a Sum for that Purpose; but C. (who had been an Attorney) dissuaded the Son from it, declaring that this was no valuable Consideration. But in about a Year afterwards, when the Father was antient and sickly, C. himself bought this Reversion of B. for 1050*l.* when the Estate was worth 150*l.* per Ann. and B. was at this Time thirty-four Years of Age, and had a Child about ten Years old, who was inheritable to the Intail; and B. levied a Fine of this Reversion to C. In about two Years Time A. the Father died; B. brought his Bill to set aside this Conveyance, and in order to gain an Injunction, by the Direction of the Court, suffered a Common Recovery, and declared the Uses of it to the two senior six Clerks, subject to the Order of the Court. Upon the Hearing of this Cause Lord Chancellor decreed Relief upon Payment of Principal and Interest, and full (meaning liberal) Costs, grounding his Opinion chiefly upon the Case of Berney and Pitt, in 2 Vern. 14. Will. Rep. 310.

A Sale at Undervalue from one who was a Lunatick, was set aside; but the Conveyances decreed to stand as a Security for what was paid for the Lunatick's Use. 2 Vern. 678.

A Bargain and Sale of Lands, &c. of excessive Advantage, gained from a young Heir by Extremity and in his Necessity, was decreed to be set aside; and that altho' the Bargain be of his own seeking, and hazardous to the Bargainor, yet in this Case the Defendant was to have five Times the Value of his Money in Land; which was a very unconscionable Bargain. 2 Chan. Ca. 120, 121.

H. bought of the Defendant N. in the Life-time of his Father, the Reversion of a House at an Undervalue, by Reason of the Contingency, That if N. had died in his Father's Life-time, the Plaintiff had lost all his Purchase-Money: On the Death of the Defendant's Father, who died about ten Years after this Conveyance was made, N. exhibited his Bill to be relieved against the Bargain, and was relieved by the Lord Nottingham; but upon a Rehearing before the Lord Keeper Guildford, that Decree was reversed: And afterwards a Bill was brought by the Executor of H. to compel N. to perform a Covenant to make further Assurance; but he was denied Relief therein, and the Plaintiff was left to bring his Action of Covenant at Law. Vern. 271, 272.

The above principal Cause being afterwards again reheard before the Lord Chancellor Jefferies, he reversed Lord Guildford's Decree, and confirmed the Decree of Lord Nottingham; declaring he took H's Purchase to be an unrighteous Bargain in the Beginning, and nothing that happened afterwards could help it. Vern. 168. 2 Vern. 27. 2 Chan. Ca. 137.

(K) Whether Livery or Attornment is necessary in Bargains and Sales of Land.

THERE needs no Livery of Seisin or Attornment where there is a Bargain and Sale of Lands.

And therefore if one bargains and sells a Reversion by Deed indented and inrolled for good Consideration, the Reversion will pass without any Attornment of the Tenant.

And if it be only a Lease for Years of a Reversion that is granted, there needs no Attornment nor Inrolment.

And in Case of a Bargain and Sale, the Bargainee is in actual Possession before any Entry, so that the Lessee may attorn to the Grant of the Reversion, as has been ruled in Mitton's Case, Mic. 18 Jac. in Cur. Ward. by the two Chief Justices and the whole Court.

And it seems he has not such Possession as to bring any possessory Action for Trespass, or the like, until an actual Entry, for where the Statute 27 H. 8. of Uses provides, that the actual Possession shall be adjudged according to the Use, yet it ought to have a Circumstance which is requisite by the Common Law, viz. an actual Entry in Deed. 5 Co. 112. 7 Co. 40. 8 Co. 94.

(L) Of inrolling Bargains and Sales of Land.

First, In the Courts at Westminster, or before the Custos Rotulorum, &c.

THERE must be an Inrolment of a Deed of Bargain and Sale where any Freehold passes.

For it is enacted by the said Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 16. That no Lands (except in some Corporations only) shall pass from one to another by any Deed, whereby any Estate of Inheritance or Freehold (vide infra) shall be made or take Effect in any Person or Persons, or any Uses thereof be made, by Reason only (vide infra) of any Bargain and Sale thereof, except the same be made and done by Writing indented, sealed and inrolled in one of the King's Courts of Record at Westminster, [in the Chancery, King's Bench, Common Pleas or Exchequer] or else within the same County or Counties where the Lands so bargained and sold lie, before the Custos Rotulorum, and two Justices of the Peace, and the Clerk of the Peace of the same County or Counties, or two of them at the least, whereof the Clerk of the Peace to be one. And the same Inrolment to be within six Months next after the same Writing or Deed is dated.

This Statute of Inrolments extends to Bargains and Sales of Inheritances and Freeholds only; and not to Bargains and Sales for Years, for they are good without Inrolment; and the Possession passes by the Statute of Uses. 2 Co. 36. a. 54. 8 Co. 93, 94. 2 Inst. 671. Dyer 309. Roll. Abr. 204.

Houses and Lands in London, and any City, &c. are exempted out of the said Statute. 2 Inst. 676. Nel. Abr. 342. Dyer 229. Yelv. 124.

To a Bargain and Sale of a Chattel there needs no Inrolment. 2 Co. 35. a. b. 36. a. 8 Co. 94. a. 2 Inst. 672.

If a Man for Money bargains and sells, and before Inrolment levies a Fine, or makes a Feoffment to the Bargainee in Fee, and afterwards, within six Months, the Deed is inrolled; the Bargainee shall be in by the Fine or Feoffment, both by Reason of the Word only in the Statute, and also for that the Estate vested by the Common Law shall be preferred. 2 Inst. 672. 4 Co. 71. b. 72. a. 2 And. 3, 162, 203. 4 Leon. 4. Popb. 49. Hob. 222.

This Statute was made in the same Parliament wherein the Law of Transferring of Uses into Possession was made, to the End that Mens Lands might not suddenly and privately pass upon Payment of a little Money in an Alehouse, or the like.

And herein observe these Things:

1. The Inrolment upon such a Deed as to make this Estate to pass must be in Parchment, for an Inrolment in Paper is not good. 2 Inst. 672, 673.

2. The Deed inrolled must be indented, for if it be but Poll, the Estate will not pass. 2 Inst. 672, 673.

3. It must be inrolled within six Months of the Purchase or Sale.

And this Account must be,

1. From the Date, and not from the Time of the Delivery of the Deed.

2. After twenty-eight Days to the Month, and no more.

3. The Day of the Date to be taken exclusive, and for none of the Days of the six Months.

And yet if a Deed be inrolled the same Day it bears Date, it has been held good: But the surest way is to inrol it some Day after within the six Months. 2 Inst. 674. Hob. 140. 740. 6 Co. 62. Co. 6. Dyer 282. 3 Lev. 438. Salk. 413. 6 Mod. 260.

If it be inrolled any Part of the last Day of the six Months, it is sufficient.

And thus the Deed may be inrolled within the six Months, altho' either of the Parties die within the Time.

And if the Deed be not thus inrolled, it is of no Force at all.

So

So that if one bargains and sells his Land to me, and the Trees upon it; in this Case altho' the Trees might have been sold alone by Deed without Inrolment, yet now being not inrolled, because the Sale is not good for the Land, it shall not be good for the Trees also.

And no subsequent Act will help in this Case; for if one by Words of bargain and sell only, without any other Words in the Deed, grants a Reversion, and the Deed be not inrolled, and after the Tenant attorns; hereby nothing passes, neither shall it enure as a Confirmation.

But yet observe, that in some Cases where a Deed will not enure by way of Bargain and Sale for some of the Causes aforesaid, it may enure to some other Purposes. 5 Co. 1. Dyer 218. Franklin and Garter's Case, Mic. 37 & 38 Eliz. 11 Co. 48.

By the said Statute of 27 H. 8. c. 16. of Inrolments, the Custos Rotulorum, or Justices of the Peace and Clerk, to take for the Inrolment before them, where the Lands exceed not for Inrolment, the yearly Value of 40 s. 2 s. viz. 1 s. to the Justices, and 1 s. to the Clerk. And where the Lands exceed the yearly Value of 40 s. 5 s. viz. 2 s. 6 d. to the Justices, and 2 s. 6 d. to the Clerk.

And the Clerk of the Peace shall inrol and ingross the Deed in Parchment, and deliver Where Inrol- the Rolls thereof at the End of the Year to the Custos Rotulorum, to remain in his Custody, ment to be to the Intent that every Party who has to do therewith, may resort and see the Effect and kept for In- Tenor of every such Writing so inrolled. spection.

The Makers of the Statute of Inrolments thought that very little Land would pass by Bargain and Sale; for such Bargainee shall never vouch by Virtue of any Warranty annexed to the Estate of the Land: And there is no Saving in the Act for Cestuy que Use, nor of any Use; nor does it give any Benefit of Warranty to Cestuy que Use, unless the Use was executed before the Time therein limited. Co. 125. a.

Secondly, How to inrol Deeds in the King's Bench.

The Deed must be acknowledged by one of the Grantors, either in the Court, (on the Plea Side, Salk. 389.) or before a Judge of the Court, at his Chambers; and if it is acknowledged in Court, the Secondary asks the Party, Whether he acknowledges the Deed to be his Deed? And if he says he does, then he asks him, Whether he desires that it be inrolled? If he says he does, then the Secondary writes the Caption upon some Part of the Deed in this Manner:

Acknowledged in the Court of our Sovereign Lord George the Second, now King of England, &c. before the King himself at Westminster, on the ——— Day of ——— in the ——— Year of his Reign, by the abovesaid A. B.
By the Court.

A Baron and Feme came to acknowledge a Deed in Court, but the Court ordered the Acknowledgment of the Husband only to be entred. Mod. Ca. 263.

Thirdly, Of inrolling Bargains and Sales in Lancashire, Cheshire and Durham.

By Stat. 5 Eliz. c. 26. All Inrolments of such Writings indented (viz. as are mentioned 27 H. 8. c. 16.) of any Bargain and Sale, of Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments in the above mentioned Counties, made and inrolled in six Months after the Date thereof;

In the Chancery at Lancaster, or before the Justices of Assise at Lancaster, concerning Manors, &c. in the said County;

Or in the Exchequer at Chester, or before the Justices of Assise at Chester, concerning Manors, &c. in the said County;

Or in the Court of Chancery at Durham, or before the Justices of Assise at Durham, concerning any Manors, &c. in the said County,

Shall be deemed as good in Law as if the same Writings indented had been made and inrolled in any of the Courts at Westminster.

But the said Act does not extend to any Manors, &c. in any City, Borough or Town Corporate, in any of the said Counties wherein the Mayors, Recorders, Bailiffs, or other Officer or Officers having Authority, and have lawfully used to inrol any Evidences, Deeds or other Writings within their Precincts or Limits.

Fourthly,

Fourthly, In Yorkshire.

See the Statutes concerning Registring and Inrolling Deeds and Wills in the East, West and North Ridings of Yorkshire before, from p. 458 to 480.

A Covenant in a Deed of Bargain and Sale not inrolled is binding. Ld. Raym. 388.

Pleading a Bargain and Sale without shewing it to be for a valuable Consideration will be ill upon Demurrer, but it is cured by Verdict or taking Issue on a collateral Fact. 2 Stra. 1229.

(M) What Deed shall enure as and be deemed a Bargain and Sale, or not.

A Man in Consideration of natural Love and Affection to his Daughter, and for her Pre-ferment, did give, grant, bargain and sell, alien, infeoff and confirm to her and her Heirs; and about a Month after the Deed was acknowledged and inrolled: This not being in Consideration of Money, shall not enure as a Bargain and Sale, but as a Covenant to stand seised to Uses; and the Inrolment shall not hurt it, because the Uses vested immediately upon the Sealing of the Deed, and the Acknowledgment and Inrolment was afterwards. 7 Co. 40. 2 Co. 24. Cro. Eliz. 394. Vent. 137. Lev. 56.

If a Deed be acknowledged to be inrolled, and before Inrolment Livery is made, this will make it a Feoffment, and not a Bargain and Sale. 2 Inst. 672.

So if a Man for a valuable Consideration makes a Deed, and a Letter of Attorney for Livery, and after the Deed is acknowledged and inrolled; this shall then be a Bargain and Sale, no Livery being made. 2 Roll. 787. 2 Inst. 671, 672.

No after Act in any Case shall make a good Deed void. Ibid.

A Man, in Consideration of Money, made a Deed of Gift, Grant, Bargain and Sale of his Lands to another and his Heirs, with a Letter of Attorney to make Livery; if Livery be thereupon made before Inrolment, there it has been adjudged to pass by the Livery, and not by the Inrolment. Popb. 49. 2 Inst. 672.

(N) *How a Bargain and Sale shall be taken.*First, Of Lands.

IF one bargains and sells his Land to me for Money; To have and to hold to me generally; and does not say to me and my Heirs; by this I have but an Estate for Life, and no more. Co. 87. Co. Lit. 10. Dyer 169.

If one, in Consideration of 10*l.* paid by me, bargains and sells his Land to me and my Heirs; To have and to hold to me to the Use of the Bargainor for Life, the Remainder in Tail to me, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Bargainor; the Habendum in this Case is void, and I and my Heirs shall have the Land for ever. Dyer 155.

If one in Consideration of 10*l.* sells me Land for the Term of twenty Years, and does not say when this Term shall begin; in this Case it shall begin presently. 6 Co. 33.

Secondly, Of Goods.

If one sells me any Thing by the Tod, Pound, Bushel, Yard or Ell; it shall be accounted me assured, and reckoned according to the Custom of the Country and Place, and not according to the Statutes or the Measures of other Counties. Kelw. 87. Plow. 140, 41.

If one sells me twenty Barrels of Ale, or ten Pottles or Cups of Wine; by these Bargains I shall not have the Barrels, Pottles or Cups, with the Ale or Wine. But if one sells me a Hogshead or a Firkin of Wine, it seems by this Bargain I shall have the Hogshead and Firkin within the Wine. Plow. 86. 27 H. 8. 27. Bro. Contract 4.

If one sells me all his Trees in such a Wood, and that I shall not cut them until Michaelmas, and in the interim Hawks do breed in the Trees; it seems in this Case that the Vendor shall have them, and that I may not meddle with them. 27 Aff. 29. And yet see 11 Co. 58. which seems to be the contrary.

Where I make a Bargain and Sale to A. and before Inrolment I make another Bargain and Sale to B. of the same Land, and the Deed to B. is first inrolled: If the Deed to A. is not inrolled within six Months, then the Bargain and Sale to B. (whose Deed is inrolled) is good: But if the Deed to A. is inrolled within the six Months, then the Deed to B. is void. Hob. 165. Moor 41. Cro. Car. 217, 218, 284.

A. bargains

A. bargains and sells to B. and before Inrolment they grant a Rent-charge to C. and afterwards the Deed is inrolled; here the Grant is good, and after the Inrolment, by the Operation of the Statute, it shall be the Grant of B. and Confirmation of A. But if the Deed had not been inrolled, then it had been the Grant of A. and Confirmation of B. Co. Lit. 147. b.

(O) How and to what Purposes a Deed of Bargain and Sale of Lands, and the Inrolment thereupon, shall relate.

THE Inrolment of a Deed of Bargain and Sale, when it is done within the fix Months, shall to most Purposes relate to the Time of the Delivery, or of the Date of the Deed.

And it is given as a Rule, that it shall have Relation to the Time of the Delivery of the Deed, viz. to avoid all mean Estates and Charges made to a Stranger by the Bargainor after the Delivery of the Deed before the Inrolment, but not to devert any Estate lawfully settled in the interim in the Bargainee himself.

And therefore if one bargains and sells his Land by Deed indented to one, and after before the Deed is inrolled, he enters into a Statute, or grants a Rent-charge out of his Land, or makes a Lease of the Land to another, and then the Deed is inrolled within the Time; in this Case the Relation shall avoid all the mean Charges and Estates.

And if A. bargains and sells his Land by Deed indented to B. and afterwards sells the same Land by Deed indented to C. and the Deed made to C. is first inrolled, and then the Deed made to B. is inrolled also within fix Months; in this Case B. shall have the Land, and the Relation of his Inrolment shall make the Inrolment of the other Deed void.

So if A. levies a Fine of the Land to C. yet B. shall have the Land.

But if the first Deed made to B. be not inrolled within the fix Months, and the Deed to C. be inrolled within the fix Months, contra. 4 Co. 71. Bro. Fait Inrol. 9. Dyer 218.

If A. bargains and sells Land to B. and after levies a Fine to B. of the same Land, and after within the fix Months the Deed is inrolled; in this Case B. shall take by the Fine, and not by the Bargain and Sale. 4 Co. 71.

If one Jointenant aliens all his Lands in Dale to A. and before the Inrolment the other Jointenant dies, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this Case but a Moiety and not the whole Land doth pass. Bro. Fait Inrol 9.

If A. bargains and sells his Land to B. and after this A. becomes Bankrupt, and the Commissioners sell the Land to C. and after the Deed is inrolled within fix Months; in this Case B. and not C. the Purchaser, shall have the Land. So held 4 Car. B. R.

If Commissioners of Bankrupt assign over the Land to the Use of the Creditors, no Estate passes until Inrolment. Jones C. J. 196, 197. Vent. 206. 2 Show. 156. Cartb. 178. Show. 207.

If A. bargains and sells his Land held in capite to B. in Fee, and B. dies before Inrolment, and then the Deed is inrolled; in this Case the Heir of B. shall be in Ward. And so was it held by all the Justices in Sir Walter Earl's Case, Pasch. 15 Jac. Cur' Ward'.

And yet in this Case the Wife of the Bargainee shall not have Dower, as was held by Anderson Chief Justice, and Justice Walmsly, 3 Jac. C. B. and again in Sir Robert Barker's Case, 6 Jac.

And if one bargains and sells his Land to J. S. and after this the Rent incurs, and then the Deed is inrolled; the Bargainee and not the Bargainor shall have the Rent. Per Curiam B. R. Hill. 11 Car.

If A. bargains and sells his Land to B. in Fee, and then marries C. and dies, and C. is endowed, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this Case the Dower of the Woman shall be taken away by Relation, as was held in Baron Frevil's Case, 22 Eliz. C. B.

If A. bargains and sells Land to B. and C. in Fee, and B. releases to G. before the Inrolment; this Release is void. 8 Jac. C. B.

If A. Disseisor bargains and sells the Land disseised to B. in Fee, and the Disseisee releases to the Bargainor, and after the Deed is inrolled; in this Case this Release shall avail B. So held in Mocket's Case, 10 Eliz.

If A. bargains and sells his Land to B. and B. before Inrolment bargains and sells the Land to C. the first Deed is inrolled, and then the second Deed is inrolled; in this Case the last Bargain and Sale is void, and shall not be made good by Relation, as was held by the Court in Sir Robert Barker's Case, 6 Jac.

If a Lease be made rendring Rent on Condition to re-enter for Non-payment, and the Lessor bargains and sells the Reversion by Deed indented, and after the Deed made the Rent is in Arrear, and then the Deed is inrolled; in this Case it shall not relate to give a Re-entry for the Condition broken. So held in Sir Christopher Hatton's Case.

If A. bargains and sells Land to B. in Tail, and B. before Inrolment of the Deed, makes a Lease according to the Statute of 32 H. 8. and after the Deed is inrolled; this is a good Lease. So it has been adjudged.

Neither the Death of the Bargainor nor Bargainee before Inrolment shall hinder the passing of the Estate. 2 Inst. 674. Hob. 136. And. 219, 337.

A Release by a Stranger to the Bargainee before Inrolment shall be good. 2 Inst. 674, 675.

(P) Of Bargains and Sales of Goods and Chattels.

A Bargain and Sale may be made of Goods and Chattles, without any such Solemnity, as before; for it may be by Word (a) as well as by Writing, with or without any Words of bargain and sell, as well as by those Words; by a Deed Poll, as well as by a Deed indented, and that without any Inrolment at all, and without any Delivery of any Part of the Things sold, or of any Piece of Money (as the Manner is) in the Name of Seisin. Shep. Touch. 224.

Consideration. But in this Case also some Respect is to be had unto the Cause and Consideration of the Bargain, as well as in the Case of the Bargain and Sale of Lands.

For perhaps in the Case of a Grant, or Bargain and Sale of Goods or Chattels by Deed in Writing, the Consideration is not material. Plow. 308.

And if a Man by his Deed under his Hand and Seal bargains and sells Timber, Trees, or any other Thing, without any Consideration at all, the same may pass well enough; yet if the Contract be by Word, or by Writing, sealed and not delivered, if there be no Consideration, or no good Consideration of it, it is of no Effect at all.

And therefore if a Man by Word of Mouth sells me his Horse, or any other Thing, and I give him or promise him nothing for it; this is void, and will not alter the Property of the Thing sold.

But if one sells me a Horse, or any other Thing for Money, or any other valuable Consideration, and the same Thing is to be delivered to me at a Day certain, and by our Agreement a Day is set for the Payment of the Money, or all or Part of the Money is paid in Hand, or I give Earnest-Money (altho' it be but a Penny) to the Seller, or I take the Thing bought by Agreement into my Possession where no Money is paid, Earnest given, or Day set for the Payment; in all these Cases there is a good Bargain and Sale of the Thing to alter the Property thereof; and in the first Case I may have an Action for the Thing, and the Seller for his Money; and in the second Case I may sue for and recover the Thing bought; in the third I may sue for the Thing bought, and the Seller for the Residue of the Money; in the fourth Case where Earnest is given we may have reciprocal Remedies one against another; and in the last Case the Seller may sue for his Money.

If A. sells Cloth to B. for 10 s. and B. takes away the Cloth against the Will of A. in this Case A. shall have an Action of Trespass against B.

And if A. sells Cloth to B. for 10 s. in his Election to make it a Bargain or not, and if he will he may keep his Cloth until the other pay him; and if A. says nothing, but suffers B. to take it away, he may make it a Bargain if he will, and bring an Action of Debt for his Money.

If I offer Money for a Thing in a Market or Fair, and the Seller agrees to take my Offer, and whilst I am telling the Money as fast as I can, he sells the Thing to another: Or when I have bought it, we agree that he shall keep it until I can go home to my House to fetch the Money; in both these Cases, especially in the first, the Bargains are good, so as the Seller may not sell them afterwards to another, and upon the Payment, Tender and Refusal of the Money agreed upon, I may take or recover the Things. Dyer 29, 30. 14 H. 7. 11. 21 H. 8. 19. 9 H. 7. 6. 10 H. 7. 6. Plow. 432.

S E C T. IX.

Of Deeds of Gift.

THE Word Gift imports no more than the Transferring of the Property of a Thing from one to another without a valuable Consideration.

A Gift is of a larger Extent than a Feoffment, which is always applied to corporeal and immoveable Things. For a Gift is applied to Things moveable or immoveable, as Trees, Cattle, Household-stuff, &c. the Property whereof is and may be altered as well by Gift as by Sale or Grant.

And in this Sense a Gift is sometimes by the Act of the Party, as when one Man gives a Thing to another.

And this is or may be either by Word or by Writing.

And sometimes it is by Act of Law, as when a Woman is married to a Husband, or one is made Executor to another; in these Cases by the Marriage only, or taking of the Executorship, the Law gives all the Goods of the Woman to the Husband, and of the Testator to his Executor.

So where one takes my Goods as a Trespasser, and I recover Damages for them upon a Suit in Law; in this Case the Law gives him the Property of the Goods, because he has paid for them.

But the Word Gift is sometimes taken more strictly, and applied to a Conveyance or Passing of an Estate of Lands or Tenements to another (only) in Tail, wherein the Word Dedi is most commonly used.

And then he who gives the Land is called the Donor, and he to whom it is given the Donee.

And this by the Common Law was for the most part by Deed, though it might be by Parol. But see the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. before at p. 116.

By the Stat. 3 H. 7. c. 4. (reciting that oftentimes Deeds of Gift of Goods and Chattels had been made, to the Intent to defraud Creditors) it is enacted, That all Deeds of Gift of Goods and Chattels made or to be made of Trust, to the Use of that Person or Persons that made the same Deed of Gift, be void and of none Effect. See the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. & 13 Eliz. c. 5. before, at p. 116, 117.

By giving all one's Goods there seems to be a secret Trust and Confidence, that the Donee shall deal favourably with the Donor in respect of his Poverty, or permit him, or some other for his Benefit or Use, to be in Possession, &c.

And therefore when any Gift shall be made in Satisfaction of a Debt, let it be made,

1. In a public Manner before Neighbours, and not in private.

Dona clandestina sunt semper suspiciosa. 3 Co. 80.

Clausulae inconsuetæ semper inducunt suspicionem. Ibid.

2. Let the Goods and Chattels be appraised to the full Value, and the Gift made in Satisfaction of the Debt.

3. After the Gift, let the Donee take Possession of them; for the Continuance of the Possession in the Donor is a Sign of a Trust. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 6.

For more concerning these Deeds of Gifts of immoveable or moveable Things, see Deed and Grant in toto, wherein all the Learning touching this Matter is involved.

For the Words Gift and Grant are often confounded.

And see before, Concerning the Acquisition or Conveying personal Estates by Gift, p. 116.

S E C T. X.

Of Grants.

(A) Grant what, and Grantor and Grantee who.

THE Word Grant taken largely, is where any Thing is granted or passed from one to another.

And in this Sense it comprehends Feoffments, Bargains and Sales, Gifts, Leases, Charges, and the like; for he that gives or sells grants also. In this Case it is sometimes in Writing or by Deed, and sometimes by Word without Writing.

But

But a Grant in a stricter Sense and properly is a Conveyance in Writing of such an incorporeal Thing as lies in Grant, and not in Livery, and which cannot pass by Word only without Deed.

Or it is the Grant of such Persons as cannot pass any Thing from them but by Deed, as the King, Bodies Corporate, &c.

And although it may be made by other Words, yet it is most commonly made by the Word Grant, as being most proper to the Purpose. Co. Lit. 172, 332. a. Finch's Law 29.

Therefore amongst Hereditaments, some are such as are said to lie in Livery, i. e. such as whereof Livery of Seisin may be made, as Manors, Houses, Lands, &c. And some are such as do not lie in Livery, i. e. whereof no Livery of Seisin can nor needs to be made, but they pass by the Delivery of the Deed without any more; and of this Sort are Rents, Reversions, Services, Advowsons in Gross, and the like; which Things cannot pass from Man to Man without Deed or Matter of Record, which is of a higher Nature than a Deed. Co. Lit. 49.

He who makes a Grant is called the Grantor, and he to whom it is made is called the Grantee.

(B) Kinds of Grants.

SOME Grants are of the Land or Soil itself, and some are of some Profit to be taken out of or from the Soil, as Rent, Common, &c.

And some are of Goods and Chattels, and some are of other Things, as Authorities, Elections, &c.

And they are made sometimes by Matter of Record, and sometimes by Deed or Writing in the Country, and sometimes by Word without either.

Some Grants also tend to charge the Grantor with something he was not charged with before, and some to pass something out of him to the Grantee; and some tend to discharge the Grantee of something wherewith he was charged or chargeable before, and whereof he is now hereby discharged.

(C) What Grants must (or may not) be by Deed in Writing.

BY the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. No Leases, Estates or Interests, either of Freehold or Terms of Years, or any uncertain Interest, not being Copyhold or Customary Interest, of, in, to or out of any Messuages, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, shall at any Time be assured, granted or surrendered, unless it be by Deed or Note in Writing, signed by the Grantor, &c. or their Agents, lawfully authorized by Writing, or by Act and Operation of Law.

Before this Statute the Common Law stood thus as to what Grants should be by Deed, or might be by Word; and the same Laws, as far as they are not within the same Statute, still remain in Force.

Corporations. By the Common Law Corporations, as Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty, and such like, regularly can neither grant Lands, Goods or Chattels, but it must be by Deed.

But the Grantees of such Persons, and all other common Persons, might (before the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3.) grant or give any Thing which lies in Livery, as Manors, Houses, Lands, and such like Things, in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life, for Years, or at Will, by Word without Deed.

And if a Lease was made of any such Thing for Life or Years, with a Remainder over in Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life; it was good although it were by Word without any Deed in Writing. Perk. §. 64. 4 H. 7. 17. Plow. 150. 16 H. 7. 3. Lit. §. 60.

And such Things as are said to lie in Grant and not in Livery, could not be granted or given, had or taken without Deed, unless it was in some special Cases.

Rents, Services, &c. And therefore Rents and Services, and such Things which are in Gross, and not incident to some other Thing, may not be granted without a Deed; and therefore if a Rent-charge be granted unto me for Years, I may not grant this Rent over without Deed. And if there be Lord and Tenant of arable Land by Fealty, and the Service of yielding the tenth Sheaf of Corn before it be sowed; the Lord cannot grant this Service for Years without Deed.

But if a Rent, or any Service be Parcel of or incident to a Manor, or any other Thing which is grantable without Deed; in this Case by the Grant of the Principal by Word this Thing might pass as belonging thereunto without any Deed.

Also Rents or Services might be granted upon a Partition by one Coparcener to another without Deed. Co. Lit. 49. Dyer 439. Perk. §. 60, 61, 63. Bro. Grant 59.

A Reversion could not be granted in Fee-simple, Fee-tail for Life or Years without Deed, unless it be in Case where it is Parcel of a Manor. Reversion or Remainder.

But a Reversion might be granted upon a Partition by one Coparcener to another without any Deed. And the same Law was of a Remainder. And therefore if one made a Lease for Life or Years to one, the Remainder in Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life to another without Deed; howsoever this was a good Remainder in the first Creation without Deed, yet this Remainder could not be granted over without Deed. Perk. §. 61. Dyer 174. Plow. 433. Bro. Grant 104.

A Parsonage or Rectory, although it consisted of nothing but Tithes, and the like, besides Advowson, the Church and Church-yard, and had no House nor Glebe belonging to it, yet it might be granted without Deed in Fee-simple for Life or Years, and then the Tithes and Offerings would pass as incident. Tithes, &c.

But the Tithes alone, or a Portion of Tithes, Oblations, Mortuaries or Obventions, were not grantable by themselves without Deed. 15 H. 7. 8. 16 H. 7. 2. 19 H. 8. 12. 21 H. 6. 43.

And therefore a Lease Parol of Tithes, although it was but for Years, was not good.

And if the Parson agreed with one of his Parishioners, that he should have his own Tithes; this was not a good Grant of the Tithes, neither might it be pleaded or used so, but perhaps by way of Agreement a Parishioner might retain his Tithes. 36 El. B. R.

And if a Lessee for Years of Tithes will grant it over to another at Will only, it could not be done without Deed, as was held by Baron Denham, 2 Car. at Sarum Assises.

And yet it was held, that a Parson might grant his Tithes from Year to Year to him that was to pay them without any Deed; but this was by way of Retainer. Mic. 8 Jac. Dr. Longworth's Case.

But this Grant or Agreement might be made to and with the Party himself that was to pay the Tithes, and not with another: Neither could this Interest be assigned, or a Stranger take Advantage of it, as hath been agreed in the Case of Hawkes and Brasfield, Pasch. 3 Jac. B. R.

An Advowson in Gross could not be granted without Deed; even the Grantee of the Grantee of an Advowson is to shew both the Deeds.

But an Advowson was grantable upon a Partition between Coparceners without Deed.

And an Advowson incident to a Manor or Piece of Land was grantable with the Manor or Land without any Deed.

The next Avoidance to a Church was not grantable without Deed. 21 Ed. 3. 38. 11 H. 4. 3. Dyer 29, 10. Co. 1. Plow. 150. 9 Ed. 4. 47.

Common of Pasture, Estovers, Turbary, Fishing, &c. could not be granted in Fee-simple, Fee-tail for Life or Years, unless it be in Case of Partition, or of Appendancy, as incident to some corporeal Thing without Deed. Common of Pasture, &c.

And therefore if a Man granted by Word of Mouth to me Common for twenty Beasts in this Manor; this would not be good.

Neither if it was granted to me by Deed, might I grant this over to another without Deed.

But if a Man had Common of Pasture Appendant or Appurtenant to his Land; in this Case he might grant his Land with the Common Appendant by Word only without any Deed. Perk. §. 61.

Franchises, as Fairs, Markets, Courts, Warrens, and the like, or the Profits thereof, were not grantable without Deed. Franchises,
&c.

But a Hundred was grantable without Deed, for that is Liberum Tenementum.

Hundred.

The Profits of a Mill, Country, Ferry, Corody, or the like, were not grantable without Deed. 15 H. 7. 8.

Things in Action, as a Right or Title of Action that only depends in Action, and Things of that Nature, as Rights and Titles of Entry to any real or personal Thing, are not grantable at all but by way of Release to the Tenant of the Land, &c. by which Means it may be extinguished: but this neither may not be without Deed. Things in Action, &c.

And therefore if a Man takes my Goods as a Trespassor, or I deliver him my Goods to keep, and after I will give these Goods to him, I cannot do this without Deed. 6 H. 7. 9.

Dyer 91, 126. Doct. & Stud. 16.

An Election, Condition, Covenant, Assent, Licence or Liberty, cannot be created and annexed to an Estate of Inheritance or Freehold without Deed. Dyer 281.

A Privilege to hold Land for Life without Impeachment of Waste, is not grantable without Deed.

Offices.

Offices for the most part are not grantable without Deed.

And yet some inferior Offices, as Stewards, Bailiffs, and the like, are, for such Officers a Lord of a Manor may retain by Word without Deed. 9 Co. 9.

Chattels.

Most Chattels real and personal might be given and granted without Deed.

And therefore if a Man by Word of Mouth granted, gave or sold me his Lease for Years, the Wardship of Body and Land, or the Wardship of Land that he had by Reason of a Tenure by Knight's Service, or by Grant from the King, or granted or sold me the Trees standing upon his Ground, the Corn growing upon his Land, his Horse, Sword, Plate, or other Household-Stuff; this is a good Grant or Gift. But the Wardship of the Body of an Heir only, cannot be granted without Deed.

So a next Presentation cannot be granted without Deed. Perk. §. 57, 60. Bro. Donne 1. Dyer 10. 5 H. 7. 35, 36. Plow. 150.

(D) Things necessary to every good Grant.

Regularly these Things are requisite in every good Grant or Gift:

1. That there be a Grantor, Donor, &c. and that he be a Person able to grant, and not disabled by any legal or natural Impediment.

2. That there be a Grantee, Donee, &c. and that he be a Person capable of the Thing granted, and not disabled to receive it.

3. That there be a Thing granted, and that the Thing be such a Thing as is grantable.

4. That it be granted in that Order and Manner that Law requires: As where the Thing is not grantable without Deed, that it be done by Deed.

And if it be done by Deed, that the Deed have apt Words to describe and set forth the Person of the Grantor and Grantee, and Thing granted, &c. and that all necessary Circumstances, as Sealing and Delivery, and Livery of Seisin, and Attornment, where it is needful, be observed.

5. That there be an Agreement to and Acceptance of the Grant or Thing granted by him to whom it is made, and for Default in either of these Particulars a Grant may be void. In acquirendo rerum dominio, scilicet quod donationes non valent, licet sint inceptæ, nisi sint perfectæ.

But if Grants be very antient, and Things granted have been enjoyed according to the Grant ever since the Making of it; in this Case the Grant may be good notwithstanding some legal Defect in some of these Particulars. Co. 73. Plow. 555. Perk. §. 1. Bro. Grant 89.

See concerning Things necessarily incident to every good Deed, before p. 164, 165.

(E) Who may be a Grantor.

TWO Things are requisite relative to the Grantor:

First, That the Grantor be a Person able to grant.

Secondly, That if the Grant be by Deed, that he be sufficiently described and set forth, either by his proper Names, or else by some other Matter of Distinction.

Note therefore, that whosoever may be a Feoffor, may be a Grantor.

Natural or Politick Bodies.

And any Natural, Politick or Corporate Body (not prohibited by Law, as Monk, Friar, Woman Covert, Infant, and such like) may be Grantor, Donor, &c. and the Grants of such Persons will be good. Perk. §. 3.

Alien.

An Alien may and is able to grant or give any Thing that he is capable to have or take by Grant or Gift.

Person at-taint or outlawed.

A Person attainted of Treason or Felony may give or grant his Land; and this is good against all others besides the King and the Lord of whom his Land is held.

And he may grant and give his Goods to relieve himself in Prison; and this will be good against all others, and the King and Lord also.

A Person outlawed in a personal Action, may give or grant his Goods or Chattels, and the Gift or Grant will be good against all others but the King. Perk. §. 26.

Feme Covert.

The Queen may, without the Agreement of the King, make Grants, Gifts, &c. of her Lands or Goods; but another Woman that has a Husband cannot give or grant her Lands or Goods without her Husband's Consent, unless it be in some special Cases.

And

And although she recites by the Deed that she is Sole and not Covert, yet this will not help.

And if the Case be so, that by Agreement between her and her Husband there be a certain Portion of her Husband's Lands or Goods allotted unto her to dispose of and manage at her Pleasure, yet she alone without her Husband can make no good Grant or Gift of any Part of these Lands or Goods.

But if she grants any Thing by Fine, and the Husband does not avoid it during the Coverture; this Grant will bind her after his Death.

And if she makes a Gift or Grant of her Husband's Goods, it is thought this is not good until her Husband agrees to it. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 8, 20, 41.

An Infant cannot make any Gift or Grant, &c. that is good but in special Cases: For Infant, if he makes any Grant or Gift that takes Effect by the Delivery of the Deed only; as if he grants a Rent-charge out of his Land, or makes a Feoffment with a Letter of Attorney, or gives Livery of Seisin, or gives or sells his Horse, and the Buyer or Donee takes him himself; these are void ab initio.

And if the Grant or Gift takes Effect by the Delivery of his own Hand; as if he makes a Feoffment, and gives Livery of Seisin himself, or sells a Horse and delivers him with his own Hands; this is voidable by the Infant himself, or others that shall have his Right, &c.

But if an Infant grants any Thing by Fine; this must be avoided during his Minority, or else it cannot be avoided at all. 9 H. 7. 24. 26 H. 8. 2. Perk. §. 12, 13, 14, 19. 7 H. 4. 5.

All Grants that are made by Durefs, are voidable by the Parties themselves that make it, Durefs, or others that have their Estates, &c.

But if it be done by Fine, it is good and unavoidable. Perk. §. 16.

All Gifts, Grants, &c. made by Deed in the Country, by those that are de non sane me- Non sane morie, are good against themselves, but voidable by those that are their Heirs, Executors, memorie, or have their Estates; but if it be by Fine, it is good and unavoidable. 4 Co. 123, 124.

A Man that is born dumb, or dumb and deaf, if he has Understanding, may by De- Born dumb, livery of the Deed and making of Signs, make a good Grant, Gift, &c. &c.

But a Man that is born deaf, dumb and blind cannot. Perk. §. 25.

A Bastard may give or grant as well as any other Man, after he has got a Name by Re- Bastard. putation. Perk. §. 20.

A Parson may grant any Thing belonging to his Parsonage for no longer Time than for Parson: his own Life, and therein likewise but during his Residence, although he has the Consent of the Patron and Ordinary.

Neither the Head without the Members of a Corporation, nor the Members without the Corporation. Head, as Dean without the Chapter, or Chapter without the Dean, may give or grant any of the Lands belonging to the Corporation. Perk. §. 31, 32, 33.

One Executor or Administrator may give or sell any of the Goods of the Deceased, and Executors. this is good to bind all the Rest.

For more concerning who may grant, &c. see before, p. 165.

(F) Of naming the Grantor.

THE Name of the Persons in Grant is set down only to distinguish Persons, and to make the Person intended certain: And therefore notwithstanding it is best and most safe to describe the Person by his true and proper Name of Baptism, and also by his Surname; and if it be a Corporation, by the true Name whereby the Corporation is made; yet Mistakes in this Case, unless they are very gross, will not make void the Grant; Nihil facit error nominis cum de corpore constat.

And therefore if one that is a Bastard has got a Name by Reputation in the Place where he lives, or another Man has got another Name by common Esteem than his own right Name, or is usually called by another Name than his true Name in the Place where he lives; in these Cases they may grant by this Name, and the Grant is good.

And if a Man be baptized by one Name, and after be confirmed by another, some have said he may grant by either of these Names. Sed quere.

And if John at Stile grants by the Name of William at Stile; this Grant is good. Et sic de similibus. 6 Co. 63. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 41, 39.

And these Grants are good, especially when there is some other Addition to make it more certain; as when a Duke, Marquis, Earl or Bishop, grants by their Names of Honour or Dignity, and grant without any Name, or with a false Name of Baptism, as when the Duke of Suffolk by the Name of the Duke of Suffolk, without any more Words; or by the Name of William Duke of Suffolk, when his Name is John; or the Bishop of Norwich grants grants so: These are good Grants, because there is but one such Duke and one such Bishop within the Kingdom.

So if a Dean and Chapter, Mayor and Commonalty, grant by the Name of their Corporation without any Addition of Christian or Surname; it is good. Fitz. Grant 67. Perk. §. 42.

And especially these Grants are good when the true Name appears in some other Part of the Deed; as when John at Stile recites by his Deed that his Name is John at Stile, and by the same Deed grants by the Name of Thomas at Stile. Or Alice at Stile, reciting by her Deed that she is a Feme Covert, when in Truth she is Sole. Perk. §. 40.

But if an ordinary Man grants by his Surname only without any Name of Baptism, or by his Name of Baptism without any Surname at all: In these and such like Cases for the most part the Grant will be void for Uncertainty, unless there be some other Matter in the Deed to help it, or some Matter done ex post facto to supply it; for in some Cases where the Thing granted lies in Livery, such a Mistake or Incertainty in the Grant may be helped by the Livery of Seisin upon the Deed afterwards. 3 H. 6. 26. Perk. §. 38, 42.

And so also it is in the Names of Corporations; for if the Variance and Mistake by Omission or Alteration be only in some small Matter, so as it is literal and verbal only, the Grant will not be hurt by it. But if the Mistake or Omission be in the Substance of the Name, the Grant may be void by it. And therefore if Decanus & capitulum Ecclesie Cathed. Sancte & individ. Trin. Caerlil. grants by the Name of Decanus Ecclesie Cathed Sancte Trin. in Caerlil. & totum capitulum Ecclesie predict. this is good: Et sic de similibus: For if the Sense still remains either expressly or by necessary Implication, and the Description be such as imports a sufficient and certain Demonstration of the true Name of the Corporation according to the Foundation thereof, it suffices. But if any of the Substance or Essence of the Name be omitted, contra. And therefore if a Corporation, incorporated by the Name of Præpositi, &c. Collegii Regalis Coll. beate Mariæ de Eaton, juxta Windsor, grant by the Name of Per. & sociorum Colleg. Regalis de Eaton, &c. leaving out Collegium & beate Mariæ; this Grant is void. 6 Co. 65. 10 Co. 122, 124. 11 Co. 19. Dyer 110.

A Corporation Aggregate cannot grant to the Head of the Corporation. Ld. Raym. 775.

A Grant to a Knight by the Name of Esquire is void. Ld. Raym. 303.

A Grant to a Man by a wrong Name may be good, Si constat de Persona, but the Demonstratis Personæ must appear upon the Face of the Grant. Ld. Raym. 304.

For more concerning naming the Grantor, see before, p. 203.

(G) Who may be a Grantee.

AS to a Grantee three Things are requisite:

1. That the Grantee be a Person capable, i. e. that he be a Person in Being at the Time of the Grant made, and not disabled by any legal Impediment to take by the Grant.

2. That if the Grant be by Deed, the Grantee be sufficiently named, or at the least set forth and distinguished by some circumstantial Matter, and that he be so named or described as that he may be capable to take by the Name or Description.

3. That he himself, and not a Stranger, takes by the same Grant.

Bodies Natural and Politick.

All Natural, Politick or Corporate Bodies that are not disabled by Law, may be Grantees; And all Persons that may be Grantors may be Grantees; and some others that cannot grant or give, yet may take or receive. And a Grant made to one, two, three or twenty such Persons, is good. Co. Lit. 2, 3. Perk. §. 42.

A Grant of Land, or Rent in Possession to the right Heirs of J. S. J. S. being then living, is void; for there neither is nor can be any such Person in Rerum natura, for no Man can be an Heir to another that is living: But such a Grant to one in Remainder is good, if so be that J. S. dies before the particular Estate ends, and before the Remainder happens. So if a Grant be to him or her that shall be the first Child of J. S. and he has no Child at the Time of the Grant, this is void. So if a Grant be made to the Wife or Child of J. S. when there is none such, it is void: As if a Grant be to J. S. and to his first-born Son, or to J. S. and her that shall be his Wife, and he has at the Time of the Grant neither Wife nor Son; in these Cases the Grant is void as to the Wife and Son, and J. S. shall have all by the Grant. Co. 101. 2 Co. 31. Perk. §. 52, 54.

An Alien.

An Alien may be a Grantee, but if any Thing be granted to him whereof he is incapable; as an Estate of Lands in Fee-simple for Life or Years, he cannot hold it, but the King will have it from him.

Persons attainted.

A Person attainted of Treason or Felony before or after Attainder may be a Grantee, but he cannot hold the Thing granted; for if the King or Lord will, he may have it from him. So also Persons outlawed in personal Actions may be Grantees of Lands or Goods, but Outlawed.

but the King will have the Profits of the Lands and Property of the Goods. Co. Lit. 2.

Perk. §. 48.

A Woman Covert may be a Grantee, but her Husband may by his Disagreement avoid Feme Covert. the Grant; and yet if he does not avoid it in his Life-time, the Grant will be good: And he that will have the Grant to be void, must shew the Husband did disagree to it. Perk.

§. 43. Co. Lit. 2.

An Infant may be a Grantee, for this is presumed to be his Advantage; and yet at his Infant. full Age he may agree to it and perfect it, or disagree to it, and avoid it without any Cause shewed. Perk. §. 4. Co. Lit. 2.

A Man de non sane memorie may be a Grantee as well as any other Man, and it seems these Men de non sane memorie. Grants cannot be afterwards avoided. But such Men may not be Grantees of Offices of sane memorie. Trust, and such like Things. Co. Lit. 2.

A Bastard, Persons deformed having human Shape, Lepers, and such like, may be Grantees of Lands or Goods, &c. as other Men may be. Ibid.

Bastard, Persons deformed, &c.

An Hermaphrodite may be a Grantee according to the most prevailing Sex. Ibid.

Hermaphrodite.

A Clerk convict, and a Man imprisoned, may be a Grantee as well as another; and so also might a Villain of the King, or of a common Person; but he could not retain the Thing granted, for the King or Lord might have it from him if he would; neither could Monks, Friars, and such like Persons, be Grantees, for they were utterly disabled. Co. Lit. 3.

Clerk convict. Villain.

Perk. §. 48, 51.

For more as to this Head, see before, p. 207.

(H) Of naming the Grantee.

Regularly it is requisite that the Grantee be named by his Names of Baptism and Surname; and so it is most safe; and special heed must be taken to the Name of Baptism, for that a Man cannot have two or more Names of Baptism, as he may of Surnames. Co. Lit. 3.

And yet in some Cases, tho' the Name be mistaken the Grant is good; as if a Grant be to J. S. and Em his Wife, and her Name is Emelin, (Bro. Nofme 9.); or a Grant is made to Alfrid Fitz-James, by the Name of Etheldred Fitz-James, (Bro. Confirmation 30.); or a Grant be to Robert Earl of Pembroke, where his Name is Henry; or to George Bishop of Norwich, where his Name is John, (6 Co. 65. 27 Ed. 3. 85.); or a Grant be to a Mayor and Commonalty, or a Dean and Chapter, and Mayor or Dean is not named by his proper Name, (Co. Lit. 3.); or a Grant be to J. S. Wife of W. S. where she is Sole: All these and such like Grants are good; for in this Case the Rule doth hold utile per inutile non vitiatur. (Dyer 119.) And if one be baptized by one Name, and after confirmed by another, yet a Grant to him by his first is good; and so also some think of a Grant to him by his second Name; sed Quere of this. Also when a Bastard has got a Name by Reputation, a Grant may be made to him by that Name, and it is good. Co. Lit. 3.

If a Grant be made to W. at Stile, by the Name of W. at Gappe; this is a good Grant notwithstanding this Mistake.

But where a Grant intends to describe the Person of the Grantee by his proper Name, and omits or mistakes his Christian Name or Surname; in this Case for the most part the Grant is void, unless there be some special Matter to help it, as in the Case before. And yet if the Grant does not intend to describe the Grantee by his known Name, but by some other Matter, there it may be good by a certain Description of the Person, without either Surname or Name of Baptism. And therefore a Grant to the Wife of J. S. primogenito filio, or the second Son, or to the youngest Son, or seniori puero, or omnibus filiis, or filiabus J. S. or omnibus liberis J. S. or omnibus exitibus J. S. or to the right Heirs of J. S. or to the next of Blood of J. S. In these Cases Grants made to these Persons in these Words are good, for the Person is certainly enough described. And if a Lease be made to J. S. for Life, the Remainder to him that shall come first to Paul's such a Day, or to him that J. S. shall name in three Days; if in these Cases any one comes to Paul's that Day, or be named by J. S. within three Days, and the particular Estate so long continues, this is a good Grant of the Remainder. Id certum est quod certum reddi potest. But if a Grant be made in these Words, viz. To four of the Parishioners of Dale; or Deo & Ecclesie de D. or to two of the Sons of J. S. and he has many Sons; or to J. S. or W. S. in the Disjunctive: These and such like Grants as these are utterly void for Incertainty. And if a Gift or Grant of Goods be to the Parishioners of Dale in these Words, it seems this is good: But if a Grant or Gift of Land be made to them by these Words, it seems this is void. And also it is of a Grant of Goods to the Churchwardens of the Parish; this is held to be good; but otherwise it is of a Grant of Lands to them. A Bastard is capable by that Name whereby he is usually called, and therefore a Grant to him by that Name is good. And a right Heir, or one that shall be the first Issue of J. S. that has no Child, is capable of a Remainder by that Name, but of Land in Possession he is not capable by that Name. And a Bastard, as the reputed Son of J. S. may take by a Grant to J. S. and his Issue. A Bishop may take by the Name of a Bishop without any other Name; but if a Grant be made to the Parishioners or Inhabitants of Dale, or probis hominibus de Dale, or to the Commoners of such a Waste, or to the Lord and his Tenants bond and free; these are not good Grants, for although these Persons are capable, yet they are not capable by these Names. 9 Ed. 4. 43. Fitz. Grant 23. Co. Lit. 3. Perk. §. 52, 54, 55, 56. Bro. Grant 65. Done 17, 31. Dyer 337.

If there be two Grantees, and one of them takes by the Deed, it is sufficient; but if the Grant be to one that is no Party to the Deed, and not to the Grantee himself, in this Case although the Grantee and he to whom the Grant is made be capable, and never so well described by their Names, yet is the Grant void; for no Grant can be made but to him that is Party to the Deed, except it be by way of Remainder: and therefore if a Man makes a Lease for Term of Life, and after the Lessor grants to a Stranger, that the Tenant for Life shall have the Land to him and his Heirs; this Grant is void. Et sic de similibus. And yet it seems in some Cases, that if one of the Grantees be Party to the Deed, that another Grantee that is no Party to the Deed may take with him; and therefore the Case was, Robert gave the Reversion of Lands which Agnes his Wife held for her Life to Stephen de la Moore, Habendum post mortem dictæ Agnetis in liberum maritagium cum Johanna filia ejusdem Roberti: In this Case it was adjudged, that although Joan was not named before the Habendum, yet that she should take in Tail with her Husband. Doct. & Stud. 94. Co. 15. Co. Lit. 21, 231. 5 E. 3. 17.

For more concerning naming the Grantee, see before, p. 212.

(I) Of the Power of Grantees where the Grant is for the Benefit of others.

ON a Grant made to the Warden and Assistants of S. for the Benefit of the Inhabitants, for Ease of Taxes and Relief of the Poor, it was decreed, that they should not let or make any Leases of the Land without the Consent of the major Part of the Inhabitants of the Place, it being for their Benefit in general. Chan. Ca. 269, 270.

(K) Of the Things granted.

AS to Things granted observe these Things:

First, That the Thing whereof the Grant is made be grantable, and that both in respect of the Nature of the Thing itself, and also of his Estate that grants it; for in some Cases although the Thing for the Quality of it be grantable, yet in respect of the Estate and Property that the Owner has in it, it is not grantable.

Secondly, That if it be by Deed, it be sufficiently distinguished and named.

Amongst Things that are grantable, some are grantable de novo, and in their first Creation, but not transmissible nor assignable afterwards.

And some are grantable at first in their original Creation, and assignable over afterwards from Man to Man in infinitum.

All Things that may be granted by Fine, and whereof a Fine may be levied, may be granted over from Man to Man.

Things in Livery.

All Things that are before observed to be grantable by or without Deed, are grantable over from Man to Man: And therefore all corporeal and immoveable Things that lie in Livery, as Manors, Messuages, Cottages, Lands, Meadows, Pastures, Woods, and the like, are grantable in Fee-simple for Life or Years at first, and assignable over again at the Pleasure of the Grantee.

Also Trees and Emblements are grantable. And a Man may grant the Vesture or Herbage, i. e. the Grass of his Ground, and not the Ground itself.

And a Man that is seised in Fee of a House, may give or sell the Timber, Stone, &c. of the House, and the Donee or Grantee may take after the Death of the Donor. Bro. Done 10.

In Grant. Rents, Services.

Also all incorporeal Things that lie in Grant, as Rents, Services, and the like, are grantable over in Fee-simple, for Life or Years; and therefore Rents or Services reserved upon any Estate, and Rents granted out of Land, are grantable over in infinitum. And if a Man has a Rent reserved on a particular Estate, he may grant over Parcel of it.

But

But a Rent or Service suspended cannot be granted. Neither can a Man grant a Rent issuing out of a Rent. If a Rent be granted to me, I may grant it over to a Stranger before I be seised of it, and this Grant is void. But an Annuity it seems is not grantable over after the first Creation of it. And yet if an Annuity be granted to J. S. and his Assigns pro consilio, it seems this Annuity is grantable over. Perk. §. 91, 87, 101, 103. Bro. Grant 3. 3 H. 6. 20. 9 H. 6. 12. Fitz. Grant 145. Co. Lit. 144.

Advowsons are grantable in Fee-simple for Life or Years from Man to Man in infinitum. Advowsons; Also the Presentation to a Church before the Church is void, is grantable: But when the Church is void, that Turn is not grantable, for then it is in the Nature of a Thing in Action.

Also Rectories and Tithes, and Portions of Tithes and Pensions, are grantable from Man to Man in infinitum. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 7. Perk. §. 90.

Reversions and Remainders are grantable from Man to Man in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years. Reversions and Remainders.

And if I have a Tenant for Life of three Houses, I may grant the Reversion of two of them.

And if I have the Reversion of three Houses and four Acres of Land, I may grant the Reversion of two Houses and of two Acres of Land.

And if a Tenant in Tail be of an Acre of Land, the Remainder to his right Heirs, he may grant over this Remainder by itself; and yet it is such a Thing as the Tenant in Tail himself may bar by a Common Recovery.

But if a Grant be of Land to J. S. for Years, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. D. and J. D. is living; this Remainder is not grantable so long as J. D. lives. Perk. §. 73, 87, 88.

Common of Pasture of Turbary, of Fishing, or of Estovers, are grantable in Fee, for Life Common; or Years from Man to Man in infinitum. Perk. §. 103.

And yet if a Common in Gros and without Number be granted to a Man and his Heirs, this is not grantable over to another Man; but if Common for a certain Number of Beasts be so granted, the Law is otherwise; and that this is grantable over in Case where the first Grant is to the Grantee only, and not the Grantee and his Assigns. Per two Judges against one, H. 16 Jac. B. R.

Offices are grantable at first; but the great judicial Offices of the Kingdom, as the Offices of the Lord Keeper, Chief Justices or Chief Baron, or of other of the Justices and Barons, and such like, are not grantable over to others, neither may they be executed by Deputies. But the Sheriff's Office, although it be not grantable over, yet it may be executed by Deputy. Perk. §. 101. The Reversion of an Office is not grantable by a Subject as it is by the King, yet a Subject may grant an Office Habendum after the Death of the present Officer; and this is good. Per Lord Keeper and two Chief Justices, M. 5 Car. in Canc. The inferior Offices also that are Offices of Trust, especially if they concern the Person of the Grantor, howsoever they are grantable at first, yet are they not grantable over by the Officer to any other, unless they be granted to them and their Assigns; and of this Sort are Offices of Steward, Bailiff, Receiver, Sewer, Chamberlain, Carver, and the like; neither may these be executed by Deputy but where the Grant is so. Co. Lit. 233. Perk. §. 101.

An Office not grantable by Parol, especially for Life. Ld. Raym. 159.

Licences and Authorities are grantable at first for the Lives of the Parties, or for Years; Licences, Authorities, but the Grantees of them cannot assign them over. And therefore if Power be given to me to make an Award or Livery of Seisin, I may not grant over this Power to another. And if Licence be granted to me to walk in another Man's Garden, or to go through another Man's Ground, I may not give or grant this to another. 12 H. 7. 25. 13 H. 7. 13.

A bare Possibility of an Interest which is uncertain, is not grantable; and therefore if one has a Term of Years in Land, and by his Will devises it to J. S. for his Life, and afterwards to me for the Residue of the Years; or devises it to J. S. if he lives so long as the Term shall last, and if he dies before the Term ends, the Remainder to me: In these Cases so long as J. S. lives, I cannot grant over this Possibility. So if a Lease be made to me and my Wife for Life, the Remainder to the Survivor of us, I may not grant this Remainder over to another Man; but such a Possibility being coupled with some present Interest, is grantable over; and therefore if A. has four Houses in Execution upon a Statute, and by Course of Time it will endure thirteen Years, and after two of the Houses are evicted by Elegit for fifteen Years; in this Case he that has this Execution upon the Statute may assign over his Interest in these two Houses: For after the Execution by the Elegit is satisfied, A. shall have the two Houses again until he be satisfied. The Lord cannot cannot grant the Wardship of the Heir if his Tenant is living. 4 Co. 66. 5 Co. 24. 10 Co. 51. Dyer 244. Perk. §. 90.

Incidents.

These Things that are inseparably incident to others, are not grantable without the Thing to which they are so incident and belonging; and therefore a Court Baron, which is evermore incident to a Manor, is not grantable without the Manor itself; Common appendant to Land is not grantable without the Land itself to which it belongs; and Common of Estovers appendant to a House is not grantable without the House itself to which it belongs. 1 Ed. 4. 10. 5 H. 7. 7. Perk. §. 104.

Suspended Things.

A Rent-Service, or other Thing, whilst it is wholly in Suspence, is not grantable; and therefore if the Lord disseises the Tenant, or the Tenant infeoffs the Lord upon Condition, the Lord cannot grant over the Seigniorship during this Suspension. But if one has a Rent in Fee out of my Land, and he purchases the same Land for Life or Years; in this Case the Rent is grantable even whilst the Estate of the Land continues. So if the Tenant makes a Lease for Years or Life of the Tenancy to the Lord; in this Case the Lord may grant the Seigniorship notwithstanding. And yet if the Tenant makes a Lease to another Man for Life, and the Lord grants the Seigniorship to his Tenant for Life in Fee; in this Case the Grantee of the Seigniorship cannot grant it over, because it was never in esse. 16 H. 7. 4. Co. Lit. 314. Bro. Grant 173. Perk. §. 83, 89.

Franchises.

Franchises, as Views of Frankpledge, Perquisites of Courts Leet, Conusance of Pleas, Fairs, Markets, Goods of Felons, Waifs, Estrays, Hundreds, Ferries, or Passages, Warrens, and the like, are grantable over from Man to Man in Fee, for Life or Years in infinitum.

Things in Action.

Things in Action, and Things of that Nature, as Causes of Suit, Rights and Titles of Entry, are not grantable over to Strangers but in special Cases; and therefore if a Man has disseised me of my Land, or taken away my Goods, I may not grant over this Land or these Goods until I have Seisin of them again. Neither can I grant the Suit which the Law gives to me for my Relief in these Cases to another Man. So if I make a Feoffment to another Man, on Condition that if I do such a Thing I shall have the Land again; in this Case I may not before or after the Time of Performance of the Condition grant over the Condition to another. But all these Things I may release to the Parties themselves: For it is a Maxim in Law, That every Right, Title or Interest in presenti or in futuro, by the joint Act of all them that may claim any such Right, Title or Interest, may be barred or extinguished. 5 Co. 24. 6 Co. 50. 10 Co. 48. Co. Lit. 214. Dyer 241. Perk. §. 86, 87, 85. Bro. Done 27, 24, 48.

And in some Cases a Grantee of a Reversion may take Advantage of a Condition annexed to an Estate for Life or Years. If a Man owes me Money on an Obligation, or the like, I cannot grant this Debt to another: But I may grant a Letter of Attorney to another Man to sue for it and receive it, or I may grant the Writing itself to another, and he may cancel it, or give it to the Obligor. Co. Lit. 232. Perk. §. 86.

A Presentation to a Church after the Church is become void, is not grantable; for it is in the Nature of a Thing in Action. Dyer 283.

And if a Man takes my Goods from me, or from another Man in whose Hands they are; or I buy Goods of another Man, and suffer them in his Possession, and a Stranger takes them from him; in these Cases I may give the Goods to the Trespassor, because the Property of them is still in me. Perk. §. 92. Fitz. Done 3. 7.

Personal Things.

Trusts and Confidences, which are personal Things for the most part, are not grantable over to others. And hence it is also that Offices of Trust and Confidence are not grantable over but in some special Cases where they are granted to a Man and his Assigns, or where they are granted to a Man and his Heirs. Perk. §. 99. Plow. 379.

Intire Thing.

Some Things are so entire that they cannot be severed by Grant; and therefore if a Man holds three Acres of Land of me at twelve Pence Rent, and I grant the Services of the third Acre; this is void, and he shall have all or none, for I cannot sever the Tenure. But if a Man holds Land of me by Homage, Fealty, Escuage, and a certain Rent; in this Case I may grant the Rent, and keep the Seigniorship. Fitz. Grant 19, 79.

Chattels real and personal.

All Chattels real and personal regularly are grantable from Man to Man in infinitum, as Leases for Years, be they present or future, Trees, Oxen, Horses, Plate, Household-Stuff, and the like. Also Trees, Grass, and Corn growing and standing upon the Ground, Fruit upon the Trees, Wool upon the Sheep's Back, is grantable. Dyer 58, 305. Plow. 142, 147. Perk. §. 90, 91.

If a Man sells me ten Loads of Wood, in his Wood to be taken by his Assignment; or sells me three Acres of Wood towards the North Side of the Wood; by this Grant in these Words I have such an Interest as is grantable over. 5 Co. 24.

If I make a Lease by Deed of a House to another, and therein it is agreed between us, that if the Rent be not paid me by such a Time, I shall enter into the House, and take and and sell the Goods there as my own to pay the Rent; it seems this is a good Grant of the Goods, and that I may do according to the Agreement.

And if one that holds Land of me grants to me by Deed indented, that I shall distrain for my Service in all his Land; this is a good Grant. Fitz. Bar. 280.

A Man may give or grant Money; as if I deliver one Money, on Condition that if he Money affures me of such Land he shall have it, otherwise that he shall deliver it to me again; in this Case if he makes the Assurance he shall have the Money, if not, I may have an Account for it. Fitz. Grant 6. Fitz. Done 11.

Such Things as are Fera naturæ; as Conies, Hares, Deer, and such like, are not grant-Fera naturæ able at all. Bro. Done 34.

A Parson of a Church may grant his Tithes for Years, and yet they are not in him. Tithes. Perk. §. 90.

A Man may give or grant his Deeds, i. e. the Parchment, Paper and Wax to another at Deeds. his Pleasure, and the Grantee may keep or cancel them; and therefore if a Man has an Obligation, he may give or grant it away, and so sever the Debt and it. So Tenant in Fee-simple may give or grant away the Deeds of his Land, and the Executor in the first Case, and the Heir in the last Case, has no Remedy. But a Tenant in Tail of Land cannot give or grant any of the Deeds belonging to the Land intailed, no more than the Land itself. Co. Lit. 232. Trin. 38 Eliz. B. R. 25 H. 8. 5. 1 H. 7. Dove's Case. 1 H. 4. 31. Fitz. Bar. 179.

One may give or grant Apparel; and it is said if one makes Apparel for another, and Apparel put it upon him to use and wear, this is a Gift or Grant of the Apparel itself.

If one grants to another all the Wool of his Sheep for seven Years; this is a good Grant. Wool. Perk. §. 90.

If one being a Parson gives to another all the Wool he shall have for Tithes the next Year; this is a good Grant. Fitz. Grant 40.

If one grants to another his Horse or his Cow in the Disjunctive; this is a good Grant Horse, Cow. notwithstanding this Incertainty, and the Donee shall have Election, and by that make the Grant good. Bro. Done 19.

A Man possessed of Land for a Term of two thousand Years, granted the Lands to D. A Term without mentioning any Term, to the Use of another for Life, &c. The Grant and Limitation is void for Uncertainty, it not saying, what Estate or Term was granted to D. 2 Vern. 684.

The Plaintiff's Father was indebted to the Defendant, and by Deed granted him the Guardianship; Guardianship of his Children, with a Covenant not to revoke the Grant: And now the Plaintiff an Infant brought his Bill to revoke it; but in Regard there was a just Debt owing to the Defendant the Guardian from the Father, the Court declared they would not restrain him from receiving the Rents and Profits of the Estate, but only from abusing the Infant's Person. 1 Vern. 442.

The Statute 12 Car. 2. c. 24. is, That the Father may by Deed grant the Guardianship of his Children from Time to Time.

For more concerning Things granted, see before, p. 215.

(L) Of the Estate, Property and Possession of the Grantor.

ANY Estate that a Man has in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, in any Lands, &c. or any Rent or Profit Apprender out of the same, is grantable from Man to Man in infinitum. And he that has any such Estate of any Lands, may charge it with any Rent or Profit to be taken out of it as long as the Estate of the Land does last; but an Estate at Will is not grantable over.

And if an Estate be made to a Man and his Heirs without the Word Assigns, yet he may assign it at his Pleasure, for Assigns is included within Heirs.

An Interesse Termini, i. e. a Lease for Years to commence in futuro, is grantable before the Term begins, whether it be a Lease of the Land itself, or any Rent or other Profit out of it. 22 Ed. 4. 37. Perk. §. 91.

The Interest or Estate that a Man has by Extent is assignable from Man to Man at Pleasure. 4 Co. 64.

The Reversion upon an Estate-tail is grantable; and yet the Tenant in Tail in Possession, by the suffering of a Common Recovery, may bar him in Reversion of any Fruit of it. 6 Co. Curson's Case. Co. Altonwood's Case.

If an Estate be made of Land upon Condition; as if A. makes a Feoffment to B. on Condition that if A. pays 20*l.* he shall have the Land again: In this Case A. and B. together may at any Time before the Performance of the Condition join together and grant this Land

Land, or charge it with any Rent, &c. and this will be good; for it is a Maxim in Law, Fee-simple Land may be charged one way or other. And in this Case B. may grant over his Estate alone, but it will be subject to the Condition. And if B. grants a Rent out of the Land to a Stranger, and after the Condition is performed, and the Feoffor enters; in this Case he shall avoid the Rent. But in this Case A. cannot grant, for he has nothing but a Possibility. Co. 147. 10 Co. 48, 49. Lit. Chap. Confirmation.

If one infeoffs divers to the Use of his Son and Heir upon Condition, and before the Time of Performance of the Condition the Father and Son join to grant or charge the Land; this is a good Grant or Charge. Co. 14.

If the Tenant in Tail, and he that is next in Remainder in Fee join in the Grant of a Rent-charge in Fee, and after the Tenant in Tail dies without Issue; in this Case this is a good Grant and Charge against him in Remainder. And if A. bargains and sells Land to B. by Indenture, and before Inrolment they join to grant a Rent-charge to C. by Deed; this is a good Charge and Grant, whether there be any Inrolment or not. And so if a Donor and Donee in Tail grant a Rent-charge out of the Land, and then the Donee dies without Issue; in this Case the Grant is good to bind the Donor. Co. Lit. 45. 10 Co. 48, 49.

If Land be granted to two Men, and to the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten; in this Case altho' they have several Inheritances after their Death, yet neither of them can grant away his Estate after his Life, for they are divided only in Supposition of Law. Co. Lit. 182.

One Coparcener of a Seignior may grant his Part to a Stranger. Perk. §. 73.

If two Jointenants be of a Plough-Land, and one of them grants to a Stranger Common of Pasture for Beasts without Number to be taken in the same Land; this is void. Perk. §. 103.

If two Jointenants be of a Reversion, and one of them grants the Whole: this is void for a Moiety. If a Man grants or charges that which is none of his, and that wherein he has no Property, it being in the Grantee or a Stranger; the Grant is void. And therefore if a Man grants a Rent-charge out of the Manor of Dale, or grants a Reversion of Land, and in Truth the Grantor has nothing in the Manor of Dale, or in the Land; in this Case the Grant is void. And altho' the Grantor afterwards purchases the Manor, or the Land, yet this will not make the Grant good. But if the Grant be by Fine, or by Indenture, there in some Cases it shall be good by way of Estoppel. And altho' the Party recites that it is his own, yet this will not mend the Case: And therefore if a Man recites that he has a Rent of 10 l. a Year, and then 5 l. a Year, Parcel of it; in this Case, if he has no such Rent, the Grant is void. Perk. §. 80, 65. Dyer 10, 33.

A Shepherd, Bailiff or Parker, cannot give or grant away the Goods of his Master without Authority. And yet it seems the Servant of a Taverner or Mercer may give or grant his Master's Wine or Wares. And if a Wife gives or grants the Goods of her Husband; this is a good Grant or Gift until the Husband disagrees to it, and by his Agreement it is made good for ever. Bro. Done 56. 4.

If a Man has a Lease for Years of Land, and makes a Lease for Life of it, or charges it for longer Time than the Lease for Years does last; in this the Grant is good for so long as the Lease for Years does last, and no longer. But if he makes a Lease for Life and gives Livery of Seisin, he forfeits his Estate. Plow. 524, 525.

Regularly a Man cannot grant or charge that which is not in his own Possession, altho' he has a Right to it: And therefore if a Man be disseised of his Land, and before he has entered into or recovered the Land, he grants or gives the Land, or his Right to the Land, to a Stranger, or grants a Rent-charge out of the Land to a Stranger; in these Cases the Grants are not good. And yet such Grants by Fine may be good by way of Estoppel; and by a Release also the Right may be extinct. Co. Lit. 214. Perk. §. 65, 86.

But if one that has a Reversion upon an Estate for Life grants a Rent issuing out of this Land; the Grant is good, and the Charge shall fasten upon the Land after the Estate of the Tenant for Life is ended. And if a Man grants Common, or Rent, notwithstanding that a Stranger take the Rent, or use the Common at the Time of the Grant, yet this Grant is good, for a Man cannot be out of Possession of these Things but at his Pleasure. Perk. §. 92, 98. Co. Lit. 46.

And if a Lease for Years be made to me, I may grant away my Estate before my Entry; and if the Lease be to begin at a Day to come, I may assign over my Interest before the Day comes; for in this Case the Interest is in me from the Time of making the Lease. Hil. 18 fac. B. R. per two Justices.

Also I may give or sell my Goods that I have not in Possession; and therefore if a Man takes my Goods out of mine or another Man's Possession, I may afterwards give or grant these Goods to him or another Man; and this Grant or Gift is good. Perk. §. 92, 93. Fitz. Done 3. Bro. Done 13. Dyer 30, 90. 4 Co. 62, 63.

A Lessor

A Lessor cannot give or grant the Trees growing on the Ground of his Lessee for Life or Years without the Licence of the Lessee, except they be first cut down by the Lessee, or some other, for then he may. And if there be Lessee for Life, and the Lessor gives the Trees growing on the Ground, and after the Lessee for Life dies; in this Case the Donee cannot take them, because at the Time of the Gift a Property of them was in the Lessee. But if a Tenant in Fee-simple gives or grants the Houses standing, or Trees growing on the Ground he has in Possession; in this Case the Grantee or Donee may take them after the Death of the Grantor, and that altho' they be not cut or taken down before his Death. And yet if the Tenant in Tail gives or grants the Trees growing upon his intailed Land, and the Donor dies before the Trees be cut; in this Case the Donee or Grantee cannot cut them afterwards. However if such a Tenant in Tail gives or grants his Emblements of Corn growing on the Ground, the Donee may cut and take them after the Death of the Tenant in Tail. And if the Tenant in Tail gives or grants his Trees, and dies before they be cut, and afterwards, before the Issue in Tail enters into the Land, the Donee or Grantee cuts them and takes them away; in this Case the Issue in Tail can bring no Action of Trespass against the Donee or Grantee for the Trees. But perhaps if the Trees be not removed off the Ground, he may take them. Dyer 305. 20 H. 6. 22. Perk. §. 59. 11 Co. 50.

If two Coparceners be of an Advowson, and the one presents, and then he grants the next Presentation; this is a good Grant, but by this Grant passes the next he has to grant, for his Companion must have the next: So if one be seised in Fee of an Advowson, and he has a Wife, and he grants the third Presentation; this is a good Grant, but it shall be taken for the third he may grant, which is the fourth, for the Wife is to have the third for her Dower. Dyer 35. 15 H. 7.

(M) The Words of a Grant.

DEDI & Concessi are the most apt Words for all Kinds of Grants, yet it may be by other Words, and the Grant as good as by those Words.

The best way in Grants is to grant by Words of present Time in the present Tense, as well as in the preterperfect Tense.

But a Grant by Words of the preterperfect Tense only, as by Dedi & Concessi only without Words of the present Tense, is good. 35 H. 6. 11.

The Words give and grant in a Deed of Things which lie in Grant, amount to a Grant, a Feoffment, a Gift, a Release, a Confirmation or Surrender at the Election of the Party, and may be pleaded as a Grant, as a Release, or a Confirmation, at his Election. Co. Lit. 301. b. 2 Saund. 96, 7.

For more concerning this Head, see before, p. 225.

A Question, with Sir Jeffery Palmer's Opinion.

S I R,

I conceive that Care ought to be taken in a Conveyance, of what Nature soever it be, that there be not therein (given and granted) for they imply a general Warranty, and shall not be qualified by the special Warranty following, as hath of late been thrice adjudged. H. T.

Give implies a personal Warranty, and so is not always used. The Word Grant in a Lease for Years is a Covenant in Law, or (as you may call it) a general Warranty, if not qualified by a Covenant or Warranty in Fait; but if there be a Covenant or Warranty in Fait, then it is restrained to the Words of the Covenant subsequent.

But in an Estate of Inheritance where the Fee passeth, there the Word Grant is neither a Covenant in Law nor Warranty; for if it should be a Covenant in Law or Warranty in itself, it would be there restrained and qualified by the Warranty or Covenant in Fait.

And a Deed to pass an Inheritance where Common is, cannot be without it; for if it be Common in Grofs it cannot pass by the Livery, but must pass by the Word Grant; and I never yet saw a Feoffment without it. Jeffery Palmer.

(N) Of

(N) Of naming and describing the Thing granted; and therein of Election.

BY the Grant of an Acre of Land, or of any other Thing by the Name whereby it is called, the Reversion of that Thing, if the Grantor have no more than a Reversion, will pass, and this Mistake will not hurt. But it is not so e converso. 4 Co. 122. Perk. §. 114, 116. 10 Co. 106, 107. 11 Co. 47.

And yet some have said, if one grants a Thing in Possession by the Name of the Reversion of the Thing, this is good to pass the Possession. Quod non est lex. Plow. 190. For if one makes a Lease for Years, and before the Lessee enters, the Lessor grants the Land by the Name of the Reversion or the Land; this Grant is void. If one makes a Lease for Life of the Demesnes of a Manor, rendering Rent, and after he grants the Manor by the Name of the Manor; this is a good Grant for the Reversion of the Demesnes as well as for the Residue of the Manor. But if one grants Common by the Name of the Reversion of the Common, it seems this is not good. And yet if one has Common, and grants it for Life, and during that Estate he grants the Common by the Name of totam illam communiam, &c. Some hold this Grant to be good. Co. Lit. 46. vide 2 Co. Lane's Case.

Any Thing may be granted by the Name whereby it is and has been usually called of latter Times within nine or ten Years, or thereabouts, altho' it be an improper Name, and not the antient Name of the Thing, but a Name newly gotten. And so a Manor may pass by the Name of a Messuage or Farm, or a Farm or Manor by the Name of a Messuage, if it be so usually called and reputed: So the great Houses in London called Exeter and Dorset Houses may be granted by those Names. 6 Co. 65. 45 E. 3. 6. Bro. Grant 7. Perk. §. 116.

And if a Man grants a Pasture Ground by the Name of a Wood, or a Wood by the Name of a Pasture Ground, and the Things are called by those Names; these are good Grants of those Things. And if one grants by the Name of a Great Field, that which indeed is but a little Close, but it is usually called by the Name of a Great Field; this is a good Grant of this Thing. So if one grants by the Name of a Plough-Land that which in Truth is but an Acre of Land, or grants by the Name of a Manor that which is but a Plough-Land; these Grants are good. And so it seems to be e converso. But if a Man grants a House or a Messuage; by this Grant an Acre of Land will not pass. 14 H. 8. 1. 27 H. 8. 2.

By the Grant of Services a Rent reserved upon an Estate-tail will pass. Co. Lit. 150.

If a Man makes a Lease of a House to another for Years, and the Lessee divides it and makes two Houses of it, and after the Lessor grants the Reversion of it by the Name of one House; this is a good Grant to pass it. And if one leases three Houses to three several Men at several Times, and they divide them into twenty-nine Tenements and Households in them all; and the first Lessor grants them by the Name of three Messuages; this is a good Grant to pass them all. But if he grants by the Name of fifteen Messuages or Tenements only, this is good for no more but for fifteen of the subdivided Tenements. Per Cur' B. R. M. 7 Jac.

If one recites that he has a Rent-charge issuing out of Blackacre and Whiteacre, and then grants the same Rent, and in Truth it issues out of Blackacre only; or if he recites that it issues out of one Acre when in Truth it issues out of both; in both these Cases the Grant is good notwithstanding these Mistakes. Perk. §. 72.

If one be Patron of the Church of St. Peter and Paul in D. and he grants the next Presentation of the Church of St. Peter, or of the Church of St. Paul; these are void Grants to pass the Presentation, Bro. Grant 12.

If one grants a Rent out of Whiteacre by the Name of a Rent out of Blackacre; this Grant is void as to charge Whiteacre. Perk. §. 79.

If one has a Manor called Steeple Lavington, and he grants it by the Name of West Lavington, alias Steeple Lavington, by the Alias, especially if the Grant says lying in Lavington, and the Manor of Steeple Lavington lies in that Parish, and the Grantor hath no other Land there, it may be good. Per C. J. Hutton and Yelverton, M. 3 Car. C. B. in Edward Crew's Case.

If one grants all his Lands which he has in D. in this Manner, All my Lands in D. which I had of the Grant of J. S. this is a good Grant of all his Lands in D. altho' he had them not of the Grant of J. S. but of the Grant of another: But if the Words be, All my Lands which I had by the Grant of J. S. in D. in this Case the Grant is not good to carry any other Lands in D. but such as he had of the Grant of J. S. Agreed Mic. 2 Jac. in Brown's Case.

So if one grants in this Manner, All my Manor of Sale in Dale which I had by Descent; and in Truth he had it not by Descent but by Purchase; this is a good Grant of the Manor.

Manor. So if one grant all his Lands in Dale, and says no more; this is a good Grant to pass all his Lands there. But if one grants in this Manner, All my Lands in Dale which I had by Descent from my Father; and in Truth he had them not by Descent but by Purchase; this Grant is void, and will not pass those Lands. Plow. 169, 395. So was the Opinion of C. J. Popham, 2 Jac. B. R.

So if I grant in this Manner, All my Lands that I had by the Attainder of J. S. and in Truth I had no Land by that Means; this Grant is void. Dyer 87.

And if I grant after this Manner, All my Lands in B. in the Tenure of D. which I had of the Gift of J. S. and in Truth it lies in B. and is in the Tenure of D. but it was not purchased of J. S. this is a good Grant to pass the Land. Adjudged Mic. 2 Jac. Brown's Case.

If a Parish lies in two Counties, viz. Berks and Wilts, and one grants in this Manner, All his Close called Callis in the Parish of Hurst in the County of Berks; and in Truth the Close lies in the County of Wilts; this is a good Grant to pass the Close. But if one grants in this Manner, All his Houses in the Parish of St. Buttolph's extra Aldgate, late in the Tenure of R. where in Truth he has no Houses there, but he has some Houses in St. Buttolph's extra Aldersgate; this is a void Grant. And yet if the Grant be in this Manner, All that my House in the Occupation of J. S. in St. Andrew's Parish; whereas in Truth it is in the Parish of K. but in the Occupation of J. S. this Grant is good to pass the House. But if it be thus, All that my House in St. Andrew's Parish in Holborn, in the Occupation of J. S. and in Truth it is in another Parish, but in his Occupation; this Grant is not good to pass the House. Dyer 299. 3 Co. 10.

A. by Deed granted his Hundred and Manor of Odybam in Hampshire, and his Manor of Working in Surry, and all his Manors, Lands and Premises in Odybam and Working aforesaid; whereupon the Question was, Whether the Grantor's Manor of Harilerow, which was within the Hundred of Odybam, but not within the Manor of Odybam or Working, should pass by this Deed. And per Lord Chancellor King, An Hundred is only a Franchise consisting of a Court called the Hundred Court, and probably has the Return of Writs, and by such Grant the Franchise passes, but not all the Grantor's Lands; wherefore by the Word (Hundred) the Manor of Harilerow not being named in the Grant, does not pass. 2 Williams 399, 400.

If one grants in this Manner, My Manor of Dale which appeareth by Office found to be of the Value of 10l. per Ann. and in Truth in the Office it is found at 20l. per Ann. this Grant is good notwithstanding this Misprision. Per Tanfield, Hil. 2 Jac. B. R.

If one grants in this Manner, All my Manor of W. late Parcel of the Possession of the Abbot of S. and late in the Possession of K. and in Truth it was never in the Possession of K. this Grant is good notwithstanding. But if the Grant be thus, Omnia illa terras, &c. in tenura J. S. jacen' in W. nuper prioratui de S. spectan'; and in Truth the Land lies in S. and not in W. this is no good Grant to pass the Lands in S. And if the Lands do lie in W. but are in the Tenure of J. D. and not in the Tenure of J. S. the Grant is void to pass the Lands in the Occupation of J. S. Pasch. 7 Jac. B. R. 2 Co. 32.

If one purchases Lands of J. S. in T. and has no other Land there, and he grants his Land in T. late the Land of R. S. or late the Land of S. and mistakes or omits the Christian Name; this Grant is good notwithstanding this Mistake. And so also it is where there is a Blank left for the Christian Name. And if in this Case he grants all his Land in T. and says no more; this is a good Grant to pass the Land. And if one grants all his Lands in D. called N. which were the Lands of J. S. this is a good Grant to pass the Lands called N. tho' they were never the Lands of J. S. But if the Grant be of all his Lands in D. which were the Lands of J. S. by this none but those Lands that were the Lands of J. S. will pass. Dyer 376. Bro. Grant 92.

If one grants in this Manner, All my Meadow in D. containing ten Acres; whereas in Truth his Meadow there contains twenty Acres; this is a good Grant for the whole twenty Acres. So if one grants thus, All those forty-seven Acres of Land by the Sleight, whereof fifteen lie in D. twenty in E. and twenty-five in F. and in Truth all of them lie in F. and none of them in D. or E. this is a good Grant to carry the whole forty-seven Acres. Dyer 80.

If one grants twenty Loads of Wood, and says in this Grant, for which twenty Loads of Wood he had sixteen Loads by the Grant of his Father J. S. and in Truth J. S. did not grant any Wood to him at all, or did not grant unto him sixteen Loads only; this is a good Grant of the twenty Loads of Wood notwithstanding this false Recital. Bro. Grant 69.

If one grants his Manor of D. and does not say in what Town or Towns it lies; this is a good Grant. But it is best to say in what Towns the Manor does lie; for if it lies in divers Places (as it may) and any of the Places into which it goes be omitted, and the Rest are set down, no Part of the Manor lying in the Town that is not expressed will pass. Bro. Grant 53. 7 H. 4. 14.

If one grants a Manor, and that which is but one Manor, by the Name of the Manor of A. and B. this is a good Grant of the Manor. And so also it is if it be two Manors; as if a Man be seised of the Manors of Ryton and Conder in the County of Salop, and he grants in this Manner, Totum illud manerium de Ryton & Conder cum pertinen. in Com. Salopie; this is a good Grant of both the Manors; otherwise it is in Case of the King. Co. 46.

If one has a Farm of Land, Meadow, &c. by Lease called Hodges, lying within the Parishes of St. Stephen and St. Peter in St. Albans; and he reciting the said Lease, grants to C. his Term and Interest in the House, Lands, &c. called Hodges in the Parish of St. Peter in St. Albans; this Grant is good only for so much as lies in the Parish of St. Peter, and not for that which lies in St. Stephen's. But if he grants the Farm, and does not say in what Parish it lies; this is a good Grant of the whole Farm; as in the Case before of a Manor that lies in divers Parishes. And if in the Case here the Farm lies within the Parish of St. Peter only, the Grant is good for the whole Farm. If one recites that whereas he hath such Lands by Forfeiture, or whereas such a one has an Estate of his Land, or whereas the Grantee hath paid him 10*l.* or done him such Service, or the like, and these Things are not true, and afterwards he grants the Land by apt Words; this Mistake in these Cases will not hurt the Grant. But otherwise it is in Case of the King in some of these Cases. Per Cur. C. B. Int. Plat and Sleep, Pas. 9 Jac. Bro. Grant 53.

If one has a Manor in which he has Parks and Fish-ponds, and he grants the Manor for Life, except the Game and Fish, and after grants the Reversion of the Manor; this is a good Grant of the Game and Fish also. 11 Co. 50.

If a Grant be of Centum libratas terræ, or 50 libratas terræ, or of Centum solidat. terræ; these are good Grants, and hereby passes Land of that Value, and so of more or less. Co. Lit. 5.

If a Grant be of an Acre of Land covered with Water, it is good. Co. Lit. 4.

If a Grant be of a certain Portion of Land or Tithes, or of the fourth Part of Land or Tithes, and there be a sufficient Certainty in the Description of it; this Grant is good. And therefore if the Grant be of the fourth Part of the Tithes and of the Offerings of the Church of St. Peter; this is a good Grant. Dyer 84. 34 Ed. 3.

If one seised of an Advowson in Fee, grants to J. S. that as often as the Church is void he shall name the Clerk to the Grantor, and he shall present him to the Ordinary; this is a good Grant of the Advowson. Bro. Grant 101, 121.

A Reversion may be granted by the Name of a Remainder, or a Remainder by the Name of a Reversion, and such a Grant is good; as if one grants Land to J. S. the Reversion to J. D. this is a good Grant of the Remainder. Dyer 46. Plow. in Hill and Grange's Case.

If one makes a Lease of Land to Husband and Wife for their Lives, and after grants the Reversion of this by the Name of the Reversion of the Land which the Wife holds for Life; this Grant is void. So if one grants to two for Life, and after grants the Reversion of one of them; this is void. Fitz. Grant 63.

Incertainty. A Fulling or Grist Mill may be granted by the Name of a Mill only. 21 Ass. pl. 23.

If one grants in this Manner, All that his Messuage, &c. and all the Lands, Meadows and Pastures thereunto belonging; this is a good Grant, and certain enough to pass all the Lands, Meadows, and Pastures usually occupied therewith. 27 H. 6. 2. Plow. 164. Bro. Lease 55.

If the Lord grants his Manor, by the Name of his Manor with the Reversion of all his Tenants, or by the Name of the Reversion of all his Tenants bond and free which hold for Life or Years, and does not name them by their particular Names; these Grants are good in these Cases, and certain enough. Fitz. Grant 68. Perk. §. 68.

Place. If one grants Land, and says not in what Parish, County or Village it lies; yet if there be any other Matter to describe it, it seems the Grant is good enough, and it may be averred where it lies. But if there be no circumstantial Matter in the Grant to denote and decipher out where it lies, the Grant is void for Incertainty. And therefore if one grants his Manor of Dale, or his Lands in the Occupation of J. S. or his Lands that descended to J. S. or his Lands that belonged to the Priory of S. or the like; these are good Grants, and certain enough. Id certum est quod certum reddi potest. Bro. Grant 53. 9 Co. 47.

If there be a Tenant for Life of three Houses and four Acres of Land, and he in Reversion grant the Reversion of two Houses and of two Acres of this Land; this is a good Grant, and has sufficient Certainty in it. Perk. §. 73.

If a Grant be incertain altogether, and has not sufficient Certainty in it, and cannot be made certain by some Matter ex post facto, it is void. And therefore if there be Lord and and Tenant of three Acres of Land by Fealty, and 12 d. Rent, and the Lord grants the Services of a third Acre to a Stranger; this Grant is merely void. Perk. §. 67.

So if Husband and Wife hold an Acre of Land jointly of J. S. for their Lives, and J. S. grants the Reversion of the Acre of Land which the Husband alone holds for Life; this Grant is void. So if there be Lord and three Jointenants, and the Lord grants the Services of one of them to a Stranger; this Grant is void. Perk. §. 68, 69.

So if one has twenty Tenants that pay him 12 d. a-piece Rent, and he grants 5 s. yearly out of these Rents, and does not say of which Tenants; this Grant is void for Incertainty. 9 H. 6. 12.

So if Conusance of Pleas be granted, and it is not said before whom; this is utterly void. So if one has two Tenements, and grants the Reversion of one of them, and does not say which; this is void for Incertainty. 44 Ed. 3. 17. Bro. Grant 52.

So if one grants Estovers to another, and says not what nor how; this is void. So if one grants me so many of his Trees, or of his Horses, as may be reasonably spared; this Grant is void. And yet if one grants me so many of his Trees as J. S. shall think fit; it seems this Grant is good. Dyer 91.

And if one grants me one hundred Loads of Wood to be taken by the Assignment of the Grantor, or to be taken by the Assignment of J. S. these are good Grants. So if one grants me three Acres of Wood towards the North Side of the Wood; this is a good Grant, and certain enough. 5 Co. 24.

If one grants to one of the Children of J. S. and J. S. has more than one, and he does not describe which he intends; this Grant is void for Incertainty. Bro. Done 311.

If one grants to me a Rent or a Robe, twenty Shillings or forty Shillings, or Common of Pasture or Rent, in the Disjunctive, which is at first very uncertain; yet this Grant may become good; for if I make my Election, or be paid the Rent, or perform the Grant in either Part; the Grant is now become good. 9 Ed. 4. 36. Perk. §. 74.

So if one be seised of two Acres of Land, and he leases them for Life, the Remainder of one of them, and does not say of which, to J. S. in this Case if J. S. makes his Election Election, which Acre he will have, the Grant of the Remainder to him will be good. So it is when a Man has six Horses in his Stable, and he grants to me one of his Horses, but does not say which of them; in this Case I may chuse which I will have; and in these Cases when I have made my Election, and not before, the Grant is good. And if in these Cases the Grantee does not make his Election during his Life, the Grant will never be good. Perk. §. 76.

If one be seised of Land, and leases it for Years, rendring 10 s. Rent, and after he grants a Rent of 10 s. out of this Land to a Stranger; in this Case although there be some Incertainty in the Grant, yet this is a good Grant of a Rent of 10 s. but it shall be taken as a Grant of a new, and not of the old Rent, and therefore shall not take Effect until the particular Estate be ended. Bro. Grant 77.

See before, p. 225.

(O) Of the Commencement and Limitation of the Estate granted.

IN some Cases, although there be in a Grant a good Grantor and a good Grantee, and a Thing granted, and all these are duly and certainly described, yet the Grant may be void for some Fault in some other Thing touching the Grant; as,

First, In the Commencement of the Estate granted.

For if a Man be possessed of a Term of Years, although it be an hundred Years or upwards, and grants to another all the Residue of this Term of Years that shall be to come at the Time of his Death; this Grant is void for Incertainty. And yet if a Man possessed of such a Term in Land, grants the Land to another, To have and to hold to him after the Death of the Grantor for fifty Years, or for two hundred Years; these are good Grants; and in the first Case the Grantee shall have fifty Years, if there be so many to come of the Term of one hundred Years at the Death of the Grantor; and in the last Case the Grantee shall have the Land for the whole one hundred Years, or so many of them as are to come at the Death of the Grantor. Bro. Grant 154. Co. 155. Plow. 520.

So if one grants any Thing that lies in Livery or in Grant, and that is in esse at the Time of the Grant in Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life, and the Estate is to begin at a Day to come; this for the most part is void. However in some Cases the Livery of Seisin will help it. But a Lease for Years to begin in futuro is good enough. Dyer 58. 5 Co. 1.

And if a Lease be made to one for Years, or for Years determinable upon Lives; and after a Lease is made to another of the same Thing, To have and to hold from the End of the former Lease; this is a good Lease, and the Commencement certain enough. So if a Lease be made of Land to one for Life, and after the Reversion thereof is granted to another for Life, cum post mortem vel alio modo vacare contigerit; this is good. Paf. 7 Jac. Dennis's Case.

So if a Lease be made to one for twenty Years, if he lives so long, and after a Lease is made to another, Habendum after the End of the Term granted to the Lessee for twenty Years, to be accounted from the Date of the Deed last made; this is a good Grant for twenty Years after the first Lease ended, and the Words, to be accounted, &c. shall be rejected. 7 Jac. C. D. Cradock's Case.

And if one grants a Rent to me, Habendum from the Time of my full Age for my Life, and I am at full Age at the Time of the Grant; this Grant is good for my Life.

If a Femē Sole has a Lease for Years, and takes a Husband, and then he in Reversion grants the Land to another, Habendum after the Term granted to the Husband, &c. where in Truth it was never granted to the Husband but by an Act of Law, viz. the Marriage; yet this is a good Lease. Plow. 192. 6 Co. 36.

Secondly, In the Limitation of the Estate, or in the Habendum of the Grant.

If a Grant be to two & hæredibus, without  suis; this is void for Incertainty. And yet a Grant to one & hæredibus, is good. 22 H. 6. 15. Plow. 28.

And if a Man grants two Acres, To have and to hold, the one in Fee-simple, the other in Fee-tail, or the one in Fee-simple, and the other for Life, and does not set down which in Fee-simple, &c. in certain; yet this Grant is good, and the Grantee has the Election. And yet if one grants two Acres to two Men, Habendum the one to the one and the other to the other, and says not which either of them shall have; this is void for Incertainty. Perk. §. 75, 77. Plow. 152.

And if one has a Reversion of Land after a Lease for Years, and grants the Land, Habendum the Reversion, or grants the Reversion, Habendum the Land; this is good. 10 Co. 107. Plow. 147.

(P) What may or may not be granted by the same Deed.

IF one grants his Reversion of Land to one, and by the same Deed grants a Rent out of the same Land to another, and delivers the Deed to both of them at one Time; this is good, and shall enure first as a Grant of the Rent to one, and then as a Grant of the Reversion to the other. Plow. 540.

If one conveys Land to another, and the Grantee by the same Deed doth grant a Rent or Common to the Grantor out of the same Land conveyed; this is as good as if it were by another Deed. Dyer 6.

(Q) Of several Grants of the same Thing.

IF a Man has granted a Thing once, he cannot afterwards grant it again; and therefore if a Man gives or grants me a Horse, first by Word of Mouth, and after grants him to me by Deed; this second Grant is void, and therefore if there be any Fault in this Grant in Writing, it is not material. And if a Man grants to me Common of Pasture without Number in his Ground, and after makes the like Grant to another; this second Grant is void as to me, although it be good against the Grantor. And if one grants the next Presentation to a Church after the Death of the present Incumbent, and after grants the same to another; or makes a Lease of Land to one for ten Years, and after makes a Lease of the same Land to another for the same ten Years; or gives a Horse to one, and after gives the same Horse to another; in all these Cases the second Grant is void. But if the first Grant or Gift be only of Part of the Thing granted afterwards, or of Part of the Time only, the second Grant will be good for the Overplus. And therefore, if one be seised of a Manor, and demises ten Acres of the Demesne for ten Years, and after demises the whole Manor to another for twenty Years; this is a good Grant for the Overplus of the Manor besides the ten Acres presently, and for the whole Manor for the last ten Years. So if the second Grant be to begin after the first is determined, it is good. And if the second be such as may be satisfied and not impeach the former, both shall stand good. And therefore if one that has an Advowson grants the next Presentation to one, and after he grants the next Presentation to another, and does not say after the Death of the Incumbent; in this Case the second Grant

Grant is good, and the Grantee thereby shall have the second Avoidance after the Death of the present Incumbent. Dyer 35, 350. Perk. §. 102. Lit. §. 298.

(R) Of Omissions of Ceremonies, &c. required in Grants.

IN some Cases although there be no Fault in the Grant, yet it may become void for want of some other Matter that ought to be done, as Inrolment, Livery of Seisin, Attornment, &c. for where any of these Things is requisite, the Grant is not good until it be had, neither for that Thing which will not pass without that Ceremony, nor yet for that which otherwise would pass by the Deed. And therefore if a Feoffment be made of a Manor to which an Advowson is appendant, and no Livery is made, so that the Manor does not pass, the Advowson will not pass neither. 21 H. 7. 5.

(S) What shall be said a good Grant in the Nature of a Release or Discharge, or not.

IF one makes a Feoffment with Warranty, and after the Feoffee grants to the Feoffor, that neither he nor his Heirs shall vouch the Warrantor or his Heirs upon the Warranty; this is a good Discharge of the Benefit of Voucher, and bars the Feoffee of it; and yet he may bring a Warrantia Chartæ still. So if one grants to me a Rent-charge, and afterwards I grant to him that he shall not be sued for the Rent; this is a good Grant to bar me of bringing an Annuity for the Rent; and yet I may distrain for the Rent still: And so e converso, if I grant to the Grantor, he shall not be distrained for the Rent; by this I am barred of a Distress, but not of bringing an Annuity for the Rent. So if the Lord grants to his Tenant holding by Knight's Service, that his Heirs shall not be in Ward, &c. or a Man grants to his Debtor that he will not sue him for the Debt at all, or until such a Time; or one grants to his Lessee for Life or Years that he shall not be impeached for Waste; all these are good Discharges, and may be pleaded by way of Bar to avoid Circuity of Action. 7 H. 6. 14. 21 H. 7. 23. Perk. §. 69. Bro. Grant 175. Kelw. 88.

(T) Of void Grants.

IN some Cases a Grant or Gift may be void, at least to some Persons and Purposes, when there are none of the Defects aforesaid in it; as when it is made upon a corrupt Contract, or to the End to defraud Creditors of their Debts, or Purchasers of their Lands bought, or the like; whereof see in the next Chapter.

(U) How Grants shall be construed.

EVERY Grant and Covenant shall be taken most strongly against him who makes it, because he is presumed to receive a valuable Consideration for what he parts with. 2 Roll. Abr. 56.

And if it cannot take Effect as to the Parties, it shall take Effect as it may, rather than the Deed or Grant shall be void. T. Raym. 142. Or by another way than what the Parties designed. Lucas 35.

And if the Words have a double Signification, this shall extend to the Disadvantage of him who speaks them, and shall be construed most to the Advantage of the other. T. Raym. 142.

Grants must be construed in this Manner:

First, They must be beneficial to the Taker.

Secondly, They are never void where the Words may be applied to some Intent.

Thirdly, The Words must be construed according to the Intent of the Parties, and not otherwise. Plow. 160. b.

The Law will never make any Construction against the Purport of a Grant to the Prejudice of any, or against the Meaning of the Parties. Co. Lit. 313. a.

Where the Grant is impossible to have Effect according to the Letter, there the Law makes such a Construction as the Grant by Possibility may take Effect. Co. Lit. 183. b.

(W) Of Attornments.

First, Attornment what.

AN Attornment (from turning from one to another) is the Agreement of the Tenant to the Grant of the Seignior, or of a Rent, or the Agreement of the Donee in Tail, or Tenant for Life or Years, to a Grant of a Reversion or of a Remainder made to another. Co. Lit. 309. a.

Secondly, Kinds of Attornment.

An Attornment is either expressed or implied.

I. An expressed Attornment is either by Words or Writing.

1. By Words only; as by saying, I attorn to you by Force of the said Grant; or, I acknowledge myself your Tenant.

2. By Writing indorsed on the Deed, or set down in any other Writing, which is the safest way.

In both these Cases, the Tenant may moreover deliver to the Grantee a Penny, &c. by way of Acknowledgment, that the Witnesses may better remember it.

II. An implied Attornment, or in Law; as if a Reversion (before the Stat. 4 & 5 A. c. 16. hereafter mentioned) was granted to two by Deed, and the Tenant attorned to one of them according to the Grant; this Attornment was good to vest the Reversion in both the Grantees, Lit. §. 551, &c. Co. Lit. 309. b. 310. a. &c.

Thirdly, The Effect of Attornment.

The End, Effect or Fruit of this Agreement, is to perfect a Grant and to make a good Conveyance of an Estate, and therefore cannot be made upon Condition, or for a Time.

And where it was needful by the Common Law no Rent nor Reversion would pass without it; neither could the Grantee of the Seignior, Rent or Reversion, bring any Action of Waste for Waste done in the Land, nor distrain for any Rent or Service upon the Land before Attornment.

But now by Stat. 4 & 5 A. c. 16. there is no need of Attornment in passing Manors, Rents, Reversions or Remainders.

An Attornment is but a bare Assent, and therefore it shall not nor will enure or work to pass any Interest, to make a bad Grant good, nor to give a Man a Tenancy by Disfranchisement, Intrusion or Abatement; neither shall it work by way of Estoppel; and therefore if a Man gains a Rent issuing out of Land by Coercion of Distress or otherwise, and the Tenant of the Land attorns to him; this will not amend his Estate. But otherwise a Grant and the Attornment of the Tenant does as effectually pass the Freehold and Inheritance of the Reversion of Land, (but now no Attornment is necessary to pass a Reversion) as a Feoffment and Livery of Seisin of Land passes the Possession thereof.

Fourthly, In what Cases the Attornment of Tenants is necessary or not, and void or not.

By the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16. (for the Amendment of the Law, and the better Advancement of Justice) §. 9. it is enacted, That from and after the first Day of Trinity Term 1706. all Grants or Conveyances thereafter to be made, by Fine or otherwise, of any Manors or Rents, or of the Reversion or Remainder of any Messuages or Lands, shall be good and effectual to all Intents and Purposes, without any Attornment of the Tenants of any such Manors, or of the Land out of which such Rent shall be issuing, or of the particular Tenants, upon whose particular Estates any such Reversions or Remainders shall and may be expectant or depending, as if their Attornment had been had and made. And by the said Statute, §. 10. it is provided, That no such Tenant shall be prejudiced or damaged by Payment of any Rent to any such Grantor or Conusor, or by Breach of any Condition for Non-payment of Rent, before Notice shall be given to him of such Grant by the Conusor or Grantee. And by the Stat. 11 Geo. 2. c. 19. (for the more effectual securing the Payment of Rents, and preventing Frauds by Tenants) §. 11. it is recited, That whereas the Possession of Estates in Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, is rendered very precarious by the frequent and fraudulent Practice of Tenants, in attorning to Strangers who claim Title to the Estates of their respective Landlords or Landlords, Lessor or Lessors, who by that Means are turned out of Possession of their respective Estates, and put to the Difficulty and Expence of recovering the Possession thereof by Actions or Suits of Law: For Remedy thereof it is enacted, That from and after the 24th Day of June 1738. all and every such Attornment and Attornments of any Tenant or Tenants of any Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments within that Part of Great Britain called England, Dominion of Wales, or Town of Berwick upon Tweed, shall be absolutely null and void to all Intents and Purposes whatsoever; and the Possession of their respective Landlord or Landlords, Lessor or Lessors, shall not be deemed or construed to be any wise changed, altered or affected by any such Attornment or Attornments; provided always that that nothing herein contained shall extend to vacate or affect any Attornment made pursuant to and in Consequence of some Judgment at Law, or Decree or Order of a Court of Equity, or made with the Privy and Consent of the Landlord or Landlords, Lessor or Lessors, or to any Mortgagee after the Mortgage is become forfeited.

By the Common Law, in most Cases where the Grantee had Means to compel the Tenant to attorn, there the Attornment of the Tenant was at least to some Purposes needful; for although a Seignior, Rent, Services, Reversion or Remainder were granted by Fine, the Rent, Seignior, &c. passed, so as the Grantee might enter for a Forfeiture upon the Alienation of the Tenant, being Tenant for Life, Years, by Statute or Elegit, or upon an Escheat of the Tenant, or seise a Ward or Heriot, if it happened before any Attornment was made: And if the Reversion of a Lease for Years was granted by Fine, and the Lessee was ousted, and the Lessor disseised, the Conusee might have an Assise; and therefore as to all these Purposes the Attornment of the Tenant was not needful: But the Grantee, his Heir or Assignee, could not distrain the Tenant for Rent, nor bring any Action that lay in Privy between him and the Tenant; as Waste upon a Waste done by the Tenant, Writ of Entry ad communem legem, or in casu proviso, or in consimili casu, upon the Alienation of the Tenants Escheat, upon the dying of the Tenant without Heirs, or Ward, upon the Death of the Tenant's Heir within Age, or Writ of Customs and Services, until he had the Attornment of the Tenant; and therefore as to all these Purposes the Attornment of the Tenant was necessary. And hence it was that the Conusee of a Fine had Means appointed him by the Law to compel the Tenant to attorn; for where the Lord granted the Seignior to another, and the Tenant would not attorn, the Conusee before the Fine ingrossed might have a Writ called a Per quæ servitia, to compel him to attorn. And where a Man granted Per quæ servitia a Rent to another, and the Tenant of the Land out of which the Rent issued would not attorn, the Conusee of the Rent might have a Writ called a Quem redditum reddit, to compel Quem redditum reddit him to attorn. And where a Man granted a Reversion or a Remainder of his Tenant for Life to another, and the Tenant would not attorn, the Conusee of the Reversion or Remainder might have a Quid juris clamat, to compel the Tenant for Life to attorn. But now Quid juris clamat the beforementioned Statutes of the 4th and 5th of Ann. c. 16. and the 11 Geo. 2. c. 19. has rendered the antient Learning concerning Attornments almost useless; therefore I shall be as brief upon this Head as I can, so as to omit nothing which may be necessary to the Knowledge of the Nature, Use and Effect of Grants.

Fifthly, By whom an Attornment may and must be made, or not.

By the Stat. 4 & 5 A. c. 16. the Tenants of Manors, or of Lands out of which any Rents shall be issuing, or the particular Tenants upon whose particular Estates any Reversions or Remainders shall and may be expectant or depending, needs not make any Attornment upon any Grant or Conveyance, by any Fine or otherwise, of any Manors or Rents, or of the Reversion or Remainder of any Messuages or Lands; for such Grant or Conveyance is as good and effectual without their Attornment as with.

And further by the Stat. 11 Geo. 2. c. 19. all Attornments of the Tenants of any Messuages, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, are void, unless made in Pursuance or Consequence of some Judgment at Law, or Decree or Order in Equity, or made with the Privy and Consent of the Landlord, Lessor, or to any Mortgagee after the Mortgage is forfeited.

If a Woman that hath a Husband be to attorn, the Husband may and must do it for her, and the Attornment of the Husband for the Wife, whether it be expressed or implied, will bind the Wife. Co. Lit. 312. Lit. §. 558.

A voluntary Attornment, where it is needful, may be made by an Infant, or one that is deaf and dumb, (who may do it by Signs); but one that is Non compos mentis cannot make an Attornment. Co. Lit. 315.

Sixthly, To whom an Attornment may and must be made, or not.

Where an Attornment is necessary, it must always be made to the Grantee according to the Grant, whether the Attornment be expressed or implied. But if divers take by Grant, the Attornment may be made to one of them, and this shall avail the Rest. Co. Lit. 310, 312.

By Stat. 11 Geo. 2. c. 19. Attornments of Tenants may be made to any Mortgagee after the Mortgage is forfeited. See more of this Statute before.

Seventhly,

Seventhly, At what Time an Attornment must be made.

In all Cases regularly where Attornment is necessary, it must be made in the Life-time of the Parties Grantor and Grantee, or Exchangor or Exchangee: For if either of them die before the Attornment be made, (where it is requisite) the Grant or Exchange is void. And therefore (before the Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16.) if a Manor was granted, and Livery of Seisin given upon the Demesnes thereof, and one of the Tenants died before Attornment was made by him, his Tenement would not pass; and the Grant as to that Part was void; for in such Case all the Tenants but Tenant at Will were obliged to attorn. And altho' the Grant of the Reversion was to begin at a Day to come, and after the Death of either of the Parties, yet the Attornment was to be made in the Life-time of the Parties, or otherwise the Grant would not be good. And yet an Attornment might be made after the Death of the Tenant by his Heir, and after the Conveyance of the Tenant by his Assignee. Co. Cit. 310, 315. Lit. §. 551. Perk. §. 263, 231. Co. 151. 2 Co. 35.

And if a Lease was made of a Reversion to begin at a Day to come, the Attornment might be made before or after the Day, so it was made in the Life-time of the Parties. 2 Co. 35.

And if one granted his Reversion of Whiteacre or Blackacre, and the Tenant attorned to the Grant before the Grantee had made his Election, which Acre he would have; this was a good Attornment. Co. Lit. 310.

Eighthly, How to make an Attornment, and what shall be said a good Attornment, or not.

To the making of a good Attornment where it is needful, divers Things are required:

1. It must be made by the Person who ought to make it.
2. It must be made to the Person who ought to take it.
3. It must be made in convenient Time.
4. If it was an express Attornment, the Tenant was first to have Notice of the Grant of the Reversion, Rent, &c. to which he was to attorn: But otherwise it was of an Attornment in Law; for there Notice in all Cases was not necessary.

5. And it must be done in the Manner the Law prescribes.

It may be made by Words or Deeds without any Writing; or by Deed or Writing (which is the safest way). And any Words written or spoken by the Tenant, that import an Assent and Agreement to the Grant in such Manner as the same is made after Notice given to him of the Grant, whether it be in the Presence or the Absence of the Grantee, will make a good Attornment in Deed. And therefore if the Tenant after Knowledge of the Grant uses the Words following, or any others to the like Effect, to the Grantee, viz. I do attorn, or turn Tenant to you according to the Grant; or I become your Tenant; or I agree to the Grant; or I am well content with the Grant; or God send you Joy of it: These are good express Attornments. And if the Tenant, after Knowledge of the Grant, pays, does or delivers all, or any Part of the Rent or Service before or at the Time when the same is due to the Grantee, or gives a Penny, or Farthing, an Ox, or a Knife, or any such Thing, or any other valuable Thing in the Name of Attornment, or in the Name of Seisin of the Rent; this is a good express Attornment; and that Attornment which is made by Words and Deed, is best to be signed, for that leaves a more deep Impression in the Mind of the Witnesses. But by the Common Law, if A. had a Rent-charge issuing out of his Land, and he granted it to a Stranger, and A. gave him an Ox to put him in Possession of the Rent; this was no good Attornment. Co. Lit. 309, 310, 315. 49 Ed. 3. 15. Lit. §. 551, 563, 513. Plow. 344.

Attornment of Part of the
for the Whole.

If a Reversion (before the said Statutes) was granted of two Acres, or for forty Years; or if Services were granted, and the Tenant attorned for one Acre, or for Part of the forty Years, or for Part of the Services; this extended to all, and was a good Attornment for both the Acres, all the forty Years and all the Services; and that, altho' the Tenant said expressly it should be good but for a Part, and not for the Whole. And so also it was of an Attornment in Law. And therefore if the Grantee by Fine of Services sued out a Scire Facias to have Execution of any Part of the Services, and had Judgment to recover any Part, or a Lessee of three Acres surrendered one of them to the Grantee of the Reversion of all the three Acres; this was a good Attornment of the Whole. But if one attorned for Part of the Land, or for Part of the Services in Case of the Grant of a Reversion of Land, or the Grant of Services, and had no Notice of the Grant of any more; this Attornment ment was not good for any Part, but void for all. 2 Co. 68. Lit. §. 564. Co. Lit.

If a Seignior, Reversion, or the like, (before the said Statutes) were granted to two or more, and the Tenant after Notice thereof attorned to one of them; this was a good Attornment to perfect the Grant to both, or all of them. But if one died before Attornment, and the Tenant attorned to the Survivor or Survivors; this would not avail the Heir of him that was dead, but it was good to perfect the Grant to the Survivor or Survivors, to whom it was made. Co. Lit. 297. 2 Co. 67, 68.

And if a Reversion was granted to Husband and Wife, and the Tenant attorned to his Wife in the Absence of the Husband; this was a good Attornment to perfect the Grant to them both. But if a Reversion was granted to two Men, and the Tenant had Notice only of a Grant made to one of them, and he attorned to him only; this Attornment was void, and not good to perfect the Grant to either of them. Calvin's Case, Pasch.

7 Jac. B. R. 2 Co. 68.

If two Jointenants was for Life or Years, and the Reversion of their Estate was granted (before the said Statutes) to a Stranger, and one of them attorned to the Grant of the Reversion; this was a good Attornment for both of them. The like Law was for Tenants in Common. But if A. B. C. and D. were Lessees for Years, and C. and D. were outlawed, so as they forfeited their Parts to the King, and the King became Tenant in Common with A. and B. and after the Reversion was granted to a Stranger, and A. B. C. and D. attorned; this was no good Attornment to perfect the Grant of the Reversion, for C. and D. could not attorn, and the Attornment of A. and B. for the King and themselves was not good. 2 Co. 66, 67. Lit. §. 566. 6 Car. in Lord Brook's Case in Cur' Ward'.

Ninthly, Who shall be compelled to attorn, or not, and where.

In all Cases for the most part where Attornment is needful, the Tenant, whether he be Tenant in Fee-simple, for Life, Years, by Statute, Elegit, or as Executor until Debts be paid, shall be compelled to attorn. And altho' the Tenant be an Infant, and comes to the Land by Purchase or Descent, yet he may be compelled to attorn; but then in this Case his Attornment shall not prejudice him, for when he is of full Age he may disclaim, or say he holds by less Services. 6 Co. 68. 9 Co. 84. Co. Lit. 315.

In all Cases for the most part where an Attornment is not needful, there is no Means to compel the Tenant to attorn; and therefore the Tenant cannot be compelled to attorn to him that comes to a Reversion or Remainder by Escheat, Forfeiture, &c. 6 Co. 68. Co. Lit. 318.

If one (by the Common Law) grants his Reversion of Land in Mortmain without a Licence, the Tenant may not be compelled to attorn until there be a Licence had from the King. Co. Lit. 318. 3 Co. 86.

Also it is a general Rule, that when the Grant by Fine is defeasible, there the Tenant shall not be compelled to attorn: As if an Infant levies a Fine, this is defeasible by Writ of Error during his Minority, and therefore the Tenant shall not be compelled to attorn. So if the Land was held in Antient Demesne, and he in the Reversion levied a Fine of the Reversion at the Common Law; the Tenant could not be compelled to attorn, because the Estate that passed was reverfable by Writ of Disceit. Co. Lit. 318. 3 Co. 86.

Tenthly, How an Attornment shall enure and be taken.

If the Grant be absolute, and the Attornment be on Condition, yet this shall enure according to the Grant. So if the Attornment be but to Part of the Things, or Part of the Time granted; this shall enure to perfect the Grant for all. So if the Attornment be made but to one of the Grantees, it shall enure to the Rest. So if the Attornment be made to the particular Tenant, it shall enure to him in the Remainder to perfect his Estate also. Co. Lit. 309, 310, 297.

If the Estate of the Tenant be with a Privilege annexed, as without Impeachment of Waste, or the like, and the Tenant attorns generally without any Saving of his Privilege; if the Attornment be gratis and voluntary, whether it be an Attornment in Law or in Deed, this shall not enure to extinguish his Privilege: But if the Attornment be made by the Compulsion of a Writ in this Manner, and without this Saving, he has lost his Privilege for ever. Co. Lit. 320.

If a Reversion, &c. (before the said Statutes) was granted to two several Men one after another, and he that had the latter Grant got the Attornment of the Tenant to his Grant before the other; this would enure to perfect the latter, and the first Grant afterwards could not be good. Co. Lit. 310.

And if a Reversion was granted to a Man and Woman unmarried, and before Attornment they intermarried, and then the Tenant attorned; they were to have the Estate by Moieties. Co. Lit. 310.

Eleventhly, How an Attornment shall relate.

An Attornment as to the Party Grantor, shall have Relation to the Time of the Grant, to make the Thing to pass out of the Grantor ab initio, altho' it be made many Years after the Grant; and therefore all Acts done by him after the Time of the Grant, and before the Attornment, to the Prejudice of his own Grant, as granting of Rents, entering into Statutes, or the like, are void, as to the Land to charge it: And hence it is, that (before the said Statutes) if a Reversion was granted to an Alien, and before Attornment of the Tenant he was made Denizen; the King upon Office found should have the Land, and yet it should not so relate as to make the Tenants chargeable to the Grantee for any mean Arrearages, or for any Waste in the Lands from the Time of the Grant to the Time of the Attornment. But in respect of a Stranger it should not relate at all. And therefore if two Deeds were made of a Reversion at several Times, and he whose Deed was made last got Attornment first, the Reversion did pass to him; and tho' the other got Attornment afterwards, yet this would not help him by Relation; and altho' the former Grant of the Reversion was in Fee, and the latter for Life only, yet the Law was all one in both Cases. Co. Lit. 310.

S E C T. XI.

Of Leases.

(A) A Lease what, and Lessor and Lessee who.

A Lease (from Laiſſer, Dimittere, to part with) is a Demise or Letting of Lands, Rent, Common, or any Hereditament, to another for a lesser Time than he who lets it has in it, (for when a Lessee for Life or Years grants over all his Estate or Time to another, this is more properly called an Assignment than a Lease) and is most commonly and aptly made by the Words Demise, Grant and Let, altho' it may be made and done by other Words.

He who lets is called the Lessor, and he to whom it is let the Lessee.

The Word Lease is also sometimes (altho' improperly) applied to the Estate, i. e. the Title, Time or Interest the Lessee has to the Thing demised, and then it is rather referred to the Thing taken or had, and the Interest of the Taker therein: But in this Place it is applied rather to the Manner or Means of attaining or coming to the Thing letten.

(B) Kinds of Leases.

A Lease in this Sense is sometimes made and done by Record, as a Fine, Recovery, &c. and sometimes and most frequently by Writing called a Lease by Indenture, altho' it may be made by Deed Poll.

And sometimes it is by Parol, without any Writing, as by the Common Law it might be of Land or such like Thing grantable without Deed for Life, and never so many Years. But now by the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. All Estates, Interests of Freehold, or Term of Years, or any uncertain Interest in or out of Lands, &c. not put in Writing, and signed by the Parties making them, or their Agents, authorized by Writing, shall have no greater Effect than as Leases at Will; except Leases not exceeding three Years, whereof the Rent reserved shall be two Thirds of the full Value of the Thing demised. And no such Estates or Interests (not being Copyhold or Customary Interests) shall be assigned, granted or surrendered, unless it be either by Deed or Note in Writing, signed as before, or by Act and Operation of Law.

A Lease may be made either,

1. For Life, (i. e. for the Life of the Lessee, or another, or both) or,
2. For Years, (i. e. for a certain Number of Years, as ten, a hundred, a thousand or ten thousand Years) Months, Weeks or Days, as the Lessor and Lessee agree; and then the Estate is properly called a Term of Years; for the Word Term not only signifies the Limits and Limitation

Limitation of Time, but also the Estate and Interest that passes for that Time: Some of these Leases also for Years commence in presenti, and some in futuro, at a Day to come; and the Lease that is to begin in futuro is called an Interesse Termini, or future Interest. Or,

3. At Will, when a Lease is made of Land to be held at the Will and Pleasure of the Lessor, or at the Will and Pleasure of the Lessor and Lessee together; and such a Lease may be made by Word of Mouth as well as the former.

And there is a common way of conveying by mutual Leases, or by Lease on each Side, which is called a Conveyance by Demise and Re-demise, and is proper upon the Grant of a Rent-charge.

(C) Things necessarily required in every good Lease.

Regularly these Things must concur to the making of every good Lease:

1. There must be a Lessor, (as in other Grants) and he must be a Person able, and not restrained to make a Lease.

2. There must be a Lessee, and he must be capable of the Thing demised, and not disabled to receive it.

3. There must be a Thing demised, and such a Thing as is demisable.

4. If the thing demisable be not grantable without a Deed, or the Party demising not able to grant without a Deed, the Lease must be made by Deed; and if so, then there must be a sufficient Description and setting forth of the Person of the Lessor, Lessee, and the Thing leased, and all necessary Circumstances, as Sealing, Delivery, &c. required in other Grants must be observed.

5. If it be a Lease for Years, it must have a certain Commencement, at least when it comes to take Effect in Interest or Possession, and a certain Determination either by an express Enumeration of Years, or by Reference to a Certainty that is expressed, or by reducing it to a Certainty upon some contingent Precedent by Matter ex post facto, and then the Contingent must happen before the Death of the Lessor or Lessee.

6. There must be all needful Ceremonies, as Livery of Seisin, Attornment, and the like, in Cases where they are requisite.

7. There must be an Acceptance of the Thing demised, and the Estate by the Lessee. But whether any Rent be reserved upon a Lease for Life, Years, or at Will, or not, is not material, except only in the Cases of Leases made by Tenant in Tail, Husband and Wife, and Ecclesiastical Persons; of which see hereafter.

(D) What is a good Lease for Life or Years with respect to the Lessor and Lessee, the Thing leased, and the Estate, Property or Possession of the Lessor, &c. therein.

Leases for Life, Years, or at Will, may be made of any Thing corporeal or incorporeal, that lies in Livery or Grant. Also Leases for Years may be made of any Goods or Chattels. Bro. Leases 23.

A Man seised of an Estate in Fee-simple in his own Right of any Lands or Tenements, may by Deed or Writing in the Country, (or before the Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. might without Writing by Word of Mouth) make a Lease of it for what Lives or Years he will or would. And he that is seised of an Estate in Tail of any Lands or Tenements, may make any Lease out of it for his own Life, but no longer, unless it be by Fine or Recovery, or it be such a Lease as is warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. And he who is seised of Lands or Tenements of any Estate for his own or another's Life, may make what Lease for Years he will of it, and it will be good as long as the Lease for Life does last. And he who is possessed of Lands or Tenements for Years, may make a Lease of it for all or part of the Years, and these are good Leases. The Tenants for Life or Years may also assign over all their Estates if they please. And if such Tenants make Leases for longer Time, as if Lessee for Years make a Lease for Life; by this the Land will pass for Life, if the Term of Years last so long. But if he gives Livery of Seisin upon it, (as he must to make the Lease for Life good) this is a Forfeiture of the Estate for Years. Co. 44. 7 Co. 12. Plow. 524.

By special Power or Proviso to make Leases.

In some Cases such Persons as are not seised in Fee-simple, &c. nor able to derive such Estates for Life or Years out of their own Estates, may lawfully notwithstanding make such Leases for Life, &c. and this is sometimes by a special Act of Parliament enabling them so to do. And hence it is also, that a Tenant in Tail may make Leases for three Lives, or Twenty-one Years. And sometimes it is by special Power or Authority given or reserved by and to the Party himself that had the Fee-simple in him, or given to some other to do it in his Name; and Leases thus made may be good. And therefore if an Act of Parliament enable a Tenant in Tail, or a Tenant for Life, to make Leases for three Lives, or Twenty-one Years, Leases that are so made in pursuit of that Authority are good. And if a Man be seised of Land in Fee, and conveys it to the Use of himself for Life, or in Tail, with divers Remainders over, with a Proviso, that it shall be lawful for him, or any such Tenant in Tail, to make Leases for Twenty-one Years; in this Case he or they may make such Leases, and they will be good. But in both these Cases care must be had to pursue the Authority strictly, that the Leases made be according to the Power and Direction given by the Statute or Proviso; for if it differs and varies ever so little from the Sense and Meaning of the same, the Lease will not be good. And therefore in the Case before of a Power to make Leases for Twenty-one Years, if the Party makes more Leases for Twenty-one Years at one Time than one, they are all void, except the first, because it is against the Intent of the Parties, tho' it be not against the Words. And so if the Power be to make Leases for three Lives, he cannot make a Lease for Ninety-nine Years, if three Lives so long live. But if the Power be thus: Provided, &c. that he may make any Lease in Possession or Reversion, so as it does not exceed the Number of three Lives or Twenty-one Years; in this Case a Lease may be made for Ninety-nine Years, if three Lives live so long. But where Uses are raised by way of Covenant, and in the Deed there is a Proviso, That the Covenanter for divers good Considerations may make Leases for Years; this Power is void, and no Lease can be made hereupon; neither will any Averment help in this Case. And if a Man has a Letter of Attorney, or other Authority, to make Leases for another, and makes them accordingly; such Leases are good. 5 Co. 5. Dyer 357. 6 Co. 2, 8, 70. 1 Co. 75.

The Master of the Rolls decreed the Title to belong to the Assignee of the Wife, and that this Term should not be attendant on the Inheritance; for that the Party who raised the Term, and had Power to sever it from the Inheritance, shewed his Intention so to do by limiting the Trust of the Survivor of him and his Wife, and the Heirs of the Survivor, which, though it was a void Limitation, yet sufficed to shew his Intent to sever such Term from the Reversion. Will. 360.

(E) What Leases (or other Acts) may be made (or done) by a Tenant in Tail, and what Leases made by such a Tenant shall be good to bind the Issue or him in Remainder, or others after the Death of the Tenant in Tail; and how they shall bind.

ANY Person whatsoever of full Age that has any Estate of Inheritance in Fee-tail, in his own Right, of any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, may at this Day without Fine or Recovery make Leases of such Lands for Lives or Years, and such Leases shall be good, good, so as these Conditions and Incidents following be therein observed and kept. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. Co. Lit. 44.

First, Such Leases must be by Deed indented, and not by Deed Poll or by Parol.

Secondly, They must be made to begin from the Day of the making thereof; or from the making thereof; and therefore a Lease made to begin from Michaelmas which shall be for three Years, after for twenty-one Years, or a Lease made to begin after the Death of the Tenant in Tail for twenty-one Years, is not good. But if a Lease be made for twenty-one Years to begin at Michaelmas next; this is a good Lease. 5 Co. 6. Dyer 246.

Thirdly, If there be an old Lease in Being of the Land, the same must be surrendered or expired, and ended within a Year of the Time of the making the new Lease; and this Surrender must be absolute and not conditional; also it must be real, and not illusory or in Shew only; for factum non dicitur quod non perseverat. 5 Co. 2.

Fourthly, There must not be a double or concurrent Lease in Being at one Time; as if a Lease for Years be made according to the Statute, he in Reversion cannot afterwards expulse the Lessee, and make a Lease for Life or Lives, nor another Lease for Years according to the Statute, nor e converso. 5 Co. 2. But if a Lease for Years be made to one, and afterwards a Lease for Life is made to another, and a Letter of Attorney is made to give Livery of Seisin upon the Lease for Life, and before the Livery made the first Lease is surrendered, in this Case the second Lease is good. Trin. 4 Jac. B. R.

Fifthly, These Leases must not exceed three Lives or twenty-one Years from the Time of the making of them; and therefore if a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for twenty-two or forty Years, or for four Lives, this Lease is void, and that not only for the Overplus of Time more than three Lives or twenty-one Years, but for that Time of three Lives or twenty-one Years also. And it has been resolved, that if a Tenant in Tail for ninety-nine Years determinable upon three Lives, this is not a good Lease. But if a Lease be made by a Tenant in Tail for a lesser Time, as for two Lives, or for twenty Years; this is a good Lease. And if a Lease be made for four Lives, and it happens that one of the Lives dies before the Tenant in Tail dies, yet this Accident will not make the Lease good, but it remains voidable notwithstanding. 5 Co. 6. Dyer 246.

Sixthly, These Leases must be of Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments manurable or corporeal, which are necessary to be letten, and whereout a Rent by Law may be issuing and reserved. 5 Co. 2. And therefore if a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease of such a Thing as lies in Grant, as an Advowson, Fair, Market, Franchise, or the like, out of which a Rent cannot be reserved, especially if it be a Lease for Life; this Lease is void, and that although the Thing have been antiently and accustomably letten; and a Grant of a Rent-Charge therefore out of such Lands is void. Tallentine's Case, Pas. 3 Jac. B. R. 11 Co. 60.

And if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for three Lives of a Portion of Tithes, rendering Rent, this Lease is unquestionably void. And so also it seems it is if it be a Lease for twenty-one Years. Trin. 2 Jac. B. R. adjudged. Dodington's Case.

Seventhly, They must be of such Lands or Tenements which have been most commonly letten to Farm, or occupied by the Farmers thereof by the Space of twenty Years next before the Lease made, so as if it had been letten for eleven Years at one or several Times within twenty Years before the new Lease made, it is sufficient. And although the Letting have been by Copy of Court Roll only, yet such a Letting in Fee, for Life or Years is a sufficient Letting; and so also is a Letting at Will by the Common Law. But these Lettings to Farm must be made by such as are seised of an Estate of Inheritance; for if it has been only by Guardian in Chivalry, Tenant by the Curtesy, in Dower, or the like; this will not serve to be a Letting within the Intent of the Statute. 6 Co. 37. Dyer 271.

Eighthly, There must be reserved upon such Leases yearly, during the same Leases, due and payable to the Lessor and his Heirs, to whom the Reversion shall appertain, so much yearly Farm or Rent, or more, as has been most accustomably yielded or paid for the Lands, &c. within twenty Years next before such Lease made; and therefore if the Rent be reserved but for Part of the Time of the new Lease, this Lease is void. And if the Tenant in Tail has twenty Acres of Land that has been accustomably letten, and he makes a Lease of these twenty Acres, and of one Acre more which has not been accustomably letten, reserving the usual yearly Rent, and so much more as to exceed the Value of the other Acre; this is not a good Lease by the Statute. So if there be Tenant in Tail of two Farms, the one at twenty Pounds Rent, the other at ten Pounds Rent, and he makes a Lease of both these Farms together at thirty Pounds Rent; this is not a good Lease within the Statute. 5 Co. 8. 6 Co. 6. 37, 38.

But if besides the annual Rent there have been formerly reserved Things not annual, as Heriots, Fines or other Profits upon the Death of the Farmers, or Profits out of another's Soil, as Pasturage for a Colt, &c. if upon the new Lease the yearly Rent be reserved, although though these collateral Observations be omitted, yet the Leases are good. Trin. 3 Jac. B. R. adjudged. Trin. 18 Jac. B. R.

And so also if there be more Rent reserved upon the new Lease than the Rent that has been antiently paid, the Lease is good notwithstanding: and yet if Tenant in Tail of Land lets a Part of it that has been accustomedly letten, and reserves the Rent pro rata, or more than after the Rate; this is not a good Lease. 5 Co. 6.

And yet if two Coparceners of twenty Acres of Land of equal Value between them in Tail, and these have been usually letten, and they make Partition of these Lands, so as each of them has ten Acres; in this Case they may make Leases of their several Parts, reserving the Half of the accustomed Rent. 5 Co. 5. And yet Co. Lit. 44. b. is contra.

And if upon the old Lease the Rent were payable at four Days in the Year, and by the new Lease it is reserved to be paid at one Day; this is not a good Lease. But if the Rent upon the old Lease be payable in Gold, and the new Rent be payable in Silver; the Lease is not good. And if a Tenant in Tail be of a Manor that has been usually demised for ten Pounds Rent; and after a Tenancy escheat, and then he makes a Lease of the Manor, rendring 10*l.* Rent by the Year, this is a good Lease; but if the Lessor purchases a Tenancy, then it seems otherwise. Trin. 3 Jac. B. R. Cornwallis's Case, 5 Co. 5, 6.

Ninthly, Such Leases must not be without Impeachment of Waste; and therefore if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease of his Land intailed without Impeachment of Waste; this Lease is void. And if a Lease be made for Life, the Remainder for Life, &c. this is not a good Lease; for in this Case during the Remainders the Tenant for Life cannot be punished for Waste done. But if such a Tenant of Land makes a Lease of it to J. S. for the Lives of three others; this is a good Lease, although it may afterwards become an Occupancy. 6 Co. 37. and Meer's Case adjudged.

Tenthly, Such Leases must not be against any special Act of Parliament, and therefore if a Woman that is Tenant in Tail of the Gift of her deceased Husband, or any of his Ancestors, whilst she is sole, or after with another Husband, makes any such Lease warranted by this Statute; yet this Lease is not good. Stat. 11 H. 7. 20. 3 Co. 51. f

Eleventhly, They must have all due Ceremonies and Circumstances for the Perfection of them, as other such like Leases have; as Livery of Seisin, and the like, where they are needful. And then only when Leases have these Conditions, and are made according to these Provisions, are they said to be within the Statute of 32 H. 8. and such only as do bind the Tenant in Tail himself, and Issue in Tail; for otherwise, if it be not warranted by this Statute, although it will bind the Tenant in Tail himself that made it, yet it will not bind his Issue, but as to him it will be void or voidable at the least; for if Tenant in Tail of Land makes a Lease of it for a Hundred Years without any Rent reserved thereupon; this Lease as to the Issue in Tail is void: But if he makes a Lease of his Land for 100 Years, rendring Rent, and has Issue, and dies; in this Case the Lease is only voidable by the Issue at his Pleasure; and therefore if the Issue accepts the Rent after the Death of the Tenant in Tail, by this Means the Lease is affirmed and become good. But howsoever the Lease be made, it will not bind him that comes in of a Remainder over, nor him that is the Donor; and therefore if a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease warranted by the Statute, and after dies without Issue, so that the Land remains over to another, or reverts to the Donor; in these Cases neither he in the Remainder, nor the Donor, shall be bound by this Lease; for as to them the Lease is void. And yet by a common Recovery the Tenant in Tail may make Leases of or lay Charges upon the Land to bind the Donor and him in Remainder also. But otherwise it is of a Fine; for if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years by Fine, this will not bar the Donor, nor the Remainder in any Case where it is in a Stranger. And yet if the Remainder be in the Tenant in Tail himself, and he makes a Lease for Years by Deed according to the Statute, or by Fine; this Lease is good, and shall bind his own Remainder. 7 Co. 7. 8 Co. 54. Dyer 7, 8. Woman's Lawyer 73. Plow. 435, 436.

(F) What Leases (or other Acts) may be made (or done) by the Husband with the Lands he has in Fee-simple or Fee-tail in the Right of his Wife, or jointly with her; and what Leases made by him of such Lands are good, or not, and how.

THE Husband may at this Day without Fine or Recovery make Leases of the Land, Tenements or Hereditaments, whereof he has any Estate of Inheritance in Fee-simple or Fee-tail in the Right of his Wife, or jointly with his Wife, made before or after the Coverture; so as there be in such Leases observed the eleven Conditions or Limitations before required in the Leases made by Tenant in Tail, and so that the Wife do join in the same Deed, and be made Party thereunto, and do seal and deliver the same Deed herself in Person. Stat. 32 Hen. 8. c. 28. Co. Lit. 44.

For if a Man and his Wife make a Letter of Attorney to another to deliver the Lease upon the Land, this Lease is not a good Lease from the Wife warranted by the Statute. And yet then, as in other like Cases of Leases not warranted by this Statute, it is a good Lease against the Husband. And when the Lease is such a Lease as is warranted by the Statute, it binds the Husband and Wife both, and the Heirs of the Wife: But if it be an Estate-tail, it does not bind the Donor, nor him in Remainder. Pas. 7 Jac. B. R.

If the Husband and Wife at the Common Law had joined in a Lease of her Land without rendring of Rent; this Lease had been void as against the Wife; and so is the Law still. 26 H. 8. 2.

If the Husband at the Common Law had been seised of Land in the Right of his Wife, and he had made a Lease for Years rendring Rent, and died; this Lease had been void, and so is the Law still. 26 H. 8. 2. 2 Co. 77.

If the Husband and Wife at the Common Law had made a Lease by Word, rendring Rent; this Lease had been void as against the Wife; and so is the Law still. Dyer 91.

The Husband and Wife together may by Fine or Recovery make what Leases they will of her Land, or charge it for what Time they will; and such Leases and Charges will be good against the Husband and Wife both, and their Heirs also. But if the Husband alone levies any Fine of his Wife's Land, and thereby makes any Estate whatsoever; this will not bind the Wife after the Husband's Death, but she may avoid it. And if the Husband and Wife make a Lease of her Land, rendring Rent to them and the Heirs of the Wife (as in such Leases it ought to be); in this Case the Husband cannot by Fine or otherwise grant or discharge this Rent longer than during Coverture, unless the Wife join in the Fine, but the Rent shall descend, remain or revert in such Sort and Manner as the Land should have done. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. Vide Woman's Lawyer 163.

If a Woman seised of an Estate for Life, with a Power to make a Lease for three Lives or twenty-one Years, marries, and she and her Husband join in making the Lease, and both die before the Lease is expired; here, though the Husband in Right of his Wife, and she in her own Right, are possessed of an Estate for Life, and therefore can, as Owners, make a Lease, and there appears no Intention of the Parties, (imagining perhaps they should have out-lived the Lease) that this Lease should be made by virtue of the Power; yet because the Lease, supposing it made by them as Owners, cannot have all the Effect the Parties intended, for some it would have, (it would be a good Lease during the Lives of the Husband and Wife) yet because it cannot have all, it shall be esteemed made by virtue of the Power. Lucas 36.

(G) What Leases (or other Acts) Bishops, or other Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Persons and Colleges may make (or do) with the Lands they have in the Right of their Churches or Houses, &c. and what Leases made by such Persons will bind their Successors and others, or not.

BISHOPS, with the Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter, Parsons or Vicars, with the Consent of their Patrons and Ordinaries, Archdeacons, Prebends, and such as are in the Nature of Prebends, as Precentors, Chaunters, Treasurers, Chancellors, and such like; also Masters and Governors, and Fellows of any Colleges or Houses, (by what Name soever called) Deans and Chapters, Masters or Guardians of any Hospital, and their Brethren, or any other Body Politic, Spiritual and Ecclesiastical, (Concurrentibus hiis que in jure requiruntur) might by the antient Common Law have made Leases for Lives or Years, or any other Estates of their Spiritual or Ecclesiastical Living for any Time without Stint or Limitation. Co. Lit. 44. 5 Co. 14. 11 Co. 66.

And at this Day the Bishops, and the rest of the said Spiritual Persons, except Parsons and Vicars, may make Leases of their Spiritual Livings for three Lives or twenty-one Years, and such Leases will be good both against themselves and their Successors. But such Persons may not make Leases or Estates for any longer Time than for three Lives or twenty-one Years; and if they do, although it be by Fine or Recovery, or it be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, &c. yet it is void against the Successor. Neither will the Leases made by such Persons for three Lives or twenty-one Years be good, unless they have certain Conditions and Properties required in them. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 28. 13 Eliz. c. 10. 1 Jac. c. 3. 1 Eliz. c. 19. 14 Eliz. c. 11. 18 Eliz. c. 10, 20.

These Things therefore are necessarily required to be observed in the making of such Leases :

First, That they have the Effect of all the Qualities or Properties before mentioned and required by the Statute of 32 H. 8. in the Lease made by the Tenant in Tail, and be made after that Manner, viz. that they be by Deed indented.

Secondly, That they being from the Time of the Making of them.

Thirdly and Fourthly, That the old Lease be surrendered, and there be not a concurrent Lease (save in Case of a Bishop) ; and therefore if any such Person makes a Lease for twenty-one Years to one, and then makes a Lease for three Lives to another ; this second Lease is void. And yet if a Bishop makes a Lease for twenty-one Years to one Man, and then within a Year after makes another Lease to another for twenty-one Years, to begin from the Making of it ; this, if it be confirmed by Dean and Chapter, is a good Lease.

Fifthly, That they do not exceed three Lives or twenty-one Years, but they may be for a less Time.

Sixthly, That they be of Lands or Tenements manurable or corporeal.

Seventhly, That they be made of Lands that have been commonly let to Farm by the Space of twenty Years before.

Eighthly, That there be reserved upon them the antient and accustomed Rent payable to the Lessor or his Successors during the Time.

Ninthly, That they be not made without Impeachment of Waste.

Tenthly, That there be Livery of Seisin upon them, &c. where it is requisite. Co. Lit. 44.

11 Co. 66. 5 Co. 3, 15.

Eleventhly, If the Lease be made according to the Exception of the Statute of 1 Eliz. and 13 Eliz. and not warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. as in the Case of a concurrent Lease, and it be made by a Bishop or any sole Corporation, it must be confirmed by the Deans and Chapters, or others that have Interest. And if a Parson or Vicar makes a Lease, it is not good but during the Parson or Vicar's Residence, according to the Statute of 13 Eliz. c. 20. and in this Case there needs no Confirmation at all. 11 Co. 66. 5 Co. 3.

Twelfthly, Some of the Leases that are made by the Colleges and Houses of the University, &c. must have some Rent-Corn reserved upon them. Stat. 18 Eliz. c. 20.

But Bishops, Deans, Parsons, and such like spiritual Persons, cannot grant the next Advowsons of Churches, neither can they grant Rents out of their spiritual Livings, but the same Charges will be void after their Death. And if a Bishop suffers an Annuity to be recovered against him by a Pretence of Title of Prescription on a Judgment after a Verdict or Confession, or a Parson in such a Case prays in Aid of the Patron, and so suffers an Annuity to be recovered ; this will not bind the Successor. And yet a Bishop, or any such spiritual Person, may grant antient Offices of Trust of Necessity or Conveniency, as the Offices of Chancellor, Register, Bailiff, or the like, with the ancient Fees incident thereunto, for the Life or Lives of the Grantees ; and such Grants are good although they be made by the Bishops of the new erected Bishopricks, and that there be not in them the Conditions and Properties required in the Leases before mentioned, so as they be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter. But they may not grant any new Office, nor yet add any new Fee to the old Offices ; and therefore if a Bishop grants any Annuity pro consilio impenso & impendendo, where none was before ; this will not bind the Successor. And yet if there be an old Fee, and there is a new Fee added to it ; in this Case it seems it is good for the old Fee, although it be void for the new Fee. Neither may they grant their Offices otherwise than they have been granted : And therefore where the antient Grant of the Office has been to one, it cannot be now granted to two ; and where the antient Grants have been to two jointly, they may not be now granted in Remainder one after another. Neither may the Grants of these Offices be longer than for the Life or Lives of the Grantees. And in Case where the Grant is void, the Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter will not make it good. 5 Co. 15. 11 Co. 66. 10 Co. 58. Dyer 370. And most of these Points were agreed by Justice Jones and Justice Whitlock, at Lent Assises at Gloucester, 6 Car.

But here observe, that although in all these Cases of Leases and Grants not warranted by the Statutes aforesaid, the Statutes say the Leases shall be void ; yet this is to be understood as against the Successors, and not against the Lessors themselves ; for the Leases are good so long as the Lessors live, or at least so long as they continue in the Place : And therefore if such a Lease be made by a Dean and Chapter, or other Corporation Aggregate ; it is good as against the Dean or others, Head of the Corporations, so long as he continues in his Place. And if a Bishop makes any Lease or other Grant not warranted by the Statute of 1 Eliz. or a Dean and Chapter, Master and Fellows of a College, or the like, make Leases not warranted by the Statute of 13 Eliz. c. 10. these Leases are good against themselves, altho' they are void against their Successors. So as if a private Act of Parliament intails Land upon a Man, and appoints him what Estates he shall make, and that if he makes any other Estates they shall be void; in this Case they shall not be void as to the Tenant in Tail himself that makes them. Co. Lit. 45, 329. 3 Co. 59. 10 Co. 59. 11 Co. 73, 78. 5 Co. 5.

Leases of Benefices with Cure are no longer good than the Parson is Resident. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20.

Leases made by Colleges must have reserved upon them the third Part of the Rent in Corn. See the Statute of 18 Eliz. c. 20.

A College was seised in Fee of Lands in Right of the College, and the Statutes relating to the Constitution of it restrain from making Leases of the Lands, other than for twenty-one Years at the Rack Rent. The College made a Lease to J. S. for twenty-one Years at the Rack Rent; the Lessee improved the Premises; and at the College Audit an Entry was made in the Register, by which, in Consideration that J. S. had built two Houses, and thereby had improved the Premises, therefore it was recommended, that at the End of the Lease the College should make him a new Lease for twenty-one Years, at the antient Rent, without raising it; and this Entry was signed by the Master, Warden, and most of the Fellows: Afterwards, upon J. S.'s applying for a new Lease, the College, at the Audit held about half a Year before the Expiration of the old Lease, made an Order, that J. S. should have a new Lease at the old Rent, and under the same Covenants as the former; and this Order was signed by the Master, Warden, and most of the Fellows: J. S. died Intestate about the Time of the next Audit, which was three Weeks before the Lease expired; whereupon the Widow, as Administrator, applied at the Audit following after for a new Lease, but being refused brought her Bill for that Purpose. And Lord Chancellor said, the Master-Warden betrayed his Trust in Relation to the College, and had acted inconsistently with the Oath he had taken; that he did not like the Recommendation made by the Master, Warden and Fellows, to make a new Lease to the Intestate at the old Rent, it being no less than a Recommendation to their Successors to wrong the College, and break their Statutes, which say, that no Lease should be made but at Rack Rents: And as to the Signing of the Master, Warden and Fellows, that could not be such a Contract as bound the College; for a Contract to bind that must be under its common Seal; wherefore the Bill was dismissed with Costs. Will. 655.

(H) Of the Manner of the Agreement in a Lease, and the Words whereby the same is set down; and what Words will make an Estate for Life or Years.

A Lease made for a thousand Days, Months or Weeks, is as good for so long as it endureth, as a Lease for an hundred or a thousand Years. So a Lease for half a Year, or a whole Year, is good. 6 Co. 72. 14 H. 8. 13.

So if a Lease be made from Day to Day, or from Week to Week, for four Years; this is a good Lease for four Years. Et sic de similibus. Plow. 422.

So if one makes a Lease for ten Years, and so from ten Years to ten Years, during an hundred Years, or until an hundred Years incurred; this is a good Lease for one hundred Years. Plow. 272. Bro. Leases 49.

So if one makes a Lease for three Years to three Years during the Life of J. S. in this Case if Livery of Seisin be not given, this is a good Lease for six Years; but if Livery be given it is a good Lease for the Life of J. S. And if a Lease be made from my Death until Anno Domini 1650. this is a good Lease. Dyer 24.

Livery of Seisin.

If I say to J. S. being in my House, Here J. S. I demise to you my House and Land so long as I live; this is a good Lease for Life to him if Livery of Seisin be made. 6 Co. 26.

If one makes me a Lease of Land until a hundred Pounds be paid me, and makes Livery of Seisin upon it; this is a good Lease for Life determinable upon the Payment of the hundred Pounds. But if no Livery be made, it is no good Lease. 21 Aff.

Executors.

If one makes a Lease to me for my Life, and for four, ten or twenty Years after; this is a good Lease for Life; first if Livery of Seisin be made, and then a good Lease for Years, for so many Years as are agreed upon afterwards, which my Executors shall have. And if no Livery of Seisin be made, yet it seems it is a good Lease for so many Years after my Death. Bro. Leases 27, 51.

If an Indenture of Lease be made between A. of the one Part, and B. C. and D. of the other Part, and therein A. demises Land to B. To have and to hold to him for eighty Years, if B. shall live so long, and if he dies, or aliens the Premises within the Term, then that his Estate shall cease; and then the Lessor grants the Land to C. for so many Years of the said Term as shall be then to come after the Death or Alienation of B. if he lives so long; this is a good Lease to B. for so many Years as he shall live of the eighty Years, but but the Lease to C. after is not good, for the Term is ended by the Death of B. But if the Words of the second Demise be, To have and to hold during the Residue of the eighty Years, and not during the Residue of the Term; the second Demise is good to C. also.

1 Co. 153. Dyer 253.

If one makes me a Lease for sixty Years if I live so long, provided that if I die within the Term, that my Executors shall have it during the Residue of the sixty Years; in this Case this is a good Lease for the sixty Years determinable upon my Death, but not a good Lease for the Residue of the sixty Years after my Death: And yet it may amount to a good Covenant for that Time. 1 Co. 145. Dyer 150, 253.

A Lease for Years cannot by the Agreement of the Parties be made to the Heirs of the Lessee, nor intailed to the Heirs of his Body; and therefore if a Lease be made to J. S. and his Heirs, or to J. S. and the Heirs Male of his Body, yet the Executors of J. S. and not his Heirs, shall have it; and the Executors may sell the Term. 2 Co. 24. 10 Co. 87.

If A. covenants to levy a Fine to B. and his Heirs, provided that if he pays B. and his Heirs 10*l.* at the End of thirteen Years, that then the Fine shall be to the Use of A. and his Heirs; and A. covenants with B. by the same Deed, that B. his Heirs, Executors and Assigns, shall quietly hold the Premises from Michaelmas next for thirteen Years, and yearly from thenceforth for ever, if the 10*l.* be not paid according to the Intent; this Covenant does not make a good Lease for the thirteen Years, and it is but a Covenant. Evan's Case, Trin. 5 Jac. B. R.

If one makes a Lease for a certain Number of Years, and it is further agreed that upon some Contingent the Lessee shall have the Fee-simple, and Livery of Seisin is given hereupon; the Lease for Years continues good for the Time agreed upon. Plow. 272.

If two agree by Word that one of them shall have such a Piece of Land for twenty Years; this is a good and perfect Lease that is made by this Agreement, altho' they agree to have a Writing made of it afterwards; for the Writing is but the Confirmation of it. But if the Agreement be, that such a Writing shall be made, or that a Lease shall be made of such a Thing between them, and put in Writing, so that the Agreement hath Reference to the Writing, and implieth an Intent not to perfect the Agreement till the Writing be made; in this Case the Lease is not a perfect Lease until the Writing be made. Per Justice Jones at Gloucester Assises.

Altho' the most usual and proper making of a Lease is by the Words Demise, Grant, and Words; to Farm let, and with an Habendum for Life or Years; yet a Lease may be made by other Words; for whatsoever Word will amount to a Grant, will amount to a Lease; and therefore a Lease may be made by the Word give, betake, or the like. The Word Locavit also is a good Word. And the Use in the Exchequer is to make Leases by the Word Committimus, which is a good Word to make a Lease. Co. Lit. 5. F. N. B. 270. E. Bro. Leases 71.

And if A. does but grant and covenant with B. that B. shall enjoy such a Piece of Land for twenty Years; this is a good Lease for twenty Years. Bro. Leases 60.

So if A. promises to B. to suffer him to enjoy such a Piece of Land for twenty Years; this is a good Lease for twenty Years. Per Cur' B. R. Mic. 9 Jac.

So if A. licenses B. to enjoy such a Piece of Land for twenty Years; this is a good Lease for twenty Years: And therefore it is the common Course, if a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, or other Estate, upon Condition that if such a Thing be or be done at such a Time, that the Feoffor, &c. shall re-enter, to the End that the Feoffor, &c. may have the Land and continue in Possession until that Time, to make a Covenant that he shall hold and take the Profits of the Land until that Time: And this Covenant will make a good Lease for that Time, if the Incertainty of the Time (whereunto Care must be had) do not make it void. And therefore if A. bargains and sells his Land to B. on Condition to re-enter if he pays him 100*l.* and B. covenants with A. that he will not take the Profits until Default of Payment, or that A. shall take the Profits until Default of Payment: Notwithstanding this may be a good Covenant, yet it was no good Lease. And if the Mortgagee covenants with the Mortgagor, that he will not take the Profits of the Land until the Day of Payment of the Money; in this Case altho' the Time be certain, yet this is no good Lease, but a Covenant only. And if one gives a Bond for the quiet Holding of one Close for three Years; it seems this is no Lease in Law. Agreed by all the Judges, Mic. 20 Jac. & per Justice Bridgman, 8 Car. B. R.

See the Opinion of the Parliament for Bonds and Covenants both, Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11.

(I) Of two Leases at one Time of the same Thing.

IF a Lease be made for Life or Years to A. and after the Lessor makes a Lease for Years to B. regularly this concurrent Lease to B. is a good Lease at least for so many Years of the second Lease, as shall be to come after the first Lease is determined according to the Agreement; as if the first Lease to A. be for twenty Years, and the second Lease to B. be for thirty Years, and both begin at one Time; in this Case the second Lease is good for the last ten Years. And yet the Reversion at the Common Law would not pass without the Attornment of the Tenant; and therefore if any Rent was reserved on the first Lease, the second Lessee shall not have it until the first Lessee attorned, (but now such Attornment is useless). But if the second Lease be for the same or for a lesser Time; as if the first Lease be for twenty Years, and the second Lease be for twenty or ten Years, to begin at the same Time; these second Leases are for the most part void. Plow. 433, 421, 273, 521. Co. 155. 4 Co. 58. Bro. Leases 72, 10.

And yet herein a Difference is taken between Leases made by Matter of Record and by Writing, and Leases that are made by Word of Mouth; for if the second Lease be made by Fine, Deed indented, or Poll, altho' it be but for the same or for a lesser Time, and altho' it be a Lease of the Land itself, and not of the Reversion, yet it will pass the Rent reserved upon the first Lease, if the first Lessee attorns, and so also it will do without Attornment where Attornment is not needful. (As to where Attornment is needful or not, see the End of the last Section.) But if the second Lease be made by Word of Mouth, it is otherwise, for a Reversion and a Rent in this Case will not pass without Deed, and therefore a Grant by Word does not pass them. And if the second Lease be by Fine or Deed indented, then also it will work by way of Estoppel, both against the Lessor and against the Lessee; so that if the first Lease happens by any Means, as by Surrender, or otherwise, to determine before it be run out, then the second Lessee shall have it; and if there be any Rent reserved upon the second Lease, the Lessee must pay it from the Time of making the Lease. Dyer 58, 356. Plow. 421, 422. Co. 155.

And therefore if one makes a Lease of Land to A. for ten Years, and after makes a Lease to B. of the same Land from Michaelmas next for ten Years, and before Michaelmas the first Lessee purchases the Fee-simple, so that now by this Means his Term is drowned; in this Case the second Lease shall begin at Michaelmas. Dyer 112. Plow. 432.

So if one makes a Lease to A. for twenty Years, and A. makes a Lease of the Land to B. for two Years, rendring Rent, and after A. makes a Lease for the Rest of his Time to C. by Deed; this Lease, if the Lessee for two Years attorns, is a good Lease of the Rent and Reversion; and so it is also without Attornment, if there be any Consideration given for it; for then it is also a good Lease for all the Rest of the Term after the two Years. 4 Co. 53. But as to where Attornment is necessary or not, see the End of the last Section.

So if one makes a Lease to A. for twenty Years, if he lives so long, rendring Rent, and after he makes a Lease to B. by Indenture for eighty Years, to begin presently, or grants the Reversion to begin at a Day past, or the like; in all these Cases, if the first Lessee attorned, the Rent would pass; but if not, it would be a good Lease for the Land for so many of the Years as shall be to come after the first Lease ended. But if the second Lease be by Parol without a Deed, the Reversion as a Reversion will not pass, and the Grant will be void if there be nothing else to help it. And in Cases where the second Lease is void, altho' the first Lessee surrenders his Estate, or his Estate ends by a Condition, yet the second Lease is not hereby made good. But if the second Lease for Years after another Lease for Life or Years be made for Money, so as it may be said to pass by way of Bargain and Sale; this may help the Matter; for in this Case, altho' it be by Word only, it may pass the Reversion and the Rent also: But in most Cases it is good for the Remainder of the Term after the first Lease ended. And if the second Lease be to begin after the End of the former Lease; in this Case the former Lease is no Impediment at all to the Validity of the latter Lease, but the latter Lease is good notwithstanding. Co. 155. Plow. 432, 434. Hil. 6 Jac. Finch v. Vaughan. Dyer 112. 2 Co. 35, 36.

(K) Of the Commencement, Continuance and End of the Term or Estate.

A Lease for Years may begin at a Day to come, as at Michaelmas next, or three or ten Years after, or after the Death of the Lessor, or of J. S. and it is as good as where it begins presently. But a Lease for Life of any Thing whatsoever, whether it be in Livery or in Grant, if it be in esse before, cannot begin at a Day to come. And therefore if a Lease be made Habendum from Michaelmas next, or from the Day of the Making it, or after after the Death of the Lessor, or after the Death of J. S. to the Lessee for Life; this Lease is not good: But in Case of a Lease of Land made thus, it is sometimes by the Livery of Seisin. 5 Co. 1. Co. Lit. 48. Plow. 256, 257.

But all Leases for Years, whether they begin in presenti or in futuro, must be certain, that is, they must have a certain Beginning and a certain Ending, and so the Continuance of the Term must be certain, otherwise they are not good. And yet if the Years be certain when the Lease is to take Effect in Interest or Possession, it is sufficient; for until that Time it may depend upon an Uncertainty, viz. upon a possible Contingent precedent before it begins in Possession or Interest, or upon a Limitation or Condition subsequent: But when it is to be reduced to a Certainty upon a Contingent precedent, the Contingent must happen in the Lives of the Parties. And altho' there appears no Certainty of Years in the Lease, yet if by Reference to a Certainty it may be made certain, it is sufficient. Id certum est quod certum reddi potest. As if A. seised of Lands in Fee grants to B. that when B. shall pay to A. twenty Shillings, that from thenceforth he shall hold the Land for twenty-one Years, and after B. pays the twenty Shillings; in this Case B. shall have a good Lease for twenty-one Years from thenceforth. And if A. grants to B. that if his Tenant for Life shall die, that B. shall have the Land for ten Years; this is a good Lease. And if one makes a Lease for Years after the Death of C. if C. dies within ten Years; this is a good Lease if C. dies within the ten Years; otherwise not. But if A. be seised of Land in Fee, and lease it to B. for ten Years, and it is agreed between them that B. shall pay to A. a hundred Pounds at the End of the said ten Years, and that if he does so, and shall pay the said hundred Pounds, and a hundred Pounds at the End of every ten Years, that then the said B. shall have a perpetual Demise and Grant of the Premises from ten Years to ten Years continually following, extra memoriam hominum, &c. altho' this is a good Lease for the first ten Years, yet it is void for all the Rest for Uncertainty. Co. 155. 6 Co. 35. Co. Lit. 45. Plow. 83, 270.

And if a Lease be made to begin from the Nativity of Christ, and he does not say which Nativity, as next, &c. it is void for Uncertainty. Hil. 16 Jac. in Scacc'.

And yet if a Lease for Years be made of Land in Lease for Life, To have and to hold from the Death of the Tenant for Life; this is a good Lease. So if it be, To have and to hold from Michaelmas next after the Death of the Tenant for Life, or from Michaelmas next after the Determination of the Estate of the Tenant for Life; these are good Leases. Plow. 192, 523.

So if there be a former Lease in Being for Life or Years, and another Lease for Years is made of the Land, To have and to hold from the End of the former Estate by Surrender, Forfeiture, or otherwise, for twenty Years; or to have and to hold from the Surrender, Forfeiture, or other Determination of the former Lease, if there be any, and if there be none, for twenty Years; these and such like Leases are good, and this Commencement is certain enough. 6 Co. 36.

And if one makes a Lease to begin after the Death of J. S. and to continue until Michaelmas, which shall be Anno Domini 1650. this is a good Lease. Plow. 525. and 17 Jac. B. R. agreed.

If a Man has a Lease or Land for an hundred Years, and he makes a Lease of this Land to another, To have and to hold to him for forty Years, to begin after his Death; this is a good Lease for the whole forty Years, if there shall be so many of the hundred Years to come at the Time of the Death of the Lessor. But if the Lessor grants the Land to another, To have and to hold to him for and during all the Residue of the Term of an hundred Years that shall be to come at the Time of the Death of the Grantor; this is void for Uncertainty. And yet if in this Case he grants withal, all his Estate, or all his Term, or all his Interest in the Premises of the Deed, and then says, To have and to hold the Land, &c. to the Grantee for all the Residue of the Term of an hundred Years that shall be to come at the Time of his Death; by this the whole Estate and Interest of the Grantor into the Land passes presently by these Words in the Premises of the Deed. And if in this Case the Lessee for an hundred Years makes a Lease of the Land, To have and to hold after his Death for a hundred Years; this will be a good Lease for as many of the first hundred Years as shall be to come at the Time of his Death. Lit. §. 437. Bro. Grant 154. Co. 155. Plow. 520, 521.

If a Man makes a Lease for twenty-one Years, if J. S. lives so long, or if the Coverture between J. S. and D. S. shall so long continue, or if J. S. shall continue to be Parson of Dale so long; these and such like Leases are good. But if A. makes a Lease to B. for so many Years as A. and B. or either of them, shall live, not naming any certain Number of Years; this cannot be a good Lease for Years. So if the Parson of Dale makes a Lease of his Glebe for so many Years as he shall be Parson there; this is not certain, neither can it be made so by any Means. And yet if a Parson shall make a Lease from three Years to three Yaars, so long as he shall be Parson; this is a good Lease for six Years, if he continues Parson so long, and for the Residue void for Incertainty. So if I make another a Lease of Land until he be promoted to a Benefice; this is no good Lease for Years, but void for Incertainty. Co. Lit. 45. Plow. 27.

If I have a Rent-charge of twenty Pounds per Annum, and let it to another until he has levied a hundred Pounds; this is a good Lease for five Years. But if I have a Piece of Land of the Value of twenty Pounds per Annum, and I make a Lease of it to another until he shall levy out of the Profits thereof a hundred Pounds; this is no good Lease for Years, but void for Incertainty. 6 Co. 35. 14 H. 8. 10. Plow. 274.

If A. makes a Lease to B. for ninety-nine Years, to begin after the Death of A. on Condition to be avoided upon the doing of divers Acts by others; and after makes another Lease of the Land, Habendum after the Determination or Redemption of the former Lease; this is a good Lease, and certain enough. Per Justice Bridgman.

But if a Lease be made to A. for eighty Years, if he lives so long, and if he dies within the said Term, or aliens the Premises, that then his Estate shall cease; and then he does further by the same Deed grant and let the Premises for so many Years as shall then remain unexpired after the Death of A. or Alienation to B. for the Residue of the said Term of eighty Years, if he shall live so long; in this Case the Lease to B. is void; for after the Death of A. the Term is at an End; but if he says for the Residue of the eighty Years, it is otherwise. 4 Co. 153. Dyer 253.

If A. makes a Lease of Land to B. for so many Years as B. has in the Manor of Dale, and B. has then a Lease for ten Years of the Manor of Dale; this is a good Lease for ten Years. But if A. makes a Lease of Land until B. upon an Execution shall be satisfied the Duty for which the Execution is sued; this Lease is void for Incertainty. And if a Lease be made during the Minority of J. S. or until J. S. shall come to the Age of twenty-one Years; these are good Leases; and if J. S. dies before he comes to his full Age, the Lease is ended. But if a Lease be made to another until a Child that now is in it's Mother's Belly shall come to the Age of twenty-one Years; this Lease is not good. And if a Lease be made for so many Years as J. S. shall name; in this Case if J. S. names a certain Number of Years in the Life-time of the Party Lessor, this is a good Lease. But if a Lease be made for so many Years as the Executor of the Lessor or Lessee shall name; this Lease is void. Plow. 273, 522, 523. F. N. B. 6. N. 14 H. 8. 11. 6 Co. 35.

But here observe, That in all these Cases of incertain Leases made with such Limitations as aforefaid, as until such a Thing be done, or so long as such a Thing continues, &c. that if Livery of Seisin be made upon them, they may be good Leases for Life, determinable on these Contingents altho' they be no good Leases for Years. Plow. 27. 6 Co. 35.

And in some special Cases a Lease may be good notwithstanding some Incertainty in the Continuance of it; for a Lease may cease for a Time, and revive again; as if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, reserving twenty Shillings, and after takes a Wife and dies without Issue; in this Case as to him in Reversion the Lease is meerly void; but if he endows the Wife of the Tenant in Tail of the Land, as to the Wife, it is revived again. So if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years rendring Rent, and dies without Issue, his Wife enseint with a Son, and he in Reversion enters; in this Case as against him the Lease is void; but after the Son is born, the Lease is good again if it be within the Statute. So if Tenant in Fee-simple takes a Wife, and then makes a Lease for Years, and dies; the Wife is endowed; in this Case she shall avoid the Lease, but after her Decease the Lease shall be in Force again. Co. Lit. 46. 10 E. 3. 26.

Antiently there were no Leases for Years but what were for short Terms, which were little regarded; this was the Reason why if a real Action was brought against the Person who had the Freehold, and a Recovery was thereupon had, tho' by Covin, yet the Lessee for Years, whose Estate was precedent to the Freehold, was bound by this Recovery, and could not falsify till the Statute 21 H. 8. c. 15. and therefore the Leases for Years usually made being but short, a Lease was presumed to have a longer Continuance than any Term; and therefore a Devise of such a Term after a Life was void. Will. 574, 575.

A. possessed of a long Term for Years, made a Lease to B. for five Years, and covenanted for himself and his Executors to renew the Lease at the same Rent, and on the same Covenants, upon the Request of B. within the Term; B. died within the Term, having laid out a considerable Sum in Improvements, and the Executors within the Term requested A. the Lessor to make a new Lease for fifty Years, at the old Rent. Lord Chancellor decreed Lessor to renew, but not for so long as was requested, but for twenty-one Years, that being the usual Term for leasing. 2 Will. 196.

(L) Of Forfeiture by Lessees.

WHERE a Man makes a Lease for Life or Years, upon a Condition of Re-entry for a Forfeiture, or that the Lease shall be void if the Lessee assigns or aliens it without Licence; and afterwards the Lessee assigns it without Licence; this is a Forfeiture; and such a Forfeiture against which this Court cannot relieve, because it is unknown what shall be the Measure of the Damages; for the Court never relieves but in such Cases where it can give some Compensation in Damages, and where there is some Rule to be the Measure of such Damages, to avoid being arbitrary. Mod. Ca. in Law and Eq. 113.

(M) Where a Lease for Life or Years shall be void ipso facto by the Death of the Lessor, or by other Means, or not, but voidable by Entry, &c. and how.

LEASES for Lives or Years are of three Natures; some are good in Law, some avoidable by Entry, and some void without Entry.

Of such as are good in Law, some are good at the Common Law; as Leases made by Tenant in Fee-simple, notwithstanding they be for longer Time than three Lives or twenty-one Years; some by Act of Parliament, as Leases made by Tenant in Tail, Leases made by a Bishop seised in Fee in the Right of his Church alone without the Chapter, Leases made by a Man seised in Fee-simple or Fee-tail of Land in the Right of his Wife, together with his Wife, for twenty-one Years or three Lives, according to the Statutes.

And of such Leases as are void also, some are void at the Common Law, and that sometimes in presenti, as in the Cases before of Leases for Years that have no Certainty in them, or Leases for Lives made without Livery of Seisin, and the like. And some are void in futuro; as if a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, warranted or not warranted by the Statute, and after dies without Issue; this Lease is void as to him in Reversion or Remainder: Cessante statu primitivo cessat derivativus. So if a Prebend, Parson or Vicar, makes a Lease for Years not warranted by the Statutes; this is void by the Death of the Lessor, and the Successor needs not make any Entry or Claim to avoid it. So if a Tenant for Life makes a Lease for Years, and after dies; in this Case the Lease for Years is void; and therefore in all these and such like Cases no Acceptance of Rent after will affirm such Leases. But otherwise it is in Cases of Leases for Years made by Bishops, altho' they be confirmed by Dean and Chapter; and of Leases made by Deans and Chapters, or Tenant in Tail, as to their Successors and Issues, when the Leases are not warranted by the Statutes: And otherwise it is also in the Cases of Leases for Life made by these or any of the former Lessors; for in all Cases of Leases for Life it must be avoided by Entry, &c. and therefore such Leases are not void but voidable, viz. the Leases of Bishops and Deans after their Death by their Successors, by the Statute Law; and the Leases of Tenants in Tail by their Issues after their Death by the Common Law. And in these and such like Cases the Acceptance of the Rent by the Issue or Successor will make good the Lease at least for their Time. Co. Lit. 45. 3 Co. 59, 65. 7 Co. 8.

If a Lease be made for Years, on Condition that upon such a Contingent it shall be void; in this Case so soon as the Thing happens the Lease is void ipso facto without any Re-entry, &c. But if a Lease for Life be made on such a Condition; in this Case the Lessor must enter, &c. before the Lease will be void. 3 Co. 65.

(N) What shall be said a good Lease at Will, or not.

IF one make a Lease to another during the Will and Pleasure of him that lets, or him that takes, or both, (for so in Effect is every Lease at Will); this is a good Lease at Will. So if one makes a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Life, &c. and does not make Livery of Seisin, and so perfect the Estate, the Feoffee or Lessee has only an Estate at Will.

But if a Bargain and Sale be made of Land, and the same is void, or a Corporation grants Land, and the Grant is void; by this there is no Lease at Will made. 14 H. 8. 12. Co. Lit. 55, 56, 270.

(O) Of Repairs, &amp;c. by Lessees.

A Lease was made for a long Term of Years, and in the Lease there was a Covenant that the Lessee should repair; the Lessee makes an Under-Lease to J. S. who is in Possession; the Under-Lessee is not bound by this Covenant in Equity, there being no Assignment ment of the Term; but the proper Remedy is against the first Lessee and his Executors, &c. If a Man makes a Lease rendring Rent, and the Lessee assigns to an insolvent Person, the Lessee in Equity shall be liable to pay the Rent. 1 Vern. 87, 88.

If a Lessee for a long Term of Years covenants to lay out 200*l.* upon the Premises within the first ten Years, and lays out but 30*l.* and after thirty Years of the Lease are expired, the Lessor brings an Action of Covenant, and recovers 150*l.* Damages; Equity will neither relieve against the Damage, nor decree the Money to be now laid out in Improvements; for per Lord Chancellor, tho' the Damage seems excessive, yet the Jury were proper Judges; and to decree it to be laid out now the Lease is almost expired, is not proper; for it is probable the Lessee would not be so careful in laying it out in lasting Improvements, as he would be were it laid out at first. 1 Vern. 316, 317.

The Plaintiff let a Farm to the Defendant by Lease at an annual Rent, and the Defendant covenanted among other Things, not to plough any of the Pasture Land; and if he did plough up any Part of it, that he would pay after the Rate of twenty Shillings per Acre per Annum: But the Defendant ploughing up some of the Pasture, an Injunction was moved for. The Court would not grant any Injunction; and declared, if the Defendant was Plaintiff to be relieved against paying twenty Shillings an Acre for Ploughing, they would not relieve him. 2 Vern. 119.

Long building Leases of Infants Estates, where for their Benefit, have been often decreed by the Court of Chancery. Ibid. 225.

(P) Of Waste committed by Lessees.

A Lessee for Years without Impeachment of Waste, Remainder to the Bishop of London, upon a Bill brought by the Bishop, was enjoined from digging the Ground for Brick. Will. 527.

Lessee for Years, without Waste, cannot pull down an House, or the Trees that are a Defence or Ornament to the House, but may open Mines. Will. 528.

Of Releases.

(A) A Release what, and Releasor and Releasee who.

A Release (Relaxatio) is the giving or discharging of the Right or Action which a Man has or may have or claim against another Man, or that which is his.

Or it is the Conveyance of a Man's Interest or Right which he has unto a Thing to another that has the Possession thereof, or some Estate therein. Terms de la Ley v. Release. Noy's Max. 74. West's Symb. Part 2. §. 466.

He who makes the Release is sometimes called the Releasor, and he to whom it is made the Releasee.

(B) Kinds of Releases.

T H E R E are two Kinds of Releases, viz. expressed and implied.

A Release expressed or in Deed, is a purposed Release, when the Act done, or Deed made, is intended a Release; and this is always made by Writing; and then it is defined by some to be an Instrument whereby Estates, Rights, Titles, Actions and other Things are sometimes extinguished, sometimes transferred, sometimes abridged, and sometimes enlarged, which is after this Manner: Know, &c. that I A. of B. have remised, released, and wholly of me [or for me] and my Heirs, quit-claim'd to C. of D. all the Right, Title and Claim which I have had, I have, or in what Manner soever I may for the future have of and in one Messuage with the Appurtenances in F. &c.

A Release implied or in Law, is when the Law by Intendment and Construction, and by way of Consequence makes a Release of an Act done to another Purpose. And this is sometimes by Writing, sometimes without Writing.

These Releases also are sometimes of a bare and naked Right, and sometimes of a Right accompanied with some Estate or Interest, and sometimes they are of Actions Real, or in Lands or Tenements, and sometimes of Actions Personal, of or in Goods or Chattels, and sometimes of Actions mix'd, partly in the Realty, and partly in the Personality. Co. Lit. 264, 265.

And

And a Release may either be made by Deed Poll or Indenture; and it needs no other Execution than Sealing and Delivery, and will operate without any Consideration.

An Acquittance is a Sort of a Release, and is a Discharge in Writing or by Bill of a Acquittance Sum of Money, or other Duty, which ought to be paid or done; as, what.

If one be bound to pay Money on an Obligation, or Rent reserved upon a Lease, or the like, and the Party to whom the Money or Duty should be paid or done upon the Receipt thereof, or upon some other Agreement between them, makes a Writing under his Hand witnessing that he is paid, or otherwise contented, and therefore doth acquit and discharge him of the same; this is such a Discharge and Bar in the Law that he cannot demand and recover the same again; contrary thereto, if the Acquittance be shewed. Terms de la Ley, verb. Acquittance. Dyer 5.

An Acquittance is only an Evidence or Proof of Payment, but not pleadable, because no Deed.

The Obligor is not bound to pay Money upon a single Bond unless the Obligee makes to him an Acquittance or Release: Nor is he bound to pay it before he has the Acquittance. And in this Case the Obligor may compel the Obligee to make him an Acquittance. And so also it is in Case of a Statute Merchant, one is not bound to pay the Money thereupon before he has the Acquittance or Release of the Plaintiff. But otherwise it is in Case of an Obligation with a Condition, for there a Man may aver Payment. 22 Ed. 4. 6. 41 Ed. 3. 25. 1 H. 7. 15. 22 Ed. 4. 6. Bro. Debt 43. Oblig. 10.

But now by the Stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 16. If an Action of Debt be brought upon a single Bill, if the Defendant has paid the Money due upon such a Bill, such Payment may be pleaded in Bar of the Action upon such Bill.

(C) What shall be said a Release in Law or not, and how:

IF there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord purchases the Tenancy; by this Means the Services are released and extinct in Law.

And if the Lord disseises his Tenant, and makes a Feoffment in Fee by Deed or without Deed; this is a Release in Law of the Seignior. Co. Lit. 264.

If a Disseisee disseises the Heir of the Disseisor, and makes a Feoffment with or without a Deed; this is a Release in Fee in Law of the Right. And if he makes a Lease for Life, this is a Release in Law of the Right, so long as the Lease doth last. Ibid.

If a Creditor, as an Obligee, or the like, makes a Debtor, as the Obligor, &c. his Executor; by this Means the Action is released by Act of Law, and yet the Duty remains still; for the Executor may retain so much of the Goods of the Testator. And if the Creditor be a Woman, and she marries with the Debtor; by this the Debt is released in Law. And if there be two Obligees or Debtors, and one of them being a Woman, is married to the Obligor; this is a Release in Law of the Debt, altho' the Creditor be an Infant. Co. Lit. 264. 8 Ed. 4. 3. 21 Ed. 4. 2.

But if there be a Woman Executrix to the Debtee, and she takes the Debtor to Husband; this is no Release in Law. Mich. 30 & 31. Eliz. B. R. adjudged.

And if an Obligor be made Administrator of the Goods and Chattels of the Obligee; this is no Release in Law. 8 Co. 136.

(D) The Nature and Operation of a Release in general.

A Release is much of the Nature of a Confirmation; for in most Things they agree and produce the like Effects.

It is therefore said sometimes to enure by way of Mitter le Estate, i. e. by way of giving or transferring, or Inlargement of an Estate or Interest, and so gives some new Interest or Estate to him to whom it is made.

And sometimes it is said to enure by way of Mitter le Droit only, by way of giving, transferring and discharging of a Right, Title or Entry unto him to whom it is made.

And so it sometimes perfects an Estate that was imperfect and defeasible before, and enures by way of Entry and Feoffment.

And sometimes it enures to make a conditional Estate absolute.

And sometimes also it works and enures by way of Extinguishment or Discharge.

And then also sometimes it enures by way of Discharge or Extinguishment, as against all Persons, and so as that whereof all Persons may take Advantage.

And sometimes it enures only as a Discharge against some Persons only, and as to or against other Persons by way of Mitter le Droit.

ment of the Term; but the proper Remedy is against the first Lessee and his Executors, &c. If a Man makes a Lease rendring Rent, and the Lessee assigns to an insolvent Person, the Lessee in Equity shall be liable to pay the Rent. 1 Vern. 87, 88.

If a Lessee for a long Term of Years covenants to lay out 200*l.* upon the Premises within the first ten Years, and lays out but 30*l.* and after thirty Years of the Lease are expired, the Lessor brings an Action of Covenant, and recovers 150*l.* Damages; Equity will neither relieve against the Damage, nor decree the Money to be now laid out in Improvements; for per Lord Chancellor, tho' the Damage seems excessive, yet the Jury were proper Judges; and to decree it to be laid out now the Lease is almost expired, is not proper; for it is probable the Lessee would not be so careful in laying it out in lasting Improvements, as he would be were it laid out at first. 1 Vern. 316, 317.

The Plaintiff let a Farm to the Defendant by Lease at an annual Rent, and the Defendant covenanted among other Things, not to plough any of the Pasture Land; and if he did plough up any Part of it, that he would pay after the Rate of twenty Shillings per Acre per Annum: But the Defendant ploughing up some of the Pasture, an Injunction was moved for. The Court would not grant any Injunction; and declared, if the Defendant was Plaintiff to be relieved against paying twenty Shillings an Acre for Ploughing, they would not relieve him. 2 Vern. 119.

Long building Leases of Infants Estates, where for their Benefit, have been often decreed by the Court of Chancery. Ibid. 225.

(P) Of Waste committed by Lessees.

A Lessee for Years without Impeachment of Waste, Remainder to the Bishop of London, upon a Bill brought by the Bishop, was enjoined from digging the Ground for Brick. Will. 527.

Lessee for Years, without Waste, cannot pull down an House, or the Trees that are a Defence or Ornament to the House, but may open Mines. Will. 528.

S E C T. XII.

Of Releases.

(A) A Release what, and Releasor and Releasee who.

A Release (Relaxatio) is the giving or discharging of the Right or Action which a Man has or may have or claim against another Man, or that which is his.

Or it is the Conveyance of a Man's Interest or Right which he has unto a Thing to another that has the Possession thereof, or some Estate therein. Terms de la Ley v. Release. Noy's Max. 74. West's Symb. Part 2. §. 466.

He who makes the Release is sometimes called the Releasor, and he to whom it is made the Releasee.

(B) Kinds of Releases.

T H E R E are two Kinds of Releases, viz. expressed and implied.

A Release expressed or in Deed, is a purposed Release, when the Act done, or Deed made, is intended a Release; and this is always made by Writing; and then it is defined by some to be an Instrument whereby Estates, Rights, Titles, Actions and other Things are sometimes extinguished, sometimes transferred, sometimes abridged, and sometimes enlarged, which is after this Manner: Know, &c. that I A. of B. have remised, released, and wholly of me [or for me] and my Heirs, quit-claim'd to C. of D. all the Right, Title and Claim which I have had, I have, or in what Manner soever I may for the future have of and in one Messuage with the Appurtenances in F. &c.

A Release implied or in Law, is when the Law by Intendment and Construction, and by way of Consequence makes a Release of an Act done to another Purpose. And this is sometimes by Writing, sometimes without Writing.

These Releases also are sometimes of a bare and naked Right, and sometimes of a Right accompanied with some Estate or Interest, and sometimes they are of Actions Real, or in Lands or Tenements, and sometimes of Actions Personal, of or in Goods or Chattels, and sometimes of Actions mix'd, partly in the Realty, and partly in the Personality. Co. Lit. 264, 265.

And

And a Release may either be made by Deed Poll or Indenture; and it needs no other Execution than Sealing and Delivery, and will operate without any Consideration.

An Acquittance is a Sort of a Release, and is a Discharge in Writing or by Bill of a Sum of Money, or other Duty, which ought to be paid or done; as, Acquittance what.

If one be bound to pay Money on an Obligation, or Rent reserved upon a Lease, or the like, and the Party to whom the Money or Duty should be paid or done upon the Receipt thereof, or upon some other Agreement between them, makes a Writing under his Hand witnessing that he is paid, or otherwise contented, and therefore doth acquit and discharge him of the same; this is such a Discharge and Bar in the Law that he cannot demand and recover the same again; contrary thereto, if the Acquittance be shewed. Terms de la Ley, verb. Acquittance. Dyer 5.

An Acquittance is only an Evidence or Proof of Payment, but not pleadable, because no Deed.

The Obligor is not bound to pay Money upon a single Bond unless the Obligees makes to him an Acquittance or Release: Nor is he bound to pay it before he has the Acquittance. And in this Case the Obligor may compel the Obligees to make him an Acquittance. And so also it is in Case of a Statute Merchant, one is not bound to pay the Money thereupon before he has the Acquittance or Release of the Plaintiff. But otherwise it is in Case of an Obligation with a Condition, for there a Man may aver Payment. 22 Ed. 4. 6. 41 Ed. 3. 25. 1 H. 7. 15. 22 Ed. 4. 6. Bro. Debt 43. Oblig. 10.

But now by the Stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 16. If an Action of Debt be brought upon a single Bill, if the Defendant has paid the Money due upon such a Bill, such Payment may be pleaded in Bar of the Action upon such Bill.

(C) What shall be said a Release in Law or not, and how:

IF there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord purchases the Tenancy; by this Means the Services are released and extinct in Law.

And if the Lord disseises his Tenant, and makes a Feoffment in Fee by Deed or without Deed; this is a Release in Law of the Seignior. Co. Lit. 264.

If a Disseisee disseises the Heir of the Disseisor, and makes a Feoffment with or without a Deed; this is a Release in Fee in Law of the Right. And if he makes a Lease for Life, this is a Release in Law of the Right, so long as the Lease doth last. Ibid.

If a Creditor, as an Obligees, or the like, makes a Debtor, as the Obligor, &c. his Executor; by this Means the Action is released by Act of Law, and yet the Duty remains still; for the Executor may retain so much of the Goods of the Testator. And if the Creditor be a Woman, and she marries with the Debtor; by this the Debt is released in Law. And if there be two Obligees or Debtors, and one of them being a Woman, is married to the Obligor; this is a Release in Law of the Debt, altho' the Creditor be an Infant. Co. Lit. 264. 8 Ed. 4. 3. 21 Ed. 4. 2.

But if there be a Woman Executrix to the Debtor, and she takes the Debtor to Husband; this is no Release in Law. Mich. 30 & 31. Eliz. B. R. adjudged.

And if an Obligor be made Administrator of the Goods and Chattels of the Obligees; this is no Release in Law. 8 Co. 136.

(D) The Nature and Operation of a Release in general.

A Release is much of the Nature of a Confirmation; for in most Things they agree and produce the like Effects.

It is therefore said sometimes to enure by way of Mitter le Estate, i. e. by way of giving or transferring, or Inlargement of an Estate or Interest, and so gives some new Interest or Estate to him to whom it is made.

And sometimes it is said to enure by way of Mitter le Droit only, by way of giving, transferring and discharging of a Right, Title or Entry unto him to whom it is made.

And so it sometimes perfects an Estate that was imperfect and defeasible before, and enures by way of Entry and Feoffment.

And sometimes it enures to make a conditional Estate absolute.

And sometimes also it works and enures by way of Extinguishment or Discharge.

And then also sometimes it enures by way of Discharge or Extinguishment, as against all Persons, and so as that whereof all Persons may take Advantage.

And sometimes it enures only as a Discharge against some Persons only, and as to or against other Persons by way of Mitter le Droit.

And some of these in Deed enure by way of Extinguishment, because he to whom the Release is made cannot have the Thing released.

And some of them have some Quality of such Releases, and are said to enure by way of Extinguishment, but in Truth do not, for that he to whom the Release is made may receive and take the Thing released.

And in some Cases also a Release like a Confirmation enures by way of Abridgment.

But a Man cannot bar himself hereby of a Right that shall come to him hereafter. And therefore it is held that these Words used in Releases [Quæ quovismodo in futuro habere poterō] are to no purpose. Co. Lit. 193, 273, 277. Co. 147. Lit. §. 606, 459, 465, 466.

Where a Will shall not operate as a Release.

Tho' a Will cannot enure as a Release, even supposing it to be sealed and delivered, for want of its taking Effect in the Testator's Life-time, yet provided it were expressed to be the Intention of the Party that the Debt should be discharged, the Will would operate accordingly. Will. 85. Vide 2 Will. 332. where A. devised to B. the Debt which B. owed him, and it was said, this could not operate in Strictness as a Release.

(E) How and after what Manner Things may be released.

IF the Charge or Duty grows by Record, the Discharge and Release thereof must be by Record also.

And if it grows by Writing, the Discharge and Release must be by Writing also. Nihil est magis rationi consentaneum quam eodem modo quodque dissolvere quo conflatum est.

And therefore a Duty growing by a verbal Agreement may in some Cases be released by Words without Writing.

But regularly Lands and Tenements cannot be given, nor Rights and Titles to Lands, and Actions be discharged by Release without a Deed in Writing. A Release that enures by way of Mitter le Estate, Mitter le Droit, or Extinguishment, may be made upon Condition, or with a Defeasance, so as the Condition or Defeasance be contained in the Release, or delivered at the same Time with it: For no Defeasance made after can avoid the Force of a Release made before. And yet a Release may be delivered as an Escrow, and so the Force of it may be suspended for a Time. But a Release of a Condition may not be made upon a Condition. Nor may a Release of a Chattel be upon a Condition subsequent, but it may be upon a Condition precedent. Co. Lit. 274. Perk. §. 718. Lit. 467. Co. 111. 21 H. 7. 24.

And therefore if a Man releases a Debt to another upon Condition that the Releasor may have such a Debt owing from a third Person to the Releasee; this is a good Condition. H. 9 Car. B. R. Barkley and Perk's Case.

A Release of all Actions may be made until a Time past, as until the first of May last, or until the Day of the Date of the Release: And this will discharge all Actions till then, and none after. But a Release cannot be made of a Right or Action for a Part of an Estate, or for a Time only, or for one Year, or until Michaelmas next, or the like; for a Release of such a Thing for one Day, or for one Hour, is a Release of it for ever. And yet a Man may release his Right in a Part of the Land. And therefore if a Man be disseised of two Acres, he may release his Right in one of them, and enter into the other Acre. Dyer 307. 21 H. 7. 24. Co. Lit. 274. Lit. §. 467.

Also a Release in the Nature of an Acquittance may be of Part of a Debt. And therefore if one be bound in an Obligation of 400*l.* to pay 200*l.* at Michaelmas, and at Christmas, after the Obligee by his Deed releases 300*l.* Parcel of the said 400*l.* this is a good Release for so much and no more. Adjudged Hil. 9 Car. B. R. Barkley and Perk's Case.

(F) What Things may be released or not.

LANDS, Tenements and Hereditaments themselves may be given and transferred by way of Release, and all Rights and Titles to Lands may be given, barred and discharged by Release, and so also may Rights and Titles to Goods and Chattels.

Also all Actions real, personal and mix'd, may be given, discharged or extinct by Release; for howsoever Rights and Titles of Entry cannot be granted by Act of the Party, nor any Action may be granted from one Man to another by the Act of the Law or the Party, yet all these may be released to the Terre-tenant.

And a Right to a Freehold or Inheritance, Seigniorship or Rent in presenti or futuro, may be released five Manner of Ways; and the first three Ways without any Privy at all.

First, To the Tenant of the Freehold in Deed or in Law.

Secondly, To him in the Remainder.

Thirdly, To him in Reversion.

The other two Ways in respect of Privy without any Estate or Right, as by Demandant to Vouchee, Donor to Donee, after the Donee has discontinued. 10 Co. 48. Co. Lit. 268, 269, 266.

Also Conditions annexed to Estates, Powers of Revocation of Uses, Warranties, Covenants, Tenures, Services, Rents, Commons, and other Profits to be taken out of Lands, may be discharged, extinguished and determined by Release to the Tenant of the Land, &c. Bro. Release in toto.

Also Possibilities of Land, &c. if they be near and common Possibilities, although they be not grantable over to another Person, yet they may be released to him that has the present Estate of the Land. And therefore if a Man possessed of a Term devises it to A. for Life, the Remainder to B. and his Heirs Male during the Term; in this Case although B. may not grant his Interest over, yet he may release it to A. And if A. devises to B. 20 l. when he comes to the Age of Twenty-four Years, and dies, B. after he is of the Age of twenty-one Years may release this Legacy. 10 Co. 47, 51, 52. 5 Co. 70, 71. Co. Lit. 265. Lit. §. 446. Co. 111, 113, 174. Dyer 57.

So a Covenant to do a future Act may be released before it be broken. And it seems also the Conusee of a Statute or Recognisance may release to a Feoffee of Part of the Land, and so bar himself of the Execution of that Land. And if I grant to J. S. that if he does such a Thing he shall have an Annuity of 20 l. during Life; J. S. may release this before the Condition be performed.

And if I make a Feoffment to J. S. to divers Uses with Power to revoke it, I may release this Power to one that has an Estate of Freehold in Possession, Reversion or Remainder in the Land. And yet if I make a Feoffment to J. S. with Proviso, that if B. revokes, that the Uses shall cease; in this Case B. cannot release this Power. And a remote Possibility that is altogether incertain cannot be released. And therefore if the Son of the Disseisee releases to the Disseisor in the Life-time of his Father, this Release is void. And so if the Conusee of a Statute releases his Right to the Land of the Conusor before Execution; this Release is void. And so if a Plaintiff releases to a Bail in the King's Bench before Judgment given, this Release is void. So if one promises to pay me 10 l. upon the Surrender of my Land to him, and that if he sells it for above 50 l. that then he shall pay me 10 l. more, and I release this to him before he does sell it, and before I do surrender; in this Case this does not release the second Promise, because it is not releasable. Adjudged Tr. 14 Jac. B. R.

Also Debts, Legacies, and other Duties may be released and discharged thereby, before or after they become due. And therefore a Rent or Annuity may be released before the Day of Payment, and so also may a Debt due by Obligation: Judgments, Executions, Recognisances, and the like, by apt Words may be discharged by Release.

(G) Things requisite in Releases of Lands and Tenements in general.

IN every good Release in Deed, howsoever it enures, these Things are requisite:

First, That there be a good Releasor and a good Releasee, and a Thing to be released.

Secondly, That the Deed be well sealed, delivered, &c.

(H) Things requisite in Releases that enure by way of enlarging Estates.

First, In respect of the Estate of the Releasor.

IF a Release tends and enures by way of Enlargement of an Estate, then these Things are further required to make the Release good.

First, He that makes the Release must have such an Estate in himself, as out of which such an Estate may be derived and granted to the Releasee as is intended by the Release: As if he has the Reversion in Fee of Lands, he may release to a Tenant for Years, and thereby increase his Estate to an Estate for Life or in Tail, or he may pass his whole Fee-simple by the Release. Dyer 251.

But if there be a Lessee for Years rendring Rent, and the Reversion is granted for Life, the Remainder over in Fee, and the Grantee of the Reversion releases all his Right to him in Remainder, and then he in the Remainder grants the Reversion, and the Tenant for Life releases to the Grantee also; in this Case both these Releases are void, and cannot enure as Releases;

Releases; however it may be if they have Words of Surrender in them, they may enure as Surrenders. Per Justice Jones, 5 Car. Dyer idem.

So if there be Lessee for Years, the Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and the Lessee for Years being a Woman, marries with him in the Remainder in Fee, and he in Remainder in Tail releases to him in Remainder in Fee; this is a void Release. So if Tenant for Life releases to him in Remainder in Fee or in Tail; this is void, and cannot enure as a Release. So if there be Tenant for Life, the Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and he in Remainder in Fee releases to the Tenant for Life; this will not increase his Estate. And if the Tenant in Tail in this Case releases to the Tenant for Life, his Estate shall be no longer increased hereby than for the Life of the Tenant in Tail. Butler's Case, Trin. 5 Jac. B. R. Lit. §. 598. Plow. 556. Co. Lit. 345.

Secondly, In respect of the Estate of him to whom the Release is made.

He to whom the Release is made must have some Estate in Possession in Deed or in Law, or in Reversion in Deed, in his own or another's Right, of the Lands whereof the Release is made to be as a Foundation for the Release to stand upon; for a Release which must enure to enlarge an Estate, cannot work without a Possession joined with an Estate. And therefore the Releasee must be Lessee for Life, Years or Tenant by Statute Merchant, Staple, or Elegit, that holds the Land over for the Value, or at least he must be Tenant at Will. And therefore if a Man lets his Land to another for Term of Years, to begin presently, and after the Lessor or his Heir releases to the Lessee (after his Entry, and being in Possession) all his Right in the Land; this is good to enlarge the Estate according to the Time set down in the Release: But if the Release be before the Term begins, or after the Term begins, and before the Lessee has entred, (howsoever if any Rent be reserved on the Lease, it may enure and be good to extinguish that Rent) yet it is not good to enlarge the Estate. And yet if a Tenant for twenty Years in Possession makes a Lease to B. for ten Years, and B. enters, and he in the Reversion releases to the first Lessee for Years; this is a good Release to enlarge the Estate. So if a Man makes a Lease for Years, the Remainder for Life or Years, and the first Lessee enters; in this Case a Release to him in Remainder is good to enlarge the Estate. So if I grant the Reversion of my Tenant for Life to another for Life, and after release to him and his Heirs; this is a good Release to enlarge the Estate. Co. Lit. 270, 273, 265. Lit. §. 459. Plow. 423. Dyer 4. 15 H. 7. 14.

So if a Man makes a Lease for Life or Years to a Feme Sole, and she takes a Husband, and he in the Reversion releases to the Husband and his Heirs; this is a good Release to enlarge the Estate according to the Words of the Release. But if the Case be so, that a Man had an Estate in Possession of Land, and he be now out of the Possession of it, and has but a Right only to it; or if he has a Possession only and no Estate, or if he has neither Estate nor Possession; in these Cases a Release made to such a one will not avail to enlarge his Estate. Co. Lit. 273.

And therefore if a Man makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder for Life, and the first Lessee dies, and the Lessor releases to him in Remainder for Life before his Entry; this is a good Release to enlarge his Estate, for he has an Estate of Freehold in Law, capable of Enlargement by Release before Entry. Co. Lit. 270.

But if there be a Lessee for Life, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and the Lessee for Life is disseised, and during the Possession of the Disseisor he that has Right releases to one of them in the Remainder; this is void. Lit. §. 451.

So if Lands be given in Tail, or leased for Life, and the Donee or Lessee is disseised, and during the Possession of the Disseisor the Donor or Lessor releases all his Right to the Donee or Lessee; this is void, and will not enlarge his Estate; however if there be any Rent reserved on the Estate, it will extinguish the Rent. Lit. 455, 456.

So if the Tenant by the Curtesy grants over his Estate, and after he in Reversion releases to the Tenant by the Curtesy; in this Case his Release is void, and will not enlarge his Estate. So if an Infant makes a Lease for Life, and the Lessee grants the Estate over with Warranty, and the Infant at full Age brings a Dum fuit infra etatem, and the Tenant vouches the Grantor, who enters into the Warranty, and the Demandant being the Infant, releases to him and his Heirs; this will not enlarge his Estate; for in Truth he had no Estate before, and that which is not cannot be enlarged. Co. Lit. 273.

And if a Lessee for Life or Years releases to him in Remainder or Reversion, this cannot be good as a Release; however if there be apt Words, it may amount to a Surrender. Dyer 251.

And if a Man has only an Occupation of Land as Tenant at Sufferance, as when a Lessee for Years holds over his Term, or the like, no Release to him can work any Enlargement of of Estate; for altho' he has a Possession, yet he has no Estate, and besides in this Case there is no Privy, which is the third Thing required in these Releases. Co. Lit. 271. Lit. §. 461.

Thirdly, In Respect of Privy.

As in all these Cases that enure by way of Increase or Passing an Estate, there must be some Estate in the Releasor and the Releasee; so there must be some Privy in Estate between them at the Time of the Release made, for an Estate without Privy is not sufficient. And therefore it must be between Donor and Donee, Lessor and Lessee, and the like, as in the Cases before, between him in the Reversion and the Lessee for Life or Years, Tenant by Statute Merchant or Staple, or by Elegit, that keeps the Land for the Value. Co. Lit. 296. Lit. §. 461.

And if Tenant for Life leases for Years, and he in the Reversion and the Tenant for Life join together and release to the Lessee for Years; this is a good Release to enlarge the Estate. Plow. 541.

So if he in Reversion releases to the Husband who has an Estate in the Right of his Wife only for Life or Years; this is a good Release. Co. Lit. 273.

So if Lessee for Years makes a Lease of the Land but for Part of the Term, the Privy continues still, and therefore a Release to him is good to enlarge the Estate. But if he assigns over all the Term, then the Privy is gone, and therefore a Release made to him afterwards is void; and then a Release made to the Assignee of the Term is good to enlarge the Estate. Dyer 4. 3 Co. 22.

And if a Disfeisor makes a Lease for Life or Years, and after he and the Disfeisee join together to make a Release to the Lessee for Life or Years; this is a good Release to enlarge the Estate. But if the Disfeisor in this Case makes a Lease for Life or Years, the Release is void for want of Privy. Plow. 540. 14 H. 7. 4. Lit. §. 518.

And if there be Lessee for Years, the Remainder for Life, and he in Reversion releases to the Lessee for Years, or him in Remainder for Life, and his Heirs, all his Right; this is a good Release to work an Enlargement of Estate. So if one makes a Lease for Life, and grants the Reversion for Life, and then the Lessor releases to the Grantee of the Reversion and his Heirs; this is a good Release to enlarge the Estate of the Grantee, and here is Privy enough. Co. Lit. 273.

If A. be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to A. in Fee, and A. dies, and his Heir releases all his Right to B. being in Possession; this is a good Release, and gives the Fee-simple. Bro. Release 71.

But if A. makes a Lease to B. for Life, and the Lessee makes a Lease for Years, and after A. in the Life-time of the Tenant for Life makes a Release to the Lessee for Years; this Release is void, and will not enlarge his Estate for want of Privy. So if a Man makes a Lease for twenty Years, and the Lessee makes a Lease for ten Years, and the first Lessor releases to the second Lessee and his Heirs; this Release is void. So also if the Donee in Tail makes a Lease for his own Life, and the Donor releases to the Lessee and his Heirs; this Release is void. So also if the Donee in Tail makes a Lease for his own Life, and after the Donor releases to the Donee and his Heirs; this is not a good Release. Co. Lit. 273. Lit. §. 516.

Also one Jointenant or Coparcener may release to another, and thereby transfer all his Estate, and give the whole Interest unto his Companion; and this is a good Release to pass all his or her Part of the Land. And if there be three Jointenants in Fee, and they make a Lease for Life, and after two of them release all their Right in the Land to the third; this is a good Release. So if one makes a Lease for Life to another, and after he grants the Reversion to seven, and the Tenant for Life attorns, and after four of the seven release all their Right to the other three, and after one of the three releases to the other two; these are good Releases. So if a Lease for Years be made to two, or to begin at a Day to come, a Release by one of them to the other is good to give all the Term and all the Land to the Releasee. But it seems one Tenant in Common cannot release to another Tenant in Common. Bro. Release 77. Perk. §. 84. 10 H. 4. 3.

Fourthly, In Respect of Words whereby it is made.

Sufficient Words in Law are required in such a Release, not only to make a Release (which is required in all Releases) but also to raise and create a new Estate. Therefore observe, that all Releases (of what Kind soever) are commonly made by the Words remised, released and quitted Claim, as being the most antient and significant Words to this Purpose. And amongst these the Word Release is the most effectual Word, as that which includes the other two, and as that which is the proper and peculiar Word for this Kind of Conveyance. Co. Lit. 273, 401.

But there are other Words also by which a Release may be made, as renounce, acquit, &c. And therefore it is held, that if one has Common in another's Land, and he by Deed releases it to him thus; I renounce my Common, &c. this is a good Release. And if the Lessor does but grant to his Lessee for Life that he shall be discharged of the Rent, this is a good Release of the Rent. And it is a Rule, That by what Words a Debt or Duty may be created, by Words of a contrary Signification it may be released. And therefore if one acknowledges himself to be satisfied and discharged a Debt, this is a good Release of the Debt. 9 H. 6. 35. Dyer 116. Lit. §. 544. Co. Lit. 264. Dyer 307. 9 Co. 52.

And for Words to raise the Estate, it is usual and most safe to specify in the Deed what Estate he to whom the Release is made shall have; and in most Cases this is needful: For it is generally true, that when a Release enures by way of Enlargement of Estate, no Inheritance in Fee-simple or Fee-tail can pass without apt Words of Inheritance. And therefore if I make a Lease of Land to another for his Life, and after I release to him all my Right without saying more in the Release; hereby his Estate is not enlarged. But if I release to him and his Heirs, by this he has a Fee-simple. And if I release to him and the Heirs of his Body, by this he has an Estate-tail. But where a Release works by way of Mitter le Estate, then in some Cases there need not any Words of Inheritance; and in Cases where Releases are made between Jointenants and Coparceners, as where a joint Estate is made to the Husband and Wife, and a third Person and their Heirs, and the third Person releases all his Right to the Husband alone, or the Wife alone. So if there be three Jointenants, and one of them releases to one of the other two; in all these and such like Cases there needs not any Limitation of the Estate, for the Release is good without it. Co. Lit. 273. Lit. §. 465, 468, 469.

(H) Things requisite in Releases of Lands and Tenements that only give, discharge or extinguish any Right or Title of Lands.

First, In Respect of the Estate of the Releasor.

IN every good Release in Deed that tends and enures to give, discharge or extinguish any Right or Title of Lands, it is also further requisite,

First, That he who makes it has at the Time of making the Release some Right or Title to release. As where one disseises me of Land, and I release to him all my Right in the Land; this is a good Release. So if one disseises my Tenant for Life, and I (being the next in Remainder or Reversion in Fee) do release to him that did make the Disseisin; this is a good Release. So if the Husband makes a Lease for Life, and then takes a Wife and dies, and the Wife releases her Dower to him in Reversion; this is a good Release. And so also if after the Marriage a Man makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder in Fee, and she releases all her Right to him in Remainder in Fee, or to him in Reversion; this is a good Release, and will bar her for ever. Litt. §. 466. Co. Lit. 265. 5 Co. 70, 71. Co. 111. 8 Co. 151.

And therefore if the Releasor has only a Possibility of a Right, or a Right happens to come to him after the Release; this is not sufficient to make the Release good.

And therefore if the Father be disseised, and the Son before his Father's Death releases all his Right to the Disseisor, and after the Father dieth, so that the Right doth descend; this is no good Release to bar the Releasor of his Right.

So if there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Father disseises the Grandfather, and makes a Feoffment, and the Son releases in the Life-time of his Father, and after the Father and Grandfather die; this Release in this Case will not bar him.

So if a Lease be made for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of J. S. and the Lessee is disseised, and the eldest Son of J. S. living his Father doth release to the Disseisor; this Release is void.

So if the Conusee of a Statute, &c. releases to the Conusor all his Right in the Land, this is void, and he may sue Execution after notwithstanding.

Or if the Releasor have only a Power; this is not sufficient to make a Release good.

And therefore if a Man by his Will devises that his Executor shall sell his Land, and dieth, and the Executors release all their Right and Title in the Land to their Heir; this is void.

Secondly,

Secondly, In Respect of the Estate of him to whom the Release is made.

In all Cases of a Release of a bare Right of a Freehold in Lands or Tenements, he to whom the Release is made must at the Time of the Making thereof in any Case have the Freehold in Deed or in Law in Possession, or some Estate in Remainder or Reversion in Deed (and not in Right only) in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or for Life, of the Lands whereof the Release is made: For Rights of Entry, and Actions, and the like, are not to be transferred to Strangers, but are thus to be released, as such Releases are good.

As if the Disfeisee releases to the Disfeisor himself who hath the Freehold in Deed, or to the Heir of the Disfeisor before his Entry, who hath the Freehold in Law, or to the Lessee for Life of the Disfeisor; these Releases are good.

So if a Disfeisor makes a Lease to A. and his Heirs during the Life of B. and A. dies, and the Disfeisee releases to his Heir before his Entry; this is a good Release. Co. Lit. 267.

So if a Fine Sur consufance de droit come ceo, &c. or Sur consufance de droit only (which is a Feoffment on Record) be levied; or if Tenant for Life, by Agreement of him in the Reversion, surrenders to him in the Reversion; or if a Man do bargain and sell his Land by Deed indented and inrolled; or Uses are raised by Covenant on good Considerations; in all these Cases the Conufee, he in Reversion, Bargainee, and Cestuy que Use, have a Freehold in Law in them before Entry.

And therefore a Release to them of the Right of the Land by him that hath it is good, and will bar the Releasor.

But otherwise it is in Cases of Exchange, Partition, or upon Livery within the View; for in these Cases no Release is good until an actual Entry made, for till then they have neither Freehold in Right nor Law.

So if a Disfeisor makes a Gift in Tail, or Lease for Life or Years of the Land, and keeps the Reversion, and then the Disfeisee or his Heir releases to the Disfeisor all his Right; this is a good Release to bar his Right for ever.

So if the Heir of the Disfeisor be disfeised, and the first Disfeisee do after release to him all his Right; this is a good Release to bar him.

So if a Donee in Tail discontinues in Fee, and the Donor releases to the Discontinuee, and dies; this is a good Release against the Donor.

So if the Donee in Tail be disfeised, and after the Donor releases to the Donee all his Right; this is good: But in this Case nothing of the Reversion will pass by the Release, for the Donee had then nothing but a Right.

But if any Rent be reserved on the Estate-tail, the Rent is gone by the Release.

So if a Lease be made to one for Life rendring Rent, and the Lessee is disfeised, and the Lessor releases to the Releasee and his Heirs all his Right; in this Case altho' the Rent be extinct, yet nothing of the Right of the Reversion doth pass.

And yet if a Woman that hath a Right of Dower releases to the Guardian in Chivalry; this is a good Release, and her Right or Title of Dower is gone.

But if a Disfeisor makes a Lease for Years, and the Disfeisee releases to the Lessee for Years; this Release is void because he hath no Freehold.

But if he makes a Lease for Life, and the Disfeisee releases to the Lessee for Life; this is a good Release.

So also a Release to the Disfeisor after the Lease for Years made is good.

And if Lessee for Years be ousted, and he in the Reversion disfeised, and the Disfeisor makes a Lease for Years, and the first Lessee releases to him; this is a good Release. Lit. §. 448, 449, 455, 456. Co. Lit. 265, 266, 275. 1 H. 6. 4. Dyer 302.

Also in some Cases a Release made to one that hath neither Freehold in Deed nor Freehold in Law, is good when he hath an Estate in Reversion or Remainder, as in the Case before, where the Release is made by the Disfeisee to the Disfeisor after he hath made an Estate for Life.

So if the Demandant in a real Action release to the Tenant that comes in by Receipt upon a Prayer of Aid, or voucher upon a Warranty; this is good.

And yet if it be before the Receipt or Entry into the Warranty, or it be by any other besides the Demandant, it is void.

So if the Tenant in a real Action aliens, hanging the Præcipe quod reddat against him, and after Alienation the Plaintiff releases all his Right in the Land to him; this is a good Release.

So if a Disfeisor makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder to another for Life, the Remainder to a third in Tail, the Remainder to a fourth in Fee, and the Disfeisee releases to either of them in Remainder; this is a good Release.

I

But

But if in this Case Tenant for Life be disseised, and after he that hath Right (the Possession being in the Disseisor) doth release to either of them in Remainder; this is a void Release. Lit. §. 448, 449, 450, 451. 8 Co. 151.

Thirdly, In Respect of Privity.

But in all the Cases of a Release of a bare Right to him that hath the Estate of a Freehold in Deed or in Law, generally there needs no Privity to make the Release good; as in the Cases before of a Release made to the Tenant for Life of the Disseisor, and them that follow.

For if Tenant for Life makes a Lease to another for Life of the Lessee, the Remainder over in Fee, and the first Lessor releases all his Right to him to whom the Tenant made the Lease for Life; this is a good Release and a perpetual Bar, altho' the Release be not to him and his Heirs. And so it is in Case of a Reversion.

If Lessee for Years be ousted, and he in the Reversion disseised, and the Disseisor makes a Lease for Years, and the Lessee that is ousted doth release to the Lessee or the Disseisor; this is a good Release.

And yet if the Disseisee do release to the Lessee for Years of the Disseisor; this is void.

If Lessee for a thousand Years be ousted by the Lessor, and he makes a Lease for two Years, and the Lessee for a thousand Years releases unto him; this is a good Release.

But if a Lessor disseises his Lessee for Life, and makes a Lease for a thousand Years, and the Lessee for Life releases to this Lessee of a thousand Years; this is void. Co. Lit. 275. Lit. §. 470, 471. 10 Co. 48.

If one be disseised, and after another doth disseise him, and the Disseisee releases to the last Disseisor; this is a good Release.

So if A. disseises B. who infeoffeth C. with Warranty, who infeoffeth D. with Warranty, and E. disseiseth D. to whom B. the first Disseisee releaseth; this is a good Release, and doth defeat all the mean Estates and Warranties.

So if my Disseisor leases for Life, and the Lessee for Life aliens in Fee, and I release to the Alienee all my Right, &c. this is a good Release, and will bar me of my Entry: But if my Entry be gone, as if I lease for Life, and my Lessee be disseised, and that Disseisor is disseised, and I release to the second Disseisor; in this Case the first Disseisor may enter upon the second.

So if my Disseisor in the Case aforesaid make a Lease for Life, and the Lessee for Life makes a Feoffment to two, and I release to one of the Feoffees; this is a good Release, and will bar me and my Disseisor also.

So if Tenant for Life let the Land to another for the Life of the Lessee, the Remainder to another in Fee, and the Lessor releases to his Tenant for Life; this is a good Release. Lit. §. 473, 470, 471, 478. Co. Lit. 277.

If one that hath a Son within Age be disseised and die, and the Disseisor die seised and the Land descend to his Heir, and a Stranger abate, to whom the Son when he comes of Age doth release; this is a good Release.

So if one be disseised by an Infant which doth alien in Fee, and the Alienee dies seised, and his Heir entreth, the Disseisor being within Age, and the Disseisee releases to the Heir of the Alienee; this is a good Release.

But where an Inheritance or an Estate for Life is released to one that is but Tenant for Years; the Release is not good without Privity.

And therefore if Tenant for Life or in Fee releases to the Lessee for Years of his Disseisor; this is not good.

But the Release of a Term of Years to the Lessee for Years of him that doth eject him, is good enough without Privity, as in the Case before. 9 H. 6. 43. 10 Co. 48.

But here note, that in Cases of a void Release of a Right to an Inheritance or Freehold, where there is a Warranty contained in the Deed, the Warranty may be good, and be used by way of Rebutter, altho' the Release be void.

As if the Son of the Disseisee releases with Warranty in the Life-time of his Father, or there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Father disseises the Grandfather, and makes a Lease with Warranty and dies; in both these Cases, altho' the Son be not barred by the Release, yet he is barred by the Warranty. Co. Lit. 265.

Fourthly,

Fourthly, In Respect of the Words whereby it is made.

Such Words as will make a good Release in the Cases of Releases that enure by way of Inlargement of Estate, will make a good Release in these Cases.

And note, that this Kind of Release is good without any Limitation or Specifying of the Estate; for by a Release of all a Man's Right, without saying, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs, &c. in all the Cases before, he that makes the Release is barred of his Right for ever; for if I be seised of an Estate in Fee by Wrong, and he that hath Right releases to me all his Right, altho' it be but for one Hour, yet this is a good Release for ever.

(1) Of Releases of other Things than Lands or Tenements, as Seigniories, Rents, Common, Debts, &c.

First, Of a Seignior, Rent-Service, Common, or the like.

IF there be Lord and Tenant, and the Lord releases to the Tenant all his Right that he has in the Seignior, or all his Right that he has in the Land, &c. this is a good Release to extinguish the Seignior. And in this Case there need no Words of Inheritance or Limitation; for by Release of all the Right in the Seignior, the same is extinct for ever, without saying To him and his Heirs. And yet in this Case the Lord may by apt Words release his Seignior to the Tenant only in Tail or for Life, and it shall be good so long. But if a Lord grants to his Tenant that he shall do his Suit to another Manor of the Lord's, or that the Tenant shall give him yearly 12 d. for his Suit; this Grant will not extinguish and determine the Services or Tenure. Lit. §. 480. Co. Lit. 280, 305. Perk. §. 70.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant be disseised, and after the Lord releases all his Right, &c. to the Tenant: By this Release the Service or Seignior is extinct, for altho' a Right regularly cannot be released to him that has but a bare Right, yet a Seignior may be released and extinct to him that has but a bare Right in the Land. But if the Tenant makes a Feoffment in Fee, and then the Lord releases all his Right, &c. to the Tenant; this is not good to extinguish the Seignior or Services, but it will discharge all the Arrearages. Lit. §. 457. 10 Co. 58. Co. Lit. 268.

If a Rent-Charge, Common of Pasture, or any other Profit appender be issuing out of my Land, and he that has it releases it to me; this is a good Release, and will extinguish it: But if I be disseised of the Land, and have but a Right at the Time of the Release made, the Release is not good, as it is in the Case of a Rent-Service and a Seignior: But if Lands be given to me in Tail or for Life, rendring Rent, and I be disseised, and after the Donor releases to me all his Right in the Land; this is a good Release, and shall extinguish the Rent. So if in this Case where I am Tenant in Tail, and I make a Feoffment in Fee rendring Rent, and after I release to the Feoffee; this is a good Release, and hereby the Rent is extinct. And if two Coparceners be of a Rent, and one of them take the Terretenant to Husband, and after either of them releases; these Releases will be good. Lit. §. 480, 336, 357. Co. Lit. 273, 305. Lit. §. 455, 456.

If one disseises me of Land, and then grants a Rent-Charge out of the Land, and I reciting the same, grant a Release to the Grantee: This Release it seems is good, and will bar me so as after my Re-entry I shall not be able to avoid it. Lit. §. 527. Co. Lit. 300.

Secondly, Of an Advowson, &c.

If two have the Grant of the next Advowson or Avoidance of a Church before it be void, one of them may release to the other, but afterwards they cannot.

Thirdly, Of a Condition.

If A. makes a Feoffment in Fee, Gift in Tail, Lease for Life or Years to B. on Condition that upon such a Contingent it shall be void: In this Case A. may before Condition broken release all his Right in the Land, or release the Condition to B. and this will be good to make the Estate absolute, and to discharge the Condition. So if a Feoffee on Condition makes a Gift in Tail or Lease for Life, and after the Feoffor releases to the Donee or Lessee; this is a good Release to discharge the Condition. So if a Copyholder surrenders to the Use of another on Condition, and this is presented to be without Condition, and after the Surrendror releases to him to whose Use the Surrender was made all his Right, &c. this is a good Release, and extinguishes the Condition. But if a Disseisor makes a Feoffment on Condition, and the Disseisee releases to the Feoffee on Condition; howsoever this bars the Right of the Disseisee, yet it does not discharge the Condition. Co. 112. Perk. §. 823, 764.

Fourthly, Of a Power of Revocation.

Where a Power or Authority is such that respects the Benefit of the Lessor, as in the usual Cases of Power of Revocation of Uses, when the Feoffor, &c. has Power to alter, change, determine or revoke the Uses being intended for his Benefit, and he releases to any one that has a Freehold in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, by the former Limitation: This is a good Release, and extinguishes the Power, and makes the Estates that were before defeasible absolute, and he excludes him from any Power of Alteration or Revocation. But if the Power be collateral, or to the Use of a Stranger, and nothing to the Benefit of him that makes the Release: As if A. makes a Feoffment to B. to divers Uses, provided that B. shall revoke the Uses, and B. releases to any one of them that has an Use; this does not extinguish the Power, as in Case where the Power is given to A. and A. releases it. Co. 112, 113, 173, 174.

Fifthly, Of a Warranty.

If a Feoffment be made with Warranty, and the Feoffee releases the Warranty; this makes it extinct. And so it is of other Warranties. But if Tenant in Tail releases the Warranty annexed to his Estate-tail, this does not extinguish the Warranty. Bro. Release 88, 21 H. 7. 29. 5 Co. 27.

Sixthly, Of Debts and other Personal Duties.

1. In Respect of Persons.

Any Man may release any Debt or Duty due to himself. Also a Man may discharge or release any Thing, or any Wrong done to his Wife before or after the Marriage. And therefore, if a Trespass were done, or a Promise were made to my Wife before the Marriage, I may at any Time during the Marriage release it. So if any Wrong be done, or Obligation, Statute or Promise made to her alone, or to her and me together at any Time during the Marriage; I alone may release and discharge this. And if my Wife be an Executrix to any other Man, I may release any Debt or Duty due to the Testator.

And if a Legacy be given to a Feme Sole to be paid at Michaelmas next, and I marry her, and I release the Legacy before the Day, the Legacy is gone. Per Chief Justice B. R. Mic. 17 Jac.

An Infant Executor may release a Debt duly paid him of the Testator's Debt; but if he releases that which he does not receive, it is a void Release. And regularly the Release of an Infant is void. 5 Co. 27.

2. In Respect of the Time.

An Executor before Probate of the Will may release a Debt or Duty due to the Testator, and this Release is good to bar him. 5 Co. 27. 9 Co. 39.

A future or contingent Promise may be released and discharged before the Contingent happens. Trin. 4 Jac. in Elton's Case.

A Debt on an Obligation or Rent may also be released before the Day of Payment as well as after, but not by the same Words: And therefore if one promises to J. S. that upon the Surrender of J. S. he will pay him 110 l. and after the Promise and before the Surrender he releases this Debt; this discharges the Debt. But if the Promise be, that if the Surrendree shall sell the Land, and shall have 500 l. and then he shall pay the Surrendror 100 l. more, and the Surrendror before Sale releases this Sum; this is no Discharge of it. And yet a Release of the Promise is a Discharge of it. And if A. promises to me, that if J. S. does not pay me 100 l. 1 October that he owes me, that A. will pay me the 100 l. 1 November, and I 10 September release to him this Debt, or all Actions and Demands; this Release is not good to discharge this Promise. But by a Release of the Promise the same is discharged. Hil. 16 Jac. B. R. Brisco v. Heirs.

3. In Respect to Words.

And all these Releases must be made by apt Words, and such as the Law shall judge sufficient for that Purpose. 9 Co. 53.

And in all these Cases Care must be had there be no Mistakes; for Mistakes will make Releases and Confirmations void as well as other Grants. And therefore if A. makes a Release to B. in this Manner: Know, &c. that I A. of B. have remised, &c. B. all Actions which the same B. has against A. whereas it should be, Which the same A. has against B. this Release is void. Bro. Release 56, 58.

If a Man releases to another all Actions, and does not say further which he has against him; this is as good a Release as if these Words were inserted, Quod necessario subintelligitur non deest. Bro. Release 29.

(K) The Force and Virtue of a Release, and how it shall enure and be construed.

First, In Respect of the Persons; and where a Release made by one shall bind another, and where not; and where a Release made to one shall enure to others, or not.

WHERE divers join in any Suit or Action to recover any Personal Thing of which they are to have the joint Benefit or Interest when the Law does not compel them to join, there the Release of one of them shall bar all the Rest. And therefore if two Men join in an Action of Debt, Trespas, or the like, and one of them alone releases to the Defendant; this is a Bar to the other Plaintiffs also. So if a Statute or an Obligation be made to two or more, and one of them releases it to the Conusor or Obligor; this is a Discharge of the whole Duty, and a Bar to the Rest, so that they can make no Use of the Statute or Obligation. But if divers be charged in an Action, and they for the Discharge of themselves only join in a Suit or Action, where also they can do no otherwise, being compelled by Law to join; in this Case the Release of one of them shall not hurt the others. And therefore if divers join in a Writ of Error, Attaint, or Audita Querela, and one of them releases to the Defendant in the Writ; this will not bar the Rest of their Remedy, but they may go on in their Suit notwithstanding. 5 Co. 22. Bro. Releases 84, 94. Stat. 23 H. 8. c. 3.

If there be two or more Executors, and one of them alone releases a Debt or Duty to the Executors; Testator before Judgment obtained in a Suit had by all the Executors against the Debtor; this will bar all the Rest.

But it is otherwise after Judgment obtained. 21 H. 7. 4.

A Release made to the Tenant in Tail, or for Life, of the Right to the Land, shall avail and enure to him that hath a Reversion or Remainder in Deed, and so e converso. A Release made to him that hath a Remainder or Reversion will avail and enure to the Benefit of him that has the Estate-tail for Life, or Years precedent. As if a Disseisor makes a Lease for Life, and the Dissee releases to the Tenant for Life; this shall enure to the Disseisor. So if he or a Tenant for Life makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder in Tail, the Remainder in Fee, and the Dissee or first Lessor releases all his Right to any of them in Remainder; this shall enure unto and benefit all the Rest. And if the Husband makes a Lease of his Wife's Land to one for Life, the Remainder to another in Fee, and the Wife after his Death releases all her Right in the Land to him in Remainder; this shall enure to the Lessee for Life. Co. Lit. 275, 290, 267, 268. 8 Co. 151.

If a Disseisor makes a Lease for Life, and the Dissee releases all his Right to the Tenant for Life; this shall enure to the Benefit of the Disseisor. But if the Dissee releases no more to the Tenant for Life but all Actions; this Release will not benefit him in Remainder or Reversion after the Death of the Tenant for Life. Co. Lit. 275.

If a Disseisor makes a Feoffment to two in Fee, and the Dissee releases to one of the Feoffees; this shall enure to both. Lit. §. 472.

If a Tenant in Tail be disseised by two, and he releases to one of them; this shall enure to them both: But if the King's Tenant be disseised by two, and he releases to one of them; this shall not enure to the other. So if two Jointenants make a Lease for Life, and then disseise the Tenant for Life, and he releases to one of them; in this Case his Companion shall have no Benefit by it. Co. Lit. 276.

If a Tenant in Fee-simple be disseised by two, or two do abate or intrude, and he releases to one of them; the other shall have no Benefit thereby. But if Tenant for Life after he is disseised releases to one of the Disseisors; this shall enure to both. Lit. §. 422, 512.

And

And if there be two Disseisors, and they make a Lease for Life or Years, and after the Disseisee releases to one of the Disseisors; this shall enure to them both, and to the Benefit of the Lessee for Life also. Co. Lit. 276.

And if a Lessee for Years be ousted, and he in Reversion disseised, and the Lessee releases to the Disseisor; the Term of Years is hereby extinct, the Disseisee may take Advantage of it, and enter presently.

But if two Jointenants in Fee be disseised by two Disseisors, and one of the Disseisees releases to one of the Disseisors all his Right; this shall enure to the other, for this extends but to a Moiety.

If Tenant for Life be disseised by two, and he in the Reversion and the Tenant for Life join in a Release to one of the Disseisors; this shall not enure to the other. But if they do severally release their several Rights, their several Releases shall enure to both the Disseisors. Co. Lit. 276.

If a Mortgagee upon Condition after the Condition broken be disseised by two, and the Mortgagor that has the Title of Entry releases to one of the Disseisors, this shall enure to both. And the like Law is for an Entry for Mortmain, or a Consent to Ravishment, &c. Ibid.

If there be Lord and two Jointenants, and the Lord releases to one of them; this shall avail his Companion. Co. Lit. 269.

If Tenant in Fee simple makes a Feoffment in Fee, and after the Lord releases to the Feoffor; this shall not enure to the Feoffee to extinguish the Seignior. But if he releases to the Feoffee, this shall enure to the Feoffor to extinguish the Seignior.

If there be Lord and Tenant, and the Tenant makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder in Fee, and the Lord releases to the Tenant for Life; the Rent is hereby wholly extinguished, and he in Remainder shall take Advantage of it: As when the Heir of a Disseisor is disseised, and the Disseisor makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder in Fee, and the first Disseisee releases to the Tenant for Life; this shall enure by way of Extinguishment to him in Remainder, viz. to the Lessee for Life first, and after to him in Remainder. Co. Lit. 279.

If two Tenants in Common of Land grant a Rent of forty Shillings out of it, and the Grantee releases to one of them; this shall not enure to the other. But if one be Tenant for Life of Lands, the Reversion in Fee to another, and they join in the Grant of a Rent out of the Lands, and the Grantee releases either to the Tenant for Life, or to him in Reversion; this shall enure to the other, and extinct the whole Rent. Co. Lit. 267.

If two Men gain an Advowson by Usurpation, and the right Patron releases to one of them; this Release shall enure to them both.

If two be bound jointly and severally in any Obligation, or other Specialty, and the Obligee, &c. releases to one of them; this shall enure to discharge the other also, if it be a good Release as to him that makes it. But otherwise it is in Case of a Release made by the King. 5 Co. 59. Co. Lit. 232. Lit. §. 376.

And if two commit a Trespass on another together, and he on whom it is made releases it to one of them; this shall enure to discharge the other. If Husband and Wife and J. S. purchase to them and the Heirs of the Husband, and after J. S. releases all his Right in the Land to the Husband; the Wife shall not have Benefit by this, but it shall enure to the Husband alone. And if there be two Women joint Disseisores, and the one takes a Husband and the Disseisee releases to the other; in this Case the Husband and Wife will take no Benefit by this. And if the Disseisee releases to the Husband, this shall enure to him and his Wife and the other Woman. And if one that has a Rent out of my Wife's Land releases it to me and my Heirs; this shall enure by way of Extinguishment, and my Wife shall have Advantage of it. And yet if the Words be, Grant and Release the Rent to the Husband and his Heirs, the Husband may take as a Grant if he will. Dyer 319. Co. Lit. 273, 276. 14 H. 8. 6.

But here note, all these Cases of Releases when one Man will take Advantage of a Release made to another, he must have the Release to shew and plead. Co. Lit. 232.

If I be disseised, and I release to the Disseisor all Actions I have or may have against him; this is but personal, and shall not be expounded to bar my Heir after my Death of his Remedy; neither will it bar me of my Remedy against his Heir after his Death. So if I deliver Goods to another, and afterwards I release to him all Actions, and then he dies; by this I am not barred so, but I may sue his Executors. 10 Co. 51. 22 H. 6. 1.

See more in Title Confirmation hereafter.

Secondly, In Respect of the Thing released.

A Release of all Actions without any more Words, is better than a Release of all Actions All Actions. real only, or a Release of all Actions personal only: For by a Release of Actions, or a Release of all Manner of Actions without more Words, are released and discharged all real, personal and mix'd Actions depending, and all Causes of Suit for any real or personal Thing: As Appeals for the Death of an Ancestor, Conspiracies, Suits by Scire Facias to have Execution of a Judgment, and Detinue for Charters. And if two conspire to indict me, and I release to them all Actions, and after they go on with their Conspiracy; by this Release I am barred to do any Thing against them. By this Release also of all Actions, a Debt due to be paid upon a Statute or an Obligation at a Day to come, altho' the Release be before the Day, is discharged, and by this also the Statute itself, if it be at any Time before Execution, is discharged. And if one be to pay 40 l. at four Days, and some of the Days are past, and some to come, and the Debtee makes such a Release; by this the whole Debt is discharged. Also in a Scire Facias upon a Fine or Judgment this Release is a good Plea in Bar. But this Release of all Actions will not discharge Executions, or bar a Man of taking out Executions, except it be where it must be done by Scire Facias. Neither will it discharge or bar a Man of Suits by Audita Querela, or Writ of Error, to reverse an erroneous Judgment; neither will it discharge Covenants before they be broken, nor will it discharge any Thing for which the Lessor had no Cause of Action at the Time of the Release made; as if a Woman has Title of Dower, and releases all Actions to him that has the Reversion of the Land after an Estate for Life; or a Man is by an Award to pay me 10 l. at a Day to come, and before the Time I make such a Release; or I make a Lease rendring Rent, or an Annuity is granted to me, and before the Rent-Day I make the Lessee or the Grantor such a Release; in these Cases, and by a Release in these Words without more, the Dower, Debt, Rent or Annuity, is not discharged. 8 Co. 153. 5 Co. 28, 70. Kelw. 113. Co. Lit. 286, 290, 292, 289. Lit. §. 492, 505, 506, 512, 513. Bro. Stat. 39.

And if a Man has two Remedies or Means to come by Land, as Action and Entry; or by Goods, as Action and Seizure, or the like; in this Case by a Release of all Actions he does not bar himself of the other Remedy. Et sic e converso. Lit. §. 496, 497.

And if a Man covenants to build a House, or make an Estate, and before the Covenant broken, the Covenantee releases unto him all Actions; by this the Covenant itself is not discharged. And yet after the Covenant is broken, this Release will discharge the Action of Covenant given upon that Breach. Co. Lit. 292.

By a Release of all a Man's Right into any Lands or Tenements without more Words, Right; all Manner of Rights of Action and Entry the Releasor hath to, in or against the Land, is released and discharged; for there is jus recuperandi, prosequendi, intrandi, habendi, retinendi, percipiendi, possidendi; and all these Rights, whether they accrue by Fine, Feoffment, Descent or otherwise, are extinct and discharged; so that if the Releasee has got into the Land of the Releasor by Wrong, by this Release the Wrong is discharged, and the Releasee is in the Land by good Title. Also by this Release are discharged and released all Titles of Dower, and Titles of Entry upon a Condition or Alienation in Mortmain. And if a Woman has Title of Dower after an Estate for Life, and makes such a Release to him in Reversion, this bars her. By such a Release also from the Lord to the Tenant, the Services are extinct. 8 Co. 151. Plow. 484. 6 H. 7. 8. 3 Co. 29. 6 Co. 1. Co. Lit. 345.

But this Release will not bar a Man of a Possibility of a Right that he has at the Time of the Release, or of a Right that shall descend to him afterwards. And therefore if the Cousee of a Statute before Execution releases all his Right into the Land to the Terretenant, or the Heir of the Disseisee in the Life-time of his Father releases to the Disseisor all his Right; these Releases do not bar them. Nor will this Release bar a Man of an Audita Querela, and such like Things. Yet if the Tenant in a real Action after the Demandant has recovered the Land, releases to him all his Right in the Land; this bars him of a Writ of Error for any Error in the Proceeding in that Suit. 10 Co. 47. Co. Lit. 289.

And if there be Lord and Tenant by Fealty and Rent, and the Lord by his Deed reciting the Tenure, releases all his Right in the Land, saving his said Rent; by this Release the Right of the Seignior, save only of the Seignior of the Rent and Fealty is extinct. And if the Lord releases to the Tenant all his Right to the Land and Seignior, salvo sibi dominio suo, &c. hereby the Services only, not the Tenure, is extinct. Co. Lit. 150. Dyer 157.

And if one has a Rent-charge out of my Land, and makes such a Release of all his Right to the Land to me that am the Terretenant without Exception of the Rent; hereby the Rent is extinct and gone for ever. Perk. §. 644.

- Title. By a Release of all a Man's Title into Lands or Tenements, without more Words, is released and discharged as much as is released by the Release of all a Man's Right; and both these Releases have the like Operation: For howsoever Title strictly and properly is where a Man has lawful Cause of Entry into Lands whereof another is seised, for which he can have no Action, yet it is commonly taken more largely, and includes a Right also. And Titulus est justa causa possidendi quod nostrum est. Kelw. 484, 6, 7, 8. Co. Lit. 265, 345.
- Entries or Rights of Entry. By a Release of all Entries or Rights of Entry a Man has into Lands, without more Words, a Man is barred of all Right or Power of Entry into those Lands upon any Right whatsoever. And if a Man has no other Means to come by the Land but by an Entry, and he has released that, by these Words he is barred for ever. But if one has a double Remedy, viz. a Right of Entry, and an Action to recover his Right by, and then releases all Entries; by this he is not barred of his Action. 8 Co. 151.
- Actions real. By a Release of all Actions real, without more Words, are discharged all real and mix'd Actions then depending, and all Causes of real and mix'd Actions not depending. And therefore all Causes of suing of Assises, Writs of Entry, Quare Impedit, Actions of Waste, and the like, which the Party has at the Time of the Release made, are hereby discharged. But this Release will not bar him that makes it of any Causes of Action that shall arise and accrue afterwards. Neither will it bar him of any Appeal of Death or Robbery, Writ of Error, or such like Thing; nor of any Thing which a Release of all Actions will not bar. And yet when Land is to be restored or recovered by Judgment in a Writ of Error, this Release is a Bar to the Writ of Error. So if a Judgment be given upon a false Verdict in a real Action, a Release of all Actions real is a Bar in an Attaint. Lit. §. 492, 493, 495. 8 Co. 151. Lit. §. 115, 500. Co. Lit. 288, 289.
- Actions personal. By a Release of all Actions personal, without more Words, are discharged all personal Actions then depending, and all Causes of personal Actions wherein a personal Thing only is to be recovered; and therefore hereby are discharged all Causes of suing out of Actions of Debt, Trespass, Detinue, or the like. Also all mixed Actions, as Actions of Waste Quare Impedit, an Assise of Novel Disseisin, Writ of Annuity, Appeal of Maihem, and the like. Bro. Release 47. Co. Lit. 285. 9 H. 6. 57. Lit. §. 502.
- And if Debt, &c. or Damages be recovered in a personal Action by false Verdict, and the Defendant brings a Writ of Attaint; or if a Writ of Audita Querela be brought by the Defendant in the former Action to discharge him of Execution; by this Release the Defendant in both Cases is barred of his Suit. Co. Lit. 209.
- Also when by a Writ of Error the Plaintiff shall recover or be restored to any personal Thing only, as Debt, Damage, or the like; as if the Plaintiff in a personal Action recovers any Debt, &c. or Damages, and be outlawed after Judgment; in this Case in a Writ of Error brought by the Defendant upon the principal Judgment, this Release will bar him: But where by a Writ of Error the Plaintiff shall not be restored to any personal or real Thing, this Release is no Bar; as if a Man be outlawed in an Action personal by Process upon the Original, and brings a Writ of Error, and then releases; this is no Bar to him. Co. Lit. 288. Lit. §. 503.
- If a Man by Wrong takes or finds my Goods, or they be delivered to him, and I release to him all Actions personal; notwithstanding this Release I may take my Goods again, although I be barred of my Action by the Release. Neither is this Release a Bar in any Appeal of Robbery or Death. Neither will it bar in any Case where a Release of all Actions will not bar. Neither is it any Bar to an Action of Debt brought for an Annuity, granted for a Term of Years for any Arrearages that shall grow due after the Release. Nor for any Rent or Sum of Nomine pænæ, when the Release is before the same Day, or Nomine pænæ happens. Neither is it a Bar in such real Actions wherein Damages are recoverable only by the Statute, and not by the Common Law, as in a Writ of Dower, Entry sur Disseisin in le per, Mordancefor, Aile, &c. Lit. §. 497, 498, 50. Co. Lit. 292, 285.
- Debts. By a Release of all Debts, without more Words, are discharged and released all Debts then owing from the Releasee to the Releasor upon Specialties, or otherwise, all Debts due also upon Statutes; and therefore if the Conusor himself, or his Land, be in Execution for the Debt, and he has such a Release, he must be discharged: And so he cannot be upon a Release of all Actions. Co. Lit. 76, 291. Fitz. Audita Querela 3.
- Duties. By a Release of all Duties, without more Words, a Releasor is barred, and the Releasee discharged of all Actions, Judgments and Executions; also of all Obligations. And if the Body of a Man be in Execution, and the Plaintiff makes him such a Release, hereby he shall be discharged of Execution, because the Duty itself is discharged. And if there be Rent or Services behind to the Lord from his Tenant, and the Lord makes such a Release to his Tenant; by this the Arrearages are released. 8 Co. 153. Co. Lit. 291.

The Word Suits is of somewhat a more large Extent than Actions, for by a Release of Suits, all Suits, without more Words, is released and discharged as much as by a Release of all Actions. And hereby also are discharged all Executions in the Case of a Subject. But in the Case of the King it doth not release Executions. And it does not release a Covenant before it be broken. 8 Co. 154, 157. 5 Co. 70. Co. Lit. 291.

By a Release of all Quarrels, without more Words, all Actions real and personal, and all Debates, Causes of such Actions, are released and discharged. So likewise by the Release of all Con- Quarrels and Controversies, or by the Release of all Debates. But this will not bar the Releasor of any Causes of Suit that shall arise after, and was not at the Time of the Release: As the Breach of a Covenant which shall be after, although the Covenant be before, is not discharged hereby. Co. Lit. 292. 8 Co. 157. 5 Co. 70.

By a Release of all Covenants, without more Words, all Covenants then broken, and all Covenants that shall be after broken that were then made and in Being, are discharged. Qui destruit medium destruit finem. Co. 112. 10 Co. 51. Co. Lit. 292.

And therefore if a Lessee covenants to leave a House leased to him at the End of the Term, as it was at the Beginning of the Term, and the Lessor before the End of the Term releases to the Lessee all Covenants; this discharges the Covenant. But this Release discharges nothing else but Covenants. Adjudged Hil. 4 Jac. Hancock's Case.

By a Release of all Statutes from the Conusee to the Terretenant, without more Words, Statutes the Statute is discharged. And yet if he releases all his Right in the Land of the Conusor; this will not discharge the Land of Execution. 10 Co. 47.

By a Release of all Errors and Writs of Error; all Errors and Writs of Error, even Errors before they be brought, are extinct and discharged. And if a Man be outlawed in a personal Action by Process upon Original, and makes such a Release; this will bar him. 2 Co. 16. Lit. §. 503.

By a Release of all Warranties or Covenants real, all Warranties then made and being are Warranties for ever discharged. Lit. §. 148.

By a Release of all Legacies, without more Words, a Man bars himself of all the Le- Legacies, gacies given him in presenti or futuro, so that if he be to have a Legacy at twenty-four Years old, and at twenty-one Years of Age he releases to the Executor all Legacies, or this Legacy in particular; this is a Bar to him of this Legacy for ever. And yet a Release of all Demands in this Case is no Discharge of this Legacy. 10 Co. 51. Dyer 56. Co. Lit. 76.

By a Release of Rent, the Rent is extinct and discharged whether the Day of Payment be Rent; come or not. But a Release of all Actions will not discharge a Rent before the Day of Payment comes. Co. Lit. 292.

By a Release of all Promises or Assumpsits, without more Words, a Man may bar himself Promises; of a contingent or future Thing that by other Words could not be released; as if a Man promises to me that if J. S. does not pay me 100*l.* the tenth of March next, that he will pay it me the twentieth of that Month, and before the Time I release to him all Actions and Demands; this will not discharge the Promise. But if I release to him all Promises, this will bar me, & sic de similibus. Adjudged Hil. 16 Jac. B. R. Bristoe v. Heires, 10 Co. 51. But as to Promises by one Person for another, see the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3.

By a Release of all Judgments, without more Words, he that maketh it is barred of the Judgments. Effect of any Judgment he has against the Releasee; for if Execution be not taken out, he is now barred of it. And if the Releasee, or his Land, &c. be in Execution, he, and it shall be discharged thereof by Audita Querela.

And by a Release of all Executions, without more Words, a Man is barred of taking or Executions; having out any Execution upon any Judgment either before Scire Facias or after. But if, after Execution be made by Capias ad Satisfaciendum, Elegit, or Fieri Facias, the Plaintiff releases to the Defendant all Executions, he cannot plead such a Release, but he must have an Audita Querela, and that he may have to discharge him of Execution. Lit. §. 507. 8 Co. 151. Co. Lit. 290.

By a Release of all Appeals, all Appeals of Felony, of Death, of Robbery, of Rape, of Appeals; Burning, of Larceny depending, and all Causes not yet moved also, are discharged. Co. Lit. 287, 288.

By a Release of all Advantages, it seems Actions of Debt upon Account are discharged. Advantages; 8 Co. 150.

By a Release of all Conspiracies, all Conspiracies past are discharged, and such also as are Conspiracies only begun and shall be prosecuted and perfected after the Release, are likewise hereby discharged. Kelw. 113.

By a Release of all Forgeries before Publication, the Forgery is discharged, but not the Forgeries Publication; and therefore the Releasor may take his Remedy for that notwithstanding. 10 Co. 48.

Demands and Claims.

A Release of all Demands, is the best Release of all; and the Word Demands is the most effectual Word of all, and indeed includes and comprehends within it, most of all the Releases before. By a Release therefore of all Demands, without more Words, are released all Rights and Titles to Land, Warranties, Conditions annexed to Estates before they be broken or performed, and after they be broken. Also by this Release are released and discharged all Statutes, Obligations, Contracts, Recognisances, Covenants, Rents, Commons, and the like. Also all Manner of Actions real and personal, Appeals, Debts and Duties. Also all Manner of Judgments and Executions. Also all Annuities, and Arrearages of Annuities and Rents. And therefore if a Man has a Title of Entry by Force of a Condition, &c. or a Right of Entry into any Lands; by such a Release the Right and Title is gone. And if a Man has a Rent-Service, Rent-Charge, Essovers, or other Profit to be taken out of the Land; by such a Release to the Tenant of the Land it is discharged and extinct. Co. Lit. 291. 8 Co. 154. Lit. §. 501, 509, 510.

And therefore if a Termor for Years grants the Land by Indenture to A. rendring Rent, and at the End of the first Year he releases to the Grantee all Demands; the Rent is hereby extinct during all the Time. And a Release of all Claims it seems is much of the same Nature. Adjudged Pass. 17 Jac. B. R. in Wotton's Case.

But by a Release of all Demands, or of all Claims, any such Thing as whereof a Release cannot be made, as a mere Possibility, or the like, is not released. 5 Co. 70.

Neither will this Release discharge a Covenant or Promise that is future and contingent before it be in Being; nor a Covenant before it is broken: And therefore if the Lessee of a House covenants to leave it as well in the End of the Term as it was in the Beginning of his Term, and before the End of the Term the Lessor releases to the Lessee all Demands: This is no Bar to an Action brought for a Breach of the Covenant afterwards. Adjudged Hil. 4 Jac. B. R. Hancock's Case.

And if a Man, in Consideration of a Sum of Money given to him by a Woman Sole, assumes to her, that if she marries one M. that he will pay to her after the Death of M. 100*l.* by the Year, if she survives him, and she marries him, and the Husband releases all Demands, and then dies; this is no Bar to the Duty. So if one promises a Woman that if she will marry him, that he will leave her worth 100*l.* if she survives him, and before the Marriage she releases to him all Actions and Demands; this does not discharge the Promise. Hil. 6 Jac. B. R. Belcher and Hudson's Case.

If there be Lord and Tenant of two Acres, and the Lord releases all his Right in one of them to the Tenant; hereby the Services are extinct for both. So if one has a Rent-Charge out of twenty Acres, and releases all his Right in one Acre; hereby all the Rent is extinct. And yet if A. leases Whiteacre to B. for Life rendring Rent, and afterwards releases Part of the Rent; this is good only for such Part. Perk. §. 71. Bro. Release 85. 9 Ed. 3.

Release* 65.

If a Statute be entred into the twentieth of April, and a Conusee by a Release dated the nineteenth of April (meaning to except this Statute) releases all Debts and Demands till the making of the Release; by this Release the Statute is discharged: But if the Words had been to the Day of the Date of the Release, contra. Dyer 307.

Thirdly, In respect of the Time or Estate.

A Release of a Right or an Action, cannot be for a Time, but it will be for ever. And therefore if a Release be made to any one that has a Fee-simple by Wrong by him that has the Right, for 6*h.* Hour, one Year, for Life or Years; this is a good Release for ever. And if the Disseisor releases all his Right in the Land to the Disseisor without naming his Heirs, or setting down any Time how long the Releasee shall have the Land, or the Right of the Releasee therein; this is a good Release for ever, and makes the Estate of the Disseisor good for ever, and so makes a good Estate in Fee-simple without the Words, his Heirs, &c. And if the Disseisor or his Heir makes a Gift in Tail, or a Lease for Life, and the Releasee releases all his Right to the Donee or Lessee for Life, To have and to hold for Life only; this is a good Release of his Right for ever. But if the Releasee disseises the Heir of the Disseisor, and makes a Lease for Life, (which is a Release in Law) by this the Right is released during that Time only. So if one Jointenant or Parcenor releases to the other all his Right in the Land, without the Word Heirs, or any more Words; this Release gives to his Companion his whole Interest for ever. And when the Lord or Grantee of a Rent releases to the Tenant, or Terretenant generally; by these Releases a Fee-simple is transferred without the Word Heirs, &c. and yet the Lord may release his Seignior to his Tenant, to hold to him in Tail or for Life, and this shall be taken and enjoyed accordingly. But if the Lord releases the Seignior to his Tenant without the Word Heirs put in the Deed, the same is extinct. Lit. §. 467, 470. Co. Lit. 273, 264, 280. Kelw. 88. Co. Lit. 9.

And if I let Land to a Man for Term of Years, and after I release to him all my Right which I have in the Land, without using any other Words in the Deed; or release to him, to have and to hold for his Life: In both these Cases he has an Estate for his Life only. And if I lease Land to a Man for his own Life, and after release to him, to have and to hold for his own Life; hereby he has but an Estate for his own Life. But if I make a Lease to him for another's Life, and after release to him, Habendum to him for his own Life; by this he has an Estate for his own Life. But if I be seised of Land in Fee-simple, and let it to another for Life or Years, and then release all my Right to him, to have and to hold to him and his Heirs; hereby he has the Fee-simple. And if I release all my Right to him, to have and to hold to him and the Heirs of his Body; hereby he has an Estate-tail. Lit. §. 545, 546, 465. Plow. 556. Dyer 263.

And if one be seised in Fee of a Rent-Service or Charge, and grant it first for Life, and then release it to the Grantee, to hold to him and his Heirs, or to him and the Heirs of his Body; this shall enure to an Enlargement according to the Agreement. But if one grants a Rent-Charge out of the Land de novo, and after releases to the Grantee all his Right in the Rent, to have and to hold to him in Fee-simple or Fee-tail; this does not enlarge the Estate. Lit. §. 549.

And if Tenant in Tail or for Life makes a Lease for Years, and after by Deed releases all his Right to the Lessee for Years in Possession, to hold to him and his Heirs for ever; this will not make the Estate of the Lessee good for longer Time than the Life of the Releasor. Lit. §. 606, 610. 24 Ed. 4. 28.

If one makes a Lease for ten Years, the Remainder for twenty Years to another, and he in Remainder releases all his Right to the Lessee for ten Years; in this Case the Releasee has an Estate for thirty Years, and no less; for one Lease for Years cannot drown in another. Co. Lit. 273.

If I let Land to a Feme Sole for her Life, or for Years, and she takes a Husband, and after I release to them two, to hold for their Lives; this shall enure no further than the Intent; and in the first Case he shall hold jointly with his Wife, but in her Right whilst she lives, and after for his own Life, if he survives; and in the last Case they shall have the Freehold jointly. Lit. §. 526. *Co. against him as Executor of B. and have for any Matter whatsoever; and it was adjudged, that the Generality of the Words all Demands should be restrained by the particular Occasion mentioned in the former Part thereof, viz. the Receipt of the 5*l.* Legacy, and should not be a Discharge of the Judgment. Lev. 101.

In Chancery a Release was set aside by a subsequent Accident, having Relation to the original Equity: A Man seised of a Term for Years in Church Land, purchased the Fee of the Trustees for Sale of Church Lands, in the Time of Oliver Cromwell, and then settled the same on his Wife for a Jointure, and died; the Wife released to the Executors all her Right to the personal Estate; and afterwards the Fee was evicted, on the Restoration of King Charles the Second. S E C T. XIII.

Of Lease and Release.

HAVING before in §. 11. treated of Leases, and in §. 12. of Releases, to which I refer the Reader as introductory to this Section, wherein I only propose to treat of such Conveyances as are both by Lease and Release.

(A) A Conveyance by Lease and Release, what.

A Conveyance by Lease and Release, is where he who is to convey any Lands or Tenements first makes a Lease (or Bargain and Sale) of the Premises to the Person to whom the same is to be conveyed for six Months, a Year, &c. but usually for a Year, to the Intent that by virtue thereof the Lessee may be in the actual Possession of the Premises granted by the Lease, (or Bargain and Sale) and intended to be released to him; and then the Lessee (or Bargainee) by virtue of the Statute of the 27 H. 8. c. 10. for transferring Uses into Possession, is enabled to take a Grant or Release of the Reversion and Inheritance of the said Lands,

Lands, to the Use of himself and his Heirs for ever, &c. And then a Release (usually dated the Day next after the Date of the Lease, reciting the said Lease and declaring the Uses) is accordingly made; which in this Case is a Conveyance of one's Right or Interest that he has in a Thing to another who has the Possession thereof.

A Lease and Release are but one Conveyance, and in the Nature of one Deed. Mod. 252. Lease and Release is now become the most common Conveyance of Lands. It amounts to a Feoffment; for by the said Statute the Uses are transferred into the Possession, so that thereby the Place of Livery of Seisin is supplied; which indeed saves much Trouble, especially when the Bargainor, &c. lives at a Distance from the Premises; in which Case a Letter of Attorney to make Livery was obliged to be made, otherwise the Bargainor, &c. was to deliver Seisin in Person.

(B) Things requisite in a Lease (or Bargain and Sale) for a Year.

First, With respect to the Consideration.

IT is requisite, and the usual and best way, to mention a Consideration of Money, as five Shillings, or some other small Sum, though it be never paid; for it was a Question upon a Lease for a Year made by the Words Demise, Grant and to Farm let, rendring a Pepper-Corn Rent, whether the Release could operate upon it? And it was objected, that the Release was void, because there was no Entry found, nor any Consideration to raise an Use, it being but a Pepper-Corn, which is not sufficient, for it is to be paid out of the Profits of the Land. Chief Justice North at first said, the Reservation seemed to him not to be sufficient to raise an Use, because the Use must be raised out of the Land, and united to it before a Rent can result out of it. But Windham Just. was of Opinion, that the Reservation, though but a Pepper-Corn, would raise an Use. And after Time taken to advise, Judgment was given, that the Word Grant would make the Land pass by way of Use; and that the Reservation of a Pepper-Corn is a good Consideration to raise an Use to support a Recovery. Also that this Lease being within the Statute of Uses, there needs be no actual Entry to make the Lessee capable of the Release; for by virtue of the Statute he shall be adjudged to be in actual Possession. 2 Mod. 252, 253.

If the Words bargain and sell, in Consideration of Money, be in a Lease; or if in Consideration of Money he does demise, &c. there an Use will arise by the Statute of Uses. But if it be only rendering Rent out of the Land, that seems not to be a sufficient Consideration to raise an Use. Mod. 262, 263.

Secondly, With respect to the Estate and Possession.

The Person who makes the Bargain and Sale for a Year, must be in the actual Possession at the Time of the Sale, otherwise he cannot make it.

But if he has not the Possession before the Sale, he must enter upon the Land, and seal and deliver the Deed upon the Land to the Bargainee; and this puts the Bargainee into Possession. Vide Carter 161. Cro. Eliz. 483, 446, 447. Dalison 81. Lev. 47, 270, 271, 272. 3 Lev. 387.

And if a Man is seised in Fee, and makes a Lease for Years, unless he gives Possession, and the Lessee enters, he must raise an Use. Mod. 263.

Upon a Lease for a Year, it being within the Statute of Uses, there is no need of an actual Entry to make the Lessee capable of taking the Release; for by the said Statute he is deemed in actual Possession. 2 Mod. 252, 253.

If a Lease for Years be made, without any Consideration of Money, the Lessee has not any Estate till Entry; for before Entry he has but an Interesse Termini, and no Possession. Co. Lit. 278. a. 46. b.

Neither has the Lessor any Reversion till the Lessee's Entry; nor will a Release to him, which enures by way of enlarging an Estate, operate without a Possession; for before a Possession there is no Reversion. Co. Lit. 270. a. Cro. Jac. 169. pl. 9.

By a Bargain and Sale of the Reversion and Reversions, Remainder and Remainders, Rents, Issues and Profits, &c. the Bargainee, by virtue of the Statute of Uses, becomes possessed, 2 Co. 35. b. (it being a Term) without any Attornment, and he may without Attornment distrain or bring an Action of Debt for Rent. Vaugh. 51. 8 Co. 93. b. 94. a.

Thirdly, With respect to Inrolment.

There needs no Inrolment of a Bargain and Sale for Years, that executes by the Statute without it. 2 Co. 35. b. 36. a. 8 Co. 93. 2 Roll. Abr. 204.

(C) Things

(C) *Things requisite in the Release.*First, With Respect to the Consideration.

A Release will operate without a Consideration, but it is convenient to put a valuable Consideration in, as Money, or Love and Affection, or Marriage, &c. for since the Statutes of 13 Eliz. c. 5. and 27 Eliz. c. 4. against fraudulent Conveyances, if a Man makes a voluntary Feoffment, or other Conveyance, without good Consideration, it shall be fraudulent against a Purchaser for a real Consideration, or a Mortgagee, a Judgment or Statute Creditor, for good Consideration.

But it shall be good against the Party, his Executors, Administrators, &c. Cro. Jac. 271. pl. 3.

Secondly, With Respect to the Estate and Possession.

It has been the great Wisdom and Prudence of the Sages of our Law to provide, that no Possibility, Right, Title or Chose in Action, may be granted or assigned to Strangers, for that would make a Multiplicity of Suits, and great Oppression to the People; neither can they be transferred by Act in Law; but all Rights, Titles and Actions may, by the Prudence and Policy of the Law, be released to the Terretenant, for the Reason of his Repose and Quiet, and for Avoidance of Contentions and Suits. 10 Co. 48. a.

Wherever a Release is made, it is absolutely necessary that the Releasee be in Possession of some Estate at the Time of the Release. Lit. §. 447.

1. He who makes a Release of Lands must have an Estate in himself, out of which the Estate may be derived to the Releasee.

2. The Releasee must have an Estate in Possession in Deed or in Law, in the Land whereof the Release is made, as a Foundation for the Release.

3. There must be Privity of Estate between the Releasor and Releasee.

4. And there must be sufficient Words in Law, not only to make the Release, but also to create and raise a new Estate, or the Release will not be good. Co. Lit. 271.

If a Man occupies as Tenant at Sufferance, a Release will not enure to him for want of Privity. Lit. §. 461.

His being Tenant at Sufferance is not good to vest any Estate in him for want of Privity between them; and a Release to him, as to him who had the Reversion, is void, because he had not any Possession, there being no Estate in him; and an Estate cannot be vested in him in Reversion by this Means; for if Tenant for Life releases to him in the Reversion, it is void by way of Release; and it cannot pass as a Surrender for want of apt Words. Cro. Eliz. 21. Dyer 251.

But where a Man is in Possession by Virtue of a Lease at Will, there a Release shall operate by Reason of the Privity between the Parties. And it is vain to make an Estate by Livery of Seisin to another who has the Possession before. Lit. §. 461, 462.

Thirdly, With Respect to the Words in a Release.

If I let Land for Life or Years, and release all the Right I have without the Word Heirs, this at the Common Law is but an Estate for Life; but if I release to him and his Heirs, or to him and the Heirs of his Body, then this is an Inheritance. Lit. §. 465.

Fourthly, With Respect to Recitals, the Uses, Conditions, Defeasances, Warranties and Covenants.

A Release may have one or more Recitals in it (which is most commonly the Case) yet it is good without any.

If the Words, To the only Use and Behoof of the said A. B. and his Heirs and Assigns for ever, or such like Words, are not in the Release, then the Estate executes by the Statute of Uses, and the Trust is void.

Where no Use is declared, it is to the Use of the Releasor and his Heirs.

Where a Release is made to A. B. his Heirs and Assigns for ever, to the only Use and Behoof of the Releasee, his Heirs and Assigns for ever, in Trust for the said C. D. (which said C. D. must be a Party to the Deed, and a Consideration of 5 s. to be paid by the Releasee, and the Purchase-Money declared to be paid by C. D. the Cestuy que Trust) if these Words are not in the Deed, then the Estate executes by the Statute of Uses, and the Trust is void.

In Case of Lease and Release to make a Tenant to the Præcipe in a common Recovery, if the Release is made to the Tenant and his Heirs; it must also be to the Use of him, his Heirs and Assigns for ever; for the Releasee must be absolute Tenant of the Freehold.

A Release that enures by way of passing away an Estate, &c. may be made upon Condition, or with a Deafeance; so as the Condition be contained in the Release, or delivered at the same Time with it. Co. Lit. 236.

And altho' there may be Warranties, Covenants, and such Additions in Releases, (which is usually the Case) yet they are good without them.

(D) Of setting aside a Lease and Release, &c.

A Devisee Lands to J. S. and his Heirs, but the Will was defectively executed, and afterwards the Heir at Law, in Consideration of one hundred Guineas paid him by J. S. the Devisee, by Deed, reciting that this Will was duly executed, released to the Devisee all his Right to the Estate devised; and after that, there being Debts appointed by the Will to be paid, the Devisee told the Heir, that it would facilitate the Raising of the Money for the Payment of the Debts, if he (the Heir) would join in a Lease and Release of the devised Premises; and thereupon, for fifty Guineas more paid to the Heir, he, together with the Devisee, by Lease and Release conveyed the Premises to J. N. and his Heirs, in Consideration of 4000 l. mentioned to be paid by J. N. and a Receipt was given; but in Truth this Purchase-Money was not paid, but J. N. was only a Trustee for J. S. The Court set aside this Lease and Release, upon Payment of the one hundred and fifty Guineas and Interest; and said, either suppressio veri, or suggestio falsi, is a good Reason to set aside any Release or Conveyance; and that to recite in a Deed (as in this Case) that the Will was duly executed, when it was not, is suggestio falsi, and to conceal from the Heir (as here) that the Will was not duly executed, is suppressio veri. Will. 239, 240, 727.

Of Confirmations.

(A) A Confirmation what, and Confirmor and Confirmer who.

A Deed of Confirmation is the Conveyance of an Estate or Right that one has into Lands or Tenements to another who has the Possession thereof, or some Estate therein, whereby a voidable Estate is made sure and unavoidable; or whereby a particular Estate is increased and enlarged. Terms de la Ley. Co. Lit. 295.

And he that makes the Confirmation is sometimes called the Confirmor, and he to whom it is made the Confirmer.

(B) The Nature and Operation of a Confirmation in general.

A Confirmation operates, (1) either to increase and enlarge the Estate of him to whom it is made from a lesser to a greater, and to give him some new Interest he had not before; or (2) to corroborate and perfect the Estate that was imperfect before; or (3) to change the Quality of it, from an Estate upon Condition, to an absolute Estate or otherwise; for this a Confirmation will do.

In some Cases also it will extinguish Rights and Titles of Entry. But it will not make an Estate good that is merely void, nor add nor take from an Estate a descendible Quality, and make a Man capable of it that is incapable of himself, or econtra.

In some Cases also it will lessen and diminish Rents or Services: But it cannot, neither will it change the Nature of the Service into some other Kind of Service, nor increase it into a greater Service. Co. Lit. 295. a. 9 Co. 142. Dyer 109. Lit. §. 539. 7 H. 6. 7.

In some Cases a Confirmation is good where a Release is not; as if I let Land to A. for Life, who lets it to B. for twenty Years, who enters: Now if I confirm the Estate of the Tenant for twenty Years, and the Tenant for Life dies during the Term, I cannot enter during the Term. Lit. §. 516. Poph. 105. The Release cannot operate for want of Privy. Lit. §. 517.

Littleton in his Chapter of Confirmation makes eight Diversities between a Confirmation and a Release; and therein puts eight different Cases wherein a Confirmation and a Release have the like Operation in Law. Vide Lit. §. 516, 517, &c. Co. Lit. 296, 297, &c.

But many of the Curiosities of some Kinds of Confirmations and Releases are supplied by Fines to Uses, by Bargain and Sale and Deed inrolled, and by Lease and Release. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

The Acceptance of Rent will make a Confirmation of a Lease. 2 Danv. Abr. 128.

And if a Man leases for Life, reserving Rent upon a Condition of Re-entry; and if after the Condition is broken by Non-payment of the Rent, the Lessor distrains for the said Rent, this Act shall be a Confirmation of the Lease, so as he cannot enter. Ibid.

A Confirmation shall not discharge a Condition, but it is only to bind the Right of him who made it in the Possession of him to whom it is made. Poph. 51.

(C) Kinds of Confirmations.

THERE are two Kinds of Confirmations, viz. a Confirmation implied or in Law, which is when the Law by Construction makes a Confirmation of a Deed made to another Purpose; and a Confirmation express or in Deed, which is when the Act done or Deed made is intended for a Confirmation. And both these are always in Writing. (Confirmations not in Writing are void by Statute of Frauds and Perjuries, 22 Car. 2. c. 3.) The latter is properly called a Deed or Instrument of Confirmation, and is made after this Manner: Know all Men, that I A. of B. have ratified, approved and confirmed to C. of D. the Estate and Possession which I have of and in one Messuage, &c. with the Appurtenances in F. Or it may be by Indenture, &c.

A Confirmation is also distinguished by its Effects; for sometimes it tends and serves to confirm and make good a wrongful and defeasible Estate, or to make a conditional Estate absolute; and then it is said to be Confirmatio perficiens. And sometimes it tends and serves to increase and enlarge a rightful Estate, and so to pass an Interest; and then it is called Confirmatio crescens. And sometimes it tends and serves to diminish and abridge the Services whereby the Tenant holds; and then it is called Confirmatio diminuens. Lit. §. 515. Co. Lit. 295. a. 301. b. 9 Co. 142. Plow. 140.

(D) Of a Confirmation confirming or altering the Quality of the Estate of him to whom it is made.

A Confirmation binds the Right of him who makes it, but does not alter the Nature of the Estate of him to whom it is made. Poph. 51.

These Things are requisite in every good Confirmation tending to confirm an Alteration, or alter its Quality:

1. There must be good and capacitated Parties, and a Thing to be confirmed, as in other Grants, and the Deed must be well sealed, &c.

2. There must be a precedent rightful or wrongful Estate in him to whom the Confirmation is made; at least he must have Possession of the Thing confirmed, else there is no Foundation for the Confirmation to work upon.

3. The Confirmor must have such an Estate and Property in the Thing whereby Confirmation is made, as that he may thereby be enabled to confirm the Estate, else the Confirmation is void; as if the Heir of Disseisee, during the Life of Disseisee confirm to the Disseisor, this is no Confirmation.

4. The precedent Estate must continue till the Confirmation is come; as in all Cases of voidable Estates the Confirmation must be before the Estate, or made void by Entry.

5. The Estate precedent, and that which is to be confirmed, must be lawful, and not prohibited by any Act of Parliament: Therefore if a Spiritual Person makes a Lease not warranted by the Statutes, as a Prebend, or the like, the Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter will not help or amend it.

6. There must be apt Words in the Deed or Instrument the most proper for the Purpose, as before mentioned.

I. As to the Parties, and a Thing to be confirmed, sealing the Deed, &c. see before Chap. 4. and the various Sections of this Chapter.

II. As to the second Article, That there must be a precedent rightful or wrongful Estate in him to whom the Confirmation is made, in his own or in another's Right, or at least he must have the Possession of the Thing whereof the Confirmation is to be made, that may be as a Foundation for the Confirmation to work upon, take the following Examples.

If a Feoffee on Condition makes a Feoffment over, and the Feoffor confirms his Estate to him to whom the second Feoffment is made, and his Heirs; this is a good Confirmation to make his Estate absolute. Co. 146. 9 Co. 142. 7 H. 6. 7.

And

And if Lessee for Life makes a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Years, and the first Lessor confirms this second Estate; this is a good Confirmation. Lit. §. 516.

And if one disseises me of Land, I may after confirm the Estate of the Disseisor, or of his Heir, if he be dead; or of his Feoffee, if he has aliened it; and this will make his Estate good for ever. And if the Disseisor makes a Lease for Life or Years of it, I may confirm the Estate of the Lessee; and this will make it good for the Time. 9 Co. 142. 6 Co. 15. Perk. §. 86. Lit. §. 518, 521. 11 H. 7. 28, 29.

And if one makes a Lease for Life absolute, or a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Life on Condition; or be disseised of Land, and the Lessee for Life, Feoffee, or Disseisor, grants a Rent out of the Land in Fee, and the Lessor, Feoffor or Disseisee confirms the Estate of the Grantee; this makes good the Grant for ever. And so also if the Heir of a Disseisor that is in by Descent grants a Rent-Charge, and the Disseisee confirms it; this is a good Confirmation. And if an Infant makes a Lease for twenty Years, and the Lessee makes a Lease to another for all or Part of the Time, and the Infant at his full Age confirms this second Lease; this is a good Confirmation, and perfects the Lease; for it is a Rule, That which I may defeat by my Entry, I may confirm by my Deed. Co. 144. Lit. §. 527, 529, 547. 11 H. 7. 28. Co. Lit. 300.

But if there be no precedent Estate on which the Confirmation may work, or the Estate be such an Estate as is merely void, then is the Confirmation void, and cannot take Effect as a Confirmation; as for Example, If a Man assigns Dower to a Woman that has nothing to do with it, or a Court that has not Power makes Leases by Commifion, or an Estate that was upon Condition is avoided by Entry, or a Lessee surrenders, or a Disseisee enters upon a Disseisor, and afterwards he that has the rightful Estate confirms their Estates so defeated and gone; these Confirmations are void: Debile fundamentum fallit opus. And a Confirmation to him that has nothing in the Land is void. And hence it is, that if one confirms all his Estate that he has granted to another, when in Truth he has granted none at all, this is void. Co. Lit. 295, 301. Dyer 263.

And so also it is if there be an Estate and no Possession: As if a Disseisor makes a Lease for Years to begin at Michaelmas, and before the Day the Disseisee confirms the Estate of the Lessee for Years; it is said this is not a good Confirmation; sed quare. 4 H. 7. 10.

III. As to the third Thing requisite, viz. That the Confirmor must have such an Estate and Property in the Thing whereof the Confirmation is made, as he may be thereby enabled to confirm the Estate to the Confirmee, as the Lessors, Feoffors and Disseisees in the Cases before have, otherwise the Confirmation is void. Dyer 109.

Observe, that if the Heir of the Disseisee during the Life of the Disseisee confirms to the Disseisor; this is no good Confirmation to perfect his Estate altho' the Disseisee dies, and the Right of the Land descends to his Heir afterwards. 19 H. 6. 62.

So if Land be given to A. and B. his Wife, and the Heirs of their Bodies issuing, the Remainder in Fee to A. and A. levies a Fine with Proclamations, and dies, and she within five Years enters and claims, and after the Conusee confirms the Estate made by the first Gift to the Wife, to have and to hold according to the same; this Confirmation is to no Purpose. 9 Co. 138.

So if Lessee for Life makes a Lease for thirty Years, and after he in Reversion and the Lessee for Life leases for sixty Years; in this Case he cannot confirm the Lease for thirty Years, because he has granted it before for sixty Years. Co. Lit. 296.

And hence it is also that the Confirmation by one Jointenant of the Estate of his Companion works nothing; for their Estates are equal, and each has Interest in the whole Land. Fitz. Confirmation 15.

And yet if one Jointenant confirms the whold Land to his Companion, to have and to hold the Land to him and his Heirs; this shall amount to a Grant, and so will be good to pass his Moiety. Lit. §. 523. Dyer 263.

And hence it is also, that if a Man grants a Rent-Charge out of his Land to another for Life, and then confirms his Estate without any Clause of Distress, (for by a Clause of Distress a Grant of a new Rent may be made) to have and to hold to him in Fee-simple or Fee-tail; that this is void, for the Confirmor has no Reversion of the Rent in him.

IV. As to the fourth Thing requisite, viz. That the precedent Estate must continue until the Confirmation comes, as in all the Cases of voidable Estates made, the Confirmation must be before the Estates be made void by Entry, &c. or otherwise the Confirmation will be void.

Observe, if a Lessee for Life or Years surrenders, or the Disseisee enters upon the Disseisor, and and after the Lessor or the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of the Lessee or Disfeisor; this Confirmation comes too late.

V. As to the fifth Thing requisite, viz. That the Estate precedent, and that which is to be confirmed, must be lawful, and not prohibited by an Act of Parliament, Observe, if a Spiritual Person, as Prebend, or the like, makes a Lease not warranted by the Statutes; the Confirmation of the Dean and Chapter will not help nor amend it. And if Tenant in Tail makes a voidable Lease, and after confirms it himself, this is voidable still. 5 Co. 15. Lit. §. 607.

VI. As to the sixth Thing requisite, viz. That there must be apt Words of Confirmation in the Deed or Instrument, Note, That altho' the Words, I have confirmed, ratified and approved, be the most significant and proper Words to make this Conveyance, yet such as are made by other general Words may make a good Confirmation: And therefore it is agreed, that a Deed made by the Words, Hath given, granted or demised, may make a good Confirmation.

And therefore that if the Disfeisee, Coparcenor or Lessor, makes a Deed of the Land by the Words, Hath given or granted to the Disfeisor, other Coparcenor, or Lessee for Life, and delivers the Deed; this is a good Confirmation without Livery of Seisin. Also if a Feoffment be made to A. to the Use of B. and his Heirs upon Condition, and before the Condition broken the Feoffor and B. join in the Grant of a Rent-charge, and after the Condition is broken; the Law interprets this is a good Grant from B. and a good Confirmation of the Feoffor without any Words of Confirmation. So if Tenant for Life grants a Rent to him in Reversion, and he by Deed grants it to another and his Heirs in Fee; the Law construes this a good Grant and a Confirmation also. Lit. §. 531, 532. 10 Ed. 4. 3. Co. Lit. 295. Dyer 116. Co. 147. 5 Co. 15.

And in these Cases of Confirmations of Estates, if it be by the Disfeisee to the Disfeisor, it is good without any Word of Heirs; as if the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of the Disfeisor, or confirms the Land unto him, and says not to him and his Heirs; this is an effectual Confirmation to him and his Heirs for ever. And if a Lessee for Life, or a Disfeisor, makes a Lease for Life or Years, &c. and he in the Reversion, or the Disfeisee, confirm their Estates, and not the Land, and without any Habendum or Limitation of Estate; this is good for so long as the Estates continue. Lit. §. 519. Co. Lit. 296.

But it is most safe always to express the Estate, to say, To have and to hold the Land to him and his Heirs, or for Life, &c. as the Agreement is. If Lessee for Life grants a Rent to one and his Heirs out of the Land, and the Lessor confirms the Estate, or this Rent-charge; this makes the Estate of the Rent sure. And so also if he confirms the Rent, and says, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs; this is a good Confirmation. But if he confirms the Rent, To have and to hold to him in Fee, without naming his Heirs; hereby his Estate is not made better. Co. 147.

(E) Of a Confirmation enlarging the Estate of him to whom it is made.

IF the Lessor confirms the Estate of his Lessee for Life with this Clause, To hold without Impeachment of Waste; this is a good Confirmation to change the Quality of the Estate, so far as to make it dispunishable of Waste. So if the Lord Paramount confirms the Estate of the Mesne with Clause of Acquittal. And so if Lessee for Years, or for another's Life, be without Impeachment of Waste, and the Lessor confirms to him for his own Life, and omits that Clause; hereby this Privilege is gone, and the Estate is become punishable for the Waste. 9 Co. 139. 8 Co. 76. Dyer 10. F. N. B. 136.

A Confirmation Crescens, must have all the Qualities of a Confirmation which confirms or alters the Quality of the Estate of him to whom it is made, which are before mentioned; and there must be also in this Case a Privity between the Confirmor and the Confirmer; and then it may enlarge the Estate of him to whom it is made, as from an Estate at Will to an Estate for Years, or to a greater Estate; from an Estate for Years to an Estate for Life, or to a greater Estate; from an Estate for Life to an Estate in Tail or in Fee; and from an Estate-tail to an Estate in Fee; and these Confirmations are good. But in all these Kinds of Confirmations, Care must be had of the Manner of Penning them, and that in every such Deed there be a Limitation of the Estate, i. e. that these Words be inserted, To have and to hold the Tenements, &c. to him and his Heirs, or to him and the Heirs of his Body, or to him for Term of Life or Years, as the Agreement is; for if a Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, and then the Lessee for Life and he in Reversion confirms the Land, To have and to hold to him for Life, or to him and his Heirs; these Words will make the Estate Estate increase. 9 Co. 142. 6 Co. 15. Co. Lit. 305. Dyer 145, 263, 296. Lit. §. 533, 532, 523.

But if the Confirmation be made to the Lessee for Life or for Years of his Term or Estate, and not of the Land; as when he confirms his Estate, To have and to hold his Estate, to him and his Heirs; this does not increase the Estate. And yet if he confirms the Land, To have and to hold the Land to him and his Heirs; this will increase the Estate. Et sic de similibus. Lit. §. 524, 545. Plow. 540.

If the Husband has an Estate of Land for Life or Years in the Right of his Wife, or to them both for Life, and a Confirmation is made to him alone of his Estate, or of the Land, To have and to hold the Land to him and his Heirs; this is a good Conveyance of the Fee-simple to him after the Death of his Wife. And if I let Land to a Feme Sole for the Term of her Life, who takes a Husband, and after I confirm the Estate of the Husband and Wife, To have and to hold for the Term of their two Lives; this is good, but it shall enure only to enlarge his Estate for the Term of his Life, if he survives his Wife. But if one leases to another for Life, and after confirms the Estate of the Lessee to him and his Wife for the Term of their two Lives; this is void as to his Wife. Co. Lit. 299. Plow. 160. Lit. §. 525. Fitz. Confirmation 7, 17.

If one grants a Rent-charge out of his Land for Life, and after the Grantor confirms the Estate of the Grantee in the Rent without any Clause of Distress, To have and to hold to him in Fee-simple or Fee-tail; this Confirmation is not effectual to enlarge the Estate. But if a Man be seised of an old Rent-charge or Rent-service, and grants the same first for Life, and after confirms the Estate of the Grantee in Fee-simple or Fee-tail; this is good, and will enlarge the Estate accordingly. Lit. §. 548, 549.

If a Tenant for Life grants a Rent out of the Land to one and his Heirs during the Life of the Lessee for Life, and after the Lessor confirms the Rent to the Grantee and his Heirs; the Estate is not hereby enlarged, but when the Tenant for Life dies, the Rent shall cease. Co. 147.

This Kind of Confirmation may be made by the same Words as the former, viz. by the Words give, grant or demise. But neither of these may be made by the Words surrender, release, exchange, or the like; for these are peculiar Words destined to a special End, being proper and peculiar Manner of Conveyances. And yet if I that am a Lessor say to my Lessee for Years by my Deed, I will that you shall hold the Land for your Life; this is a good Confirmation to increase the Estate by the Words I will only. So if I grant to my Lessee for Years, that he shall hold the Land for Term of his Life; this without any other Words is a good Confirmation. Co. Lit. 301. Fitz. Confirmation 23.

(F) Of a Confirmation diminishing or abridging Services, &c.

BY a Confirmation the Lord may confirm the Estate of his Tenant to hold at Common Law where before he held in Antient Demesne, and such a Confirmation is good. But such a Confirmation as is to hold by new Services, as a Rose, for Money, or the like, is not good for that Purpose. And in this Case there must be also a Privy. And therefore if there be Lord, Mesne and Tenant, and the Lord confirms the Estate of the Tenant to hold by less Services; this is void. And if the Lord confirms to his Tenant after he is disseised, before his Entry, to hold by less Services; this is void. Lit. §. 538. 9 Co. 142.

(G) How to make a Deed of Confirmation.

1. IT may either be made by Deed Poll or by Indenture.

2. It is good without any Consideration expressed in the Deed.

3. The Words, Have granted, ratified and confirmed, are usual Words; and the Words, Dedi, Concessi & Confirmavi, are as good, and work without Livery. Lit. §. 531. Co. Lit. 301. Lit. Rep. 270. 2 Saund. 96, 97.

If the Words be, Volo that the Lessee for Years shall have for his Life; this is a good Confirmation. Lit. Rep. 270.

And the Word Demise may amount to a Confirmation. Lit. Rep. 270. Plow. 187. Dyer 178.

4. It is necessary in every Confirmation to have the Words, To have and to hold, &c. Habendum; in Fee, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, as the Case requires. Lit. §. 523.

In a Deed of Confirmation it is proper to recite in the Premises the Estate of the Tenant which is to be confirmed, and also the Estate of him that is to confirm, and to express the Condition thereof, if there is any. West's Symb. §. 457.

Words of Confirmation.

(H) Where the Confirmation of some Persons is needful to perfect the Grant of others, or not; and how it may be done.

IF a Bishop, Dean, Archdeacon, Prebend, or the like, makes any Lease of the Land they have in the Right of their Bishoprick, Deanry, Archdeaconry or Prebendship, not warranted by the Statute of 32 H. 8. and within the other Statutes; this Lease must be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter by their common Seal; and if there be two Chapters, it must be confirmed by them both, or otherwise it is not good. But if the Lease be such a Lease as is warranted by the Statutes, the Bishop may make it without the Confirmation of the King, the Patron and Founder of Bishopricks, or the Dean and Chapter; and so also it seems of the rest. And a Corporation Aggregate, as Dean and Chapter, Master and Fellows, and the like, may grant without any Confirmation of the Founder; and this Grant will be good. Co. Lit. 300, 301. 10 Co. 62. 5 Co. 3. Dyer 145, 273, 349, 338, 339, 61.

If a Bishop, &c. grants an antient Office belonging to his Bishoprick, although it be but for the Life of the Grantee, yet it must be confirmed by the Dean and Chapter, otherwise it is not good. 10 Co. 62.

If a Parson or Vicar had made any Lease for longer Time than his own Life, it must have been confirmed by the Patron and Ordinary: But at this Day although it be confirmed by the Patron and Ordinary, yet the Lease is good for no longer than during the Parson's ordinary Residence, except it be impropriated. Dyer 52. Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 20.

If a Parson leases his Rectory for sixty Years, and this is confirmed by the succeeding Bishop, and succeeding Patron also, neither of them being Bishop or Patron at the Time of granting of the Lease, it is good. Cro. Car. 38. pl. 3.

If Tenant for Life grants a Rent-charge to J. S. and his Heirs; in this Case he in Reversion must confirm it; otherwise the Grant of the Rent will be good for no longer than the Life of the Tenant for Life. Co. 147.

Where a Man has an Interest in any Lands, Tenements, Rents, Commons, Felons Goods, or the like, by any Grant of any of the Kings of the Realm, he need not have the Confirmation of any or of every succeeding King. Also Grants of Fairs, Markets, Warrens, and the like, made by one King, will be good in Law against his Successors without any Confirmation. But all such as have any judicial or ministerial Offices, Commissions and Authorities derived from the King, must have the Confirmation of every succeeding King, otherwise they may lose them. 8 Co. 167. Dyer 277, 327. Kelw. 145, 188.

(I) Where a Confirmation may be good for Part of the Estate, or for Part of the Thing, or not.

A Confirmation by apt Words in case of a Lease for Years may be for Part of the Time, but in case of a Freehold it cannot be so. And so also it may extend to Part of the Thing before in Estate. And therefore if a Disseisor, Tenant in Tail, Husband of the Land he has in the Right of his Wife, or a Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years, and the Disseisee, Issue in Tail, Wife, or Lessor makes a Confirmation of all the Land for Part of the Time, or of Part of the Land for all the Time; this Confirmation is good. But if any such Person makes a Lease for Life, Gift in Tail, &c. the Disseisee cannot confirm Part of the Estate but he must confirm all. And therefore if he confirms his Estate for one Hour, it is a Confirmation of the whole Estate. And so also if he confirms the Land to the Disseisor himself but one Hour, one Week, one Year, or for his Life, &c. this is a good Confirmation of the Estate for ever. And if it be a Lease for Years that is confirmed, Care must be had to the Manner of the Confirmation, for if the Confirmation be of the Estate or the Term for one Hour; this is a good Confirmation for the whole Time: And therefore the Confirmation must be had of the Land, To have and to hold for Part of the Term; and being so made it may be good for that Time only, and no longer. Lit. §. 519. 520. Co. Lit. 297. 5 Co. 81, 82.

(K) The

(K) The Force and Virtue of a Confirmation, and how it shall enure and be construed and taken.

IF I make Feoffment on Condition, and before the Condition broken I confirm the Estate of the Feoffee absolutely; this will not extinguish the Condition. And yet if the Condition be broken first, so that my Entry is lawful; the Confirmation will extinguish the Condition. And if the Feoffee makes a Feoffment over absolutely to another, and I confirm the Estate of the second Feoffee whether it be before or after the Condition broken; by this the Condition is discharged. 11 H. 7. 29. Co. 146.

If the Lord confirms the Estate of his Tenant in the Tenements, or one that has a Rent, Common, or Profit out of Land confirms to the Tertenant his Estate; in these Cases notwithstanding this Confirmation the Seignior, Rent, Common, &c. continues, and this shall not enure to extinguish it. Lit. §. 535, 536, 537.

If the Disfeisee and a Stranger disseises the Heir of the Disfeisor, and the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of his Companion; this shall not enure to extinguish the suspended Right of the Disfeisee, but when the Heir of the Disfeisor shall re-enter it shall be revived. And if the Grantee of a Rent-charge, and a Stranger disseise the Tenant of the Land, and the Grantee confirms the Estate of his Companion; this shall not enure to the Rent suspended to extinguish it, but after the Re-entry of the Tenant, the Rent shall be revived. Co. Lit. 298.

If I have an Estate in Land for my Life, and he in Reversion confirms the Estate to me and my Wife for the Term of our Lives; this shall enure only as a Confirmation of my Estate, and not so as to give any Estate to my Wife. But if I have a Lease for Life or Years in Right of my Wife, and he in the Reversion confirms the Estate to me and my Wife, To have and to hold to us for our Lives; this shall enure not only to confirm the Estate, but also to create an Estate to me after my Wife's Death: And in Case of a Lease for Years, it makes our Estate joint; but in Case of a Lease for Life, I shall take by Way of Inlargement of Estate for my Life after my Wife's Death; and if in this Case the Confirmation be to me and my Wife, To have and to hold the Land to us two and our Heirs; this shall enure to us in Fee-simple as Jointenants.

If Land be let to Husband and Wife, To have and to hold the one Moiety to the Husband for his Life, and the other Moiety to the Wife for her Life, and the Lessor confirms to them both their Estate in the Land, To have and to hold to them and their Heirs; in this Case as to the one Moiety, it enures only to the Husband and his Heirs, but as to the other Moiety they shall be Jointenants. And yet if such a Lease for Life be made to two Men by several Moieties, and the Lessor confirms their Estates in the Land, To have and to hold to them and their Heirs; by this they are Tenants in Common of the Inheritance. Co. Lit. 299.

If the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of the Disfeisor, To have and to hold to him and his Heirs of his Body engendred, or To have and to hold to him for Term of his Life; this shall enure to him as a Fee-simple, and shall confirm his Estate for ever. Lit. §. 419.

If my Disfeisor makes a Lease for Life, the Remainder over in Fee, and I confirm the Estate of the Tenant for Life, this shall not enure to, nor avail him in Remainder. And if the Disfeisor makes a Gift in Tail, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Tenant in Tail; this shall not extend to the Fee-simple, no more than if the Disfeisor makes a Gift in Tail, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder to the right Heirs of the Tenant in Tail, and the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of the Tenant in Tail; for this shall extend only to the Estate-tail, and not to the Remainder for Life or in Fee. But if the Disfeisee in the first Case, confirms the Estate of him in the Remainder; this shall enure to and avail the Tenant for Life. And so if a Disfeisor makes a Lease for Life and keeps the Reversion, and after the Disfeisee confirms to the Disfeisor; this shall enure to the Tenant for Life. And so if a Disfeisor makes a Lease for Life to A. and B. and the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of A. this shall enure to B. and make his Estate good also in the other Moiety. And so if there be two Disfeisors, and the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of one of them without saying more, this shall enure to them both. But if the Confirmation be of the Land, To have and to hold the Land to one; in this Case it may enure to him alone. So if a Disfeisor infeoffs A. and B. and the Heirs of B. and the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of B. although it be but for his Life; yet this shall enure to both, and to the whole Fee-simple. Co. Lit. 297, 298.

If a Lease be made for Life to A. the Remainder to B. for Life, and the Lessor confirms their Estates in the Land, To have and to hold to them and their Heirs; this shall enure as to the one Moiety to A. in Fee after the Death of B. and as to the other Moiety in Fee to B. after the Death of A. Co. Lit. 299.

If

If Lands be given to two Men, and the Heirs of their two Bodies begotten, and the Donor confirms their Estates in the Land, To have and to hold the Land to them and their Heirs; this shall enure to them as a joint Estate for their Lives, and after for several Inheritances. Co. Lit. 299.

If the Lessee for Life, or the Disfeisor, makes an absolute Lease for Years, and he in Reversion, or the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of the Lessee for Years; this makes the Lease good for all the Time. So if the Disfeisor makes a Lease for Life, and the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of the Lessee for Life; this makes the Estate good for the Life. And if he in Reversion confirms the Estate of the Termor but an Hour; this makes it good for all the Term. And if an Estate for Life or in Fee be confirmed but for one Hour, it is a good Confirmation for all the Estate. And if the Disfeisee confirms the Estate of the Disfeisor, To have and to hold for one Hour, Year, or for Life, or in Tail; this is a good Confirmation for ever, and makes his Estate unavoidable. And yet if the Disfeisee confirms the Land, Habendum the Land for Life, or Tail, &c. contra. Lit. §. 516, 519, 520, 521, 541. 5 Co. 79.

If a voidable Lease be made for forty Years, and the Lessor confirms the Term for twenty Years; this is a good Confirmation of the whole Term; but if he confirms the Land for twenty Years, it may be good for that Time only, and no longer; wherein as in divers other Cases before observed, that the very Words whereby the Confirmation is made, are much to be heeded, for Parols font plea. Dyer 52, 339. 5 Co. 81.

If Tenant in Tail or for Life of Land, lets it for Years, and after confirms the Land to the Lessee for Years, To have and to hold to the Lessee and his Heirs for ever; by this the Lessee has only an Estate for Term of the Life of the Tenant in Tail, or for Life, and therein his Lease for Years is extinct. Lit. §. 606, 607, 610.

If Tenant for Life grants a Rent to another and his Heirs during the Life of the Tenant for Life, and the Lessor confirms to the Grantee and his Heirs; this shall be construed to be an Estate for Life only, and no Enlargement of the Estate. But if Tenant for Life grant a Rent-charge in Fee, and the Lessor confirms it, this shall be construed to be a Confirmation of the Fee-simple. Co. 147. Co. Lit. 301.

A Man, in Consideration of natural Love and Affection which he bore to his Son, bargained and sold, gave, granted and confirmed, the Land to him and his Heirs; the Deed was inrolled, (But Note, the Inrolment signified nothing in this Case): The Question was, whether this Land would pass, and how? Thereupon it was resolved that it should not pass by way of Use, unless Money was paid, or the Estate executed; but because the Son was then in Possession, it was held to enure by way of Confirmation. Cro. Jac. 127. pl. 17.

Of Assignments.

(A) Assignment what, Assignor and Assignee, who.

AN Assignment is the Setting over, or Transferring a Right or Interest which one has in a Thing to another.

The Assignor is he who makes the Assignment, and the Assignee is he to whom it is made.

An Assignee is he to whom the Thing is appointed or assigned, to be occupied, used, paid or done; and is always such a Person, who has the Thing so assigned in his own Right and for himself; i. e. the Interest is vested in him.

(B) Things requisite in an Assignment.

THERE needs no Consideration in an Assignment by Tenant for Years; for the Tenure and Attendance, and being subject to Forfeiture and Payment of Rent, (if there were any) is sufficient to vest an Use in the Assignee. Mod. 263.

An Assignment is usually made by the Words have given, granted, assigned and set over. See before, p. 230, 231.

In an Assignment it is necessary to have Covenants.

First, On the Assignor's Part, viz. to save harmless of former Rents, Grants and Incumbrances, and for the Delivery of Evidences and Deeds; that the Assignor is Owner in Possession, and has Power to grant and assign; that the Assignee may quietly enjoy, to make further Assurance, &c.

Secondly, On the Assignee's Part, viz. to pay the Rent, to perform Covenants, &c.
See before Chap. 4. Of Things necessarily incident to a good Deed.

(C) Of what an Assignment may be made, or not.

THERE may be an Assignment of Lands given in Fee, for Life or Years; of a Mortgage for Years forfeited, the Mortgagor being made a Party and confirming the Assignment; of an Annuity, Rent-charge, Judgment, Statute, &c. Wood's Inst. B. 2. c. 3.

Where a Person has a Term for Years, he cannot grant and assign the same over, unless he has actual Possession; but if he has not, then it must be by sealing of the Deed upon the Ground. Carter 161. Cro. Eliz. 483, 446, 447. 1 Lev. 47, 270, 271, 272. 3 Lev. 387. Dalison 81.

If a Devisee in Remainder of a Term articles for a valuable Consideration to sell it; this is a good Assignment in Equity, and the Devisee in Remainder is afterwards but a Trustee for the Purchaser. Will. 574.

An Authority or Trust cannot be assigned over unless it be granted to him and his Assigns. Perk. §. 99. 4 Inst. 85. Finch 16, 17, 31. And then it must be in Writing.

A Right of Entry, or Thing in Action, or Cause of Suit, or Title for Condition broken cannot be granted or assigned over.

A Thing in Action, as a Bond, a just Debt, &c. is vulgarly said to be assignable over; and Assignments are sometimes made of them; but the very Form used in such Cases (except in Cases of Bankrupts, ut infra) shew them not to be assignable in their Nature; for as the Assignee cannot sue for the same in his own Name, a Letter of Attorney is added in the same Deed, empowering the Assignee to receive the Debt, &c. or to sue for it in the Name of the Assignor; so that in Reality it amounts to little more than a Letter of Attorney to sue in his Name.

But the Paper, Parchment and Wax of a Bond, &c. may be assigned over, and the Assignee may keep or cancel it. Co. Lit. 232. a. b.

Altho' a Chose in Action cannot be assigned to a common Person, yet it may to the King, and he or his Grantee or Assignee may sue for it in their own Name. Will. 252, 253. Vide Lucas 245.

Altho' a Chose in Action is not assignable (i. e. to common Persons; see before) at Law, yet it is in Equity, where the Husband may assign it alone, as he may any other Part of the Wife's personal Estate. 2 Will. 608.

By a Settlement of Lands, a Sum of Money was to be raised for Daughters Portions; one of the Daughters married and died before her Portion was paid, whereupon the Husband took Administration to her, and made an Assignment of all his Interest in that Portion to his Son whom he had by a former Wife: The Son by this Title, after his Father's Death, sued in Equity for the Money. Defendant insisted that tho' Choses in Action might be assigned in Equity, on a Consideration paid by the Party who had the Interest, and were recovered there by the Assignee; yet in this Case the Assignment being by an Administrator, and not the Person who had it in his own Right, this had never been allowed good. Per Lord Keeper: There is a great Difference between the Assignment of the Party and of the Administrator, where the Administrator is a Stranger, and has no Right but merely by the Administration: But here the Administration was pro forma only, and the Administrator had a Right to the Money as the Portion or Provision for his Wife; and it was disposable by the Husband as other Money. Decreed pro Quer. 1 Chan. Ca. 169, 170.

A Possibility is not assignable in Equity, for that which is a Rule of Law (the Lord Keeper said) is a Rule in Equity. 2 Vern. 563. But it may be released; for it is unreasonable there should be an Incumbrance on a Man's Estate, that can no way be discharged. Ibid.

Yet an Assignment of a contingent Interest which the Husband has in Right of the Wife, or a Possibility of a Term tho' not good strictly by way of Assignment, yet will operate as an Agreement where it is for a valuable Consideration. 2 Will. 608.

A. possessed of a Term settled it in Trust to the Use of himself and his Wife for Life, Remainder to the Use of such Issue of the Husband and Wife as he should by Will appoint: He by Will settled it on B. his Son, who in the Life-time of his Mother assigned and released it to C. to whom the Trustees likewise assigned their Interest; and it was held by the Court, with the Advice of the Judges, that tho' a Grant of a future Possibility is not good in Law, yet a Possibility of a Trust in Equity may be good; and that it was the rather so in this Case, because the Trustees joined in it. 1 Chan. Rep. 29.

Matters of Ease and Pleasure granted to a Person cannot be assigned; as to go to Church over my Ground, to dine at my Table, &c. But generally speaking, Matters of Profit may be granted over.

The Estates of Bankrupts may be assigned over by the Commissioners, and the Assignees may bring Actions relating thereto (as to recover their Debts, &c.) in their own Names, Stat. 1 Jac. 1. c. 15.

The Judge's Certificate for taking and prosecuting Felons to Conviction, may be assigned over once. Stat. 10 & 11 Will. 3. c. 23.

Bills of Exchange are assignable over.

And so are all Notes whereby any Person shall promise to pay another, or Order, or Bearer, the Money mentioned in such Note. Stat. 3 & 4 Ann. c. 9.

Bail-Bonds may be assigned over by the Sheriff, &c. Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 16.

And Exchequer Orders, Stocks, &c. may be assigned or transferred from one to another by different Statutes.

(D) How far a Grantor or a Grantee, Lessee, or his Assigns, are chargeable, before or after an Assignment made, with the Rent, &c.

IF a Lessee assigns over his Term, the Lessor may charge the Lessee or Assignee as he pleases; but if he accepts the Rent of the Assignee (knowing of the Assignment) he has determined his Election, and cannot afterwards have an Action of Debt against the Lessee for the Rent due after the Assignment. But a Lessor shall not be forced to take the Assignee for his Tenant. 3 Co. 23, 24, 64.

By such Acceptance of the Rent the Lessor extinguishes the Privity of the Contract. But after such an Acceptance he may have an Action of Covenant for his Rent. 1 Saund. 240, 241. Cro. Jac. 521, 334. Cro. Car. 518. & vide 3 Lev. 233. Carib. 178.

And altho' he refuses to accept the Assignee as his Tenant, yet if he thinks proper he may afterwards charge him in an Action for the Rent. 2 Saund. 181.

And if a Lease be made for Years rendring Rent, with a Condition, that if the Lessee assigns his Term, the Lessor may re-enter; and the Lessee assigns, the Lessor receives the Rent of the Assignee, (not knowing of the Assignment) it does not exclude the Lessor of his Entry; for the Lessee shall not take Benefit of his own Fraud. 3 Co. 64.

And if a Lessee for Years assigns over his Term and dies, his Executors are not chargeable for the Rent due after his Decease. Noy's Max. 71.

If a Lessee covenants for himself and his Executors (not Assignees) to repair the House; Covenant lies against the Assignee tho' not named, it being for the Support of the Premises demised. 5 Co. 24. b.

Lessee covenanted for himself and his Assigns to rebuild a House before such a Time, which he did not, but after the Time expired he assigned the Term; this Covenant does not bind the Assignee, as it was broken before the Assignment. Salk. 199. Goult. 129. Cro. Eliz. 457. Moor 399, 400.

An Assignee of a Lease rendring Rent, after Enjoyment of Part of the Term, made an Assignment over for the Residue of his Term; on a Bill brought against him to account for the Rent for such Time as he held the Land, it was decreed, that he should be chargeable for such Time as he received the Profits. Vern. 165.

In Strictness of Law in this Case there was no Privity of Contract to charge the Assignee; but by assigning his Interest he cannot discharge himself of the Rent without tendring the Arrears, and giving Notice of the Assignment, for till then he is liable in an Action of Debt. 1 Lev. 215. and see above.

So in an Action of Covenant likewise for the Rent due before the Assignment. 1 Salk. 81.

But for Rent which became due after the Assignment, he is not liable tho' he does not give Notice of the Assignment. 1 Salk. 81. 2 Vent. 228.

Where the Assignee of a Mortgagor was obliged to pay the Rent, tho' he never entered nor took Possession, but lost the Mortgage Money. Vide 2 Vern. 374.

By the Statute of Assignments, (32 H. 8. c. 34.) All Persons, their Heirs, Successors and Assigns, who have any Gift or Grant of the King of any Lands, &c. which belonged to any dissolved Monasteries, &c. and all other Persons being Grantees or (1) Assignees to or by any other Person than the King, and the Heirs, Successors and Assigns of every of them, shall and may have and enjoy like (2) Advantages against the (3) Lessees, their Executors, Administrators and Assigns, by Entry for (4) Non-payment of Rent, Waste, and other Forfeiture; and also the Remedies by Action only, for not performing of other Conditions, Covenants, or Agreements contained and expressed in their Leases or Grants against Lessees and Grantees, their Executors, Administrators and Assigns, as the Lessors or Grantors, or their Heirs or Successors might if the Reversion of such Lands, &c. had not come to the King's Hands.

Of Mortgages.

(A) Mortgage what.

A Mortgage is a Pawn or Conveyance for securing the Payment of Money borrowed and Interest, of all one's Right or Title in Lands or Goods, on Condition to be void on Payment of the Principal and Interest at the Day appointed.

He who mortgages or pawns is called the Mortgagor or Pawnor, and he to whom the Mortgage or Pawn is made is called the Mortgagee or Pawnee, or Tenant in Mortgage. The

The Word Mortgage is derived of two French Words, Mort, i. e. Mortuum, and Gage, i. e. Vadium, or Pignus. And it is called in Latin Mortuum Vadium, or Mortgagium. Co. Lit. 205. a.

A Mortgage is so called for two Reasons, the first (according to Lit. §. 332.) is because it is doubtful whether the Feoffor will pay the Mortgage Money at the Day limited, and if he does not pay, then the Land pledged upon Condition is taken from him for ever, (Note, Littleton can't here mean that the Mortgagee shall have a greater Estate in the Land than the Mortgager had, but that he shall have the like, whether in Fee, for Life or Years) and so dead to him upon Condition, &c. And if he pays the Money, then the Pledge is dead as to the Tenant, &c.

And the second Reason it is so called, is to distinguish it from that which is called Vivum Vadium. Vivum autem dicitur vadium, quia nunquam moritur ex aliqua parte quod ex suis proventibus acquiratur. As if a Man borrows 100*l.* of another, and makes an Estate of Land to him until he has received the said Sum of the Issues and Profits of the Land, so that as in this Case neither Money nor Land dies, or is lost, and therefore is called Vivum Vadium. Co. Lit. 205.

All Pledges of Land are commonly called Mortgages, tho' improperly, as appears by what is said before; for Pledges of Land are either Vivum Vadium, or Mortuum Vadium.

In the first Case the Pawnee is let into the Receipts and Profits of the Estate till the Money is paid.

And in the latter Case, which is more common, the Mortgagor holds the Lands; and if Failure of Payment be made, and the Mortgagee enters into the Lands, yet the Mortgagor has an Equity of Redemption in the Court of Chancery, and may call the Mortgagee to an Account for the Profits.

But when the Mortgagor holds the Lands, and the Money is not paid at the Day, he may bring his Bill to foreclose the Equity of Redemption.

See of Conditions in Deeds before at p. 261, &c.

A Mortgage is the same Thing as the Hypotheca of the Civilians, and may be defined a Pledging of Lands or other immoveable Thing for Money lent in such Manner that the Profit or usufructus of the Thing pledged remains with the Debtor till such Time as Default is made in Payment of the Money at the Time appointed. Abr. Ca. Eq. 310, 311.

A Mortgage is but a Revocation pro tanto. 2 Ld. Raym. 968.

(B) How a Mortgage is made.

IT is usually made by a Lease for a long Term of Years, by Lease and Release, by Assignment, Bargain or Bill of Sale, &c. of which see a Variety of Forms in the Second Part.

A Mortgage may be made without a Covenant or Bond for Payment of the Money. Will. 270.

(C) What shall be a good Mortgage.

IF A. agrees for a valuable Consideration to convey Lands to J. S. and afterwards makes a Mortgage for a valuable Consideration and without Notice, the Mortgagee shall hold his Mortgage against the intended Purchaser. Will. 277.

Where a first Mortgagee is a Witness to a second Mortgage, tho' there is no actual Proof of his knowing the Contents thereof, yet since the Presumption is that he might have known the same, this shall postpone him. Will. 394.

It is a general Rule in Chancery, that once a Mortgage and always a Mortgage.

(D) Of usurious Mortgages.

HAzardous Bargains are not always set aside in a Court of Equity, for they may be fair; and it is only upon the Circumstances of Fraud, or being extremely unreasonable, that they can be overthrown. But Bargains of this Kind will be assisted in Equity tho' there are not sufficient Grounds to set them quite aside. Vide Vern. 271. 2 Chan. Ca. 136, 137. 2 Vern. 15.

And regularly the Party who comes to be relieved must restore the Money paid, &c. according to that Maxim in Equity, He who would have Equity must do Equity. A Person intitled to an Estate after the Death of two old Lives, took 330*l.* to pay 700*l.* when the Lives should die, and the Estate failed, and mortgaged the Estates by way of Security: No Relief was had against this Bargain tho' both the Lives died in two Years. And the Lord Keeper said, Suppose these Lives had lived never so long, could the other Party have Relief in Equity? No, there is no Precedent for it. 1 Vern. Rep. 141, 142.

P. being possessed of a Reversionary Term for thirty-six Years, to commence in the Year 1700. of the Value of about 200*l.* per Annum when the Estate should fall, in the Year 1683. borrowed of D. 200*l.* as a Security for which P. assigned his Term to D. defrauded to be void on Payment of 40*l.* per Ann. for eight Years. P. brought his Bill to redeem, paying Principal, Interest and Costs; and the Defendant insisted on the Benefit of his Bargain, having lent his Money on such a remote Reversion. The Court decreed a Redemption on Payment of the 200*l.* with simple Interest at 6*l.* per Cent. because the Security is as Usurious and against Conscience. 2 Vern. 402.

(E) What shall be taken as a new Mortgage.

AN old Mortgage assigned to another ought to be taken as a new Mortgage, but no Assignee of a Mortgage shall be in a better Condition than the Mortgagee, unless the Mortgagor comes into the Assignment. 3 Ch. Rep. 79. Chan. Ca. 218.

A second Mortgage of Lands has been decreed where a former was bad and defective, the Land being still chargeable with the Debt in Equity. Finch Rep. 29. 2 Vern. 554.

(F) What shall affect a second Mortgage, or not.

IT has been held that if a prior Mortgagee conceals and denies his Mortgage to a second Mortgagee before he lends the Money, the Estate in Equity shall stand charged in the first Place for the second Mortgagee's Debt. Finch Rep. 29. 2 Vern. 554.

Where the first Mortgagee is a Witness to the second Mortgage, though it does not appear that he actually knew the Contents of the second Mortgage; yet since the Presumption is that he might have known the same, this shall give a Preference to the second Mortgage. 2 Will. 394.

If a Man lends Money on a Mortgage, and the Scrivener who was intrusted to draw the Mortgage Deed had Notice of a prior Mortgage, this Notice shall affect the second Mortgagee. 2 Vern. 574.

A. mortgaged a great Part of his Estate for 50*l.* and afterwards became a Lunatick, and his Committee transferred this Mortgage and took up 400*l.* more upon it; and Lord Chancellor declared the Mortgage should stand as a Security for the 50*l.* only. Vern. 262.

(G) Of buying in old Incumbrances to protect Mortgages.

THERE was first, second and third Mortgagees, who had all lent their Money without Notice; the third Mortgagee hearing of the two former Securities, buys in the first Incumbrance, viz. a Judgment that was satisfied, and he was allowed the Benefit of it to protect his own Security, tho' it was strongly insisted to be against Conscience and contrary to Equity. This Point was settled in the Case of Marsh and Lee, wherein the Court decreed that a Mortgagee may protect his Mortgage by getting in an old Incumbrance, tho' nothing be due on it. Vern. Rep. 187, 188. Chan. Ca. 162. 2 Vent. 387. Hard. 173.

A Mortgagee buying in a precedent Security of the Lands contained in his Mortgage, and other Lands, shall hold against a middle Mortgagee of those Lands till all due on both Securities be paid and satisfied. Chan. Ca. 201, 202.

But when only Part of the Lands are mortgaged to the first, and the whole to the second, and after to the third, if the third Mortgagee buys in the first Title, it shall protect only that Part which is first in Mortgage. 2 Vent. 339.

So a Purchaser or Mortgagee coming in upon a valuable Consideration without Notice, and then purchasing in a precedent Incumbrance, shall protect his Estate against any Person that has a Mortgage subsequent to the first, tho' before the last Mortgage; and tho' he purchased in the Incumbrance after Notice of a second Mortgage. 2 Vent. 339.

In these Cases a Bill may be brought to compel the middle Mortgagee to redeem, or be foreclosed if he does not pay off both Securities.

If a Man lends 600*l.* on a Mortgage, and afterwards discovering that the Estate is pre-mortgaged to J. S. he gets in an old satisfied Incumbrance, and brings his Bill against J. S. to redeem or be foreclosed, he needs not prove the actual Payment of any Money for such precedent Incumbrance, the having the Deed or an Acquittance being sufficient, altho' it is objected that J. S. is equally a Purchaser with him. 2 Vern. 279.

If a prior Mortgage or Statute be brought in, pending a Bill brought by A. against the Mortgagor, and B. who buys in such precedent Statute or Mortgage to foreclose, tho' this Purchase be pendente lite, yet it will protect B. he being at Liberty to do what he can for his own Security. 2 Vern. 29. See Mod. Ca. in Law and Eq. 153.

But where A. made a Mortgage to B. and afterwards a Commission of Bankruptcy was taken out against him, and the Commissioners made an Assignment of the Estates, and then C. lent the Bankrupt 2000 l. on a second Mortgage having no Notice of the first, tho' he afterwards got in the first Mortgage; yet it was held by two Lords Commissioners against one, that this prior Mortgage should not protect the Mortgage subsequent to the Bankruptcy, for every one is bound to take Notice of a Commission of Bankruptcy. 2 Vern. 157, 160.

And tho' a Purchaser or Mortgagee may buy in an Incumbrance, or lay hold on any Plank to protect himself; yet he shall not protect himself by the taking a Conveyance from a Trustee after he had Notice of the Trust, for by taking such Conveyance he becomes the Trustee himself. 2 Vern. 271.

Third Mortgagee buying the first should be prior to the second. Stra. 689.

(H) In what Order Mortgages, Judgments, &c. are to be paid.

MORTGAGES have been decreed to be paid to Creditors before Judgments and Recognizances, &c. but on Appeal to the Lords, it was adjudged that Mortgages should not be preferred to other real Incumbrances; but Mortgages, Judgments, Statutes, &c. should take Place and be paid according to Priority. 2 Vern. 525.

If Lands are devised in Trust to pay Mortgages in the first Place, and then Legacies, and the Trustee is made Executor who mortgages the Lands to pay other Debts, the last Mortgage shall be paid before the Legacies.

(I) How Mortgagee must be satisfied where the Premises fall short.

PLAINTIFF lent a Sum of Money on the Mortgage of some Houses, and had a Bond for Payment of the Money; afterwards he lent a farther Sum on the Equity of Redemption, and had a Bond for that likewise; afterwards the Mortgagor became a Bankrupt, and by some Accident the Value of the Houses sunk so much that they were not sufficient to raise the Money first lent: A Bill was brought to have them sold, and that as to so much as they fall short to answer the first Mortgage Money, the Mortgagee might come in upon his Bond as a Creditor; whereupon it was so decreed; and as to the other Sum lent upon the Equity which was worth nothing, it must stand singly upon the Bond. Abr. Ca. Eq. 312.

(K) Where Mortgage Money is presumed to be satisfied.

MORTGAGE Money shall be presumed to be satisfied on a sleeping Mortgage, where the Lands go into other Hands by Purchase, and no Notice is given of the Mortgage, &c. and the Deed of Mortgage shall be delivered up and cancelled. Also Relief has been given in Equity against an old Mortgage where no Demand was made upon it in 40 Years, and the Mortgagor decreed to hold the Lands and a Vacat to be entred on the Inrolment of the Mortgage. Chan. Rep. 105, 106.

(L) To whom Mortgage Money shall be paid on Death of Mortgagee, and to whom Mortgages shall descend.

ALL Mortgages ought to be looked on as Part of the personal Estate, and on the Death of the Mortgagee the Money shall be paid to the Executor, (because the Mortgage Money came first out of the personal Estate, and therefore should return thither again) except the Mortgagee in his Life-time or by his last Will do otherwise declare and dispose of the same. Chan. Ca. 286. See Max. Eq. 21, 22. Abr. Ca. Eq. 326, 327.

A forfeited Mortgage in Fee has been decreed to be personal Estate, and to belong to the Executor and not to the Heir. Chan. Rep. 283. Vern. 412.

But where a Mortgage in Fee was devised to Daughters and their Heirs, &c. the Court held that altho' it was a Mortgage as between the Mortgagor and Mortgagee, yet the Testator's Intent was, that it should pass to his Daughters as a real Estate to them and their Heirs, and not as a personal Estate, and so decreed it to descend. Vern. 582, 583.

So where a Mortgagee in Fee entred for a Forfeiture, and after many Years Injoyment sold the Land to J. S. and his Heirs; per Cur. the Estate shall not be looked on to be a Mortgage Mortgage in the Hands of J. S. to make it Part of his personal Estate, but shall be for the Benefit of the Heir. Vern. Rep. 271.

(M) What shall be accounted Principal, and what Interest, and what shall carry Interest, and what the Mortgagee is accountable for.

A Mortgagee had assigned his Mortgage, and the Question was, if what was really due to the Mortgagee, when he made his Assignment, for Principal and Interest, and paid him by the Assignee, should be taken as Principal, or so much only as the Mortgagee first lent; upon which it was decreed that all Money actually paid by the Assignee which was due to the Mortgagee, should be Principal from the Time of the Assignment, but the Account between the Mortgagee and Assignee was not to conclude the Mortgagor. Chan. Ca. 67, 68.

Where a Mortgagor signs an Account, whereby so much is admitted to be due for Interest, this will not carry Interest, unless the Mortgagor by some Letter or Writing under his Hand agrees to make it Principal. Will. 653.

Equity apportions Interest due upon a Mortgage. 2 Will. 176.

If a Mortgage be twenty Years old, it is generally said, that the Mortgagee shall have no Interest on Interest in Equity; but in the Case of Howard and Harris, the Lord Keeper was of Opinion, and accordingly decreed, that as to so much Interest as was reserved in the Deed of Mortgage being 60 l. a Year payable for 1000 l. principal Money, that should be accounted Principal and carry Interest, because it being ascertained by the Deed, Action of Debt would lie for it, and therefore there ought to be Damages for Non-payment. Vern. 194, 195.

It is a Rule that a Mortgagee of a Mortgage forfeited shall have Interest for his Interest, and shall be only accountable for what Profits he has received, and not for what he might have received except there were Fraud; and it was always the Rule that the Mortgagee assigning, the Assignee shall have Interest for the Interest then due. Chan. Ca. 258.

J. S. mortgaged his Estate to the Plaintiff and died, leaving Defendant his Daughter and Heir who was an Infant, and had nothing to subsist on but the Rents of the mortgaged Estate, and the Interest being suffered to run in Arrear, the Plaintiff threatened to enter on the Estate unless his Interest might be made Principal; upon which the Defendant's Mother with the Privity of her nearest Relations stated the Account, and the Defendant herself (who was then near of Age) signed it; and the Account being admitted to be fair, it was held, that tho' regularly Interest should not carry Interest, yet that in some Cases and upon some Circumstances it would be Injustice if Interest should not be made Principal, and the rather in this Case, because it was for the Infant's Benefit who without this Agreement would have been destitute of Subsistence. Abr. Ca. Eq. 287.

But if a Mortgage be forfeited, and the Mortgagee refuses to receive his Money due from the Mortgagor on Tender, he shall lose his Interest from the Time of the Tender. Chan. Ca. 29.

(N) Who may redeem Mortgages.

BY Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 16. §. 4. it is enacted, That if it so happen there be more than one Mortgage at the same Time made by any Person or Persons, to any Person or Persons of the same Lands and Tenements, the several late or under Mortgagees, his, her, or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns shall have Power to redeem any former Mortgage or Mortgages upon Payment of the principal Debt, Interest, and Costs of Suit to the prior Mortgagee or Mortgagees, his, her, or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns; any thing therein contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

A Bill was exhibited by the Creditors of a Mortgagor to have the Estate sold for the Payment of their Debts, pending which Suit the Mortgagee obtained a Decree to foreclose the Mortgagor of the Equity of Redemption: Decreed that the Creditors should redeem upon Payment of the Principal, Interest and Costs to the Mortgagee. Mod. Ca. in Law and Eq. 153.

A second Mortgagee may redeem the first Mortgage; also Creditors on Judgments, &c. have been decreed to redeem Mortgages towards Satisfaction of their Debts. 2 Ch. Rep. 396.

One who comes in by a voluntary Conveyance may redeem a Mortgage. Vern. 193.

Admitted he who comes to redeem a Mortgage must shew a Title. Vern. 182.

If

If a Man enters into a Bond in which he binds himself and his Heirs, and dies, leaving a real Estate to descend to his Heir, subject to a Mortgage for Years, and the Heir sells the Equity of Redemption, the Obligee cannot redeem the Mortgage without first having a Judgment at Law. Abr. Ca. Eq. 315.

A. gives a Bond to his intended Wife to leave her 1000 l. if she survive him; the Marriage was had, and A. died, leaving a Freehold and Copyhold Estate in Mortgage; and it was held, that the Wife should redeem both Estates, and hold over till she was satisfied. 2 Vern. 480.

(O) Of what a Bill in Equity may or may not be to redeem.

A Bill in Equity will not lie to redeem a Mortgage of Chambers in the Inns of Court, but the Plaintiff must apply to the Bench or to the Judges of the Society; secus if on Application to the Bench they refer the Plaintiff to his Remedy in Equity. Will. 511.

(P) Where one of two Things mortgaged, or Mortgage and Bond cannot be redeemed without the other.

IF A. mortgages his Tenement for 200 l. to B. and afterwards mortgages his Manor of C. to B. likewise for 300 l. The first Mortgage being deficient in Point of Value, it was held, that if A. will redeem one, he must both. 2 Vern. 286.

Where there is a Debt secured by Mortgage, and likewise a Bond Debt, the Mortgagor or his Heir shall not be admitted to redeem the Mortgage without paying the Bond Debt too, if the Heir be bound. 2 Chan. Rep. 23. Vern. 244. 2 Vern. 177. Abr. Ca. Eq. 314. But see 2 Stra. 1107. Andr. 341.

And if a Man makes two Mortgages of several Lands, and dies, and one of the Mortgages is of an intailed Estate, or deficient in Value, the Heir of the Mortgagor shall not redeem one without redeeming the other. 2 Vern. Rep. 207.

(Q) Where a new Term is subject to the old Redemption.

ONE possessed of a renewable Term mortgages it to J. S. who gains a new Term from the original Landlord, to commence after the old one; this new Term shall be subject to the old Equity of Redemption. Will. 511.

(R) What a Mortgagor, &c. is liable to pay on Redemption.

IF a Man has a Debt owing to him by Mortgage, and another by Bond from the same Person, he cannot tack them together against the Mortgagor, but he shall be let into a Redemption on Payment of the Mortgage only; but the Heir in such a Case shall not be let into a Redemption without paying both, because the Land in his Hands is chargeable with the Bond even at Law; and since the Statute against fraudulent Devises, the Devisee of the Equity of Redemption is in the same Case with the Heir, and cannot redeem without Payment of both, because the Statute makes such Devise void as against Creditors, and then the Devisee stands in the same Place as the Heir must have done if no Devise had been made; but before that Statute such Devisee would not be liable to the Bond Debt. Abr. Ca. Eq. 325.

A. mortgaged his Estate to B. and then assigned the Equity of Redemption to C. afterwards D. obtained a Judgment against A. and B. the Mortgagee assigns to D. his Mortgage, and then C. tenders the Money due to D. who had Notice of the Assignment of the Equity of Redemption upon his first purchasing in his first Mortgage: It was resolved that C. should redeem, paying only the Money due on the Mortgage, and not what was due on the Judgment, because the Equity of Redemption was never bound by the Judgment, for the Judgment was not confessed so as to become a real Lien upon the Estate at the Time when this Equity was assigned, and therefore the Judgment could never charge or affect it; and consequently C. purchased an Estate not bound by the Judgment, and by Consequence the Judgment-Creditor by purchasing in the prior Mortgage could never defeat the Interest of C. It was also declared, that if a Person who had a first Mortgage should, without the Consent of the Mortgagor, purchase in a subsequent Judgment that a mesne Mortgagee or Assignee of the Equity of Redemption should not be obliged to pay the Money due on both Securities in order to redeem, because such Transactions of the Mortgagee was only to load the Estate without the Consent of the Owner when he had no Prospect of bettering his own Security. Abr. Ca. Eq. 326.

Proceedings

Proceedings on a Mortgage may be staid without Payment of a Bond. 2 Stra. 1107.
Andr. 341.

(S) In what Time Redemption must be made.

NO Clause can confine the Equity of Redemption of a Mortgage to the Life-time of the Mortgagor, or to him and the Heirs Male, or the Heirs only of his Body.
Will. 269.

The Plaintiff's Grandfather in 1686. mortgaged the Estate in Question, about 10 l. per Ann. for securing 100 l. in 1696. this Mortgage was assigned to Defendant, who was let into Possession, and continued so ever since, and is now about ninety Years old: The Mortgagor died several Years since, leaving the Plaintiff's Father his eldest Son of full Age, who likewise died in 1714. leaving the Plaintiff his Son and Heir then about twelve Years of Age, who brought his Bill for a Redemption, but was dismissed: And Lord Chancellor ordered it to be entered down as one of the Reasons for dismissing the Bill, that the Plaintiff had no Remedy by Ejectment at Law to recover the Possession, being barred by the Statute of Limitations, and he thought that a reasonable Ground for this Court to follow as to the Redemption in Equity. Abr. Ca. Eq. 315.

But see first of Will. Rep. 271. where if a Mortgage was made never so many Years since, yet if the Mortgagor, and those claiming under him, had continued to pay Interest, the Length of Time was in such Case no Objection to the Right of Redemption. See Abr. Ca. 313, 314, 317.

No Agreement in a Mortgage can make it irredeemable in Equity, as after the Death of the Mortgagor, &c.

And where a Mortgage was made redeemable during the Mortgagor's Life only, the Lord Chancellor decreed that the Heir should redeem. 2 Ch. Rep. 127. Vern. Rep. 7, 8, 190.

In Pearson's Case the Lord Keeper said, he would have a Rule to limit to what Time a Mortgage shall be redeemable; and he conceived twenty Years to be a fit Time, in Imitation of the Statute of Limitation of real Actions. Chan. Ca. 102.

But a Mortgagor was allowed to redeem a Mortgage after fifty Years, the Length of Time being excused by Infancy, Coverture, an Account made up thirty Years before, &c. Tho' this has been denied in a like Case by Reason of the Difficulty of the Account and great Length of Time. 2 Vern. 377, 418.

A Mortgagor had Liberty to redeem before the Day of Payment limited in the Deed of Mortgage, where the Land was conveyed to the Mortgagee conditionally at so much Rent, and the increasing Rent exceeded the Interest of the Money; and altho' the Equity of Redemption of Lands mortgaged was foreclosed by Decree signed and inrolled, and a Purchase made upon it, yet another Person was permitted to redeem on the extraordinary Circumstances of the Case. Vern. 183. Finch's Rep. 406, 409.

(T) Where a Mortgagor concealing a former Incumbrance shall lose his Equity of Redemption.

BY Stat. 4 & 5 W. & M. c. 16. intituled, An Act to prevent Frauds by clandestine Mortgages, it is recited, (§. 1.) That whereas great Frauds and Deceits are too often practised by necessitous and evil-disposed Persons, in borrowing of Money, and giving Judgments, Statutes and Recognisances privately for securing the Repayment of the said Money; and the same Persons do afterwards borrow Money upon Security of their Lands of other Persons, and do not acquaint the latter Lender thereof with the same, whereby such late Lender is very often in Danger to lose his whole Money, or forced to pay off the Debts secured by the said Judgments, Statutes and Recognisances, before they can have any Benefit of the said Mortgages: And whereas divers Persons do many Times mortgage their Lands more than once, without giving Notice of their first Mortgage, whereby Lenders of Money upon second or after Mortgages do often lose their Money, and are put to great Charges in Suits and otherwise. And

(§. 2.) For Remedy whereof, and preventing the same as much as may be for the future, it is enacted, That if any Person from and after the first Day of May 1693. shall borrow any Money, or for any other valuable Consideration for the Payment thereof voluntarily give, acknowledge, permit or suffer to be entered against him or them, one or more Judgment or Judgments, Statute or Statutes, Recognisance or Recognisances to any Person or Persons, Creditor or Creditors; and if the said Borrower or Borrowers, Debtor or Debtors, shall afterwards take up or borrow any other Sum or Sums of Money of any other Person or Persons, or for other valuable Considerations become indebted to such Person or Persons, and and for securing the Repayment and Discharge thereof, shall mortgage his, her or their Lands or Tenements, or any Part thereof, to the said second, or other Lender or Lenders of the said Money, Creditor or Creditors, or to any other Person or Persons in Trust for or to the Use of such second or other Lender or Lenders, Creditor or Creditors, and shall not give Notice to the said Mortgagee or Mortgagees of the said Judgment or Judgments, Statute or Statutes, Recognisance or Recognisances in Writing under his, her or their Hand or Hands, before the Execution of the said Mortgage or Mortgages, unless such Mortgagor or Mortgagors, his, her or their Heirs, upon Notice to him, her or them given by the Mortgagee or Mortgagees of the said Lands and Tenements, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, in Writing under his, her or their Hands and Seals, attested by two or more sufficient Witnesses of any such former Judgment or Judgments, Statute or Statutes, Recognisance or Recognisances, shall within six Months pay off and discharge the said Judgment or Judgments, Statute or Statutes, Recognisance or Recognisances, and all Interest and Charges due thereupon, and cause or procure the same to be vacated or discharged by Record, that then the Mortgagor or Mortgagors of the said Lands and Tenements, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, shall have no Benefit or Remedy against the said Mortgagee or Mortgagees, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, or any of them, in Equity or elsewhere, for Redemption of the said Lands and Tenements, or any Part thereof, but the said Mortgagee and Mortgagees, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, shall and may hold and enjoy the said Lands and Tenements for such Estate and Term therein as were or was granted and settled to the said Mortgagee or Mortgagees, against the said Mortgagor or Mortgagors, and all Person and Persons lawfully claiming from, by or under him, her or them, freed from Equity of Redemption, and as fully to all Intents and Purposes whatsoever as if the same had been purchased absolutely and without any Power or Liberty of Redemption.

(§. 3.) And it is further enacted, That if any Person or Persons who have or hath once mortgaged, or from and after the said first Day of May shall mortgage any Lands or Tenements to any Person or Persons for Security of Money lent, or otherwise accrued or become due, or for other valuable Considerations; and if the said Mortgagor or Mortgagors shall again mortgage the same Lands or Tenements, or any Part thereof, to any other Person or Persons for valuable Considerations, (the said former Mortgage being in Force, and not discharged) and shall not discover to the said second or other Mortgagee or Mortgagees, or some or one of them, the former Mortgage or Mortgages in Writing under his or their Hands, that then and in those Cases also the said Mortgagor or Mortgagors, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, shall have no Relief or Equity of Redemption against the said second or after Mortgagee or Mortgagees, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, upon the said after Mortgage or Mortgages, but that such Mortgagee or Mortgagees, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators and Assigns, shall and may hold and enjoy such more than once mortgaged Lands and Tenements, for such Estate and Term therein as were or was granted and conveyed by the said Mortgagor or Mortgagors against him, her or them, his, her or their Heirs, Executors or Administrators, respectively freed from Equity of Redemption, and as fully to all Intents and Purposes as if the same had been an absolute Purchase, and without any other Power or Liberty of Redemption.

(§. 4.) See it under the Head of redeeming Mortgages.

(§. 5.) Provided always, that nothing in this Act contained shall be construed, deemed or extended to bar any Widow of any Mortgagor of Lands or Tenements from her Dower and Right in or to the said Lands, who did not legally join with her Husband in such Mortgage, or otherwise lawfully bar or exclude her from such her Dower or Right.

(U) Where a Court at Law may relieve the Mortgagor (Ejectment for the Land, Actions on the Bonds for the Mortgage Money, Bills of Foreclosure, &c. being brought) on Payment of Principal, Interest and Costs.

BY Stat. 7 Geo. 2. c. 20. intituled, An Act for the more easy Redemption and Foreclosure of Mortgages, (§. 1.) it is recited, That whereas Mortgagees frequently bring Actions of Ejectment for the Recovery of Lands and Estates to them mortgaged, and bring Actions on Bonds given by Mortgagors to pay the Money secured by such Mortgages, and for performing the Covenants therein contained, and likewise commence Suits in his Majesty's Majesty's Courts of Equity to foreclose their Mortgagors from redeeming their Estates, and the Courts of Law where such Ejectments are brought have not Power to compel such Mortgagees to accept the principal Monies and Interest due on such Mortgages, and Costs, or to stay such Mortgagees from proceeding to Judgment and Execution in such Actions; but such Mortgagors must have Recourse to a Court of Equity for that Purpose, in which Case likewise the Courts of Equity do not give Relief until the Hearing of the Cause: And for Remedy thereof, and to obviate all Objections relating to the same, it is enacted, That from and after the first Day of Easter Term 1734. where any Action shall be brought on any Bond for Payment of the Money secured by such Mortgage, or Performance of the Covenants therein contained; or where any Action of Ejectment shall be brought in any of his Majesty's Courts of Record at Westminster, or in the Court of Great Sessions in Wales, or in any of the superior Courts in the Counties Palatine of Chester, Lancaster or Durham, by any Mortgagee or Mortgagees, his, her or their Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Assigns, for the Recovery of the Possession of any mortgaged Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments; and no Suit shall be then depending in any of his Majesty's Courts of Equity, in that Part of Great Britain called England, for or touching the Foreclosing or Redeeming of such mortgaged Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, if the Person or Persons having Right to redeem such mortgaged Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, and who shall appear and become Defendant or Defendants in such Action, shall at any Time pending such Action pay unto such Mortgagee or Mortgagees, or in Case of his, her or their Refusal, shall bring into Court where such Action shall be depending, all the principal Monies and Interest due on such Mortgage, and also all such Costs as have been expended in any Suit or Suits at Law or in Equity upon such Mortgage, (such Money for Principal, Interest and Costs, to be ascertained and computed by the Court where such Action is or shall be depending, or by the proper Officer, by such Court to be appointed for that Purpose) the Monies so paid to such Mortgagee or Mortgagees, or brought into such Court, shall be deemed and taken to be in full Satisfaction and Discharge of such Mortgage; and the Court shall and may discharge every such Mortgagor or Defendant of and from the same accordingly; and shall and may by Rule or Rules of the same Court compel such Mortgagee or Mortgagees, at the Costs and Charges of such Mortgagor or Mortgagors, to assign, surrender or re-convey such mortgaged Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, and such Estate and Interest as such Mortgagee or Mortgagees have or hath therein, and deliver up all Deeds, Evidences and Writings in his, her or their Custody, relating to the Title of such mortgaged Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments, unto such Mortgagor or Mortgagors who shall have paid or brought such Monies into the Court, his, her or their Heirs, Executors or Administrators, or to such other Person or Persons as he, she or they shall for that Purpose nominate or appoint.

Equity will oblige the Mortgagee to suffer the Mortgagor to present to a Living. Stra. 403.

(W) Where a Court of Equity may make a Decree on a Bill of Foreclosure before the Suit shall be brought to a regular Hearing.

AND by the said Act (§. 2.) it is enacted, That from and after the first Day of Easter Term 1734. where any Bill or Bills, Suit or Suits, shall be filed, commenced or brought in any of his Majesty's Courts of Equity, in that Part of Great Britain called England, by any Person or Persons having or claiming any Estate, Right or Interest in any Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, under or by virtue of any Mortgage or Mortgages thereof, to compel the Defendant or Defendants in such Suit or Suits (having or claiming a Right to redeem the same) to pay the Plaintiff or Plaintiffs in such Suit or Suits the principal Money and Interest due on any such Mortgage, or the principal Money and Interest due on such Mortgage, together with any Sum or Sums of Money due on any Incumbrance or Specialty charged or chargeable on the Equity of Redemption thereof; and in Default of Payment thereof to foreclose such Defendant or Defendants of his, her or their Right or Equity of redeeming such mortgaged Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments; such Court and Courts of Equity where such Suit or Suits shall be depending, upon Application made to such Court by the Defendant or Defendants in such Suit, having a Right to redeem such mortgaged Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, and upon his or their admitting the Right and Title of the Plaintiff or Plaintiffs in such Suit, may and shall at any Time or Times, before such Suit or Cause shall be brought to a Hearing, make such Order or Decree therein as such Court or Courts might or could have made therein in Case such Suit or Cause had then been regularly brought to Hearing before such Court or Courts; and all Parties to such Suit or Suits, shall be bound by such Order or Decree so made, to all Intents and Purposes, as if such Order or Decree had been made by such Court at or subsequent to the Hearing of such Cause or Suit; any Usage to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

And

And by §. 3. it is provided, That this Act, or any Thing herein contained, shall not extend to any Case where the Person or Persons against whom the Redemption is or shall be prayed, shall (by Writing under his, her or their Hands, or the Hand of his, her or their Attorney, Agent or Solicitor, to be delivered, before the Money shall be brought into such Court at Law, to the Attorney or Solicitor for the other Side) insist either that the Party praying a Redemption has not a Right to redeem, or that the Premises are chargeable with other or different principal Sums than what appear on the Face of the Mortgage, or shall be admitted on the other Side, nor to any Case where the Right of Redemption to the mortgaged Lands and Premises in Question in any Cause or Suit shall be controverted or questioned by or between different Defendants in the same Cause or Suit; nor shall be any Prejudice to any subsequent Mortgagee or Mortgagees, or subsequent Incumbrancer; any Thing in this Act contained to the contrary thereof in any wise notwithstanding.

Decree to foreclose Tenant in Tail shall bind his Issue in an Equity of Redemption, because that is a Right set up only in a Court of Equity, and so may be here extinguished. Chan. Ca. 220.

Yet if there be an Infant in the Case, he ought not to be foreclosed without a Day to shew Cause after he comes of Age; but the Court may decree the Lands to be sold to pay Debts, and that will bind the Infant. Vern. Rep. 295.

If an Annuity be granted out of Lands redeemable on Payment of Money, the Grantor cannot be foreclosed of the Land, but he may of the Redemption of the Annuity. Vern. 209, 210.

(X) Of Re-conveyance of Mortgage on Payment of the Money. See before the Stat. 7 Geo. 2. c. 20.

ON a Bill to compel a Re-assignment of a Mortgage from the 25th of September 1722, there having been then a Tender made of 1000*l.* Principal and Interest; it appeared that on the Day before the 25th of March 1722. the Mortgagor gave personal Notice in Writing to the Defendant the Mortgagee, that he would tender the Money and Interest between the Hours of Ten and Twelve in the Morning, at Lincoln's Inn Hall, on the 25th of September 1722. which accordingly was done. It was objected, that Lincoln's Inn Hall was not named in the Proviso in the Mortgage Deed as the Place for the Payment of the Money, and therefore the Tender must be to the Person. By Lord Chancellor: The Money being lent in Town, and after personal Notice given for the Payment thereof, and no Objection made by the Mortgagee to the Place at the Time of the Notice, it would be very hard to make the Mortgagor travel with this great Sum of Money where the Mortgagee lived; but in this Case it ought to appear that the Mortgagor from that Time always kept the Money ready; whereas the contrary thereof being proved that the Mortgagor was not ready to pay it, therefore the Interest must run on; and decreed the Defendant to re-assign. 2 Will. 378.

A Deed was in Nature of a Mortgage, with Covenant to re-convey on paying the Money, which was tendred at the Day and Place, and refused: The Money without Interest from the Tender, and to re-convey the Land, &c. was decreed; but that the Plaintiff ought to make Oath that the Money was kept, and no Profit made of it. 2 Chan. Ca. 206.

The Statute of Limitations is no Bar to Ejectment on a Mortgage where the Interest has been paid. Ld. Raym. 740.

S E C T. XVII.

Of Exchanges.

(A) Exchange what.

AN Exchange (Excambium) is the mutual Grant of equal Interests, the one in Exchange for the other.

Or it is, where a Man is seised or possessed of Land in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years; or is possessed of Goods, and another is seised or possessed of other Lands, or possessed of other Goods in the like Manner, and they exchange their Lands or Goods the one for the other; and in this there is a double Grant, for each of them grants that which is his to the other. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Exchange. Finch's Ley 27. Lit. §. 62.

(B) The

(B) The Nature and Effect of an Exchange.

THE Fruit and Effect of an Exchange is, that it gives the Interest, and alters the Property of the Things exchanged, to either Party, according to the Agreement. And if the Exchange be of Lands or Tenements of any Estate of Inheritance or Freehold, whether it be by Word or Deed, it has a Condition and a Warranty in Law incident and annexed to it as a Thing made by the Word Exchange, and tacite implied in every Grant of Exchange; a Condition to give a Re-entry upon all the Land given in Exchange, if he be put out of all or Part of the Land taken in Exchange; and a Warranty, to enable him to vouch and to recover over in Value so much of his own Land again given in Exchange as shall be recovered from him of the Land taken in Exchange, if he be sued for it: So that upon every Exchange either Party, if he be put out of or lose by Action the Land he takes in Exchange, has a double Remedy against the other; and yet this Remedy goes only in the Privy, and shall not go to an Assignee: As if A. exchanges Land with B. and B. be put out of all or Part of the Land upon a Title Paramount by a Recovery in a real Action or otherwise; in this Case B. may either enter upon his own Land again which he gave in Exchange, or else if it be in an Action brought he may vouch A. upon the Warranty in Law, and shall recover as much in Value against him of the Land he gave, as he has lost of the Land he took in Exchange. But if B. aliens his Land taken in Exchange to C. and C. be put out of all or Part of the Land upon a Title Paramount, C. in this Case can neither enter upon the Land given to A. in Exchange upon the Condition in Law, nor vouch A. to Warranty, and recover over in Value upon the Warranty in Law. And yet A. in this Case shall have the like Remedy against C. the Alienee upon the Condition and Warranty both as he had against B. But if A. himself implead C. for the Land he gave to B. in Exchange, C. may make use of this Warranty in Law by way of Rebutter against A. And in all these Cases where one of the Parties is put out of all or Part of the Land, or out of Part of the Estate by Entry, and the other Party enters upon the other's Land upon the Condition in Law, he may enter upon the whole Land and avoid the whole Exchange: But if he be impleaded for a Part only, or for the Whole, and a Part only be recovered from him; in this Case he shall recover so much in Value of the other's Land only as he hath lost, and no more: As if an Exchange be of three Acres for three Acres, and after one of the Parties is put out of one of the Acres by the Entry of a Stranger; in this Case he may enter upon the Whole three Acres he had given in Exchange, and so avoid the whole Exchange if he will. And if A. and B. be Jointenants for Life, and the Fee-simple is in the Heirs of A. and A. exchanges this Land with C. in Fee, and then dies, and B. enters and avoids the Exchange for his Life, (as he may) in this Case C. may avoid the whole Exchange, and enter upon his own three Acres again. So if he in Reversion disseises his Tenant for Life, and then exchanges the Land, and after the Tenant for Life enters, the other Party may defeat the whole Exchange. But in the Case of an Exchange of three Acres for three Acres, if one of the Acres were gained by Disseisin, and the Disseisee brings an Action and recovers it against the Disseisor; in this Case if he vouches over the other Party to the Exchange, he shall recover so much in Value only of the three Acres he gave in Exchange, as the Acre he has lost, and no more: 4 Co. 121. 15 E. 4. 3. 9 E. 4. 21. Bro. Exchange in toto, & Fitz. Exchange in toto.

(C) When a Deed shall take Effect as an Exchange, or not.

WHERE a Deed shall take Effect as an Exchange, there must be all the Conditions before mentioned in the Case. And yet note, that where one Thing is granted for another in the Nature of an Exchange, and for some of the Causes aforesaid the Things cannot pass by way of Exchange, there they may pass notwithstanding, by way of Grant, and the Deed may take Effect to other Purposes, although it may not enure and take Effect as an Exchange: And therefore if two be seised of several Acres of Land, and the one of them by Deed gives his Acre to the other, and the other his Acre to him, without any Word of Exchange, and each of them makes Livery of Seisin to the other; in this Case although the Acres will not pass by way of Exchange, yet they will pass by way of Grant: And in this Case if no Livery of Seisin be made, either of them shall hold the Lands granted at Will only. And in like manner it is, if two agree to exchange Land, and after either of them levies a Fine, or makes a Feoffment of the Land to the other; by this the Land will pass from each to other, but not by way of Exchange. So if A. and B. his Wife, and C. and D. his Wife, agree to exchange Lands, and A. and B. enter into the Land they are to have in Exchange, and then they make a Feoffment of their own Land to C. and his Father, and not to C. and D. his Wife; this shall not enure as an Exchange, and therefore C. and D. may enter upon their own Land again, but the Feoffment is good. And if one assigns a Woman her Dower in Exchange for Land; this shall not take Effect as an Exchange, but it shall enure to be a good Assignment of Dower. Perk. §. 255, 256, 272. Fitz. Exchange 14.

(D) Things requisite to the Perfection of an Exchange.

TO the Perfection of an Exchange, and to make Things pass by this Kind of Conveyance, these Things are requisite;

First, That the Parties be able to give and take, and such who may be Grantors and Grantees may make exchange.

Secondly, The Things exchanged must be such whereof an Exchange may be made; and an Exchange may be made of Things of the same Nature, as a Temporal Thing for a Temporal, Spiritual for a Spiritual; as a House for a House, Land for Land, &c. or Things of a different Nature, a House for Land or Rent, a Chamber in a House for Common, &c.

Thirdly, The Exchange must be in that Order and Manner as the Law requires; and here note,

1. That if all or Part of the Things whereof the Exchange is made do lie in several Counties, or lie in Grant and not in Livery, tho' in the same County, the Exchange must be made by Deed indented in Writing.

2. The Word Exchange must be had and used between the Parties making the Exchange.

3. If any Rent, Reversion, Seignior, or the like, be granted by either Party, the Tenant must attorn to the Grant.

Fourthly, Equality of the Estate is necessary for either Party to have a like Kind of Estate; so that if one's Estate be in Fee-simple, the other's be so too; for if one grant Lands in Fee-simple, and the other in Fee-tail, or one Land in Fee-tail, the other for Life, these Exchanges are void.

Fifthly, The Exchange must be executed and perfected by Entry or Claim in the Lifetime of the Parties.

Of all which more fully hereafter.

(E) Of the Parties to Deeds of Exchange.

IN an Exchange it is requisite that the Persons or Parties thereunto be able to give and take, and not disabled by any special Impediment.

And observe, that such Persons as may be Grantors and Grantees may make Exchanges, and such Persons as are disabled to grant, are disabled to make Exchanges. See Tit. Grants.

An Exchange made between the King and a Subject is good, altho' the King holds his Lands in one Capacity, and the Subject in another. Co. Lit. 51.

An Exchange made between an Infant and another, is not void but voidable only, the Infant at his full Age may affirm or avoid it at his Election. Ibid.

An Exchange made between a Tenant in Tail and another is not void but voidable; for it is good against himself during his Life, and his Issue at his full Age may affirm or avoid it at his Election. Bro. Exchange 9. Perk. §. 279.

An Exchange made between a Man De non sane memorie and another is not void but voidable; for it is good against him, but his Heir may avoid or affirm it at his Election. Bro. Exchange 9.

A Man that holds Land in Fee-simple, Fee-tail or for Life, in the Right of his Wife, may exchange this Land, and the Exchange will be good as long as he and his Wife do live: And he with his Wife may exchange it for longer Time, and the Exchange is good against him, but his Wife after his Death may affirm or avoid it if she will. Bro. Exchange 9. Perk. §. 279.

One Parson or Vicar may exchange his Church or Benefice with another, and this Exchange is good. Perk. §. 288.

The Disseisor and Disseisee may join together and exchange the Land whereof the Disseisin was made with a Stranger for other Land; but if it be made out of the Land and before the Entry of the Disseisee, it shall not bind the Disseisee, for he may avoid it. And a Disseisor cannot exchange the Land he has gotten by Disseisin with the Disseisee for other Land; for this Exchange is void unless it be by Indenture or Fine, that it may work by way of Estoppel. Perk. §. 280, 273.

The Lessor and Lessee may join together and exchange the Land leased for other Land, and this is good; for it shall be said to be the Surrender of the Lessee to the Lessor, and the Exchange of the Lessor; and therefore the Lessee shall have nothing to do with the Land taken in Exchange. Perk. §. 279. sed quare.

Jointenants for Life, the Fee to one of them, may exchange their Land with a Stranger for other Land to hold in the same Nature, and the Exchange is good. But Jointenants, Tenants in Common, and Coparceners, cannot exchange the Lands they do so hold one with another before they have made Partition. Perk. §. 277, 281.

If A. and B. be Jointenants for Life, the Fee to A. and A. exchanges the whole Land with another for other Land; this is good only for his Moiety, as some have said. But it seems notwithstanding it is good for the Whole, until it be avoided by the other Jointenant. Perk. §. 277.

(F) Of the Things Exchanged.

IT is requisite in a good Exchange, that the Things exchanged be such as whereof an Exchange may be made.

As to this observe, that an Exchange may be made of Things of the same Nature; as of a Temporal Thing for a Temporal Thing, a Spiritual Thing for a Spiritual, as a House for a House, Land for Land, a Manor for a Manor, a Church for a Church, Rent for Rent, Common for Common, a Horse for a Horse, one Piece of Plate for another, or the like: Or it may be made of Things of a different Nature; as of a Temporal Thing for a Spiritual, as of a House for Land or Rent, a Chamber in a House for Common, or for a Reversion, Seigniorship or Advowson, of Land or Rent for a Right of Land or Release of Right, of an Advowson for Land, of a Rent for a Way, of a Horse for a Piece of Plate, of a Gown for a House, or the like. And Exchanges made of these Things, altho' the Things exchanged do lie in divers Counties, are good. Perk. §. 261, 262, 263, 266, 258. Lit. §. 62. Co. Lit. 51, 52.

Also a Seigniorship by Homage and Fealty, or the like, which is not valuable, may be exchanged for Land, Rent, or any other such like Thing. So may a Seigniorship by divine Service. But a Seigniorship in Frankalmoigne cannot be exchanged with any but the Tenant of the Land that doth hold by the Tenure. And Houses, Manors, Lands, Rents, Commons, Seigniorships, Reversions, and the like, may be exchanged in Fee-simple, Fee-tail for Life or Years; so that an Exchange may be of an Inheritance for an Inheritance, of a Freehold for a Freehold, and of Chattels real for Chattels real. Perk. §. 258, 259, 260.

If one grants Whiteacre in Exchange for Blackacre, lying within the same or in two Counties; this is a good Exchange. So if I grant a Rent-charge issuing out of my Land in exchange to J. S. for an Acre of his Land, &c. this is a good Exchange. So if I have a Rent issuing out of the Land of J. S. and I grant this to J. K. in exchange for Land or other Rent; this Exchange is good when the Tenant has attorned to the Grant of the Rent. (For Attornment see before Title Grants.) So if one has a Rent out of my Land in Fee, and I have the Land in Fee, and I grant the Land in exchange for the Rent; this is a good Exchange. But if one grants me a Manor or Land, and I in exchange for the same Manor or Land grant unto him a Rent de novo issuing out of the same Land or Manor; this cannot take Effect as an Exchange. So if one releases his Estovers that he has in such a Wood, and delivers the Release in exchange for Land given to him in exchange for the same Release; this is a good Exchange. 3 Ed. 4. 10. 9 Ed. 4. 21. Fitz. Exchange 16. Perk. §. 244, 262, 263, 266.

If there be a Disseisor and Disseisee, and the Disseisee releases his Right to the Disseisor in exchange for other Land; this is a good Exchange. Perk. §. 271.

So if the Disseisor of an Acre of Land enfeoffs a Stranger of the same Acre of Land, and the Feoffee gives to the Disseisee an Acre of Land in Fee in exchange for a Release of all his Right in the Acre of Land of which he was disseised; this is a good Exchange. Perk. §. 282.

But if the Disseisee grants his Right to a Stranger that has nothing in the Land in exchange for an Acre of Land; this Exchange is not good, neither shall the Stranger take any Thing by this Grant. Perk. §. 271.

If there be Lord and Tenant by Fealty, and 12*d.* Rent, and the Lord exchanges the Seigniorship with the Tenant for the Tenancy, or e converso, by Deed indented; this is held by some to be a good Exchange. Perk. §. 240.

If I have a Rent issuing out of the Land of J. S. and I grant or release the same Land to J. S. in exchange for other Land; this is a good Exchange. So if I release the same Rent unto him in exchange for a Way over his Ground; this is a good Exchange. Perk. §. 267.

If I be seised of Lands to which J. S. has a Right of Action, and I give to him other Land for a Release of his Right; this is a good Exchange.

And the same Law is of an Exchange of Land, and an Advowson by Deed indented, for a Release of Right in another Advowson to an Usurper when his Incumbent has been in Possession of the Church six Months. Perk. §. 268, 269.

If two Parsons of a Church make an exchange of their Benefices by Words of Exchange, and each of them resigns his Benefice into the Hands of the Bishop to the same Intent, and the Patrons present accordingly, and the Presentations are per viam permutationis; this is a good Exchange. Perk. §. 257.

If three Acres of Land with an Advowson appendant be given in exchange by T. K. to J. S. for a Chamber to be assigned by the said J. S. at the Election of T. K. and he assigns two Chambers, and T. K. chuses and enters upon one, and J. S. enters upon the Land; this Exchange is good notwithstanding the Incertainty. So if J. S. gives his Manor of A. to T. K. in exchange for his Manor of B. or for his Manor of C. and he enters upon one of these Manors, and T. K. enters upon the Manor of A. this Exchange is good. Perk. §. 264, 265.

From what is beforementioned these Things are worthy of Observation.

First, That the Things exchanged need not to be in esse at the Time of the Exchange made, for a Man may grant a Rent de novo out of his Land in exchange for a Manor.

And yet if I grant to another the Manor of A. for the Manor of B. which he is to have after his Father's Death by Descent, it seems this Exchange is void.

Secondly, There needs no Transmutation of Possession, for a Release of Rent, Estovers, or Right of Land, for Land, is good.

Thirdly, The Things exchanged need not to be of one Nature, so as they concern Lands or Tenements; for Land may be exchanged for Rent, Common, or any other Inheritance which concerns Lands or Tenements; or Spiritual for Temporal Things, as Tithes; Tenure by divine Service for Land or a Temporal Seigniorship. But Annuities, and such Things which charge the Person only, and do not concern Lands or Tenements, or Goods and Chattels, cannot be exchanged for Land. Co. Lit. 50. Perk. §. 265.

(G) How an Exchange must be made.

THIS Kind of Conveyance (which formerly was very common) was sometimes made by Word without any Writing, (But see the Statute of Frauds in the next Chapter) and sometimes it is made by Deed or in Writing: And which way soever it be made it must be made by the Word Exchange, which is a Word so appropriated to this Thing, as the Word Frank-marriage is to a Gift in Frank-marriage; neither of which can be made or described by any Circumlocution. Co. Lit. 501. Perk. §. 253.

An Exchange must be made in the Manner and Order that Law requires; wherein these Things are to be known:

Place or Nature.

1. That by the Common Law (before the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3.) if all or Part of the Things whereof the Exchange was made did lie in several Counties, or if all or Part of the Things whereof the Exchange was made were such as lay in Grant and not in Livery, altho' it was in the same County; the Exchange was to be made by Deed indented in Writing. But where the Exchange was of Lands lying in the same County, altho' it was of any Estate of Inheritance or Freehold, yet it might be by Word of Mouth without Writing. And so also it might be, if the Things exchanged lay in divers Counties, when the Exchange was made only for a Term of Years: And therefore if an Exchange was made between J. S. and T. K. of Lands lying in one and the same County, in Fee, or for Life, it might be by Word of Mouth: But if all or Part of the Lands of J. S. lay in one County, and all or Part of the Lands of T. K. lay in another County, this Exchange was to be made by Deed indented. And if an Exchange was made of Rent for Land, and the Land out of which the Rent is issuing, and the Land given in exchange for it, both lie in one County; this Exchange was not good without Deed. So if an Exchange was made of the Reversion of an Acre of Land for three Shillings of Rent issuing out of another Acre of Land, and

and both Acres were in one County; this Exchange was to be made by Deed indented, or it would not be good. So if an Exchange was made of an Acre of Land, and a Rent out of another Acre for another Acre of Land and Common for three Beasts, and all was in one and the same County; this Exchange was to be by Deed indented, or it would not be good: But if I was seised of a Manor to which he had Common Appendant or Appurtenant, and T. K. was seised of another Manor to which he had a Villain regardant, and both the Manors were in one County, an Exchange might be made of these Manors by Word of Mouth without Writing, and the Common and Villain would pass as Incidents well enough. And yet if J. S. has an Office, whereunto Land belonged, and T. K. had Rent issuing out of the Land of a Stranger, and all the Land was in one County, and the Office was to be used and occupied in the same County; if these Things were exchanged, it was to be by Deed indented. Perk. §. 244. Co. Lit. 51, 52. Lit. §. 62. 9 Co. 14. Perk. §. 246, 247, 248, 249, 250.

But now by the said Statute an Exchange of Lands, &c. must be by Deed indented.

2. The Word Exchange must be used in making the Exchange.

Words.

As if I grant to you Whiteacre, To have and to hold to you and your Heirs in exchange for Blackacre; and in Consideration hereof you grant to me and my Heirs Blackacre in exchange for Whiteacre; for this Word is so individually requisite, as it cannot be supplied by any other Word, neither will any Averment that it was in exchange, help in this Case: And therefore if A. by Deed indented gives to B. an Acre of Land in Fee-simple, or for Life, and by the same Deed B. gives to A. another Acre of Land in the same Manner; this cannot enure as an Exchange: And therefore if no Livery of Seisin, so as it may take Effect by way of Grant, it is utterly void. But by this Means Lands may be granted from one to another, for there needs no Livery of Seisin. See of Livery of Seisin, Tit. Grants.

So if an Exchange be made by Words between two of Lands in one County, and before their Entry Indentures are made between them of the same Lands without Words of Exchange, and no Livery of Seisin is made; this shall not pass by way of Exchange. And yet it has been held by some, that Permutatio, or some other Word of like Effect, may supply the Word Exchange. Co. Lit. 50, 51. Perk. §. 252, 253. 9 Ed. 4. 21. Fitz. Exchange 12.

3. That if any Rent, Reversion, Seignior, or the like, be granted by either Party, that then the Tenant do attorn to the Grant, for that Attornment is requisite in this Case. (But see of Attornment, Tit. Grants.) And yet in the Case of the Grant of the Land in Possession in exchange, no Livery of Seisin is needful. Neither is it needful that either Party to the Exchange come to the Thing given to him in exchange by the same Means and Manner of Assurance; for if a Lessee for Life of one Acre, gives another Acre to his Lessor in Tail in exchange for a Release from him of that Acre, To have and to hold in Tail in like Manner; this is a good Exchange. Perk. §. 229, 263, 276, 289.

An Exchange may be made to take Effect in futuro as well as in presenti; for if an Exchange be made between me and T. K. that after the Feast of Easter T. K. shall have my Manor of Dale in exchange for his Manor of Sale; this is a good Exchange. Perk. §. 265.

If an Exchange be made in Writing of Land, and it limits and expresses no Estate that either Party shall have in the Thing exchanged, yet this is a good Exchange. But if an Estate for Life be limited expressly to one, and no express Estate is limited to the other; this is not a good Exchange, 19 H. 6. 27. Perk. §. 275. as shall be shewed in the next Place.

(H) Of the Equality of the Estates or Interests exchanged.

ANOTHER Thing required in a good Exchange is Equality of Estate, viz. that either Party have the like Kind of Estate of the Thing exchanged, so that if one has an Estate in Fee-simple, the other has so likewise, and so for other Estates. For if one grants that the other shall have his Land in Fee-simple for the Land which he has of the other in Fee-tail; or that the one shall have in the one Land Fee-tail, and the other Land but for Term of Life; or that the one shall have in the one Land Fee-tail general, and the other in the other Land Fee-tail special; or that the one shall have in the one Land for Life, and the other in the other Land but for Years: These Exchanges are void, and cannot take Effect as Exchanges. Fitz. Exchange 15. Lit. §. 64, 65. Perk. 276. Co. Lit. 50, 51.

And therefore if the Lord releases to his Tenant his Services in Tail, in Exchange for other Lands given to the Lord in Exchange in Tail also, this Exchange is void; for by this release made by the Lord, the Services are gone for ever. Perk. §. 283.

So if Tenant for his own Life exchanges with him that is Tenant for Life of another; this is not a good Exchange. And yet for the seem Reason it should seem, if Lessee for twenty Years of his Land, exchanges with another for other Land for forty Years; that this should not be a good Exchange. Perk. §. 275. Finche's Ley 27.

But if Lessee for Life be of an Acre of Land, and he gives another Acre of Land to his Lessor in Fee-tail, in Exchange for a Release of all his Right in the Acre that he holds for Term of his Life, To hold to him and the Heirs of his Body engendred; this is a good Exchange. Perk. §. 276.

Or if Tenant for his own Life exchanges with him that is Tenant in Tail, after Possibility of Issue extinct; this Exchange is good. 11 Co. 80.

And yet if an Estate for Life be expressed to the one Party upon the Exchange, and no Estate is expressed to the other Party; it is said that this Exchange is not good, and yet where no Estate is expressed, the Party shall have an Estate for his own Life. Perk. §. 275. 19 H. 6. 27.

But in these Cases it is not necessary, that the Parties to the Exchange be seised of an equal Estate at the Time the Exchange is made; for if Tenant in Tail, or Husband in Right of his Wife, exchange their Land in Fee-simple with another for Lands he has in Fee-simple; this is a good Exchange until it be avoided by the Issue or the Wife. Neither is it necessary that both Estates be in Possession; for one may grant an Acre in Possession in Exchange for an Acre in Reversion, and this Exchange is good. Neither is it necessary, that there be an Equality in the Value or Quantity of the Lands exchanged; for if the Land of one of the Parties be worth one hundred Pounds, and the Land of the other but ten Pounds; or the Land of one of the Acres be an hundred Acres, and the Land of the other but ten Acres, if the Estates given be equal, the Exchange is good. Neither is Equality in the Quality or Manner of the Estates requisite; for if two Jointenants be in Fee of an Acre of Land, and they grant that Acre to another in Exchange for other Lands, To have and to hold a Moiety to one of them and his Heirs, and a Moiety to the other and his Heirs, which is an Estate in Common; or two of them give Land in Exchange to A. and his Heirs, for Lands from A. to them two and their Heirs, altho' the one Party has a joint Estate, and the other a sole Estate; yet the Exchange is good. The like Law is, if the Land of one of the Parties be of a defeasible Title, and the Land of the other of an undefeasible Title, this Exchange is good till it be avoided. Co. Lit. 51. Perk. §. 280, 281, 289. Lit. §. 6.

An Acre in Possession may be given in Exchange for the Reversion of another, expectant upon a Lease for Life or Years, where no Rent is reserved, and it shall be good; for they so took it, and no Party was deceived. Cro. Eliz. 902. pl. 6. Moor Case 909.

(I) Of the Execution of an Exchange.

ANOTHER Thing required in a good Exchange is, that there be an Execution and Perfection of the Exchange (if of Land, vide Mod. Rep. 91.) by Entry or Claim in the Life-time of the Parties, viz. That both the Parties to the same Exchange do enter into the Things taken in Exchange, if they be such Things as they may enter into; for until the Exchange be executed by Entry, or the like, the Parties thereunto have no Freehold in Deed or in Law in the Things exchanged, altho' the same Things do lie in one County: And if either of the Parties die before he enters into the Lands by him taken in Exchange; hereby the whole Exchange is become void, if his Heir will; but if one of the Parties enters, he shall not first begin to avoid the Exchange. But if the Parties enter at any Time during their Lives, it is sufficient, unless the Possession be before divested by an elder Title; as by Entry for a Condition broken, Entry by a Disseisee of his Heir, or the like, and not revested again before the Entry. As if an Exchange be had between two of Land, and before their Entry by Force of the Exchange they are, or one of them is disseised of the Land exchanged, and the Disseisor disseised thereof; and then they enter according to the Exchange, and put out the Heir of the Disseisor, this shall not be said to be an Execution of the Exchange; but if the Disseisee has recovered the same Land against the Heir of the Disseisor, this shall not be said to be an Execution of the Exchange; but if the Disseisee have recovered the same Land against the Heir of the Disseisor by Writ of Entry, and has Execution, then he may execute the Exchange by Entry. And in Case where a Reversion, Rent or Seigniority is granted in Exchange, it must be perfected and executed by the Attornment of the Tenant in the Life-time of the Parties, otherwise the Exchange is not good; but in this Case after Attornment is made, it seems the Exchange is perfect without any Entry or Claim. Co. Lit. 50, 51. Co. 98, 101, 105. Perk. §. 284, 286, 289, 292.

If two Parsons exchange their Churches, and resign them into the Bishop's Hands, this is not a perfect Exchange until they be inducted; and therefore if either of them die before they be both inducted, the Exchange is void. Perk. §. 257.

(K) Where an Exchange shall be determined, or the Nature of it changed by Matter ex post facto, and where not.

IF after an Exchange is made, and before or after the Parties enter, all or Part of the Land given to either Party be recovered from him upon an elder Title; as by an Entry upon a Condition broken, Alienation in Mortmain, or upon a Disseisin; in these Cases, if that Party enters again upon his own Land which he gave in Exchange (as he may) hereby the whole Exchange is determined. But if after the Exchange is perfect, one of the Parties enters upon the Land which he gives in Exchange, this does not make void the Exchange; neither may the other Party hereupon enter upon the Land he gives in Exchange, but he may have an Assise, or an Action of Trespass against the other. 4 Co. 122. Bro. Exchange 12. Perk. §. 286, 299.

And yet if an Exchange of a Common for a Way, or a Rent, or the like; if the one Party deny the Common, it hath been said the other Party may deny the Way, or the Rent. Perk. §. 299. Sed Quære.

If an Exchange be made in Fee between two of a Manor, whereof the one Half is in Tail, and the other Half is in Fee-simple, and the Tenant in Tail that made the Exchange dies, and his Issue disagrees to it, so that the Exchange of the tailed Land is become void; this determines the whole Exchange; for when an Exchange becomes void in Part, it becomes void in all, and until it be avoided it is good for all. As if one be seised of Whiteacre, and he exchanges Whiteacre and Blackacre (which is none of his) with another for two other Acres, this shall continue for a good Exchange, and may not be avoided until he that has Right to Blackacre evicts him that has it in Exchange. Bro. Exchange 8. Perk. §. 297.

If an Exchange be made by Tenant in Tail, and his Issue after his Death waives the Possession of all or Part of the Land taken in Exchange, and disagrees to the Exchange; hereby the whole Exchange is determined. So if the Wife after the Husband's Death, the Infant at his full Age, or the Heir of him that is de non sane memorie, disagrees to the Exchange of the Husband, the Infant, or him that is de non sane memorie; hereby the whole Exchange is determined, and no subsequent Agreement can make it good again. 4 Co. 122. Perk. §. 290, 294, 296, 298.

If two make an Exchange by Word of Mouth, and after, before either of them enter, they make Indentures of the Lands exchanged, and grant the same from one to another; it seems hereby the Nature of the Exchange is changed, and the Exchange determined. 15 Ed. 4. 3.

IF an Infant exchanges Lands, and after at his Age occupies the Lands taken in Exchange for his own Lands; hereby the Exchange is made good. So if Tenant in Tail exchanges his intailed Lands with another, and after his Death the Issue occupies the Lands taken in Exchange by his Ancestor, hereby the Exchange is made good for the Life of the Issue in Tail. So if the Husband and Wife exchange the Lands of the Wife for other Land, and she after her Husband's Death agrees to it, and enters into, and agrees to the Lands taken in Exchange; hereby the Exchange is made good; but if the Husband alone makes an Exchange of his Wife's Land, and she after his Death agrees to this and enters into the Land, it seems this will not make the Exchange good.

And if a Man seised of Land in Right of his Wife in Fee, thereof infeoffs a Stranger, and takes an Estate back again to him and his Wife, and a third Person in Fee, and they three join in Exchange of the same Land in Fee for other Lands to a Stranger in Fee; and the Exchange is executed, and the Husband dies, and she occupies the Land taken in Exchange with the other third Person; hereby the Exchange is made good.

If a Man De non sane memorie makes an Exchange, and his Heir after his Death enters into the Land taken by his Ancestor in Exchange, and agrees to the Exchange; hereby the Exchange is made good. And in all these Cases when the Exchange is once by Agreement made good, it can never by any subsequent Disagreement be afterwards made void. 12 H. 4. 11. Fitz. Exchange 13. Perk. §. 279, 290, 291, 293, 294, 298. Co. Lit. 51.

(M) Who

(M) Who may take Advantage of a void or voidable Exchange, or not.

THE Parties themselves, and all Privies and Strangers for the most Part, may take Advantage of such Exchanges as are void for the Defects before named; but when the Exchange is only avoidable, contra. And therefore when an Exchange is made by an Infant, the Infant himself at his full Age, or his Heir, and no other, may avoid it. And when an Exchange is made by a Tenant in Tail, the Issue in Tail after the Death of his Ancestor, and no other, may avoid it. And when an Exchange is made by the Husband, or Husband and Wife of the Wife's Land, the Wife after the Husband's Death, or Heir of the Wife after her Death, and no other, may avoid it. And when an Exchange is made by a Man of Non sane memorie, his Heir after his Death, and no other, may avoid it. But in these Cases of an Infant, Tenant in Tail, Woman Covert, and a Man De non sane memorie, and where Lands are recovered by an elder Title, the other Party may not enter and avoid the Exchange until the Infant, Issue in Tail, Woman, or him that is De non sane memorie, or him that loses the Land by an elder Title, doth first enter. Perk. §. 285, 290, 294, 298. Co. 98, 105. Dyer 285.

(N) How an Exchange shall be construed and taken.

IF two exchange Land by Deed, and limit no Estates, this shall be taken for Estates for Life, and the Exchange is good: But if an express Estate be limited to one, and no express Estate to the other, it is said this Estate is not good, and that Construction of Law will not help it. 19 H. 6. 27. Perk. §. 275.

If an Exchange be made between two Men of two Acres of Land by Deed, and in the Habendum it is set down that each of them shall have the Acres given in Exchange, with divers other Acres not expressed in the Premises; this Addition shall be taken as Surplusage, and the Exchange shall be good for the two Acres. Perk. §. 251.

S E C T. XVIII.

Of Surrenders.

(A) Surrender what.

A Surrender (sursum Redditio) properly taken, is the Yielding or Delivering up of Lands or Tenements, and the Estate a Man has therein unto another that has a higher and greater Estate in the same Lands or Tenements.

But it is sometimes improperly applied to other Things. Co. Lit. 337. b.

He who surrenders is called the Surrenderor, and he to whom it is made is called the Surrenderee.

A Surrender is a particular Sort of Conveyance that works by the Common Law. 2 Vent. 201.

(B) Kinds of Surrenders.

THERE are three Kinds of Surrenders:

First, A Surrender properly taken at the Common Law.

Secondly, A Surrender by Custom of Lands holden by Custom or of Customary Estates.

Thirdly, A Surrender improperly taken, as of a Deed, or Grant of a Rent-charge of a Patent, and of Land in Fee-simple to the King.

1. The Surrender properly taken is of two Sorts, expressed or implied.

1. Expressed, or in Deed, which is when it is done by apt Words, and the express Agreement of the Parties.

2. In Law, or implied, which is when it is wrought by Consequent and Operation of Law, or when the Law interprets or enures something done to another Intent, to make a Surrender of it.

And in the first Case it is sometimes by Word only, and sometimes by Writing.

And when it is by Writing, it is said to be an Instrument testifying by apt Words, that the particular Tenant of the Lands or Tenements for Life or Years consents and agrees that he who has the next and immediate Remainder or Reversion thereof, shall also have the particular Estate of the same in Possession, and that he yields the same to him. Co. Lit. 337, 338. 6 Co. 69. Plow. 106, 107. West's Symb. lib. 2. c. 460.

(C) The Nature and Effect of a Surrender.

THE Fruit and Effect of a Surrender is, that it passes the Estate of the Surrenderor to the Surrenderee, and that hereupon the Estate of the Surrenderor is drowned and extinct in the Estate of the Surrenderee; and yet not so, but that to some Purposes it shall be said to have Continuance still. And therefore if Tenant for Life grants a Rent-charge, and after surrenders his Land; in this Case the Rent-charge shall continue notwithstanding the Surrender. So if Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years rendring Rent, and the Lessee for Life surrenders his Estate; in this Case, altho' the primitive Estate for Life be yielded up, yet the derivative Estate for Years shall continue, but the Surrenderee shall not have the Rent reserved upon the Lease for Years. So if Lessee for Life or Years breaks a Covenant with his Lessor, and after surrenders his Estate to him, his Breach of Covenant is not hereby salved, for the Lessor may have an Action of Covenant still notwithstanding the Surrender. Co. Lit. 338. Co. 96. Bro. Surrender 47. Perk. §. 591.

And if one seised of Land grants a Rent out of it in Fee, and this Rent is extended on a Statute, or granted for less Time to another, and then the Grantee surrenders the Deed of the Grant of the Rent to the Tenant of the Land; in this Case the Rent shall continue as to him that has Execution, and the Grantee. And if one makes a Lease for Years rendring Rent, and the Lessee surrenders his Estate to the Lessor; hereby the Rent is extinct: But if the Lessor grants the Rent to a Stranger before the Surrender, contra. And if one leases for Years, and the Lessee lets Parcel of his Term to his Lessor rendring Rent, and after the Lessee surrenders his whole Estate; in this Case the Rent is determined. 7 Co. 39. 8 Co. 145. Bro. Surr. 42.

Where there is no particular Method in the Lord's Court, or Custom within the Manor for the suffering a Recovery of Copyhold Lands for barring of an Intail, a general or common Surrender is sufficient, tho' the Intail is of a Copyhold Trust or legal Estate. 2 Vern. 585, 705.

(D) What shall be said a Surrender in Law of Lands; and by what Means an Estate shall be surrendered in Law, or not.

IF Lessee for Life or Years takes a new Lease of him in Reversion of the same Thing in particular contained in the former Lease for Life or Years; this is a Surrender in Law of the first Lease: As if Lessee for his own or another's Life in Possession or Reversion takes a new Lease for Years; or a Lessee for forty Years takes a new Lease for fifty Years; the first Lease in both these Cases is surrendered. 14 H. 8. 15. Plow. 194. Dyer 28. 10 Co. 67.

And this Rule holds altho' the second Lease be for a less Time than the first; as if Lessee for Life accepts a Lease for Years, or Lessee for twenty Years accepts a Lease for two Years. Perk. §. 617. 5 Co. 11.

And altho' the second Lease be voidable, as being made upon Condition; as if Lessee for twenty Years takes a new Lease for twenty Years, upon Condition that if such a Thing happens the second Lease shall be void, and the Thing does after happen; in this Case both these Leases are become void: As where the Lessor grants the Reversion to the Lessee upon Condition, and after the Condition is broken. Fitz. Surrender 3. Co. Lit. 218. 37 H. 6. 17.

Or if the second Lease be made by Tenant in Tail, or the like; as if a Man makes a Lease for Years of Land, and then makes a Feoffment to another of the Land, and then takes back an Estate to him and his Wife of the Land, and then makes a new Lease to the Lessee for ten Years; this is a Surrender in Law of the first Lease. But if the second Lease be merely void, then it is otherwise. Dyer 140, 141.

And therefore if the Lessor by Words of Covenant only promises to his Lessee, that he shall have a new Lease, and never actually makes it; this is no Surrender in Law. Dyer 272.

And this Rule holds also, altho' the second Lease be to the Lessee and a Stranger, or to the Lessee and his Wife. Dyer 177, 178. 5 Co. 54, 55. Kelw. 70.

And altho' the second Lease be by Word only, and the first Lease be by Deed, if so be that the Thing granted by the Lease be such a Thing as may pass by Word without Writing. Dyer 140, 141.

And altho' the second Lease be in another's Right; as if the Husband has a Lease for Years in the Right of his Wife, and then takes a new Lease to himself in his own Name. Dyer 178. And altho' the first Lease be to begin presently, and the second be to begin at a Day to come, or e converso. Pal. 40 El. Co. Lit. 338. 6 Co. 69. 5 Co. 11. 10 Co. 53, 67.

And altho' there be a mean Estate between; as if Land be let to A. for Years, and after let to B. for Years, to begin after the first Term, and the Assignee of A. takes a new Lease. So if one demises Land for ten Years to one, and after demises it for ten Years to another, to begin at Michaelmas, and after the first Lessee accepts a new Lease. For in all these Cases there is a Surrender in Law of the first Leases. Dyer 93, 112.

And if there be two Lessees for Life or Years, and one of them takes a new Lease for Years; this is a Surrender of his Moiety; whereby it appears that a Surrender in Law may be made of some Estates which cannot be surrendered by a Surrender in fact; for fortior est dispositio legis quam hominis. And hence it is, that a Corporation Aggregate may make a Surrender in Law without Deed, altho' it cannot make an express Surrender without Deed. Dyer 46. 2 Co. 60. 6 Co. 69. 10 Co. 67.

But if the Lessee only licenses the Lessor to make a Feoffment, and gives Livery of Seisin; or gives Livery of Seisin for him as his Attorney; or licenses him to enter into the Land, and no more; neither of these Things shall be said to be a Surrender in Law. So if the second Lease be made of another, and not of the same Thing whereof the first Lease is made; as where the first Lease is of the Land, and the second is made of a Rent or other Profit to be taken out of the Land; or the first is of a Manor, and the second of the Bailiwick or Stewardship of the Manor; or the first is of a Park, and the second is of the Keepership of the Park; in these Cases there is no Surrender of the first Lease. Also if the second Lease be not a good Lease, perhaps it shall not be construed a Surrender. Perk. §. 608. Bro. Surrender 48. 6 Co. 69. Trin. 5 Jac. adjudged. See 2 Co. 17. Lane's Case.

But if the first Lease be of the Land itself, and the second Lease is of the Vesture of the same Land; this is held to be a Surrender of the first Lease. Trin. 5 Jac. Sir Jo. Chamberlain's Case. See Dyer 200.

So if the second Lease be not to begin until the first Lease ends, the taking of this second Lease is no Surrender of the first Lease. So it has been said, if one makes a Lease of Blackacre in Dale, and the Lessee accepts a second Lease of all the Lands of the Lessor in Dale, in general Words, and the Lessor that makes the Lease has divers other Lands there besides this Acre; that this is no Surrender of the first Lease. 5 Co. 11. Sed quare of this, for others do much doubt it.

So if one enters into Land and makes a Lease for the Trial of the Title only, and after the Lessor (he and the Lessee being both out of Possession) makes another Lease of the same Thing to the Lessee; this no Surrender of the first Lease: But if the Lessor enters before he makes the Lease, contra. Per Cur' B. R. 9 Jac.

(E) Where Copyhold Lands shall pass without a Surrender.

A Man devised all his real Estate for the Payment of Debts, and was seised of several Freehold and Copyhold Lands, but had not surrendered his Copyhold Lands to the Use of his Will, and died, leaving three Sons; and Part of the Copyhold Lands was of the Nature of Borough English. Per Lord Chancellor, If the Copyhold passes, the youngest Son, who is intitled to such Part thereof as is Borough English, must contribute to pay the Debts; that as between the Sons it was a doubtful Case; but with Regard to the Creditors, if there was not an Estate sufficient for the Payment of Debts without the Copyhold Lands, it was his Opinion these ought to pass. Will. 443.

(F) Things requisite in a good Surrender of Lands.

TO make a good Surrender in Deed of Lands, and to make them pass by such a Surrender, these Things are first of all required:

First, That the Surrenderor be a Person able to grant and make, and the Surrenderee capable to receive a Surrender, and that both have Estates capable of a Surrender.

Secondly, That it be made by Deed, and not by Word without Writing, unless of Copyhold or Customary Estates.

Thirdly, That it be made of such Things whereof a Surrender may lawfully be made, for a Surrender cannot be made of Lands in Fee-simple or Tail, nor of Right and Titles, but only of Estate for Life or Years.

Fourthly, That there be Words or Deeds, and Words sufficient to make the Mind of the Surrenderor appear, and that he be willing to give up his Estate in the Land to the Surrenderee.

Fifthly, The Surrenderee must agree to accept of it; for till then the Surrender is not perfect.

Of all which more fully hereafter.

(G) Of

(G) Of the Parties between whom a Surrender is made, and their Estate and Possession.

IN a Surrender it is requisite that the Surrenderor be a Person able to grant and make, and the Surrenderee a Person capable and able to take and receive a Surrender, and that they both have such Estates as are capable of a Surrender: And for this Purpose observe,

First, That the Surrenderor has an Estate in Possession of the Thing surrendered at the Time of the Surrender made, and not a bare Right thereunto only.

Secondly, That the Surrender be to him that has the next immediate Estate in Remainder or Reversion, and that there be no intervenient Estate coming between.

Thirdly, That there be a Privity of Estate between the Surrenderor and the Surrenderee.

Fourthly, That the Surrenderee must have a higher and greater Estate in the Thing surrendered than the Surrenderor has, so that the Estate of the Surrenderor may be drowned therein.

Fifthly, That he has the Estate in his own Right, and not in the Right of his Wife, &c.

Sixthly, And that he be sole seised of this Estate in Remainder or Reversion, and not in Jointenancy.

As for Examples, Infants, Females Covert, mad and lunatick Men, and all such like Persons as are disabled to grant, are disabled to make a Surrender, and none but such as may grant their Land may surrender their Land. A Corporation Aggregate cannot make an express Surrender without a Deed, but it may make such a Surrender by Deed. And such Persons as are disabled to take by a Grant, are disabled to take by a Surrender; and such as may be Grantees may be Surrenderees: And therefore a Surrender to an Infant is good. 10 Co. 67.

If the Husband has a Lease or Estate for Years in the Right of his Wife, he alone, or he and his Wife together, may surrender it. But if the Husband has an Estate for Life in the Right of his Wife, being Tenant in Dower, or otherwise, and he alone, or he and she together, surrender this; this Surrender is good only during the Life of the Husband, except it be made by Fine. Bro. Surrender 44. Perk. §. 612, 613.

One Executor may surrender an Estate or lease for Years which the Executors have in the Right of their Testator. 21 H. 7. 25.

If there be two Tenants in Common, and one of them has the particular Estate, and the other the Fee-simple; as where an Estate is limited to two and the Heirs of one of them, and he that has the Estate for Life aliens his Part to a Stranger; in this Case the Alienee may surrender to the other Jointenant. So if there be three Jointenants for Life, and the Fee-simple is limited to the Heirs of one of them, and one of the Jointenants for Life releases to the other, and he to whom this Release is made surrenders to him that has the Fee-simple; this is a good Surrender of a third Part.

A Lessee for Life or Years may surrender to him that is next in Remainder in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, or to him in Reversion in Fee; and this is a good Surrender. And a Surrender may be made to the Grantee of the Reversion before Attornment, so as Attornment be afterwards made. (Vide Tit. Grants.) And in Case of the Surrender of an Estate for Life, there needs no Livery of Seisin, as in Case of the Grant of an Estate for Life. A Lessee for Years of a Term to begin at a Day to come, cannot surrender it by an actual Surrender before the Day the Term begins, as he may by a Surrender in Law. Fitz. Surrender. Perk. §. 586, 587, 584, 600, 601, 602. Co. Lit. 338. Bro. Surr. 4. 4 H. 7. 10. 6 Co. 69. Dyer 251, 358, 280.

If Lessee for Life be disseised, or Lessee for Years be ousted, and before his Entry, or the getting of the Possession again, surrenders his Estate to him in Reversion; this Surrender is void. So if a Woman that has Title of Dower, surrenders it to him in Reversion before she has recovered it; this Surrender is void. And yet if Lessee for Years after his Term is begun and before his Entry, when no Body keeps from him the Profits, surrenders his Estate; this is a good Surrender; but if another enters before him, and keeps him out, it seems otherwise. Perk. §. 600, 601, 602, 603.

If there be Lessee for Years, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder or Reversion in Fee, and the Lessee for Years be ousted, and he that ousted him dies seised, and then the Lessee for Years enters, and then the Tenant for Life surrenders to him in Remainder or Reversion in Fee; this is not a good Surrender, for there is in this Case but a bare Right of Remainder for Life and in Fee; but if the Lessee for Years had not been ousted, it had been a good Surrender. If there be Lessee for Years, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder in Fee; the Lessee for Years may surrender to the Lessee for Life, and so may the Tenant for Life to him in Remainder or Reversion in Fee; but if there be

Tenant for Life, the Remainder for Life, the Remainder in Fee; in this Case the second Tenant for Life cannot surrender to him in Remainder in Fee. Perk. §. 605. Dyer 251.

If a Lease be made for Life or Years to A. the Remainder for Life to B. the Remainder in Fee-tail to C. and the first Tenant for Life or Years surrenders to C. or to the Lessor, B. the next in Remainder for Life being then living; this is not a good Surrender; neither can it take Effect as a Surrender in Respect of the intervenient Estate. And so some say the Law is, if the middle Remainder be but for Years only: As if a Lease be made for Years, the Remainder for Years, and the first Termor surrenders his Interest to the Lessor; this is no good Surrender. Sed quere. Perk. §. 588.

For it should seem that a future Interest will no more hinder an actual Surrender of the first Lessee than a Surrender in Law. And so also it seems the Law is for a concurrent Lease, which for the latter Part of it is in the Nature of a future Interest. But if in this Case it happens that the middle Remainder is void; as where a Lease is made to A. for Life or Years, the Remainder to a Monk (who is a Person incapable) for Life or Years, the Remainder to J. S. in Fee; in this Case A. the first Tenant may surrender to him in Remainder in Fee, and the Surrender is good. Dyer 93, 112. Plow. 190, 432, 433.

If Lessee for twenty Years makes a Lease for five Years, and the Lessee for five Years enters, and after the Lessee for twenty Years surrenders to him in Reversion or Remainder; this is a good Surrender. So also if the two Lessees join in the Surrender. So also if the first Lessee surrenders first, and the Lessee for five Years surrenders after; but if the Lessee for five Years surrenders to him in the Reversion or the Remainder, before the Surrender of the Lessee for twenty Years; this cannot take Effect as a Surrender, for two Causes;

First, Because there is a Remnant of the Term, as an intervenient Estate to hinder the dawning of the Term.

Secondly, Because there wants a Privity between the Lessee for five Years, and him in Reversion. Perk. §. 604. 14 H. 7. 3. Plow. 541. Bro. Surr. 16.

If Tenant in Fee-simple surrenders to the Lord Paramount of whom the Land is held; this can never take Effect as a Surrender, unless it be in a special Case where the Lord has Cause to have a Cessavit. Bro. Surr. 9. Fitz. Surr. 10.

So if Tenant in Tail surrenders to him in Remainder or Reversion in Fee-simple, this cannot take Effect as a Surrender. So if Lessee for Life surrenders to him in Remainder for Years; or Tenant for the Life of B. surrenders to him that has an Estate for the Life of C. these are void Surrenders; for the Estates of them to whom they are made, are not capable of such Surrenders, for they are not greater than the Estates of the Surrenders, and therefore not able to drown the Estates surrendred. And yet if Lessee for Life of another, or for his own Life surrenders his Estate to him in Remainder that is Tenant for his own Life; this is a good Surrender; for an Estate for a Man's own Life is greater in Judgment of Law, than an Estate for another Man's Life. And hence it is, that if a Lease be made to two for their Lives, the Remainder to a third Person for his own Life, and one of the Tenants for Life surrenders his Estate to him in Remainder for Life; this is a good Surrender for a Moiety. Perk. §. 589, 590. Co. Lit. 42, 3, 61.

If Lessee for Life or Years surrenders to him in Remainder or Reversion that has no good Estate in the Remainder or Reversion, as where the Remainder or Reversion is granted by Word only, (vide Stat. of Frauds) or being granted by Deed, there is no Attornment of the Tenant to the Grant, or the like; this Surrender is not good. 2 Co. 66.

And yet if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Life, whereby he gains a new Reversion (but defeasible), and the Tenant for Life surrenders to the Tenant in Tail; this shall be a good Surrender. So if a Woman inheretrix has a Husband, and they have issue a Son, and the Husband dies, and she takes another Husband, and he lets the Land for Life, and the Wife dies; and the Tenant for Life surrenders his Estate to the second Husband; this is a good Surrender to most Purposes. Co. Lit. 338.

If a Feme Sole be seised of Land in Fee, and she makes a Lease thereof to a Stranger for Life, and then takes a Husband, and the Lessee surrenders to the Husband; this is no good Surrender, neither can it enure so, because he to whom it is made has not the Reversion in his own but his Wife's Right. Perk. §. 622.

(H) Of the Place where the Surrender is made.

BEFORE the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3. it was requisite in every good Surrender, made by Word and without Deed, that it should be made in the same County where the Land to be surrendred lay; but by Writing a Man might make a Surrender of Lands that lay in any other County, and in what Place soever it lay. And a Surrender might might be, by Word or Writing, of Lands lying within the same County, in any Place out of the Land: And therefore if Tenant for Life surrendered to him in Reversion in any Place out of the Land within the same County, and the Surrenderee agreed to it, the Freehold was in him presently. Bro. Surr. 2, 8. Fitz. Partit. 5. Perk. §. 583.

But now by the said Statute §. 3. No Leases, Estates or Interests, either of Freehold or Terms of Years, or any uncertain Interest, not being Copyhold or Customary Interest, of, in, to, or out of any Messuages, Manors, Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, shall be assigned, granted or surrendered, unless it be by Deed or Note in Writing.

(I) Of the Things surrendered.

CARE should be taken that a Surrender be made of such Things, of which it may lawfully be made; for Surrenders may not be made of Estates in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, nor of Rights and Titles only of Estates for Life or Years, nor of Part of an Estate for Life or Years; as if a Man has a Lease for ten Years, he cannot surrender the last seven Years, and keep to himself the three Years. But otherwise one may surrender any Kind of Estate for Life; as by Dower, by the Courtesy, or as Tenant in Tail after Possibility of Issue extinct, or for Years, or Years determinable upon lives; and of any Messuages, Houses, Lands, Commons, Rents, or the like, that are grantable from one to another, and such Surrenders are good. Bro. Surr. in toto. Perk. c. Surr. in toto. 5 Co. 11. Co. Lit. 338.

If I have a Rent in Fee, for Life or Years, issuing out of another Man's Manor or other Lands, I may surrender it; for if I deliver the Deed of the Grant of the Rent, to be cancelled to any one that has any Estate of the Manor or Land in Fee-simple, for Life or Years, in Possession or Remainder, either solely by himself, or jointly with others, this is a good Surrender, and hereby the Rent is extinct and gone. But one that is Tenant in Tail of a Rent cannot surrender it, neither will the delivering up of the Deed in this Case determine the Rent. 14 H. 7. 2. Perk. §. 585, 590, 591, 596, 598, 608.

And if one be seised of Land out of which a Rent is issuing in Fee, and is disseised, and during the Disseisin, the Grantee of the Rent surrenders his Rent, and gives up his Deed; it seems this does not extinguish the Rent, yet the Grantee has no Remedy for his Rent when he has delivered up his Deed. Perk. §. 594.

And yet if one be seised of Land in Fee, out of which a Rent is issuing in Fee, and he dies without Heir, so that the Land escheats, and before the Lord enters upon his Escheat, he who has the Rent, surrenders the Deed of the Rent to the Lord; this is a good Surrender to extinguish the Rent. Perk. 595.

And if the Grantee of a Rent-charge in Fee, grants the same to him in Fee that is seised of the Land in Fee, this shall enure to extinguish the Rent; but if he grants it to one that has only an Estate for Life, contra. Perk. 597.

Before the Stat. 4 G. 2. c. 28. Leases for Life, &c. could not be renewed without a Surrender of all the Under-Leases, and the Under-Tenants might have refused and prevented it. But now by the said Statute, it is enacted, That if any Lease for Life or Years, where there are Under-Tenants by Lease, shall be duly surrendered in order to a Renewal, and a new Lease is made and executed by the Lessor; the new Lease shall without a Surrender of all the Under-Leases, be good and valid to all Intents and Purposes: And the Lessees, by Virtue of such new Lease, shall be intitled to the Rents of the Under-Tenants, and have like Remedy for Recovery thereof; and the Lessees shall hold the Lands as if the original Lease had been kept on Foot.

(K) How a Surrender is made, and by what Words.

IN a Surrender there should be Words, or Words and Deeds sufficient to make the Mind of the Surrendoror to appear that he is willing or desirous to part with, and yield up the Thing surrendered into the Hands of the Surrenderee. And herein observe, that altho' the Words Surrender, Give, or yield up, be the most significant and proper Words whereby to make a Surrender, yet any other Words, especially if it be in the Surrender of a Lease for Years, that do testify and declare the Will and Assent of him that is the particular Tenant, that he in the Remainder or Reversion shall have the Estate of the Tenant, is sufficient to pass the Estate by Way of Surrender. And therefore, if Lessee for Life or Years by Word or Writing says, that he will hold the Land no longer, and wishes him in Reversion or Remainder therefore to enter; or that it is his desire that he shall enter into the Land, and have it and his Estate therein; or that he is content that he shall have his Estate, or have his Lease; such, or any such such like Declaration as this made to him in Reversion or Remainder, will be a good Surrender. Perk. §. 607, 608, 609. Bro. Surr. 1, 35, 37, 17. 21 H. 7. 7. Dyer 251.

But see the Statute of Frauds in Page 748 ante.

So if Lessee for Years delivers his Indenture to a Stranger, to deliver it and all his Estate up to him in Reversion, and appoints the Stranger to deliver and surrender it to him in Reversion, and he does so, and he in Reversion accepts thereof; this is a good Surrender: But otherwise it is of an Estate for Life; so if the particular Tenant does, by the Words Give, Grant, or Confirm, pass his Estate to him in Reversion, and he enters and agrees to it, this is a good Surrender: And by all these Surrenders the Estate will pass by Way of Surrender, except it be in some special Cases where the Intents of the Parties plainly appear to be that the Estate shall not pass by Way of Surrender. But if a Lessee for Life or Years, only goes from the House or Land, and carries away his Goods and Cattle, and so waives the Possession for a Time, either because the Lessor shall not distrain them for Rent behind, or the like, and thereupon the Lessor enters and enjoys it; this is no Surrender, neither is this a good Yielding up of his Estate. Sleigh and Bateman's Case, H. 37 Eliz. B. R.

And in such a Manner, and by such Words as before, any Thing that may be granted by Word without Writing, may be surrendered by Word without Writing, so as it be made within the same County where the Thing surrendered doth lie. And this holdeth true, altho' the Estate to be surrendered was created by Deed; (but see the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. 2. c. 3.) but such Things, as Commons, Rents, Advowsons, Reversions, Remainders, and the like, that cannot be granted without Deed, cannot be surrendered without Deed. And therefore if a Lease be made for Life, the Remainder for Life, by Word of Mouth without any Writing; he in the Remainder for Life, cannot surrender his Remainder for Life without Deed. So where one has a Rent, Advowson, or the like, as Tenant in Dower, or by the Curtesy; this cannot be surrendered without Deed. Perk. §. 581, 582, 583. Fitz. Surr. 1. Co. Lit. 338.

And in Case where there is any special Matter to be contained in the Surrender, as Reservation of Rent, Condition, or the like; there for the most part it must be by Deed, or it will not be good. And therefore if Tenant for Life declares himself by Word of Mouth to be contented, and agreed that he in the Reversion shall have the Land and his Estate therein, rendring ten Shillings a Year Rent, or paying such a Sum of Money; or upon Condition that if he survives the Lessor, he shall have it again, &c. this is no good Surrender. Dyer 251. Bro. Surr. 16.

And a Surrender may be made also upon a Condition precedent or subsequent; as if it be with Reservation of Rent, that if it be not paid it shall be void; but if it be an Estate for Life that is so surrendered, it must be made by Writing indented; and so likewise the Law is of the Surrender of a Lease for Years upon a Condition, or however it is most safe so to do. Perk. §. 624, 623. Co. Lit. 218. See the Statute of Frauds.

(L) Of the Agreement of the Surrenderee to the Surrender.

IN a Surrender it is necessary that the Surrenderee agrees to, and accepts of it; for until then the Surrender is not perfect; but if the Surrenderee once agrees to it, he cannot after disagree, for his first Agreement perfects the Surrender. But the actual Entry of the Surrenderee into the Land is not necessary. And therefore if Tenant for Life or Years surrenders to him in Reversion out of the Land, and he agrees to it, he has the Land in him presently. And yet he may not bring an Action of Trespass against any Man, for any Trespass done upon the Land until he has made his Entry. Perk. §. 608.

But observe, that in the Cases before where Things may not pass by Way of Surrender, either because of an intervenient Estate, or the like; if there be sufficient Words in the Deed, it may avail to other Purposes, and may enure and pass the Thing by Way of Grant; but then if it be an Estate for Life that is intended to be surrendered, there must be Livery of Seisin made upon the Deed. And therefore if there be Lessee for Years, the Remainder for Life or Years, the Remainder in Fee, and the Lessee for Years in Possession surrenders and grants all his Estate to him in Remainder in Fee; howsoever this Deed cannot enure as a Surrender, yet it shall enure as a good Grant of the Estate of the Lessee for Years unto him in Remainder in Fee. Perk. §. 588, 589.

There must be an Agreement of the Surrenderor and Surrenderee, otherwise Nil operatur. 2 Vent. 206.

Where a Deed of Surrender is made to him in Reversion, if he be present he must either agree or disagree. 2 Vent. 206.

But it has been a great Doubt, where a Deed of Surrender is made to him in Reversion in his Absence and without his Knowledge, whether his Agreement is not intended, and that the the Law shall suppose an Assent till his Disagreement appears: It was the Opinion of Ventris that it should; and the House of Lords, upon a Writ of Error, gave Judgment accordingly. 2 Vent. 206. 3 Lev. 284. 1 Show. 296. 3 Mod. 296, 301. Parl. Cases 150, 151. 2 Salk. 618. Co. Lit. 266. b. But Pollexfen C. J. and Powel and Rokeby Justices were of Opinion, that it was no Surrender till the Surrenderee had Notice of the Deed of Surrender, and agreed to it.

(M) Where a Surrender in pursuance of a Bond shall be compelled in Equity.

A. Seised of a Copyhold Estate, attempts to surrender it to the Use of his Will, with an Intent to devise it to B. his Sister's Son; but a Surrender not being practicable by Reason of some Accidents, he prevailed with his Sister, who was his Heir at Law, to give a Bond to her Son, conditioned to surrender at his Request upon Payment of 200*l.* A. died, B. received the Rents and Profits some time, and then died Intestate, leaving only two Sisters. The Mother administrated, and having procured herself to be admitted Tenant of the Copyhold, devised it by Will to one of her Daughters and Sister of B. The other Sister of B. brought her Bill against the Devisee for a specific Performance of the Condition of the Bond, by which she would be intitled to a Moiety of the Land. And it was decreed, that the Mother should be considered as a Trustee for B. and that a Surrender and Conveyance should be made accordingly, upon the Payment of 200*l.* with Interest from the Death of A. Lucas 515. Mod. Ca. Law and Eq. 62.

(N) Where a Feoffment, Lease, Grant or other Act made, or done by the Tenant for Life or Years, shall be deemed a Surrender, or not.

First, Where it is made to him in Reversion or Remainder.

IF any Kind of Tenant for Life of Land infeoffs him in Remainder or Reversion of the Land, or grants his Estate to him in Remainder or Reversion; this shall enure as a Surrender. And if Lessee for Years before his Term begins, makes a Feoffment to him in Reversion or Remainder, or grants his Estate to him; this shall enure as a Surrender. And if Lessee for Life grants his Estate to him in Reversion, the Remainder in Fee to another; this shall enure as a Surrender, and this Remainder is void. But if such a Tenant for Life makes a Lease to him in Remainder or Reversion for the Term of the Life of him in Remainder or Reversion; this shall not enure as a Surrender, because it does not give the whole Estate, but it shall enure by way of Grant. So if Lessee for Life makes a Lease to him in Remainder in Tail for Term of the Life of him in Remainder; this shall not enure as a Surrender, but as a Grant, and shall end with the Life of the Grantee. Bro. Surr. 3, 5, 49. Co. Lit. 42. Perk. §. 616, 620, 623.

If a Lessee for forty Years makes a Lease for thirty-seven Years on a Condition, and after grants his Estate to him in Reversion, and the second Lessee attorns; this shall enure as a Surrender. Pasch. 7 Jac. B. R.

If there be a Tenant for Life, the Remainder in Tail to a Stranger, and the Remainder in Tail to another Stranger, the Remainder in Fee to the Tenant for Life, and the Tenant for Life make a Feoffment to the first Tenant in Tail; this shall enure as a Surrender of the Estate for Life, and as a Grant of the Reversion in Fee also. Perk. §. 621.

If Tenant for Life takes a Husband, and then her Husband and she by Deed indented make a Lease to him in Reversion for the Life of the Husband; this shall not enure as a Surrender, but as a Grant. Co. Lit. 42.

If there be Tenant for his own Life, the Remainder to S. J. for his own Life, and the first Tenant for Life surrenders to him in Remainder for the Life of him in Remainder; this shall enure as a Surrender, and is no Forfeiture; but if he grants it to him for the Life of a Stranger, and makes Livery of Seisin, this is a Forfeiture. Bro. Surr. 17.

If Lessee for Life, the Reversion being in Jointenants, grants the Land to one or all of the Jointenants for twenty Years; this shall not enure as a Surrender, but as a Grant; for there remains an Interest in the Lessee still as a mean Estate. Perk. §. 615.

If Lessee for Years makes him in Reversion or Remainder his Executor; this shall not enure as a Surrender, altho' it gives him the whole Estate. Bro. Surr. 52.

If Lands be given to the Husband and Wife, the Remainder to J. S. and the Husband discontinues in Fee, and takes back an Estate to him and his Wife, the Remainder to W. N. and dies, and Wife claims in by the second Estate, and surrenders to W. N. this shall not enure as a Surrender but as a Grant. Bro. Surr. 36.

Secondly,

Secondly, When it is done or made to him and a Stranger.

If Lessee for Life or Years grants his Estate to him in Remainder or Reversion, and a Stranger; this shall enure as a Surrender of the one Half to him in Reversion, and as a Grant of the other Moiety to the Stranger. Bro. Surr. 11. 2 Co. 61. 3 Co. 61.

And yet it is said, that if Lessee for Life of Land grants his Estate to him in the Reversion and two others, that hereby they have a joint Estate, and the Survivor shall have the Whole. Perk. §. 619.

If Lessee for Life makes a Lease for his own Life to the Lessor, the Remainder to the Lessor and a Stranger in Fee; this shall enure as a Surrender of the one Moiety, and a Forfeiture of the other Moiety. Co. Lit. 335.

If Tenant for Life surrenders to the Husband of a Woman Tenant in Tail or in Fee; this shall enure as a Grant, not as a Surrender. And so also it seems in the Law when the Surrender is to the Husband and Wife. Bro. Surr. 20, 24, 23.

And if B. be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to C. in Tail, the Remainder to D. in Tail, and B. enfeoffs C. and S. his Wife in Fee; this shall not enure as a Surrender, but it is a Forfeiture: So that if C. dies without Issue, D. may enter. Bro. Surr. 46.

If there be Lessee for Life, the Reversion to two Coparceners, and one of them takes a Husband, and the Lessee grants his Estate to her and Husband; this shall not enure as a Surrender, but as a Grant. Perk. §. 623. 21 H. 7. 40.

And if Tenant for Life grants his Estate to the Husband and Wife, she having the Reversion, if she be an Infant and within Age at this Time; it seems this shall enure as a Surrender, not as a Grant. Bro. Surr. 347.

Thirdly, When it is done both with the Tenant and him in Reversion or Remainder.

If Tenant for Life or Years, and he in Reversion or Remainder by Word without Deed join in a Feoffment; it shall be said the Surrender of the Estate for Life or Years to him in the Reversion, and the Feoffment of him in the Reversion.

But if he in Reversion enfeoffs the Tenant for Life without any Deed; this shall enure first as a Surrender of the Lease for Life, and then as a Feoffment. Plow. 140. Dyer 358.

But see the Statute of Frauds in the next Chapter.

Fourthly, When a Grant, &c. is made of the same Land, or a Thing out of the same Land, &c.

If the Lessee of a Manor accepts of a Lease of the Bailiwick of the same Manor during his Lease; this is not any Surrender of his Term, because it is distinct, and of another Thing than what was leased before, and there appears no Intention that it should be a Surrender. Cro. Jac. 176, 177. Noy 12. 2 Roll. Abr. 496.

But where the Lessee for Years of a House accepts a Grant of the Custody of the same House; this is a Surrender, because the Custody of the same Thing let before is another Interest in the same Thing leased, and cannot stand with the first Lease. Cro. Jac. 177. pl. 16. Dyer 200. pl. 62. 2 Roll. Rep. 357.

If a Lessee for Years takes a Grant of a Rent-charge out of the same Land for Life; or if a Lessee for Life takes a Grant of a Rent-charge for Years; that is not any Surrender, because he might have the Benefit of that Rent after the Estate in the Land is determined.

But if Lessee for Life takes a Grant of a Rent-charge for Life out of the same Land; this is a Surrender, for otherwise the Rent-charge cannot take Effect. Cro. Jac. 177. pl. 16. 2 Roll. Abr. 496. Cro. Eliz. 873. Moor 636.

Where an Officer, who holds by Grant his Office for his Life, accepts another Grant of the same Office to him and another, it is not a Surrender of the first Grant. Vide 1 Vent. 297.

(O) In what Cases a defective Surrender, or the Want of a Surrender, may be supplied, or not.

A Defective Surrender of a Copyhold Estate, devised as a Provision for younger Children, Grandchildren, a Wife, or when devised for Payment of Debts, has been supplied in Equity: So has the Want of a Surrender, when grounded upon a long Possession and Enjoyment, in which Case a Surrender will be presumed; and the Surrender might be lost or mislaid, without the Default or Negligence of the Party, being kept by the Lord and his Steward, Steward, who are oftentimes changed, and not so careful as they should be. 1 Chan. Rep. 108. 1 Vern. 132, 195. 2 Chan. Ca. 195. Lucas 497. Will. 61. 2 Will. 490. See Abr. Ca. Eq. 122, 123, 124.

Altho' a Court of Equity will in all Cases supply a Surrender for Payment of Debts, yet not for a Wife against an Heir at Law, who would be disinherited thereby; or for Younger Children against an Elder, to make them in a better Condition than the Elder. Abr. Ca. Eq. 124.

In Case of Gavelkind Copyhold, Equity will supply the Want of a Surrender, as well for an Elder Son as a Younger. 2 Vern. 163.

But where a Man having a Bastard Daughter is seised of Lands, which by the Custom of the Manor could only pass by Deed, Surrender and Admittance, does by Deed, in Consideration of 300 l. therein mentioned to be paid by the Daughter, grant and convey those Lands to her and her Heirs; and she is admitted, but no Surrender is made; and at the Foot of the Admittance there is a Proviso, that her reputed Father should hold those Lands for his Life; and in the Deed there was a Covenant for further Assurance: It was decreed, that Equity could not supply this Surrender in Favour of a Bastard Daughter; that tho' her Father might be obliged by the Law of Nature to provide for her, yet she was to be considered as a meer Stranger to him; that tho' the Father might have a great Affection for her, yet that was no such Affection as would raise an Use at Law; that the Covenant for further Assurance being only auxiliary and depending on the original Conveyance, if that be void, the Covenant must be void or repugnant. Abr. Ca. Eq. 123. Prec. Chan. 475.

If A. contracts with B. for the Purchase of a Copyhold Estate, and pays the Purchase Money, and B. agrees to surrender the Premises at the next Court, but dies before the next Court, or any Surrender made; Equity will supply the want of it. 2 Chan. Rep. 218.

So where A. surrenders a Copyhold by way of Sale or Mortgage, but the Surrender is not presented in Time, and A. becomes a Bankrupt, the Surrender shall be supplied against the Assignees. Will. 280. 2 Vern. 564, 609.

A Man being seised of Freehold and Copyhold Lands, devised both for the Payment of Debts and Legacies, but the Copyhold was not surrendered to the Use of his Will, and the Freehold was sufficient for the Debts; upon which the Question was, whether the Court would supply the Want of the Surrender, and lay the Legacies on the Freehold, and the Debts on the Copyhold, as when there are simple Contract Creditors, and Bond or Judgment Creditors, and personal Assets not sufficient to pay both: But it was held, that the Surrender could not be supplied for the Sake of Legatees, especially when they are meer Strangers, as in this Case they are. Abr. Ca. Eq. 124.

(P) How a Surrender shall be construed and taken.

A Surrender in general shall be taken most strongly against the Surrenderor, and most beneficially for the Surrenderee; and therefore if I hold by the Lease of A. one Acre for Life, and another Acre for Years, and I surrender to A. all my Lands, or all my Land I hold by his Lease; by this Surrender both the Acres are surrendered. But if the Surrender be of all the Lands I have or hold for Life, or of all the Lands I have or hold for Years of the Lease of A. contra. And if I hold one Acre for Life by the Lease of the Father of J. S. himself, and I hold another Acre for Life or Years by the Lease of J. S. himself, and I surrender to J. S. all the Land I hold by his Lease; by this the Land that I had by the Lease of his Father does not pass. Perk. §. 610, 611.

A Surrender to one Jointenant shall be construed to enure to them all. But if Tenant for Life or Years grants his Estate to one of the Jointenants in Reversion; this shall not enure as a Surrender to them all, but as a Grant to him alone. Perk. §. 615. Bro. Surr. 54. Co. Lit. 192.

If the Lessor makes and the Lessee takes a new Lease upon Condition; this Surrender in Law is absolute, and altho' the Condition be broken, yet the first Lease is gone. But if the Lessee surrenders or grants his Estate to the Lessor upon Condition; this Condition if it be broken may revert the Estate. Co. Lit. 218.

Surrenders of Copyhold Lands must be governed by the same Rules as Conveyances at Common Law. Will. 16. Ld. Raym. 630.

Surrender may be to the Steward out of the Manor, but not Admittance. Ld. Raym. 76.

Steward of a Manor may be retained for Years without Deed, and may hold Courts, but cannot take Surrenders out of Court. Ld. Raym. 159.

Surrender may be made to a Person appointed by a Deputy-steward as his Deputy for that purpose. Ld. Raym. 658.

Devise of a Copyhold on Condition to pay Money to J. S. if the Condition be broken, J. S. must be admitted, and make an entry before he can surrender. Ld. Raym. 726.

Officer at Will may surrender to the King, and the Will is not determinable by the Officer. Ld. Raym. 51.

Surrender of a Copyhold to the Use of A. and B. equally to be divided, &c. makes a Tenancy in Common. Ld. Raym. 622.

Lessee for Years may surrender to a Reversioner for Years who has a shorter Term. Ld. Raym. 402.

A Deed of Surrender made by Non compos is void. Ld. Raym. 315.

Conditional Surrender of a Prebendary's Lease good to warrant a Renewal. 2 Stra. 1201.

A Surrender of Tenant for Life shall be presumed on a Recovery of forty Years standing. 2 Stra. 1129.

By 29 G. 2. c. 31. Females Covert may surrender Leases in the Court of Chancery or Exchequer, in order to renew the same.

Of Revocations and new Declarations.

(A) What a Revocation and new Declaration is.

A Revocation is a destroying or making void a Deed or Will, which existed before the Act of Revocation.

And a Revocation and new Declaration, is a Deed made pursuant to some Proviso contained in a former Deed or Conveyance, giving Power to revoke or call back something granted; and by a new Declaration to create a new Estate of the Lands; after which Revocation and Declaration the Lands shall settle accordingly.

There were no Powers of Revocation at Common Law, but a Man might have a Condition of Re-entry. But now these Provisoes, containing Power of Revocation, are crept into voluntary Conveyances, and are become very frequent, and pass by raising of Uses according to the Stat. 27 H. 8. c. 10. for being coupled with an Use, they are allowed to be good, and not repugnant to the former Estates; as if one seised in Fee covenants to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of his Son in Tail, with divers Remainders over, provided that he may revoke any of the said Uses; and afterwards he revokes them, he is seised in Fee again without Entry or Claim. But in the Case of a Feoffment or other Conveyance, whereby the Feoffee or Grantee is in by the Common Law, such Proviso would be merely repugnant and void. Co. Lit. 237. a. It would be void as to destroying the Feoffment, but it might be good as to revoking the Uses to which the Feoffment was made.

(B) The Effect of a Revocation:

THE Revoker is seised again without Entry or Claim, Co. 173. b. for he being Tenant in Possession, cannot enter upon himself.

But he cannot bring Trespass without Entry. Carter 78.

Where in a Trust-Term to raise Portions there is a Power for the Husband, with the Consent of the Trustees to revoke the Uses in a Settlement; this suspends the Vesting of the Portions. 2 Will. 102.

Of two voluntary Settlements, if the first is made without a Power of Revocation against the Intent of the Party, the second shall prevail. Will. 581.

(C) Who may revoke.

A Man ought to be of as good disposing Memory when he revokes his Will, or his Deed, as when he makes it. Cro. Jac. 497. pl. 3.

(D) What may be revoked.

SOME Things may be revoked of Course, tho' they are made irrevocably by express Words; as a Letter of Attorney, a Submission to an Award, a Testament or last Will; for these of their Nature are revocable. 8 Co. 82.

(E) Revocation,

(E) Revocation, how made, and when defective may be helped.

THE Revoker may revoke Part at one Time and Part at another. But he can revoke one and the same Part but once, without a new Power of Revocation to the Uses newly limited. Co. 173. b. 3 Salk. 316.

A Deed is not revocable because it has an immediate Effect, without a Power reserved in the Deed itself: In Revocations at Law all Circumstances must be observed, or the Power is not well executed; and there can be no Revocation in Equity that is not good in Law, unless the Party's Intention be hindered by Fraud or Accident; for the Law has been liberal in expounding Powers of Revocation; and where the Law expounds a Thing according to an equitable Construction, Equity ought not to extend it farther: Yet where there is a deliberate Intent to make a new Settlement, and a Man goes as far as he can to make it, Equity may supply a Defect; but here the Party had not done all that he could do. 3 Chan. Ca. 86, 99, 108, 126.

Equity may supply a defective Revocation, but cannot make a Revocation where there is none. 2 Vern. 69, 70.

(F) In what Cases a Person may make a Revocation and new Declaration both, or only one of them.

IF a Man by Indenture declares the Uses of a Fine, with a Clause to revoke and limit new Uses, he may by Deed revoke and limit new Uses at his Pleasure: But if upon such Indenture declaring the Uses he reserves a Power of Revocation, and does not also reserve a Power to limit new Uses, he can only revoke, and not limit new Uses, by Virtue of the Estate raised by the first Fine. 1 Sid. 343, 344. But see Chan. Rep. 242.

A Power of Revocation once executed is at an End, unless in the Deed of Revocation and new Declaration there is a Power to revoke the Uses thereby declared. Abr. Ca. Eq. 342.

Where there is no Power of new Limitation in a Deed by Power to revoke, one may do it; for he who has Power to revoke has Power to limit. Chan. Ca. 46.

The Limitation of new Uses is good where the express Power in the first Deed was only to revoke. Chan. Rep. 242.

Where a Man has Power to revoke an Estate-tail, he cannot out of it create a Fee. 3 Lev. 213, 214.

By the same Conveyance the old Uses are revoked, new Uses may be created, where the former cease ipso facto without Entry or Claim.

Because the antient Uses cease ipso facto without Entry or Claim, (but not so as to bring Trespass, Carter 78.) and the Law shall adjudge Priority of Operation of the same Deed altho' it be sealed and delivered at one and the same Instant: And therefore in Construction of Law, it shall be first a Revocation, and then a Limitation of new Uses. Co. 174. a. b. Vaugh. 42.

(G) What Act, Deed or Will, is a Revocation.

BY a Bargain and Sale, &c. or Feoffment of Lands given by Will to Uses, the Will is revoked, because a Will cannot take Effect till after the Testator's Death. Dyer 74. 3 Lev. 108.

A levied a Fine to the Use of B. and his Heirs for the Payment of his Debts, reserving a Power to revoke by Deed indented; and afterwards, by a Writing subscribed and sealed, he covenanted to levy (and afterwards levies) a Fine to other Uses; this is a good Revocation: But if the Fine had been levied before the Deed extinguished, it had extinguished the Power, and so no Revocation (of that which had no Being) could have been of the Deed. Vide Skin. 35, 52, 71. Comb. 11.

An Uncle covenanted by Indenture with his Nephew, for the Advancement of his Blood, to stand seised to the Use of himself for Life, and afterwards to the Use of his Nephew in Tail. Proviso, that if the Uncle by himself, or any other Person during his Life, should deliver or offer to the Nephew a Gold Ring, to the Intent to make void the Uses, then all the Uses should be void. And afterwards he was attainted of Treason; the Queen (Eliz.) made a Letter of Attorney to two Persons to tender this Ring, which was done, and the Ring refused: This is a sufficient Tender, and determines the Uses. Judgment affirmed by Act of Parliament. 7 Co. 11. a. 14. b. 15. b.

D. had a Power to revoke a Deed by Writing, subscribed by him in the Presence of two or more Witnesses: He made his Will in Writing without making any express Revocation; this is a good Revocation and Execution of the Power. T. Raym. 295, 301. Vide Hob. 312. 2 Will. 415.

Where a subsequent Act shall amount to a Revocation by Implication, it must be a necessary Implication, and wholly inconsistent with the former Deed or Will. If a Devise is in Fee, a Lease subsequent does not revoke it; and if a Devise be for forty Years, and afterwards the Testator grants a Lease for twenty Years of the same Premises, that is no Revocation, only pro tanto. A Mortgage subsequent to a Devise is no Revocation, but pro tanto. 2 Vern. 496.

In 1675 A. made his Will, and gave the Bulk of his Estate to B. as his nearest Kinsman. In 1681 A. made a Lease and Release, reciting the Will, but with some Variance; and mentioning that the Intent of the Deed was to dispose of the Estate according as in the Will, and to confirm and not revoke it; and then the Deed disposed of the Estate, some to the G.'s, tho' the main Bulk be settled on B. In which Deed was a Power of Revocation, on Tender of a Shilling, by Writing under Hand and Seal in the Presence of six Witnesses, whereof three to be Peers, and then to limit new Uses. In 1687 A. made another Will, and thereby gave his Estate in a different Manner, viz. the Bulk to M. whom he supposes to be his Kinsman, instead of B. The Question thereupon was, whether or no the last Will had revoked the Deed in Equity; for there was no Tender of Money, and but three Witnesses to this Will, and not one of them a Peer, so that in Law it was plainly no Revocation, because the Power was not pursued. The Validity of the Deed was tried upon an Ejectment in B. R. by Direction of the Chancery, where the Title was found for B. Holt, Treby and Powel, who assisted the Lord Keeper, were of Opinion that the last Will was no Revocation of the Deed. And the Lord Keeper Sommers concurred with the Judges, that there was not sufficient Ground in Equity to set aside the Deed; therefore he decreed the Bills of M. &c. should be dismissed. 3 Chan. Ca. 55, &c.

A. devised Lands in Fee to B. and then made a Mortgage in Fee of the same Lands: This is an absolute Revocation in Law of the Devise; contra if it had been a Mortgage for Years: But it is not a total Revocation in Equity. Vern. 329, 330, 347, 97, 141. Salk. 158. 2 Will. 334.

A. devised six Houses to his Wife in Bar of Dower, and devised one Moiety of his real and personal Estate to his Daughter B. and the other Moiety to his Daughter C. Afterwards A. upon B.'s Marriage with J. S. covenanted to settle a Moiety of his real Estate to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to J. S. and B. Tho' this is but a Covenant, and therefore at Law no Revocation of the Will, yet being for a valuable Consideration, in Equity it is tantamount to a Conveyance, and consequently in Equity a Revocation of the Will as to the six Houses devised to the Wife; so that J. S. was intitled to one clear Moiety of the real Estate, and to an Account of the Rents and Profits from the Testator's Death; but it being the Testator's Intention that his Wife should have the six Houses, she should have a Satisfaction out of the remaining Moiety. 2 Will. 332, 333.

A. mortgaged a Manor, and then devised it to B. for Life, Remainder to his first, &c. Son in Tail, Remainders over; afterwards A. (who was whimsical) fancying he should marry C. made a Lease and Release of the Premises to D. and E. and their Heirs, in Consideration of the intended Marriage, to the Use of himself and his Heirs till the intended Marriage took Effect, then as to Part in Trust for C. and her Heirs in Lieu of Dower, &c. There was no further Progress towards the Marriage, but A. died without altering his Will; the Honour descended to B. who soon after died; and his eldest Son brought his Bill for a Redemption of the Mortgage and a Conveyance of the Estate, and the Defendants, the Cousins and Co-heirs of A. brought a Cross Bill, that they might redeem, &c. whereupon the Question was, Whether this Lease and Release was a Revocation of the Will? Held that the Lease and Release would have been a Revocation of a Devise of a legal Estate, and that equitable Estates are governed by the same Rules; the Will is in Disfavour of the Heir, who is always favoured. The Co-heirs decreed the Redemption. Abr. Ca. Eq. 411, 412.

A Father devised Lands in Trust to permit his Daughter to receive the Rents, &c. till her Marriage or Death; and if she married with Consent of her Mother, &c. then to convey the same to her and her Heirs; but if she died before Marriage, or married without Consent, then to convey to other Persons. The Daughter married in her Father's Lifetime with his Consent, and he settled Part of those Lands on her and her Husband, and died. This Settlement is no Revocation of the Will as to the Devise of the other Lands. 2 Vern. 720.

See the Case of Mr. Fitz-Gerald and Lord Fauconberge before, at p. 57.

(H) How

(H) How Revocations are interpreted.

Revocations are favourably interpreted, because many Mens Inheritances depend upon them. Co. Lit. 237. a. Skin. 72. Fitz-Gib. 214.
 But see 27 Eliz. c. 4. whereby voluntary Estates made with Power of Revocation, as to Purchasers, are made in equal Degree with Conveyances made by Fraud and Covin to defraud Purchasers.

(1) What is an Extinguishment of a Power of Revocation, or not.

THE making a Feoffment in Fee, or levying a Fine, &c. of any Part extinguishes the Power pro tanto; but if of the Whole, all is extinct.

Where Uses are to be revoked by Deed indented and inrolled, and a Fine is levied before Inrolment, this has extinguished the Power of Revocation: So a Feoffment or Release to any one who has a Freehold in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, is a Revocation; for this Power is not merely collateral to the Land, but favours of the Interest of the Land. Co. 173. b. 3 Salk. 316.

If he who has such Power has no present Interest in the Land, nor shall have any Thing by the Ceaser of the Estate, a Feoffment or Fine of the Land is no Extinguishment of his Power, because it is merely collateral to the Land.

A Fine or Feoffment may extinguish a future Power of Revocation. Co. 112. b. Vide Skin. 35, 52, 71.

And a Power of Revocation, as well present as future, may be released by him who has such Power, to any one who has an Estate of Freehold in the Land in Possession, Reversion or Remainder. Co. 113. b.

A Man made a Conveyance to the Use of himself for Life, with Remainder over, and a Power to revoke, to which last Purpose he after levied a Fine, and by Deed revoked the former Uses, and declared new Uses; the Fine being levied before the Deed extinguished his Power. *Vent. 368, 371. 2 Show. 368. ## S E C T. XX.

Of Statutes.(A) A Statute what.

A Statute is a Bond or Obligation on Record: But this Word is sometimes used in another Sense, viz. for a Decree made in Parliament, called an Act of Parliament.

(B) Kinds of Statutes.

THERE are three Kinds of these Obligations: 1. A Statute Merchant: 2. A Statute Staple: And 3. A Recognisance.

A Statute Merchant is a Bond acknowledged before one of the Clerks of the Statute Merchant, and Mayor, and the chief Warden of the City of London, or two Merchants of the said City for that Purpose assigned; or before the Mayor, chief Warden or Master of other Cities, as York, Bristol, or the like; or the Bailiff of any Borough or Village, or other sufficient Men for that Purpose appointed and authorized, sealed with the Seal of the Debtor or Recognisor, and of the King, which is of two Pieces; the greater whereof is kept by the Mayor or chief Warden, and the lesser by the said Clerk. See the Form of it in the Second Part of this Work. And altho' this at first was ordained and used for Merchants only, yet at this Day it is and may be used and given by any others, and is become one of the common Assurances of the Kingdom. Stat. de Mercatoribus Acton Burnel.

A Statute Staple signifies this or that Town or City, whither the Merchants by common Order and Commandment do carry their Commodities, as Wool, and the like, to utter by the Great. And the Statute Staple is either properly or improperly so called: That which is properly so called, is designed to be a Bond of Record acknowledged before the Mayor of the Staple in the Presence of one or two Constables of the same Staple, and is sealed with the Seal of the Staple, and sometimes also with the Seal of the Party, the which it seems is not necessary. And this is founded upon the Statute of 27 Ed. 3. c. 9. and was invented, and is used only for Merchants and Merchandizes of the same Staple: This is of the same Nature the Statute Merchant is: That which is improperly so called, is called a Recognisance, which is also a Bond on Record, testifying that the Recognisor owes to the Recognisee a Sum of Money. And of these there are divers Kinds; for there is one Recognisance founded upon the Statute of 23 H. 8. c. 6. See the Form in the Second Part of this Work. This is always to be acknowledged before the Chief Justice of the King's Bench, or of the Common Pleas, in the Term-time, or in their Absence out of Term, before the Mayor of the Staple at Westminster, and the Recorder of the City of London for the Time being; and it is to be sealed with the Seal of the Conusor, and with the Seal of the King appointed for that Purpose, and with the Seal of the Chief Justice, Mayor and Recorder, before whom it is acknowledged; and they before whom it is taken do subscribe their Names to it: And this was ordained, and may be, and is used by Merchants, or any other whomsoever, for Payment of Debts, or Assurance of other Things: And this also is of the same Nature of the Statute Merchant: And both this and the two former are much of the Nature of Judgments had upon Suits in the Courts of King's Bench and Common Pleas, and therefore they are called Pocket Judgments. Stat. 27 Ed. 3. c. 1, 2, 3, &c. 27 Ed. 3. c. 9. 22 H. 8. c. 6. Co. Lit. 289. 15 H. 7. 16. 8 Co. 153.

There are also divers other Kinds of Recognisances that are taken by and acknowledged before the Lord Keeper, Master of the Wards, (now no such Person) Master of the Rolls, Master of the Chancery, Justices of the one Bench or of the other, (some of which are called Bails) Barons of the Exchequer, Judges in their Circuits, Justices of the Peace, Sheriffs, and others; some whereof are by the Common Law, and some by certain Statutes. And amongst these some are without Seal, and recorded only, and some are sealed and recorded also: And some of them are in a Sum certain, as the Recognisances taken in the Common Pleas for Bail are; and some of them are incertain, as those Recognisances that are taken for Bail in the King's Bench, which are after this Manner, Si judicium redditum, &c. tunc volo & concedo, that the Debt recovered against the Defendant shall be levied of my Goods and Chattels, &c. And these also are much of the Nature of the former Kind of Recognisances. And all Obligations made to the King are of the Nature, and have the Force of a Recognisance. See Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 22, 39. 3 H. 7. c. 1. Dyer 315, 307. F. N. B. 251, b. 132, c. 133. a. 68. a.

Statutes and Recognisances are sometimes single, without any Defeasance, and sometimes they are double, i. e. with a Defeasance or Condition, upon the Performance whereof the same are to be avoided. The Debtor, or he that enters into the Statute or Recognisance, is called the Recognisor or Conusor; and the Debtee, or he to whom it is made, is called the Recognisee or Conusee.

(C) What shall be said a good Statute or Recognisance, and what not.

First, With respect of the Persons before whom it is acknowledged.

TO make a good Statute or Obligation of Record, the Form prescribed must be pursued; 1. In respect of the Persons before whom; and therefore the Statute Merchant or Staple, or the Recognisance founded upon the Statute of 23 H. 8. may not be acknowledged before any others besides the Persons appointed by the Statutes. Neither may any other Recognisance be acknowledged before any but such as either have Power ex officio, and by their offices to take them, or have special Commission so to do; and therefore a Recognisance taken by a Constable is void. If a Recognisance be made to the Lord Keeper and two others, and if it be acknowledged before himself, this is void as to him. Dyer 35, 220. F. N. B. 267. a.

Secondly, In respect of the Manner of making, acknowledging and registering of it.

If the substantial Form appointed by the Statutes be not observed, it will be void. If therefore a Statute Merchant be not sealed with the Seal of the Debtor, and there be not a Seal

Seal of two Pieces annexed to it, this is no good Statute, neither can it take Effect as a Statute; however in this Case, if it be delivered by the Party, it may take Effect as an Obligation. But if the Variance from the Statutes be only in some Circumstance, this will not hurt a Statute or a Recognisance: And therefore it is held, that although there be no Time set for the Payment of the Money in the Statute, yet the Statute is good, for then it is due presently. And although the Statute be written with another's Hand, and not with the Hand of the Clerk of the Statutes, or the like, yet is the Statute good enough. And if a Statute Staple be not sealed with the Seal of the Party that acknowledges it, it is good enough, for the Statute does not require it: But a Recognisance within the Statute of 23 H. 8. cannot be good, except the Seal of the Party be to it; for so are the Words of the Statute. Hollingsworth v. Aspengb, Pas. 35 Eliz. C. B. adjudged Trin. 22 Jac. C. B.

If a Recognisance or a Statute be to pay Money at several Days, it is good enough; and if the Conusor fails one Day, Execution may be sued of the whole Statute. 8 Co. 153.

Every Statute Staple or Merchant, not brought to the Clerk of the Recognisances within four Months next after the acknowledging to enter a true Copy thereof, shall be void against all Persons, their Heirs, Successors, Executors, Administrators and Assigns only, which for good Consideration shall, after the acknowledging of the same Statute, purchase the Land, or any Part liable thereunto, or any Rent, Lease or Profit out of it. Stat. 27 Eliz. c. 4.

By the Stat. 2 & 3 Ann. c. 4. 6 A. c. 35. 7 A. c. 20. 8 G. 2. c. 6. Judgments, Statutes, Recognisances, &c. shall not affect Lands in the East, West or North Ridings of Yorkshire, or in Middlesex, unless they are registred, &c. See before of registering Deeds, Chap. 5. §. 12.

(D) All the Proceedings upon a Statute or Recognisance, and the Manner and Order of Execution thereupon.

THE Proceedings upon a Statute or Recognisance to have the Fruit and Effect thereof, are not like to the Proceedings in other Cases of Suits upon Obligations, and the like, to reduce them to Judgment; but as they are in their own Nature much like to the Nature of a Judgment; so is the Proceeding and Execution thereupon, much like to the Proceeding and Execution upon a Judgment; and therefore the Conusor may, if he pleases, bring an Action of Debt upon a Statute, and waive all other Proceeding; or otherwise, if he likes not this Course, he (or if he be dead, his Executors or Administrators; and if his Executor be dead, the Executor of his Executor) may as soon as the same is forfeited, have present Execution of it after this Manner: He must bring his Statute to the Mayor and Clerk, and other Officer, before whom it was acknowledged, and there, if they find the Record of it, and the Day to be past for the Payment of the Money, they are to apprehend and imprison the Body of the Conusor, if he be a Lay Person, and can be found within their Jurisdiction; and if he cannot be found there, they are to certify the Record into the Chancery, which also if they refuse to do, they may be compelled unto by a Certiorari: And if that Certificate be faulty, or Execution be not done upon it by Reason of the Death of the Conusor, or otherwise, the Conusor, or his Executor or Administrator, may have another Certificate; and thereupon, in this Case of the Statute Merchant, he shall have a Writ of Capias out of the Chancery, directed to the Sheriff of the County where the Conusor lives, to apprehend and imprison him (if he be not a Clergyman) and this is to be returned in the Common Pleas or King's Bench: And when the Conusor is taken, he shall have Time for a Quarter of a Year to make his Agreement with the Conusor, and to sell his Lands or Goods to satisfy the Conusor: And for that Purpose he may sell his Lands or Goods although he be in Prison, and his Sale is good and lawful: And if in that Time he does not satisfy the Conusor, or if upon the Capias the Sheriff returns a Non est inventus, then by another Writ (or by divers Writs, if the Lands or Goods lie in divers Counties) called Extendi Facias. And in the Case of a Statute Staple, presently after the Certificate into the Chancery, the Conusor shall have a Writ to take his Body, and extend his Lands and Goods, returnable in Chancery. And this Writ is a Commission directed to the Sheriff of the County where the Lands and Goods lie, for the valuing of the same, whereby all the Lands, Goods and Chattels of the Conusor, shall be appraised and valued at a reasonable Rate by a Jury of sworn Men, charged by the Sheriff for that Purpose; which Inquisition so taken is to be returned by the Sheriff, and thereupon the Lands, Goods and Chattels, are to be taken into the Sheriff's Hands, and by him to be delivered to the Conusor (which the Sheriff may do if he will without any Writ, to hold unto the Conusor until he be satisfied his Debt and Damages). And if the Sheriff refuses so to do, the Conusor shall have a Writ out of the Chancery, called a Liberate, to compel him to deliver to the Conusor the Lands, Goods and Chattels so found by Inquisition, and taken into his Hands upon the Extent, which the Sheriff needs not to return:

return: Or the Conusee may enter upon the Land himself, and take the Goods out of the Sheriff's Hand; and this Act of the Sheriff and Jury upon this Writ is called an Extent. And if the Jurors or Appraisors upon the Extendi Facias overvalue the Lands or Goods in Favour to the Debtor, the Conusee has no Remedy but by Motion in that Court where the Writ is returnable, to desire that the Appraisors may take the Lands or Goods at the Rate they have valued them, in the same Manner as the Conusee is to have them. But if the Conusee accepts of the Lands and Goods from the Sheriff, or suffers the Term to pass wherein the Writ is returnable, he is too late, and has no Remedy at all. And if the Appraisors do undervalue the Lands or Goods in Favour to the Debtee, it seems the Conusor has no Remedy at all, for he may at any Time pay all or the Residue of the Debt and Damages unlevied, and have his Land again if he pleases. And in Case where the Inquisition or Extent taken and made is insufficient, as if Part of the Land only be extended in the Name of all the Lands, or it is found the Conusor died seised of Land, and it is not said of what Estate, or the like, the Conusee shall have a new Extent, and this is called a Re-Extent: And this he may have although the Lands or Goods be delivered to the Conusee by a Liberate, if the Conusee has not entred upon and accepted it; but if he once accepts it, he can never after have a Re-Extent: And when the Conusee is in Possession of Lands by such an Extent as before, then he is Tenant by Statute; and after the Conusee is once settled in Peace in the Lands extended, he shall hold it until he be satisfied his Debt, and his reasonable Costs and Damages for Travel, Suit, Delay and Expence. But it seems the Time shall not run out nor be said to begin until the Entry of the Conusee into the Land; for if the Land be extended and remains seven Years without a Liberate made, yet he may have a Liberate at the End of the seven Years; and as soon as the Conusee shall be satisfied his Debt and Damage by the Goods and Chattels of the Conusor, and by the ordinary and certain, or extraordinary and casual Profits of the Land, the Conusor shall have his Land again: And for that Purpose, if the Conusee refuses to give him an Account, and to yield up his Land to him the Conusor, however he may not enter, yet he may compel the Conusee thereunto by a Writ called a Venire facias ad computandum, in the Nature of a Scire facias, by which the Conusor shall call the Conusee, his Executors or Administrators, to account; and if upon the Account it shall appear he is satisfied, the Conusor shall have his Land again; and if it appears he is over-satisfied, he shall answer the Overplus to the Conusor. But the Conusor may not enter upon the Conusee until he has brought this Writ, and made it thereupon to appear that the Conusee is satisfied. And if in Case the Conusee be dead, his Executor or Administrator may have Execution of the Statute without any Scire facias, upon the shewing of the Statute and the Testament in Chancery. And if the Sheriff returns that the Conusor is dead, the Execution shall be made of his Lands only in the Hands of his Heir, or the Purchasor; but if the Heir be under Age, the Execution cannot be done until he be of full Age: And if the Conusor dies in Prison, the Execution shall be of his Lands, Goods and Chattels: And if the Gaoler that has him in Prison suffers him to escape, he must answer the Debt; and if it falls out that the Conusee, his Executor or Administrator, be ousted or disturbed of his Execution by the Conusor himself, or any other during the Time of the Extent, he may relieve himself against the Disturber by Assise, or other Action, as another in the like Case may do: And if he be rightfully ousted or disturbed by one that has better Right, as by one that has a former Statute, or the like; or by the Act of God, as by Fire, Water, or the like; in these Cases the Conusee shall hold the Land over after the Time of his Extent until he be satisfied. But when it is through his own Neglect only that he is unsatisfied, as where the Lands are delivered to him by the Liberate, and he after his Entry into them makes a conditional Surrender of them; as if Lands of the Value of 10*l.* by the Year, be delivered to him in Execution for 40*l.* and he within four Years makes a conditional Surrender of them to the Conusor, and after he enters for the Condition broken; in this Case he shall not hold the Land over the four Years, for he must take the Profits upon his Extent presently: The Proceeding in Execution of the Statute Staple, and the Recognisance founded upon the Statute of 23 H. 8. is after the same Manner throughout as the Proceeding in Execution of Statute Merchant is, with these Differences only, that upon the Execution of the Statute Merchant there issues forth a Capias against the Body before any Execution be to be made of the Lands, or Goods and Chattels, and the Lands and Goods cannot be extended until a Quarter of a Year be past after the Body is taken, or the Sheriff has returned a Non est inventus; but upon the Execution of the Statute Staple and the Recognisance, the Body, Goods and Lands may be taken together at the first; this therefore is a more speedy Remedy than the former. Also upon a Statute Merchant one may have an Action of Debt; but otherwise upon a Statute Staple; and the Capias upon the Statute Merchant may be returnable in the King's Bench, or Common Pleas, but the Writ of Execution upon the other is to be returned in the Chancery. *Fitz. The Proceedings upon the other Sort of Recognisances are after another Manner; for upon Recognisances at the Common Law, if the Money be not paid at a Day, the Conusor, his Executor or Administrator, is to bring a Scire facias against the Conusor, or if he be dead, against his Heirs when they be of full Age; or if the Lands the Conusor had at the Time of entering into the Recognisance be sold, against the Purchasers of these Lands which the Conusor had at any Time after the Recognisance entered into, to warn them to come into the Court whence the Scire facias comes, and to shew Cause why Execution should not be done upon the said Recognisance; or if the Party and Parties cannot be found to be warned, or being warned do not appear at the Time, or appearing shew no Cause why the Debt should not be levied, and then the Conusor shall have Execution of a Moiety of his Land by Elegit; or if the Conusor be living, of all his Goods by Levari or Fieri facias at his Election; but he cannot have Execution of his Body unless he brings an Action of Debt upon the Recognisance, or it be by Course of the Court, as it is in the King's Bench upon a Bail, in which Case a Capias lies. Dyer 360, 315. Kelw. 100. 2 West. 2. chap. 18. Proceeding against the Sureties in Statutes shall be as the Proceeding against the Principal; but in Case where there are Moveables of the Principal to satisfy the Debt, the Surety (as it seems) shall not be charged. Stat. de Mercatoribus.

(E) What Things are subject and liable to Execution upon a Statute or Recognisance.

First, In respect to the Nature and Quality of the Things themselves.

WHEN a Man enters into a Statute or Recognisance, the Land of the Conusor is not the Debtor, but the Body; and the Land is liable only in respect that it was in the Hands of the Conusor at the Time of acknowledging of the Statute, or after; and the Land is not charged with the Debt, but chargeable only at the Election of the Conusor; but the Person is charged, and the Land is chargeable in respect of the Person, and not the Person in respect of the Land. And therefore altho' the Conusor aliens his Land to another, yet he remains Debtor still, and his Body and his Goods shall be taken in Execution: And yet when Execution is sued upon the Land, the Land is charged and becomes Debtor also. Plow. 72. 10 Co. 50, 51. Bro. Stat. Merchant. See the Statutes before concerning Registering Statutes, &c.

The Body of the Conusor himself, but not the Body of his Heir, Executor or Administrator, is liable to Execution, and may be taken although there be Lands, Goods and Chattels to satisfy the Debt; and all the Demesne and Copyhold Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, corporeal and incorporeal of the Conusor that are grantable over, as his Manors, Messuages, Lands, Meadows, Pastures, Woods, Rents, Commons, Tithes, Advowsons, and the like; also all his Goods and Chattels, as Leases for Years, Wardships, Emblements, Cattle, Household-Stuff, and the like, are liable to Execution upon a Statute. Stat. de Mercatoribus. 3 Co. 12. Plow. 72. 2 Co. 59. Lit. §. 358. Dyer 7, 205. Bro. Stat. Merchant 44. Co. Lit. 374.

And therefore if a Man makes a Lease for Life or Years, and after enters into a Statute or Recognisance; this Reversion cum acciderit shall be subject to Execution, and the Conusor cannot by any Sale thereof prevent it. And yet the contrary has been held for Law. Lit. Broo. §. 227. Dyer 373.

And if one makes a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Life, reserving a Rent; this Rent is extendable, and the Conusor may distrain for it. Doct. & Stud. 53. Bro. Stat. Merchant 44. Dyer 205.

So if the Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years rendering a Rent, and then the Lessee for Life enters into a Statute; this Rent is subject to Execution; and it seems the Conusor may bring an Action of Debt against the Lessee for Years for it. Harrington's Case, Pas. 9 Jac.

And although the Rent becomes extinct by the Purchase of the Conusor, or otherwise, yet as to the Conusor it shall be said to be in esse, and subject to Execution still. And therefore if a Rent be granted unto one for my Life after the Death of my Wife, and after I do acknowledge a Statute, and then my Wife dies, and then I release the Rent to the Tenant; this Rent shall be liable to Execution. 7 Co. 38.

But Annuities, Offices in Trust, Seignories in Frankalmoign, Homage, Fealty, Rights, Things in Action, and such like Things, are not liable to Execution upon Statutes or Recognisances. Also a Remainder in Tail, or in Fee, after an Estate-tail in Possession, is not liable to Execution in these Cases, except it happens to come into the Possession of the Conusor. Dyer 7. Co. Lit. 374. Doct. & Stud. 53. 2 Co. 59. Co. 62.

Secondly, In respect of the Estate, Property and Possession of the Conusor in the Things.

The Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments that are Copyhold, although the Conusor has the Fee-simple of them, yet they are subject to Execution only for the Life of the Conusor; but his Demesne Lands, wherein he has an Estate in Fee-simple, are liable to Execution for ever, if Need requires. The Lands the Conusor has in Joint-tenancy with another, are subject to Execution during the Life of the Conusor, and no longer, for after his Death the surviving Jointenant shall have all; but if the Conusor survive his Companion, then all the Land shall be subject to Execution: And the Lands the Conusor has as Tenant in Tail, are liable to Execution only during the Life of him, being the Tenant in Tail; for afterwards they shall go to his Issue in Tail. And yet if the Tenant in Tail, after he has entred into a Statute, suffers a Recovery of the Land intailed; in this Case the Land shall be subject to Execution as if it were Fee-simple Land. And the Lands the Conusor has in the Right of his Wife shall be charged and subject to Execution only during the Lives of the Husband and Wife together, and no longer. Stat. de Mercat. Dyer 299. Plow. 82. 7 Co. 39. 3 Co. 12. Bro. Recog. 7. Co. 62. 13 H. 7. 22. Bro. Stat. Merchant.

If a Feoffment be made on Condition to make an Estate to another by a Day of the same Land, and before the Day the Feoffee enters into a Statute or Recognisance; this Land shall be subject to Execution until the Feoffor re-enters, for the Breach of the Condition. Lit. §. 358.

If one be disseised of Land, and then enters into a Statute; this Land shall not be subject to Execution: And yet if the Conusor after recovers the Land by Entry or Action, it shall be liable to Execution. 2 Co. 59.

The Goods and Chattels whereof the Conusor is solely possessed, and possessed in his own Right, and the Goods and Chattels of which he is jointly possessed with another, and the Goods and Chattels he has in the Right of his Wife, are liable to Execution. But the Goods or Chattels that he or his Wife has as Executor or Executrix to another, or as pledged only, it seems are not subject to Execution. And if the Conusor delivers Goods to another to deliver over to J. S. these Goods before they be delivered over are liable to Execution. And if he has Leases for Years in the Right of his Wife, and he dies before Execution be done, these Leases are liable to Execution. Sed quere. But if the Conusor has Goods in his Custody of another Man's, or has Goods he has distrained in the Nature of a Distress; these are not liable to Execution. Stat. de Mercat. 3 Co. 11, 12. Plow. 514. 8 Co. 271. 5 Co. 90. Dyer 67.

All the Lands, Tenements and Hereditaments which the Conusor had at the Time of the Statute or Recognisance entred into, or at any Time after, into whose Hands by what Means soever the same are betide and come at the Time of Execution, are subject and liable to the Execution. But the Lands the Conusor had and did put away before the Time of the Statute or Recognisance entred into, are liable to Execution. And all the Goods and Chattels the Conusor has and are found in his Hands at the Time when the Execution is to be made by the Extendi facias, are liable to the Execution. But the Goods and Chattels he had and did bona fide do away before the Time of Execution done, are not liable to the Execution. 3 Co. 12. Stat. de Mercator.

Thirdly, In respect of the Quantity.

And of all these Things before subject to Execution, the Conusor may take all or part, at his Pleasure. And therefore, if the Conusor has sold his Lands to divers Persons, or has sold some of his Lands to divers Persons, or to one Man, and keeps the rest in his Hands, or it descends to his Heir, the Conusor may sue Execution upon the Lands in either of

of their Hands at his Election; so that if the Conufee, after the Statute entered into and before Execution, purchases Part of the Land of the Conufor, he may notwithstanding have Execution upon the Refidue in the Hands of the Conufor, or in the Hands of his Heir; and yet so that in some of these Cafes his Execution may be afterwards avoided, and be compelled to sue Execution again. Bro. Stat. 10, 48, 25. Plow. 72. See post.

The Conufee upon other Recognifances shall have the fame Things in Execution that a Man shall have after a Judgment in a Suit in the King's Bench or Common Pleas by Fieri facias, or Levari facias, all his Goods and Chattels, and by Elegit the Moiety of his Lands, and his Chattels, besides the Cattle of his Plough and Implements of Husbandry. But in these Cafes he cannot take the Body of the Conufor in Execution, unless it be upon a new Suit, or in Case of Bail in the King's Bench. Westm. 2. c. 18. Plow. 72. 3 Co. 12. Dyer 306. Kelw. 100.

(F) Where a Man shall have a Re-extent or new Execution, or not.

BY the Common Law, after a full and perfect Execution, and by Extent returned and of Record, there shall never be any Re-extent; yet by a special Act of Parliament it is provided, That if after Lands, &c. be had in Execution upon a just or lawful Title wherewith all the said Lands, &c. were liable, tied or bound at such Time as they were delivered or taken in Execution, they shall be taken or recovered away from him before he has received his Debt and Damages; in this Case after a Scire facias had against the Conufor, his Heirs, Executors, Administrators or Purchafors, he (or his Executors or Administrators if he be dead) shall have a new Execution to levy the Refidue of the Debt and Damages then unsatisfied. Stat. 32 H. 8. c. 5.

Wherein these Things are to be observed:

First, In Case where the Conufee is unlawfully and wrongfully disturbed either by the Conufor, or by a Stranger, in the taking of the Profits of the Land delivered to him in Execution; there he may and must bring his Action and recover Damages, and these Damages shall go towards his Satisfaction; for in this Case and for this Disturbance he shall not hold the Land a Day the longer. And where he is hindred by his own Neglect or Act in the taking of the Profits of the Land, as where is Debt is 40*l.* and he has 10*l.* a Year delivered to him, by which he may satisfy himself in four Years, and within the Time he makes a conditional Surrender to the Conufor, and enters for the Condition broken; in this Case he shall not hold the Land over, neither shall he have any Re-extent. And where the Let or Disturbance is such as wherein the Conufee has Remedy given him by the Common Law to hold the Land over after the Disturbance removed; in this Case he shall have no new Execution nor Re-extent within this Statute; for where the Conufee has Remedy in presenti for Part, or in futuro for all or Part, this Statute extendeth not to it. And therefore where the Conufee is hindred in the taking of the Profits of the Land by the Act of God, as by Fire, Overflowing of Water, or the like; or the Act of the Party Conufor, or any by or under him; as when one is bound to A. in a Statute of 100*l.* and after to B. in a Statute of 200*l.* and B. extends the Land first, and then A. extends the Land and takes it away from B. or the Wife of the Conufor claims her Dower, and puts out the Conufee; or one disseises his Lessee for Life, or ousts his Lessee for Years, and then acknowledges a Statute, and after Execution is sued against him, and then the Land is delivered to the Conufee, and after the Lessee for Life or Years enters; in all these Cafes, because by the Common Law the Conufee may hold over the Land after the Time given him by the Extent, and after the Impediments removed, until he be satisfied his Debt and Damages; therefore he shall have no Aid of this Statute by Re-extent; for he is then only to be relieved by this Statute when he is evicted and disturbed, and is wholly and clearly without any Remedy at the Common Law.

Secondly, Where the Statute saith, until he, &c. or his Assigns shall fully and wholly have levied the whole Debt and Damages; if he has assigned several Parcels to several Assigns, yet they all shall have the Land but until the whole Debt be paid.

Thirdly, Where the Words be, for the which the said Lands, &c. were delivered in Execution; if a Disseisor conveys the Land to the King, who grants the same over to A. and his Heirs, to hold by Fealty, and 20*l.* Rent, and after grants the Seignior to B. B. acknowledges a Statute, and Execution is sued of the Seignior, A. dies without Heir, and the Conufee enters, and is evicted by the Disseisor; in this Case he shall have the Aid of the Statute.

Fourthly, Where the Words be, delivered and taken in Execution; yet if after the Liberate the Conufee enters (as he may) so as the Land is never delivered, yet it is within the Remedy of this Statute.

Fifthly,

Fifthly, Altho' the Statute speaks only of the Recoveror, Obligee, &c. and not of their Executors, Administrators or Assigns, yet the Statute shall extend to them.

Sixthly, Where the Statute speaks of a Scire facias out of the same Court, &c. if the Record be removed into another Court, and be affirmed, he may have a Scire facias out of that Court.

Seventhly, Where the Statute gives a Scire facias against such Person or Persons, &c. that were Parties to the first Execution, their Heirs, Executors, or Assigns, &c. this must not be taken so generally as the Letter is; for if the first Execution was had against a Purchaser, &c. so as nothing in his Hands was liable but the Land recovered; if this Land be evicted from the Tenant by Execution, no Scire facias shall go against him, his Executors, &c. but if he has other Lands subject to Execution, then a Scire facias lies against him or his Assigns, but not against his Executor; neither in that Case can he have a Scire facias upon this Statute against the first Debtor or Recognisor; but if there be several Assigns of several Parcels of Lands subject to the Execution, one Scire facias will lie against all the Assigns. 4 Co. 66, 82. Plow. 61. 15 H. 7. 15. Co. Lit. 299. Kitch. 116.

(G) Where the Conusor or his Heir, or an Alienee or Purchasor, shall have Contribution upon a Statute or Recognisance, or not.

IF the Conusor, after he has entred into a Statute or Recognisance, conveys away his Land to divers Persons, and then the Conusor sues Execution of the Statute upon the Lands of one or some of them, and not of all; in this Case he or they whose Lands is or are taken in Execution, may by an Audita Querela, or Scire facias, have Contribution from the Rest, wherein these Differences must be observed, that one Purchasor shall have Contribution from another: And therefore if the Conusor sells some Lands to J. S. and other Lands to J. D. and the Conusor sues Execution only of the Lands of J. S. J. S. shall have Contribution against J. D. And the Feoffee of the Purchasor, the Feoffee of the Heir of the Conusor, the Feoffee of the Feoffee, and another Feoffee, shall have Contribution of the Heir of the Conusor: But the Conusor himself shall not have Contribution from a Purchasor; and therefore, if he sells Part of his Lands, and keeps Part in his Hands, and the Conusor sues Execution only of the Lands in the Hands of the Conusor or his Heirs; in this Case neither he nor his Heirs shall have any Contribution from another. And therefore if one be seised of two Acres, the one in Borough English, and the other of other Land, and enters into a Statute, and dies, and he has but two Daughters, and the Execution be sued upon the Land of one of them, she shall have Contribution from the other. So where some Land descends to the Heir of the Part of the Father, and some to the Heir of the Part of the Mother. If one be seised of Lands in Fee in the County of A. and B. and enters into a Statute of Recognisance, and the Conusor dies, and then the Conusor dies also, and his Executor sues Execution of the Lands in B. only, and has Execution, and after the Heir sells these Lands; in this Case the Vendee shall have no Contribution. So also the Law is if the Heir sells the Land to divers, and one of the Purchasors appears to the Scire facias, and the Judgment is given against him, and he afterwards sells the Land, his Vendee shall have no Contribution. And in all these Cases, where it is said the one Purchasor shall have Contribution, it is not intended that the Rest shall give or allow him any Thing by way of Contribution, but that the Party whose Lands are extended, may by Audita Querela, or Scire facias, as the Case requires, defeat the Execution, and thereby shall be restored to all his mesne Profits, and force the Conusor to sue his Execution upon all the Land, that the Land of every one of the Terretenants may be equally extended. Plow. 72. 3 Co. 12. 6 Co. 13.

(H) Where and by what Means a Statute or Recognisance, and the Execution thereof, shall be discharged, suspended or avoided in all or in Part, and where not.

A Statute or Recognisance, and the Execution thereupon, may be discharged divers Ways, as by Defeasance, Release, Payment of the Money, Debt and Damages, or the Residue thereof unlevied, delivering up the Statute, Purchase of Part of the Land by the Conusor, or the like. And therefore, if there be a Defeasance to the Statute or Recognisance, and it be to pay Money at a Day, or to perform some other Thing, and the Money be paid, or the Thing be done accordingly; this is a Discharge of the Statute. And therefore if such a Statute or Recognisance be afterwards sued against the Conusor, he may be relieved by an Audita Querela. And if A. binds himself to B. by a Statute of 20 l. and B. sues Execution, and the Lands of A. are delivered to him in Execution until he levies the Money, and after B. makes a Defeasance to A. by Indenture, that if A. pays 10 l. by by a Day certain, that then the Statute or Recognisance shall be void; if this be done accordingly, the Statute and Execution thereupon is defeated and discharged. Dyer 297, 315. 6 Co. 13. 20 Aff. pl. 7. see Defeasance.

And if the Conufee before Execution or after releases to the Conufor the Statute or Recognisance, or the Debt; this is a perpetual Discharge of the Statute, and the Execution thereupon. But if the Conufee before Execution releases to the Conufor all his Right in or to the Land; this will not discharge the whole Execution; for if he may not sue Execution of the Land afterwards, (as it seems he may, this notwithstanding) yet he may sue Execution of his Body and Goods. But such a Release after Execution made of the Land, will not Doubt discharge the Land. And if the Conufee releases all his Right in the Land to the Feoffee of the Conufor of a Parcel of the Land; this will discharge the Land of Execution, altho' it be before the Execution sued that this Release is made. Co. Lit. 76. 10 Co. 47, 50, 51. Co. Lit. 265. Bro. Stat. Merchant 25. And so it is said it was resolved Mich. 26 & 27 Eliz.

If the Conufee assigns the Statute or Recognisance to the Conufor, or to the Terretenant, by way of Discharge of the Debt or Land; this is a good Release and Discharge of it in Law. And if the Conufee purchases any Part of the Land of the Conufor after the Statute or Recognisance entred into; this is no Discharge of the Statute or the Recognisance, but the Conufee may have Execution notwithstanding of the Lands that are left in the Hands of the Conufor, or of his Body or Goods, or all. But if the Conufee purchases Parcel of the Lands, and a Stranger another Parcel; in this Case the Lands that are purchased by the Stranger shall be discharged of Execution. And if the Conufee after Execution sued purchases any Part of the Land, or the Fee-simple of all or Part of it descends to him; by this the whole Execution is discharged. And if the Conufee purchases all the Lands of the Conufor; by this the Execution as to the Land is suspended; but this is no Discharge as to the Body and Goods of the Conufor, for they are subject to Execution still. And if the Conufee reinfcoffs the Conufor again, the Execution may be revived again against the Lands of the Conufor, so that they will be subject to Execution again whether they do continue in his Hands, or be sold away to others. So also if the Conufee infeoffs a Stranger after he purchases the Land, and the Stranger infeoffs the Conufor; in this Case also the Execution is revived, and the Lands shall now be subject thereunto as they were before. Plow. 72. F. N. B. 104. Lit. §. 293. 11 H. 7. 4. Bro. Audita Querela 49. Stat. Merchant 25, 42. Co. Lit. 150. 25 Aff. pl. 7. Lit. §. 441. 5 H. 7. 25.

If a Lessee for Life makes a Lease for Years rendring Rent, and after enters into a Statute to J. S. and then enters into another Statute to J. D. and after he grants his Estate to J. S. by this the Execution of the Statute made to J. S. is suspended, and therefore during the Suspension, it seems J. D. altho' he be after in Time, may sue and have the Rent in Execution. Harrington's Case, Pas. 29 Jac. B. R.

S E C T. XXI.

Of Obligations or Bonds.

(A) An Obligation what.

AN Obligation is a Deed in Writing, whereby one Man binds himself to another to pay a Sum of Money, or to do or suffer some other Thing.

He that makes this Deed is called the Obligor, and he to whom it is made is called the Obligee.

(B) Kinds of Obligations.

AN Obligation is sometimes simple or single, i. e. when it is to pay a Sum of Money, or to do some other Thing, and when it is without any Defeasance or Condition in or annexed to it, which also is sometimes with a Penalty, called a penal Bill, and sometimes without a Penalty: And this is that which is most properly called an Obligation, and sometimes also it is called a single Bill, or single Bond; and sometimes it is double or conditional; which is when it is attended upon and accompanied with a Condition; and then it is said to be a Bond containing a Penalty, with Condition to pay Money, or to do or suffer some Act or Thing, &c. And this Condition is sometimes called a Defeasance, and then especially when it is (as sometimes is the Case) in another Deed or Instrument; for most commonly it is inserted in the same Deed wherein the Obligation, being the other Part of it, is contained: And then also it is either subscribed under the Obligation, or included within within the Body of it, or indorsed upon the Back of it. And *quacunq*ue via if the Condition be performed, the Penalty is saved, if not, the Penalty is forfeited.

(C) What is a good Obligation or not, as to its original Creation; and where an Accident or Fraud in the Writing of it has been relieved in Equity.

First, As to the Manner and Form of making it.

On what to be written.

AN Obligation may be made upon Parchment or Paper, and in loose Parchment or Paper, (Bro. Obl. 67, 33.) or in a Piece of Paper or Parchment sewed in a Book, and either way is good. Trin. 49 Eliz. B. R.

Which Paper or Parchment must be first stamped with a treble Sixpenny Stamp.

But if it be made on a Talley, Piece of Wood, or any other Thing but Paper or Parchment, altho' it be sealed and delivered, yet it is void. Trin. 49 Eliz. B. R.

In what Person.

And it may be made in the first or in the third Person, (notwithstanding the 38 Ed. 3. c. 4. which intends only Obligations made beyond the Sea) and therefore an Obligation so made, as Memorandum, That A. of B. owes C. of D. 10l. In Testimony whereof, &c. is good. Co. Lit. 229. Fitz. Obl. 9.

An Accident or Fraud in the Writing of a Bond has been relieved in Equity; as when the Writer had left out the Name of one of the Obligors, but his Hand and Seal was to the Bond. 3 Chan. Rep. 100.

Words.

Altho' the best Manner and Form of an Obligation is that which is most usual, (which see in the Second Part) yet any Words in a Writing sealed and delivered, whereby a Man proves and declares himself to have another Man's Money, or to be indebted to him, will make a good Obligation; and therefore if a Man by Deed says but this, Memorandum, That I A. of B. do owe to C. of D. 20l. to be paid at Easter next. Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. have had of C. of D. 20l. of which there is 10l. behind, [or of which I owe him 10l.] Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. have received of C. of D. 20l. to be repaid him again. Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. do grant to owe [or to pay] C. of D. 20l. Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. do promise to pay C. of D. 20l. Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. will pay to C. of D. 20l. Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. have had 20l. of the Money of C. of D. Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. have borrowed of C. of D. 20l. Or Memorandum, That I A. of B. do bind myself to C. of D. that he shall receive of me 20l. All these and such like are good Obligations. Dyer 12, 21, 23. 9 Co. 53. 35 H. 6. 9. 21 E. 4. 39. 22 E. 4. 22. 11 H. 7. 6. Kelw. 34.

So if one says, Memorandum, That I A. of B. bind myself to C. of D. that he shall receive 20l. by the Hands of J. S. when K. comes to his House, and at Michaelmas then next following 5l. this is a good Obligation, and the Words [by the Hands of J. D.] are void. Bro. Obl. 56.

So if one bind himself thus: Memorandum, That I A. of B. owe to C. of D. 20l. for Payment of which I bind myself and my Goods; this is a good Obligation, and will bind the Person but not his Goods. Bro. Obl. 16.

So if one by Deed covenants or promises to do a Thing, and then uses these Words, Ad quam quidem promissionem perimplendam obligo me in 20l. this is a good Obligation for 20l. Bro. Obl. 52. Dyer 6.

So if one binds himself thus: Memorandum, That I A. of B. am bound to C. of D. to deliver him twenty Quarters of Corn by a Day, Ad quod performandum obligo me, without more Words; this is a good Obligation. Bro. Obl. 40.

So if one binds himself thus: Memorandum, That I A. of B. bind myself to pay C. of D. 10l. at Easter, and if I fail to pay him then, I do grant to pay him 20l. this is a good Obligation for the 20l. if he fails to pay the 10l. Bro. Obl. 79.

And some say he may recover both the 20l. and the 10l. Foxall's Case, 9 Jac. B. R.

So if one binds himself thus: Memorandum, That in Consideration of a Bill of 50l. wherein J. S. is bound for me to J. D. for Payment of 20l. I do bind myself in 20l. to the said J. S. to save him harmless from all Actions of the same; this is a good Obligation, and if J. D. sues J. S. the Bill is forfeited. Fox v. Wright, Trin. 40 Eliz. B. R.

Or if one binds himself thus: Be it known, &c. That I A. of B. do owe unto C. of D. the Sum of 14l. to be paid at the Feast of, &c. together with 6l. which I owe him upon Bills and Recognisances, subscribed with my Hand; this is a good Bill, but it is good for no more but the 14l. and not for the 6l. for the Words do only import the Time of Payment of the 6l. Adjudged Parret and Woolward's Case, M. 38 & 39 Eliz. in Scacc'.

If one makes a Writing in the Form of a Statute, which the Party seals, and afterwards legally delivers, but it is not sealed by the King's and the Mayor's Seal according to the Statute; altho' this be not a good Statute, yet it may be a good Obligation. Trin. 37 Eliz. B. R. Fitz. Accompt 79.

If one binds himself to pay Money, or to do any other Thing, and afterwards adds this Clause in the Deed: Et ad maiorem huius rei securitatem inveni A. de B. & C. de D. fidejussores, quorum unusquisque obligat se in toto & in solid', and these two do also seal and deliver the Deed; this is a good Obligation to bind them altho' there be no other Words in the Deed. Perk. §. 158. Fitz. Obl. 1.

If an Obligation be made to J. D. to the Use of J. S. this is a good Obligation for J. S. in Equity; and some have said he may release it; but this is much to be doubted: For it is certain J. S. cannot sue the Obligor in his own Name; but when he has Cause of Suit he may compel J. D. in Chancery to sue the Obligor. Bro. Obligor 72. Crompt. Jur. 63.

If A. of B. binds himself to C. of D. to pay 20*l.* and says not when, yet the Obligation is good, and the Money is due presently. So if the Obligation be solvendum nunquam, or solvendum at Domesday; the Obligation is good, and the solvendum void, and the Money is due presently. So if A. of B. binds himself to C. of D. in 20*l.* solvendum A. de B. [where it should be solvendum C. de D.] the Obligation is good, and the solvendum void. Bro. Obl. 47. 14 H. 8. 29. 21 Ed. 1. 46. 4 Ed. 4. 29.

If the Obligation be made thus, [obligo me, &c.] leaving out these Words following [Heredes, Executores & Administratores] this is a good Obligation, and the Executors and Administrators, but not the Heir, are bound by it. And if it be made thus, [solvendum to the Obligee & Successoribus suis] and not [Executoribus, &c.] this is a good Obligation, and the Executors and Administrators, and not the Successors, except it be in Case of a Corporation, shall take Advantage of it. Dyer 13. Bro. Obl. 15, 68.

By the Stat. 33 H. 8. c. 39. All Obligations and Specialties must be made to the King thus, Domino Regi, and to no other for his Use, Solvendum Domino Regi, Heredibus vel Executoribus suis. And these will have the Effect of a Statute Staple, &c. and if unpaid at the King's Death, he may dispose of them accordingly, either to his Heirs or Executors.

An Obligation may be good altho' it contains false or incongruous Latin or English, or Language. Latin be put for English, or econtra, if the Intent of the Parties may sufficiently appear: And therefore if one be bound by the Name of Johannes for Johannem; or one binds himself in octogenta for octoginta libris; or in septungentis for septuaginta libris; in viginti for viginti libris; in sewteen for seventeen Pounds; in quinquegentis for quingenta libris; (10 Co. 133. Fitz. Obl. 12. 2 H. 4. 14.) in septuagesimo for septuaginta libris, (adjudged Vernon's Case, M. 13 Jac. C. B.) sexingentis for sexcentis libris; in quingagesimis, or quinque decies, for quingenta libris; in octogenta for octoginta libris; or in viginta livers for viginti libris; in viginti nobilibus for twenty Nobles; (Gray's Case, 5 Jac. B. R. M. 10 Car. B. R. adjudged) or in octigenta libris for octoginta libris; or quingenta libris for quingenta libris; or the like: These Misprisions will not hurt the Obligations, for they are good notwithstanding. Fitzbugh v. Bridges, 3 & 4 Eliz. C. B.

But if one by the Obligation binds himself in quinqueagentis libris, or in quinqueagintis libris, or in quinagentis libris, or in segintis libris; these Obligations are void; for in these Cases the Meaning is so uncertain, that it cannot be discerned, and no Averment will serve to supply it in this Case. Paris's Case, M. 4 Jac. B. R.

So if an Obligation be dated 23 die Aprilie instead of Aprilis; this is a good Obligation. Trin. 21 Jac. Nowel's Case.

And if an Obligation have no Date, or a false and impossible Date, or have but half the Date, as the Year of our Lord only; or if it wants these Words, In cujus rei, &c. or the like, if it be sealed and delivered, it is a good Obligation. 2 Co. 5.

But now by Stat. 4 G. 2. c. 26. all Bonds must be in the English Language.

Secondly, As to the Matter and Substance of an Obligation.

A single Obligation may be to pay Money, or to do any other Thing that is lawful and possible, and such Obligations are good. But if the Obligation be to bind a Man to do a Thing unlawful or impossible, it is void: And therefore if one binds himself in an Obligation to kill a Man, burn a House, maintain a Suit, or the like, it is void. So if the Obligation be made for Maintenance, or to that End, or if it be made pursuant to and in Execution of an usurious Contract, or the like, it is void. So if an Obligation be made against the Statute of 23 H. 6. it is void. So if one binds himself in an Obligation, and the the Matter thereof is altogether uncertain or insensible, it is void; but if there be any reasonable Certainty in it, it is good enough. So if one binds himself to go to Rome in three Days under Pain of 20*l.* this is void. 10 Co. 110.

A Bond was drawn in common Form for Payment of Money; but in Fact it was made on an Agreement, that the Plaintiff should either marry such a Person, or by way of Forfeiture pay the Defendant the Sum mentioned in the Condition of the Bond. The Court granted Relief against this Bond, it being contrary to the Nature of Marriage, which ought to be free and without Compulsion. 2 Vern. 102.

So if A. being a Widow, gives a Bond to B. for 100*l.* if she marries again, and B. gives a Bond to the Widow to pay her Executors the like Sum if she should not marry again, and the Widow soon after marries, her Bond shall be delivered up. 2 Vern. 215.

A Bill to be relieved against a Bond to a House-keeper for secret Service, was dismissed; for Equity will not relieve in these Cases unless it appears that the Woman be a common Stumpet, and used to draw in young Gentlemen, &c. And if a Man gives a Bond to his Mistress for Payment of Money; this is deemed a free Gift, and no Relief can be had against the Bond. 2 Vern. 242. Vern. 483, 484.

A Bill was brought to be relieved against a Bond given by a Son to the Father (on the Father's settling Lands upon him in Tail) that the Son shall not dock the Intail. Per Cur', The Bond is good; for had not the Son agreed to give the Bond, the Father might have made him only Tenant for Life. 2 Vern. 233.

If a Son in plentiful Circumstances gives a Bond to his Father for the Payment of 120*l.* Annuity for Life; this (if done freely and without Coertion) is good. Will. 607.

(D) What is a good Condition of an Obligation, or not.

First, As to the Manner and Form of making it.

The Condition of an Obligation may be either in the same or in another Deed, and it may be indorsed on the Back of the Obligation, subscribed under it, or contained within it; but the best way to make it is the usual way, viz. The Condition of this Obligation is such, &c. and yet if it be otherwise it may be good; for if an Obligation be made from A. to B. and on the Back of the same these Words are indorsed, [That whereas the within bounden A. is bound to B. in 20*l.* yet B. willeth and granteth, that if A. pays to B. 10*l.* at Easter, that then the Obligation shall be void]; this is a good Condition. So if in the Close of an Obligation of 20*l.* these Words be added, That if A. (the Obligor) pays 10 l. to B. (the Obligee) at Easter, the Obligation shall be void; this is a good Condition. So if an Obligation be made from A. to B. of 20*l.* and these Words are subscribed, Now therefore if the Obligor pays 5 l. Quarterly for four Years, then it is agreed that the Obligation shall be void; this is a good Condition. So if a single Obligation be made from A. to B. of 20*l.* and after the Obligation is made, B. by another Deed grants, That if A. pays to him 10 l. at Easter, the Obligation shall be void; this is a good Condition or Defeasance. But if A. binds himself in an Obligation to B. of 20*l.* and after B. binds himself in another Obligation to A. to perform the Covenants of an Indenture, and in this second Obligation there is a Proviso, That B. shall not sue upon the first Obligation till such a Time; this is not a good Condition. Plow. 141. 21 H. 6. 51. Fitz. Bar. 157, 265. Bro. Obl. 89. Paf. 8 Jac. Simpson's Case. 21 H. 6. 51. 26 H. 8. 9.

If A. be bound to B. in 20*l.* with Condition, That if B. does not bring A. a Horse before Easter, that the Obligation shall be void; this is a good Condition: And if the Obligee will have Advantage of it, he must perform the Thing: Et sic de similibus. 26 H. 8. 8.

So if A. be bound in an Obligation to B. in 20*l.* with Condition, That if B. shall bring twenty Loads of Wood to the House of A. that A. shall pay him the 20 l. or that A. shall pay him 20 l. when B. shall bring him twenty Loads of Wood to his House; these are good Conditions, and the Thing must be done before the Money is to be paid. Bro. Count 69.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, That if A. (the Obligor) do not pay to B. (the Obligee) 10 l. that the Obligation shall be void; this is a good Condition, but it shall be taken according to the Words, and therefore the Obligor is not to pay it: And if he be sued, he may plead Performance of the Condition in the not paying of it. Bro. Obl. 42.

If these Words be omitted in the Close of the Condition, That then the Obligation to be void; the Condition is void, but it does not hurt the Obligation, for that remains single: But if the next Words, viz. Or shall stand in Force, be omitted, the Condition is never the worse; for as the Addition of them adds nothing to, so the Omission of them detracts nothing from the Strength of the Obligation. Paf. 9 Jac. B. R. Trueman and Parram's Case.

Secondly, As to the Matter and Substance of the Condition of an Obligation.

The Condition of an Obligation may be to do any lawful or possible Thing, as to pay Money, deliver Goods or Cattle, acknowledge a Statute, enter into an Obligation, make a Release, make an Estate, surrender an Estate, make Reparations, for quiet enjoying, to save harmless, to defend a Title, to perform Covenants, to abide by an Award, to perform a Will, to give so much Land or Money in Legacy, to purchase Lands, to appear in a Court, to marry another, not to sue, not to meddle with any Executorship, not to revoke a Letter of Attorney, not to be Surety, not to play at Cards or Dice, or any such Thing; and such a Condition is good. So also it seems a Condition that a Man shall not sell his Goods, is good. But when the Matter or Thing to be done by the Condition is unlawful or impossible, or the Condition itself is repugnant, insensible or incertain; the Condition is void, and in some Cases the Obligation also. Paf. 8 Jac. C. B. Vide West's Symb.

As to these Matters, these Things are to be observed:

First, When the Thing enjoined or restrained to be done, or not to be done by the Condition, is such a Thing in its own Nature as the Commission or Omission thereof is malum in se; there not only the Condition, but the whole Obligation also is void ab initio: And therefore if one be bound in an Obligation, with Condition that he shall kill a Man, burn a House, do any other Felony, commit any Trespass, maintain any Suit unlawfully; or (being an Officer) that he shall take Fees by Extortion; or that he (being a Sheriff, &c.) shall let a Prisoner escape, or that he shall save the Obligees harmless against an unlawful Deed, or that he shall not save his Land; or that he (being a Tradesman) shall not use his Trade; and yet it seems a Condition that a Man shall not use his Trade in one Place, and at one Time, or if he does, that he shall pay so much by the Year unto another, is not a Condition against Law; (or that a Man being an Officer, and an Officer pro bono publico) shall not exercise his Office, or the like; this Condition is void, and makes the Obligation, and so the whole Deed void. But when the Thing to be, or not to be done by the Condition, is such a Thing as the Omission or Commission thereof in its Nature is not malum in se, but only against some Maxim of Law, as that a Man shall make a Feoffment to his own Wife; or is but malum prohibitum only, as that a Man shall erect a Cottage contrary to the Statute of 13 Eliz. or is repugnant to the State, as that a Feoffee of Land shall not alien it, or take the Profits of it; or that a Tenant in Tail shall not suffer a Recovery of his Land, or the like; in these Cases the Conditions only are void, and the Obligations remain single and without a Condition. And yet perhaps if the Obligors be sued upon these Obligations, they may have Relief in Equity. 10 Co. 101. 11 Co. 53. Co. Lit. 206. Dyer 304. Plow. 64. Fitz. Obl. 13.

Secondly, When the Matter or Thing to be done by the Condition, is such a Thing as Impossible in its Nature is impossible to be done at the Time of the making of the Obligation, there the Obligation is good, and the Condition only is void. And therefore if I be bound in an Obligation with Condition, That I shall stand to the Award of certain Persons, &c. provided that the Award be made before the tenth Day of May next, and provided that I have Warning fifteen Days before the tenth of May, and this Obligation is made the ninth Day of May; this is a void Condition. And so if I be bound in an Obligation with Condition, That I will go to Rome within three Days, or that I will make an Estate of Whiteacre in Dale worth 10 l. per Ann. when re vera it is worth but 5 l. per Ann. or that I will be nonsuit in such an Action, or assure such a Piece of Ground, when in Truth there is no such Action or Piece of Ground; this Condition is void, and the Obligation remains single and good. So if the Condition be, That whereas A. had a Judgment against B. the Obligor for 20 l. and the Obligees hath acknowledged Satisfaction; if therefore the Obligor shall before such a Day get a Warrant from A. whereby the Obligees may be saved harmless for the same Acknowledgment, that then, &c. This Condition is void, and the Obligation also, for that it is not only impossible but against Law also. But when the Thing to be done by the Condition is a Thing possible at the Time of the making the Obligation, and after by Matter ex post facto by the Act of God, the Act of the Law, or the Act of the Obligees, it is become impossible; in this Case the Obligation and Condition both are become void. And therefore if a Man be bound with Condition that he shall appear the next Term in such a Court, and before the Day the Obligor dies; hereby the Obligation is saved. So if A. be bound to B. that J. S. shall marry Jane G. by such a Day, and before the Day B. himself marries Jane G. hereby the Obligation is discharged, and B. shall never take Advantage of it. Perk. §. 735. Co. Lit. 207. Fitz. Obl. 17. 27 H. 8. 29. 21 Ed. 4. 54. 42 Ed. 3. 6.

Insensible and incertain.

Thirdly, When the Condition of an Obligation is so insensible and incertain that the Meaning cannot be known, there the Condition only is void, and the Obligation good: As if an Obligation be made by A. to B. with Condition, That A. shall keep B. without Damage against J. S. for 10 l. in which the Obligee is bound to the Obligor; this Condition is void, and the Obligation single. So if the Condition be, That A. shall pay his Part of the Sums of Money that shall be levied for the trying the Customs of M. unless the Word levied be used for taxed in that Country, the Condition is insensible and void. If A. be bound to B. with Condition to save him harmless, and says not for what or against whom; this Condition is void, and the Obligation single; but if any Sense or Certainty may be made of it, the Obligation and Condition shall be both good. Pas. 9 Jac. B. R.

Repugnant.

Fourthly, When the Condition of an Obligation in the Matter of it is repugnant to the Obligation itself, there the Condition is void, and the Obligation good. And therefore if the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligee shall not have Benefit by the Obligation, or that he shall not sue for the Money in the Obligation, or the like; this Condition is void, and the Obligation single. And yet at this Day by a Defeasance made after the Obligation it may be done. 7 H. 6. 44. 21 H. 7. 24, 30.

Not triable.

Fifthly, When the Thing to be done by the Condition is to be done beyond Sea, it has been held that the Condition is void, and the Obligation single, because the Thing was not triable here. 10 H. 6. 14. 21 Ed. 4. 10.

But the Law is otherwise now, and that the Matter is triable here, and the Condition good. Trin. 7 Jac. B. R.

And in all other Cases where a Deed in general is void for Misnomer, Disability, or otherwise, there an Obligation is void. Fitz. Obl. 2, 11.

All Bonds with Conditions for the enjoying of Spiritual Livings contrary to the Statute of 13 Eliz. c. 20. are void by the Statute of 14 Eliz. c. 11.

If any Person be drawn by Flattery or Threatning to enter into any Obligation simple or conditional to pay any Money not truly due, they may be relieved in Chancery, for which see the Statute of 31 H. 6. c. 39.

See of Conditions before, p. 260, 261, &c.

(E) What Bonds or Obligations are void by the Statute Law.

When void not being made to the Sheriff.

FIRST, By the Stat. 23 H. 6. c. 10. No Sheriff or his Officers shall take any Obligation, by Colour of their Offices, of any Person in their Ward, but only to themselves, and in the Name of their Office with Condition, with Sureties sufficient, and the Prisoner shall appear at the Day in the Writ; and all others taken in any other Form shall be void. And Persons that are in his Ward by Execution, Condemnation, Capias Utlegatum, Excommunication, Surety of the Peace, or some other special Case, being sent for by a Justice for Felony, or the like, may not be bailed. And others that are arrested on a Capias for Debt, or any Indictment, or otherwise by Writ, Bill or Warrant that are mainpernable, must be bailed.

For the better Understanding of which Statute observe these Things:

That such Obligations as differ and vary from the Form of this Statute in Words and Circumstances only, are good notwithstanding this Statute. And therefore if a Prisoner makes an Obligation with a Condition to appear and answer in a Plea of Debt, and says no more, nor does set down the Cause of the Debt; this is a good Obligation. Villar's Case, M. 9 Jac. B. R.

And if the Sheriff takes an Obligation with one Surety only, or with two Sureties that are insufficient, or with two Sureties of another County; this is a good Obligation. So if the Debt for which the Party is arrested be 300 l. and the Sheriff takes an Obligation of 100 l. for his Appearance; this is a good Obligation, and it concerns him only. 10 Co. 101.

So if the Condition of the Obligation be for Appearance Mense Pasche, omitting proxime futur'; yet it is a good Obligation. Villar's Case.

So if the Party was arrested by an Attachment out of the Star-Chamber upon a Contempt, and the Condition of the Obligation was, That if the Obligee shall appear, and then and there shall answer a Contempt by him committed against the King and his Council; this was a good Obligation. And if the Party that makes the Obligation be not in the Sheriff's Custody, although the Obligation be made in any other Manner essentially differing from the Form prescribed in the Statute, if it be not against the Common Law it is a good Obligation. Dyer 364.

And therefore if when a Capias Utlegatum be delivered to the Sheriff against a Man, the Sheriff takes a Bond of him for his Fees and his Trouble; this Bond if it be not within the Statute, yet it is against the Common Law, and therefore void, because it is by Colour of Extortion. But where the Obligation, whether it be single or double, made by a Prisoner essentially differs by Addition, Alteration or Diminution, from the Form prescribed in the Statute; there the Condition and Obligation are both void. Antley's Case, Hil. 7 Jac. C. B.

And

And therefore if such a Prisoner makes an Obligation to any other besides the Sheriff, although he to whom it be made be called Sheriff; or if he makes an Obligation to him by the Name of his Office, and does not rightly name him; as if he makes it to J. S. Vicecomiti in Comitatu prædicto, whereas it should be De Comitatu prædicto; all these Obligations are void by the Statute. And if the Sheriff takes an Obligation of a Prisoner for his Appearance in Case where he is not bailable by the Statute, and so lets him go free; or if he takes an Obligation of a Prisoner that is bailable for his Appearance, and inserts other Things in the Condition, as to pay Money for Meat, Drink or Fees, or the like; or if he delivers a Man in Execution, and takes a Bond of him to save him harmless, or to be true Prisoner; all these and such like Obligations as these are void by the Statute. Nowel's Case, Trin. 21 Jac.

If a Man be a Prisoner in Ludgate upon a Capias Utlegatum, and the Gaoler takes an Obligation of him with two Sureties, with Condition to save him harmless, and to discharge his Fees, and to yield his Body at all Times upon Summons, &c. this is a void Obligation as well against the Sureties as against the Principal. Dyer 118, 119.

If the Under-Marshall of the King's Bench takes an Obligation of one in Execution, and a Stranger, with Condition to save him harmless of all Escapes, and so suffer the Prisoner to go at large; this is a void Obligation. Dyer 324.

If the Sheriff of Bedford, having a Prisoner by Force of an Execution, lets him go at large, and takes an Obligation of him, with Condition that he shall keep the Sheriff without Damage against the King and the Plaintiff, and be at all Times at the Commandment of the Sheriff as a true Prisoner, and appear before the Justices of the King at Westminster, &c. this is a void Obligation. Plow. 61, 62.

If a Man be a Prisoner to the Sheriff for Suspicion of Felony, and after a Writ comes to him to have all his Prisoners at a certain Day before the Justices of Gaol-Delivery of the same County, and thereupon the Prisoner makes a single Obligation to the Sheriff to appear before the Justices the Day of the Writ; this is a void Obligation, because it is single and not with Condition. And if the Sheriff bails not one bailable by a single Obligation; this is a void Obligation. Fitz. Obl. 4.

Secondly, By Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 16. Bonds that concern the Buying and Selling of Offices are void.

Thirdly, By Stat. 13 Eliz. c. 5. Bonds, &c. made to avoid the Debt or Duty of others, shall (as to the Party whose Debt or Duty is endeavoured to be avoided) be void.

Fourthly, By Stat. 14 Eliz. c. 11. All Bonds with Conditions for enjoying Spiritual Livings contrary to the 13 Eliz. c. 20. are made void.

Fifthly, By Stat. 16 Car. 2. c. 7. All Securities obtained by Gaming are void.

Sixthly, By Stat. 7 & 8 Will. 3. c. 7. All Contracts and Securities given to procure a Return of a Member of Parliament, contrary to the last Determination in the House of Commons of the Right of Election for such Place, or of more Persons than are required by the Writ, &c. shall be adjudged void.

Seventhly, By Stat. 4 & 5 Ann. c. 14. All Instruments and Agreements for farming or purchasing Charity Money upon Briefs are declared void. And the Purchaser is to forfeit 500*l.* for the Use of the Sufferers, to be recovered by Action, &c.

Eighthly, By Stat. 12 Ann. Sess. 2. c. 11. Bonds upon excessive Usury are void.

(F) How a single Obligation shall be construed.

A Single Obligation is always taken most in Advantage of the Obligee and against the Obligor; but it is otherwise of the Condition of an Obligation; for this is always taken most in Advantage of the Obligor and against the Obligee. 10 H. 7. 1. 16.

If two, three or more bind themselves in an Obligation thus, Obligamus nos, [we oblige (or bind) us], and say no more, the Obligation is and shall be taken to be joint only, and not several; but if it be thus, Obligamus nos & utrumque nostrum, [we oblige (or bind) us, and both of us]; or Obligamus nos & unumquemque nostrum, [we bind us, and every one of us]; or Obligamus nos & quemlibet nostrum, [we bind us, and every of us]; or Obligamus nos & alterum nostrum, [we bind us, and each of us]; in all these Cases the Obligation is both joint and several, so as the Obligee may sue all the Obligors together, or all of them apart, at his Pleasure; but he may not sue some of them, and spare the Rest, but he must sue them all together, or all apart by several Præcipes; and in this Case he may have several Judgments and several Executions against the Obligors, and take their Bodies in Execution; but he shall have Satisfaction but once, or from one of them only, for after he has been satisfied by one, the Rest shall be discharged. But in the first Case where the Obligation is joint and not several, the Obligee must sue all the Obligors together, for he cannot sue one alone alone with Effect without the Rest, unless it be in some special Cases; as where one of the Obligors alone doth seal the Deed, or where all of them seal, but one of them is an Infant, a Woman Covert, or the like, or where one of them is dead; for in these Cases one or some of them may be charged without the Rest. But otherwise the Plaintiff cannot proceed in his Suit against one or some of them without the Rest, except the Defendant gives him Advantage; for howsoever the Suit be well begun, when one or some of them alone is or are sued, (Hil. 39 Eliz. B. R. adjudged) it shall not be intended that the Rest are living until it be shewed by the other Party, yet the Defendant is not bound to answer unless the Rest be sued also; and therefore in this Case he or they that is or are sued alone are thus to take the Advantage of it, viz. to shew the Matter to the Court, and to plead in Abatement of the Writ; for if he appears and shews it not, but pleads Non est factum, or the like, to the Obligation, the Jury must find against him, and he will be charged with the whole Debt; and so also if one appears, and the other makes Default and is outlawed, he that appears must answer all. Dyer 19, 310. 5 Co. 119. 9 Co. 53. Old Nat. Br. 62. Bro. Joitenancy 4, 16.

Executors and Administrators shall be bound by the Obligation of the Obligor altho' they be not named; but the Heir of the Obligor shall not be bound by the Obligation unless he be named in the Obligation, viz. Obligo me, Hæredes, &c. Dyer 14, 27.

If an Obligation be made to one and his Heirs, or to one and his Successors, the Executors and Administrators, not the Heir or Successor, shall take Advantage of it. If one binds himself in an Obligation of 200*l.* to A. and B. solvendum 100*l.* to A. and 100*l.* to B. and A. dies, the Executors of A. shall have 100*l.* but B. shall have the whole 200*l.* Sed quære. Dyer 350.

If one binds himself by Obligation to J. S. to pay him 100*l.* when K. comes to his House, and at Michaelmas then next following 100*l.* more; Michaelmas then next following shall be taken for next following the making of the Obligation, and not next following the coming of K. to his House. Bro. Obl. 59.

If one binds himself to pay Money upon a single Obligation, and does not say when; in this Case it must be paid presently. Dyer 128. Per three Justices, Trin. 22 Jac. C. B.

If one binds himself by Obligation to pay Money at Michaelmas, and does not say which Michaelmas; this shall be taken for Michaelmas next after the Date of the Obligation; and so also it shall be taken in the Condition of an Obligation. Cur' Marches of Wales, T. 8 Car.

If one binds himself to pay 20*l.* in the Year of our Lord which shall be 1599. in and upon the 13th of October next ensuing the Date of the Obligation; this shall be taken to be due the 13th of October 1599. and not next after the Obligation. M. 9 Jac. B. R.

(G) How an Obligation with a Condition, or the Condition of an Obligation shall be construed, and how it must and ought to be performed.

First, With Respect to the Persons that are to do the Thing.

THE Condition of an Obligation when it is doubtful, is always taken most favourably for the Obligor in whose Advantage it is made, and most against the Obligee, yet so as an equal and reasonable Construction be made according to the Minds of the Parties, altho' the Words sound to a contrary Understanding. Hil. 37 Eliz. B. R. Sharplus v. Hauckington, Dyer 14, 15.

If something be by a Condition to be done, and it is set down indefinitely, and not set down who shall do it, if the Obligee has more Skill to do the Thing than the Obligor, it shall be done by him, otherwise it shall be done by the Obligor; as if a Taylor be bound to me in an Obligation, with Condition, that if I bring him three Yards of Cloth, which shall be measured and shaped; and if he makes me a Cloak of it, &c. and it is not said by whom it shall be shaped, this must be done by the Taylor. Perk. §. 785.

Secondly, With respect to the Time of doing the Thing.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay Money, or to do any other transitory Act to the Obligee himself, and no Time is set for the doing thereof, but a Place only; this regularly must be done in convenient Time, and that without Request. So also in Case where the Thing to be done is in its Nature local, but yet such a Thing as may be done as in the Absence of the Obligee and without his Concurrence; as to acknowledge Satisfaction on a Judgment, make a Lease for Years, or the like, it must be done in convenient Time, and that without Request. So also in Case where the Thing to be done is local, and the Con-

Concurrence of both Parties necessary thereunto, yet when it is to be done to a Stranger, and not to the Obligee, as if the Condition be that the Obligor shall make a Feoffment to J. S. it must be done in convenient Time without Request: But where the Thing to be done is local, and the Concurrence of both Parties necessary thereunto, and the Act is to be done by the Obligor himself, or by a Stranger, to the Obligee himself; as where the Condition is that the Obligor or a Stranger shall infeoff the Obligee; in this Case the Obligor, or the Stranger, shall have Time to do it during his Life, unless the Obligee hastens it by Request; and if he requests it sooner, then it must be done in convenient Time after Request made: And yet if the Thing to be done be to be done wholly by the Obligor, or a Stranger, and doth nothing concern the Obligee; as where the Condition is that the Obligor shall go to Rome, or that J. S. shall preach at Paul's Cross, or the like; in the first Case it may be done at any Time during the Life of the Obligor, and in the last Case it may be done at any Time during the Life of J. S. and Request in this Case shall not hasten it. Co. Lit. 208. 2 Co. 79, 80. 9 H. 7. 16.

If an Obligation be with Condition to grant a Rent or an Annuity to the Obligee during his Life, to be paid at Easter, and no Time is set for the doing of it; this Rent must be granted before Easter next after the Obligation, or else the Obligation will be forfeited. And if the Condition be to grant an Advowson, and no Time is set for the doing thereof, it must be done before the Church becomes void, or otherwise the Obligation shall be forfeited. 2 Co. 80. Co. Lit. 208.

If the Condition be to do a Thing upon a Day in the Year, and there be two Days of that Name in the Year; in this Case it seems it must be done that Day that is furthest off from the Time of making of the Obligation, especially if that Day be the more notorious of the two Days. Dyer 77.

If the Condition be to pay 10*l.* the 11th of May next following, and the Obligation is dated the 5th of May; in this Case the Money must be paid the 11th Day of the same Month of May, and not of the next Month of May. Adjudged M. 20 Jac. Prescot's Case.

If the Condition be to stand to the Award of J. S. and J. S. awards Money to be paid, but sets no Time for the Payment of it; this must be paid in convenient Time, else the Obligation shall be forfeited. 22 Ed. 4. 25.

If one be bound to me in an Obligation, with Condition that if I infeoff him of Whiteacre he will pay me 10*l.* but does not say when; this must be done as soon as I make him the Feoffment. So if one be bound to me that if the Goods I have delivered to B. shall be lost, that C. shall satisfy me for them, and does not say when; this shall be presently after the losing. Perk. §. 797, 799.

If the Condition be to pay J. S. Money when he shall come to the Age of twenty-one Years; in this Case it must be paid the very Day J. S. comes to his full Age, and Payment after is not sufficient Performance of the Condition. M. 2 Jac. B. R. Crausdenet Morfe's Case.

If the Condition be to come at a Day to such a Place to do a Thing, and the Thing cannot be done without the Concurrence of the other Party; in this Case the Obligor must stay for the very last Instant of the Day for his coming, and it seems also he must stay at the Place all the Day long. 39 Eliz. B. R. Fitz. Bar 92.

If the Condition be to pay Rent at Michaelmas, or within twenty Days after, the Obligation is not forfeited before the twenty Days be past. Adjudged Pas. 39 Eliz.

If one be to do a Thing on a Day certain, he may do it any Part of the Day whilst the Light doth last, and if the Condition be to do a Thing by or before a Day, it may be done the last Instant of the Day before, and it is sufficient. Bro. Condition 145. Dyer 17. 7 Ed. 4. 3.

Thirdly, With Respect to the Place where the Thing is to be done.

If the Condition of an Obligation be to pay Money, or do any like transitory Act, to the Obligee, on a Day certain, but no Place is set down where it shall be done; in this Case it must be done to the Person of the Obligee wherever he be; and for this Purpose the Obligor must at his Peril seek out the Obligee, if he be intra quatuor maria, otherwise the Obligation is forfeited; but if the Obligee be not within the Kingdom at the Time when the Thing is to be done, he is not bound to seek him; so neither is the Obligation forfeited for not doing of the Thing. So if one grants an Annuity to another, and does not set down where it shall be paid, and gives a Bond with Condition for the Payment thereof; in this Case it must be done to the Person of the Obligee wherever he be; and the like Law is where the Thing to be done by the Condition is to be done by or to a Stranger;

Stranger; but when the Thing the Party is bound by the Condition to do is local, he is not bound to go any further or to any other Place but to the Place itself; and therefore if the Condition be to make a Feoffment of a Piece of Land, the Party that is bound to do it is not bound to go to any other Place but to the Piece of Land to do it. And if a Man makes a Feoffment in Fee, or Lease for Life or Years of Land, rendring Rent generally, and gives an Obligation with Condition for the Payment of Rent, the Feoffee or Lessee is not bound to go to any Place from the Land to seek the Feoffor or Lessor to pay him this Rent. Perk. §. 780, 781. 7 Ed. 4. 4. 22 Ed. 4. 25. Lit. §. 340, 341.

If the Condition be to deliver twenty Quarters of Corn such a Day to the Obligee, and no Place is set down where it shall be delivered; in this Case it is sufficient, if the Obligor when the Corn is ready gives Notice thereof to the Obligee, and desires him to appoint a Place whereunto the Obligor may bring it, and if he refuses to appoint a Place, it is at his own Peril; or the Obligor may bring the Corn to the House of the Obligee, (and this is the safest way) and if the Obligee refuses it the Condition is performed, and the Obligation is discharged. Perk. §. 785.

Fourthly, In Respect of the Thing itself to be done.

To perform Covenants.

If the Condition be to perform all the Covenants in an Indenture; this shall be taken as well for the Covenants in Law as for the Covenants in Deed. 4 Co. 80. Dyer 257.

If a Lease be made of a Manor excepting a Close, and the Lessee makes an Obligation to the Lessor, with Condition that the Lessee shall perform omnia & singula in scripto predicto contenta; by this the Close shall be taken to be within the Condition; so that if the Lessee disturbs the Lessor in the Close excepted, this shall be a Breach of the Condition. Plow. 67.

To make a Feoffment, Lease, &c.

If the Condition be to make a Feoffment to the Obligee of Land; in this Case the Feoffment may be made with or without Writing; and if it be made by Writing, it may be made without any Warranty or Covenants; and this will be a sufficient Performance of the Condition. But now Feoffments must be in Writing.

If the Condition be that the Obligor shall make a Lease to the Obligee for twenty Years, and it is not set down when the Lease shall begin, it shall begin presently. 6 Co. 33.

To make a Release or other Assurance.

If the Condition be that the Obligor shall do any Act upon Request, that the Counsel of the Obligee shall think reasonable; as for Example, shall do any Act, &c. for the Releasing of an Obligation wherein the Obligee is bound to the Obligor; and the Obligee, by Advice of Counsel, deviseth and requesteth a Release of all Demands to the Obligee and to J. S. In this Case the Obligor may refuse to seal it altho' it be devised by the Counsel of the Obligee, because it is unreasonable; for it must be a reasonable Act that the Obligor by this Condition is bound to do. Dyer 218.

To pay Money or Rent.

If the Condition be to pay 10 l. at Michaelmas next, and 10 l. yearly after, until J. S. be made a Knight; in this Case altho' J. S. be made a Knight before Michaelmas, yet the first 10 l. at Michaelmas must be paid. Adjudged H. 39 Eliz. C. B.

If the Condition be thus, That if the Obligor shall for ever pay yearly to the Obligee, &c. 10 l. at the two usual Feasts, by equal Portions; or if his Heirs shall at any Time hereafter pay 100 l. at one Payment to the Obligee, that then the Obligation to be void; in this Case altho' the Obligor has Election which of these two Things to do, yet because the Intent is apparent that one of these Things should be done, if therefore the 100 l. be not paid before the first Feast, the 10 l. must be paid yearly. Adjudged M. 18 Jac. B. R. Harbert v. Rocksey.

To warrant Land, and for quiet enjoying.

If the Condition of an Obligation from A. to B. be thus, That whereas A. hath sold to B. certain Meadow in Dale, that the said A. shall warrant the same against Lord and King, and all others, if the said B. shall peaceably enjoy it to him and his Heirs of the Lord of the Manor of M. by the Services due after the Custom, &c. in this Case the Substance being for quiet enjoying, it shall be extended that way; and altho' it be not said what he shall warrant, yet it shall be taken the Land in Question; and the Warranty shall be construed to last only for the Life of B. and not to extend to any new Titles after the Covenant, especially such as are by the Act and Default of the Obligee himself; as if he commits a Forfeiture, and the Lord enters, or the like. Dyer 42, 43.

To prove a Thing.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall sufficiently prove such a Thing; this shall be taken for Proof by Inquest, and accordingly it must be done: But if the Condition be, that it shall be done by such a Time, or before such Persons, as when or where Proof cannot be had, then it is otherwise. Where the Word Proof is put generally, it shall be understood understood of Proof by Justice; but when the Parties agree upon another Form of Proof, that shall prevail against that which is but Instruction of Law. Perk. §. 791. 10 Ed. 4. 11. and Gold's Case, Hob. 127.

If one be bound in an Obligation with Condition to suffer his Wife to give to her Kinsfolks, Children or others, Portions of his Goods to the Value of 100*l.* and that he will perform it, and she gives Part to one and Part to another; in this Case the Husband must perform it accordingly: But if the Condition be to suffer her to give A. and B. 100*l.* and that he will perform it, and she gives 100*l.* to A. he is not bound to perform this. Trin. 7 Jac. C. B.

If the Condition be, that he shall perform his Wife's Will, so it does not exceed 20*l.* and she makes a Will, and devises 100*l.* in this Case he is not bound to perform the Will for the 20*l.* Hil. 7 Jac. B. R. adjudged.

Fifthly, In Respect of the Manner and Order of doing the Thing, &c.

If the Condition of an Obligation be, that the Obligor shall infeoff the Obligee and such others as he shall name by a Day; in this Case the Obligee must do the first Act, viz. name the others, otherwise the Obligor doth not forfeit his Obligation by the not doing of it; but if the Condition be to infeoff me, or such others as I shall name before such a Day; in this Case, if I do not name others, he must infeoff me before the Day at his Peril. Kelw.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall make such an Estate of Lands as J. S. shall advise; J. S. must first advise, and this must be made known unto the Obligor ere he is bound to do any Thing; and if he never advises, he is never bound to do any Thing; for it is in this Case as if one be bound to stand to the Award of J. S. and J. S. never makes any, or makes a void Award; which is all one. 5 Co. 25. 7 Ed. 4. 13. • Perk. §. 775.

If the Condition be, to make such a Discharge in such a Court as the Obligee or his Counsel shall advise; in this Case the Obligee must do the first Act, viz. advise, and give Notice of the Advice to the Obligor before he be bound to do any Thing: But if the Condition be, to make such a Discharge in such a Court such a Day as the Judge of that Court shall advise; in this Case the Obligor must at his Peril procure the Judge to advise a Discharge, and it must be done that very Day, or the Obligation will be forfeited. 5 Co. 23.

If the Condition be, to pay 20*l.* to the Obligee when he comes to London; in this Case the Obligee must do the first Act, viz. make known to the Obligor when he first comes to London; for otherwise it seems the Obligor is not bound to pay the Money. Per Just. Nichols, M. 13 Jac. C. B.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall levy a Fine to the Obligee before such a Day, the Obligee must do the first Act, viz. sue out the Writ of Covenant. 5 Co. 127. Dyer 371.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall deliver twenty Cloths to the Obligee such a Day, the Obligee paying for every Cloth immediately after the Delivery 20*l.* in this Case the Cloths must be delivered altho' the Obligee refuses to pay the Money; but if immediately after he left out, it seems the Obligor is not bound to deliver the Cloth unless the Obligee first pays the Money. 21 Ed. 4. 52.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor and his Heirs shall at any Time upon Request made do any Act, &c. that the Obligee shall require, &c. and the Obligee tenders a Release or other Deed to seal; in this Case if the Obligee, or his Heirs, that is to seal the Deed be an illiterate Man, he may refuse to seal it until he can get Somebody to read it unto him; but he may not refuse or delay to seal it until he can have a Lawyer's Advice upon it, but he will forfeit his Obligation. 2 Co. 3, 4. Dyer 337.

If the Condition be, to do any Thing upon Request, the Obligor until Request be made is not bound to do any Thing towards it, neither can he forfeit his Obligation till then. And yet if in this Case the Obligor disables himself to do the Thing he has undertaken to do upon Request, before the Request made, the Obligation may be forfeited without any Request made. Perk. §. 773. 5 Co. 21.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall within a certain Time surrender such Land of his for an Annuity of so much as they shall agree upon, and they agree upon 10*l.* per Annum; in this Case the Obligor is not bound to make the Surrender until the Annuity be made and tendred unto him. 14 H. 8.

If the Condition be, to deliver to the Obligee an Obligation wherein the Obligee is bound, &c. or to seal and deliver to the Obligee such a Release of it as shall be devised by the the Counsel of the Obligee before Michaelmas, and the Counsel do not advise any Release before Michaelmas; in this Case the Obligor is discharged of the Obligation, for the Obligee is to do the first Act. Adjudged H. 37 Eliz. C. B. Greeingham's Case.

If A. be bound to B. in an Obligation, with Condition that A. and his Wife shall levy a Fine of Land to C. and D. and their Heirs, and at their Costs and Charges; this shall be construed to be at the Costs of the Obligor, and not at the Costs of the Conusees; but if the Word [and] be omitted, perhaps it may be otherwise. Trin. 4 Jac. B. R.

Conditions impossible.

If the Condition be thus, that if the Wife dies before Michaelmas without Issue of her Body then living, that the Obligation shall be void; in this Case then living shall relate ad proximum antecedens, and not to the Death of the Wife; and therefore if she has Issue, and dies, and after before Michaelmas the Issue dies also, the Obligation is void. Dyer 17.

If the Condition be, that if the Obligor shall waste the Goods of the Obligee (his Master), and this Waste within three Months after due Proof, either by Confession or otherwise, be notified on the Obligor, that the Obligor shall satisfy the Obligee for it, and the Obligor confesses the Waste under his Hand and Seal; in this Case this Proof, tho' it be extrajudicial, is sufficient. Gold's Case, M. 13 Jac.

When the Condition of an Obligation is to do two Things by a Day, and at the Time of making of the Obligation both of them are possible, but after and before the Time when the same is to be done, one of the Things is become impossible by the Act of God, or by the sole Act and Laches of the Obligee himself; in this Case the Obligor is not bound to do the other Thing that is possible, but is discharged of the whole Obligation: But if at the Time of the making of the Obligation one of the Things is and the other of the Things is not possible to be done, he must perform that which is possible. And if in the first Place one of the Things become impossible afterwards by the Act of the Obligor, or a Stranger, the Obligor must do the other Thing at his Peril. And when the Condition of an Obligation is to do one single Thing, which afterwards before the Time when it is to be done becomes impossible to be done in all or in Part, the Obligation is wholly discharged; and yet if it be possible to be done in any Part, it shall be performed as near to the Condition as may be. 5 Co. 22. Co. Lit. 207. Dyer 262. 15 H. 7. 2. 4 H. 7. 4.

If the Condition be to do one of two Things, as to make a Feoffment to me, or pay me 20*l.* in this Case if the Obligor does either of them, it is sufficient. But if the Condition be in the Copulative, as to infeoff me, and pay me 20*l.* in this Case the doing of one of them will not suffice, but he must do both. 21 Ed. 3. 29.

If the Condition be to pay to A. B. and C. 30*l.* a-piece within a Week after they come to eighteen Years of Age, or within forty Days after their Days of Marriage, after Notice given thereof, which shall first happen; in this Case this Notice must go to both the Parties, so that Notice must be given when they are eighteen Years of Age, otherwise and until Notice given the Obligor is not bound to pay the Money. Per Just. Dodridge, M. 2 Car. B. R.

(II) When the Condition of an Obligation shall be said to be performed, and the Obligation saved or satisfied, or not.

See before of Conditions, p. 260, 261, &c.

THE Matter of a Condition of an Obligation is sometimes Affirmative and Compulsory, and consists of something to be done; and sometimes it is Negative and Restrictive, and consists of something not to be done; the not doing in the first Case, and doing in the latter Case, causeth the Obligation to be forfeited; and the doing in the first Case, and not doing in the latter, saves the Obligation.

To make a
Feoffment.

If one be bound in an Obligation to me, with Condition to infeoff me of Land, and the Obligor does first make a Lease to me of it, and afterwards he makes a Release of it to me and my Heirs; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 207. Plow. 67. 17 Ed. 4. 3.

If a Condition be to make me a Feoffment of Land, and he tenders me a Feoffment, and I refuse it; by this the Condition is performed. So if the Condition be, to make a Feoffment to my Use, and when it is made I refuse it; this is a good Performance of the Condition. But if a Man binds himself in an Obligation to me, with Condition to make a Feoffment to a Stranger, and he tenders the Feoffment to the Stranger, and he refuses it; this is no good Performance of the Condition, but the Obligation is forfeited. If the Condition be, to infeoff me and my Wife, and he tenders it to me, and I refuse it; this is a good Performance. Perk. §. 784. Fitz. Bar 82. Perk. §. 758. 15 Ed. 4. 5.

If

If one binds himself in an Obligation to me, with Condition to make me a Feoffment of the Manor of Dale by a Day, and he before the Day grants a Rent-charge out of the same Manor to a Stranger, and afterwards and before the Day also he makes me a Feoffment of the Land; this is a good Performance of the Condition, and the Grant of the Rent is no Breach thereof. But if the Obligor sells Part of the Manor before, or makes a Feoffment to me but of one Moiety, or a third Part of the Manor; this is no good Performance of the Condition. And if in this Case the Obligor before the Day takes a Wife, and before the Day makes his Feoffment according to the Condition, but the Marriage continues until after the Day; in this Case the Condition is broken. 3 H. 7. 4. 4 H. 7. 4. Perk. §. 757.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall infeoff me of the Manor of Dale, and he makes a Feoffment of the Manor of Sal, and I accept thereof; this is no Performance of the Condition, and that my Acceptance in this Case will not help. So if the Condition be, to make me a Feoffment of Land, and he gives me Money, a Horse, or the like, in Recompence of this, and I accept thereof; this is no good Performance of the Condition: And the like Law is in all Cases where the Condition is to do any collateral Thing, as to account, build a House, enter into a Recognisance, or the like, and the Obligor gives and the Obligee accepts some other Thing in Lieu thereof. And so it is where the Condition is to make a Feoffment to a Stranger, and the Obligor gives and the Stranger takes another Thing in Lieu thereof. But if the Condition be, to infeoff me of Land such a Day, and he makes and I take the Feoffment before the Day; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Perk. §. 749, 751, 759. Dyer 1. 9 H. 7. 17. 3 H. 7. 4. 27 H. 8. 1. 14 H. 8. 15. 10 H. 7. 14.

If the Condition be, to infeoff me or my Heirs in the Disjunctive, and the Obligor infeoff me and my Heirs; this is a good Performance of the Condition; for it is impossible to infeoff my Heirs whilst I live. And when two Things are to be done by a Condition, whereof the one is possible at the Time of making the Obligation, and the other not; in this Case it is sufficient if he does the Thing which is possible. 14 H. 8. 15. 5 Co. 112.

If the Condition be, to make me a Feoffment, or pay me 20*l.* if the Obligor does either of them, it is sufficient: But if the Condition be, to infeoff me, and pay me 20*l.* in this Case the Obligor must do both, or the Condition will not be performed; & sic de similibus. 21 Ed. 3. 29.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall make me a sufficient Estate of Land by the Advice of W. and S. and they advise an insufficient Estate, and the Obligor makes the Estate according to that Advice; this is a good Performance of the Condition. But if the Condition be, that the Obligor shall make a good and sure Estate, and he by Advice of Counsel makes an Estate that is not good and sure; this is no good Performance of the Condition. Perk. §. 776. Kelw. 95.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall make me an Estate of Land, and makes the Estate to another by my Appointment; this is no Performance of the Condition. Fitz. Bar 55.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor or his Feoffees in Trust shall make an Estate to the Obligee such a Day, and the Feoffees do it without the Consent of the Obligor; this is no Performance of the Condition. Trin. 17 Jac. B. R.

If the Condition be, to make further Assurance, and the Obligor makes further Assurance upon Condition without the Agreement of the other Party; this is no good Performance of the Condition. Pasf. 8 Jac. C. B. To make further Assurance.

If the Condition be, to save me harmless from an Annuity wherewith my Land is charged, and the Obligor pays the same yearly, and gets me an Acquittance for the same from the Party; this is a good Performance of the Condition. But if the Condition be, to discharge me of such an Annuity; in this Case Payment and procuring me a Release is no good Performance of the Condition. 37 H. 6. 18. Perk. §. 792. To save harmless.

If the Condition be, that the Feoffees or Lessees of the Obligor, of such Lands which they have in Trust, shall grant me a Rent-charge, or release their Right to me before such a Day, and there be three Feoffees or Lessees, and two of them only grant this Rent, or make this Release; this is no good Performance of the Condition. Perk. §. 790. Fitz. Bar 70. To grant a Rent, or to procure it to be granted.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall purchase and procure to me and my Heirs a Rent of 5*l.* per Ann. and a Stranger has such a Rent out of my Land, and he gets him to release this to me; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Dyer 15.

And if one be bound with Condition to grant me the Rent and Farm of such a Mill before Michaelmas, to be had and received until I be paid 10*l.* and before that Time he leases the Mill to me at a Rent, and then suffers me to detain so much of the Rent; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Fitz. Bar 77.

- To deliver a Horfe. If the Condition be, to deliver me a Horfe, and the Obligor tenders the Horfe to me, and I refuse him, hereby the Condition is performed; and so in all such like Cases where the Obligor is to do any collateral Thing, as stand to an Award, or the like; if the Obligor offers to do it, and the Obligee refuses, the Condition is performed, and the Obligation discharged for ever. Co. Lit. 207.
- Tender and Refusal. If the Condition be, to pay Money at a Day certain, and the Obligor pays a little before Night, Time enough for the Receiver to see and number his Money by Day-light; this is a good Performance of the Condition. And if the Condition be, to pay Money by or before a Day; Payment the last Instant of the Day before, is a sufficient Performance of the Condition. Dyer 17. Co. Lit. 202. Bro. Condition 145.
- To pay Money. If the Condition be, to pay me a Sum of Money at a Day certain, and the Obligor pays me less Money before the Day, or all the Money before or at the Day, or gives me something else before or at the Day of Payment in Lieu thereof, or pays me all the Money, or a lesser Sum at the Day appointed, but in another Place, and not the Place mentioned in the Condition, and I accept thereof; in all these Cases the Condition is well performed. Perk. §. 7, 48. 34 H. 6. 17. 21 Ed. 3. 13. 5 Co. 117. 9 Co. 79. Bro. Obl. 64.
- But if a Stranger to the Condition does so, and I accept thereof; this is no good Performance of the Condition. Adjudged Trin. 36 Eliz.
- And if the Obligor pays less than the whole Money at the Day of Payment, and the Obligee accepts thereof; this is no good Performance of the Condition: And if the Thing to be done be a collateral Thing, as to account, or the like, and the Obligor gives to the Obligee Money, or a Horfe in Lieu thereof, and the Obligee accepts it; this is no good Performance of the Condition. And if the Obligor pays the Money to the Obligee after the Day of Payment; this is no Performance of the Condition, but the Obligation is forfeited, and the Money paid shall go in Part towards the Forfeiture: And yet in this Case the Defendant at this Day being sued upon this Obligation, usually adventures to plead Conditions performed, and gives the special Matter in Evidence to the Jury, who for the most part finds against the Obligee. Adjudged 27 Eliz.
- And yet if the Condition be, to pay me Money at a Day certain, or to pay another Money at a Day certain, and the Obligor pays me or the Stranger at several Times before the Day, and I or the Stranger accept thereof; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Dyer 18.
- But if the Obligee only promises to accept of a Horfe for his Money at the Time of Payment, and when the Time of Payment comes, and a Tender of the Horfe is made to him, he refuses him; this Tender is not a sufficient Performance of the Condition. 18 Ed. 4.
- If the Condition be, to pay Money at a Day and Place certain, and the Obligor tenders it at the Time and Place, and the Obligee is not ready to receive it; or being ready, refuses to receive it; this is a good Performance of the Condition to save the Forfeiture of the Obligation: And yet if the Obligor be afterwards sued for this Money, he must say in his Pleading that he is still ready to pay it, and he must tender it in Court. But if one be bound by a single Obligation to pay Money, and after at the same or some other Time he has a Defeasance from the Obligee, that upon Payment of a lesser Sum the Obligation shall be void, and the Obligee refuses the Money when the same is tendered at the Time when by the Defeasance it is to be paid; in this Case the Obligor is not bound to tender the Money in Court, neither hath the Obligee any Remedy for it. Co. Lit. 208, 209. 27 H. 8. 10. Perk. §. 784.
- If the Condition be, to pay me Money at a Day and Place certain, and the Obligor tenders it to me the same Day in another Place; this is no Performance of the Condition, and therefore in that Case I may refuse it. 41 Ed. 3. 25.
- If the Condition be, to pay Money between two Days; Payment of the Money upon either of those Days, is not a good Performance of the Condition; but the Payment must be between the two Days. Dyer 17.
- If the Condition be, to pay me Money at a Day certain, and I bid the Obligor pay the Money to one that I do owe so much more unto, or I bid him lay out the Money for me, or I bid him keep it for such a Debt I owe unto him, and he does so, and I accept thereof; this is a good Performance of the Condition. If the Condition be, to pay me Money, and I appoint another to receive it, and the Obligor pays it unto him; this is a good Performance of the Condition. Perk. §. 748. 27 H. 6. 6. Fitz. Bar 43.
- Acceptance. If the Condition be, that a Stranger shall pay to the Obligee 10*l.* and the Obligee accepts a Horfe for it; this is a good Performance of the Condition. But if the Condition be, that one Stranger shall pay to another Stranger 10*l.* and the one gives and the other takes a Horfe in Lieu of this; this is no good Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 208, 209. Dyer 56.

If the Condition be, to pay me 20*l.* of lawful English Money, and the Obligor pays me in Spanish, or in any other Money current in this Realm; this is a good Performance of the Condition. But Payment in Farthings is no good Payment. If the Condition be, to pay me 20*l.* and the Obligor pays me some of the 20*l.* in counterfeit Pieces, which I not perceiving at the Time do put up and accept; but after upon a Review I do perceive some of them to be naught, and thereupon I do send it back to him again; in this Case the Condition is well performed, and therefore the sending back of the Money again will not cause a Breach afterwards. Vide Terms de la Ley, Tit. Coin.

If neither the Principal nor Interest upon a Bond has been demanded in twenty or thirty Years, it will be presumed in Equity that the Bond is satisfied; and a perpetual Injunction has been granted to stay all Proceedings on such Bonds. 1 Ch. Rep. 78. Finch's Rep. 78.

If the Condition be, that I shall stand to the Award of J. S. and he awards me to pay 20*l.* To stand to W. S. by a Day, and at the Day I tender him the 20*l.* but he refuses it; in this Case I an Award, have sufficiently proved the Condition, and the Obligation is saved. 22 Ed. 4. 2.

If the Condition be, that I shall stand to the Award of J. S. and he awards that I shall enter a Retraxit in a Suit depending between me and the other Party, and I do not so, but am nonsuited, or discontinue my Suit; this is no good Performance of the Condition. 22 Ed. 4. 25.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall come such a Day to such a Place, and shew me To shew a Release, and he comes to the Place the latter Part of the Day, and stays there till the Release. Light of the Day be gone, ready to shew his Release, but I come not thither; this is a good Performance of the Condition. 22 Ed. 4. 42.

If one makes a Lease of Land to me, and binds himself in an Obligation, with Condition For quiet enjoyment to suffer me quietly to enjoy the Land without the Let of him or any other; in this Case if he himself, nor any other by his Incitement, disturbs me, the Condition is performed; and if a Stranger that has Title enters without his Procurement or Occasion, this is no Breach of the Condition. Dyer 255. 17 Ed. 4. 3.

If the Condition be, to appear in the King's Bench such a Day to answer J. S. and at To appear; the Day the Obligor appears, but the Plaintiff is effoined, so that the Defendant cannot answer him, or the Suit is discontinued by the Demise of the King before the Day of Appearance; in these Cases the Condition is performed, and the Obligation saved. But if the Obligor in this Case when he appears does not cause his Appearance to be entred of Record, the Obligation is forfeited. Perk. §. 760, 758. 2 Ed. 4. 3.

If the Condition be, to appear Coram Domino Rege, and the Obligor appears before the King's Person; this is no Performance of the Condition. And if the Condition be, to appear Coram Justiciariis Domini Regis, and the Obligor appears before them out of Court; this is no Performance of the Condition. 8 H. 4. 6.

If the Condition be, that a Stranger shall make an Obligation to the Obligee, and the To make a Stranger tenders it, and the Obligee refuses it; this a good Performance of the Condition: Bond. But if the Condition be, that the Obligor shall make an Obligation to a Stranger, and the Obligor tenders it, and the Stranger refuses it; this is no Performance of the Condition. Co. Lit. 208, 209. 10 H. 6. 16. 27 H. 8. 1.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall marry the Daughter of the Obligee by a Day, To marry a and he tenders himself, and she refuses; in this Case the Obligation is forfeited notwithstanding this Tender and Refusal. Perk. §. 756. 4 H. 7. 3. Woman.

If the Condition be, to deliver the Key of a House and the quiet Possession to J. S. to To quit Possession, the Use of the Obligee; and the Obligor (the House being cleared, and every one out of the House, and the Door locked) delivers the Key to J. S. this is no good Performance of the Condition, but J. S. or the Obligee or his Deputy, ought to come and receive the Possession. Dyer 219.

(I) When a single Obligation shall be said to be broken and forfeited, or not.

IF an Obligation that is single be not performed, as when it is to pay Money at a Day, and the Money is not paid, the Obligation is broken; but if a Man be bound by an Obligation to pay Money at several Days, the Obligation is not forfeited, nor can be sued until all the Days be past. And yet if the Condition of an Obligation be, to pay Money at several Days, and the Obligor fails to pay the Money the first Day; in this Case the Obligee may sue for the Money due by the Obligation presently. 8 Co. 153. Co. Lit. 292. F. N. B. 267.

If one be bound to pay Money at a Day certain by a single Obligation or Bill, and the Obligor tenders the Money due at the Day to the Obligee, so as he will give him his Bill, or give him a Release for the Money, and the Obligee refuses so to do, and thereupon he refuses refuses to pay the Money; in this Case the Obligation is not forfeited, for the Obligor is not bound to pay the Money unless the Obligee will give up his Bill, or give him a Release. But otherwise it is in Case where one is bound to pay Money by the Condition of an Obligation; for there the Obligor must pay the Money at his Peril, altho' the Obligee refuses to deliver up the Obligation, or to give a Release. Bro. Obl. 62. Fait 105. Fitz. Verdict 13.

If one be bound to pay Money on a single Bill at a Day, and the Obligor tenders the Money at the Day to the Obligee, and he refuses it; in this Case he has no Remedy for his Money. Sed quere.

(K) When the Condition of an Obligation shall be said to be broken, and the Obligation forfeited, or not.

IN all Cases when the Condition is not performed, or is broken, the Obligation is forfeited, and till then it cannot be forfeited; and therefore if one be bound in an Obligation with Condition to pay me 10*l.* at Easter, before the Day comes the Obligation cannot be forfeited; but if it be not paid at the Day the Obligation is forfeited; and yet if the Obligee himself be the Cause of the Breach of the Condition, or the Thing to be done by the Condition is now become impossible by the Act of God, the Obligation is now become without Penalty; as if in old Time I had been bound in an Obligation to an Abbot that should infeoff him before Christmas, if A. enters into Religion, my Bond had been presently forfeited; but otherwise it had been if A. had been professed under the Obedience of the Obligee himself. Bro. Obl. 17. 4 H. 7. 4.

To make a Feoffment.

If a Condition be, to make a Feoffment of Land to me such a Day, and he be not upon the Land ready to make the Feoffment, altho' I come not there to receive it, yet the Condition is broken. Perk. §. 768, 769.

If a Condition be, that when the Obligor shall come to his Aunt, he will infeoff the Obligee, or the Heirs of his Body; in this Case he must do it as soon as he comes to her, and the Obligee shall request the Feoffment, or the Obligation is forfeited. 21 Ed. 3. 29. 5 Co. 112.

If a Condition be, to infeoff me of a Manor by a Day, and before the Day the Obligor makes a Feoffment of it to another; hereby the Condition is broken, and the Obligation forfeited; and tho' the Obligor re-purchases it again before the Day, and then makes the Feoffment, yet this will not cure the Breach. 21 Ed. 4. 55.

If a Condition be, to infeoff B. and C. and one of them dies before the Time be past wherein it should be done; he must infeoff the Survivor of them, or the Condition is broken. 4 H. 7. 4.

To make a Lease.

If a Condition be, that if the Obligor before Michaelmas makes a Lease to the Obligee for thirty-one Years, if A. will assent, and if he will not assent, then for twenty-one Years; that then, &c. if A. does not assent, and the Lease for twenty-one Years be not made before Michaelmas, the Obligation is forfeited. Dyer 347.

To make an Estate.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall make me an Estate upon Request, and he tenders me an estate before I request it, and afterwards I do request it, and he refuses it; the Condition is broken, and the Obligation forfeited. 7 H. 6. 24.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall make a good Estate of Land, (being Copyhold Land) and he surrenders it absolutely, and the Homage when they present it do present it conditionally; this is no Breach of the Condition. Pasf. 8 Jac. C. B.

If the Condition be, to make a good Estate of Land in Fee-simple to A. (a Woman) before such a Time, and before such a Time the Obligor takes a Wife, and the Day passes, and no Estate is made; the Condition is broken, and the Obligation forfeited: But if the Obligation be made to the Woman herself, then it is dispensed with by the Intermarriage. *4 H. 7. 4. To make further Assurance.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor and his Son shall do all such Acts for the better assuring of Land as the Obligee or his Counsel shall devise, and the Obligee devises and tenders a Release to the Obligor and his Son to seal, and they delay and refuse to seal it, until they can shew it to their Counsel to be advised upon it; this is a Breach of the Condition; but if they be illiterate, and refuse to seal it until they can get it read, this is no Breach of the Condition. 2 Co. 3. Dyer 337.

To save harmless.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall save the Obligee harmless from such a Debt for which the Obligee is Surety for the Obligor, and the Obligee comes at the Time and to the Place when and where the Money for which he is engaged is to be paid, and finding Nobody ready to pay the Money, he pays it himself to save the Forfeiture of the Obligation; hereby the Condition to save harmless is broken, and the Obligation forfeited; and therefore much more if the Obligee be sued, arrested, outlawed or taken in Execution for the Debt of the Principal.

cipal. So also if the Obligee be put in Fear of an Arrest for the Debt of the Principal, and therefore dares not go about his Business; by this the Condition is broken. But if the Obligee be sued unjustly, either because he is sued before the Money is due, or otherwise; or if the Bond in which he is bound be against Law and void, and he suffers himself to be unjustly vexed thereupon, and does not take Advantage of it; this is no Breach of the Condition of the Bond to save harmless. Dyer 186, 187. 18 Ed. 4. 27, 28. 5 Co. 24. Old Book of Entries 12.

If a Bailiff distrains Beasts on a Witbern, and afterwards redelivers them to the Party of whom he had them, and takes a Bond from him, with Condition to save him harmless from him for whom the Beasts were taken; and after he brings a Detinue against the Bailiff for the Beasts; the Condition is not broken, for that Action will not lie in this Case.

If the Condition be, to pay Money to me at a Day and Place certain, and the Money To pay Money is not tendered at the Time and Place, altho' there be Nobody ready to receive it; if it be ney. tendered, yet the Condition is broken. Kelw. 60.

If the Condition be, to pay Money to me at a Day and Place, and the Obligor in his going to the Place is robbed of the Money, so as he cannot pay him; in this Case notwithstanding the Condition is broken and the Obligation forfeited, this will not excuse it.

Bro. Obl. 9.

If the Condition be, to pay Money to me at a Day and Place, and I seeing him going to the Place to pay the Money, desire him to forbear, and thereupon he does so, and does not pay it; the Obligation is forfeited, and this will not excuse. But if I do violently and actually detain and hinder him so that he cannot pay it, this will excuse him. Kelw. 60.

If the Condition be, to pay me the Rent reserved on such a Lease at the Times limited To pay Rent. by the Lease, and it be not paid accordingly; hereby the Condition is broken altho' I do never demand the Rent. Hil. 4 Jac. Molineux's Case.

If the Condition be, to pay me the Rent reserved on such a Lease, and I enter upon all or Part of the Land demised, so as the Rent is suspended so long as I keep the Possession; in this Case the Non-payment of the Rent during the Time of the Suspension of the Rent, is no Breach of the Condition. *Bro. If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall suffer the Obligee to enjoy Lands, &c. and that without the Let of him, &c. or any other Person or Persons, &c. and one that has an elder Title enters; this is no Breach of the Condition. But if he procures this Entry and Disturbance; this is a Breach of the Condition. Dyer 255. 17 Ed. 4. 3.

If the Condition be, that B. and others shall quietly enjoy Land, and A. the Obligor and B. the Obligee disturb the others; it seems by this Disturbance the Condition is broken. Kelw. 60.

If one makes a Feoffment of Land, and makes me an Obligation with Condition to defend the Land for twelve Years, &c. and I am entred by a Stranger but never impleaded; in this Case the Condition is broken. Co. Lit. 384.

If the Condition be, that J. S. shall give me Licence to go over his Ground, and J. S. does so, but another interrupts me; this is no Breach of the Condition. And yet if the Condition be, that I shall have Licence to go over that Ground, there perhaps such an Interruption may be a Breach of the Condition. 18 Ed. 4. 23.

If an Obligation be made to me with Condition to appear in such a Court such a Day, To appear. and at the Day he is kept in Prison at my Suit so as he cannot appear; in this Case his Non-appearance is no Breach of the Condition, for his Imprisonment shall excuse him. But if his Imprisonment be for Felony, or any other such like Cause of his own, contra. Fitz. Bar 60.

If the Condition be, to appear in such a Court such a Day, and before the Day a Superfedeas comes to the Sheriff; yet if the Obligor does not appear, the Obligation is forfeited. Dyer 25.

- To ride to Dover. If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall ride with J. S. to Dover such a Day, and J. S. does not go thither that Day; the Condition is broken, and he must procure J. S. to go thither and ride with him at his Peril. Perk. §.
- Not to alien. If I make a Lease for Years, and the Lessee enters into an Obligation with Condition that he shall not alien the Land demised without my Licence, and I die, and then he aliens it; this is a Breach of the Condition. Per Justice Nicholas, M. 13 Jac.
- To serve. If the Condition be, that J. S. shall serve me in all my honest and lawful Commands; or that J. S. shall be a good and honest Servant to me one Year; in the first Case if I command him nothing, the Condition is not broken altho' he never tenders his Service; but in the last Case he is to tender his Service to me, or otherwise the Condition will be broken. But if I refuse his Service when it is tendred, or he dies within the Time, the Obligation is discharged; and yet if he departs away within the Time, the Condition is broken. Perk. §. 772. 6 Ed. 4. 2.
- To marry a Woman. If the Condition be, that A. shall marry B. by a Day, and before the Day the Obligor himself marries her; the Condition is broken. But if the Obligee marries her before the Day, the Obligation is discharged. 4 H. 7. 4. Perk. §. 799.
- To perform Covenants. If the Condition be, to perform the Covenants and Payments of a Deed, and the Deed contains a Feoffment, and this is one Condition, that if the Feoffor pays such a Sum of Money, he shall re-enter, and he does not pay it; this Non-payment is no Breach of the Condition. But if A. lets Land by Indenture to B. for Years rendring Rent, and B. binds himself in an Obligation with Condition to perform all the Covenants contained in the Indenture, and the Rent is unpaid; this is a Breach of the Condition, and Cause of Forfeiture of the Obligation. Adjudged 5 Jac. B. R. Int. Griffin and Scot.
- To keep Prisoners. If the Condition be, for the safe keeping of Prisoners, and one escapes that is in Execution and in Prison under Colour of an Execution, or the like, but in Truth and in Judgment of Law is no Prisoner; this Escape is no Breach of the Condition. Cur' Trin. 37 Eliz.

(L) In what Cases an Obligation, altho' good in its original Creation, is void or discharged by Matter ex post facto, or not.

IF the Condition of an Obligation consists of two Parts in the Disjunctive, or be to do one of two Things before or at a Day certain, and both the Things are possible at the Time of the making of the Obligation, and before the Time of Performance one of the Things is become impossible to be done, by the Act of God, or by the Act of the Obligee himself; in this Case the Obligation is discharged for ever. Co. Lit. 207.

And therefore if the Condition be, That the Obligor shall sell his Wife's Land; if then he shall either in his Life-time purchase to his Wife, and her Heirs and Assigns, Land of as good Right and Value as the Money by him received or had by or upon the said Sale shall amount unto, or else do and shall leave unto her the said J. as Executrix, by Legacy or otherwise, as much Money as shall be by him received from such Sale, that then, &c. and the Obligor sells his Wife's Land, and then his Wife dies before him, so that he cannot leave her the Money; in this Case the Obligation is discharged, and the Husband is not bound to purchase Land to her and her Heirs. 5 Co. 22. 15 H. 7. 2.

So if the Condition be, that if J. S. does not prove the Suggestion of a Bill depending in the Court of Requests before the Utas of Hilary, that then he shall pay 20*l.* &c. and J. S. dies before the Utas; hereby the Obligation is discharged for ever, and he is not bound to pay the 20*l.* So if the Condition be, that if the Obligor appears in the King's Bench in Easter Term, or pays 20*l.* to the Obligee at Michaelmas, and the Obligor dies before Easter Term; hereby the Obligation is discharged; but if he does not appear in Easter Term, and outlives the Term, and dies after; then the 20*l.* must be paid at Michaelmas, or the Obligation is forfeited. So if the Condition be, that the Obligor shall marry A. before Easter, or pay 20*l.* to the Obligee at Michaelmas, and A. dies or becomes mad before Easter, or the Obligee marries A. himself, and the Marriage continues between them until Easter be past; in all these Cases the Obligation is discharged for ever. But when the Thing is become impossible by the Act or Laches of the Obligor, the Law is otherwise. And therefore if the Condition be, that A. shall marry with B. before Easter, or that the Obligor shall pay unto the Obligee 20*l.* at Michaelmas, and the Obligor himself marries with B. and the Marriage continues until after Easter; hereby the Obligation is not discharged. So if the Condition be to deliver an Obligation before Easter, or give a Release at Michaelmas, and the Obligor loses the Obligation, or the Obligation is burnt; hereby the Obligation is not discharged; for if he does not make the Release at Michaelmas he forfeits the Obligation. Dyer 262. 15 H. 7. 4. 4 H. 7. 4. 9 Jac. Bathurst's Case.

If the Condition of an Obligation consists of one Part only, or be to do one Thing at a Time certain, and that Thing at the Time of the Obligation made is possible to be done, but afterwards and before the Time when it is to be performed it becomes impossible by the Act of God, or the Act of the Obligee; in this Case also the Obligation is gone and discharged for ever. And therefore if the Condition be, to appear in Person such a Day in such a Court, and before the Day the Obligor dies, or at the Day the Water rises so high that he cannot travel to the Place without Danger of Life; in these Cases the Obligation is discharged. So if the Condition be, that A. shall marry B. before Easter, and before the Time A. or B. dies, or becomes mad, or the Obligee marries B. and the Marriage continues until after the Day; in all these Cases the Obligation is discharged. But if the Thing becomes impossible by the Act of the Obligor, contra. And therefore if the Condition be, that the Obligor shall appear such a Day, and before and at the Day he is imprisoned thro' some Default of his own, so that he cannot appear; this will not excuse him, no more than in Case where he is so sick that he cannot appear without Peril of his Life, (so held in Scaccario, 3 Car.) So if the Condition be, that B. shall marry C. before Easter, and the Obligor himself marries her, and the Marriage continues until after the Time; in this Case the Obligation is forfeited. So if the Condition gives the Obligor all his Life-time to do the Thing, the Obligation is not discharged by his Death, (Hil. 37 Eliz. C. B.) but in this Case he must do it during his Life-time at his Peril. Vide 8 Ed. 4. 21. 5 Co. 22. Perk. §. 769, 767. 4 H. 7. 4. 22 Ed. 4. 27.

If the Condition be, that the Obligor shall deliver to the Obligee an Obligation, or such a Release as the Counsel of the Obligee shall devise before Michaelmas, and the Counsel of the Obligee devises no Release before Michaelmas; hereby the Obligation is gone for ever.

Adjudged 37 Eliz. C. B. Greening v. Ewre.

If the Obligation depends upon or be necessary to some other Deed, and that Deed becomes void; in this Case the Obligation is become void also; as if the Condition of the Obligation be to perform the Covenants of an Indenture, and afterwards the Covenants be discharged, or become void; by this Means the Obligation is discharged and gone for ever. And if one makes a Lease for Years rendring Rent, and the Lessee enters into an Obligation with Condition to pay the Rent to the Lessor, and after it falls out so that the Lessee is evicted out of the Land by an elder Title, whereby the Rent in Law is gone; in this Case and by this Means the Obligation is discharged and gone also: But if the Eviction be but of a Part of the Land, contra. Bro. Obl. 6, 88, 29. 4 H. 7. 6.

If an Obligation be made to me, and delivered to J. S. to my Use, and when it is tendred to me I do refuse it and disagree to it; hereby it is become void, and cannot afterwards be made good again. So if an Obligation be made to my Wife, and I disagree to it; hereby it is become void. 5 Co. 119.

By a Release made from the Obligee to the Obligor, or to one of the Obligors, if there be more than one, the Obligation may be discharged; and therefore if an Obligation be made to me with Condition to pay Money, and I by my Deed release it, or acknowledge myself satisfied the Debt, altho' I receive none of it, or that I receive but Part of it in full Satisfaction of the Debt; by this the Obligation is discharged for ever. Fitz. Bar 37.

If the Obligee makes the Obligor, or one of the Obligors, or all the Obligors, his Executor or his Executors; hereby the Obligation is discharged for ever. But the granting of Letters of Administration to one or more of the Obligors, is no Discharge of the Obligation. And if the Obligor makes the Obligee his Executor; this is no Discharge of the Obligation. Bro. Obl. 61. 8 Co. 136. 8 Ed. 4. 3. 21 Ed. 4. 2. 1 H. 7. 4.

If the Obligee be a Woman, and takes the Obligor to Husband; hereby the Obligation is discharged. Bro. Obl. 61.

If the Condition be, to infeoff K. S. (a Woman) before such a Time, and before the Day the Obligor marries the Woman; this does not discharge the Obligation. Fitz. Bar 133.

If the Condition be, to serve me seven Years, and within the Time I license him to depart; it seems that hereby the Obligation is discharged. And yet if the Condition be to stand to an Award, and it is awarded that one of the Parties shall pay five Pounds a Year for seven Years towards the Education of J. S. and J. S. dies within the seven Years; the Obligation is not discharged by his Death, but the Money must be paid during the Time notwithstanding. Dyer 371.

If the Condition be, to do two Things, or stand upon divers Points, and the Obligee, supposing the Breach of one of them, sues the Obligor, and the Issue being joined upon that Point, it is found against the Plaintiff, and he is barred; hereby the whole Obligation is discharged, and so long as that Judgment is in Force, he can never sue the Obligation upon upon any other Point within the Condition. If the Condition be, to satisfy me for Goods I have delivered to J. S. if they be lost, and afterwards they be lost, and I sue J. S. and have him in Execution for them; by this the Obligation is not discharged; but perhaps when I have Satisfaction of J. S. being in Execution for the Goods, the Obligation may be gone. Fitz. Bar 64.

And in all other Cases by which a Deed in general may become void by Matter ex post facto, as by Rasure, or the like, an Obligation may become void.

(M) Where a Bond is extinguished at Law; and where after Extinguishment at Law it is good in Equity.

IF the Condition be, to do an Act at the Request of the Oblige, and he dies without making any Request, the Bond is extinguished at Law; so where the Obligor is made Executor or Administrator to the Oblige. Vide 2 Bac. Abr. 379, 380.

Of Defeasances.

(A) Defeasance what.

A Defeasance (from Defaire, to defeat or undo) in a large Sense sometimes signifies a Condition annexed to an Estate, and sometimes the Condition of an Obligation made with and annexed to the Obligation at the Time of making thereof; but it is more peculiarly and properly applied to such conditional Instruments as are made in Defeasance and Avoidance of Statutes and Recognisances at the Time of entering into the same Statutes or Recognisances, and to such conditional Instruments as are made in Defeasance of Statutes, Obligations, and the like, after the Time of the same Statutes entered into and Obligations, &c. made; and it is therefore thus defined:

A Defeasance is a Condition relating to a Deed, as to an Obligation, Recognisance, Statute, or the like, which being performed by the Obligor or Recognisor, the Act is disabled and made void as if it had never been done. Co. Lit. 236. b. 237. a.

(B) The Difference between a Condition and a Defeasance.

THE Difference between a common Condition and a Defeasance is, that the Condition is annexed to or inserted in the Deed; and a Defeasance is generally a Deed by itself, concluded and agreed upon between the Parties, and having Relation to another Deed: And therefore if a Man acknowledges a Statute, and enters into a Defeasance, that if his Lands in the County of D. should be extended, the Statute should be void; the Defeasance will be good and not repugnant, because it is in another Deed: But the Condition of a Bond not to sue the Obligation, is void for Repugnancy, being in the same Deed. Moor 1035.

See before Concerning Conditions, p. 260, 261, &c.

(C) In what Cases a Defeasance may be made, and what Things may be defeated and avoided thereby, and what not.

THERE is no Inheritance executory, as Rents, Annuities, Conditions, Warranties, Covenants, and such like, but may by a Defeasance made with the mutual Consent of all those which were Parties to the Creation thereof, at the same, or any Time after, be annulled, discharged and defeated: And so is the Law of Statutes, Recognisances, Obligations, and the like; yet so as in all these Cases regularly the Defeasance must be made eodem modo, as the Thing to be defeated was and is created, viz. if the one be by Deed, the other must be so also; for it is a Rule, that in all Cases when any executory Thing is created by a Deed, that the same Thing by the Consent of all Persons which were Parties to the Creation of it, may be by their Deed defeated and annulled; and therefore that Warranties, Recognisances, Recognisances, Rents, Charges, Annuities, Covenants, Leases for Years, Uses at Common Law, and such like, may by a Defeasance made with the mutual Consent of all those that were Parties to the Creation of it, by Deed be discharged and avoided. Nihil est tam conveniens naturali æquitati quam unumquodque dissolvi eo ligamine quo ligatur. And therefore by a Defeasance, not only the Covenant which doth create a Power of Revocation, but the Power itself created, may be utterly defeated and avoided; but Estates of Inheritance, and other Estates in Tail or for Life executed by Livery, &c. cannot be avoided by Defeasance made after the Time of their Creation and first making. And yet by another Deed of Defeasance made at the same Time, a Feoffment, Release, Lease for Life, or other executed Thing, may be avoided as well as if it were by Condition within the same Deed; as if a Disseisee releases to the Disseisor; this Release cannot be defeated by an Indenture of Defeasance made afterwards, but it may be defeated by an Indenture of Defeasance made at the same Time. Quæ incontinenti sunt inesse videntur. Co. Lit. 236, 237. Co. 111, 113. Plow. 157, 193. 21 H. 7. 23. Bro. Defeasance in toto.

(D) Things requisite in a good Defeasance.

As to the Manner of it.

TO make a good Defeasance these Things are requisite:

First, That the Defeasance be made eodem modo, as the Thing to be defeated is created: For if the Obligee by Word only discharges the Obligor, or grants not to sue him; this will not defeat the Obligation; it must be by Deed therefore as the former was. Co. 113.

But whether the Deed of Defeasance be indented or Poll is not material. Bro. Defeasance 12. Fitz. Bar 95.

Secondly, That if it recites the Statute or the Obligation (as for the most part it does) that it be done truly; for if a Defeasance be made of a Statute or an Obligation which is recited to be made the 10th Day of May, whereas in Truth it bears Date the first Day of May; this Defeasance is void. Plow. 393.

Thirdly, That it be made between the same Persons that were Parties to the first Deed, &c. and therefore if A. be bound in an Obligation to B. in 20 l. and B. makes a Defeasance to C. that if C. pays him 20 l. the Obligation made by A. shall be void; this is no good Defeasance, because it is not made between the same Parties. 14 H. 8. 10. Bro. Esch. al Fait 10.

And yet if a Statute be made to the Husband and Wife, and the Husband alone joins in making a Defeasance; this is a good Defeasance. Bro. Defeasance 3.

Fourthly, That it be made after the making of the Recognisance, Obligation, &c. and not before; for if A. grants to B. that if B. will be bound to him in 20 l. by Obligation, that the Obligation shall be void; and after B. binds himself to A. in an Obligation of 20 l. this Defeasance is not good, because it is before the Obligation. Bro. Defeasance 5.

And yet if the Date of the Defeasance be before the Date of the Recognisance, &c. and it be delivered after, it is good enough. Dyer 315.

As to the Matter of it.

Fifthly, That it be made of a Thing defeasible; for if a Disseisee releases his Right to the Terretenant, and after there is a Defeasance made between them, that if the Releasor shall pay 20 l. to the Releasee, the Release shall be void; this is a void Defeasance. Plow. 137. Bro. Defeasance 11.

And yet a Release may be avoided by a Condition or Defeasance made at the Time of making of a Release, as well as of a Feoffment. Bro. Defeasance 6, 9. Co. Lit. 236.

If the Defeasance of a Recognisance, Obligation, &c. be, that if the Cognisor or Obligor, &c. pays a Sum of Money, or does not disturb the Execution of the Will of J. S. or does make a Lease for Years to J. S. or the like; these are good Defeasances. As if the Grantee of a Rent-charge grants to his Grantor, that if he shall pay him 20 l. such a Day, the Grant of the Rent shall be void. Although the Condition of an Obligation that is repugnant to the Obligation itself is void, and the Obligation single, yet it is otherwise in Case of a Defeasance made after the Obligation; for this is good notwithstanding it be repugnant. And therefore if the Obligee, after the Obligation made, grants by Deed to the Obligor, that the Obligation shall be void, or that he will not sue the Obligation at all, or that he will not sue the Obligation until such a Time, or that the Obligation shall be discharged; these Defeasances are good to avoid the Obligation. 2 West. Symb. §. 2. Bro. Defeasance in toto. 20 H. 7. 24. 21 H. 7. 32. Fitz. Bar 71.

If the Feoffee with Warranty grants that neither he nor his Heirs shall take Benefit of the Warranty of the Feoffor or his Heirs; this is a good Defeasance of the Warranty; and if he grants not to vouch, this will discharge the Voucher; and if he grants not to bring a Warrantia Chartæ, this will bar him of that Remedy. In like Manner it is if the Grantee of a Rent-charge grants to the Grantor, that he will not take any Benefit by the Grant;

Grant; this is a total Discharge; and if he grants that he will not bring an Annuity; this is a Discharge of the Person; and if he grants that he will not distrain the Land for the Rent; this is a Discharge of the Land. Bro. Defeasance 4. 7 H. 6. 43. 21 H. 7. 23. Perk. §. 69.

If one makes a Lease for Life by Deed, and after by another Deed grants to his Lessee that he shall not be impeached for Waste; this is a good Discharge: And, if the Lessee afterwards grants by Deed to the Lessor, that if he shall bring an Action of Waste against the Lessee, that he will not make Use nor take Advantage of the Deed of Discharge; this is a good Discharge of the Discharge. So that hereby it seems a Defeasance may be of a Defeasance, and one Defeasance after another, and regularly the last shall stand. And therefore if a Lease for Years be made on Condition to pay 20 l. at Easter, and the Lease to be void; and before Easter the Lessor and Lessee agree, that if the Lessor pays it at Easter following, the Lease shall be void; and before that Time they make the like Agreement for another Year; these are good Defeasances, and the last shall stand. *Bro. If the Defeasance after Execution made upon a Statute be thus, That if the Conusor pays so much Money, the Statute shall be void; the Statute and Execution thereupon is void; however it is best to add these Words in the Defeasance, And the Execution thereupon. Bro. Defeasance 7.

S E C T. XXIII.

Of Wills and Testaments.(A) Wills, Testaments and Devises, what.

A Testament is the full and compleat Declaration of a Man's Mind, or last Will of what he would have do be done after his Death.

It is in Latin Testamentum, i. e. Testatio mentis, the Witness of a Man's Mind; and to devise by Testament is to speak by a Man's Will what his Mind is to have done after his Death; and this is sometimes called a Will, or last Will, for these Words are Synonyma, and are promiscuously used in our Law; howsoever by the Civil Law it is only said to be a Testament when there is an Executor made and named in it, and when there is none, but a Codicil only; for a Codicil is the same that a Testament is, excepting that it is without an Executor; and a Man can make but one Testament that shall take Effect, but he may make as many Codicils as he will.

And by the Common Law where Lands or Tenements are devised in Writing, although there be no Executors named, yet there it is properly called a last Will; and where it doth concern Chattels only, a Testament.

He who makes the Testament is called the Testator; and when a Man dies without a Will, he is said to die Intestate. Terms of the Law. Co. Lit. 111. a. Swinb. 24.

A Testamentary Schedule without Witnesses or an Executor declared a Will. 2 Ld. Raym. 1282.

(B) Kinds of Wills and Testaments.

THERE are are two Sorts of Wills or Testaments: First, In Writing, which is where the Mind of the Testator in his Life-time, by himself, or some other by his Appointment, is put in Writing. Or Secondly, By Word, or without Writing, which is where a Man is sick, and for fear that Death, or want of Memory or Speech, should surprize him that he should be prevented if he stayed the Writing of his Testament, desires his Neighbours and Friends to bear Witness of his last Will, and then declares the same presently by Word before them; and this is called a Nuncupative or Nuncupatory Will or Testament: And this being after his Death proved by Witnesses, and put in Writing by the Ordinary, is of as great Force for any other Thing but Land, as when at the first in the Life of the Testator it is put in Writing. See of Nuncupative Wills, post.

A Codicil is also in Writing or by Word, as a Will or Testament is. The Civilians have other Divisions of Wills and Testaments, as solemn and unsolemn, privileged and imprivileged, whereof the Common Law makes no mention. Perk. §. 476. Co. Lit. 111.

(C) The

(C) The Parts of a Will or Testament.

EVERY compleat Testament consists of two Parts: 1. The making of Devises, or giving of Legacies. 2. The Making and Ordination of an Executor; for a Will or Testament can be no more without, than a Codicil can be with an Executor.

(D) A Devise or Legacy what, and a Devisor and Devisee or Legatee, who.

A Devise or Legacy is where a Man by his Will gives any Thing to another; the first of these Terms is properly applied to a Gift of Lands, and the last to a Gift of Goods or Chattels; and therefore,

A Devise is strictly where a Man by his Will gives his Lands to another after his Decease. And a Legacy is where a Man by his Testament gives any Chattel to another to have after the Death of the Testator; but the Word is promiscuously applied to the one and to the other.

And he who gives by such a Will is called the Devisor, and he to whom the Thing is given, the Devisee or Legatee.

(E) Kinds of Devises or Bequests.

A Devise is sometimes simple and without Condition, as where I give my Land to another and his Heirs, or I give 20*l.* to another, without more Words.

And sometimes it is with a Condition, which is when there is a Quality added to the Devise or Legacy whereby the Effect of it is suspended or hindred, and it is thereby made to depend on some future Event.

And this Condition may be made almost by any Words; as if I give to one my Land if he pays 20*l.* to my Daughter; or so as he pays 20*l.* to my Daughter; or paying 20*l.* to my Daughter; or I give one 20*l.* if he marries my Daughter, or when he shall marry my Daughter; or I give my Wife 20*l.* a Year whilst she shall live unmarried; or I give to him, or to whomsoever shall marry my Daughter, 20*l.* or the like; in all these Cases the Devise is conditional. The first Kind of Devise is called by the Civilians a simple Affignation, and the latter a conditional Affignation. Dyer 317, 74. Co. Lit. 217. Swinb. 132, 134, 136.

(F) Executor and Administrator, who.

AN Executor, in a large Sense, is taken for any one that is appointed to have the Disposition and Ordering of the Goods and Chattels of a Man that is dead.

And an Administrator is he that has the Goods and Chattels of a Man dying Intestate, committed to his Charge by the Ordinary for want of an Executor.

And his Power, Benefit and Charge, is in all Things equal to the Power, Benefit and Charge of an Executor. Vide Terms de la Ley. 8 Co. 135. 9 Co. 40. Co. Lit. 209. Plow. 288. But now as to his Benefit, see the Statute of Distribution of the Intestate's Estate.

(G) Kinds of Executors and Administrators.

THERE are three Kinds of Executors: The first is à Lege Constitutus, who is therefore called Legitimus, and such a one is the Ordinary of the Diocese, who has ordinary Jurisdiction in Matters Ecclesiastical. The second is à Testatore Constitutus, who is therefore called Testamentarius; and he is strictly and properly called an Executor, and is defined to be one appointed by a Man's last Will and Testament to have the Disposing and Administration of all or Part of a Man's Goods or Chattels, and to perform a Man's last Will and Testament according to the Contents thereof. The third is ab Episcopo Constitutus, who is therefore said to be Dativus. Vide ut supra. And such a one is an Administrator.

And an Executor or Administrator is sometimes universal or total, i. e. one that has the Power and Disposition of the whole personal Estate committed to him.

And sometimes he is particular or partial, i. e. one that has the Power and Disposition of some Part of the Estate, or of all the Estate, for a Time only committed to him.

And

And sometimes he is absolute, i. e. such a one that has an absolute Power of the Estate as Executor or Administrator : And sometimes he is conditional, i. e. one that has a limited and conditional Power of the Estate only. Dyer 4. Bro. Executor 155. 6 Co. 19.

And in both Cases he shall be charged and chargeable for so much as is committed to him as the Testator or Intestate himself ; for this Cause the Executor is said to represent the Person of the Testator ; for as to the Estate committed to his Trust, he may charge others, and be charged himself, sue and be sued, as the Testator himself might. And the Estate he has by his Executorship is said to be in him to the Use of the Testator, and in his Right ; and what he does in the Disposition of his Estate is said to be in the Right and to the Use of the Testator also ; and the Administrator has the same Power and Property over and in the Goods and Chattels, the same Remedy by Suit, and so far shall be charged as the Executor, for they differ not in Nature but in Name only. And yet the Administrator is but the Ordinary's Deputy, and he may revoke the Administration, or call the Administrator to an Account. Co. Lit. 209. Stat. 31 Ed. 3. c. 11. 8 Co. 135. 9 Co. 40.

(II) The Nature and Effect of a Will or Testament, and of a Codicil.

A Will or Testament is of that Nature, that it differs much from other Acts and Deeds that Men do and execute in their Life-time ; for although it be made, sealed and published in never so solemn a Manner, yet it has no Life nor Virtue in it until the Testator's Death ; for it is a Maxim in Law, Omne Testamentum morte consummatum est, & voluntas ambulatoria usque ad extremum vitæ exitum ; it is therefore resembled until Death to the interlocutory Sentence, and after Death to the definitive Sentence of a Judge. And hence it is said, Sed Legum servanda fides, suprema voluntas Quod mandat fierique jubet parere necesse est. Swimb. 12. Dyer 143. Co. Lit. 112. Lit. §. 168. 4 Co. 61.

And for this Reason a Man may alter or make void his Will at his Pleasure ; and he may make as many new Wills and Testaments as he will, and there is no way to bar a Man of this Liberty.

And the latter Testament always revokes and overthrows the former ; but otherwise it is of a Codicil, (Lit. §. 168. Perk. §. 478.) for a Man may make as many of these as he will, and make no Testament at all, (Swimb. 13, 14.) or if he makes a Testament, he may afterwards make as many Codicils as he will, and one of them will not overthrow the other ; for in the first Case they must be all annexed to the Letters of Administration, and the Administrator must perform them ; and in the latter Case they must be all annexed to the Testament, and the Executor must take Care to perform them. Bro. Testament 20.

A Testament therefore is said to have three Degrees : 1st, An Inception, which is the making of it. 2dly, A Progression, which is the Publication of it. 3dly, A Consummation, which is the Death of the Testator. Plow. 343, 344.

In Grants therefore the first is of greatest Force, but in Testaments the last is of greatest Force. Co. Lit. 112.

But when a Testament is perfect by the Death of the Party, it as effectually gives and transfers Estates, and alters the Property of Lands and Goods, as Acts executed by Deeds in the Life-time of the Parties ; for hereby Descents of Lands are prevented ; and a Man may make Estates in Fee-simple, or Fee-tail, for Life or Years, of Lands, Tenements, Rents, Reversions or Services, as effectually as by Deed, and these Estates also will be good without any Livery of Seisin or Attornment. And hereby also Rents, and Power to distrain for them, may be referred, Conditions created and annexed to Estates, or Things devised. Lit. §. 167, 168.

And therefore they that take by Devises of Land are said to take in the Nature of Purchasers. Perk. §. 505.

And if therefore a Tenant in Tail makes a Feoffment to the Use of himself in Fee, and after devises the same Land to his Wife in Fee, and dies, the Son is not remitted though the Father dies seised, for the Devise prevents the Descent. Dyer 221.

(I) Things requisite in making a good Will.

IN making a good Will these Things are requisite :

First, That the Testator be capable to make a Will relative to his Person.

Secondly, That the Testator at the Time of making his Will, have animum testandi, i. e. a Mind to dispose or make a Will.

Thirdly, That the Mind of the Testator in making a Will be free, and not moved by Fear, Fraud or Flattery.

Fourthly, That the Will be made in the Form prescribed by Law.
See post. for Things requisite in a good Devise.

(K) Who are capable of making Wills.

AS it is observed before, to the making of every good Will or Testament it is requisite that the Testator be a Person able to make a Testament, and not disabled for any special Cause, either in respect of his Person, Mind or Condition, or in respect of the Thing whereof the Testament is to be made. Therefore observe,

Infant.

That an Infant, until he be of the Age of twenty-one Years, can make no Will of his Lands by Statutes of 32 & 34 H. 8. But by special Custom in some Places where Land is devisable by Custom, he may devise it sooner. And of his Goods and Chattels, if he be a Boy, he may make a Will at fourteen Years of Age, and not before; and if a Maid, at twelve Years of Age, and not before; and then they may do it without and against the Consent of their Tutor, Father or Guardian. Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. c. 5. Perk. §. 503, 504. Bro. Custom 50. Swinb. 37, 38.

And yet some say an Infant cannot make a Will of his Goods and Chattels until he be eighteen Years of Age. Co. Lit. 89.

It has been agreed in Equity, that a Female may make a Will at twelve Years of Age of a personal Estate; and a Male at seventeen Years, or fifteen, if he be a Person of Discretion. 2 Vern. 104, 469.

Feme Covert.

That a Feme Covert cannot make a Will of her Lands or Goods except it be in some special Cases; for of her Lands she can make no Will with or without her Husband's Consent (Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. c. 5. 4 Co. 51. Bro. Testament 13.) of the Goods and Chattels she has as Executrix to any other, she may make an Executor without her Husband's Consent; for if she does not so, the Administration of them must be granted to the next of Kin to the deceased Testator, and shall not go to the Husband. 12 H. 7. 14. Perk. §. 502. Fitz. Executor 40.

But of them she can make no Devise with or without her Husband's Leave, for they are not devisable; and if she devises them, the Devise is void. Plow. 526. Fitz. Executor 109.

And of the Things due to the Wife whereof she was not possessed during the Marriage, as Things in Action, and the like, she may make her Will, at least she may make her Husband Executor of her Paraphernalia, viz. her necessary wearing Apparel, being that which is fit for one of her Rank. Some say she may make a Will without her Husband's Leave, others doubt of this; however all agree that she, and not his Executor, shall have this after her Husband's Death, and that the Husband cannot give it away from her. And of the Goods and Chattels her Husband has either by her or otherwise, she may not make a Will without the Licence and Consent of her Husband first had so to do. But with his Leave and Consent she may make a Will of his Goods, and make him her Executor if she will. And it is said also, that if she does make a Will of his Goods, (in Truth without his Leave and Consent) and he after her Death suffers the Will to be proved, and delivers the Goods accordingly; in this Case the Testament is good; and yet if the Husband gives the Wife Leave to make a Will of his Goods, and she does so, he may revoke the same at any Time in her Life-time, or after her Death, before the Will be proved. But a Woman after Contract with any Man may before the Marriage make a Will as well as any other, and is not at all disabled hereby. 12 H. 7. 24. 18 Ed. 4. 11. Perk. §. 501. Fitz. Executor 5, 28, 109. Bro. Testament 11.

A Wife whose Husband is banished for Life may make a Will as a Feme Sole. 2 Vern. 104, 469.

Lunatick.

A mad or lunatick Person during the Time of his Infanity of Mind cannot make a Will of Lands or Goods; but such a one as hath his lucida intervalla, clear or calm Intermissions, may during the Time of such Quietness and Freedom of Mind make his Will, and it will be good.

Idiot.

So also an Idiot, i. e. such a one as cannot number twenty, or tell of what Age he is, or the like, cannot make a Will, or dispose of his Lands or Goods; and although he makes a wife, reasonable and sensible Will, yet it is void. But such a one as is of a mean Understanding only, that has grossum caput, and is of the middle Sort between a wise Man and a Fool, is not prohibited to make a Will. Perk. §. 503, 504, 24. Swinb. 37, 40.

Old Man.

So also an old Man that by Reason of his great Age is childish again, or so forgetful that he forgets his own Name, cannot make a Will, for a Will made by such a one is void.

So also it seems a drunken Man, that is so excessively drunk that he is deprived of the Use of Reason and Understanding, during that Time may not make a Will; for it is requisite that when the Testator makes his Will, that he be of sound and perfect Memory, i. e. that he have a reasonable Memory and Understanding to dispose of his Estate with Reason. Drunken Man.

Swinb. 42. 6 Co. 23.

A Man that is both deaf and dumb, and that is so by Nature, cannot make a Will. But a Man that is so by Accident may by Writing or Signs make a Will. And so may a Man that is deaf or dumb by Nature or Accident. Deaf and Dumb.

And so also may a Man that is blind. Swinb. 53.

An Alien born cannot make a Testament of Lands or Goods. Blind. Alien.

A Traitor attainted from the Time of the Treason committed can make no Will of his Lands or Goods, for they are all forfeited to the King; but after the Time he has a Pardon from the King for his Offence, he may make a Will of his Lands and Goods as another Man. Stat. 5 & 6 Ed. 6. c. 11. Swinb. 54. Traitor.

A Man that is attainted or convicted of Felony cannot make a Testament of his Lands or Goods, for they are forfeited; but if a Man be only indicted, and dies before the Attainder, his Will is good for his Lands and Goods both. And if he be indicted, and will not answer upon his Arraignment, but stands mute, &c. in this Case his Lands are not forfeited, and therefore he may make a Will of them. Plow. 258, 259. Felon.

And if a Man kill himself, his Will as to his Goods and Chattels is void, but as to his Lands is good. Plow. 261. Felo de se.

A Man that is outlawed in a personal Action cannot make a Will of his Goods and Chattels so long as the Outlawry continues in Force, but of his Lands he may make a Will. Fitz. Descent 16. Outlawed Person.

The Head or any of the Members of a Corporation may not make a Will of the Lands or Goods they have in common, for they shall go in Succession. Fitz. Testament 1.

But note, that however the Wills of Traitors, Aliens, Felons and outlawed Persons are void, as to the King or Lord that has Right to the Lands or Goods by Forfeiture or otherwise, yet the Will is good against the Testator himself and all others but such Persons only.

And note also; by the Civil Law the Wills of divers others, as excommunicate Persons, Hereticks, Usurers, incestuous Persons, Sodomites, Libellers, and the like, are void. But by our Law the Wills of such Persons, at least as to their Lands, are good by the Statutes that enable Men to devise their Lands.

But all other Persons whatsoever, Male or Female, Old or Young, Lay or Spiritual, Rich or Poor, at any Time before their Death, whilst they are able to speak so distinctly or write so plainly that another may understand them, and understand that they understand themselves, may make Wills of their Lands, Goods and Chattels, and that altho' they have sworn to the contrary; and none are restrained of this Liberty but such as are before named. Swinb. 155, &c. Vide Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. Perk. §. 496. All other Persons.

(L) Of the Testator's Resolution to make a Will.

TO the making of a good Will it is necessary, that he who makes it have at the Time of the making of it Animum Testandi, i. e. a Mind to dispose, a firm Resolution, and advised Determination to make a Will, otherwise it will be void; for it is the Mind, not the Words of the Testator, that gives Life to the Will; for if a Man rashly, unadvisedly, incidently, jestingly or boastingly, and not seriously, writes or says that such a one shall be his Executor, or have all his Goods, or that he will give to such a one such a Thing; this is no Will, nor to be regarded. And the Mind of the Testator herein is to be discovered by Circumstances; for if at the Time he be sick, or sets himself seriously to make his Will, or requires Witnesses to bear Witness of it, it shall be deemed in Earnest; but if it be by way of Discourse only, or of somewhat he will do hereafter, or the like, it shall be taken for nothing. Swinb. 9, 131, 324, 325.

(M) Of the Occasion or Motive to make a Will.

IN a good Will it is necessary that the Mind of the Testator in making of it be free, and not moved by Fear, Fraud or Flattery; for when a Testator is moved to make his Testament by Fear, or circumvented by Fraud, or overcome by some immoderate Flattery, the same is void, or at least voidable by Exception. And therefore, if a Man by Occasion of some present Fear or Violence, or Threatning of future Evils, does at the same Time, or afterwards by the same Motive, make a Will; it is void not only as to him him that puts him so in Fear, but as to all others, altho' the Testator confirms it with an Oath. But if the Cause of Fear be some vain Matter, or being weighty is removed, and the Testator afterwards, when the Fear is past, confirms the Testament; in this Case perhaps the Will may be good. And if a Man by Occasion of some Fraud or Deceit be moved to make a Will, if the Deceit be such as may move a prudent Man or Woman; and if it be Evil also, the Will is void, or voidable at the least; but if the Deceit be light and small, or if it be to a good End; as where a Man is about to give all his Estate to some lewd Person, from his Wife and Children, and they perswade the Testator that the lewd Fellow is dead, or the like, and thereby procure him to give his Estate to them; this is a good Will. And one may by honest Intercessions and modest Perswasions procure another to make himself or a Stranger Executor to him, or the like; and this will not hurt the Will. Also a Man may use fair and flattering Speeches to move the Testator to make his Will, and to give his Estate unto himself, or some Friend of his; except it be in Case where the Flatterer first beats or threatens him, or puts him in Fear; or to his Flattery joins Fraud and Deceit; or the Testator is a Person of weak Judgment, or under the Danger of Government of the Flatterer; as when the Physician shall perswade his Patient under his Hand to make his Will, and give his Estate to himself; or [the Wife attending on her Husband in his Sicknes shall neglect him, or continually provokes him to give her all; or where the Perswader is importunate, and will have no Denial; or when there is another Testament made before; for in all these Cases the Will will be in Danger to be avoided. And if I be much privy to another Man's Mind, and he tells me often in his Health how he intends to settle his Estate, and he being sick, I of my own Head draw a Will according to his Mind before declared to me, and bring it to him, and ask him, whether this shall be his Will, or no; and he considers of it, and then delivers it back to me, and says yes; this is a good Will: But if otherwise some Friends of a sick Man of their own Heads shall make a Will, and bring it to a Man in Extremity of Sicknes, and read it to him, and ask him, whether this shall be his Will, and he says yes, yes; or if a Man be in great Extremity, and his Friends press him much, and so wrest Words from him, especially if it be in Advantage of them, or some Friends of theirs: in these Cases the Wills are very suspicious. Swinb. 283, 284, 285, 286.

But as touching these two last Things, Quere, how they shall avail in the Wills of Land, which are not regulated so much by the Civil Law.

(N) Things requisite in a good Devise.

IN a good Devise these Things are requisite:

First, That the Devisor be a Person capable to Devise, both with Respect to his Person, and the Thing devised.

Secondly, That the Devisee be capable to receive the Thing devised, either at the Time of making the Devise, or at least when it is to take Effect.

Thirdly, That the Devisor, at the Time of making the Devise, have Animus Testandi, i. e. a Mind to make a Devise.

Fourthly, That the Will of the Devisor be free, and not drawn or coacted by Fraud, Flattery, Fear, or the like.

Fifthly, That the Devise be made in due Manner and Form.

Sixthly, That the Thing devised be a Thing deviseable.

Seventhly, That it be devised upon lawful Terms and Conditions.

Eighthly, That there be Words sufficient to make his Mind known.

Ninthly, That it be proved after the Death of the Devisor.

Tenthly, And if it be a Devise of Land, that the Devisor be solely seised, and not jointly with another; and that he be seised in Fee-simple, and that the Devise be in Writing.

See before what is a good Will.

(O) Who may make a Devise, or not.

WHOEVER may make a Will or Testament may make a Devise; Et sic e converso. And therefore

Infants. Infants may not devise their Lands till they are twenty-one Years old, nor their Goods and Chattels till they be fourteen Years old, or as some say, till they be eighteen Years of Age.

FemeCoverts. Feme Coverts cannot devise their Lands to their Husbands or others, either by or without their Husbands Consent, altho' there be a Custom to enable them thereto. Co. Lit. 112. 4 Co. 61. Bro. Devise 32.

And

And Spiritual Persons, as Archbishops, Bishops, Deans, Arcdeacons, Prebends, Parsons, Spiritual Per-
Vicars, or any Member in a Corporation, may not devise the Lands or Goods they have in fons.
the Right of their Churches and Corporations. Perk. §. 496.

(P) What Things may be devised or bequeathed.

LANDS, Tenements and Hereditaments, for the Nature and Quality of them, are devisable as well as other Things; and therefore by the Custom of some Places, Lands in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, are devisable in Fee, for Life or Years.

And a Man that has a Lease for Life or Years of Land, may devise the Land at his Pleasure during his Term.

But by the antient Common Law, in Favour to Heirs, the Lands that a Man had in Fee-simple were not devisable by Testament, except only in some special Places by Custom of the Place, as Gavelkind Lands, in Kent, and Lands within certain Borough Towns, as London, Oxford, &c. and by the Custom of those Places such Lands are devisable. And in some Places the Custom is, that they may devise their purchased Lands only; and in other Places, that they may devise their Lands descended also: And in some Places, that they may devise for Life only: and in other Places, in Fee-simple and Fee-tail also. And in all these Places where such Customs are, they may devise their Lands now as they might have done before the Statute; for the Statute has not destroyed their Custom: And therefore at this Day, they who have Lands in such Places, have their Election either to devise according to the Power given them by the Custom, or by the Statute; and in the first Case the Devise is good against the Heir for the Whole; and in the last Case it is good against him for two Parts in three only. Dyer 371, 155. 6 Co. 16. 8 Co. 83. Co. Lit. 111. Perk. §. 497, 499, 500, 538. Lit. §. 167.

Also by the Common Law, the Uses of Lands were devisable as Goods and Chattels were, at the Pleasure of him that had them. But otherwise and in other Cases Lands and Tenements might not be devised and disposed by Will, until the Statutes 32 H. 8. c. 1. and 34 H. 8. which enabled Owners of Land in Socage Tenure, in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, to devise and dispose thereof, or any Rent, Common, or other Profit appender out of it, to any Person in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, at his Pleasure. Note, That the other Tenures in these Acts mentioned, by Stat. 12 Car. 2. c. 24. are turned into free and common Socage.

So that now by the said Statute of H. 8. a Man who has Lands in Fee-simple may devise them in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years absolutely or conditionally at his Pleasure. And therefore,

If a Man devises his Land to one for Life, the Remainder in Fee or Fee-tail to another; or devises his Land to B. the Remainder to the next Heir Male of B. and the Heirs Male of the Body of such Heir Male, or the like; these are good Devises.

But for the better Understanding these Things, observe, That this Statute does not enable Men to devise Land who are disabled by Law in Respect of their Persons or Minds; as Infants, Females Covert, Men De non sane Memory, &c. nor such as are disabled in Respect either to the Nature of their Land, as Copyholders, (for Copyhold Lands are not devisable unless surrendered to the Use of the Will, which is the common Practice) or of the Estate they have in the Land, as Tenants in Tail, or pur auter vie, or Jointenants; for these can no more devise the Land which they so hold, than they could before the Statute. But such as are seised of Land in Common, or Coparcenary, may devise their Land as well as those who are solely seised. And if two are Jointenants for Life, the Fee-simple to one of them, he who has the Fee-simple may devise it after the Death of his Companion. These Statutes do not enable those who are seised of Lands in Fee, in the Right of their Houses and Churches, to devise the same Lands; and therefore Bishops, Deans, Parsons, Vicars, Masters of Hospitals, or the like, can no more devise the Lands belonging to their Bishopricks, &c. than they could before the Statute; but the Lands which they are seised of in their own Right, they may devise as other Men. Co. Lit. 111. Perk. §. 500, 539, 540, 496, 497, 498, 544. Lit. §. 287. Dyer 210. Old Nat. Br. 89.

Hereditaments which are not of any yearly Value, are some of them devisable, and some not: For if the King grants to one and his Heirs bona & catalla felonum & fugitivorum vel ulagatorum, Fines and Amerciaments within such a Manor or Village; in this Case the Owner can neither devise these Things to another, nor leave them to descend. And yet if one has a Manor with a Leet, Waif, Estray, or the like, as appendant or appurtenant, there by the Devise of the Manor with the Appurtenances these Things may pass as an incident to the Manor; but if a Man has a Hundred with the Goods of Felons, Outlaws, Fines, Amerciaments, Retorna Brevium,

Brevium, and other such casual Hereditaments within the same Hundred, and these have been usually let to Farm for a Rent, they may be devised, or left to descend. 10 Co. 81. 3 Co. 32. Co. Lit. 111.

Right to Land. A Man must have a Right to and Possession of the Land he devises, or else the Devise is not good; and therefore if a Disseisor devises the Land he has got by Disseisin, this Devise as to the Devisee is void. And if a Man be disseised of his Land, so that he has nothing but a Right thereof left, and then he devises this Right, or devises the Land, this Devise is void. Plow. 485.

And if one contracts for Land, and pays his Money for it, but has no Assurance of the Land, and he devises this Land to another; this cannot be a good Devise of the Land, but perhaps the Devisee in a Court of Equity may compel him that received the Money to assure and settle the Land according to the Devise. Nevil's Case.

Another Man's Land. And if one devises another Man's Land, this Devise is void; but if he after the Devise made purchases this Land, the Devise is good. Plow. 344. Fitz. Devise 7.

If a Man bargains and sells Land to me on Condition to re-enter; if he pays me 10*l.* and I covenant that I will take the Profits until Default of Payment, and he makes a Lease for six Years of it to another, and after breaks the Condition; in this Case I may devise this Land, and the Devise will be good. Adjudged Powelly and Blakeman's Case.

Estate pur autre vie. Estates pur autre vie are devisable by Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3.

Rent, Common, Seignior, &c. A Seignior, Rent, or the like Thing, is devisable as Land is, and will pass without the Attornment of the Tenant. The like of a Reversion. And a Man may devise a Rent de novo issuing out of Land, or a Rent issuing out of Land that is in esse before; and therefore if a Man makes a Lease for Life or Years rendering Rent, the Lessor may devise this Rent. So if a Rent be granted to one and his Heirs, the Grantee may devise it. So a Man who is seised of Land in Fee may devise any Rent or Profit out of it at his Pleasure, although the Rent or Profit amounts to the Value of the whole Land; as if one has three Acres of Land worth three Pounds a Year, and he devises 3*l.* Rent out of it; this is a good Devise of the whole Rent. Perk. §. 538. Lit. §. 585, 586. Dyer 253, 140. F. N. B. 121. Co. Lit. 111. 8 Co. 83. 3 Co. 33.

Things incident to Houses or Lands, as Doors, Windows, Wainscot, &c. Trees, Grass. Where a Man is seised of a House in Fee, and may devise the House itself, he may devise the Doors, Windows, Wainscot, or the like Incidents of the House. And where a Man may devise the Land itself, he may devise the Trees or Grass growing upon the Land. Quando licet id quod majus, videtur & licere id quod minus. But where the Land itself is not devisable, such Things incident or annexed to, or growing or being upon it, are not devisable. And therefore the Tenant in Tail for Life or Years of Land may not devise the Houses or Windows, Doors or Wainscot of Houses, or Trees or Grass being or growing thereupon. 4 Co. 63. Perk. §. 512, 518. 11 Co. Rich. Lifer's Case, Kelw. 88.

Use. Where a Man has an Use that is not executed by the Statute of Uses, but remains at the Common Law, he may devise it. And therefore if one be possessed of a Term of Years, and grants it over to another to the Use of the Grantor, he may dispose of this Use by his Will, for it is in the Nature of a Chattel. But if a Man has such an Use in Jointenancy, he cannot devise it. Perk. §. 530. Dyer

Goods and Chattels. All manner of Goods and Chattels real and personal may be devised by Will. And therefore Leases for Years of Lands, for Years of Rent, Common, or the like, Cattle, as Oxen, Sheep, Horses, &c. Gold, Silver, Money, Plate, Household-Stuff, as Beds, &c. Corn, Wool, and Implements of Husbandry, may be devised by Will; and not only those a Man has at the Time of the Devise, but those a Man is to have or may have afterwards. And therefore it is held, that a Man may give his Corn that shall grow in such a Ground the next Year after his Death, or the Wool or Lambs his Flock of Sheep shall yield the Year after his Death; and that these Devises are good: But if in this Case there should be no such Corn growing in that Ground, nor any Lambs or Wool arising out of his Flock that Year, the Legacy is fruitless. And yet if one devises to J. S. twenty Quarters of Corn, or twenty Lambs, to be paid out of his Corn that shall grow, or out of his Flock the next Year, and there be not so much Corn, or not so many Lambs, or not at all growing or arising; yet this is a good Devise, and the Things must be paid. In the like Manner if a Man gives to J. S. a Horse, or a Yoke of Oxen, yet the Devise is good, and must be performed.

Choses in Action. Things in Action, as Debts, and the like, although they are not grantable by Deed in the Life-time of the Party, yet they are devisable by Will. And therefore if the Testator by his Will gives any Debt due to him on an Obligation, or on a Contract, or the like; this is a good Devise. And the Thing devised may be had thus: The Testator, if he pleases, may make the Legatary Executor as to that Debt; or if he does not, the Legatary may sue the Executor in the Spiritual Court, or in some Court of Equity, and thereby compel the Executor either to recover it himself, and so to pay it to the Legatary, or to give the Legatary

Legatary Power to sue for and recover it himself in the Executor's Name. But if it be such a Cause of Action as is altogether uncertain, as where a Man may have an Action against another for taking away his Goods, or to compel him to make an Account, or the like; this is such a Cause of Action as is not devisable. Swinb. Part 3. §. 5. Perk. §. 511, 525.

And yet Possibilities and Incertainties are in divers Cases devisable. And therefore if one has Money to be paid him on a Mortgage, he may devise this Money when it comes; as if I infeoff a Stranger of Land, upon Condition that if he does not pay me 20*l.* such a Day, that I may re-enter; I may devise this 20*l.* if it be paid, and the Devise is good although it be made before the Day of Payment come. Perk. §. 527. Dyer 272. Plow. 520.

And if a Man be possessed of a Term of Years, and devises all the Residue of that Term of Years that shall be to come at the Time of his Death; this Devise is good, and yet such a Grant by Deed is void. Child's Case, 17 Jac. B. R.

But a meer Possibility, and a Thing altogether incertain, is no more devisable by Will than it is grantable by Deed. Perk. §. 520, &c.

Emblements, i. e. the Corn that is sown and growing upon a Man's Ground at the Time of his Death, and which himself should have reaped if he had lived to the Harvest (as in most Cases he shall where he sows it) are devisable. And therefore if a Man has Land in Fee-simple, Fee-tail, for Life or Years, and sows it with Corn, he may devise the Corn at his Death to whom he pleases; and yet if Lessee for Years sows his Land so little while before his Term expires, that it cannot be ripe before the End of the Term, and he dies, he cannot devise this Corn; for if he had lived he could not have reaped it after the End of the Term.

And by Stat. 20 H. 3. c. 2. Widows may bequeath Crops on their Dowers.

Obligations, Counterparts of Leases, and such like Things, are devisable; but in this Case the Devisee cannot sue upon the Obligation in his own Name, nor enter for the Condition broken upon the Lease if there be Cause, but he may cancel, give, sell or deliver up the Obligation or Counterpart to the Obligor or Lessee. And whatsoever shall come to the Executor after the Death of the Testator as the Right of his Executorship, may be devised by the Will of the Testator. Perk. §. 527.

The Goods and Chattels which a Man has jointly with another are not devisable. And therefore if there be two Jointenants of Goods or Chattels, as where such Things are given to two, or two buy such Things together, and one of them devises his Part to a Stranger; this Devise is void: Infomuch that if in this Case the Testator makes the other Jointenant his Executor, the Will as to this is void, and he shall not be charged as Executor for those Goods, but he shall have them altogether by Right of Survivorship. Perk. §. 526. Lit. §. 287. Doct. & Stud. 167.

The Goods and Chattels which a Man has in Right of another are not devisable; and therefore an Executor or Administrator cannot devise the Goods and Chattels he has as Executor or Administrator, for such a Devise is void. However the Executor may appoint an Executor of the Goods of the first Testator, which the Administrator cannot do; and of the Profits, that arise by the Goods and Chattels the Executor or Administrator has during the Time of his Administration, he may dispose of.

The Goods and Chattels belonging to Colleges and Hospitals may not be devised by the Wills of the Masters or Governors thereof, nor the Goods and Chattels belonging to other Corporations by the Mayors, Bailiffs or Heads thereof. Plow. 525. Bro. Administrator 7. Fitz. Administrator 3.

And the Goods and Chattels that Church-wardens have in Right of the Church, are not devisable. Perk. §. 496, 498, 499. Doct. & Stud. lib. 2. c. 39.

All the Chattels real that a Man has in the Right of his Wife by her Means, and all the Obligations made to her dum sola, or during the Time of Coverture, and the Chattels real or personal that his Wife has as Executrix to any other, are not devisable by the Testament of the Husband. Perk. §. 560. Doct. & Stud. c. 7.

A Devise of Lands purchased after making the Will is not good. Ld. Raym. 438.

(Q) Of naming Things devised.

ALL such Things as are devised must be properly named, or otherwise described, where by the Mind of the Testator may be known; for if he errs in the Name or Substance of the Thing devised, or if it be so incertainly devised and described that it cannot be perceived what he intends, the Devise is void. And therefore if one devises a Piece of Ground by the Name of a Messuage, except it be so called, the Devise is void. And yet by the Devise of the Use, Profit or Occupation of Land, the Land itself is well devised; and by the ties.

Devise

Devise of Land itself the Reversion thereof may be devised. But if one intending to devise a Horse, devises an Ox; or meaning to give Gold, gives Apparel; these Legacies are void, unless his Meaning appears by some Circumstance to be otherwise; as if a Man has but one Horse, and he is called Arundel, and he devises his Horse Bucephal; this Legacy is good enough. And if a Man gives all his Money in such a Chest, when in Truth there is no Money in that Chest; or gives to another the 10*l.* which J. S. owes him, when in Truth J. S. does not owe any such Money; this Devise is void. And yet if the Devise be thus, viz. I give to A. B. 10*l.* and I will that the same be paid of the Money I have in such a Chest, or of the Money which such a Man owes me; the Devise is good, although there be no Money in the Chest nor owing: And if one gives 10*l.* remaining in such a Chest, whereas in Truth there is but 5*l.* in the Chest; the Legacy is good for the 5*l.* But Error and Mistake in the Quantity and Quality of the Thing devised, when the same for the Substance of it is certain, does not hurt; and therefore if the Testator, meaning to give the fourth Part of his Goods, gives one half; or meaning to give 50*l.* gives 100*l.* or e converso, meaning to give a greater gives a less Quantity or Sum; the Legacy is good, and the Legatary shall have as much as the Testator did mean. If a Man gives his White Horse, when he has but one Horse and that is Black; this is a good Devise of the Horse. Swinb. Part 7. c. 5. Plow. 525. Perk. §. 500.

Incertainty in naming the Thing.

If the Thing devised be under such general Words that the Mind of the Testator cannot be known by it, the Devise is void; and therefore if the Testator says, I do bequeath something, or I bequeath a Substance, or I bequeath a Body, or I bequeath, or the like; these are void for Incertainty: So if he says, I do give Lands, or I do give Goods; these Devises are void: And yet if the Testator gives a Horse, an Ox, a Gold Chain, or the like, indefinitely; the Devise is good although he has no such Thing. But if one devises thus, I give Lead, Money, Wheat, Oil, or the like, and does not say what Quantity; this Legacy is void for Incertainty, or at least the Executor may deliver what Quantity thereof he will, and that shall satisfy the Legacy. Swinb. Part 7. c. 10.

(R) Who may be a Devisee or Legatee.

Regularly whosoever may be a Grantee may be a Devisee or Legatee; and therefore A Devise made to any Person or Persons Male or Female, Children or Strangers, Laymen or Clerks, Debtors or Creditors, Infants, or Men of full Age, Women Sole or Covert, Colleges, Universities, Corporations, or the like, are good. Perk. §. 505, 510. Swinb. 222.

A Devise to an Infant in the Mother's Womb at the Time of the Death of the Testator, is void. Dyer 303, 304. Per Cur', Mic. 13 Jac. B. R.

Yet if it happens to be born before Testator's Death, the Devise is good. Terms de la Ley, Tit. Devise. For it is a Rule, That the Devisee must be capable of the Thing devised at the Time of the Death of the Devisor; if it be then to take Effect in Possession; or if it be a Remainder, he must be capable of it at the Time when the Remainder shall happen, or otherwise the Devise is void. 9 Jac. B. R.

And a Man may devise his Lands, Goods or Chattels to his own Wife, as well as to any other. Lit. §. 168.

(S) Of naming the Devisee or Legatee.

A Devisee must be certainly named and described; for if a Devise be to a Person altogether incertain, the Devise is altogether void; as if I give my Land to my best Friend, or to my best Friends; or to a Vicar, and do not say what Vicar, and no Averment; these are void Devises. Mic. 19 Jac. B. R. Crumpe v. Bodie.

If one has two Sons of one Name called J. S. and he devises to his Son J. S. without any Distinction; this is void for Uncertainty: But in this Case perhaps an Averment which Son is meant, may help. So if one gives to J. S. 20*l.* and there be two or more of that Name; this Devise is void, unless it can be proved by something which of them he meant. So if one in his Will gives a Legacy to a Man incertain, and no such Man is to be found, and the Meaning of the Testator cannot be known; this Devise is void for Incertainty. And yet a Devise to him who shall marry my Daughter is good; and he who marries her in my Life-time or after my Death shall have it. If a Man devises any Thing ad pias Causas, as to the Church, or to the Poor, not expressing what Church or Poor; perhaps this is a good Devise. So if a Man gives 20*l.* to his Kindred, it is said this is a good Devise, and that a reasonable Exposition shall be made thereof as near the Testator's Intent as may be, viz. that that those in the next Degree shall have it first, and then those in the next Degree to that shall have it afterwards; and if it be a Devise to the Kindred of another Man, that they shall have it equally. Sed quære of this Devise, for it seems altogether uncertain. 6 Co. 68. Swinb. 293, 294, 295, 296.

So if a Man gives to J. S. or J. D. 20*l.* this is held a good Devise although it is somewhat uncertain, and the Disjunctive shall be taken for a Copulative, and so J. S. and J. D. shall both take by this Devise; but if one of them be nearer of Kin than the other, then it is said he shall have it for his Life, and the other afterwards. And if one devises 20*l.* to A. or B. which of them J. S. will appoint; this is good, and he whom J. S. appoints shall have it. Swinb. Part 7. §. 9.

And if one devises to J. S. and his Children; this is good and certain enough, and hereby he and his Children shall take the Thing devised together. Ibid.

(T) Of the Devisee's Capacity to take by the Name whereby he is described.

THE Person to whom a Devise is made must not only be capable, and certainly described and named, but he must also be capable by the Name whereby the Devise is made to him, or otherwise the Devise is void; as,

If a Devise be to the Heirs of J. S. J. S. being living; it is void. And yet if Lands or Goods be devised to the Executors of J. S. and J. S. dies before the Testator, and makes Executors; this is a good Devise to the Executors. And if a Man devises his Land to J. S. for Life, the Remainder to the next of Kin (or next of Blood) of J. S. this is a good Devise of the Remainder. And if a Man devises Goods to the Parishioners of the Parish of S. to the Use of the Church; this is a good Devise, and the Church-wardens may recover it. And if a Man devises Ecclesie Sancti Andreae de Holborn; this is a good Devise to the Parson of that Church. And if a Man devises to the City of London, University of Oxford, or to Queen's College in Oxford; these are good Devises. But if one devises to the Commonalty of a Guild, which is not incorporate, as to two of the middle Men of the Guild of the Fraternity of the Whiteacres of London, or the like; this Devise is void. Fitz. Devise 27. Plow. 523. Perk. §. 509, 510. Bro. Corporation 55.

(U) Of misnaming the Devisee.

IF the Devisee be capable, well named, and capable by that Name, if his Name be truly set down, yet if his Name be not so, but mistaken, the Devise is void. And therefore,

If one intending to give 20*l.* to J. S. devises to J. N. 20*l.* this Devise is void both to J. S. and J. N. except the Person be certainly denoted and described by some other Circumstance; as to J. N. the Son of J. S. my Landlord, or the like. So if one devises to the Abbot of St. Peter, when the Foundation is the Abbot of St. Paul; this Devise is void. And if one devises to a Corporation, and there be none of that Name at the Time of the Devise, nor during the Life of the Testator; this Devise is void; and so if there be a College made after that Name. Dyer 4. Perk. §. 505. Swinb. 289, 290.

But if one devises a Thing to the Wife of J. S. and before the Devisor dies, and she takes another Husband, and is called by another Name; yet this Devise is good. So if one gives a Legacy to J. S. Dean of St. Paul's, and the Chapter there and their Successors, and before the Death of the Devisor J. S. dies, and another is made Dean; this Devise is good notwithstanding this Mistake. Plow. 344.

(W) Of the Words of a Devise.

THE Form of Words in a Devise is not at all regarded; and therefore if one says, I give, institute, desire, appoint or will, that J. S. shall have my Land, or that J. S. shall have 20*l.* or let J. S. have my Land, or 20*l.* all these Devises are good. And if one devises that his Feoffees of his Land shall be seised of the Land to the Use of J. S. and his Heirs, or to the Use of J. S. and the Heirs of his Body; or if such a Man devises that his Feoffees shall make an Estate of the Land to J. S. and his Heirs, or to him and the Heirs of his Body; this is a good Devise of the Land in Fee-simple or Fee-tail. Swinb. Part 4. §. 4. Plow. 23. Dyer 23.

And if a Man makes a Feoffment of his Land to the Use of his last Will; and then devises that his Feoffors shall be seised to the Use of J. S. this is a good Devise of the Land per intentionem. Pas. 9 Jac. Newman's Case.

And if I devise that J. S. shall have, hold and occupy my Land for his Life; this is a good Devise of the Land for his Life. Plow. 546. 4 Co. 66. 8 Co. 95.

If a Man has a Lease for Years of Land, and he devises his Lease, or his Term, or his Farm, or the Profits or Occupation of the Land; by any of these Devises his whole Lease and all his Interest in the Land is given as well as by any other Form of Words. Dyer 4, 122, 33, 128. Co. 83. 6 Co. 42.

Direction in a Will, that the Heir shall renounce all his Right in such Lands to a younger Son, amounts to a Devise. Ld. Raym. 187.

(X) Of the Intent of making a Devise.

THE Intent of making a Devise should be good, for Devises to wicked Ends or upon wicked Conditions, as to the End that the Devisee shall kill a Man, or because he has killed a Man, or the like, are void. And when the Cause or Motive is false, as because one is my Cousin, or has lent me Money, I devise to him 20*l.* and he is not my Cousin, or did not lend me Money; these Devises are void. Swinb. 289.

(Y) Of the Manner and Form of making Wills and Testaments, and of Revocations of them.

First, Of naming an Executor.

IN making a good Will it is necessary that the Form and Order which the Law prescribes be observed in the Disposition. And therefore first, There should be an Executor named in all Wills of Goods and Chattels, and that the Executor named be capable of the Executorship; for this is said to be the Head and Foundation of the Will: For if there be never so many Legacies given, and no Executor made, this Disposition is but a Codicil, and cannot properly be called a Will or Testament; for in this Case the Party dead is said to die Intestate, and the Administration of his Goods must be granted to the Widow or next of Kin; whereas, on the other Side, if an Executor be appointed although, there be no Legacy given, yet this Disposition, is and is properly said to be a Will. Swinb. 112. Bro. Testament 20.

Where no Executor is named in a Will, Administration with the Will annexed is usually granted.

Secondly, Where it must be in Writing.

If a Will be of Lands or Tenements, it must be in Writing, and it must be committed to Writing at the Time of the making thereof; and it is not sufficient that it be put in Writing after the Death of the Testator, being first made by Word of Mouth only, for then it is but Nuncupative still. But if the Will be first made by Words of Mouth, and be afterwards written, and then brought to the Testator, and he approves it for his Will; or if the Testator, when he declares his Mind, appoints that the same shall be written, and thereupon the same is written accordingly in the Life-time of the Testator; these are good Wills of Land, and as good as if they be written at the first. If therefore one be very sick, and another comes to him and asks him whether his Wife shall have his Land, and he says yes; and a Clerk being present puts this in Writing, without any precedent Commandment or subsequent Allowance of the sick Man; this is no good Will of the Land. So if one declares his whole Mind before Witnesses, and sends for a Notary to write it, and dies before he comes, and he writes it after his Death; this is no good Will for his Lands, but a good Nuncupative Will for his Goods and Chattels, except he declares his Mind to be, that it shall not be his Will unless it be put in Writing; for then perhaps it may not be a good Will for his Goods and Chattels. So if he that writes the Will cannot hear the Party speak, and another that doth stand by the sick Man tells him what he says; in this Case if there be none others present to prove that he reported the very Words of the sick Man; this will be no good Will of the Land. But if a Notary takes Direction from the sick Man for his Will, and after goes away and writes it, and then brings it again, and reads it to the Testator, and he approves it; or if it be written from his Mouth by the Notary according to his Mind, and his Mind were to have it written, although it be not shewed or read to him afterwards, these are good Testaments.

ments. So if the Notary does only take certain rude Notes or Directions from the sick Man, which he agrees to, and they be afterwards written fair in his Life-time, and not shewed to him again, or not written fair until after his Death; these are good Wills of Lands. If a sick Man bids the Notary make a Will of his Lands, but does not tell him how, and the Notary makes a Devise of it after his own Mind; this is no good Will; and yet if it be after read unto and approved by the Testator, it may be good. And so if a Will be found written in the Testator's House, and not known by whom, and it be read unto and approved by the Testator; this is not a good Will in Writing for Lands and Goods. Stat. 32 & 34 H. 8. Perk. §. 476, 477. Dyer 72. Plow. 345. 4 Co. 60. Dyer 53.

And Uses of Lands before the Statute of Uses might, and Lands and Tenements devisable by Custom, and Goods and Chattels, may be disposed by Word without Writing, and such Wills of such Things so made are good.

But now by the Statute of Frauds and Perjuries, 29 Car. 2. c. 3. §. 5. All Devises and Bequests of any Lands or Tenements devisable shall be in Writing, and signed by the Party devising the same, or by some other Person in his Presence, and by his express Directions, and shall be attested and subscribed in the Presence of the said Devisor, by three or four credible Witnesses, or else they shall be utterly void and of none Effect.

And by §. 6. No Devise in Writing of Lands, Tenements or Hereditaments, or any Clause thereof, shall be revocable, other than by some other Will or Codicil in Writing, or other Writing declaring the same, or by burning, cancelling, tearing or obliterating the same by the Testator himself, or in his Presence, and by his Directions and Consent: But all such Devises and Bequests shall remain in Force until the same be burnt, &c. in Manner aforesaid, or unless the same be altered by some other Will or Codicil in Writing, or other Writing of the Devisor, signed in the Presence of three or four Witnesses, declaring the same.

See of Nuncupative Wills.

Thirdly, On what, and in what Hand and Language a Will may be written.

Is is not material in what Matter or Stuff, whether in Paper or Parchment, nor in what Language, whether in Latin, French, or any other Tongue, nor in what Hand or Letters, whether in Secretary Hand, Roman Hand or Court Hand, or in any other Hand a Will be written, so that it be fair and legible, that it may be read and understood; neither is it material whether the same be written at large, or by Notes or Characters, usual or unusual, as XXs. for twenty Shillings, or when the Figure 2 is used instead of the Letter A, if it be usual in the Testator's Writing, or the like, for the Will is good notwithstanding. So also if some Words be omitted, or Sentences improper used, when the Intent and Meaning is apparent; as where a Man says, I make my Wife of this my last Will and Testament, leaving out the Word Executrix, yet the Will is good, and this shall be understood: But if it be so done as it cannot be read, or by reading the Mind of the Testator cannot be known, then the Will is void, and of no Force. In the like Manner as a Nuncupative Will is when the Words spoken are so ambiguous, obscure and uncertain, that thereby the Meaning of the Testator cannot be known or understood. Swinb. Part 4. §. 25, 26.

Fourthly, Of the Testator's Sealing and Subscribing his Name.

Where Writing is needful, (as in the Case of Disposition of Land it is) there Sealing the Will, or Subscribing the Testator's Name, is not necessary. And therefore if a Man by himself or another makes a Will of his Land, and does not put his Seal or Name to it, if he agrees to it, this is a sufficient Will. Perk. §. 476, 477.

Sealing a Will is Signing. 2 Stra. 764.

Fifthly, Of Interruption in the making a Will.

If whilst the Testator is making his Will, and whilst he intends to proceed farther at that Time, either by adding, diminishing or altering, he be suddenly stricken with Sicknefs, or Insanity of Mind, whereby he cannot proceed, but gives it over in the midst, and so he dies; it seems in this Case the whole Will is void. And yet if a Man begins his Will, and makes perfect Devises to one, and then of himself he gives over till another Time; or if a Man makes a perfect Devise to one, and then dies before he can make any Devise to any others; it seems these are good Wills for as much as is done. And therefore it is said, if one commands another to make his Will, and by it to devise Whiteacre to J. S. and his Heirs, and Blackacre to J. N. and his Heirs, and he writes the Devise to J. S. and his Heirs, and the Testator

Testator dies before he can write the Devise to J. N. and his Heirs; this is a good Devise to J. S. but a void Devise to J. N. and his Heirs. But if a Man bids the Notary write a Devise of his Land to J. S. upon Condition, and the Notary writes a Devise to J. S. but the Testator dies before he can write the Condition; in this Case the whole Devise is void. Swinb. 6. Part 7. §. 10. 3 Co. 31.

But a Man may if he pleases make a Will of Part of his Goods, and die Intestate for the Rest, and the Disposition which he makes is good for so much. Swinb. 188.

Sixthly, Of the Proof of a Will.

The last Thing required to the Perfection of a Will, is the Proof of it; for if it be never so well made, and be in Truth the Will of the Testator, yet if it cannot be by Proof made to appear so, it is but a void Will, and of no Force at all.

And therefore as to this observe these Things:

First, That a Nuncupative Will must be proved by two (now by Stat. 29 Car. 2. there must be three) Witnesses at the least, and those must be such as are without Exception.

Secondly, A written Will, when it is written with the Testator's own Hand, proves and approves itself, and therefore needs not the Help of Witnesses to prove it. And for this Cause, if a Man's Will be found written fair and perfect with his own Hand after his Death, altho' it be not subscribed with his Name, sealed with his Seal, or have any Witnesses to it, if it be known or can be proved to be his Hand, it is held to be a good Testament, and a sufficient Proof of itself; but if it be sealed with his Seal, and subscribed with the Name of the Testator, and can be proved by Witnesses, it is the more authentick. And when it is found amongst the choicest Evidences of the Testator, or fast locked up in a safe Place, it is the more esteemed; for if it be written in another Hand, and the Testator's Hand and Seal, or one of them, not to it, altho' it be found in such a Place as before, yet some Proof will be expected of it further by Witnesses in that Case; and if a Writing be found under the Testator's own Hand, yet if it be but a scribbling Writing, written copywise, with a great Distance between every Line, without any Date, in strange Characters, with many Interlineations, and lying amongst his void Papers, or the like; this will not be esteemed a sufficient Will, nor a good Proof of it; but it shall be accounted rather a Draught or Image of the Testator's Will, for a Direction to him after to make his Will by; and yet if it can be proved that the Testator did declare himself that this should be his Will, this will be a good Will, and a good Proof of it.

Thirdly, If it be proved that the Testator said his Testament was in such a Schedule in the Hands of J. S. and J. S. produces a Writing deposing it to be the same; this is a sufficient Proof: But if he says withal, it is written with his own Hand; then it seems some other Proof, as by comparing Hands, or the like, that it is his Hand wherein it is written, will be expected.

Fourthly, If the Witnesses will prove the Writing produced to be the last Will of the Testator, or that he said it was or it should be his last Will, or that it was the same Writing that was shewed to them, and whereunto they are Witnesses; altho' they never heard it read, or set their Hands to it, it is a sufficient Proof. Swinb. Part 7. §. 13. Part 4. §. 25.

Fifthly, All Persons Male and Female, Rich and Poor, are esteemed competent Witnesses to prove a Will, save only such as are infamous, as perjured Persons, and the like, and such as want Understanding and Judgment, as Children, Infants, and the like, and such as are presumed to bear Affection, as Kindred, Tenants, Servants, and the like. A Legatee is reputed a competent Witness to prove any other Part of the Will but his own Legacy, or to prove any Thing against himself touching his own Legacy, but not otherwise. And therefore where there are two Witnesses of a Will wherein either of them have somewhat bequeathed unto himself; this Will cannot be sufficiently proved for those Legacies, but for the Rest of the Will it may be sufficiently proved.

Sixthly, Where there is no Question nor Opposition moved or had about or against a Will, there the Oath of the Executor alone is esteemed a sufficient Proof of it, and in that Case regularly no other Proof is required. And where more Proof is necessary, as in the Cases before, it is in the Discretion of the Ordinary what Proof to admit and allow; and those Witnesses for Number, Nature and Quality, or that other Proof that he deems and accepts for sufficient, is sufficient; and the Will so proved by such Witnesses, or other Proof, is sufficiently proved. Swinb. Part 4. §. 21.

Lord Coke's
Advice concerning the Disposition of Lands and making Wills.

My Advice to all who have Lands (says he) is, That you take Care, by the Advice of learned Counsel, by Act executed, to make Assurances of your Lands according to your true Intent, in full Health and Memory, to which Assurances you may add such Conditions,

Conditions, or Proviso's of Revocation, as you please. For (says he) I find great Doubts and Controversies daily arise on Devises made by last Wills, sometimes in Respect of Tenures of Lands, sometimes by Pretences of Revocations, which may be made easily by Word, (but now Revocations must be in Writing by the Statute of Frauds) also in Respect of obscure and insensible Words and repugnant Sentences, the Will being made in haste: And some pretend that the Testator, in Respect of extreme Pain, was Non compos mentis, and divers other Scruples and Questions are moved upon Wills.

But if you please to devise your Lands by Will;

First, Make it by good Advice in your perfect Memory, and inform your Counsel truly of the Estates and Tenures of your Lands.

Secondly, If your Will concerns Inheritance, make it indented, and leave one Part with a Friend, lest after your Death it be suppressed.

Thirdly, At the Time of the Publication of the Will call credible Witnesses to subscribe their Names to it. Note; By the Statute of Frauds, there must be three or four Witnesses to a Will of Lands or Tenements.

Fourthly, Let all the Will be written with one and the same Hand, and in one and the same Parchment, for fear of Alteration, Addition or Diminution.

Fifthly, Let the Hand and Seal of the Devisor be set to it.

Sixthly, If it be in several Parts, let his Hand and Seal be put, and the Names of the Witnesses subscribed to each Part.

Seventhly, If there be any Interlining or Rasure in the Will, let a Memorandum be made of it.

Eighthly, If you make any Revocation of your Will, or of any Part of it, make it in Writing, by good Advice. 3 Co. 36. a. b. It must be in Writing by the Statute of Frauds.

To which may be added, that if the Will be made of Lands or Tenements in Yorkshire or Middlesex, take Care it be registred in due Time. See before, p. 458.

BY Stat. 29 Car. 2. c. 3. §. 19. For the Prevention of fraudulent Practices, it is enacted, 1. That no Nuncupative Will shall be good, where the Estate thereby bequeathed shall exceed the Value of thirty Pounds, that is not proved by the Oaths of three Witnesses (at the least) that were present at the making thereof. (And by Stat. 4 Ann. c. 16. §. 14. it is declared, That all such Witnesses as are and ought to be allowed to be good Witnesses upon Trials at Law, by the Laws and Customs of this Realm, shall be deemed good Witnesses to prove any Nuncupative Will, or any Thing relating thereto.)

Nor unless such Nuncupative Will were made in the Time of the last Sickness of the Deceased, and in the House of his or their Habitation or Dwelling, or where he or she has been Resident for ten Days, or more, next before the making of such Will, except where such Person was surprised or taken sick, being from his own Home, and died before he returned to the Place of his or her Dwelling.

§. 20. That after six Months passed after the Speaking of the pretended Testamentary Words, no Testimony shall be received to prove any Will Nuncupative, except the said

Testimony, or the Substance thereof, were committed to Writing within six Days after the making of the said Will.

§. 21. That no Letters Testamentary, or Probate of any Nuncupative Will, shall pass the Seal of any Court, till fourteen Days at the least after the Decease of the Testator be fully expired; nor shall any Nuncupative Will be at any Time received to be proved, unless Process have first issued to call in the Widow, or next of Kindred to the Deceased, to the End they may contest the same, if they please.

§. 22. That no Will in Writing concerning any Goods or Chattels, or personal Estate, shall be repealed; nor shall any Clause, Devise or Bequest therein, be altered or changed by any Words, or Will by Word of Mouth only, except the same be in the Life of the Testator committed to Writing, and after the Writing thereof read unto the Testator, and allowed by him, and proved to be so done by three Witnesses at the least.

§. 23. Provided that any Soldier in actual Military Service, or any Mariner or Seaman being at Sea, may dispose of his Moveables, Wages and Personal Estate, as before the making of this Act.

C H A P. VII.

Of fraudulent, forged, void and voidable Deeds and Wills.

S E C T. I.

Of void Deeds in general.

SOME Deeds are void from the Beginning, and never take Effect; and amongst these some are absolutely void, and void against all Persons; and some are void to some Purposes, and against some Persons; some also that are not void from the Beginning, are notwithstanding voidable, and that sometimes by the Party himself who made them, or any others, and sometimes by others, and not by himself; and some Deeds are good in their first Creation, and well made at the first, but become void by some Matter ex post facto; and this may be either by an extrajudicial Act, as Rasure, or the like; or by a judicial Act, i. e. when by Sentence of a Court a Deed is damned and made void, which is called a Vacat of the Deed.

S E C T. II.

Of Deeds obtained by Menace, Durefs, or false Suggellions.

I T is necessary that a Deed have a good Foundation, and be to a good End; for altho' a Deed have all the Qualities of a good Deed, viz. that it be well made, read, sealed and delivered, yet it may be void, or at least voidable for other Causes; as when it is either unjustly gotten or obtained, or corruptly, in Pursuit and Execution of some dishonest Agreement, or to a dishonest End or Purpose made.

A Deed whether it be a Feoffment, Gift, Grant, Lease, Release, Confirmation or Obligation, that is made or obtained by Menace or Durefs, i. e. when one threatens another to kill or maim him if he will not make him such a Deed, or imprisons another till he makes him such a Deed, and thereupon he makes the Deed; a Deed thus obtained by Force, and thro' Fear to avoid Danger, is void, and will not bind him that made it, nor avail him to whom it is made. 2 Co. 9. Perk. §. 16. Dyer 143. 45 Ed. 3. 6.

In which Respect observe these Things:

First, That there must be some Threatning of Life or Member, or Imprisonment, or some Imprisonment or Beating itself; for if it be only a Threatning to take away Goods, or to burn a House, or the Taking and Keeping of a Man's Goods, or the like; this will not make the Deed made upon that Occasion to be per Dureffe.

Secondly, It must be a Threatning, Beating or Imprisonment of the Party himself, or of his Wife, that makes the Deed void; for if it be a Threatning, Beating or Imprisonment of any other besides the Party himself that makes the Deed, or his Wife; this will not make the Deed to be per Dureffe.

Thirdly,

Thirdly, The Threatning, Beating or Imprisonment, must be to this End, and hereupon the Deed must be made, for otherwise the Deed shall not be said to be by Durefs: As for Example, If four threaten one to imprison him if he will not seal a Deed to one of them four, and he does seal it; this Deed is got by Durefs, and therefore void. And if one threatens a Man to kill him unless he will seal a Deed to him and three others, and he does so; this is void as to all the four; for if one threatens another to kill or maim him if he will not seal a Deed to a Stranger, and he thereupon does so; this is as much void as if it were to the Party himself. If one threatens to kill, wound or imprison me, to make me swear or promise to seal him such a Deed, and afterwards at another Time and in another Place, when I am at Liberty, I do it accordingly, or imprisons me till I make the Deed; this is made by Durefs, and void. If I be in Prison at one Man's Suit, and then another Man causes me to be used more severely in Prison to compel me to make him some Deed, which I do thereupon make to him; this Deed is gotten by Durefs, and therefore void. But if I be imprisoned at one Man's Suit, (be the Cause just or not) and being in Prison I make an Obligation, or any other Deed, to a third Man; this shall not be said to be by Durefs, but is a good Deed. So if one threatens to take away my Goods, burn or break my House, enter upon my Land, kill or wound my Father, Mother, Brother, Sister or Friend, or imprisons any of them, and thereupon I seal a Deed; this is good, and shall bind me. So if one distrains my Beasts, or compels me to seal a Deed, and will not deliver them unless I do so, and threatens me that if I take the Beasts again and not seal the Deed he will kill me, and thereupon I seal the Deed; this is a good Deed, and shall bind me. If I be arrested upon good Cause, and being in Prison, or under Arrest, I make an Obligation, Feoffment, or any other Deed to him at whose Suit I am arrested, for my Enlargement, and to make him Satisfaction; this shall not be said to be by Durefs, but is good, and shall bind me: And therefore if Auditors in an Account commit an Accomptant to Prison, and then he makes an Obligation to his Master for the Arrearages; this is good. And if one in Prison for Felony grants a Reversion of Lands to another to help him out of his Trouble; this is a good Grant. (But I think this should be before Conviction, for after the Reversion is forfeited). If A. and B. enter into an Obligation upon the Threatning of B. only; this is a good Obligation by A. who was not threatned. Bro. Dureffe in toto. 9 H. 7. 25. 21 Ed. 4. 13.

And if one makes an Obligation by Durefs, and after being at large takes a Defeasance upon it; this makes the Obligation good again, and the Obligee is concluded to say it was by Durefs. Bro. Defeasance 17.

There is a Diversity between a Deed and a Will gained from a weak Man, and upon a Misrepresentation, in regard Equity will set aside the Deed, but not the Will. 2 Will. 270.

Where there is either Suppressio veri, or Suggestio falsi, it is a good Reason to set aside any Grant or Release. Will. 240.

S E C T. III.

Of Deeds made or concealed by Collusion or Fraud.

(A) In general.

IT is Evidence of a Fraud when there is no Proof that any Instructions were given for preparing the Deed by the Grantor, or when the Deed was not read to him. 2 Will. 203.

(B) To deceive Purchasers.

A Deed of Grant of any Thing, made with Intent on Purpose to deceive and defraud one that shall afterwards buy the same Thing, is void.

For it is to this Purpose provided by a Statute Law, (27 Eliz. c. 4.) That all fraudulent Conveyances of Land, or any Rent or Profit out of it for Money, or any good Consideration of the Fruit and Effect of their Purchase, shall be void against such Purchasers for so much as they buy, and against all others that come in by or under them; but all such Conveyances as are made bona fide, and upon good Consideration, are not to be accounted fraudulent.

For the better Understanding of which Statute, and the Law in these Cases, observe, That Conveyances bona fide are opposed to such as are upon and with any Trust express or implied; and good Considerations are set down in the Statute to distinguish from such as are not valuable, as Nature, Blood, and the like. If one conveys Land with a present or future Power of Revocation or Alteration at the Will of him that conveys it; this shall be said a fraudulent Conveyance as against him that shall afterwards purchase this Land. So that if one conveys his Lands to the Use of himself for Life, and after to the Use of divers of his Blood, with a future Power; as after the Death of H. or after such a Day to revoke it, and before the Day he sells this Land to a Stranger for a valuable Consideration; in this Case the first Deed shall be said to be fraudulent and void as to him that shall purchase the Land, and shall not do him any hurt. 3 Co. 31.

And if one conveys Land with such a Power of Revocation, and after with an Intent to defraud a Purchaser, makes a Feoffment to a Stranger to extinguish the Power, and after sells the Land for valuable Considerations to a Stranger; in this Case both the first and second Deeds as to the Purchaser shall be said to be fraudulent, and therefore void. 3 Co. 82, 83.

And if there be Grandfather, Father and Son, and the Grandfather makes a Lease for one hundred Years to the Father, and the Father to prevent the drowning of the Lease by the Descent of the Reversion to him, assigns over the Lease to certain Friends of his, to the Use of his Son an Infant, under Pretence to pay Debts; the Grandfather dies, the Father continues the Occupation of the Land, and makes Estates, and does all Acts as Owner of the Land; the Son pays no Debts, and the Assignment (altho' divers Persons of Quality were named Assignees) was delivered to one of the Assigns of mean Estate in private, and after the Father sells the Land for valuable Consideration; in this Case the Assignment shall be taken to be fraudulent, and void as to the Purchaser. And if the Father makes a fraudulent Conveyance, and after continues the Occupation of the Land, and it descends to the Son after the Father's Death, and he sells it for valuable Consideration; in this Case the Purchaser may avoid the Conveyance made by his Father as well as if it had been made by the Son himself, and that whether the Son be privy to the Conveyance made by the Father or not. And if a fraudulent Conveyance be made to the King, yet it is void as to a Purchaser, as if it were made to a common Person. And therefore if there be Tenant in Tail, the Remainder in Tail or in Fee, and he in the Remainder perceiving the Tenant in Tail intends to sell the Land, and bar him by a common Recovery, sells his Remainder by Deed inrolled to the King, and after the Tenant in Tail sells the Land by common Recovery for good Consideration; in this Case the Purchaser shall avoid the Deed to the King. 6 Co. 72.

If there be a Lease for Years, and the Lessor makes a fraudulent Conveyance in Fee, and then for good Consideration makes another Lease to begin at the End of the former Lease; this Conveyance shall be void as to the second Lessee. M. 4 Jac. Cowell and Bart's Case.

And if A. makes a Lease to B. for Years upon good Considerations, and after he makes another Lease to C. of the same Thing for the same Term, to begin at the same Time, upon good and valuable Consideration; and B. does not discover this, but drives this Bargain with C. and is Witness to this second Lease, and the first Lease is not excepted in the second Lease; the first Lease shall be void as to C. Per two Just. H. 18 Jac. B. R.

And in all these and such like Cases, altho' the Purchaser, before he makes his Bargain, has Notice of the fraudulent Conveyance, yet shall he avoid it as if he were ignorant of it: But such Conveyances and Deeds made as before shall never be said to be fraudulent and void as against him that shall have the Thing afterwards, if he does not give a valuable Consideration for it. And therefore if one makes a Lease that would be fraudulent and void as to such a Purchaser to A. and after makes another Lease bona fide to B. but without any Rent or Fine given for it; in this Case the first Lease shall not be said to be fraudulent as against the second Lessee, and therefore not void. So if one covenants for the Advancement of his Heirs Male, &c. to levy a Fine of Land by a Day, to the Use of himself for Life, and after of his Issue Male; and before the Day he makes a fraudulent Lease for many Years on Purpose, and after he levies a Fine accordingly; the Lease is good, and not fraudulent by this Statute as against the Issue in Tail. So if a Man, who is somewhat foolish and given to waste, be persuaded to settle his Lands upon some of his Friends, on Purpose to maintain himself with it; and after some of his lewd Companions inveigles him, and gets him for a small Sum of Money to convey it to them; in this Case the Conveyance first made shall not be said to be fraudulent as against these Purchasers, and therefore it is good against them. 5 Co. 60. 3 Co. 83.

And if one who has a Term of sixty Years, if he lives so long, makes it away, and then he forges a Lease for ninety Years absolutely, and after by Indenture reciting this forged Lease, for valuable and good Consideration bargains and sells this forged Lease, and all his Interest in the Land to J. S. the first Lease is not void, and the Purchaser shall have nothing but the forged Lease. Co. Lit. 3.

All voluntary Conveyances are prima facie to be looked upon as fraudulent against Purchasers, unless the contrary be made appear. Cba. Ca. 100, 216. See Abr. Ca.

Eq. 23.

A. had a House descended to him, which was let at 64 l. per Ann. but subject to a small Mortgage, and A. being very poor, was inveigled to sell it for 80 l. Tho' the Bargain was not a fair one, yet as it was not attended with strong Badges of Fraud, the Court would grant no Relief against it. Abr. Ca. Eq. 170.

(C) To defraud Creditors.

A Deed also made of any Thing with an Intent and on Purpose to deceive and defeat Creditors of their just Debts and Duties, is void also as against such Persons; for it is provided to this Purpose by other Statutes, (3 H. 7. c. 4. 2 R. 2. Stat. 2. c. 3. 13 Eliz. c. 5.) That all Feoffments, Gifts, Grants, Alienations, Bargains and Conveyances of Lands, Tenements, Hereditaments, Goods and Chattels, or any Rent, Profit or Commodity out of Land, made by Fraud or Collusion of Trust to him that made the same, or otherwise, with Intent to hinder and delay, or put off or put by Creditors or others of their just and lawful Actions, Suits, Debts, Accompts, Damages, Penalties, Forfeitures, Heriots, Mortuaries or Reliefs, shall be void as against them to whom such Thing shall belong, and he may recover the Thing notwithstanding; but all such as are made bona fide, and upon good Consideration, are not to be accounted fraudulent by the Statute.

For the better Understanding whereof these Cases following are to be observed,

If a Man a little before his Death makes a Conveyance of his Land to his Children or Friends of his Blood, with a Proviso to make it void at his Pleasure, and he takes the Profits of it as his own, or makes a Conveyance of it to Friends, to the Intent they shall not be subject to the Payment of his Debts, having bound himself and his Heirs by any Specialty, or to the Intent that a Warranty and Assets shall not bind his Son for other Land, or the like; in this Case the Conveyance shall be void as to them that should have Relief upon this Land by Descent, and especially when the Conveyance is made after the Suits begun; and more especially when any Judgment is had upon the Suits against him that makes the Deed; and so also is the Law for Goods. 5 Co. 60. 3 Co. 82. Dyer 295.

And therefore if one be indebted to A. in 20 l. and to B. in 40 l. and be possessed of Goods to the Value of 20 l. and A. sues the Debtor for his 20 l. and hanging this Suit, the Debtor secretly makes a general Deed of Gift of all his Chattels real and personal to B. in Satisfaction of his Debt, and yet continues the Occupation, and uses the Goods as his own, and after A. gets Judgment and Execution; in this Case the Deed of Gift to B. is fraudulent, and therefore void as against A. So if in this Case he gives all his Goods to B. in Satisfaction of his Debt, and before any Suit begun by A. with an express or implicit Trust, as to the Intent that B. shall be favourable to the Debtor, or that if the Debtor provides the Money, that he shall have his Goods again; or that he shall suffer the Debtor to enjoy and use the Goods, and pay him as he can; in these and the like Cases the Deeds shall be said to be fraudulent and void; for howsoever it be made upon good Consideration, yet it is not made bona fide. So if one in Consideration of natural Affection, or for no Consideration, gives all his Goods to his Child or Cousin bona fide; this shall be a void Deed as to the Creditors; Et sic de similibus. So if one gives all his Goods and Chattels to his Executor in his Life-time by Deed of Gift; this shall be said to be fraudulent, and shall be void as to Creditors; and altho' those to whom the fraudulent Deed is made know nothing of the Fraud, yet is the Deed fraudulent in that Case also, as well as where they are privy to it. 3 Co. 80, 83. Bro. Donne 20. Plow. 54.

If after a Commission of Bankruptcy be sued out, the Debtor makes a Deed of Gift of all his Goods to one of his Creditors in Satisfaction of his Debt; in this Case the Deed shall be void, as against the Rest of the Creditors, and as to the Commissioners, and they may order it with the Rest of the Estate notwithstanding. 2 Co. 25.

But if A. bona fide, and for valuable Consideration, mortgages his Land whereof he has a Term of Years to B. upon Condition that if he re-pays the Money to B. a Year after, that he shall re-enter; and B. covenants with A. that he shall take the Profits of it until the Time, &c. A. does not pay the Money, and B. hoping that he will pay it in Time, suffers him to continue in Possession, and take the Profits of it two or three Years after, and in the interim Judgment is had against A. upon a Bond and Execution awarded; in this Case Execution shall not be made of the Lease, for this Deed of Mortgage shall not be said to be fraudulent as to the Creditor; for when a Conveyance is not fraudulent at the Time of the making of it, it shall never be said to be fraudulent for any Matter ex post facto. By two Judges of Assise, August 5 Car. in Com. South. Lady Lambert's Case.

If A. be seised of the fifth Part of the Manor of B. and B. of the sixth Part, and M. comes to A. to buy his Part; and after M. saith to A. my Counsel tells me I cannot safely buy of you unless B. joins, and B. grants a Rent-charge of 15 l. per Annum out of this Manor to C. her Son, and the Heirs of his Body, in Consideration of natural Affection, (and this was about 10 Jac. C. being then but about three Years old) with Proviso that if D. (whom B. did then intend to marry) grants to the said C. the like Rent of 15 l. and for the like Estate out of 20 l. by the Year of the Land of B. then the said Grant to be void; and after the said A. has bought the fifth Part of the said Manor of B. and D. her Husband being intermarried, and after A. B. and D. her Husband join in the Grant to M. in this Case it was ruled that the Grant to C. was not fraudulent and void. Mic. 19 Jac. C. B. Miller and Pott's Case.

If one holds his Land to pay a Heriot at the Death of every one that dies Tenant in Fee-simple, and he infeoffs his Son and Heir, in Consideration of natural Affection and Marriage to be had betwixt the Son and J. and the Son (to prevent the Dower of his intended Wife during his Father's Life) makes a Lease for forty Years unto his Father, if his Father lives so long; and afterwards the Marriage is had, the Father pays the Rent, the Son does Suit of Court for the Land, and after the Father dies; in this Case the Lease shall not be said to be fraudulent as to the Lord to deceive him of his Heriot, because it was made to another End. 10 Co. 56, 57.

A Deed not fraudulent at first may afterwards become so by being concealed, or not pursued; by Means of which Creditors may be drawn in to lend their Money. 2 Vern. 262.

A. made a Conveyance of Lands to B. to the Use of himself for Life, with Power to mortgage such Part of the Estate as he shall think fit; Remainder to Trustees to sell to pay all his Debts; and afterwards he became indebted by Judgments, Bonds and simple Contract. The Deed of Trust was decreed fraudulent as to the Creditors by Judgments, who had no Notice of it. 2 Vern. 510.

S E C T. IV.

Of usurious Contracts.

A Deed made upon or in Pursuit and Execution of an usurious Contract, i. e. such a Contract as whereupon the Lender is sure to have in Money or Monies worth for the Loan of the Thing above the Principal more than after the Rate of 5 l. per Cent. is void.

In which Case observe these Cases:

If one 6 Decembris borrow 30 l. until the second Day of June next following, to be paid then for it 33 l. for the principal Loan, if the Son of the Obligee be then alive, and if he dies before that Time, that then he shall pay but 27 l. which is less than the Principal; in this Case the Contract is usurious and corrupt, and therefore the Deed that contains it is void. Terms de la Ley. 5 Co. 70.

See the Statutes of Usury.

If I lend another Man 10 l. for a Year, and take Security by Statute or Obligation that the Borrower pays me the Lender 20 l. for it; this Contract is usurious, and therefore the Statute and Obligation is void: But if the Agreement and Statute or Obligation be, that if the Borrower pays not the 10 l. within the Year, that then he shall pay 20 l. for it; this is no Usury, and therefore in this Case the Deed is good.

If one comes to me to borrow 500 l. and tells me he is unable to pay it all together, and desires that he may pay it in twelve or thirteen Years, and offers for my Kindness 200 l. over, and besides the Use, to let him have it so; and then the 500 l. the Interest, and the 200 l. is cast up together, and so we agree upon an Annuity of 80 l. per Annum for fourteen Years, which is assured by Conveyances unto me; the Contract is usurious, and all the Assurances made to perfect it are void. Corset's Case, Pas. 7 Jac. B. R. And yet regularly where the Principal Money is lost, the Contract is not usurious.

If a Man desires to borrow of me 100 l. for a Year, and I am content to let him have it for the Use of 5 l. but withal I compel him to take a Lease of me of a House of 60 l. Rent, which is but worth 30 l. this Contract is usurious, and therefore the Assurances thereupon made are void. Et sic de similibus. Sanders's Case, Hil. 14 Jac. B. R.

But if a Man the 17th of July 1579. grants me a Rent of 20 l. per Annum for the Loan of 100 l. to be paid every half Year, and the first Payment at Christmas 1580. and it is agreed between us, that if he pays 100 l. the 17th of July 1580. that then the Rent shall cease; this Contract is not usurious, and therefore the Assurances thereupon made are not void, but good. But if in this Case there be a private or collateral Agreement between us that he shall not pay the 100 l. and redeem the Rent, and that Clause be put in only to evade the Statute; then the Contract is usurious, and the Deeds or Assurances thereof void. Et sic de similibus. 5 Co. 69.

If one borrows 100 l. after the Rate of 5 l. per Cent. and the Borrower afterwards pays Part of the Principal and all the Use within a Year, and the Lender receives it, or the Lender sues for his Money within the Year; these subsequent Acts do not make the Contract, or Deeds or Assurances thereof, void; for it is a Rule, That if the original Contract be not usurious, no Matter ex post facto can make it so. Per Cur', Hil. 7 Jac. B. R.

If one borrows of me 10 l. and binds himself to pay me at a Day, and moreover binds himself, that if he pays it not by the Day, that he shall pay me 20 l. for it; this Contract, and the Deed for Perfection of it, are good; for this is not usurious, for all Obligations with Conditions for Payment of Money lent are of this Nature. And yet if one borrows 100 l. of me, and for this mortgages Land to me of a greater Value than 5 l. per Ann. on Condition that he pays the Money any Time before the Year's End, that then the Assurance to be void; this should seem to be an usurious Contract; for in this Case I am sure to have by the Agreement more than after the Rate of 5 l. per Cent. but it is not so in the last Case before. Bro. Obl. 79.

If one borrows 100 l. for a Year, and gives the Broker 20 l. to procure it; this will not make the Contract usurious, nor the Assurances void; but for this the Broker may be punished. Per Just. Bridgman, Hil. 7 Car.

S E C T. V.

Where a Deed good in its Creation, may become void, or fraudulent, by Matter ex post facto, or not.

(A) By the Cause or Consideration of a Grant's failing.

WHEN the Cause of a Grant fails, and the Thing granted is executory, the Grant is become void: As if one grants an Annuity for an Acre of Land for Tithes, or for Counsel; in this Case pro is conditional; and therefore if the Land be evicted by an elder Title, or the Grantee disturbed in the Tithes, or he refuses to give Counsel, the Annuity is determined. But if a Feoffment, or Lease for Life or Years be made of an Acre of Land pro una acra, &c. as in the Case before; altho' the Acre be evicted, &c. yet the Grant of the Acre of Land is good: As if one grants an Annuity for Counsel, if the Grantee will not give Counsel, the Grant is not of Force. So if one grants to make new Pales in a Place for the old Pales; if in this Case he cannot have the old Pales, it seems the Grant shall not bind him to make new Pales. So if one who grants a Rent for a Way, stops the Way, the Rent shall be stopped. Co. Lit. 204. Plow. 134. 15 Ed. 4. 4. Dyer 76. 9 E. 4. 20.

If one having a Lease for Life or Years of a Manor to which an Advowson is appendant, grants the next Avoidance that shall happen during the Lease, or grants a Rent out of the Manor, and then surrenders the Manor, so that his Estate is gone; in this Case notwithstanding the Grant of the next Avoidance, and of the Rent, continues good, the Grantee shall enjoy it according to the Grant, as long as the Estate that is surrendered should have had Continuance. 8 Co. 144, 145.

If an Annuity be granted to one until he be advanced to a Benefice by the Grantor, and the Grantor dies, and the Heir or Executor of the Grantor tenders a Benefice; this will not determine the Grant. Plow. 272. 15 H. 7. 1.

If A. be Lessee for Years of an Advowson, and grants the next Avoidance to B. if it shall happen to become void during the Term, and A. surrenders the Term to C. who has the Inheritance, and the Church becomes void before the End of the Term; in this Case the Grant is good to B. and he shall have the next Avoidance, for a Man cannot derogate from his own Grant. So if A. be Lessee for Years, and he grants a Rent-charge to a Stranger, and after surrenders his Term to the Lessor; in this Case altho' the Term be extinct, yet the Rent continues, and the Stranger shall have it during the Term. So if A. has a Rent-charge out of the Land of B. and acknowledges a Statute to C. and then releases the Rent to B. in this Case altho' the Rent be gone as to A. and B. yet it is in esse as to the Conusee, and he may extend it. 8 Co. 145. 7 Co. 39.

If a Man be seised of a great Wood, and grants to J. S. six hundred Cords of Wood out of the same Wood, to be taken by the Assignment of A. in this Case if A. will not upon Request assign where the Wood shall be taken, yet the Deed will not lose its Effect, but J. S. may take it without Assignment. 5 Co. 24.

If A. be Lessee for Life, on Condition to have Fee, and he makes a Lease to B. for Years, and after he performs the Condition, and so his Estate for Life is turned into a Fee-simple; simple; in this Case the Lease for Years is good notwithstanding: But otherwise it is in Case of the King. 7 Co. 14.

If a Tenant in Tail infeoffs B. on Condition, to the Use of A. in Fee, and A. has granted a Rent-charge, or acknowledged a Statute, which by the Statute 1 R. 3. c. 5. was extended, and after A. had performed the Condition; in this Case altho' the Estate had been changed, yet the Interest of the Grantee or Conufee had continued. Co. 147, 148. 11 H. 7. 21.

If A. be Tenant for Life, the Remainder to B. in Tail, the Remainder to A. in Fee, and A. grants a Rent-charge, or acknowledges a Statute, and dies; in this Case and hereby the Grant is not become void. But if B. dies without Issue, the Heir of A. shall be charged. 5 Ed. 4. 2. Petbouse and Carne's Case, M. 36 & 37 El. C. B.

If a Corody be granted for a Service to be done, the Omission of the Service determines the Corody. Davis's Rep. 1.

If one grants Lands with his Daughter in Frank-Marriage, or Goods with his Daughter in Marriage, and after the Marriage is dissolved, and they are divorced; in this Case the Grant is now become of no Force. Cessante causa cessat effectus. 20 Ed. 4. ult. Dyer 13, 120.

(B) By Rasure or Interlining.

IF a Deed that is well and sufficiently made in its Creation, shall be afterwards altered by Rasure, Interlining, Addition, Drawing a Line thro' the Words, (tho' they be still legible) or by Writing new Letters upon the old in any material Place or Part of it; as if it be in a Deed of Grant in the Name of the Grantor, Grantee, or in the Thing granted, or in the Limitation of the Estate; or if it be in an Obligation, when the Word (Heirs) shall be inserted, or the Sum increased, or in the Date of either, or the like; be the same either by the Party himself that has the Property of the Deed, or any other whomsoever, except it be by him that is bound by the Deed; and be the same with or without the Consent of him to whom it is made or does belong; in this Case, and by either of these Means, the Deed has lost its Force, and is become void. And if the Alteration be made by the Party himself that owns the Deed, altho' it be in a Place not material, and that it tends to the Advantage of the other Party, and his own Disadvantage, yet the Deed is hereby become void; but if the Alteration be made by the Party himself that is bound by the Deed, in any material or immaterial Part thereof; or a Stranger, without the Privity or Consent of the Owner of the Deed, shall make any such Alteration in any Part of the Deed not material; as if it be a Deed of Grant containing a Lease for Years, and there be inserted between, To have and to hold, and for thirty Years, these Words, from henceforth; or if it be an Obligation, and there be inserted, between obligo me and per presentes, these Words, Executores meos; in both which Cases these Words are needless, and without any Fruit at all; hereby the Deed is not hurt, but it remains good notwithstanding. But if the Alteration be before the Delivery of the Deed, be it whatsoever or by whomsoever, it will not hurt the Deed. 11 Co. 27. 5 Co. 119. Dyer 59, 261. Perk. §. 123, 135. Kelw. 162. Fitz. Release 27. 14 H. 8. 25. Bro. Fait 9.

And observe, that a Rasure, &c. is most dangerous, and the Deed thereby most suspicious when it is in a Deed Poll, and there is but one Part of the Deed; and when the Rasure or other Alteration is in any material Part of the Deed, and when the Alteration makes to the Advantage of him to whom the Deed is made, and to the Disadvantage of the other that made it, and when there appears some other Thing to be written before, and when there is no other Part of the Deed, Recital, Defeasance, or other Matter to which this may be compared, and that may make it appear to be before the Delivery; and when there are other Parts of the Deed, or other Matters whereunto this being compared does not agree in that Part wherein the Alteration is, and when the Deed has been in the Smoke, or any such like Means has been used to cover the Alteration. Perk. §. 123, 124, 127, 128, 129. Bro. Fait 6.

And in these Cases the Matter was antiently used to be tried by the Judges upon the View of the Deed, but it is now used to be tried by Jurors, whether the Rasure or other Alteration were before the Delivery of the Deed, or not. Co. Lit. 225.

(C) By breaking or defacing the Seal.

AND if after the Sealing, Delivery and Perfection of a Deed, the Seal thereof happens to be broke off, or to be utterly defaced, so that no Sign or Print thereof can be seen, or it appears to have been broke off and is glued, or the Wax new heated and set on again, or the Label of the Deed has been broke off from the Deed, and is sewed on again, or the Deed is now sealed with other Wax, be the same by whatsoever Means or whomsoever, soever, unless it be by him and his Means that is bound by the Deed; in these Cases, and by either of these Means, the Deed is become void. But if any Piece of the Seal remains fixed to the Deed, and there be any Print left upon that Piece, the Deed continues good. And if after the Seal of the Deed is broken off the Party that sealed it seals and delivers it de novo, by this Means the Deed is become good again. Dyer 59. 11 Co. 28. 5 Co. 23. Dyer 112. Perk. §. 135, 136. Bro. Obl. 83.

(D) By Re-delivery or cancelling it.

AND if a Deed be delivered up to the Party that is bound by it, to be cancelled, and it be so, or if he that has the Deed by Agreement between him and the other cancels the Deed, by either of these Means the Deed is become void; but if an Obligee delivers up an Obligation to be cancelled, and the Obligor does not afterwards cancel it, but the Obligee happens to get it again into his Hands, and sues the Obligor upon it, the Obligor has not any Plea to avoid it, for the Deed remains still in Force. Trin. 38 Eliz. C. B. Dyer 112.

(E) By Disagreement and Refusal.

AND if an Obligation be delivered as an Escrow to a Stranger, to be delivered to the Obligee on certain Conditions; or to a Stranger to the Use of the Obligee, and when this is after tendered to the Obligee he refuses it and disagrees to it; or if an Obligation be made to a Feme Covert, and her Husband disagrees to it; in all these Cases the Deed is become void. And the like Law is of other Deeds in such like Cases. But the Party bound by the Deed may not in these Cases plead Non est factum. And in these Cases when the Party has once by his Agreement made the Deed good, he cannot afterwards by his Disagreement make it void; and when once by Refusal and Disagreement he has made the Deed void, he cannot by Agreement or Acceptance afterwards make it good. 3 Co. 26. 5 Co. 119. Dyer 167.

Also a Feoffment, Grant or Lease in Writing, may become void by Disagreement or Refusal: And this may be either by the Disagreement of the Party himself to whom it is made, or by the Disagreement of another: Of the Party himself; for no Estate can be made to a Man of any Thing in Fee-simple, for Life, or otherwise, against his Will; and therefore by his Disagreement or Refusal of it, the Estate itself, and the Deed whereby it is conveyed, may become void. By the Disagreement of another, as the Husband in Case of a Feoffment, &c. made to his Wife, may by Disagreement avoid it. And for the first of these the Law is thus: That all such Acts that give Estates directly or by way of Use are good at first, and the Things granted, when the Deed of the Grant is delivered to his Use, shall vest in the Grantee before he has Notice of the Grant, or agrees to accept of the Thing granted; so that if Lands be limited to a Man by way of Use, or granted immediately by Feoffment, Gift, Grant or Lease; or Goods or Chattels be given or granted to a Man; in these Cases the Things granted shall be said to be in the Grantee, and the Grant good before Notice and Agreement until Disagreement. And before Agreement the Grantee may waive it, and so avoid the Estate, and the Deed also whereby the Estate is made. And if it be but a Lease for Years that is made, he may waive and avoid that by Word of Mouth in the Country, as well as a Gift of Goods, or an Obligation delivered to his Use. But if it be an Estate of Freehold that is made by Feoffment, &c. he cannot waive and avoid that but in a Court of Record. 3 Co. 26, 27. 5 Co. 119. Doff. & Stud. 119. Perk. §. 44, 45. Fitz. Donne 4, 5. Bro. Donne 29, 30, 59.

Deeds or Settlements solemnly executed are not to be set aside by the Party's Parol Expressions declaring against it. Will. 482.

(F) By Judgment of a Court.

A Deed also good in its original Creation may be afterwards damned or avoided by Sentence and Order of a Court, and this formerly was usually done in the Star-Chamber and in the Chancery; and it is when it appears that the Deed was obtained by some Fraud, Force, Circumvention, or such like Practice, or when it appears to be forged, or the like. Crom. Jur. 29, 40. Bro. Fait 38.

(G) By Forfeiture.

AND a Feoffment, Grant or Lease, and the Estate thereby made, become void by Forfeiture, or upon a Breach of a Condition, or by a Limitation.
For which see of Conditions, and Deed declaring Uses, before.

S E C T. VI.

Of fraudulent and void Wills in general.

BY Stat. 3 & 4 W. & M. c. 14. All Wills concerning Lands, or any Rents, Profits, Term or Charge out of the same, whereof the Devisors shall be seised in Fee-simple, in Possession, Reversion or Remainder, shall be deemed to be fraudulent and void against Creditors upon Bonds or other Specialties, their Executors, Administrators, &c.

S E C T. VII.

Where a Will or Testament good in its Creation and Beginning may become void by Matter ex post facto, or not.

(A) By Countermand or Revocation.

A Will or Testament sufficient and good in its Creation and Beginning may afterwards become void by divers Means; as first by Countermand or Revocation; and this is sometimes by the Party himself who made it, and sometimes it is by another; and sometimes it is expressed, and sometimes implied; for it is a Rule, That any Act or Thing done, or Words spoken (but now a Revocation must be in Writing) by the Testator after the Testament made, that alters or crosses all or Part of his Testament made before, is a Revocation of it, or of that Part thereof that is so crossed and altered: And therefore if a Feme Sole makes a Will, and after takes a Husband, by this the Will is revoked. And if a Man makes a Will of Land, and after makes a Feoffment of the same Land, which is not good for some Defect in the Livery of Seisin, or otherwise, so that notwithstanding it the Feoffor dies seised of the Land, hereby the Will as to this Land is revoked. So if a Man makes a latter Will, and therein by express Words revokes the former Will; or if a Man by any Writing expressly revokes a former Will, and makes no new Will, (for so a Man may do, and die Intestate if he will); or if a Man makes a latter Will, and makes no Mention of the former; all these are Revocations of the former Will. And although in the former the Executor be appointed simply and without Condition, and in the latter he be appointed conditionally, and the same Condition is also broken, so that the Condition be of something then to come at the Time when the Condition was made; but if the Executor of the latter Testament be made upon some Condition then present or past, the Condition not existing, the former Testament is not revoked; and although the former Will be made irrevocable, i. e. if the Testator says, I make this my last Will and Testament irrevocable; and although the Testator has sworn not to revoke the former, the Oath being also revoked together with the Will; and although the Testator enters into an Obligation with Condition not to revoke it; but then in this Case he forfeits his Obligation.

But the latter Will does not revoke the former in the following Cases:

First, When the latter is imperfect in respect of a Will, i. e. When the Testator dies whilst he is making it, and before he can finish it, or when it is vehemently suspected that the Testator was compelled to make the latter by Fear or Violence, or induced to make it by Fraud and Deceit, or when the former was made by the Testator whilst he was in good and perfect Mind and Memory, and the latter is made by him when he is inops mentis; or when the latter is made by the Persuasion and for the Benefit of certain Persons, when the Testator is in Extremity of Sickness, unless it appears plainly to be the express Will of the Testator to revoke the former, or unless the Testator himself did dictate the latter, or in case the latter be in Favour of the Children of the Testator, or others who have the Administration of his Goods if he dies Intestate.

Secondly, When the Testator makes two Wills, a former and a latter, both being written, and afterwards lying sick upon his Death-Bed, they are both presented unto him, and he

he is desired to deliver to one of the Standers by, which of them he will have to stand for his last Will, and he delivers the former.

Thirdly, When the latter agrees in all Points with the former, for then both of them are as one in divers Writings.

Fourthly, When in the latter there is no Executor named, for then it is but a Codicil or Addition to the former.

Fifthly, When the latter is made upon some sudden Discontent against the Executors of the former, and afterwards he and the Executors are reconciled again; in these and such like Cases the latter Will is no Revocation of the former. If the Husband licenses his Wife to make a Will, and after her Death he forbids the Probate; this is a Countermand of the Will.

But note, That Revocations in general are not favoured in Law, and therefore he that will avoid a former Will must see he proves it well. 4 Co. 61. Lit. §. 168. Plow. 344, 345. Swinb. Part 7. §. 14, 15. Perk. §. 478. 3 Co. 36. 8 Co. 82, 83. Dyer 310. 34 Eliz. B. R. Burton's Case.

(B) By cancelling it.

A Good Will may become void by Cancelling or other Destruction of it, as where the Testator himself, or some other by his Order, cuts or tears it in Pieces, defaces it, or throws it into the Fire; by this Means the Will is made void, except where the Testator does it unadvisedly, or it be done by some other without his Consent, or by some Casualty, or when he willingly pulls away the Seal, and then afterwards seals it again; or where the whole Will is not cancelled or defaced, but some or the chief Part thereof, as naming the Executor, or the like; for it is good still for the Residue; or where there are several Papers or Writings containing the whole Will, the Cancelling or Defacing some of them does not hurt the Will, unless it can be proved that the Testator's Mind was to avoid it all; or where the Will is lost in the Life-time of the Testator, or after; for in this Case, so much as can be proved by Witnesses is still in Force. Swinb. lib. 7. §. 16.

(C) By Alteration of the Estate of the Testator.

A Good Will may become void by Alteration of the Testator's Estate; as when a Man after the Time of making the Will, and before his Death is convicted or condemned of some great Crime, for which the Law deprives him of making a Will, as Treason, Felony, or the like. And yet if the Crime be pardoned and purged before his Death, the Will may be good enough. And if a Man of sound and perfect Memory makes his Will, and after becomes inops mentis, as every Man for the most part is before his Death; this does not hurt the Will. Swinb. lib. 7. §. 17. 4 Co. 62.

(D) By Intention to alter it.

A Good Will may become void by an Intention only to alter it, when the Testator is hindered in his Intention that it cannot take Effect: If therefore when the Testator intends to alter his Will, or to make a new one, he be by Fear or Fraud forbidden or letten, that he dares not, nor cannot alter it, or the Writer or Witnesses dare not, or may not be suffered to come to him; as when a Wife, or some other that is to have Benefit by the former Will, under Pretence that she has a Charge from the Physician, that none shall come at him, or under Pretence that he is asleep, or the like, will not suffer any Body to come at him; or when the Notary and Witnesses are all present, and they make such a Noise quarrelling that they hinder the Effect of his Intent; or when the Testator is kept from doing it by importunate Requests and flattering Perswasions; in all these Cases, and by these Means, the former Testament may become void. But if it appears that the Testator does not purpose to alter the Will when he is let as aforesaid, the Fear is a vain Fear, the Testator is prohibited at another Time, and not at the Time when he intends to alter the Will, but he has sundry Opportunities after that Time to do it, and does it not, or he is drawn only by the fair Speeches of a Wife or Friend, or by the Weeping, or other Trouble arising from the Grief of the Legatary or Executor for the Testator's Sickness only he is disturbed; in these Cases perhaps it may not be void. And where it is void by the Prohibition of a Legatary only, it is void for so much as concerns him only, and not for the rest of the Will. Swinb. Part 4. §. 18.

(E) By

(E) By making another of the same Date.

A Good Will may become void by making another of the same Date; for if two Wills be found after the Death of the Testator, and it cannot be discerned or proved which was made former or latter; the one overthrows the other, and both are void, except they be both to the same Purpose, or one of them be made in Favour to Wife and Children, &c. and the other to Strangers. And yet in the first Case also the Testator, by Declaration of his Mind, which of them he will have to take Effect, may make either of them good. Swinb. Part 7. §. 11. Perk. §. 479.

(F) By the Declaration of the Testator.

A Good Will may be made void by the Declaration of the Testator's Mind; as if a Man has two Wills lying by him, the one made after the other, and they are both shewed or delivered to the Testator when he lies sick, and he by Word or Sign declares that he will have the former to stand; this Declaration revokes the latter, and affirms the former. And where a Man would revoke a Will for any of these Causes, he must presently after the Death of the Testator put in a Caveat or Exception in the Court where the Will is to be proved, and thereupon proceed to question it, or by a Prohibition in some Cases he may stay the Probate in the Spiritual Court.

S E C T. VIII.

Where and by what Means a Feoffment, Gift, Grant, Lease, &c. or the Estate thereby made being void or voidable at the first, &c. may become good by Matter ex post facto.

A Deed of a Feoffment, &c. in some Cases is helped, and a Fault therein cured by making of Livery of Seisin. But an Attornment will not help the Grant of a Reversion, &c. for it is a Maxim in Law, That Attornment cannot make a void Grant good.

If a Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Life or Years of Land, and this Lease is voidable, and after the Tenant in Tail suffers a common Recovery of the Land to whomsoever it be; by this the Lease is affirmed and made good during the Term, as well against the Issues and Heirs by the Intail, as against him in Reversion or Remainder. And so it is of a Charge of Rent upon the Land. And if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease of Land, or charges it, and after levies a Fine of the Land to a Stranger; by this the Lease or Charge is become good against the Issue in Tail also. Co. Capel's Case. Dyer 373. Co. 48, 76.

If Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for forty Years, rendring Rent, and dies, and his Issue leases to another by Indenture for twenty-one Years, rendring Rent, to begin after the Expiration, Forfeiture or Surrender of the first Lease; it is said this confirms the first Lease: Sed quare. So held in Scaccario, Hil. 16 Jac.

Acceptance of Rent reserved on a Lease for Life or Years, which is voidable only, and not void, may make the Lease good.

A Feoffment, Gift, &c. that is made by Duress or Menace, and therefore voidable, may by another Deed of Defeasance afterwards made between the same Parties become good. Bro. Defeasance 17.

Also Grants, Leases, and the Estates thereby made that are not good, may be made good and perfected by Release or Confirmation. For which see Release and Confirmation.

Although a Deed appeared to be cancelled, it was decreed to be a good Deed, and that the Cancelling should not devert the Estate out of Trustees, &c. And in the Lady Hudson's Case, where the Father having taken Displeasure at his Son, made an additional Deed of Jointure on his Wife, but kept it in his Power, and being afterwards reconciled to his Son, cancelled the additional Jointure; yet the Wife after his Decease having found the cancelled Deed, recovered by virtue of it. So where two Settlements were made of an Estate, and the former was never published, but found amongst waste Papers; the Parties claiming by the second Deed could not be relieved against the first Settlement. Clavering's Case, 2 Vern. 473, 476. 2 Ch. Rep. 100.

S E C T. IX.

Where a Will void or voidable in its Inception may become good by some Matter or Accident ex post facto, or not.

IF a Feme Covert without her Husband's Leave makes a Will of her Husband's Goods, and the Husband after her Death connives at the Probate, and delivers the Goods accordingly, hereby the Will of the Wife is become good; but if an Infant or mad Man makes a Will in the Time of his Infancy or Madness, and after the Infant or mad Man becomes of full Age, or sober, before his Death; these Wills are void. And yet if the Infant at his full Age, or the mad Man when he is sober, makes a Publication of this Will, it may perhaps be good. Perk. §. 501. Co. 99. 2 Co. 55.

If a Man makes a former and a latter Will, and by the latter the former is revoked, and after the Testator declares himself that the former shall stand; by this the former that was void before, is now become good again. And yet if a Man makes a Will that is void, and it be proved after his Death, this Probate will not make it good, but it remains void as it was before. If a Feme Sole makes a Will, and then takes a Husband, whereby the Will is countermanded, and so become void; if her Husband dies, so that she becomes Sole again; this Accident will not make the Will good again, but it remains void still; but perhaps by a new Publication after she becomes Sole, it may become good again. Perk. §. 479. 4 Co. 61. Plow. 344.

S E C T. X.

When and where a Deed may be good in Part, and void in Part; or good against one Person, and void against another, or not; or good for one Time, and void for another.

AS to these Matters, observe these Differences:

First, When a Deed is void ab initio, and when it becomes void ex post facto.

Secondly, When the Deed which is void in Part from the Beginning, is intire, and when it consists of several Clauses; and when it consists of several Clauses, when the several Clauses are absolute and distinct; and when they are several, and yet the one has Dependancy upon the other: For if any of the Covenants of an Indenture, or the Conditions of an Obligation be against Law, or the rest of the Covenants or Conditions be good and lawful; in this Case those that are against Law, and the Deed as to that Part, are void ab initio, and the rest of the Deed is good ab initio. So if three distinct Obligations are written upon a Piece of Parchment, and one of them only is read to the Obligor, and he being an illiterate Man seals and delivers the Deed; in this Case this is a good Deed for that which was read, and void for the rest ab initio. But if an Obligation be for 20*l.* and it be read to the Obligor an Obligation of 20*s.* this is void for the Whole ab initio. 11 Co. 27. 14 H. 8. 27, 28, 29.

If a Deed be read as containing the Grant or Gift of an Estate-tail and Letter of an Attorney to give Livery of Seisin, and in that Sense the Party seals it; and in Truth it is a Feoffment and Conveyance of an Estate in Fee-simple; in this Case, although the Letter of Attorney were truly read, yet because it has the Dependance on the Estate, it is void for all. 11 Co. 27. Kelw. 70.

If a Man be indebted to me 20*l.* on a Contract, and 100*l.* on an Obligation, and he pays me this 20*l.* and I am to make a Release for it, and the Intendment of the Release is no more; and it is so read to me, being an illiterate Man; but in Truth it is a general Release; in this Case it is good for so much as it is intended and was declared, and void for the rest. 11 Co. 28. Fitz. Feoffments and Fairs 57. 47 E. 3. 3.

If the Condition of an Obligation be altered by Rasure, &c. the Obligation also is thereby become void, because the Condition and Obligation are one Deed; but if the Rasure, &c. be in the Defeasance of an Obligation, this will not make the Obligation void. Dyer 27.

If a Deed contains divers distinct and absolute Covenants, and any of these Covenants be altered by Addition, Interlineation, Rasure, or the like; by this Means the whole Deed, and not that Part only, is become void. 14 H. 8. 25, 26. 11 Co. 28.

If there be divers Grantors, Obligors, &c. named in a Deed, and one of them only seals the Deed; this is a good Deed as against him that seals it, and void as to all the rest that do not seal it.

And if several enter into Covenants by a Deed severally, and the Seal of one of them is broken from the Deed; in this Case the Deed is good still as to all the rest, but void as to him. But if an Obligation, or the Covenants of a Deed, be joint and not several, or joint and several, and the Seal of one of the Obligors or Covenantors is broken, or the Obligation or Covenants be altered by Rasure, or the like, thereby the whole Deed is become void. 5 Co. 23. 11 Co. 28. 3 H. 7. 5.

By a Power of Revocation or a Condition a Deed may be made void in Part, and continue in Force for another Part; and therefore it seems in the usual Case where a Deed is made upon Condition that if such a Thing be or be not done, that the Deed shall be void, or that these Presents shall be void; that in these Cases the whole Deed and all the Covenants therein contained are void: But if the Frame of the Condition be, that upon such a Thing to be or not to be done, it shall be lawful for the Feoffor, Lessor, &c. to re-enter, or that the Demise shall be void without more Words; in these Cases the Estate only, and those Covenants that are incident thereunto, as for quiet enjoying, and the like, and the Deed as to that Part only, is void; and for other Covenants that are collateral, and have no Dependence upon the Estate, that the Deed remains in Force, and is good still; for a Man may grant two Acres upon Condition to re-enter upon one of them. If it be intended that the whole Deed shall be void, the best way is to use these Words, Then these Presents and every Thing therein contained shall be utterly void. Co. 173. Dyer 127.

A Feoffment may be good against some Persons and void against others, but cannot cease and revive, and be good and void at several Times, as a Lease for Years, or a Grant of Rent, &c. may in many Cases; for a Grant may be suspended, and a Lease for Years, may cease and revive again; as if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, rendering 20s. Rent, and after takes a Wife and dies without Issue, and he in Reversion or Remainder endows his Wife (as he may); in this Case the Lease as against the Woman is revived, although it be void as to him in Reversion or Remainder.

So if Tenant in Tail makes a Lease for Years, and dies without Issue, his Wife enfeint with a Son, and he in Reversion enters, and after the Son (being Heir to the Intail) is born; in this Case the Lease which was before avoided by him in Reversion, if it be such a Lease as is warranted by the Statute, it is good against the Issue in Tail, and therefore is revived again. So if Tenant in Fee-simple takes a Wife, and then makes a Lease for Years and dies, and the Wife is endowed, she shall avoid the Lease for her Estate, but after her Death the Lease will be in Force again. But if the Patron grants the next Avoidance, and after the Parson, Patron and Ordinary, before the Statutes, had made a Lease of the Glebe for Years, and after the Parson had died, and the Grantee of the next Avoidance had presented a Clerk to the Church, who had been admitted, instituted and inducted, and had died within the Term, and the Patron had presented a new Clerk to the Church, who had been admitted, instituted and inducted; in this Case the Lease had not revived again, no more than if a Feme Covert levies a Fine alone, and the Husband enters and avoids the Fine, the Estate shall revive against the Wife after his Death, for it is avoided as to her also as well as to the Husband by his Entry. Co. Lit. 46. 7 Co. 8.

S E C T. XI.

In what Cases a Man may avoid his own Grant, &c. or not, and at what Time.

IF one Man grants to another an Office of Charge only, to which there is no Benefit or Fee incident; in this Case he may avoid and determine his own Grant at his Pleasure without any Cause given. But if there be any Fee or Profit incident to the Office, then he may not avoid the Grant of it, or put out the Officer without some Cause of Forfeiture; and if he does, the Grantee may have an Assise. And yet in this Case also he may put him out of the Office, altho' he may not deprive him of the Fee or Profit incident thereunto. Bro. Grant 103.

If one makes a Lease for Years of his Land rendering Rent, and after grants the Rent to J. S. and the Termor attorns, and after the Lessor accepts of a Surrender of the Estate of the Termor; yet this does not avoid the Grant of the Rent, but the same shall continue still. Bro. Grant 128.

If a Disseisor grants a Rent, Common, or other Profit appender out of the Land, and after the Disseisee enters and infeoffs him of the Land; in this Case the Rent is avoided, and the Common is gone. But if the Disseisee releases the Disseisor, in this Case he shall not avoid his own Grant. Lit. §. 477.

An Infant, and others disabled, may impeach and avoid their own Grants in divers Cases; which see before in Grants.

Where a Feoffment, Gift, Grant or Lease, is voidable in some Cases, it may be avoided by the Party himself that made it, and not by others although they be Privies; as Heirs, Executors or Administrators; and in some Cases it is voidable by others, and not by the Party himself and by others. And in some Cases it is voidable only at some Times, and in some Cases it is avoidable at all Times: As for Example, An Infant if he grants by Fine must avoid it during his Minority, if he lives to be of full Age; otherwise he himself or any other shall never avoid it. But if he grants by Deed, this may be avoided at any Time by himself, his Heirs, Executors or Administrators, or his Guardian in his Right, as the Case is. But a Lord by Escheat cannot avoid a voidable Estate made by his Tenant, being an Infant. And if a Woman Covert does any such Act by Deed, it may be avoided by her Husband during the Coverture, or her Heirs, &c. that are Privies after her Death. And if a Man De non sane memorie does any such Act, it may not be avoided by himself that is the Party denying it, but it may be avoided by his Heirs, &c. that are Privies. And if Tenant in Tail makes a voidable Lease not warranted by the Statute, he may not avoid it himself, but his Issue may. And if a Corporation Spiritual, Sole or Aggregate, make Leases not warranted by the Statutes, they may not avoid it themselves, but their Successors after their Death, Translation, or other Remotion, may avoid it; or if a Bishop makes such a voidable Lease, the King when the Bishoprick doth come into his Hands, may avoid it. Co. Lit. 78, 45. 7 Co. 8. Dyér 337, 239.

S E C T. XII.

Where Defects and Mistakes in Deeds may be supplied and amended, or not.

A Defect in a voluntary Conveyance generally, shall not be supplied in Chancery; but if a Man voluntarily makes a Settlement as a Provision for his Children, and for their Maintenance, such a voluntary Conveyance shall be made good in Equity.

Vern. 40.

Defective Deeds, Conveyances, Securities, &c. have been made good in Equity in divers Cases, for which see 2 Vern. and Mod. Ca. in Law & Eq. 63, 68, 152. Abr. Ca. Eq. 23, 170.

A. having two Nephews, who were his Heirs at Law, by Conveyance executed in his Life-time, settled all his Lands to the Use of himself for Life, Remainder to his Issue, if he should happen to have any, Remainder to his Nephews; but in the Enumeration of the Particulars of the Lands a Mistake was made; but the Conveyance being merely voluntary, the Court refused to amend it, but left the Land to descend equally between them.

Vern. 37, 38.

The reciting Part of a Deed is not a necessary Part either in Law or Equity; it may be made use of to explain a Doubt of the Meaning of the Parties, but hath no Effect or Operation; and let a Deed be never so ill drawn, and the Mistakes and Misrecitals ever so many, yet if the Deeds were really executed by the Party, all this will not be a sufficient Ground in Equity to set aside this Deed. 3 Chan. Ca. 101, 118.

General Rules for the Exposition of Deeds and Wills.

S E C T. I.

Of Deeds.

- IN the Construction of Deeds it must be considered,
First, How a Deed in the Gross shall be taken and enure.
And Secondly, How it shall be taken and expounded in the several Parts and Pieces of it.
- And as to the first, these Rules are to be known :
- Deeds in Gross. 1. If several join in a Deed, and some are able to make such a Deed, and some are not; this shall be said to be the Deed of those alone who are able. And so e converso, if a Deed be made to one that is incapable, and to others that are capable; in this Case it shall enure only to him that is capable. Co. Lit. 302. Perk. §. 66.
- Ability of Persons. 2. It shall enure as much as may be according to the apparent Intent of the Parties. Finch's Law 58.
- Intent of the Parties. 3. A Deed that is intended and made only to one Purpose may enure to another; for if it will not take Effect that way, it is intended it may take Effect another way. Vide Dyer 251. 2 Co. 35. Co. Lit. 49.
- Purpose and Effect intended. Where a Conveyance will not take Effect the way it was intended, there rather than it should have no Effect, it shall pass by another way than what the Parties designed. Lucas 35.
- And shall never be void where the Words may be employed to some Intent. Plow. 160. b.
- Effect. 4. When a Deed is made it shall enure as it may, and so as it may have and take the most and best Effect that may be according to Reason. Vide Plow. 140, 59. Co. Lit. 302.
- In Conveyances we are to Respect two Things, the Form and Effect of them; and in all Cases where the Form and Effect cannot stand together, the Form shall be rejected, and the Effect shall stand. 2 Leon. Case 25. p. 17.
- Election. 5. When a Deed may enure to divers Purposes, he to whom the Deed is made shall have Election which way to take it, and he may take it that way as shall be most for his Advantage. Co. Lit. 301. Dyer 251.
- Words. 6. The Words of an Indenture are the Words of both Parties. Cro. Jac. 398. pl. 4. Lucas 47, 48. Tho' they are spoken as the Words of one Party, yet they are not his Words only, for he has the Consent of the other Party to every one of these Words. Plow. 134.
- But not so in a Deed Poll, for they are only the Words of the Grantor, and shall be taken most strongly against him. 1 Plow. 134. a. 2 Rol. Abr. 65. Co. Lit. 146. Lucas 47.
- Charge out of Estates. 7. If one has divers Estates in Land, and he makes any Charge or Grant upon or out of it; this shall issue out of all his Estates. And if one has a Possession and an antient Right, and grants a Rent-charge out of the Land, or makes a Lease of the Land; this shall issue out of both the Estates, and it shall enure from him having several Estates, as it shall enure from several Persons having the same Estates. Quando duo jura concurrant in una persona æquum est ac si essent in diversis. Vide Perk. §. 592.
- Rent-charge enures by Extinction or Grant. 8. If one that has a Rent-charge out of a Manor by Grant, reciting his Grant, grants the same Rent to a Lessee for Life of the Manor out of which the Rent issues, to have and receive to him and his Heirs, and surrenders to him the Deed; this shall not enure to extinguish the Rent but by way of Grant, of which the Heir of the Lessee for Life may take Advantage, if he does not by granting away the Rent, purchasing the Reversion of the Manor, or making a Feoffment of the Manor, and thereby committing a Forfeiture, or by some such like Means prejudice himself; for by these Means the Rent will be extinct and determined.
- Office of the Court. 9. It hath been held, that the Construction of Deeds is the Office of the Court, and that the Contents are not to be proved by Witnesses, but only the Fact touching the Execution. 3 Ch. Rep. 94.

Secondly,

Secondly, For the Construction in the several Parts there are some Rules in general :

1. That the Construction be favourable, and as near the Minds of the Parties as possible. Deeds in several Parts.
2. That it be reasonable, and according to indifferent and reasonable Understanding. Minds of Parties.
3. Too much Regard is not to be had to the Nature and proper Distinction, Signification and Acceptance of Words and Sentences, to prevent the simple Intentions of the Parties. Reasonable Words.
4. That one Part of the Deed be construed by and help to expound the other, and the Parts are presumed to agree with one another. Parts to be compared.
5. That the Construction be such as the whole Deed and every Part of it may take Effect to the Purpose as much as may be for which it was made.
6. All the Words in the Deed are to be taken most strongly against him who speaks them, and in most Advantage to the other Party. Advantage of Grantee.
7. If there be two Clauses in a Deed repugnant one to another, the latter shall be rejected, but on the contrary in Wills. Rejection of a repugnant Clause.
8. That that which is generally spoken be generally understood, unless it be qualified by some special subsequent Words. Generally spoken, so understood.
9. That if Words admit of a double Intendment, and the one is with Law and the other against it, it is to be taken in that Sense which is agreeable to Law. Co. Lit. 42. a. b. Words with the Law, not against it.
10. Wheresoever you once use the Words for your Purpose, you shall not use it for another Construction. Lit. Rep. 28, 281.
11. That Things doubtfully set down be applied to him to whom they are properly belonging.
12. That such Constructions be made of the Abbreviations as the Deed may not lose its Force.

For more concerning the Exposition of Deeds, see the sixth Chapter, under the Name of each respective Deed; and Chapter five, concerning each Part of a Deed.

General Rules for the Exposition of Wills.

1. THEY must have a favourable Interpretation, and as near to the Mind and Intent of the Testator as may be, so that it be not repugnant to Law; as if Lands are devised to one and his Heirs Female, they shall take by such Devise. By whatever Words Lands will pass in a Deed, they will pass by the same Words in a Will, and the same Words that will make a Condition in a Deed will make the same in a Will. Intent of Testator.
2. A Testator being inops consilii, there ought to be a Construction made of his Words to answer his Intent as near as may be, appearing in other Parts of his Will. Latch 35, 96, 42. T. Raym. 456. And not by any Averment. Latch 35, 36.
3. The Words in a Will which disinherit an Heir must have an apparent Intent, and not be ambiguous and doubtful. Cro. Car. 269. Lucas 520.
4. The Law favours the Intent of the Devisor, and will not suffer his Will to be void, if by any reasonable Construction it can be made good. 2 Will. 282.
5. If the Intent be not apparent out of the Words, then it must be expounded by the Common Law. Latch 39, 40.
6. The Intent is to be construed by the Words of the Will, and not by any Thing dehors. Latch 42.
7. When any Chattels real or personal are given to an Executor by a Will, the Executor has an Election given him by Law to have or take them in the Right of Legatee, or as Executor. Election.
8. The Ordinary cannot refuse a Probate to an Executor, because he is an absconding Person; for the Testator has trusted him; nor can he insist on Security, for he has a Temporal Right, which he cannot sue for before Probate. 1 Salk. 299. Probate.
9. When a Devise of Goods or Chattels is well made, the Assent of the Executor is necessary to the Perfection thereof; for till then the Legatee may not meddle with the Thing devised, but the Agreement of the Executor or Administrator is not necessary in a Devise of Land; and if there be many Executors, the Assent of any one is sufficient. Assent of Executor.
10. A Person that may make a Testament, or devise his Goods and Chattels, may make an Executor; and any Person that may be a Devisee or Legatee may be an Executor: But Making an Executor.

if an Infant be made an Executor, he cannot meddle with the Administration of the Goods till he be seventeen Years of Age.

11. A Person Non compos cannot be an Executor nor Administrator; an Administrator becomes Bankrupt, Administration may be revoked; but Administration shall not be granted tho' the Executor becomes Bankrupt. 1 Salk. 36 & 39.

Words.

12. In Wills the Judges ought to know the Intent of the Parties by certain and sensible Words, agreeable and consonant to the Rules of Law. 1 Co. 35. a.

13. The Words in a Will ought to have a favourable Construction, because made sometimes in extremis, inops consilii, and shall be so marshalled to make it good, that those Words which are last shall be put first. 2 Plow. 540. b. 541. a. 546. a.

14. An express Devise shall not be altered by doubtful Words. Hob. 65. Cro. Car. 51, 52.

15. Express Words in a Condition in a Will may amount to no more than a Limitation. Mod. Rep. 86. 1 Vent. 200. 1 Brownl. 65. 1 Roll. Abr. 412. Cro. Eliz. 204. Owen 112. 2 Mod. 7. 1 Lut. 809. 3 Mod. 32.
